REGISTRATION lines have given way to spectacular scenes of academic industry. Books, drawing instruments, slide rules, and note books, with yellow slickers and gayly-colored golf hose to set them off, are being carried and worn on the Campus. The freshmen, still respectful but not quite so furtive, are beginning to carry themselves with a certain degree of confidence. The cross-country squad is running a few miles daily, competitions are breaking out, and the girls' archery team is practicing in front of Sage College. The University is indeed once again in session.

A NURSERY SCHOOL as a laboratory for the study of child training has been added to the College of Home Economics. Children enrolled will be cared for according to scientific principles. Among the unusual features provided will be daily physical examinations, mid-morning and mid-afternoon lunches, and a noon meal. Dr. Nellie Perkins, who has been director of the Summer Nursery School, will have charge of the work.

SERVICES in Sage Chapel during the month of October will be conducted by the following men: October 11, Rev. Francis J. McConnell, D.D., Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Pittsburgh; October 18, Rev. Malcolm J. McLeod, D.D., minister of the Collegiate Church of Saint Nicholas, New York; October 25, Rev. J. V. Moldenhawer, D.D., minister of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, of Albany N. Y.

A HELPFUL BY-STANDER put the finishing touches on one of the most remarkable accidents of the year in Ithaca. Professor Francis R. Sharpe of the Mathematics Department was turning his Buick car in East State Street at the foot of the hill, when his machine was struck by a passing trolley car. The Buick catapulted into a parked Ford with such force that the Ford was overturned. Then the helpful bystander lit a match to examine the damage, which ignited the gasoline tank on the Buick, and caused the speedy summoning of the Ithaca Fire Department. The Buick was practically destroyed, but Professor and Mrs. Sharpe escaped with only slight bruises.

MISS VERA BRITTAIN, well-known English writer, lecturer, and feminist, is now the wife of Professor George G. Catlin of the Department of Government. They were married in England this summer and are living at 117 Oak Avenue.

MRS. LULU MILLS entered the garage of Wesley Vreeland of Freeville with the demand that he should make satisfactory disposal of certain stored goods belonging to her. He, in reply, shot her through the body with a 32-caliber automatic pistol and is now in the Tompkins County jail, pending the outcome of her injuries.

THE UNIVERSITY CLUB will not reopen the dining service at the Club this year. Other club activities, such as card parties, and musical entertainments, will be continued as before.

REPAIRS amounting to approximately $13,000 have been completed by the Engineering Department of the College of Agriculture. The steam line all over the Campus has been repaired and a new water line has been laid along the east end of the Quadrangle. The cafeteria in the Home Economics Building has been repainted, as have portions of the Poultry Building, the Animal Husbandry Building, and the Agricultural Farm buildings. New roofs have been laid on Caldwell Hall, Fernow Hall, and the Poultry Building.

THE EIGHTEEN-HOLE golf course long planned by the Ithaca Country Club will soon become a reality. Parcels of real estate, mostly to the south and west of the present course, have been purchased, so that now about ninety acres are available. A club house is to be erected on the old second green, south of Dearborn Place.

BUTTERMILK FALLS and Gorge were taken over by the State as a public park on July 1. The falls and glen were given to the State of New York by Robert H. Treman '78 and Mrs. Treman over a year ago, but the deed was not accepted by State authorities until last summer.

TENNIS PLAYERS numbering over one hundred have signed up for the University Open and Freshman Tennis Tournaments. These tournaments are held each fall to decide the University championships and the ranking of the net stars. The number of entries sets a record.

TWO NEW STUDENT pastors have been added to the staff of the Christian Association. They are Rev. Frank Lambert, university pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church, and Mark Entorf of the Union Theological Seminary, who will temporarily assume the position of Hugh Moran as student pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

THE MUSICAL CLUBS, whose annual Christmas trip has become an institution, are scheduled to make their first appearance in Rochester on December 26.

THE EDWARD THOMPSON Company of Northport, Long Island, has given to the Law College a set of McKinney's Consolidated Laws of New York, to be given at the end of the year to the senior who has done the best work for The Cornell Law Quarterly. The set is valued at $170.

CITY AUTHORITIES were puzzled at the amount of work accomplished by a gang of workmen who were removing paving blocks at Court and Cayuga Streets. The cause of their sudden outburst of industry, investigation revealed, was the finding of a silver dollar which had been buried for some time under the blocks. No more dollars appeared, however, to repay their labor.

M. PIERRE LE PAULLE of Paris, who comes to Cornell under the provisions of the Schiff Foundation, has begun a series of lectures in the College of Law. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of each week from October until Christmas, M. Le Paulle is to utilize the twelve o'clock recitation period in a comparison of the common and civil law of America and France. An interesting view of his, touching a widely discussed situation, is the opinion that the propositions of France to abandon payment of the war debt to America were practically all made by electioneering French politicians in their appeals for votes.

THE ITHACA CONSERVATORY of Music and affiliated schools registered 1300 students this year, the largest enrollment in the history of the school. Every state in the Union and several foreign countries are represented in the student body.

PORTO RICO, the largest island of the West Indies belonging to the United States, sent ten freshmen to Cornell this fall. There are about one hundred Spanish-speaking students in the University this year.

TWENTY OARSMEN under the direction of Coach C. A. Lueder '03 have been rowing in fours on the Inlet. Crew suffered little from graduation and scholastic deficiencies, losing but two men from last year's Varsity combination. Practice on the water will continue until November.

THE CORNELL chapter of Pi Lambda Phi Fraternity has purchased the former E. G. Wyckoff residence near the corner of Wyckoff and Thurston Avenues as a new chapter house. The fraternity, which has been located at 117 DeWitt Place since 1912, will take possession soon.

UNIVERSITY CONCERTS in Bailey Hall during 1925-26 promise to be even more varied and interesting than in former years. Among the attractions listed are the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Percy Grainger, pianist; Toscha Seidel, violinist; the Russian Symphonic Choir, and the Metropolitan prima donna, Rosa Ponselle.

Who's Who at Convention

Detroit Alumni Gathering Will Hear Talks by Many Interesting People

Recent announcements of plans by the Detroit Convention Committees and by the officers of the Cornell Alumni Corporation add five well-known names to the list of interesting personalities who will appear on the program during the two days that the Sixth Annual Convention is in session at the Book-Cadillac Hotel.

The name of President Farrand as speaker at the banquet Friday night, October 23, has already been announced. Speaking with him will be the newly elected president of the University of Michigan, Dr. Clarence C. Little. He comes to Michigan from the presidency of the University of Maine with an enviable reputation for post-prandial oratory, but his attendance at the Cornell dinner will be particularly appropriate in that it symbolizes the traditional bond between the universities of Cornell and Michigan. As students of Cornell's early history well know, it was while he was professor of history on the Michigan campus that Andrew D. White outlined in detail the plans for carrying into effect his dream to found such a university as later became Cornell. Cornell's second president, Charles Kendall Adams, was called to the leadership at Ithaca direct from the Michigan faculty.

That the dinner will be well toast-mastered is assured by the promise that Professor Charles Love (Bull) Durham '99 will be imported from Ithaca for the evening.

Distinctive features of recent conventions of the Cornell Alumni Corporation have been addresses, with discussions following, by deans of some of the colleges that make up Cornell University. In furtherance of this popular custom, Dean Dexter S. Kimball of the College of Engineering and Acting Dean Charles K. Burdick of the College of Law will speak at the business sessions on Friday. Dean Kimball will speak at the morning session, Dean Burdick in the afternoon.

The closing business session on Saturday morning will be informal, with talks by persons representing various Cornell activities. One of the best known names on the program will be that of Jack Moakley, distinguished coach of Cornell track teams ever since the Spanish War.

Some indication of the personnel of the next board of directors of the Corporation is given in the announcement of the alumni who have been placed in nomination from the twelve districts. The elections will be made by the delegates and individuals who attend the convention in Detroit.

It is probable that the following list of candidates is complete, inasmuch as nominations are valid only if bearing postmark not later than thirty days prior to the opening of the convention:

District No. 1, Central New York: Justice Leonard C. Crouch '89, of Syracuse; District No. 2, Metropolitan New York: Mrs. H. D. Williams (Nina Van Dyne) '10 and Neal Dow Becker '05, both of New York; District No. 3, Eastern New York: Charles A. Taussig '02, of Scarsdale; District No. 4, Western New York: Dr. Floyd S. Winslow '06, of Rochester.

District No. 5, New England: Archie C. Burnett '90, of Boston; District No. 6, Middle Atlantic: Frank G. Tallman '80, of Wilmington, Delaware, and Andrew J. Whinery '10, of East Orange, New Jersey; District No. 7, Keystone: C. Rodman Stull '07, of Philadelphia; District No. 8, Southern: Dr. Frederick V. Coville '87, of Washington.

District No. 9, Great Lakes: Anton Vonnegut '05, of Indianapolis; District No. 10, Central: Edwin E. Sheridan '11, of Chicago; District No. 11, Western: Perry Post Taylor '89, of St. Louis; District No. 12, Pacific: Mrs. F. E. Yoakum (Wilhelmine Wissmann) '11, of Berkeley, California.

Although notices from Detroit are being mailed to all alumni, the committee makes further emphasis of the fact that accommodations have been reserved at the Book-Cadillac Hotel for several hundred persons who are expected to come in addition to the accredited delegates of the constituent clubs. The convention is designed just as much for the individual as it is for the club representative.

Reservations should be made with James Elwood '06, General Motors Building, Detroit.

The committee makes special mention of the fact that wives and husbands, even though they may not be Cornell alumni, are most welcome.

SPORT STUFF

The university community is getting interested in the football team. There had been a general feeling that this season's operations could be charged off to profit and loss in advance. Two games have been played. As a result the Goldwin Smith steps, the barber shops and the Johnny Parson Club agree that while this team may get licked a few times it's going to be an interesting crowd to watch. Some of these little boys who last year graced the bench are producing better football than their classmates expected of them simply because they are trying so hard. Their legs keep going after they are apparently flat on their tummies and every once in a while some eager foot gets traction on a convenient countenance for another yard or two.

You can stand seeing a team get licked when it's trying for touchdowns all the time and isn't satisfied with mere yardage.

Optical Society to Meet

Convention in Ithaca Will Hear Reports on Timely Scientific Problems

The tenth annual meeting of the Optical Society of America will be held at Cornell University on October 29, 30, and 31. In addition to a number of contributed papers and committee reports on such subjects as radiation, spectrometry, photography, and physical optics, there will be two invited papers given, one by Professor Emeritus Simon H. Gage '77 on "The Microscope: Its Development and Some Recent Improvements" and the other by Professor Emile M. Chamot '91 of the Chemistry Department on "Chemical Microscopy: Its Aims and Possibilities."

The program will also include discussion of two items of widespread interest. Dr. H. E. Ives of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., president of the Society, will deliver his retiring address on "Some Photographic Problems Encountered in the Transmission of Pictures by Wire." Professor Dayton C. Miller of the Case School of Applied Science will speak on his very recent experiments at Mt. Wilson, California, to test the Einstein theory of relativity by the famous ether drift experiment.

The Optical Society of America was founded in 1916 "to serve the interests of those who are engaged in any branch of optics, from fundamental research to the manufacture of optical goods." Its present officers are: president, Herbert E. Ives of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., New York; vice-president, W. E. Forsythe of the Nela Research Laboratory, Cleveland; secretary, Professor Floyd Karker Richtmyer '04 of the Cornell Department of Physics; treasurer, Adolph Lomb of the Bausch and Lomb Optical Company, Rochester.

INTERCOLLEGE SOCCER, a game which has become increasingly popular during the past few years, has been started. The various colleges have been divided into two sections and the winners in each section will meet in the championship finals.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Cornell Law Association will be held at 10:30 Saturday morning, October 10, in Boardman A. There will be a short business meeting followed by the annual address, to be given by Justice Martin T. Manton, United States Circuit Judge assigned to the Second Circuit. Judge Manton will speak on "The Organization of the United States Courts of Appeals."

DR. FELIX ADLER, of New York, who was non-resident lecturer on Hebrew and Oriental literature and history here from 1874 to 1876, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary on August 13. In 1876, he founded the Society for Ethical Culture, which has done a great work in the metropolis and throughout America.

Team Shows Improvement

The football team on Saturday found Niagara a much stronger opponent than Susquehanna the week before, but after a barren first period managed to roll up a 26 to 0 score, approximately the same count as in last year's game, at the same time of the year. The team from western New York was on its toes, played aggressively, and put up a stout resistance. It had no offense to speak of, failing to gain one first down, but it took the ball away from Cornell on downs four times, twice in the first period inside of Niagara's ten-yard line. The Cornellians scored twice in the second period, and once apiece in the third and fourth.

Most of Cornell's gains were made on rushes off tackle or through the line. A few forward passes were attempted, for the most part without success. Rosenberg pulled off a sixty-yard run in the second minute of play, and Wester and Tilton also figured in rather substantial gains, but most of the advances were of the three, five, and seven-yard variety. Both Gassner and Fratt, who started in the halfback positions, repeatedly broke through the Niagara guards or smashed past the tackles. Both ran a little high and were slow to start, but they gave promise of future strength in rushing. These backs, and Butterfield and Trefts, who were sent in during the third period, gave a better exhibition than in the previous week. They had in general more drive, they kept their feet better, and they had some semblance of interference.

The team as a whole showed improvement over its play against Susquehanna. The line was impenetrable, defensively, and if it seemed to lack speed and dash on the offense, it was up against a determined bunch of forwards. The ends had little to do. They did not shine in taking out men, but for that matter, the team as a whole has a lot to learn about "clearing out" for the ball carriers. In the fourth period Eddy, a third string end, made the best tackle of the year so far by nailing Cadzow of Niagara in his tracks just as he caught a punt. It was as pretty a flying tackle as one would care to see.

It was a green team Coach Dobie put on the field, only three letter men, Wester, quarterback, Munns, right guard, and Evans, right tackle, starting. Captain Kearney was sent in in the third period at left tackle and Affeld went in at center in the fourth period. Carey, left guard, was on the bench, having been injured in practice, and Isaly, halfback, has yet to enter a game. He is still nursing minor injuries. Fennell and Wakeman, prospective varsity ends, were also on the bench.

The first two games give no good clue as to the makeup of the varsity in November. This is especially true of the ends and backs.

Failing twice in the first period to score from advantageous positions, the team got together in the second quarter and drove down for a touchdown, Fratt making the score, but failing at placement goal for the extra point. A little later a forty-yard march down the field terminated in another touchdown, Gassner, Wester, and Fratt making most of the gains. Line bucks after a delayed pass proved effective. A forward pass, Fratt to Gassner, made fifteen yards in this drive, and Gassner went over for the touchdown. This time Fratt kicked goal.

In the third period the team drove down from midfield, smash following smash. An off-tackle rush by Wester made a substantial gain, and Gassner went over for the third touchdown. Fratt failed at goal. A twenty-two-yard run by Wester around left end brought the ball to midfield before time was called, but Niagara held, and after the punt Cornell started a drive from her twelve-yard line. This was the most impressive march of the day, a steady advance down the field. On Niagara's thirty-yard line Butterfield launched a pass, which a Niagara back intercepted, knocking the ball into the air. The alert Kearney grabbed it before it hit the ground, and made first down on Niagara's twenty-five-yard line. The Niagara defense stiffened and held Cornell for inconsequential gains three times, but on the fourth down, Tilton, who had just been sent into the game, dodged and cut his way twenty-two yards for a touchdown, and Trefts kicked goal. The line up and summary:

Cornell (26)		Niagara (0)
Courtright.....	L.E.....	Gorman
Aird.....	L.T.....	Nies
Anderson.....	L.G.....	Smith
Rapuno.....	C.....	Curtin

Deficit Compels Curtailment

An operating deficit of $23,000 for the calendar year 1924-25 will necessitate some curtailment in the sports program this year, the Athletic Council announces. The Finance Committee has been empowered to take the necessary action.

Just what form this curtailment will take remains for future decision, but in a general way it will include reduction in schedules; the probable elimination of such freshman sports as lacrosse, soccer, wrestling, and hockey; reduction in the size of varsity and freshman squads on trips; dropping of assistant coaches, except those on contract; limiting the junior varsity crew to only one race, that at Poughkeepsie, and other curtailments that may be found necessary.

Except football, every sport last year showed a deficit. There were more trips for major contests than usual and fewer big home games; the teams as a rule were unsuccessful and played to smaller crowds; and the lack of a regatta on the Spring Day program cut down the size of the crowd and hence the revenue. The deficit takes no account of construction costs, but represents operating loss only.

The undergraduates, moreover, have not responded to the membership ticket campaign as had been hoped. Last year 3200 tickets were sold, the year before 3400. This year the number has not passed 3000, and this in face of a strong appeal addressed to the undergraduates by the senior members of the Athletic Council, who called upon them to feel their responsibility for the maintenance of the sports program. They pointed out that after the alumni had created the athletic plant on the hill for the use of the undergraduates, the latter had accepted the responsibility for maintaining the athletic program. Moreover the Athletic Association has been put to considerable expense in administering the Johnny Parson Club, winter sports, and improving the playgrounds, all an important contribution toward the promotion of general recreational facilities.

The sale of tickets after this appeal was broadcast increased somewhat, but the total is likely to remain under that of last year, and well under that of the normal sale since the War.

PROFESSOR DEXTER S. KIMBALL is one of a commission of three, with President Keppel of the Carnegie Corporation of New York and C. R. Dooley, personnel director of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, to make a survey of the Mechanics' Institute of Rochester for the purpose of determining its future policy and the place it should occupy in the educational system.

LITERARY REVIEW

Jonson the Artist

Ben Jonson's Art: Elizabethan Life and Literature as Reflected Therein. By Esther Cloudman Dunn '13, Ph. D. London, Associate Professor of English in Smith College. Northampton, Mass. Printed for Smith College. 1925. 24.4 cm., pp. xviii, 159. 2 portraits. Smith College Fiftieth Anniversary Publications.

In this readable and indeed highly interesting volume Professor Dunn gives us a series of studies of "rare Ben" in his relations with the court, the stage, the art of poetry, and the life of his time in general. While frankly an admirer of the work of Jonson, she endeavors to maintain an impartial attitude, and never hesitates to point out shortcomings in the character of the hero. At her hands the person of Jonson looms up before us as a great and many-sided person, urbane, scholarly but not pedantic, fond of the life of the court and of the tavern, but able to detach himself from the scenes in which he moved and of which he was a part and analyze the characters of men and women with singular perspicacity and completeness.

"The Court," says Miss Dunn, "played a great part in Jonson's life. To it he owed some of his pleasantest social connections and much of his professional success. It furnished a generous, richly coloured background to soften the austerities of his intellectual life and the restrictions of his material existence. But aside from its value to him personally, he was interested in the Court as one of the shaping factors in the society of his day. A man so thoroughly trained in the classics was bound to recognize the force of formal authority, the great leverage which attaches to position and makes its influence so far-reaching. As a child of the Renaissance he would be interested, too, in the question of what constitutes a gentleman and how near the standard of the Court came to answering that question. As a constructive reformer of society, most of all, he was bound to scrutinize and comment upon the ideals and practices of his courtier's life."

Jonson presents us with an invaluable picture of the stage of his time: its various characters, its gallants who frequented the theater merely to show themselves off, the Philistines who came without brains but with definite second-hand opinions, the smaller number of appreciative spectators. And he had highly positive opinions about the plays of his time, opinions which he propounded with vigor and directness. His influence over his contemporaries was not so great, thinks Miss Dunn, as it might have been had his fellow playwrights not come to believe that his artistic theory was the result of a peculiar temperament.

To the general reader the chapter on Jonson's view of the life of the time will be found the most interesting of all. It is always a sympathetic view of life. "He had a kinship with picturesque rascals: it was as if he realized how much he was indebted to them and returned the obligation by his genial understanding of their point of view." He did not rebel against the barriers of society as they presented themselves; he merely wished each class to treat the opinions of people of other classes with tolerance and respect. The fashions and foibles of the time were his material in trade; he was content to reproduce them faithfully. By comparison with other dramatists Miss Dunn shows us how much more steadily Jonson saw life than other contemporary dramatists (of course with the exception of Shakespeare) and how much more trustworthy his portraiture of the time is found to be.

The volume is illustrated with two fine portraits, one of Jonson and the other of Camden, from the superb collection of George A. Plimpton of New York. The book is handsomely printed and is altogether a highly creditable production.

OBITUARY

Julius E. Rogers '74

Julius Edwin Rogers died at Binghamton, N. Y., on September 11. He was born on October 25, 1850, at Stockbridge, Vt. After preparing at Stamford Seminary, he entered the science course at Cornell in 1870. He remained only one year.

John W. Chamberlin '73, of Buffalo, N. Y., Rogers' room-mate during his residence at Cornell, writes that Rogers was a most popular member of the group living at one of the first student boarding-houses, "Billy" Burch's, on upper Mill Street. "Rogers was easily the liveliest of the household," he says, "and we were all very sorry when he failed to return as a sophomore. He was always an exemplification of how easy it is to keep in line if one is so minded, and of how much more one can thus get out of life than by choosing some other course. He stood high in the qualities that make good men."

On January 13, 1876, Rogers married Miss Helen H. Baldwin, of Stamford, N. Y., who survives him, with five children, Morris N., Nellie B., Julius Ralph, Grace E., and Carlton E. Rogers. For a few years after leaving Cornell he was a commission merchant in New York. Later he moved to Binghamton, where he was prominent in the business, educational, and religious life of the city.

Henry A. Wilmot '75

Henry Ames Wilmot died at Spencerport, N. Y., on January 5, 1924. He was born at Ogden, N. Y., on December 14, 1849, and after attending the Brockport Collegiate Institute and the Temple Hill Academy, he entered Cornell in 1871 as an optional student. In 1873 he left the University, and later attended Buffalo

Medical College, from which he graduated in 1877. For many years he was a practicing physician and surgeon at Middleport, New York.

Henry M. Norton '80

Henry Mark Norton died at his home in St. Paul, Minn., on February 27, 1925, after an illness of nine months.

He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., on December 4, 1859, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Norton. He entered Cornell in 1876 as a student of agriculture. In 1880 he was graduated with the degree of B. Agr. He was a member of Delta Beta Phi.

For a number of years prior to his death, he was engaged in the real estate business in St. Paul, where he was a member of Triune Lodge No. 190, F. & A. M. Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, E. L. Norton, and a daughter, Mrs. F. T. Lund.

W. Wallace Christie '89-91

William Wallace Christie died at his home in Paterson, N. J., on April 13, 1925.

He was born in Paterson on July 12, 1866, the son of James C. and Louisa Jones Christie. After graduating from Paterson High School, he entered Cornell in 1890 as a special student of mechanical engineering and remained for two years. After leaving the University, he was connected with various engineering organizations, designing many power plants and factories and doing considerable mechanical and valuation engineering work. He was the author of several books on engineering matters and a contributor to engineering journals.

On March 14, 1895, he was married to Miss Carrie E. Ker of New York. He leaves three children, Wallace T., William D., and Mary K. Christie.

Wickham H. Quinan '20

Wickham Hartzell Quinan died in Berkeley, Calif., on July 3, 1925, of sleeping sickness.

He was born in Manila, P. I., on November 16, 1898, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wickham Quinan. After receiving his early education in the Bagnio School at Manila he entered Cornell as a student of mechanical engineering in 1916 and remained for two years. Then he went to the University of California and graduated in 1920. Since then he had been in the employ of Charles C. Moore & Company, San Francisco engineers. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jean F. Quinan.

George E. Jeffery '24

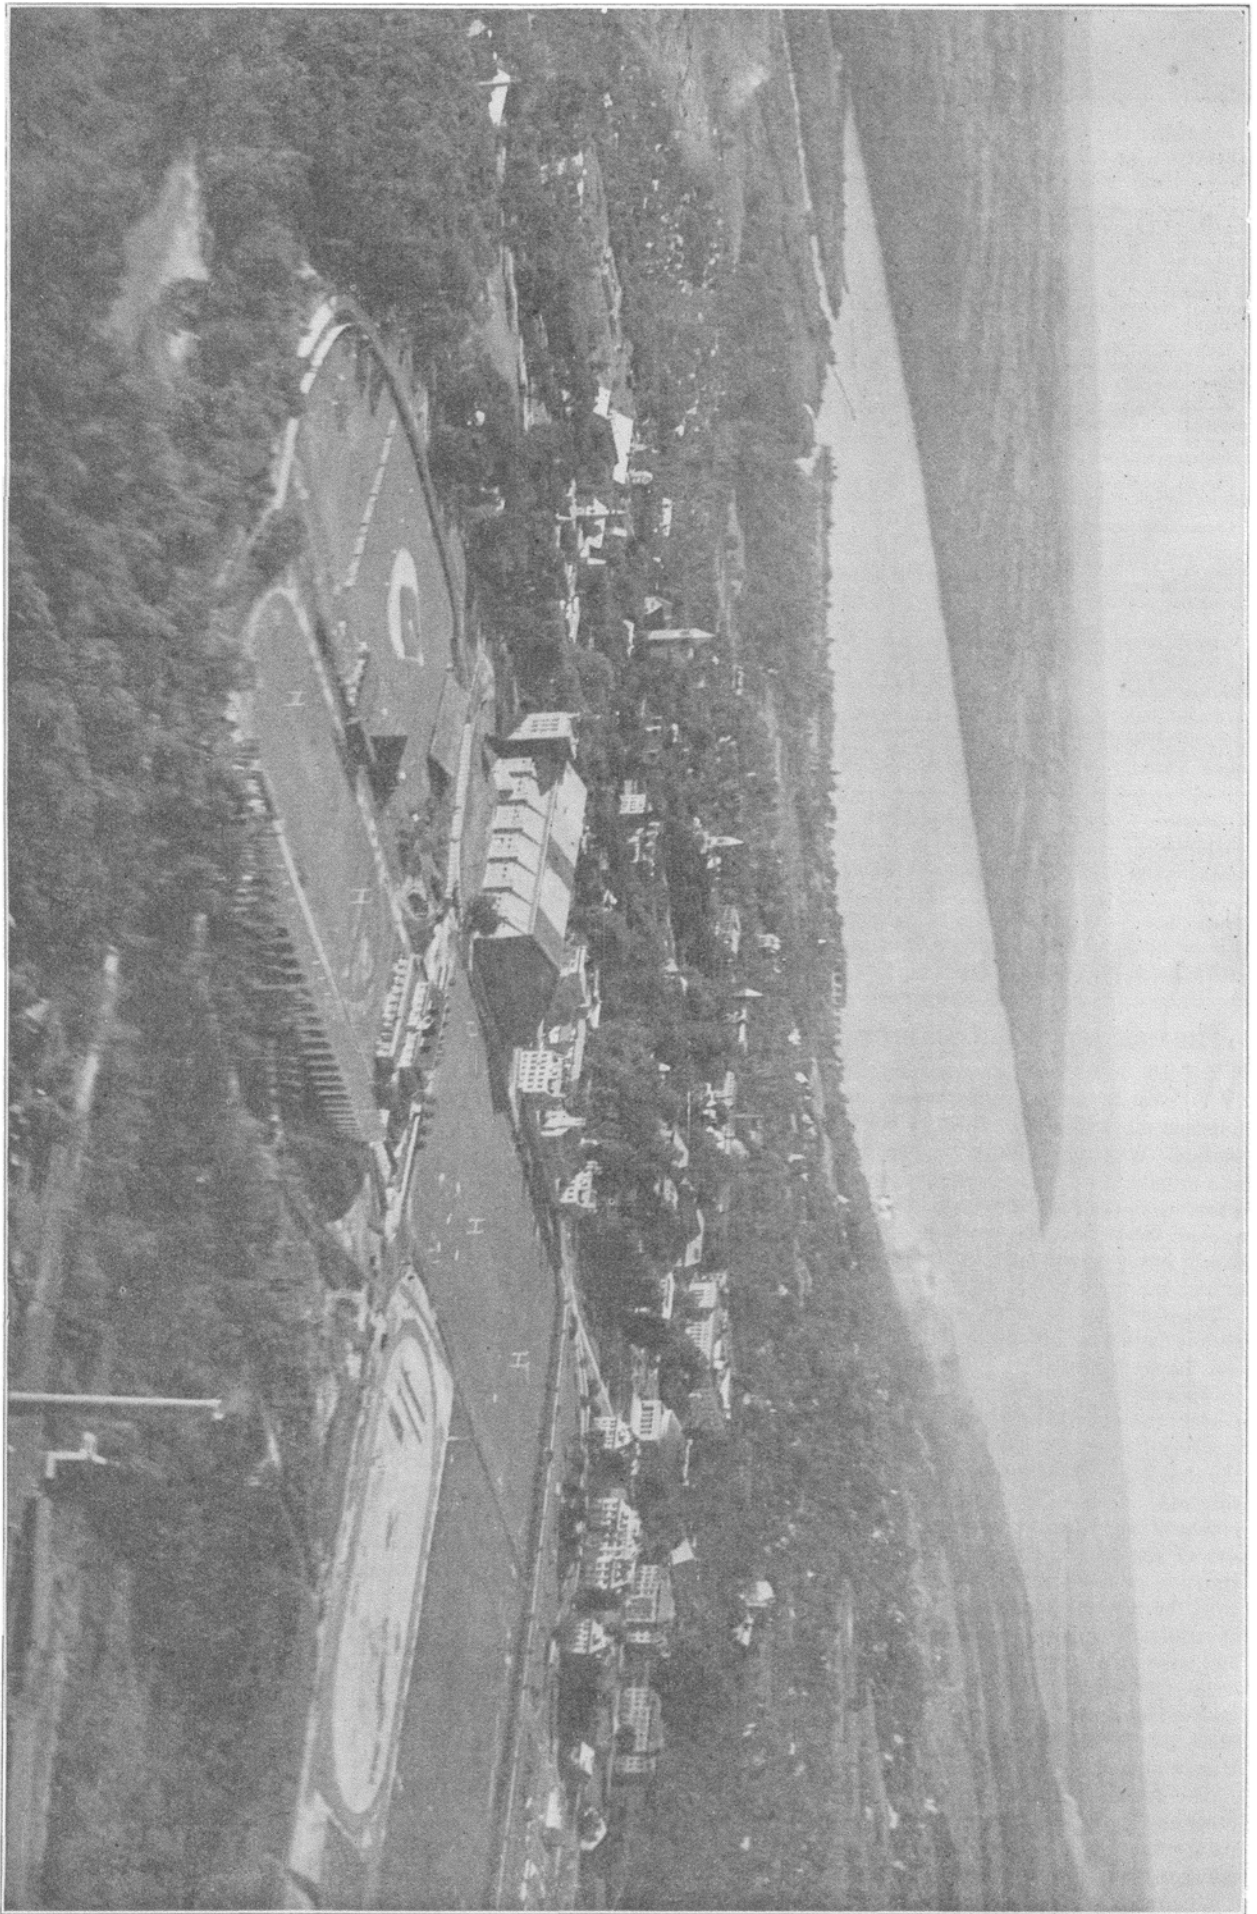

George Edward Jeffery died on July 13, 1925, of peritonitis.

He was born at Washington, D. C., on November 2, 1900, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Jeffery. He graduated from the Central High School in Washington, and entered Cornell in 1920 as a student of civil engineering. Last June he was graduated with the degree of C.E.

ATHLETIC FIELDS, UNIVERSITY BUILDINGS, VALLEY, AND LAKE

Practically the entire Campus is shown in this remarkable fine airplane photograph, made by W. A. Reed '28 for J. P. Troy, by courtesy of the Thomas-Morse Aircraft Corporation. The new cinder track on Upper Alumni Field, lying at the right foreground, stands out most prominently in the picture. Between the track and the State Drill Hall is an unbroken stretch of the new turf of Lower Alumni Field. Schoellkopf Field, the aqueduct-like arches of the Cornell Crescent rising above Schoellkopf. Poles bearing the flood lights which shed illumination totaling 84,000 watts on late football practice can be plainly distinguished along the border of Schoellkopf Field and the football area at one end of Hoy Field. In the left center of the picture the roof of Willard Straight Hall is seen, to the left of the Library Tower, with a glimpse of the Baker Dormitories further down the slope. The Baker Laboratory of Chemistry stands out to the left of the College of Agriculture buildings on the far side of Alumni Field.

THE CONVENTION IN DETROIT

WHY do we hold a convention each year in some Cornell center several hundred miles from the object of our attention? Why do we give serious attention to a proposal to go to a distant convention when, up to the time we decided to go, no announcement has been made of any urgent business, and only a bully program of high powered entertainment?

These and many other questions may always be asked by the unbeliever, and can rarely be answered directly. One could reply at great length, leading his readers through various steps of logic and emotional upheaval. One would tell of the development of the alumnaal relationship; the need of sympathetic outside points of view by the educator; the desire of the alumnus for a better understanding of the problems of the University; the need of confidential discussions of academic and undergraduate affairs; and build up a network of reasoning which could not be refuted, but which would incidentally diminish the army of readers until the faithful residue would consist largely of proof-readers.

The reasons must be reached by another and less soporific route. The facts of past conventions are the best urge for going to present conventions.

No meeting for alumnaal discussion ever held in Ithaca has, we believe, approached the annual conventions in interest and actual attendance. Even the Semi-Centennial, with its record-setting attendance, focused its attention on University problems for a relatively short time.

Again, the list of those who are chronic conventioners indicates that each succeeding annual affair carries on the interest of a large percentage of those who were there the year before, and adds a large body of those who have heard only enthusiastic praise of Cornell conventions. The effort incident to attending is sufficient so that this should be convincing evidence in itself.

The opportunities of the fall conventions have by no means been overworked. Here is the logical place and time for informal sessions of the executive committees of classes that are to hold reunions in June; here, meetings of alumni committees, when there are such, to work on special problems for the various general Cornell alumni bodies; here, sessions with no object whatever except the renewal of friendships that have lapsed.

While the facts of the attendance record in themselves justify the holding of conventions, the present outline of the program and the opportunities for utilizing the convention in furthering Cornell's interests should be sufficient urge to enable us to run the entertainment committee ragged.

FACULTY NOTES

APROPOS of the visit of Professor Emile M. Chamot '91 to France last year as exchange professor, we quote the following editorial note from Industrial and Engineering Chemistry for August:

"Some months ago we took occasion to urge extension of the exchange professor plan between foreign countries and the United States, stressing the fact that each group had much to contribute to the other. We are therefore especially glad to note the success which has attended the visit of E. M. Chamot, who went from Cornell to France as exchange professor of applied sciences. The dean of the College of Science at the University of Nancy has recorded his gratitude for the presence of Professor Chamot, and it is evident that he not only has added to his own prestige by his visits abroad, during which he has represented a number of American universities, but has thereby brought honor to our American schools as well.

"Exchange of opinions on methods of teaching, discussion of his own specialty—chemical microscopy—and personal contact with the great educational institutions of France help to establish still more firmly the cordial relations between our French colleagues and ourselves. There can be no doubt as to the value of such exchange professorships."

The Class Endowment

And How It Can Be Done Through Life Insurance

THE JOHN HANCOCK MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY worked out this problem for the 1923 graduating class of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and is ready to do it for others.

Many graduating classes, wishing to benefit their Alma Mater have turned to the insurance idea since it allows the participation of a large number of students.

This plan provides for the payment of a certain specified sum to the University at the end of 20 or 25 years, the members of the graduating class paying a nominal sum each year to create an endowment. In case of the death of a graduate before the endowment matures his full share is paid into the fund.

Every student is given a chance to put his John Hancock on the dotted line and become a continuing contributor to the future welfare of his Alma Mater. It has been successfully carried through in a number of cases, and it can be done with your institution.

The John Hancock organization will be glad to render any service it can to college classes and individuals; also to interest ambitious college graduates in life insurance work.

Electricity Means Better Work

The Woodstock Electrite, newest member of the Woodstock family, has all the features that distinguish the standard Woodstock machine, plus the speed and ease of electrical operation. It is a revelation in typewriter efficiency and high grade character of work. Send for booklet which describes both the Electrite and the standard Woodstock machine.

What books do you need for Fall and Winter reading?

To aid you in your selection we issue each year two booklets listing worth while books. The Agricultural list has the larger circulation of several thousand. The Engineering list is very complete too. One of these is yours for the asking. We will get the information for you regarding other books not listed. Let us be of service to you.

Cornell Songbooks

A book needed by every Cornellian. The only songbook in print containing the songs with music. The price is $1.75 postage paid. Half the book contains other popular songs.

Cornell Rowing

This is written as a story which is largely a life of Courtney. The crew records and other information you need and want is there. Even if you were not on oarsman you want to know. $1.50 postage paid.
