Categories Reviewed for Preservation

The documents in the following categories of the bibliography have been reviewed for preservation. Reviewers were asked to determine the relative importance of each title for historical research in the humanities compared to other titles in the lists according to the following scheme:

First Priority: Very important historical title, of critical importance to preserve. First priority for preservation in this grant project.

Second Priority: Important title definitely worth preserving, funds permitting. Should be preserved as part of this grant project

Third Priority: Worth preserving at some time, but of a lower priority.

Fourth Priority: Low priority. Not worth preserving.

In this presentation of the bibliography, each title displays the average rating. The citations were discovered during searches of electronic databases, card catalogs, and published bibliographies. For a list of sources, refer to the Sources Searched section of this bibliography. Additional information such as the source or notes may be available for these citations. Contact the primary investigators to obtain this information.

Monographs

This section of the bibliography includes monographs which meet the criteria of the grant. These monographs were not identified as part of a major series, a thesis or dissertation, or an agricultural experiment station publication. Each citation includes the most complete bibliographic information we were able to compile, subject headings, and the average rating of the expert reviewers. For each title, the ratings of the four expert reviewers have been averaged. The citations follow a modified MLA format, underlining all titles and including the page numbers. The citations are listed alphabetically by author.

Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station Mimeographed Circulars

This section of the bibliography includes agricultural experiment station mimeographed circulars. Each citation includes the most complete bibliographic information we were able to compile and subject headings. The citations follow a modified MLA format, underlining all titles and including the page numbers. The citations are listed in numerical order by circular number.
