MEETING OF TRUSTEES.

Professorship for Shearer '93—The Cadet Corps Reorganized.

The regular fall meeting of the Board of Trustees of the University was held in the executive office in Morrill Hall last Saturday. Morning and afternoon sessions were held.

John Sandford Shearer was made professor of physics, being promoted from an assistant professorship. Professor Shearer is a member of the class of 1893 and received the Ph. D. degree from this University in 1902. He was assistant in physics in 1893-94, and instructor from 1894 till 1903, when he was made an assistant professor.

Edward Bradford Titchener, Sage professor of psychology, was appointed Sage professor of psychology in the Graduate School. This appointment will give Professor Titchener the charge of research work in psychology in the school.

The reports of the President, the Treasurer and the committee on appropriations were submitted.

The Board approved a plan for reorganizing the cadet corps in the department of military science, so as to relieve the overcrowding of the armory during drill hours. Hitherto there have been two battalions of three companies each; now there will be three battalions of three companies each, making three more companies. Each company will be smaller than under the old organization—nearer the size of the company in the regular army. The change will make it possible to drill one battalion in the armory every day, so that each battalion will get two drills a week. The Board made provision for nine more commissioned officers, increasing the number to thirty-one. All these officers receive free tuition and eleven of them are selected by the Commandant as assistants in the department and receive $100 a year in addition to free tuition.

The Trustees present from out of town were J. W. Wadsworth, jr.,

Speaker of the Assembly; R. A. Pearson '94, Commissioner of Agriculture; W. F. Pratt, of Batavia, representing the State Grange; Walter C. Kerr '79, New York; Henry W. Sackett '75, New York; J. H. Barr '89, Syracuse; H. R. Ickelheimer '88, New York; T. B. Wilson, Hall's Corners, N. Y.; Judge A. H. Sewell '71, Walton, N. Y.; Judge Harry L. Taylor '88, Buffalo; Willard Beahan '78, Cleveland; Frederick C. Stevens, Attica, N. Y.; J. N. Carlisle, Watertown, N. Y.; Dr. Robert T. Morris '80, New York; Judge F. H. Hiscock '75, Syracuse; A. R. Eastman, Waterville, N. Y., and W. H. French '73, Chicago.

The Algae of the Ithaca Marshes.

In Science for November 5, Mr. H. A. Anderson, of Wabash College, reports that investigations on the fauna and flora of the marshes of the upper Cayuga Lake basin during the past summer were continued at the Biological Field Station of Cornell University. Various studies were in progress. Mr. Anderson undertook the study of the algæ. His investigations were made in connection with the work of Dr. J. G. Needham, and were directed toward the solution of the problem of the algal food supply of herbivorous aquatic animals that are used as food by fishes. No local data being available, a preliminary study of the algæ of the marshes was undertaken. With little variety of conditions, a great number of species was not to be expected; however, nearly all the genera of the commoner fresh water algæ were represented. Material for future work on them has been preserved and will be worked over later. Of one genus, Chatophora, Mr. Anderson says that it is especially abundant in this region, and the fact that it is used extensively as food by aquatic animals that have importance as food for fishes leads him to expect that it will be of some economic value, and a special study of its habitat and capabilities of increase will be made in the future.

TRIBUTE TO PROFESSOR HART.

A Loving Cup Presented to Him on His Seventieth Birthday.

On Tuesday evening, November 2, about forty-five members of the University Faculty gathered at the home of Dr. James Morgan Hart, emeritus professor of the English language and literature, to offer their congratulations on his seventieth birthday. Professor Clark S. Northup, chairman of the committee in charge of the event, announced that a volume of studies in honor of Professor Hart is being prepared by several of his former students and will appear some time in the present college year. Professor Martin W. Sampson, Cincinnati '88, expressed the sentiments of Professor Hart's students in the following verses:

TO JAMES MORGAN HART
ON HIS SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY
A GREETING FROM HIS FORMER STUDENTS.
Let others tell what you have been to them,— Friend, colleague, and companion, and the rest,—
We who have followed you for years, our chief,
Tell now our own especial debt. For you
Have always given your very best to us,
Your insight, your devotion, and your strength,
Have cared to make us honour what you loved—
The fearless search for learning's far-off
goal—
Have taught us to revere the truth of life,
Being to us the model which we sought.
How you have shown us what a scholar should be!
Full of such steadfast courage, such high
aims,
Such concrete right ideals, such fine zeal,
Such patient skill to weigh the several facts,
Such sovereign precision, such firm poise,
Such wholly reasonable common-sense!
You have been our best of teachers, better still,
Have never tried to make disciples, and Thereby have always made them. We,
your men,—
Pray God we bear it steadily along,
The torch you handed us!

A loving cup was then presented by Dr. Andrew D. White, under whose presidency Professor Hart was first called to a chair in the University faculty. Dr. White's remarks were as follows:

ADDRESS OF ANDREW D. WHITE.

"Professor Hart: A numerous body of your old colleagues and friends have brought here tonight a token of their affectionate remembrance, of their respect and of their good wishes and they have kindly asked me to place it in your hands.

PROF. J. M. HART.

"Their main reason for choosing me is doubtless that I am the oldest of your colleagues here present, and I accept the honor all the more gratefully because I realize, quite as much as any one present can do, and more than most of the younger men are able to do, what your services to the University have been. Through all these years you have been largely instrumental in maintaining the high reputation of Cornell for its attention to the study of our own language and literature. In the early days of the University, when, on account of alleged heresies in its educational theories—heresies which have since become orthodox—it was bitterly attacked, one sin was very loudly charged against us and this was that Cornell University was "degrading the scholarship of the state." Time has passed and no one now doubts that the character of the scholarship in the classrooms of the state, throughout its whole length and breadth, has been vastly improved. Of this fact there is abundant evidence, and none know this better than those who can remember the entrance examinations for college in those early days and can contrast them with those passed at present. No one acquainted with the educational history of the state can dispute the fact that one of the greatest agencies, if not the greatest, in this change has been this University. The influence of its competitive examinations in the various assembly districts has doubtless had a steady effect for good, so too have the examinations for its endowed scholarships and fellowships, and various other causes might be named, but greatest of all the causes of this beneficent change has been the teaching in Cornell classrooms, which has permeated our whole system of public instruction. In this teaching and in the atmosphere of culture diffused from this center, you have stood among the foremost. From your classroom have been radiated influences which have told throughout the whole state in behalf of higher and nobler scholarship, and this service that you have thus rendered has well earned for you an honored place in the annals of public instruction in this commonwealth. Your lectures, your teachings, your writings, your conversation, have exercised a power which will be more and more appreciated as time goes on. Therefore it is that to me who have watched your work and its influence and who have rejoiced in it as the unpretentious but precious contribution of an old friend, it gives especial pleasure to be made the agent in this presentation.

"May I add to this that there is in this present meeting another cause for rejoicing felt deeply by us all—a double cause—namely, the restoration of your health and the fact that you are to continue to live among us after the old manner and on the old friendly, neighborly terms.

"I feel sure that I express the deep and hearty wish of everyone present and of the great body of your friends who are absent, in desiring for yourself and for Mrs. Hart a long and happy life among your old friends and associates of Cornell."

Professor Hart responded in a few words. He was gratified that the cup had been handed to him by ex-President White, who remembered the University further back than any other present, and that the gathering represented nearly all the departments of the University. He spoke

COSMOPOLITANS TO BE HERE.

Convention Will Consider Plan to Unite With the "Corda Fratres."

On December 22, 23 and 24 the Cornell Cosmopolitan Club will entertain the convention of the Association of Cosmopolitan Clubs. Delegates will be here from more than twenty American universities. The International Federation of Students, better known in Europe as the "Corda Fratres," will also be represented, and one of the most important matters to come before the convention is a plan to unite the Association of Cosmopolitan Clubs with this federation, which numbers 65 chapters and 15,000 members among the European universities. The two organizations are similar in their object. During the convention, too, ground will be broken for the Cornell Cosmopolitan Club's new house on the Bryant Park addition near Dryden Road.

The convention will assemble on Wednesday afternoon, December 22. After addresses of welcome by A. C. Towers, president of the Cornell club, and George W. Nasmyth '06, president of the Association, addresses will be made by the European delegates from the "Corda Fratres." Reports of officers will be heard and discussed, and then the Association's delegates to the Chicago Peace Conference and the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration, both held last summer, will make their reports. In the evening there will be a session to listen to addresses by public men, followed by a reception to the delegates, members and friends of the association.

Two University Trustees.
R. A. Pearson '94, State Commissioner of Agriculture, and James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Yale '98, Speaker of the Assembly, on the Campus.

Thursday will be devoted to business, which will include a report from the delegates of the "Corda Fratres" and a report from the committee on affiliation with that body. In the evening Dr. B. F. Trueblood of the American Peace Society will deliver an address. Then the reports of standing committees for the past year will be heard.

The Friday morning session will consist of five-minute abstracts of the reports of chapters, the following universities being heard from: Wisconsin, Cornell, Michigan, Illinois, Purdue, Ohio State, Chicago, Stanford, Iowa State, Harvard, University of Iowa, Missouri, Northwestern, Washington, Oberlin, Missouri School of Mines, Pennsylvania, Worcester Polytechnic, Syracuse, Columbia, Yale, Parke College, and Virginia. The four clubs last named are expected to become members at this convention. At noon the delegates will go to the site of the proposed Cosmopolitan clubhouse and take part in the ceremony of breaking ground. The rest of Friday will be devoted to the election of official chapters, the selection of a place for next year's convention, a public address and a farewell banquet.

The board of directors of the association consists of G. W. Nasmyth, Cornell, president; H. E. Griffith, Cornell, secretary and treasurer; L. P. Lochner, Wisconsin, recording secretary; H. E. Varga, Northwestern; V. C. Simonoff, Ohio State, and P. H. Vogel, Harvard. For the present year the Cornell club is the executive chapter, and the Wisconsin club is the recording chapter.

There are about 190 members in the Cornell Cosmopolitan Club this fall, more than ever before. About half of them are students from foreign countries. The club had hoped to have its new house ready before the convention met, but the work was delayed by the death of the architect, Mr. A. B. Wood of Ithaca.

Professor Hiram Corson was eighty-one years old last Saturday. He received calls from a large number of his friends during the day.

There are several subscriptions from special sources not included in the above list. No money can be called for until the whole $100,000 has been subscribed. It is imperative that the remaining $30,000 be subscribed in the next two months if the Alumni Field and other alumni projects are to be successful. Subscription blanks may be obtained from John O. Dresser, in care of George W. Bacon, chairman, 115 Broadway, New York.

The committee appointed by the president of the senior class to obtain a fund for a memorial tablet to the late Ross G. Marvin '05 has completed the fund and is now considering designs. It is said that Commander Peary will be asked to be present at the unveiling of the tablet.

The Freshman Civil Engineers are now engaged in surveying the Campus. The picture shows two of them at work in front of the chapel. The building on the left is Boardman Hall. In the middle distance is Stimson Hall.

Harvard 18, Cornell 0.

With a style of play calculated to take advantage of the greater weight of its backs, the Harvard team on Saturday defeated the 'varsity eleven at Cambridge by a score of 18 to

0. Harvard made one touchdown in the first half and two more near the end of the game, when her steady hammering had worn down the Cornell defense. In the "open game" Cornell had more success than Harvard, succeeding in several forward passes, including one intricate play, a triple pass, near the end of the first half, that resulted in a twenty-yard gain. Cornell more than once checked the Harvard assault for downs. Hoffman and Simson were Cornell's best ground-gainers. Seagrave played an aggressive game. He prevented a Harvard score by blocking a drop kick on Cornell's 20-yard line. Considering the greater weight and experience of the Harvard team, the coaches were on the whole pleased with the 'varsity's work, for it showed that the eleven is getting better every week.

FIRST HALF.

Seagrave kicked off for Cornell. The ball rolled only a few yards into P. Withington's hands. O'Flaherty made five yards on a fake kick, but Harvard was penalized fifteen yards and after one rush Harvard punted to Baker on Cornell's 45-yard line. Tydemann failed to gain. Baker's onside kick was blocked and McKay recovered the ball. Leslie gained four yards and Minot made it first down on Cornell's 35-yard line in two plunges behind McKay. Leslie was able to gain only three yards behind Fish. Smith tried the other side of the line but could gain only a couple of yards. O'Flaherty threw a forward pass to Fish, who muffed it on Cornell's 20-yard line, and a Cornell man recovered it. Simson punted over O'Flaherty's head. The Harvard quarterback recovered the ball on Harvard's 25-yard line but was downed without making any gain. After an end run had gained six yards, Minot made thirteen yards through center. Leslie went through tackle for fifteen. Trying the other side of the line he made only three yards. Minot, with three or four Harvard men helping him, tore through center for fifteen yards to Cornell's 50-yard line. Minot again made it first down on Cornell's 35-yard line. Again a forward pass to Fish failed and Harvard was penalized fifteen yards. Leslie tried an onside kick but the ball hit his own line and Hurlburt recovered it for Cornell on Harvard's 45-yard line. This was Cornell's first invasion of Harvard territory. Tydeman gained four yards and then, on a forward pass, the same player made it first down on Harvard's 30-yard line. Hoffman made a two-yard gain, but Cornell was set back fifteen yards for holding. Cornell kicked, and the ball rolled over Harvard's goal line for a touchback.

Harvard put the ball in play on her 25-yard line, and after Leslie had made ten yards outside tackle Minot punted to Cornell's 40-yard line. Cornell failed to gain and punted. The kick was low and Harvard recovered the ball on Cornell's 50-yard line. Here Harvard began an advance which earned a touch-down. In two plunges Minot gained fifteen yards through center. Then, but with more difficulty, he made it first down on Cornell's 29-yard line. Another center play, with a mass of men helping the runner, carried the ball to the 8-yard line and from there, after three plays, it was carried over by Minot for a touchdown. McKay kicked the goal. Score, Harvard 6, Cornell 0.

Seagrave kicked off to Fish, who ran the ball back twenty yards to Cornell's 35-yard line. Leslie made ten yards around Cornell's left tackle. Smith fumbled and the ball fell into Crosby's arms. Simson gained ten yards through Harvard's center, but the next rush was without gain. Cornell attempted a forward pass, but Baker was thrown back for a loss of six yards before he could get the ball away. Cornell punted to Harvard's 6-yard line. Cornell lost five yards for offside play. Minot punted, and Baker was downed at midfield. Hoffman made nine yards in a brilliant run around Harvard's left end. Simson made it first down on Harvard's 39-yard line. Tydeman could gain only one yard, and Baker attempted a forward pass, but Fish broke through and threw him. Baker dropped the ball and a Harvard man fell on it. Leslie made four yards and Minot punted to

A Group of University Trustees.

Simson, who was downed on Cornell's 25-yard line without gain. Simson punted and O'Flaherty ran the ball back to Cornell's 15-yard line. For holding in the line Harvard was penalized fifteen yards. Smith gained five yards, taking the ball to Cornell's 25-yard line. Minot added five more. O'Flaherty then tried a drop kick for field goal, but the kick was blocked by Seagrave, who fell on the ball.

Here Cornell executed a spectacular triple forward pass, Baker to Tydeman to Crosby to Hurlburt, which gained twenty yards. Another forward pass was tried, but it failed, and Cornell was set back to her 20-yard line. Simson punted and O'Flaherty ran the kick back twenty-five yards to Cornell's 45-yard line.

It was third down with three yards to gain when the half ended.

SECOND HALF.

Munk took Stude's place at left tackle and MacArthur replaced Hurlburt at left end. Harvard kicked off to Cornell's 35-yard line. Cornell, after two tries, was forced to kick, the ball being recovered on Harvard's 40-yard line. After two plunges had netted five yards Harvard was offside and was penalized five yards. After a five yard gain by Leslie, Minot punted to Cornell's 40-yard line. A fake kick caused a loss of one yard to Cornell, and Simson punted to O'Flaherty, who ran the ball back five yards and fumbled when tackled. Cornell recovered the ball on Harvard's 45-yard line, but

THE CORNELL DRAMATIC CLUB was organized a year ago. Its object was said to be the serious study of the drama and the production of good plays. The club is planning to appear this winter in theaters in Poughkeepsie, Newburg, Kingston, Newark and New York. Is the missionary spirit so strong? Are our students of the drama burdened with a message for the people of the Hudson River valley? Not at all. Simply this: It has been learned by experience that if you have an undergraduate organization for music or the drama you must labor to attract talent to your membership, and your best bait is an "out-of-town trip." Competition is strong. The Glee Club, the Masque, the French, the German and the Spanish dramatic clubs are all looking for men who can articulate in front of an audience. The Glee Club sets the pace for the others and is the least troubled by the rivalry. Every student knows of its personally conducted tours to the great cities, its Pullman cars and its negro attendants. Last year the Masque also had a special train, and the Deutscher Verein played to a crowded house in New York city. A club for the serious study of the drama must compete with the rest.

LAST YEAR WAS a remarkable one for drama at Cornell. The Masque gave "Oolong," a comic opera, in Ithaca, Binghamton, Rochester, Syracuse and Auburn. The Savage Club had a minstrel show. The Deutscher Verein presented "Alt Heidelberg" in Ithaca and New York. "Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon" was enacted by Les Cabotins, and "El Nido" by the club La Tertulia. Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People" was produced at the Lyceum Theater by students of the department of oratory. This last undertaking was fostered by the faculty of the department and the players were instructed by Mr. Blanton. The play was so well done and discovered such talent that the actors naturally desired to make their organization permanent. So the Cornell Dramatic Club was formed. There is a place for such a club here, because the Masque, the only other English dramatic organization in the University, seldom takes the drama seriously. This is said not in criticism—merely as a fact. The Masque's chosen function is to entertain the junior-week and senior-week girls. Its midwinter offerings are always "classy" but never classic. The Cornell Dramatic Club is like the Spanish, French and German clubs in having been started as an aid to instruction rather than as a mere "student activity," but apparently it must be as much like an "activity" as it can be if it is to have any activity at all.

FOR THE STUDY of the drama the undergraduate need not, to be sure, join a club. The University provides for him a wealth of courses in the Elizabethan and other English dramatists, in English translations of ancient and modern dramas, in play writing and dramatic structure. But it seems as if a club for the study of the drama might have a lot of fun in finding out how plays are put together, in producing one-act plays written by its members and in unostentatious revivals of dramatic curiosities. And Ithaca would furnish all the audience such a club would need. A dramatic organization that must have leaves of absence is in danger of taking itself more seriously than the drama.

CORNELL MEETING IN BROOKLYN.

The Cornell Association of Brooklyn, N. Y., will hold its second informal monthly dinner and meeting of the season of 1909-10 at the University Club, 109 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., on the night of Friday, November 19.

A dollar dinner will be served at 6:30, to be followed about 8 o'clock by an exhibition on the piano by Mr. F. H. Troutman, one of the cleverest amateur ragtime pianists in Greater New York. He is a personal friend of the president of the association and is to be his guest at this meeting.

This association considers all Cornellians who may be in this vicinity at the time of holding one of these informal affairs as honorary members and as such entitled to attend them without any special invitation. We will publish the time and the place and any Cornellian who desires to come either to the dinner, the entertainment, or both, will be welcomed.

TRIBUTE TO PROFESSOR HART.

of his experience as a teacher and member of the Faculty; of the University as he had known it, in its infancy and in its present form; of the University of Cincinnati, with which he had been connected for fourteen years and which in those years was an institution of modest size and doubtful future. Alluding to one of Professor Sampson's verses, he said he could truthfully affirm that he had never set out merely to make disciples. In his teaching he had never been guided by formal principles or rules. His sole aim had been to act as a medium or interpreter between the student and the author studied, to make the reading easier where necessary, and to leave the rest to the students themselves; to stimulate and arouse, rather than to deal out facts. He was deeply touched and pleased by the announcement of a volume of studies in his honor—the highest testimonial, he thought, that could be given to a university professor.

Professor Hart was born at Princeton, N. J., and received from Princeton University the degrees of A. B. in 1860 and L. H. D. in 1900. From Göttingen he received in 1864 the degree of J. U. D. He was assistant professor of modern languages in Cornell from 1868 to 1872; professor of modern languages and English literature in the University of Cincinnati from 1876 till 1890; professor of rhetoric and English philology in Cornell 1890-1903; and professor of the English language and literature in Cornell from 1903 till 1907, when he retired.

An aero club has been formed by students of the University. It has about 125 members. There is some talk of buying an aeroplane.

FOOTBALL.

a double pass was fumbled by Cornell and Harvard recovered the ball. Harvard gained only four yards in two plays and Minot punted, the ball going out of bounds on Cornell's 30-yard line. Cornell punted and O'Flaherty ran back to Cornell's 50-yard line. Harvard gained nine yards in two rushes around Cornell's left tackle, and a third rush in the same place made it first down. Harvard was penalized fifteen yards for holding, the ball going to the middle of the field. A fake kick did not gain and Minot punted to Baker, who was downed on Cornell's 15-yard line. O'Flaherty made a fair catch of Simson's punt on Cornell's 42-yard line. Frothingham then ran twenty yards to Cornell's 22-yard line, being dragged and pushed by half the Harvard team. Two plunges gave Harvard a first down on Cornell's 12-yard line. O'Flaherty tried a field goal, but kicked directly into his own line, a Harvard man recovering the ball. Minot made only three yards through the center, and another plunge netted three yards more. It was third down, with the ball on Cornell's 5-yard line. Minot was sent through Cornell's right wing, but could not gain the distance, and it was Cornell's ball on her own 2-yard line. Simson was injured in the scrimmage and his place was taken by Gass. Cornell immediately kicked, O'Flaherty getting the ball on Cornell's 27-yard line. Frothingham made eight yards outside of Cornell's right tackle and Minot smashed through Cornell's right tackle to the 7-yard line. On the next play Cornell held solidly, but Frothingham then went over for a touchdown and Harvard kicked the goal. Score, Harvard 12, Cornell 0.

kicked off to Fish, who ran the ball back to Harvard's 28-yard line. An end run failed to gain, but on a fake kick Long carried the ball to Harvard's 45-yard line. Frothingham made fifteen yards outside of Cornell's left tackle. Morrison replaced Minot at fullback for Harvard. Two plunges made it first down again on Cornell's 32-yard line, and Frothingham made it first down again on Cornell's 26-yard line. Frothingham made still another plunge through the same place and landed the ball on Cornell's 8-yard line. Two rushes gained only a yard and it was third down on Cornell's 6-yard line. A forward pass failed and the ball went to Cornell on her own 10-yard line.

A fake kick was tried by Cornell and Hoffman ran to Harvard's 45-yard line. He stepped outside, however, and the ball was brought back to the 24-yard line. Here Harvard's line held firmly and Cornell was forced to kick. O'Flaherty recovered the ball in midfield. From this point, in successive rushes, Harvard made it first down on Cornell's 40, 28 and 15-yard lines, and from that point a delayed pass resulted in another touchdown. Score, Harvard 18, Cornell 0. Soon after the next kick-off the game ended.

Freshmen Win Again.

The freshman eleven ran away with the Pennsylvania State Normal School eleven last Saturday, winning by a score of 71 to 0. In the first half, of twenty-five minutes, the freshmen ran up 49 points. The second half was shortened to fifteen minutes. It was not a very severe test for the 1913 team, and their goal was at no time in danger. In the five games played thus far the freshman eleven has scored 211 points and has not been scored on. The team will meet the University of Pennsylvania freshmen in Ithaca on the Saturday before Thanksgiving.

Examination for the Position of Deputy Attorney-General.

Notice is given by the State Civil Service Commission of an examination for deputy attorney-general, open to members of the New York Bar who are residents of the state. The examination is intended to provide eligibles for two positions as deputy attorney-general at salaries from $2,000 to $2,500. Candidates must be at least twenty-five years old and have been admitted to the bar for at least five years. Candidates will be rated in part on their records of actual practice and in part on an oral examination. Persons desiring to enter the examination must execute application form E-10, and should file it in the office of the Civil Service Commission on or before November 21. An application blank, with further information, will be sent on request by the Commission.

Cornell Men in the Election.

Several Cornell men were candidates on the Tompkins county tickets in the election. Fox Holden '72, of Lansing, was elected Member of Assembly by the Republicans. Monroe M. Sweetland, LL. M. '90, Democratic and Prohibition candidate, was elected county judge, defeating the present county judge, Charles H. Blood '88, Republican. Morris S. Halliday '06, son of the late S. D. Halliday '70, was elected district attorney by the Republicans, defeating Daniel Crowley '08, Democrat.

Frank A. Schmidt, LL. B. '02, was elected district attorney of Herkimer county.

George Carroll Woodruff, LL. B. '09, was elected justice of the peace in Camden, N. Y. He was on the Democratic ticket, and overcame an average Republican majority of about three hundred.
