HENRY B. LORD, of Ithaca, who is the eldest member of the University Board of Trustees, celebrated his ninety-second birthday anniversary at his home in Ithaca last Saturday. He was in good health. Many of his friends called at his home during the day to pay their respects, and he received many messages, one of which came from the Rev. Charles Mellen Tyler, who is in London. A telegram was sent to him by the Board of Trustees, in session in New York, as follows: "The Trustees of Cornell University meeting at New York send to their brother member Henry B. Lord hearty good wishes on the occasion of his ninety-second birthday. For thirty-seven years you have rendered invaluable service to Cornell University, which feels honored by the retention of your name on the roll of its Trustees and benefited by the experience of a life of extraordinary length and usefulness."

FOR JUNIOR WEEK the Lehigh Valley Railroad, as a means of accommodation and to afford every possible comfort to the coming guests, plans to run special through cars, for women only, from many points to Ithaca. Special through sleepers and parlor cars will be run from New York, Buffalo, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, Wellesley, Northampton, Mount Holyoke and Springfield. The promenade committee is trying to find some way to prevent congestion on the floor of the Armory. It has been suggested that the dances be in relays, occupants of certain boxes dancing at certain times. The committee has requested that everybody defer the filling out of programs until the dancing order is determined.

A MATHEMATICS COURSE on a new plan will be given next term by Dr. Henry M. Sheffer, who has come from the University of Washington to accept an honorary fellowship and an honorary lectureship here. The course is called "the modern logic and philosophy of mathematics" and requires no knowledge of logic, philosophy or higher mathematics. The course is given in no other university in America. Dr. Sheffer took his Ph.D. at Harvard in 1908. He was sent as a traveling fellow of Harvard to Europe and there studied the subject he is to teach under some of the ablest authorities of the continent. On his return he was head assistant in philosophy at Harvard, leaving there to take a position as instructor of philosophy in the University of Washington last year. In his course he will seek to show how the different branches of mathematics, like geometry and algebra, may be unified, seen from one viewpoint, and put on a simple basis of logic. Dr. Sheffer admits that it will require a somewhat mature mind to comprehend the course.

THE PRESIDENTS of the women students' four class organizations for this year are: class of 1913, Ada Elizabeth Christians, Freeport; 1914, Lewette Beauchamp Pollock, Alliance, Ohio; 1915, Selma Snyder, Philadelphia; 1916, Helen Spalding, Fryeburg, Maine. These officers are elected by the women. They each hold the office of third vice-president in the class at large.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE have been granted as follows: Professor W. N. Barnard of Sibley College and Professor William Strunk of the department of English, the second term of this year; Professor H. H. Whetzel of the College of Agriculture, the year 1913-14; Professor Henry N. Ogden of Lincoln Hall, the second term of 1913-14.

BOOK AND BOWL, an upperclass organization which meets fortnightly to read good literature, held its eighth annual banquet at the Dutch Kitchen one night last week, with Dr. Andrew D. White as the guest of honor. Each of the thirty members of the club had invited a guest. Dr. White gave a talk on "Authors I Have Met." He told anecdotes and personal reminiscences of Lowell, Goldwin Smith, Emerson, Longfellow, Dickens and Tolstoi.

MORE EDITORS are needed to get out the Sun since that daily increased its size and obtained the service of the Associated Press. Hereafter four men, instead of three as formerly, will be elected to the editorial department from each class, three to be elected in their freshman year and one in his sophomore year. Accordingly the freshman competitions, which have lasted a term each, will be shortened. As a beginning of the new scheme the Sun has elected William Lambert Kleitz '15, of Glens Falls, to the editorial staff, and has announced that Edward F. Graham '14, of Buffalo, who was elected for this year only during the absence of C. A. Major '13, will retain his membership on the staff till he graduates. Kleitz finished second last fall in the sophomore competition, which the Sun says was one of the best contested of recent years.

THE UNIVERSITY BOATHOUSE is now on jacks and is moving to its new place on the old Inlet channel, nearer the old steamboat landing. Work has been carried on steadily all winter by the big suction dredge Ithaca. From the lighthouse south the stream has been widened for a considerable distance. The marshy flats west of the Inlet are rising as the dredge pours the silt on them. The place where the boathouse stood will be cut away in the work of making the Inlet wide enough for canal barges. Another year will see great changes in the appearance of the flats and their surroundings. Ithacans are beginning to recognize how much this development may mean to the future of the city.

A COURSE OF LECTURES on The History of Civilization, given by members of the Faculty, has been drawing large audiences, a good proportion of which is composed of undergraduates. Last week Professor Schmidt lectured on "The Victory of Christianity" to an audience which much more than filled the seats in the large lecture room of Rockefeller Hall. This week Professor Sill speaks on "Problems in Roman History."

FARMERS' WEEK at the College of Agriculture is to be February 10-15. A forty-page program of the week has been published by the Cornell Countryman. Several state associations will hold their annual conventions here at that time.

THE POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA will be held on Saturday, June 21, this year.

GEORGE H. BROWN will continue to act as assistant professor of Romance languages next term in the absence of Arthur Gordon.

Gift Announced at Dinner to Dr. White

Mr. Andrew Carnegie the Donor of $25,000

A gift of $25,000 to the University by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, was announced by Dr. Andrew D. White at a complimentary dinner which was given to Dr. White in New York last Saturday night by Mr. George C. Boldt of the Board of Trustees. President Taft was a guest at the dinner. The gift was made to Dr. White to be used in any way he chose for the good of the University.

The dinner followed the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees, held in New York on Saturday, and was given at the Waldorf in honor of the eightieth birthday of Dr. White. There were no formal speeches save those made by Mr. Boldt in introducing President Taft, the President's tribute to Dr. White, and the latter's brief response of thanks and appreciation to the host.

President Taft said that, although Cornell might claim Dr. White as an adopted son, his alma mater was Yale. "Dr. White is one of the men of whom Yale is proud," the President said, "and we are glad that Cornell is proud of him as well."

In responding to the toast proposed by President Taft, Dr. White, in behalf of the Trustees of Cornell and himself, thanked Mr. Boldt for his hospitality, and then jokingly remarked that Mr. Taft had himself recently decided to become a pedagogue. To this allusion to the fact that he is to become a member of the Yale faculty the President retorted that his decision to hold a chair had "not been purely voluntary."

After he had responded to the toast, Dr. White made the announcement of the $25,000 gift of Mr. Carnegie, who was unable to be present at the dinner, although among the expected guests. He referred to the discussion in the Board of Trustees in the afternoon on the question of increasing the tuition in two of the colleges in order to meet the current deficit of the University. He told how he had been moved by one of the speeches which portrayed the troubles of needy students in working their way through the University and how some such might be excluded on account of the new expense. And in conclusion he stated that the fund, of which he had the disposal, would probably be devoted to the Student Loan Fund.

Some of President White's friends present knew of the circumstances attending the gift; that Dr. White had greatly desired this sum in order to buy an organ for the new auditorium; that the matter had been brought to the attention of Mr. Carnegie, and that he had given that amount, any sum remaining after the purchase of the organ to be at Dr. White's disposal. They knew how disappointed the former president would be not to be able to purchase the organ; a quiet subscription was begun, and an amount was raised which, it is understood, covers the purchase price of the organ.

Among the guests at the dinner were many of the members of the Board of Trustees and their wives. Other persons invited were the Mayor and Mrs. Gaynor, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phipps, Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham Miles, Judge and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien, General and Mrs. Charles F. Roe, Judge and Mrs. William McAdoo, Captain and Mrs. Albert Gleaves, Mr. and Mrs. Rhineland Waldo, General and Mrs. Howard Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. White, Mr. and Mrs. Horace White, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ridder, Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair McKelway, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwab, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson McMillin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lang, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Reick, Mrs. Hobart, Jacob H. Schiff, General and Mrs. William Verbeck.

Change in "The Physical Review"

The Physical Review, which has been for twenty years edited and published by the Cornell department of physics, has been turned over to the American Physical Society. Professor Frederick Bedell, who, as chairman of the committee consisting of himself and Professors Merritt and Nichols, has been editor of the publication during the past year, will continue as managing editor and chief of a board of ten editors scattered throughout the country, to have charge of it. This action was decided upon at the convention of the American Physical Society in Cleveland and was last week ratified by the executive committee of the University Board of Trustees.

The Board of Trustees

Tuition in Colleges of Arts and Law, and Fees in Engineering, Increased

An increase in tuition fees in some of the colleges of the University was the most important action taken by the Board of Trustees at the regular winter meeting held at the Waldorf in New York last Saturday. The Board voted to raise the tuition in the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Law from $100 to $125 a year. The Summer Session fee was increased from $30 to $40. The fees to be charged in Sibley College and the College of Civil Engineering (above the regular tuition fee) were increased to $25 a year. This is an increase of $5 a year in Sibley College. In the College of Civil Engineering the increase will be somewhat more than in Sibley. The fees paid by students in Lincoln Hall average perhaps $10 a year now, freshmen and sophomores having more to pay than juniors and seniors. All these increases will take effect in the year 1914-15. Their purpose, of course, is to provide more income in the hope of putting a stop to an annual deficit. It is estimated that they will increase the University's income by about $22,000.

Faculty Participation in Government

The recommendations of President Schurman in his latest annual report as to faculty participation in the University government were considered. The Board recognized the desirability of closer relations and greater co-operation between the Faculty and the Board of Trustees in matters pertaining to the administration of the University's affairs. But it also felt that the matter was of such vital importance that changes should be adopted only after most careful consideration. It therefore referred the matter to a committee of five, to be appointed to consider and report recommendations to the Board at a later meeting, final action to be deferred until after President Schurman's return.

Arts Faculty to Elect Dean

In the matter of choosing a successor to Charles H. Hull as Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, the present statute was waived and the question of a choice was referred with power to the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

Trustee R. H. Treman resigned as a member of the building committee of the University and the College of Agriculture, and Roger B. Williams was elected acting chairman of the University building committee.

Faculty Appointments

The following faculty appointments were made: Henry T. Bull, professor of military science and tactics; Karl M. Wiegand, professor of botany in the State College of Agriculture; M. J. Prucha, assistant professor of plant physiology in the same college, promoted from an instructorship. Professor Wiegand graduated at Cornell in 1894 and took his Ph.D. here in 1898. He was an instructor in botany from 1899 until 1907, when he became professor of botany in Wellesley College.

A summer session in 1913 in the College of Agriculture was authorized.

There was reported the establishment in the College of Agriculture of a fellowship of the value of $1,000 a year by the Orleans Mutual Fellowship Association of New York.

Roll of the Trustees Present

Thomas B. Wilson was chairman of the meeting. Those present were Acting President Crane and Trustees Sisson, Cornell, C. E. Treman, Williams, Sewell, Sackett, Blood, Shepard, Place, Beahan, Stevens, Ickelheimer, White, Barr, Morris, Carlisle, Carnegie, Boldt, Hiscock, Edwards, Miller, Newman, VanCleaf, R. H. Treman, Wilson, and Pratt. Letters of regret were received from Governor Sulzer, Lieutenant-Governor Glynn, Speaker Smith, Mrs. H. T. Moody, and Messrs. H. L. Taylor, H. H. Westinghouse, H. D. Mason and H. B. Lord.

History and Political Science

W. J. Lauck Not Coming—Courses to Be Given by Professor Catterall

Several addenda to the Announcement of the College of Arts and Sciences for the second term have been published this week.

Professor Catterall will give his course on France Under Napoleon (History 29, M. W. F. 11) and his Seminary, as scheduled, but not the course (27) on the History of Prussia.

Acting Professor William J. Lauck, who had announced courses on Money, Credit and Banking (Political Science 64), on Currency and Banking Reform in the United States (89) and on Race and Immigration Problems (75a), telegraphed Saturday afternoon that a sudden change in his affairs obliged him to ask release from his contract with the University. Courses 64, 75a, and 89 in Political Science accordingly cannot be given. In this connection, however, it is made known that arrangements for a permanent appointment in Professor Kemmerer's place, to take effect next September, are making good progress. The name of the new professor of economics and finance will soon be announced.

It was announced last week that Dr. Samuel P. Orth, acting professor of political science, will remain for the second term. He will give courses on The Corporation (Political Science 63), Constitutional Government (56b), State Administration (62b), and research in politics (94).

Professor Finch's Library

Committee Reports Purchase of 367 Volumes for the College of Law

The committee from the law school, consisting of Professor C. T. Stagg, John L. Senior and Frederick P. Murphy, which raised a fund for a memorial to the late Professor William A. Finch and for the purchase of as large a part as possible of Professor Finch's library, has reported to the Board of Trustees as follows:

"The undersigned committee, acting on behalf of the present and former members of the Faculty of the College of Law, and many former students of this college, tenders as a gift to the University a bronze tablet to the memory of the late Professor William Albert Finch. This tablet has been erected in Boardman Hall.

"The committee also tenders as a gift to the University the following volumes from the library of Professor Finch: New York Common Law Reports, 18 volumes; New York Chancery Reports, 7 volumes; Lansing's Reports, 7 volumes; Hun's Reports, 92 volumes; Appellate Division Reports, 150 volumes; miscellaneous reports, 76 volumes; Court of Appeals Reports (Volumes 189-205 inclusive), 17 volumes; total, 367 volumes.

"These volumes are for the use of the College of Law. A suitable bookplate will be inserted in each volume showing the source and purpose of the gift."

Architectural Schools

Association Formed by Ten Colleges, Including Cornell

"The Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture" is the name of a new organization which was formed at the recent annual convention of the American Institute of Architects. Its purpose is discussion and mutual aid in solving the problems common to architectural schools of collegiate rank. Professor Warren P.

Laird of the University of Pennsylvania, who was a special student in architecture at Cornell in 1885-87, is the president of the new association, and Director C. A. Martin of the Cornell school is the secretary and treasurer.

"Few of the heads of colleges of architecture have ever taken part in the meetings of the Institute," said Director Martin. "This year there were present representatives of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Carnegie Institute, the Universities of California, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania, Cornell University and George Washington University. With the exception of the last named, all are charter members of the new organization, together with Columbia, Harvard, and the (state) University of Washington."

The association will hold an annual meeting coinciding probably with that of the American Institute of Architects.

$3,500 for Barnes Hall

Secretary Davis Making Progress with His Improvement Fund

Of the $10,000 needed by the Christian Association to carry on its work and make needed improvements this year, $1,200 was obtained from alumni and trustees by Secretary C. P. Davis on two recent trips to New York. The family of the late Col. A. S. Barnes, donor of Barnes Hall, substantially contributed to this amount. In March Mr. Davis will make a trip west to raise subscriptions among the alumni in that part of the country. He hopes in all to secure $7,000 among the alumni.

Of the $3,000 which has been set as the amount to be raised among the undergraduates, $2,300 has been subscribed already. Active canvassing has not been going on for a month or so, but at the beginning of the new term it will be recommended, and an effort made to reach those who, for various reasons, have not been approached before.

The first use to which the money will be put will be improving the reading room. Before he gets through, Secretary Davis expects to refinish the entire building and provide new accommodations, making Barnes Hall, in his own words, "the most comfortable building on the campus."

Next term there is to be a series of public addresses in Barnes Hall by alumni and other men who may have a message of interest to students. Among those already arranged are talks by Willard Beaham '78, of Cleveland, on February 14, and William R. George, founder of the George Junior Republic, on February 28. Professor Arthur Holmes, vice-president of Pennsylvania State College, and Professor J. W. Jenks, now at New York University, have also promised to speak.

Fruitgrowers' Prizes

Five Undergraduates Get a Prize Each for Public Speaking

Two public speaking prizes offered by the New York State Fruitgrowers' Association and competed for at its annual convention in Rochester last week by five students in the department of pomology at the College of Agriculture, were won by G. E. Matter '14, of Ithaca, and W. H. Bronson '13, of Rome. The first prize was $35 and the second was $15. Because of the high grade of the speaking, $5 apiece was awarded to the other three contestants.

The Cornell men spoke in Convention Hall before an audience of 1500 fruitgrowers from all over the state. The judges were Dr. W. H. Jordan, director of the Geneva Experiment Station; Edward VanAlstyne, farm director of the Farmers' Institute, and Professor Slater of the department of oratory and English of the University of Rochester. The speeches had to be on some subject relating to pomology. Matter spoke on "Co-operative Credit;" Bronson, on "Western Fruit, Eastern Markets;" C. M. Austin '13, on "Overproduction of Apples;" Dudley Alleman '14, on "Soil Fertility," and J. H. Munn on "Bud Selection."

Debate Teams Chosen

A High Standard Reached in the Final Trials—Contest on February 28

Affirmative and negative varsity teams to take part in the Triangular League debates and also in several preliminary contests with other colleges were selected last week in a series of unusually well-contested final trials. The affirmative team, which will meet a trio from Pennsylvania in Ithaca February 28, consists of M. A. Munoz '13, Remington Rogers '14, and L. Y. Gabermann '15, together with P. R. Goldstein, alternate. In New York the same day Columbia will debate against a negative team composed of A. H. Henderson '14, Harold Riegelman '14, and H. G. Wilson '14, with D. D. Smith '15 as alternate.

Only two of the men chosen—Wilson and Rogers—have had varsity experience, but Riegelman and Henderson led their freshman teams and Gabermann his sophomore team; and Munoz was on the '94 stage.

For preliminary practice, the affirmatives will have debates with Rochester, Pittsburgh, and Washington and Jefferson, the dates for which are pending. The negative side will meet Union College at Schenectady on February 7 and St. Lawrence University in Canton on the next night.

The grade of speaking in the final trials was very high, auguring well for another championship in the Triangular League. The question, the same debated in the '94 contest, is whether the people shall have the right to review decisions of the state courts declaring police power laws unconstitutional. The same question will be argued in all of the debates.

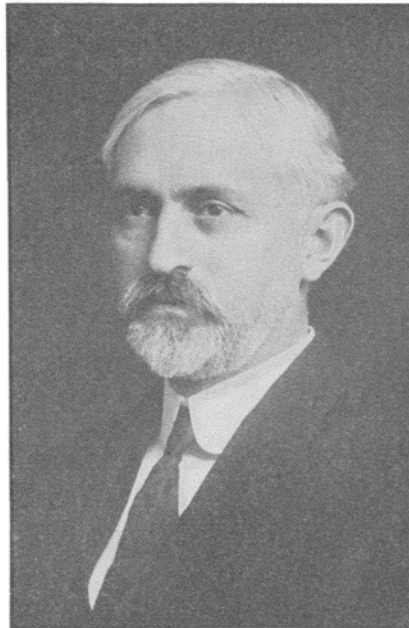

Chicago

Present Officers of Both the Cornell Associations

The Cornell Women's Club of Chicago and Vicinity held its annual business meeting and luncheon in Marshall Field & Company's tea room on November 30. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Frank Cary; vice-president, Miss Harriet H. Bisbee; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Sailor, 6111 Washington Boulevard, Oak Park, Ill.; directors, Mrs. Paul Shorey and Mrs. Harry H. Lobdell.

The Cornell University Association of Chicago held its annual business meeting on December 5, at the Grand Pacific Hotel and elected the following officers: President, Paul P. Bird '00; vice-president, G. W. Graham '76; assistant secretary, Malcolm D. Vail '12; secretary and treasurer, R. W. Sailor '07; directors, F. S. Porter '00 and G. W. Laidlaw '92, to succeed Paul P. Bird '00 and Erskine Wilder '05.

THE COSMOPOLITAN CLUB has just published its first circular of information about the eighth International Congress of Students, to be held in Ithaca from August 29 to September 13, 1913. Practically all the contents of this first circular have already been printed in the NEWS. It announces the honorary committee, consisting of President-elect Wilson, Governor Sulzer, Mayor Gaynor, President Schurman, Dr. Andrew D. White, John Barrett, Commissioner Claxton of the Bureau of Education, Edwin D. Mead, Samuel T. Dutton, Hamilton Holt, and the heads of a score of American universities. The circular is addressed "to the students of the world" and extends an invitation to all student organizations to send delegates to the congress.

CLYDE AUGUSTUS DUNIWAY, A.B., '92, will this week be inaugurated president of the University of Wyoming, at Laramie. The new president's alma mater has sent Director L. H. Bailey to represent her in the inauguration ceremonies. Compared with most universities, the institution at Laramie is a pioneer, but that will not discourage her president, for he comes of pioneer stock. He is the son of Benjamin Charles and Abigail (Scott) Duniway and was born at Albany, Oregon, in 1866. His mother, still living in Portland at the age of seventy-eight, has more space in the latest edition of Who's Who in America than her son has. She was born in Central Illinois and crossed the plains to Oregon in a prairie schooner drawn by oxen when she was seventeen years old. She made up for the lack of good schools on the frontier by reading and study, and became a teacher, a writer, and a lecturer. For many years she was an advocate of "equal rights" before conventions and legislatures in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. It may be noted that women in all those states now have the suffrage. Mrs. Duniway owned and edited The New Northwest. She composed the Centennial Ode read at the Lewis and Clarke Exposition in 1905, and at that exposition they had an Abigail Scott Duniway Day in her honor.

One can imagine with what eagerness such a mother would send her son across the continent to study at an Eastern university, and with what seriousness the son would accept the opportunity. In fact, seriousness of purpose was one of the distinguishing marks of Duniway as an undergraduate. There is no suggestion of indolence or frivolity in the five lines with which the Cornellian of 1892 summed up his four college years. He had begun by winning the President White Scholarship, which he kept. He joined the Christian Association, the Classical Association, the History and Political Science Association, the Fortnightly Club, the Cornell Total Abstinence League, the Ethical Society, and the Students' Guild. He attended the meetings of the Cornell Congress, then the only debating society the students had, and was its Speaker for two years. He was a contestant for the '86 Memorial Prize. He wrote for the Era and became its editor-in-chief. Election to Phi Beta Kappa and a place on the Commencement stage were honors which naturally came his way in his senior year.

From Cornell Duniway went to Harvard for more study in history and political science. There he took the master's and the doctor's degree. He was an instructor in history in Harvard and Radcliffe colleges for one year and then an assistant professorship in history at Stanford University was offered to him and accepted. He married Miss Caroline M. Cushing, of Oakland, California, in 1901. About the time that Stanford advanced him to a full professorship, he was elected president of the University of Montana. His administration at Missoula began September 1, 1908. It was not altogether happy. Politicians had had so much to say in the affairs of the state university that when, last winter, the board of control informed President Duniway that he would not be reappointed, their action was publicly attributed to his refusal to appoint a local politician as dean of the law school. Before he left Montana the president of the university in the contiguous state of Wyoming resigned, and Dr. Duniway was elected to the place. The Montana university board of control had kicked him upstairs. He takes charge of an older and larger school, one with more than double the income which he had to administer in Montana. And it has a happier system of government, from the university's point of view—a board of regents, of which the president is a member ex officio. When he accepted the Wyoming presidency the student publication at Montana printed a cordial editorial predicting a prosperous administration at Laramie for Dr. Duniway.

THE DECISION of the Trustees to increase the tuition fee in the College of Arts and Sciences must be regretted, even though $125, the new figure, is less than the fee charged in a good many colleges. Following are some figures taken from the World Almanac showing the amount of tuition charged in some institutions which are comparable with our College of Arts and Sciences: Barnard College, $150; Brown University, $150; Colgate, $100; Dartmouth, $125; Hamilton, $110; Lafayette, $100; Mount Holyoke, $150; Princeton, $160; Smith, $150; Vassar, $150; Wellesley, $200; Williams, $175; Yale, $155. In most of these cases the fee is higher than at Cornell, but not much higher, on the average. On the other hand, whereas the tuition in our two engineering colleges is $150 a year, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology charges $250, the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute $230, and the Stevens Institute of Technology $285.

THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENTS of a large number of the "land grant colleges" will be represented at a meeting to be held in Washington on Friday of this week. Past legislation affecting the engineering side of the land grant colleges will be discussed and ways and means will be considered for furthering legislation in behalf of such colleges in the future. A permanent association will probably be formed. Albert W. Smith '78, Director of Sibley College, will represent Cornell. The meeting was called by Professor John Price Jackson, dean of the school of engineering of Pennsylvania State College, who, upon inquiry, found a large majority of the colleges in favor of such a move.

What is the Faculty For?

(From The Michigan Alumnus)

Several members of the Faculty sat discussing things in general. Said one, who left some years ago an active professional life for an academic career, "If I were to tell my old friends how hard I worked now just being a Professor they would never believe me. To them a professorial existence is one of supreme ease." "Yes," said another, "they think that nothing could be easier than teaching only two or three hours a day." "Perhaps they are right," said a third member of the group, "only we never have a chance to prove it; too much is asked of us in other directions. If I were able to teach, to work with, and know my students to the exclusion of everything else, I should enjoy my life as it is impossible for me now—why, I have no time to work on my own subject enough to satisfy my conscience—to say nothing of reading for pleasure or general culture." "That is true," said the first speaker, "I haven't been able to do anything like the general reading I was able to do before I came to the University; it is simply impossible. For instance, during the past two weeks I have put in twenty hours in committee meetings alone, meetings on all sorts of subjects, to say nothing of student affairs, societies, and faculty meetings."

All agreed that the University was over-organized, but that the trouble, far from being local, was rather a more or less general characteristic of all American universities. "We are everywhere in danger of losing the academic attitude in the rush and multiplicity of administrative detail. Without that, what is a university?" "Yes," was the reply, "we are paid to do one thing; the thing that we are best fitted to do, to teach in our especial field, and then asked to attend to everything under the sun but that." "Of course," said the second man, "there are some things we must do, but there is a great deal that could be done much better, and more expeditiously, by someone who is fitted far better for it than we are, and who is paid to do just those things." With which all were in heartfelt agreement.

We endow our universities tremendously, and then impair their efficiency through a fundamentally wrong conception of the teacher's work. It is axiomatic that a teacher's work is to teach, but we follow the proposition no further. The necessity for adequate preparation, the conservation of that vital force which alone makes a magnetic presentation possible, are entirely overlooked. Likewise, the absolute necessity for wide knowledge and that philosophy which alone can illuminate dry bones and inspire, is lost sight of in the press of immediate emergencies.

In our larger universities, the problems of administration increase more than proportionately with the size of the institution, and yet with it there is a tendency for the numerical growth of the faculty to lag behind that of the student body. Nevertheless if there is one duty more than another which the professor owes outside his special field, it is that of personal contact with his students. Too often this is impossible; the teacher usually has no time for more than a perfunctory relationship, and many—one is tempted to say most—students leave the university without the bigger half of the education they came for. All the more pity if the student fails to realize himself what he has lost. The remedy which we hope may come in time is, first, a relatively larger faculty, then a more general and intelligent appreciation of what the real work of a professor is, and the appointment of more administrative officers. Such a policy would seem to be only an elementary application of some of the "efficiency methods" one hears about today.

THE SENIORS this year will wear uniform black caps instead of using differently colored tassels to indicate various colleges.

THE CHAPEL PREACHER next Sunday will be the Rev. Henry A. Stimson of New York.

THERE IS TALK of having an ice carnival in Junior Week. It depends mostly on the weather.

The Schedule

Jan. 25—Yale at New York.

Feb. 15—Dartmouth at Syracuse.

Harvard 8, Cornell 2—Other Games May Be Canceled for Lack of Ice

Another defeat was suffered by the hockey team last Saturday night, this time in a game with Harvard in the Boston Arena. The final score was 8 goals to 2. Harvard scored four goals in each half, and Cornell one in each half. Eddie Hill shot both Cornell's goals. Dean kept Harvard's score down by his fast work before the cage.

In this game, as in other recent contests, the Cornell team was slow on its skates and showed lack of condition. The reason is not far to seek. The team has had virtually no ice practice, except in games, this winter. There has been no skating on Beebe Lake except for three days just before Christmas. Practice on the floor of the Armory may keep muscles from getting flabby, but it will not make for speed on the ice or for accuracy in passing the puck.

The team has games scheduled with Yale and Dartmouth (January 25 and February 15), but the management will ask to be released from the engagements unless weather conditions in Ithaca change so that the team can get some real practice. Columbia has resigned from the league, and the three members left in it—Princeton, Dartmouth and Cornell—have decided not to play the games they had scheduled with her. Before next winter the three hockey clubs will make an effort to revive the league.

Basketball

Cornell's Team Will Be Put to the Test by Pennsylvania This Week

Cornell won the second basketball victory of the season over Columbia last Friday night by a score of 19 to 13. The game was played in the Morningside gymnasium in New York. It was fast and rough. Columbia got only one field goal in the entire game, but kept the Cornellians on the jump all the while, especially in the second half. Early in the contest Captain Halsted and Haeberle scored remarkable shots from the side of the court, and after that Columbia tried desperately but in vain to overcome the lead. The Blue team rallied in the second half and had many shots at the basket but could not seem to get the range.

There were many fouls on the Cornell side, and H. C. Halsted was disqualified for having four personal fouls called against him. Riley took his place. Four of the Cornell men had each two or more personal fouls.

The summary:

Cornell	Columbia
Lunden.....l. f.....	Lee
Cross.....r. f.....	Meenan
Haeberle.....c.....	Roberts
G. C. Halsted.....l. g.....	Benson
H. C. Halsted.....r. g.....	Jaques
Field goals—G. C. Halsted 2, Haeberle 2, Lunden, Cross, H. C. Halsted, Benson.
From fouls—G. C. Halsted 5, Benson 11.

The members of the Cornell team and management were much pleased by the attendance of a large number of Cornell alumni, whose organized cheering throughout the game was very encouraging to the players.

On Saturday the team stopped at South Bethlehem and sustained a defeat at the hands of Lehigh by the score of 51 to 22. Lehigh played a strong game, but there were other reasons, perhaps, why the Cornell team did not do better than it did. The floor was the smallest on which the Cornellians had played this year, and both forwards and one of the guards were substitutes at the start of the game.

The team's severest test will come on Thursday of this week, against Pennsylvania at the Armory. Cornell and Penn are now leading the intercollegiate league, each with three victories and not a defeat. Pennsylvania has beaten Princeton twice. Cornell has two victories over Columbia, and each of the leaders has beaten Dartmouth.

Baseball.—One hundred and eighty-five men registered for baseball at the first call for candidates Wednesday night of last week. The meeting was held in Barnes Hall. Dr. Sharpe told the men what the work was to be and gave them some simple exercises to get their throwing muscles into shape. He said that practice for the majority of the candidates would begin on February 10, but that the old players would not be required to report till March 3. Practice will begin in the Armory, because the new cage will not be ready in time.

Rowing.—Mr. Courtney returned to the crew room on Monday afternoon of last week after an absence caused by an attack of the grip.

MEMORIALS

Henry Schoellkopf

[The following statement concerning the death of Henry Schoellkopf '02 has been prepared and sent to the NEWS by one of Mr. Schoellkopf's close friends, who was also a classmate and fraternity mate during his years at Cornell. It has been prepared with the knowledge of Mr. Schoellkopf's family and they have consented to its publication:]

To the many Cornellians who knew and admired Henry Schoellkopf, as well as to those who know him only by reputation, it will be of interest to have some fuller statement than has heretofore appeared in the NEWS, of the circumstances attending his sudden death.

In company with other close friends, I attended his funeral on December 6th and from relatives and business associates learned something of the causes of the tragedy. It has therefore seemed proper for me to add what I know in order that Henry's great circle of warm college friends may have some comprehension of what caused his death.

By way of explanation of what follows, I would say that the dominating trait in Henry's character was a strong sense of duty. Once his judgment was formed as to where his duty lay, he never hesitated to guide his actions accordingly. This was notably true during his football days in college and afterwards when coaching the team. His feeling of loyalty to Cornell, of his duty to succeed, for her sake, was uppermost in his mind. It was the same in all other relations of life. To satisfy this sense of duty, to succeed in all his undertakings, Henry was willing to make any needed sacrifice of time, of money, of thought, of self. There can be no doubt that the abnormal state of mind which beclouded him at the last was brought about by excessive labors in the performance of a great task and I am equally satisfied that the taking of his life was to him, at the moment, the logical thing to do, the thing which his sense of duty required of him under the circumstances.

During the last two years Henry was doing important legal work for a Wisconsin concern and was himself interested in it as a stockholder and officer. During his temporary absence from Milwaukee, the company became involved and Henry then undertook to remedy the situation.

He gave it practically all his time and thought during the last five or six months. The nervous strain was too great. The effect upon him became apparent. His family urged him to take a vacation, to permit others to take up the work. He would not do it—could not desert his post. At last close associates insisted on relieving him of the responsibility, but even then Henry could not free his mind of the load. The resulting depression carried him to the point where he felt he was losing his mind and that he should not live to be a burden to his family.

It has been intimated in the press that worry over loss of his investment was a largely contributing factor. This is not true. The amount of money involved was comparatively not large and its loss was by no means certain.

We may feel well assured that Henry's broad vision, perfect integrity, purity of life and strong friendly heart did not succumb to anything short of a mad overwhelming conviction of right and duty.

It is not for us to pass further judgment, we can only mourn our loss, love and honor his memory."

Edmund Taylor Newman

At a meeting of the Cornell Club of Syracuse, held in the Directors' Room of the University Club, January 10, 1913, C. S. Tracy offered a motion that resolutions of sympathy and sorrow be extended to the family of Edmund T. Newman. George W. O'Brien seconded the motion, which was unanimously adopted.

The resolutions follow:

The Cornell Club of Syracuse desires hereby to express its sorrow and heartfelt sympathy at the death of Edmund T. Newman, 1905. The University has lost a loyal son, who, by his kindly nature and his acts of benevolence, has endeared himself to all his fellows. His memory will abide with all Cornellians.

Resolved, that we extend our sincere sympathy to his bereaved wife and family, and be it further

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to his wife and published in the Cornell papers, and that the same be entered on the minutes of the Club.

Connecticut

First Annual Cornell Dinner in Hartford on February 13

The first annual dinner of The Cornell Association of Connecticut will be held at the Allyn House, Hartford, Thursday evening, February 13, at sharp 6:45. A business meeting for the election of officers and other matters will convene at 6 o'clock. All Cornell men will be welcome at the dinner, and especially are all Cornellians in Connecticut and western Massachusetts urged to come. "Al" Sharpe and Eads Johnson will be there to talk, and the third speaker will be Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, a frequent preacher at Sage Chapel, and a man of rare eloquence. Three short, snappy speeches, old songs, old times, old friends. Back to Ithaca for an evening!

It has been impossible for the Association to discover the names and addresses of all Cornellians in Connecticut, and especially those of recent graduates, 1908 and after. All these residents are ipso facto members of the Association, and they are urged to communicate with Robert P. Butler, Secretary, P. O. Box 870, Hartford. The cost of the dinner is $2.50 per plate. Rooms for over night will be reserved by the secretary for those who so request. Main line express trains and suburban trains arrive in Hartford just in time for the dinner, and for those who must return home the same night, there is an express south at 10:25 and one north at 11:22.

Michigan

Dates Set for the Business Meeting and the Annual Banquet

The Cornell alumni resident in Michigan will hold an annual business meeting in Detroit on Saturday evening, February 8. This meeting will be held for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year, the reading of the reports of various officers, and the transaction of all business which would ordinarily be considered at the annual banquet.

The annual banquet of the Cornell Alumni Association of Michigan will be held as usual on the evening of February 21, Friday. It will be strictly a social affair, and members will be afforded a rare opportunity of renewing the interest and associations of Cornell.

Further details in regard to the time and place of holding these meetings may be obtained from R. C. Hargreaves, secretary, 53 Rowena Street, Detroit.

Another, whose appointment was noted in the NEWS two weeks ago, is Charles F. Shaw '06, now professor of soil technology at Berkeley. He, too, went there from Pennsylvania State College, where he organized the department of agronomy under Professor Hunt, and where he conducted and recently completed a soil survey of the state of Pennsylvania—now the only state besides Rhode Island to have such a survey complete. In California he will take charge of a similar work for the state. Before he went to Pennsylvania in 1907 Shaw was an assistant in the United States Bureau of Soils and took part in surveys in Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas.

DISTANCE MAKES NO DIFFERENCE

Maine, California, or Cornell Heights, it's the same to us—all purchases free of delivery charges. You remember that the goods you used to get from us were a bit different. Keep on getting toggery a year in advance. Send to us; we will do the rest. There are Cravats (wonders this season), Raincoats, Mackinaws, Caps, Shirts and "L. C. B.'s." You know the lines.
