SPRING DAY brought to Ithaca one of the largest crowds of visitors the city ever saw. The railroads ran many special trains on Friday and Saturday, but not all visitors came by train. Hundreds came by automobile from near and far. Streets and parking spaces were congested with cars, and cars were ranked five deep around the diamond at Percy Field on Saturday afternoon. The weather was fine except on Saturday morning, when a series of showers came at just the wrong time for the Spring Day circus. This was a blow to the athletic association, for a big crowd had gone to Schoellkopf Field and had just begun to spend money when the rain drove it away. But everybody stayed in town for the baseball game and the regatta.

SEVERAL REUNIONS took place. The men of 1911 and 1913 had theirs, a large number of 1915 men assembled, and the Continuous Reunion Club made its annual appearance. The two classes holding regular reunions set up registration booths at State and Tioga Streets Friday morning and began to dispense costumes. That of 1911 was "Young Turk." The 1913 men wore sailor suits. The wearers were numerous enough to give the town a reunion appearance. More than a hundred 1913 men were here, and 1911 had a large crowd, too. The Continuous Reunion Club mustered twenty-five or thirty men and Kid Kugler's band gave concerts at more or less opportune times. The club had planned an open air performance of "Romeo and Juliet" in honor of the Shakespeare tercentenary, but decided instead to turn in and help with the Spring Day circus.

THE COMMITTEE on general administration has formally accepted for the University two gifts made by alumni of the College of Civil Engineering to commemorate Professor Charles Lee Crandall's forty years of service to that college. One of the gifts is a portrait of Professor Crandall, which will be unveiled on one of the Alumni Days next month. The other is a fund of about $2,500 to found a prize for students of the college. One condition of this gift is that Professor Crandall himself shall prescribe the terms on which the competition shall be held and the prize shall be awarded. The University has accepted the condition and the prize announcement will be made as soon as the details have been established. The administration committee, in accepting the gifts, expressed the thanks of the Trustees to the donors. A committee of the Cornell Society of Civil Engineers had charge of the raising of the fund. It was composed of G. E. J. Pistor '01, James B. French '85, Charles N. Green '88, Albert J. Himes '87, and W. S. FitzRandolph '05.

THE SENIORS who voted recently to keep blazers as the distinctive spring costume of the class were late in donning their striped coats and an opposition movement was started last week. The thirty men in Sibley College who form the industrial group appeared one morning in white canvas sailor suits with a monogram of their department on the shirts. The law seniors blossomed out the next day, and now a large number of men in every college are wearing them. Blazers are far outnumbered, but neither costume has been worn as yet by a very large portion of the class.

A MOCK ELECTION for President of the United States was conducted by the Sun last week. Male students and members of the Faculty were eligible to vote in it. There were 1,759 votes cast. Leading candidates received votes as follows: Wilson, 674; Roosevelt, 616; Hughes, 367; Root, 30; Benson, 25; Debs, 9; Ford, 9; Taft, 9; Bryan, 9; scattering, 12. Roosevelt led in the Faculty, with 42 votes; Hughes had 34, Wilson 32, Root 4, Ford 2, and Bryan 1. Nobody in the Faculty voted for Benson, Debs, or Taft. The undergraduates who voted gave Wilson a plurality of 68 over Roosevelt.

THE BOARD of The Cornell Countryman has made the following elections for 1916-17; Editor-in-chief, Howard S. Sisson, Sherburne, N. Y.; managing editor, Russell Lord, Cockeysville, Md.; women's editor, Marion Hess, Lyons Falls, N. Y.; business manager, Paul C. Cutler, New York City; circulation manager, Walter B. Crane, Dover Plains, N. Y.; associate editors, D. M. Hinrichs, E. B. Sullivan, A. J. Fowler, Elizabeth Alward, E. M. Deems; assistant managers, C. W. Bolgiano, Charles Ennis, A. F. Shannon, C. B. Fraser.

DEAN GALLOWAY of the College of Agriculture has been contributing to The Cornell Countryman a series of articles on "The man on the land on the other side of the world." He concludes the series in the June number with an article on Java. Other contributors to the magazine deal with various agricultural topics. An interesting paper on "Birds and their relation to agriculture" was written by Professor Arthur A. Allen. It is illustrated with photographs.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made in the Countryman that the annual meeting of the American Home Economics Association will be held at Cornell University from June 28 to July 3. The president of the Association is Professor Martha Van Rensselaer of the department of home economics. About four hundred visitors are expected, including representatives of the department of agriculture and the bureau of education at Washington.

GOVERNOR WHITMAN addressed a large audience in Bailey Hall last Monday morning. A convocation hour was declared to allow students and faculty to hear his speech on preparedness. He placed himself on record as an advocate of universal military training in schools and colleges, and praised Cornell for the work of its military department. He was introduced by President Schurman.

A FAMOUS PAINTING, Albert Besnard's allegorical picture "Peace," is to be exhibited for several days at Bailey Hall. The painting is designed to form a part of the decoration of the Peace Palace at The Hague, and is the French government's contribution for that purpose. It was brought to this country for exhibition as a means of arousing sympathy for the families of French painters and sculptors who have been impoverished by the war, and has been shown in many cities.

THE 1916 Class Book and the Cornellian are both on sale at The Library Arch now.

Battleship Cruise for Civilians

University Men Wanted for a Naval Training Course of Four Weeks

A plan of the Navy Department for the instruction of civilians on board battleships this summer—a sort of “naval Plattsburg”—was outlined at the Cornell University Club of New York last week by Lieut.-Commander Riggs, U. S. N. He and Lieutenant Cohen, U. S. N., were guests of the club at dinner, and after dinner he gave a talk.

A four-week course of instruction is planned, to begin August 15 and to end September 12. Eight battleships of the Navy, including six which are now tied up, are to be assigned for the purpose of this course. The scheme is a part of the Navy Department's plan to interest civilians in the Navy and at the same time to build up a naval reserve. The eight battleships will be manned with skeleton crews and their complements will be made up of civilian volunteers.

The total expense for each volunteer is estimated at thirty dollars. The promoters of the plan hope that at least fifty per cent of the students will be college graduates or undergraduates. Many men have enrolled already from Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and Pennsylvania, and Cornell men are wanted. It is hoped that a good proportion of the men who volunteer will be mechanical or electrical engineers. Volunteers will be allowed, so far as possible, to select the stations most agreeable to them. Electrical engineers, for example, may be assigned to the electric plant, and there are fifty machines operated by electricity on a battleship. Men who are familiar with their trigonometry will be assigned to the navigation department if they wish. So far as possible, too, the men will be assigned to ships in congenial groups—the men of one university to the same ship, for instance.

It is asserted that no obligation is assumed by men who enlist, and that if a volunteer finds even at the last minute that he cannot go he will be excused. He is not bound to stay for the full four weeks if circumstances arising during the course make it necessary for him to go. Attendance does not involve any obligation for future service. Volunteers will be enrolled at Portland, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk, and other ports.

The first week will be devoted to drill

in the general ship routine. The second week will be spent at some harbor like Newport to give the men harbor practice, such as the manning of small boats. For the third week the ships will join the Atlantic Squadron, go to sea and take part in war maneuvers. In the fourth week they will return to New York for practice in harbor defense.

For the Training Camps

Cornell Enrollment Committee Asks for Additional Volunteers

The Cornell Enrollment Committee of the Military Training Camps Association has sent out a circular letter addressed to students and alumni of Cornell University, asking for more volunteers for the Plattsburg camp. The committee says:

“Thirty thousand college men are expected in the military training camps at Plattsburg this summer. To the senior camps of 1915, Cornell sent but forty-eight men. Of the first three thousand enrolled for this year, scarcely more than one per cent were Cornell men.

“It is said that one reason for the small attendance of Cornell men is their belief that they have already had all, or a large part, of the instruction that would be given to them at the camps. We are convinced that this is a mistake. The purpose of the camps is to train prospective officers of volunteers. Every effort is, therefore, made to train the man to habits of command, as well as of obedience. Men who have had previous instruction in the disciplinary drills are used as commissioned and non-commissioned officers, and given the opportunity to command others. Thus the work is made progressive and adapted to the capacities of trained as well as of untrained men.

“Moreover, the camps, and the maneuvers undertaken in connection with them, afford an intensiveness and a continuity of training that cannot be reached in the intermittent instruction of a college course. They reproduce in a surprising degree the conditions of actual service and afford an insight into the methods and requirements of campaigns, which only the professional soldier has hitherto been able to obtain. Cornell men will not lag behind, when the call comes to arms. They should be none the less prompt in aiding, by their example, the cause of preparedness.

“The military operations of the present day are largely engineering problems. Men of technical education are of increasing value in the military service. No university in the country has turned out more or better trained material for this service than Cornell. The camps are destined to become great centers of mobilization for the military resources of the country. Cornell men should demonstrate in these camps the character of the material which is being added year by year, from its student body, to the defenses of the Republic.

“Attendance at the camps in no way increases the obligation of the citizen to serve his country in war. It merely prepares him to serve it better. We urge upon all Cornellians that they recognize the overwhelming importance, at this time, of co-operating to the utmost for their country's defence.”

The letter is signed by Col. Henry W. Sackett '75, Merritt E. Haviland '77, Ira A. Place '81, John H. Barr '89, Clarence J. Shearn '90, S. Stanwood Menken '90, John Ford '90, James Parker Hall '94, Clyde A. Duniway '92, Arthur W. Barber '95, Charles A. McHenry '98, and Norman J. Gould '99.

The office of the Military Training Camps Association is at 31 Nassau Street, New York. Information may be obtained from the officer in charge of military training camps, at Governors Island, New York.

ALUMNI DAYS are Friday, June 16, and Saturday, June 17.

State College Appropriations

Less Money and Less Freedom of Action for the College of Agriculture

The budget making appropriations for the various State institutions has been signed by the Governor, and like most other institutions of the State, the College of Agriculture has suffered somewhat in reduced appropriations. The chief reduction is in an item for miscellaneous labor out of which the college has for a number of years carried on most of its work on the farms, in the barns, and in the laboratories. This cut amounted to approximately $58,000.

The cut in the appropriations is not so serious as the fact that all items are made definite and fixed. In former years, appropriations for the college and other institutions in the State were made in lump sums, but now all items including salaries, general expenses, and maintenance are itemized, and each item must be adhered to in the administration of the work.

This necessarily puts limitations on the work and gives the college less latitude of action than it formerly had. The total funds from all sources available for the use of the college for the next fiscal year are $688,173.98. Of this amount, $518,325.66 has been appropriated by the State. The other funds come from federal sources and tuition income. An item of $8,000 for the summer school has been provided. The summer school, therefore, will go on as usual.

In connection with the appropriations for the College for the next fiscal year, it is interesting to note the amounts of funds available from all sources for the past five years. The total appropriations for 1911-12 were $393,094.16; 1912-13, $418,822.70; 1913-14, $616,889.50; 1914-15, $630,243.99; 1915-16, $692,846.13; 1916-17, $688,173.98.

C.E. Camp at Lake Ridge

Engineers Will Resume Their Survey of the East Side of Cayuga Lake

The annual camp of the sophomore class in civil engineering will be held this summer at Lake Ridge on the east side of Cayuga Lake, about fifteen miles from Ithaca. The encampment will begin on June 12 and will close July 15, lasting for only five weeks instead of six as in previous years. About one hundred sophomores in civil engineering and twenty-five juniors in forestry will attend the camp.

The students will continue the survey of the lake and the adjoining country at the point where it was left off in 1914. Last year the encampment was on the west side of the lake. Hydrographic, topographic, geodetic, and astronomic surveys will be made. The Corps of Engineers of the United States War Department has recently adopted the Cornell charts as far as they have been completed, incorporating them with their own charts for the rest of the lake, which were made by the corps last summer. The government surveyors left off their work when they reached that portion of the territory which had already been completed by the Cornell undergraduates. The Cornell charts are more detailed than those done by the Corps of Engineers.

Professor O. M. Leland is again in charge of the camp. He will be assisted by nine members of the faculty of the College of Civil Engineering, who will give instruction in triangulation, astronomy, hydrography, geodetic levels, topographic levels, etc. The undergraduate camp officers follow: R. C. Edmunds, Denver, Col., chief engineer; F. V. Fields, Binghamton, assistant chief engineer; H. Bobker, New York, quartermaster; J. R. Bedell, Valley Falls, assistant quartermaster; H. I. Macken, New Brighton, commissary.

AGASSIZ'S BIRTHDAY

Louis Agassiz was born on the 28th of May, 1807. At Mount Holyoke College the anniversary was observed with an address before the Biological Club by Emeritus Professor Burt G. Wilder of Cornell University. Dr. Wilder was an instructor in the summers of 1873 and 1874 at the School of Natural History founded by Agassiz on Penikese Island in Buzzard's Bay.

DR. MARTIN BUEL TINKER

Dr. Martin B. Tinker, who was professor of surgery at the Medical College in Ithaca from 1903 till the second-year instruction was discontinued at Ithaca, was elected to the presidency of the New York State Medical Society at its 110th meeting at Saratoga on May 16. The election is a high honor. The list of names of ex-presidents of the state society includes practically only those of international reputation, and the election of Dr. Tinker reflects honor upon the University. Dr. Tinker's home is in Ithaca.

THE REV. FRANK B. CRANDALL '06, minister of the First Unitarian Church of Ayer, Mass., will preach in Sage Chapel on June 4.

The Alumni Fund

Change of Fiscal Year Calls for a Little Extra Effort

The fiscal year of the Cornellian Council has been made to correspond with that of the University by ending on June 30 instead of July 31. Despite the fact that the present fiscal year will therefore include only eleven months, the Council still hopes that a $40,000 installment of the Alumni Fund may be paid to the University on June 30. The secretary says it will be possible to do so if the classes recently graduated, who have made generous pledges to the Fund for their class memorials, honor their pledges this year.

FACULTY APPOINTMENTS

IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH two instructors, Elmer James Bailey, A.M., Ph.D., and Leslie Nathan Broughton, A.M., Ph.D., have been appointed to the grade of assistant professor. Instructors have been promoted in the department, as follows: J. F. Bradley, A.B., Cornell, 1911; C. A. Carroll, A.B., Cornell, 1910, and T. S. Long, A.B., Cornell, 1915. Mr. Bradley has recently held a fellowship in English here. Mr. Carroll had the unique distinction in 1910 of winning the Barnes Shakespeare prize and the Corson Browning prize on the same day; he has held a graduate scholarship in English at Columbia. Mr. Long has been an assistant in the department.

IN SIBLEY COLLEGE these instructors have been promoted to the grade of assistant professors: Clarence Andrew Pierce, A.B., M.E., in power engineering; Myron A. Lee, M.M.E., in machine design, and John George Pertsch, jr., M.E., in electrical engineering. Joseph Franklin Putnam, M.E., '10, has been appointed assistant professor of electrical engineering. He has been professor of physics in St. John's College, Shanghai, and has recently returned to this country. Frederick George Switzer, M.E. '13, M.M.E. '14, has been appointed instructor in the mechanics of engineering.

DR. HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON '05 has been appointed lecturer in modern European history and will return to the University next fall. He came here this year on a temporary appointment to fill a vacancy in the department of history.

MR. H. S. GUTSELL, instructor in freehand drawing in the College of Architecture, has been promoted to the grade of assistant professor.

Cornell's Real Varsity Eight Beats Princeton by a Few Feet

A thrilling race between the varsity eights of Princeton and Cornell was the feature of the Navy Day Regatta on Cayuga Lake last Saturday. A narrower victory has not been seen on this lake in a decade. Cornell snatched the lead from Princeton in the last dozen strokes and won by a margin of a few feet. The official time makes it half a boat length, but from the press car, abreast of the crews at the finish, it looked like two feet. The Yale varsity was five lengths behind Princeton.

The Princeton eight came to Ithaca with the prestige of several victories to strengthen its hope of success in its final race. It had defeated Harvard on April 20 and had won the Childs Cup on May 13 at Philadelphia against the Navy, Columbia, and Pennsylvania. It was by no means a husky crew. Its average weight in midseason had been 166 pounds. Skill and nerve rather than beef had won its early victories, and when it came to Ithaca the men were a little "fine." But they had two bracing days, Thursday and Friday, on the hill, Dr. Spaeth gave them little work to do, and Saturday found them ready for a struggle.

Against Princeton and Yale Mr. Courtney sent an eight which had yet to win its laurels but which, now that they are won, may be ranked among the great Cornell crews. It is no secret in Ithaca now that Kingsland's crew, which defeated Princeton, had for two weeks been rowing a good deal faster in practice than Collyer's eight, the veteran combination which Harvard defeated on May 20. To call the Kingsland eight a "third Cornell crew," as some newspaper reports have done, is unfair to Captain Cochran's excellent eight and is to attribute to luck a victory in which strategy had some part. Some reporter is the first and Mr. Courtney is always the last to label any Cornell eight "first varsity" before the departure for the Hudson. The crew which defeated Princeton and Yale was the best crew he had at the time, and he knew it. The fact that none of the eight had ever rowed in a senior race before doesn't make it any less true that they had earned the right to represent Cornell in this event, and it makes their victory all the more praiseworthy.

The Princeton varsity eight was boated as follows: Stroke, Captain Robert Cochran III; 7, James D. Paull; 6, Paul H. Gadebusch; 5, James R. Otis; 4, Elliott H. Lee; 3, Richard H. McCann; 2, Douglas Delanoy; bow, Arthur Savage; cox., Gordon Sikes.

The Yale varsity eight was made up of Stroke Harriman; 7, McNaughton; 6, Fitzpatrick; 5, Sturtevant; 4, Meyer; 3, Captain Low; 2, Gilfillan; bow, Hadley; cox., McLane.

The regatta was held under almost perfect conditions. There was no wind, the air was warm, and clouds shielded the spectators' eyes from the sun. An observation train of thirty-five cars followed the races on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and every car was crowded. The State yacht "Inspector" was brought to Ithaca by General Wotherpoon, the superintendent of public works, and this boat carried the referee, Mr. Meikleham, and the visiting coaches, Dr. Spaeth and Mr. Nickalls. In the first race of the day the Cascadilla School eight defeated the Cornell second freshman crew. This was the only preliminary to the varsity event.

In the varsity race Yale had the outside course, Cornell was in the middle, and Princeton was next the east shore. Almost at the start it became a battle between Princeton and Cornell, for Yale was left behind in the first quarter-mile. Princeton took the lead and had it by half a length at the half mile. There both crews were rowing only about thirty-two to the minute, and Cornell began to gain. At the mile they were even again, for Cornell was slowly forging ahead. It was plain to be seen that either crew was watching the other closely, and that neither intended to be beaten till the finish. Coxswain Sikes allowed the Cornell shell to take almost a length the advantage, but about the time the erstwhile "first varsity" on the observation train were yelling for "open water" the Nassau coxswain called for a spurt. Up to thirty-six went the Princeton stroke, and now the crew from Lake Carnegie began to gain. Stroke Kingsland responded with a slightly faster beat, but still Princeton cut down the lead. Not four hundred yards from the finish the rush of the Princeton crew carried their boat into the lead—a narrow lead which they held while the finish line drew ever

THE PRINCETON VARSITY EIGHT AFTER THE RACE

This remarkable snapshot, taken a moment after the finish, shows Stroke Cochran in collapse and the other members of the crew exhausted. They had given all they had in the last hundred yards of as plucky a race as ever was rowed, only to lose by a few feet.

nearer. Then, while the judge at the finish held his flag ready, something happened in the Princeton boat. Either the men had rowed themselves out and lacked the ounce or two more of effort needed, or a tired oarsman feathered under water. Whatever it was, the boat was checked just enough to let the nose of the Cornell shell slide over the line ahead. Princeton was beaten by a few feet. Her crew had given all they had, and they were a tired and grieving lot when they rested.

In the freshman race Cornell won by somewhat over a length from Yale and about five lengths from Princeton. The crew of the College of Agriculture rowed away from all the other college crews and won with ease.

The Princeton crews arrived in Ithaca Thursday morning with Dr. Spaeth and Mr. Charles S. Bryan, of New York, the chairman of Princeton's graduate committee on rowing. The oarsmen were entertained by the Cornell University Athletic Association at the Theta Delta Chi house. The Yale oarsmen came Friday morning and were entertained at the Delta Kappa Epsilon house.

GOING TO THE HUDSON

The Cornell Navy was planning this week to start for the Hudson on Saturday night, June 3, for the final fortnight of preparation for the Intercollegiate Regatta to be held on Saturday, June 17. Two complete varsity eights and one freshman eight were to go, together with six varsity and two freshman substitutes, or enough men to man a fourth eight-oared shell. The varsity combinations were:

Bow, K. H. Fernow; 2, L. R. Lytle;

3, R. H. Bacon; 4, F. Nelms, jr.; 5, G. A. Worn; 6, A. A. Cushing; 7, L. G. Brower; stroke, J. L. Collyer; cox., G. S. Kephart.

Bow, P. W. Fitzpatrick; 2, C. Andrus; 3, J. T. Moir, jr.; 4, G. W. Bonney; 5, J. B. D. Kirkland; 6, J. E. Brinckerhoff; 7, W. G. Cowan; stroke, L. D. Kingsland; cox., D. H. Chandler.

Substitutes: R. G. Bird, J. H. Vickers, M. S. Russell, T. H. Farnsworth, W. F. Courtney, J. C. Othus; cox., H. S. Perry.

POSITIONS DRAWN

Positions were drawn last week for the crews which will compete in the regatta of June 17 on the Hudson. The lanes are numbered outward from the west shore. For the varsity race Columbia drew No. 1, Pennsylvania No. 2, Syracuse No. 3, and Cornell No. 4. In the junior race Columbia has the inshore place and then in order come Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania. The Cornell freshmen have the inshore lane in their race. Next to them is Columbia, then Pennsylvania and Syracuse.

POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA

Alumni who wish to procure seats on the observation train at the Intercollegiate Regatta to be held at Poughkeepsie on Saturday, June 17, are requested to send their applications for tickets at once to the Cornell University Athletic Association, Box 38, Ithaca, N. Y. The price of seats on the train is $3.00 each. Applicants for tickets are requested to include 14 cents in the remittance to cover postage and registry.

ALUMNI DAYS are Friday, June 16, and Saturday, June 17.

ITHACA, NEW YORK, JUNE 1, 1916

THERE were some details of Navy Day this year in which improvement may be hoped for. They are little things which are important because they affect the comfort of our guests. There is no good reason why the collegiate boat race should be the last one on the regatta program. There are several reasons why it should be held early. The navy management had planned to send the college crews away before the intercollegiate races last Saturday, and would have done so if the college gigs had been ready. As things turned out, the minor race had to be rowed last. Probably most of the hungry spectators on the observation train would have been glad to return to town after the intercollegiate races were over, but they had to be hauled back down the shore for an anti-climax, and most of them reached town about nine o'clock.

THE FRESHMAN cap-burning ceremony probably will never again be allowed to take place on the night of Navy Day. Certainly it should not be. The behavior of the freshmen who came down town after the bonfire was disgraceful and was a reproach to the upperclassmen whose duty it is to control the actions of the first-year class. Whenever the cap-burning is held, there is no reason whatever for permitting a body of freshmen to march down town. It is always the freshest, noisiest, and least civilized part of the class which gets to the front on such an occasion, and as soon as it gets down town it proceeds to "show off." Stewart Avenue ought to be the dead-line for any large body of freshmen. No Cornell alumnus who is in Ithaca likes to see many of the kind of freshman that makes itself most conspicuous when there is a crowd of visitors in town.

OPINION AND COMMENT

Honorary Degrees

Editor, Cornell Alumni News:

May I have some space in which to urge upon all who may attend or influence the coming annual meeting of the Associate Alumni a careful consideration of the proposition, to be then acted upon, for an honorary degree in Applied Economics?

In the early days our honored first president opposed conferring honorary degrees "until they should be worth something," until the young university should have passed its struggling experimental stage. He urged this as a temporary arrangement. Surely that stage is passed, and now any degree from Cornell University is eminently desirable.

Honorary degrees have their use; it is an acknowledgment of weakness to forego them, to forbid their possibility, because some have abused them. With the precedent of half a century and with the conservative element to serve as a check, our faculty and trustees can safely be trusted not to abuse a permission to bestow honorary degrees with discrimination.

What time more appropriate for initiating this change in policy than at our semi-centennial celebration?

Let our alma mater be the one to create a degree in Applied Economics; that would be typical of the times and of what Cornell stands for.

It is especially urged that this be instituted for Cornellians—non-graduates (and also for our graduates) who shall have distinguished themselves so pre-eminently in some application of economics, mechanics, etc., that we are, will be, proud of them as Cornellians; when that is the case, will it not be a graceful thing for the University to extend such recognition?

Cornell does not hesitate to accept from its non-graduates financial and other help or to call upon them for support.

The difference is but nominal between our graduates and those who did not receive a diploma; some of our best, most prominent, loyal Cornellians—who have made a success of their lives—did not complete their college course, but this is known now only to themselves. Their classmates would be surprised to be told of it. Their modesty will estop them from taking part in the campaign for this degree—all the more reason that the rest of us should work for it!

Bear in mind, this degree is not proposed that failure to graduate may hereby be supplemented because one has "made good," is a good fellow, or from sympathy, loyalty, etc.; such abuse can and will be guarded against. Conservatism is a good thing in its place. Its place hereafter (so far as this matter is involved) should be to guard against abuse of the D. A. E. or other honorary degrees; but the time has come when it should no longer hamper the faculty and trustees in the exercise of one of the time-honored functions of first class universities the world over.

REUNION NOTICES

See who's coming! Izzy Straight and Bac Little will be at the Big Show to see how they appeared as the keepers of the dogs in the first and original Spring Day, inaugurated by the Class of 1901. Layt Lyon writes that he "can't resist Brick Metcalf's call." Ewell Nalle is coming all the way from Austin, Texas, but he is going to have competition for the long distance cup. He adds: "Will be there or bust." Pop Miller has canceled all his engagements in order to come. And note this retinue of star performers who will affect the khaki on June 16th and 17th: Oliphant, Ralph Chatillon, Trautschold, Dave Gaehr, Thayer, Briner, Ned Allen, Sears, George Crofts, Bailey, Couch, Ted Gay, Warren Ogden, Sherwood, Marland, Conable, Fred Willis, Slocum, Robertson, Charlie Stevens, Turner, Church, Brizsé, Borst, Crandell, Bennett, Bill Pellet, Kinsey, Henry Macdonald, Henry Lyon, Wormuth, Knox, Shirley Hulse, Hart, Tommy Taylor, Archie Morrison, Du Bois, Carrier, Ned Alexander, John Senior, Bill Baker, Wally Childs, Green, Moffat, Jim O'Malley, Ristine, Dick Walter, Ezra Whitman, Fred Will, Pistor, Paine, Eells, Riley, Rod Williams, and YOU.

Send in your card at once to the chairman and send Rod Williams a check.

J. P. HARRIS, Chairman,
714 Cuyahoga Building,
Cleveland, Ohio.

1906

"By the Beard of the Prophet" sixty-nine loyal sons of Ezra swear that they will return to Ithaca in June. Is your name in that number?

The chairman may be a good, bad or indifferent manager, but he is no mind reader, and if you do not send in your card at once you will celebrate sans costume.

Be a sport and cut out business for a few days. What in the world will $25 mean to you ten years from now, if you let this large sum stand between you and Ithaca?

Those of you who live near Ithaca, don't forget that the boys from the West have to spend much more time and money than you do, and that still they are coming back to a man.

Now that June is here, the day is at hand. Pack that old college grip and take that train for Ithaca.

Come back with us.

ROGER S. VAIL, Chairman.

Look Out for a Swindler

A Man Claiming Acquaintance with Cornell May Try to Borrow Money

The NEWS is informed that several Cornell men have been swindled by a man who pretends to be a former student of the University and who borrowed money from them. The man has given the name "Denny" and also the name "Mason." Information about him comes to the NEWS in a letter from Adolph Reutlinger '13, of Louisville, Ky., who writes:

"I am writing you in regard to a man named Denny, claiming to be from Boston, who was in Louisville in January a year ago. He claimed to be a graduate of Union College and to belong to the Kappa Alpha fraternity and said he took a post-graduate course at Cornell. He said that he was on construction work in Western Kentucky and desired identification at the post office, where money had been wired him. As I could not identify him I saw no need of taking the trip over to the telegraph office, but, on the strength of his story, which was very frank, apparently, and straightforward, I advanced him $9.00. He promised to pay me back as soon as he got to Henderson.

"I heard no more of 'Denny' until I got a letter from a gentleman in Kansas City, Mo., saying that a man using my name and giving my address approached him for money. He looked up my name in the Cornellian and the Cornell Directory and naturally supposed that Denny's story was true and advanced him $20.00.

"In February 1916 Denny approached W. W. Krauss of Indianapolis, of the class of 1913, and said that he was my cousin and that I was a Kappa Alpha at Cornell. However, Krauss, who belongs to my fraternity, which is Delta Kappa Epsilon, told him that his story did not sound right, and Denny immediately said that he must be speaking of the wrong man.

"Now, I am just in receipt of a letter from Arthur Pounsford '14, who said that Denny approached him on a train between New York and Philadelphia, stating that his name was R. L. Mason, of Charleston, S. C., that he graduated from Princeton in 1912 and that he was my cousin. As he appeared to know quite a number of Cornell men Pounsford cashed a check for him which proved to be worthless."

Reutlinger adds that he sends this information for publication in the NEWS in order that Cornell men may be put on their guard against this man.

Nobody of the name of Denny has taken a post-graduate course at Cornell within the last ten years. Readers of the NEWS will at once recall the stammering fraud who swindled Cornell men all over the country a few years ago, but he can hardly be identical with the confidence man reported by Reutlinger. The stammerer was in jail at Kansas City in January, 1915.

COLLEGE ROWING

The June Scribner's contains an interesting article on rowing at American colleges, written by Lawrence Perry, of the New York Evening Post.

MR. E. T. PAINE, secretary of the College of Arts and Sciences, has resigned to accept an instructorship in the department of philosophy.

ALUMNI DAYS are Friday, June 16, and Saturday, June 17.

Spring Day Show Rained On Receipts Much Diminished by Untimely Showers

For the first time in recent years rain broke up the Spring Day circus before its completion. The parade was successfully run off, and the cavalcade reached Schoellkopf Field about 10 o'clock. For about an hour the circus ran full blast. A large crowd enjoyed the various shows. It looked as if the Athletic Association would begin to wax prosperous when the sky clouded up and a heavy shower fell. The crowd scampered for the tents, where admission fees were charged rigorously by the zealous ticket takers. The rain stopped after a few minutes, however, and the festivities were resumed. The first few heats of the pushmobile race were run off before the rain started up again. At about half past eleven the downpour was sufficient to break up the show.

Financially the circus was much less successful than usual, owing entirely to the rain.

The favorite show was that run by undergraduates of Sibley College. It consisted of assembling a Ford in ten minutes, and was a real triumph of mechanical skill.

"THE CITY OF HENRIK ANDERSEN"

A '74 alumnus writes us:

"In your interesting article on Dr. Marchal's impressions of Cornell, in your number for May 25, is a reference to 'the future city of Henrik Andersen.' This last phrase must have puzzled some of your readers. May I clear it up? My friend Hendrik Christian Andersen is a native of Norway and was brought to the United States in his infancy and settled in Rhode Island. Later, he studied art in Boston and in Europe, and has long been a sculptor of note. He lives most of the time in Rome, where he has a studio on the Piazza del Popolo. During the past ten years he has become prominent as the advocate of the creation of a grand International City, the important plans for which were drawn up chiefly by M. Jean Hébrard, formerly Professor of Design in our College of Architecture. It is to this city that Dr. Marchal refers in the page which you quote."

HAROLD LYLE REED, Ph.D., '14, has been appointed assistant professor of economics to succeed Dr. John R. Turner, who goes to New York University. Dr. Reed was formerly instructor in economics here.

Another Intercollegiate Track Victory

Winners of Cornell's 45 Points

D. F. Potter, jr., '16, Buffalo: first place in the two mile run; 5 points.
 F. K. Foss, '17, Chicago: first place in the pole vault; 5 points.
 L. V. Windnagle, '17, Portland, Oregon: first place in the one mile run; 5 points.
 A. F. Van Winkle, '16, Brooklyn: third place in the 220-yard dash, fourth place in the 100-yard dash; 5 points.
 A. W. Richards, '17, Parowan, Utah: third place in the shot put, tie with two others for third place in the high jump; 5 points.
 L. E. Gubb, '16, Batavia: second place in the high hurdles; 4 points.
 Captain J. S. Hoffmire, '16, second place in the two mile run; 4 points.
 W. D. Crim, '17, Utica: third place in the 440-yard dash; 3 points.
 Edward Frey, '17, New York City: third place in the two mile run; 3 points.
 J. C. Corwith, '16, Water Mill: fourth place in the two mile run; 2 points.
 G. M. Taylor, '16, St. Paul, Minn.: fourth place in the half mile run; 2 points.
 C. F. Hagemann, '17, Yonkers: fourth place in the hammer throw; 2 points.

The Team Scores

Cornell, 45; Yale, 29; California, 22; Stanford, 22; Pennsylvania, 18; Dartmouth, 14; Michigan, 13; Harvard, 11; Princeton, 10; Bowdoin, 5; Syracuse, 3; Pennsylvania State, 2; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1.

The Intercollegiate Meet Won by a Well Balanced Team

The Harvard Stadium has been the scene of three Cornell championship struggles this scholastic year; in football last fall, in lacrosse a few weeks ago, and in track last Saturday. The track victory is Cornell's third successive championship in the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet by an overwhelming score, and this year it was accomplished against the best field that ever competed in a college track and field meet. For proof, there are the facts that the winning performances excelled any other year and that three intercollegiate records and one world's record were broken. The victory gives Cornell two legs on the new intercollegiate cup.

Cornell scored in eleven events, which is one better than last year; won three events, which triples the number for 1915; and took the first four places in the two-mile, which smashes all existing records. Only four colleges scored more in all the events than did Cornell with her fourteen points in the long distance race.

Friday's trials showed that Yale was going to push Cornell hard for first place, with California and Stanford cutting in on the Ithaca scorers. But Cornell scored where it was not expected and won because every man fairly outdid himself in Saturday's finals. The landslide started with the mile run, when Windnagle ran the favorite, Overton of Yale, off his feet. Thenceforth it was merely a procession for the team trophy, but a very interesting and thrilling one on account of the exceptionally close competition in each contest. The mile was followed by Meredith's world's record quarter, and here Cornell confounded the prophets when Crim took third, "two inches" behind Riley of Dartmouth. Next year Crim should be a hard man for any college athlete to beat.

Van Winkle, running in his last meet, was awarded fourth place in the 100-yard dash in a finish so close that it must have taxed the judging powers of the officials. In the 220, Van Winkle was shut out of second place by the proverbial hair's breadth.

Gubb was at his best in the high hurdles, and after winning his semi-final heat in 15 2-5 seconds he chased Murray to the tape in the record-breaking final. No one challenged Gubb for second place.

Windnagle's remarkable mile, by far the best that has been run by a college man since J. P. Jones '13 set the intercollegiate record at 4:14 2-5, left him too tired for the fast half mile, and he was unable to place. Beckwith also failed in the half after running the mile.

Taylor, another new one for the experts, ran a heady race in the half and finished a good fourth. This was his last race for Cornell and he embraced this last opportunity to win his letter and stripe.

Richards, suffering from a bad leg, did very well to win third in the shot put, less than three inches behind the winner, and to tie for third in the high jump. He accounted for five points, along with the four other high scorers for Cornell, namely, Foss, Potter, Van Winkle, and Windnagle.

Hagemann was another surprise to the writers who go on past performances and he scored the points that they expected of his team-mate McCormick.

Last year it was Cornell's squad of hurdlers that upset predictions by taking three out of five places in the 120-yard event, and this year it was a quartette of two-milers that Mr. Moakley uncovered. Potter led the procession across the finish line, followed by Captain Hoffmire. Frey, among the least heralded of the runners who started, ran a good third and pushed Hoffmire at the finish. Corwith did not become a member of the winning combination until the last few yards, when he passed Putnam of Yale after a remarkable sprint that cut down a 60-yard lead in less than a lap. Lou Madeira, the Penn distance star of two seasons ago, thought that the two-mile performance deserved a cheer, so he led his Penn cohorts in a yell for Cornell.

The pole vault was won by Foss, this being the first time in three years that one man has won a clear title to first place. His winning jump was 12 feet 8 inches. The bar was raised to 13 feet 2 7-8 inches afterward, and on his third attempt at the world's record he cleared the height save for his elbow, which dislodged the bar. The summary:

100 Yard Dash—Won by H. L. Smith, Michigan; W. B. Moore, Princeton, second; E. A. Teschner, Harvard, third; A. F. Van Winkle, Cornell, fourth; H. I. Treadway, Yale, fifth. Time, 10 seconds.

220 Yard Dash—Won by W. B. Moore, Princeton; H. L. Smith, Michigan, second; A. F. Van Winkle, Cornell, third; H. I. Treadway, Yale, fourth; F. Kaufman, Pennsylvania, fifth. Time, 21 3-5 seconds.

440 Yard Run—Won by J. E. Meredith, Pennsylvania; E. C. Riley, Dartmouth, second; W. D. Crim, Cornell, third; W. Willcox, jr., Harvard, fourth; H. J. Richardson, Princeton, fifth. Time, 47 2-5 seconds, a new intercollegiate and world's record.

880 Yard Run—Won by J. E. Meredith, Pennsylvania; W. J. Bingham, Harvard, second; L. C. Scudder, Pennsylvania, third; G. M. Taylor, Cornell, fourth; C. Peterson, Syracuse, fifth. Time, 1 minute 53 seconds, a new intercollegiate record.

Mile Run—Won by L. V. Windnagle, Cornell; H. L. Carroll, Michigan, second; J. W. Overton, Yale, third; H. R. Wilson, Stanford, fourth; R. G. Brown, M. I. T., fifth. Time, 4 minutes 15 seconds.

Two Mile Run—Won by D. F. Potter, Cornell; J. S. Hoffmire, Cornell, second; E. Frey, Cornell, third; J. C. Corwith, Cornell, fourth; J. T. Putnam, Yale, fifth. Time, 9 minutes 32 3-5 seconds.

120 Yard High Hurdles—Won by F. S. Murray, Stanford; L. E. Gubb, Cornell, second; T. L. Preble, California, third; J. K. Norton, Stanford, fourth; J. M. Farwell, Yale, fifth. Time, 15 seconds; a new intercollegiate record.

220 Yard Low Hurdles—Won by F. S. Murray, Stanford; J. V. Farwell, Yale, second; J. K. Norton, Stanford, third; D. M. Brown, Penn State, fourth; W. A. Savage, Bowdoin, fifth. Time, 24 1-5 seconds.

High Jump—Won by W. M. Oler, Yale, 6 feet 2 1-4 inches; F. L. Maker, California, second, 6 feet 1 1-4 inches; A. W. Richards, Cornell; J. O. Johnstone, Harvard, and C. C. Gifford, Yale, tied for third place at 6 feet 1-4 inch.

Broad Jump—Won by H. T. Worthington, Dartmouth, 24 feet 1-4 inch; W. M. Oler, Yale, second, 23 feet 7 3-8 inches; W. M. Sisson, Stanford, third, 23 feet 2 inches; F. L. Maker, California, fourth, 23 feet 1 7-8 inches; F. M. Hampton, Yale, fifth, 22 feet 7 1-4 inches.

Hammer Throw—Won by C. C. Gildersleeve, California, 155 feet 1 inch; G. W. Leadbetter, Bowdoin, second, 152 feet 4 inches; D. H. Richardson, California, third, 151 feet 9 1-2 inches; C. F. Hagemann, Cornell, fourth, 143 feet 3 1-2 inches; C. A. Pudrith, Dartmouth, fifth, 143 feet 1-2 inch.

Shot Put—Won by H. B. Leversedge, California, 46 feet 2 1-2 inches; C. W. Spear, Dartmouth, second, 46 feet 1 3-8 inches; A. W. Richards, Cornell, third, 45 feet 11 3-4 inches; E. R. Caugey, Stanford, fourth, 45 feet 4 inches; J. M. Braden, Yale, fifth, 45 feet 1-4 inch.

Pole Vault—Won by F. K. Foss, Cornell, 12 feet 8 inches; W. I. Newstetter and E. L. Sewell, Pennsylvania; K. R. Curtis, Syracuse, and H. C. Buck and J. D. Nagel, Yale, tied for second place at 12 feet 4 inches.

Outlook for the Future

Half the points scored by Cornell will be lost when the 1916 class graduates this month. Potter, Hoffmire, and Corwith, who accounted for eleven points in the two-mile; Van Winkle, who won five points in the sprints; Gubb, who was second in the high hurdles; and Taylor, fourth in the half-mile, will be lost. Other members of the squad which was taken to the Intercollegiates who will be lost are Irish, whose lame ankle prevented him from placing in the mile again this year; Beckwith, who is good at anything from the half mile up; Cheney, a pole vaulter who just missed 12 feet 4 inches in qualifying Friday; Moore in the shot put, Cady in the high jump, and Millard and Lyford in the hurdles. Starr and McLaren, who placed in the 1915 championships but who were handicapped this spring and who did not place last Saturday, will also graduate. These losses are serious, constituting probably the greatest drain on the track and field strength of the University that has ever occurred in a single year.

There remain for the 1917 team the winners Foss and Windnagle; Richards, who also accounted for five points; Crim, third in the 440; Frey, third in the two-mile; and Hagemann, fourth in the hammer throw. Bartsch, Culbertson, and Kelly, qualifiers in the sprints, and Acheson and Watt in the hurdles are also left. Shelton in the quarter, Gillies in the pole vault, Howell in the shot put, McCormick, Jewett, Dixon, and Miller in the hammer throw; and Culbertson, Benjamin, and Harrison in the broad jump are the other members of the intercollegiate squad who can be used next year.

Sidelights on the Meet

Thursday afternoon the Cornell Club of New England took the track team to Nantasket Beach, going by boat and trolley and returning by boat. Five or six members of the association accompanied the undergraduates.

Friday evening a Cornell smoker was held at the Hotel Lenox, attended by about a hundred men. Charles Wellington Furlong introduced the speakers, who included Mr. Moakley, J. T. McGovern '00, C. A. Taussig '02, H. A. Rogers '03, and Romeyn Berry '04. Roland F. Hall '12 was appointed cheerleader for the next day and he ably discharged his duties on the big afternoon. The Cornell cheer was the first to be heard and was forthcoming when the milers lined up at the start, Windnagle's name being tacked on the end. Throughout the meet the three short yells were heard more often than from any other delegation, special cheers being given for the record breakers, Meredith and Murray.

Dave Caldwell '14 came in from the farm to see the meet. He wandered around nervously before the start and could scarcely be prevented from donning a suit and shoes to start in the half-mile. He didn't seem to be much worried at having his record lowered by Meredith, at least it didn't spoil his appetite for the dinner at the Vendome.

The track team and several old timers dined at the Vendome after the meet. Romeyn Berry '04 presented the medals to the men who placed first, second, or third after Mr. Moakley had spoken a few words. The track cup was in a prominent place and Manager Sanborne did not allow it out of his sight until he had replaced it in Schoellkopf after its brief absence.

Assistant Managers.—The following sophomores have been elected assistant managers of the minor sports teams: W. A. Culkin, Duluth, Minn., basketball, Phi Kappa Sigma; D. A. Ruhl, Des Moines, Ia., wrestling, Theta Delta Chi; A. M. Peabody, Seattle, Wash., lacrosse, Psi Upsilon; N. M. Willard, Buffalo, association football, Kappa Delta Rho; W. R. Hinchman, Brooklyn, tennis, Phi Delta Theta; S. C. Doolittle, Utica, golf, Sigma Phi.

Collegiate Track.—Agriculture won the collegiate track meet held on Schoellkopf Field on May 25. The winners scored 38 points. Sibley was second with 33. Civil Engineering, Arts, Chemistry, and Veterinary followed in the order named.

Cornell 5, Colgate 3

The team journeyed to Hamilton by automobile on May 25 and took the measure of the Colgate nine, 5 to 3. Perkins pitched his first game since the southern trip and held his opponents well in hand. Cornell did the first scoring in the fourth inning. O'Connell and Clary hit safely and Eckley scored O'Connell with another single. Clary tried to score but was put out at the plate. Eckley came home on Sutterby's infield out. Two errors by Eckley in the next inning allowed Colgate to tie the score. Kenney singled, and reached third when Eckley overthrew first base after fielding Glendenning's grounder and Glendenning went to second. Hungerford hit to Eckley, who threw wide to the plate, allowing Kenney to score. Glendenning came home when West hit to Perkins and was thrown out at first. Cornell came back with another run in the sixth inning and clinched the game in the eighth. With the bases full Perkins hit safely, scoring two runs. Colgate started a rally in the ninth, but Perkins tightened after one run had been scored.

Pennsylvania 5, Cornell 3

Poor base running and inability to hit at crucial points cost Cornell the long drawn out struggle with Pennsylvania on Spring Day. At the end of the nine innings the score stood 3 to 3. Neither team could score in the first four extra innings, but in the fifteenth Berry won the game with a home run when Kane was on first base. Cornell was unable to score in the latter half of the inning, and the game was lost, 5 to 3. The series with Pennsylvania will be decided at Philadelphia on June 17. Cornell won the first game at Philadelphia, 3 to 0.

Russell outpitched Spielman during most of the game. He allowed only eight hits, passed two men, and struck out eight, while Spielman allowed nine hits, walked five men, and struck out five. Two of Pennsylvania's hits, however, were home runs with a man on base, and accounted for four of the five runs scored.

The Cornell batters started off with the usual rush and scored two runs in the first inning. Budd was thrown out, Spielman to Smith. Mellen singled and took second on Clary's hit through second base. O'Connell drew a base on balls, filling the bases. Spielman then walked Eckley, forcing in Mellen. Clary scored on Valentine's long sacrifice fly to right field. Sauters was thrown out, Moore to Smith.

Only nine men faced Russell in the first three innings. In the first inning he struck out all three batters. Cornell had men on second and third in the third inning, but the necessary hits did not come. In Pennsylvania's half of the fifth Smith singled to center and scored when Bennis knocked the ball among the automobiles on the far side of the track for a home run. The next three men were easy outs.

Cornell regained the lead in the latter half of the fifth inning. Budd walked and went to third when Smith muffed the throw to first on Mellen's ground ball, and Mellen went to second. An attempt to "squeeze" in Budd failed, for Smith fielded Clary's bunt so quickly that Budd was caught at the plate. Mellen, who had reached third on the play, scored on O'Connell's fly to center-field. Eckley walked, but Valentine struck out, ending the inning.

Pennsylvania evened things up again in the eighth. With one out Russell walked Moore. He reached second on Kane's bunt and came home when Berry singled. Cornell's best chance to win the game was lost in the eighth by a confusion of signals. Eckley hit safely and went to second on Mellen's sacrifice, but was held at third when Sauters singled. With Sutterby at bat Eckley started for home, attempting the squeeze. Sutterby didn't see him coming and made no try for a bunt. Eckley was touched out by Gilmore. Neither team came near scoring again until the fifteenth, when with two out and Kane on first, Berry knocked the ball away over Valentine's head for the second home run of the game. The score:

ALUMNI NOTES

'93, A.B.—Dr. Walter Woodburn Hyde, now of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, contributes to the University of Pennsylvania Law Review for May a long and learned study on "The prosecution and punishment of animals and lifeless things in the Middle Ages and modern times."

'94, S.—H. Judson Lipes, M.D., of Albany, N. Y., was elected president of the Albany County Medical Society at the annual meeting of the society held on May 26.

'95—Charles S. Young has left the San Francisco Examiner to become western manager for N. W. Ayer & Son, advertising, of Philadelphia. The Philadelphia Public Ledger of May 22 said: "Twenty-one years ago there wandered into the Sports Department of the Public Ledger a bright-eyed youth from Camden, N. J. He said he was going to Cornell University and in order to help work his way through college he asked to be given the correspondence for sports while there. His wish was granted, and in the four years at Ithaca he served this paper faithfully. When he finished his course he was so fascinated with newspaper work he returned to Philadelphia and sought a position on the general staff. Robert M. McWade was then City Editor of the Public Ledger. He looked the ambitious youngster over and said, 'Young man, I am going to give you Horace Greeley's advice. Go West! It offers a great opportunity to such as you.' The advice was heeded. The Camden boy never stopped until he reached Omaha. He secured a position on the Omaha Bee. Proprietor Rosewater soon recognized his merit and in a short time the youth became Railroad Editor of the paper. And that was some job, for at that time Omaha was not only the gateway of the extreme west, but all the big railroads concentrated there. The big roads had their eyes on the youth, and from his newspaper job he became advertising man of one of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroads. From his railroad position he graduated to the San Francisco Examiner, where he remained until April 12, when a big dinner was given in his honor by the craft on the Coast. He has come East again. Last Wednesday night Charles Somers Young was the guest of the sport scribes and artists of the Public Ledger at a planked shad dinner. N. W. Ayer & Son sought this Camden man who had been schooled in journalism by the Public Ledger staff to take charge of their business west of the Mississippi River. Mr. Young will have his headquarters in Chicago. He is sure to put the name of Ayer on the western map. His associates of two decades ago are sure of that."

'00, Ph.B.—Leroy L. Perrine has recently accepted a position with the American International Corporation, 120 Broadway, New York, in the capacity of traveling auditor. For the last eighteen months Perrine has been with the Interstate Commerce Commission in charge of accounting work regarding the valuation of the property of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

'01, A.B.—Clarence H. Fay has been appointed deputy commissioner of the fire department of the City of New York. Commissioner Adamson made the following statement on May 19: "Clarence H. Fay, Secretary of Department, was promoted to the position of Deputy Commissioner, to succeed the late Deputy Commissioner Weeks who died suddenly one week ago. Mr. Fay has been Secretary of the Fire Department since January, 1914, and Commissioner Adamson stated that his appointment was in the nature of a promotion for merit. 'Mr. Fay has served the Department well as Secretary,' said Commissioner Adamson, 'and on the principle of recognition for faithful public service he deserved promotion to the vacancy to which he has been appointed.'" Fay is a lawyer, with office at 132 Nassau Street.

'04, A.B.—Professor Lawrence Martin, of the University of Wisconsin, gave the Heilprin memorial lecture before the Geographical Society of Philadelphia on April 19. The title of the lecture was "The gorge of the upper Mississippi as a rival of the Rhine gorge."

'06, A.B.—Fred L. Nussbaum took the degree of Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania in June, 1915. He is now instructor in history at Northwestern University. He lives at 103 Haven House, Evanston, Ill.

'06, LL.B.—Thomas J. Hassett has formed a partnership with Richard H. Arnold, under the firm name of Arnold & Hassett, for the practice of law, with office at 120 Westchester Square, New York City.

'06, B.S.A.—A. S. Coelho is the superintendent of several coffee plantations belonging to himself and his family. His address is Caixa No. 1, S. Paulo, Brazil.

'07, M.C.E.—Jerome Cochran is a general contractor with office at 305 First National Bank Building, Houston, Texas.

'07, M.E.—Charles W. Hubbell is architect and engineer with The Pennsylvania Shipbuilding Company, Gloucester, N. J. His address is 844 Monmouth Street, Gloucester City, N. J.

'10, C.E.—E. F. Hettrick, formerly of the Herndon-Hettrick Engineering Company, has incorporated the E. F. Hettrick Engineering Company and occupies the same offices, 1502-3-4 Empire Building, Birmingham, Ala. The new company has several contracts with the Indian Head Mills of Alabama and Massachusetts and is doing work in Tennessee and Georgia also. William Bew White, B.L., '08, of Tillman, Bradley & Morrow, is a director of the company and is its legal representative.

'10, M.E.—H. C. Schuyler is with the Selden-Breck Construction Company, general contractors, 1108 Fullerton Building, St. Louis, Mo.

The Co-op. is willing to risk its future business on the past reputation. When you were in college, you can remember well the prompt service and good quality goods which were to be obtained at the Co-op. Some, when they have come back for Reunion, have remarked that the service was better than at any store they had found. Let us hear from you.

THEY believed in preparedness, those men who are ready to present their colleges with substantial gifts at this year's reunions.

While you're pondering the question of your gift at your twentieth or twenty-fifth reunion, why not swing into action and investigate the convenient advantages of Endowment insurance?

That's the correct thing these days.
