ASK AUNT JORDIE...

Dear Aunt Jordie:

Even though I know you are not my real Aunt I can use you for a sounding board for a couple of "hot" items that I think should be handled before someone wants to make big issues of them.

Item one: As Station employees do we get to use the car wash facilities? I saw..... Item two: Is anyone exempt from the clean air rules of the State and Cornell and the Station? Of course not. Yet, (I have observed)..... I, too, would like to enjoy the warm air and smoke in my work place but don't.

Signed: Unprivileged and P.

Dear U & P:

Item one: It is not common practice to allow Station employees access to the car wash facilities in B & P for washing personal (Continued on page 2) vehicles. What you observed, as documented, was a contractor, hired by Cornell, backing his vehicle out of the car wash facility after repairing a radiator hose that had broken. Item two: The Station policy on smoking is in the CALS/University document within the Personnel file on the Computer Center server (use Appleshare to access this from a Macintosh). No person is exempt from the policy. The situation you have stated is being addressed with renewed effort. If you notice someone who is not following policy you may ask them to stop smoking.

Dear Readers: The letter that was originally written has been edited, thus, the spaces. I will not respond regarding a specific person's name in my column. Thank you for understanding.
