THE TWELFTH ANNUAL FARMERS' WEEK is being conducted this week by the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University. The entire program is printed in a pamphlet of thirty-two pages. Conventions will be held in the course of the week by the Alumni Association of the New York State College of Agriculture, the Cornell Dairy Students' Association, the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, the New York State Bean Growers' Cooperative Association, the New York State Federation of County Farm Bureau Associations, and the New York State Potato Association, besides the Rural Community Conference and the Rural Education Conference.

IMPORTANT FARMERS' WEEK lectures include "Farms for Soldiers," by Professor Elwood Meade, of the University of California; "Some Current Agricultural Problems," by Professor Eugene Davenport, dean of the Illinois State College of Agriculture; "Songs That Live," by Rose LeV. Morgan (two recitals); "The Farmer in the Work of Reconstruction," by Oliver Wilson, master of the National Grange; "America in the War and After," by President Schurman; "Farmers and Bankers," by G. E. Roberts, vice-president of the National City Bank, of New York.

A FOURTH CONCRETE BARGE has been completed at the contractors' yards on the Inlet. This boat, the "U. S. 117," together with its counterpart, the "U. S. 116," will be launched sometime this month. With the completion of these barges the Cummings Structural Concrete Company has fulfilled its contract with the Government.

PROFESSOR W. W. ROWLEE '88, of the Department of Botany, has returned to the University after an absence of several months in Central America. There, as a specialist in timber, he was investigating the growth and commercial availability of certain woods of possible use in airplanes and other implements of war, particularly the balsa, a very light wood comparable with cork and used in the tropics in making rafts. His trip was not unfringed with adventure and with danger, from insects, storms, and tropical fevers, as well as from difficulties of travel inland. For nearly a month he lived for the most part in native huts on low lying lands where the temperature did not fall below eighty-five degrees day or night. Professor Rowlee went as far south as Panama. He was accompanied by his son.

PROFESSOR ALBERT C. PHELPS of the College of Architecture has given two in the series of lectures arranged by the Metropolitan Museum of Art for Saturday afternoons throughout the winter. Among the lecturers are artists, architects, authors, officials of the Metropolitan and other museums, and professors in Harvard, Brown, Columbia, and Princeton. Professor Phelps's topic on February 1 was "The Origin and Nature of Gothic Art," and on February 8, "An Appreciation of Gothic Architecture." A number of alumni were present on both days, glad to know that Cornell is participating in the series.

THE SECOND SERIES of one-act plays was given by the Cornell Dramatic Club in the Club Theatre, Goldwin Smith Hall, on Friday and Saturday evenings, February 7 and 8. The plays were "The Open Door," by Alfred Sutro, "Dust of the Road," by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, and "Episode," by Arthur Schnitzler. The work of the Dramatic Club, under guidance and advice of members of the Faculty, is wholly in the hands of students, who are responsible not only for the acting but also for the coaching, the providing of properties, and the business management. In these latest plays all four classes in college were represented, three of the actors being freshmen. The club announces its willingness to undertake original plays of merit, whether by members of the Faculty or by undergraduates.

THE EDITORS of the Cornell Annuals have opened their advance subscriptions for the 1919 Cornellian and Class Book. The price under this plan is four dollars, one dollar payable at the time of subscription, the remaining three dollars on publication. Otherwise the book will cost five dollars. There will also be an édition de luxe, sold only by subscription at six dollars. The editors promise, in addition to the traditional contents, a biographical article on Andrew D.

White, by Professor George L. Burr; a picture and sketch of each Cornellian that has died or has been decorated in his war service; and a record of the share borne by the University in the war.

THE MINOR SPORTS COUNCIL has elected two acting managers for the remainder of the year: of lacrosse and tennis, Paul L. Bleakley '20, law, of Yonkers; of soccer, Kenneth C. Esterbrook '20, agriculture, of Newfield. Thad L. Collum '20, civil engineering, of Corsicana, Texas, is assistant manager of wrestling; and Clarence P. Zepp '19, veterinary science, of Troy, captain of the wrestling team.

THREE NEW BOILERS, each of four hundred horsepower, to replace the six smaller boilers which were destroyed by fire on December 20, have been contracted for by the Remington Salt Company. The contractors cannot promise delivery before April 1, so that operation is not likely before June. The new boiler house will probably be of brick. This new equipment means increased power for the trolley lines. Meantime, also, added power may be available from Portland Point, since permission has been asked of the Government to run transmission wires on the poles of the Central New York Southern Railway.

AT A HEARING before Judge W. M. Kent on February 5, twelve of the hard cider cases reported two weeks ago were sent to the April term of County Court. The proprietors of the places visited, filed, through their attorney, formal answers denying the allegations and contending that the seized cider was legal cider. The State Excise Department was represented at the hearing, as well as the local committee which managed the "dry" campaign last spring. A second hearing is set for February 13, when seven of the same proprietors must make answer in the matter of subsequent seizures.

AN ORIENTAL BEAUX-ARTS BALL is planned by the students in the College of Architecture for the evening of Friday, February 28. The college drafting rooms will be elaborately decorated according to a scheme accepted after a competition in which all the students are taking part.

ARMY AND NAVY

Highest Honors for Eggers '19

Sergeant Alan Louis Eggers '19 is one of the forty-one officers and men who have received the Congressional Medal, America's highest military decoration, awarded only by act of Congress, on recommendation of General Pershing, for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action."

The Distinguished Service Cross was awarded to Eggers for rescuing an officer and two men from a damaged American tank, on September 29, and it is for this same act that he received the Congressional Medal. The citation follows:

"Corporal Alan Louis Eggers, Machine Gun Company, 107th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Venduville on September 29. Corporal Eggers, with Sergeant John C. Latham, responded to a call for help from an American tank which was disabled in an open field swept by machine-gun and shell fire. With great gallantry and disregard for personal safety, they carried out a wounded officer and two soldiers to a shell hole near by, after which they returned to the tank, dismounted a Hotchkiss gun, and carried it with them to the shell hole, where they kept the enemy at bay until night, when they returned to our lines, bringing in three wounded men and the gun." Corporal Thomas E. O'Shea, another member of the rescue party, died later, as a result of wounds received in action.

Eggers, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Eggers, of Summit, N. J., has since been promoted to the grade of sergeant. He was a sophomore in the Cornell Law School at the time of his enlistment in April, 1917, and is a member of Chi Phi.

Four Aces Trained Here

The registrar of the U. S. School of Military Aeronautics at Cornell, Ralph H. Denman '13, has checked the list of American aces announced by the War Department, and finds that four of them are graduates of that school. Their names, with the number of machines they brought down, follow: Major James A. Meissner '18, Brooklyn, eight; First Lieutenant Leslie J. Rummell '16, Newark, N. J., seven; Second Lieutenant Howard Burdick, Brooklyn, six; First Lieutenant F. M. Simonds, New York, five.

France Honors Stelle '99

The Paris edition of The New York Herald of December 31 contained a notice of the award of the French War Cross to Major Morton Burr Stelle '99, a member of Psi Upsilon. The notice follows:

"Major Morton Stelle was decorated on Saturday with the Croix de Guerre, the ceremonies taking place in the Grand Place at Metz. Major Stelle was thus honored for his untiring and earnest work since the early days of the war in 1914. He first volunteered his services with the Ambulance Service of Mr. H. H. Harjes and later was on the staff of the Harjes-Norton organization for ambulance work.

"When America came into the war, Major Stelle was the only member of the Harjes-Norton staff, with the exception of Mr. Harjes, who went into the Army. He was made a major in the United States Army Ambulance Service with the French Army in October. Last August he was transferred to the Motor Transport Service on the front as liaison officer with the French.

"Major Stelle resided in Paris for some years before the war and was well known in the artists' colony in Concarneau, on the coast of Brittany, where he painted. Mrs. Stelle has been an earnest war worker, too, since 1914. She was first engaged in hospital work in Concarneau and for two years has been an auxiliary in Colonel Blake's hospital in Paris."

CLEVELAND HEARS KIMBALL

Sixty-five men turned out for the meeting of the Cornell Club of Cleveland at the Hotel Statler on February 6. This was an encouraging gain over January 23, when only twenty-five men were present. Professor Dexter S. Kimball was present as the guest of the club and gave a splendid talk on conditions at Cornell during the war, the work of the S. A. T. C., athletics, and the outlook for the future.

The club will continue the luncheons on Thursdays at 12.15 at Hotel Statler until March 22, when the annual banquet will take place at the University Club.

AN EDITORIAL BOARD has been formed for reviving The Cornell Architect. The editor-in-chief is Erle Tull Seeley '19, of Spokane, Washington. Morrison K. Bailey '20, of Lakewood, Ohio, is business manager; and Clarence W. Dunbar '20, of Cleveland, is managing editor.

Roosevelt Memorial Meeting

Professor Orth Pays High Tribute to Statesman at Bailey Hall Service.

The great auditorium of Bailey Hall was well filled on Sunday afternoon at the memorial service held for the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. President Schurman, who resided, said that Mr. Roosevelt had promised to speak here and had hoped to be able to come about this time. The orator was Professor Samuel P. Orth, who delivered an able address. He began by saying that it was especially fitting that Mr. Roosevelt should be commemorated at an institution founded and organized by men like Ezra Cornell and Andrew D. White, men who represented activity and learning, for both of which Mr. Roosevelt was conspicuous.

He then sketched rapidly the leading events of Mr. Roosevelt's remarkable career, beginning in the Assembly Chamber at Albany and culminating in the Presidential chair at the early age of 43. Then he asked what was the chief quality of the man, which made it inevitable that he should thus impress himself on his generation. It was not eloquence, or wit, or humor, or a gift of paradox, or extraordinary erudition or originality. Rather it was a combination of qualities which the speaker proceeded to enumerate.

The first was courage. He was absolutely fearless, was a born fighter, and preferred short range to long. He never beat about the bush, never needed a book of synonyms, was always direct, definite, and straightforward.

The second was his fine practical common sense. He lived in the present rather than in the future. Though an able historian, he drew surprisingly little from the past. For him the problems of the present were to be settled on their own merits, and not by reference to precedents or the examples of the past. Moreover, in the best sense of the word he was an opportunist. Many disappointments came to him in his political career, but he only smiled and clinched his fists. Many offices came to him unsought and undesired, but he filled them conscientiously and efficiently. As Civil Service commissioner he fought a noble battle with entrenched privilege and powerful interests, and won.

The third quality was his versatility and variety of interests. Every variety of character interested him; every kind of literature had its attraction; he was an omnivorous reader and this kept his mind fresh and vigorous. He had more bitter fights with Congress than any other President except Jackson and Johnson, and yet came through without being jaded or fatigued, and without losing his noble optimism.

Finally, there was the ability to inspire and retain public confidence in him as a leader. At the base of this was of course his sterling character and his reputation for honesty, sincerity of purpose, and enormous industry.

Such was the notable combination of qualities which marked him for leadership. The speaker summed up Mr. Roosevelt's achievement by saying that he accomplished a twofold mission: first, the discovery of a method of regulating great corporations and making them amenable to the corrective of public opinion; and second, the reconstruction of political parties so that their influence on the country would be indirect rather than direct. He launched, moreover, a conservation program which will long continue to be a monument to his far-sighted sagacity. He brought to an end the old policy of individual laissez-faire and introduced cooperation and collective effort. His ideas of international responsibility and of colonial policy were novel, but sound, and their influence was far-reaching.

Even his enemies have hastened to do him honor. His fame will increase with the years; and tradition will preserve and magnify the memory of this King Arthur of democracy.

The program of the service follows:

Organ—"Funeral March on the Death of a Hero"-----Beethoven

Invocation by the Rev. J. W. A. Stewart, dean of the Rochester Theological Seminary.

Anthem—"Souls of the Righteous"-----T. Tertius Noble

Memorial Address by Professor Samuel P. Orth

Hymn—"America"

Organ—"Marche Héroïque"-----Saint-Saens

WITH THE ISSUE for April, The Cornell Law Quarterly will resume publication. The editor-in-chief is Louis W. Dawson '19, of Boonton, N. J., and the business manager, James Allen Ewing '19, of Youngstown, Ohio. The Faculty editor is Professor Charles K. Burdick.

DIED IN THE SERVICE

Harold B. Merz '14

Lieutenant Harold Baker Merz, of the 93d Aero Squadron, died from injuries received in an airplane accident on January 2. No details of the accident were given in the Government message announcing his death.

Merz was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merz, 6825 State Road, Philadelphia, and was twenty-six years old. He entered Cornell in 1910 from the North East Manual Training School, Philadelphia, receiving the degree of M. E. in 1914. He was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa, Kappa Beta Phi, the Savage Club, the Sunday Night Club, Mermaid, Undine, and Bench and Board. In his senior year, he was one of the cheer leaders, and was president of the Cornell Masque. He was a member of the Masque cast in both his junior and senior years.

Before entering the service he was employed by the Philadelphia Electric Company. He enlisted in the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps in May, 1917, at Essington, Pa., and was sent to the ground school at Cornell, sailing for France in August, 1917, as one of the honor men of his squadron. In France, he was commissioned and assigned to a pursuit squadron, operating a Spad machine. While on duty in the St. Mihiel sector on September 25, he was wounded in the right leg, but managed to fly over fifteen miles of German territory before he returned. The wound, however, was serious and required two months of treatment. On December 28, he wrote his father that he was "having the time of his life," and that he was about to take his machine to Le Bains, journeying from there to the coast, where he would embark for home. Mr. Merz believes that his son's fatal accident was due to bad weather encountered in the final flight.

Besides his parents, Lieutenant Merz leaves a brother, Lieutenant Charles Frederick Merz '12, of the Air Service, who has recently returned from France.

Ellsworth H. Dederer '16

First Lieutenant Ellsworth Holman Dederer is reported to have been killed in action in France.

Dederer was born on March 22, 1894, at Long Branch, N. J. He prepared for college at Horace Mann High School, New York, and entered the College of Agriculture in 1912, receiving the degree of B. S. in 1916. He was a member of Phi Gamma Delta and the Masque, being president of the latter in his senior year.

Immediately after his graduation he went to work in the bond department of the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York. He attended the officers' training camp at Plattsburg, where he was commissioned a first lieutenant, and later was assigned to Camp Dix, N. J., where he was stationed until he went to France last summer. He was a member of the cast of "The Ghost of Jerry Bundler," one of a series of short plays given in the Camp Dix Auditorium last spring. He was attached to Company E, 311th Infantry.

Lieutenant Dederer was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Dederer, 549 West 113th Street, New York.

Horace Baker Forman, 3d, '18

Horace Baker Forman, 3d, of Kitchawan, N. Y., who was a member of the Class of 1918 in the College of Agriculture, died in France on October 23, 1918, of injuries received in an airplane accident.

Forman was born on March 4, 1894, at Baltimore, Md., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Baker Forman, jr. He prepared at Haverford School, Haverford, Pa., entering Cornell in 1913. He became a member of the Rifle Team in his sophomore year, and the following year was elected captain of the team, holding the position for two years. He was treasurer of the Cornell Rifle Club in his junior year, becoming president the next year.

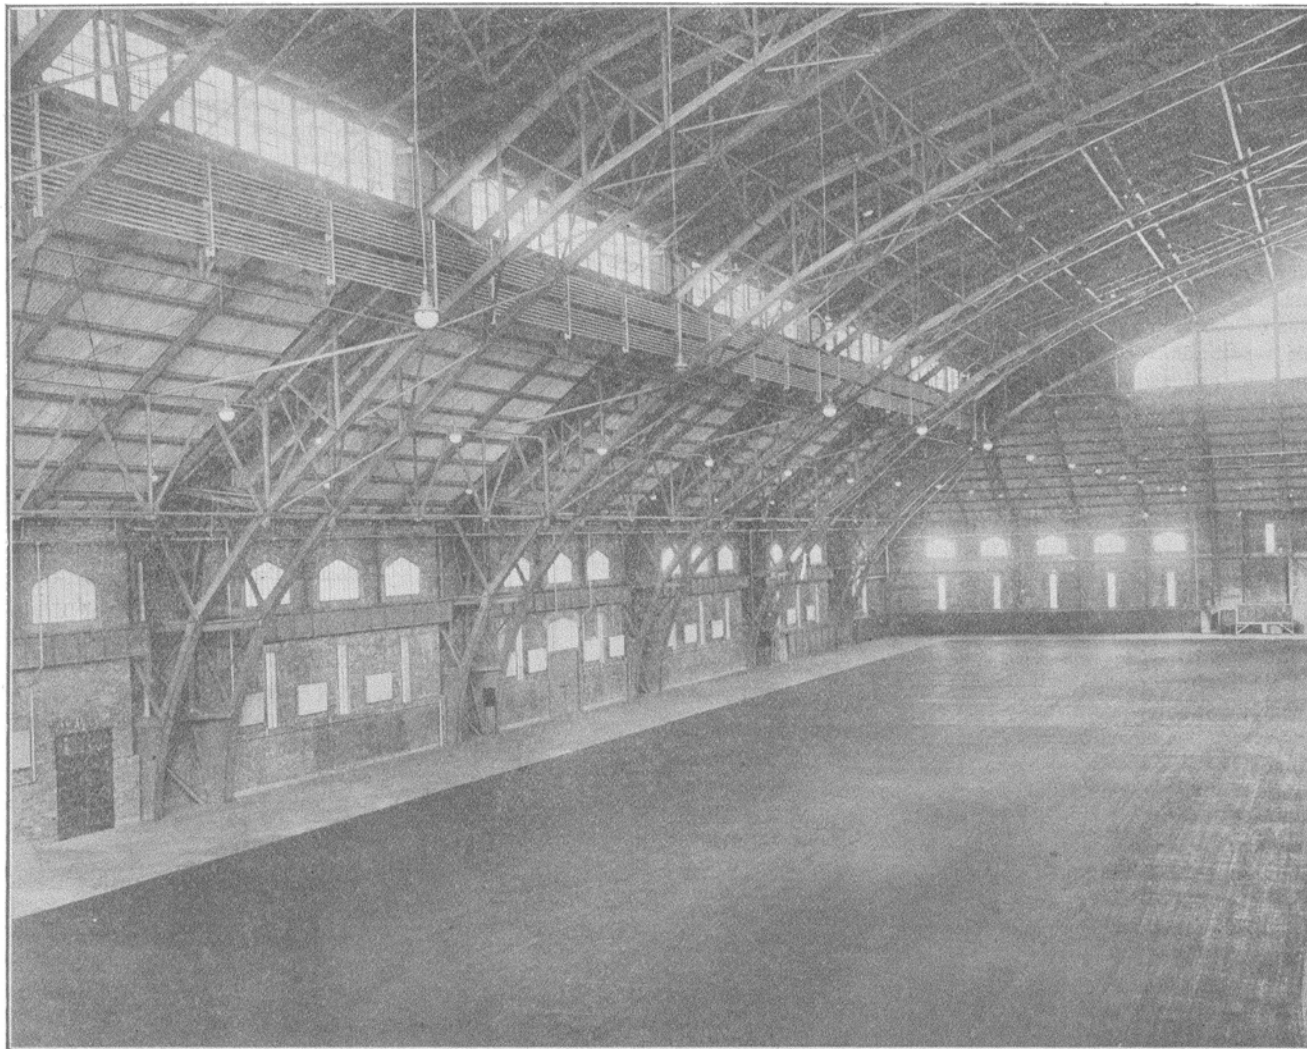

He was one of a large party of Cornell volunteers in the American Field Service in France who sailed from New York on April 14, 1917. He served in the First Transport Section (camion service) until September of that year, when he enlisted in the American Air Service.

Francis M. Roberts '18

Second Lieutenant Francis Murray Roberts, who was a member of the class of 1918 in Sibley College, was killed in a mid-air collision at Payne Field, West Point, Miss., on June 20, 1918.

Roberts was born at Rome, N. Y., on June 15, 1895, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. William Roberts, and entered Cornell from the Watertown High School in 1914.

He was a graduate of the aviation ground school at the University of Texas, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Service not long before his death.

THE NEW DRILL HALL

The photograph of the new Drill Hall, in this issue, taken for us by J. P. Troy, is the first view of the interior of the completed Drill Hall that has been published. Few of the students have seen the inside of the hall because during its occupancy by the aviation school civilians were rigidly excluded. Prior to its use by the Government the floor was not laid, and a huge pile of dirt and many construction engines prevented the taking of a perfect picture.

The wood floor is 225'x362'. The concrete rim is 21' 7" wide. This gives a wood floor of approximately sixty thousand square feet, and a total wood and concrete floor of nearly eighty-five thousand square feet. A better idea of the size of this room, however, will perhaps be gained from the statement that the black part of the blackboard to the left of the center door is 4'x12'. The doors are twelve feet high with twelve feet opening, so that a company can go through it in column of squads.

The Drill Hall will first be used for non-military purposes when the varsity basketball team plays Columbia on February 15.

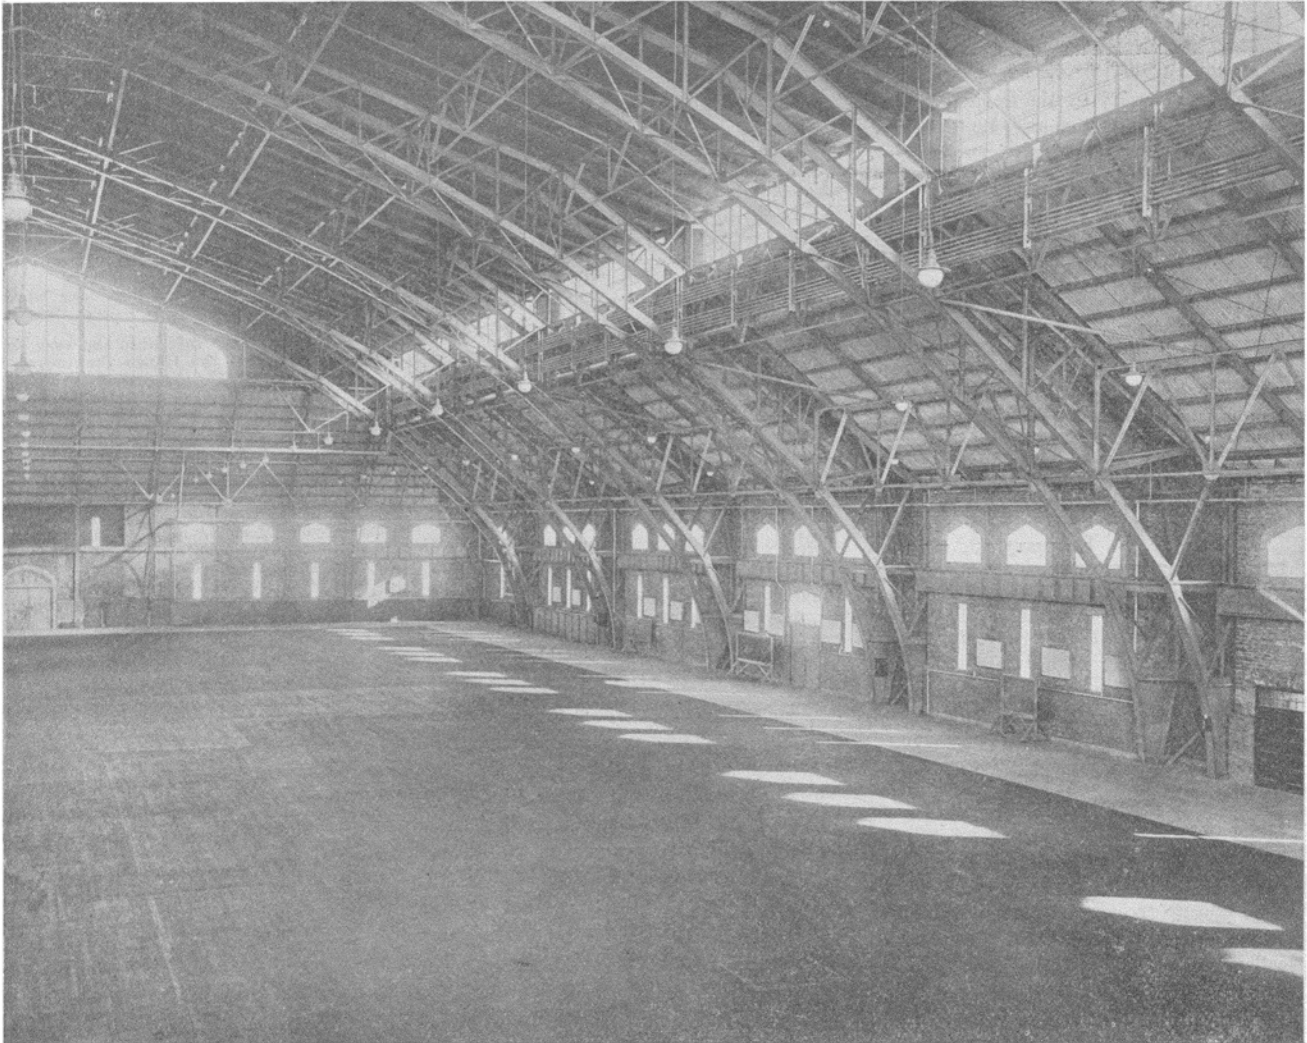

A house-warming will probably be held some time early in March, under the auspices of the Student Council, for the benefit of intercollegiate athletics.

AT THE NEW YORK CLUB

The Cornell University Club of New York welcomed two of Cornell's returned heroes and one of Harvard's at a luncheon at the club house, 65 Park Avenue, Saturday, January 8. Major James A. (Jimmy) Meissner '18, Cornell's premier ace, and Captain Douglas Campbell, of Harvard, who had just returned on the Adriatic, gave short interesting talks, modest regarding their own actions but quite willing to tell interesting anecdotes about their comrades. Both had served in France over nineteen months with the famous "Hat in the Ring" or "Gimp-er" squadron, the 147th, of which Meissner was put in command when promoted to a majority in November. They with Captain Rickenbacher had been serving with the Army of Occupation stationed near Coblenz when special orders called them all back to this country. After a series of royal receptions in New York they left on Monday of this week to report for duty at Washington.

Captain R. E. (Buddy) Ryerson '18, back after a year abroad with the Trench Mortars, told of the experiences of these men, who belonged to the most hated branch of the Army (hated because they always drew German fire), but still a branch which they "couldn't get along without," and which served valiantly notwithstanding its name of the "Gas Pipe Artillery." Ryerson went to France in September, 1917, was with the first American troops to get into action, and served until July, 1918, when he was recalled to assist in training a new division. He went over again in September and has just returned.

HE WAS MISTAKEN

In a list of clubs recently sent out by the secretary of the Associate Alumni, the Cornell Club of Philadelphia was inadvertently listed among those clubs "not known to be active." The ALUMNI NEWS is glad to publish the following correction by an officer of the club.

"Who said Philadelphia was slow? Let him come forward and get the real facts. On the evening of January 30 the Cornell Club of Philadelphia held its second dinner of the winter at the Princeton-Cornell club house with an attendance of about seventy-five. H. E. Sibson '03 opened the services and turned them over to Lieut. Col. Clarence F. Hirshfeld, whom all the youngish grads remember as one of the best gloom dispellers that ever hung around Ezra's little old academy. Late Schoch '05 responded to 'Bull'; he was full of his subject. Werner Goetz '09 impersonated the goat; Eddie Fitch '97, Captain R. E. Bishop '09, R. T. Mickle '92, and Stew Wheelan '15 also contributed to the wit and wisdom of the occasion. H. H. MacHose '13 did things at the piano; Lee Warner '03 and W. E. Hawkes uplifted their voices in song. C. C. Kuo '18 did some slight-of-hand stuff that made one gasp for breath. All of which shows that the fellow who said those harsh words about Philadelphia was entirely mistaken.

"Alumni in the vicinity of Philadelphia who are not members of the club would best apply early. The S. R. O. sign may go up at any time."

A PROBLEM IN CONDUCT

The Boston Evening Transcript, in its department called "The Quadwangle," under date of January 31, thus comments on a recent article in the ALUMNI NEWS entitled "Thirst in a Dry Town":

"What does the ALUMNI NEWS mean by the statement: 'Though much is taken, much abides' Is this a formal announcement to the alumni that certain citizens of Ithaca, certain Cornellians, have laid up treasure against the drought and that they will open their well-stored cellars to the returning graduates? If so, well, and good; if not, an explanation is in order. Let no man be in a position to say that he was lured to Alma Mater by false promises and under false pretenses!" The Quadwangler then goes on to tell of a perfectly good class reunion he had attended in a town that had gone dry because the early arrivals had used up all the potable alcohol.

We can hold out no hope for the thirsty. "That which abides" referred to the spiritual rather than to the spiritual. The town is dry as punk. The Alma Mater referred to is not a brand of beer, but an institution, and its upholders justly maintain that it is enough of an institution to provide entertainment, refreshment, and edification sufficient for an interesting time to any one who has ever had four years of "education in any subject," without resort to that which the old school hygienes characterized as "turning the muscles to fat, and causing the nerves and brain to decay."

A PROPHECY

An alumnus of antiquarian tastes has unearthed from the 1901 class prophecy the paragraph concerning Major Straight and sends it to us for insertion in the ALUMNI NEWS. Though the prophet, James H. Massey, did not get the name of the paper quite right, still The New Republic is perhaps a fair equivalent; and Straight's connection with high finance and with large humanitarian movements is more or less distinctly pointed out. The prophecy:

'After designing the marble palaces which will make Cornell a university after his own heart, Willard Dickerman Straight will build the most stupendous skyscraper in New York City, the home of The Twentieth Century, the first newspaper to be issued by the Harmsworth Journalism Trust Company; Straight will be appointed editor and artistic director of the new paper and he will immediately cause the abolition of all the clotheslines which now disgrace the back verandas of the city's tenements.'

THE CHICAGO LUNCHEON

The luncheon of the Cornell Club of Chicago on February 6, at the City Club, was attended by about forty, and was voted a good meeting. Lieut. Ernest M. Hemingway, of the American Red Cross and an honorary member of the Italian Army, spoke on "Experiences on the Italian Front." In the great Italian offensive, in which he took part, Lieut. Hemingway received 237 wounds. His fine condition to-day speaks volumes for the efficiency of modern surgery. Lieutenant Harold Wilder '08, who has just returned from France, is expected as speaker for the thirteenth.

DETROIT'S BANQUET

The Cornell Association of Michigan will hold its annual banquet at the Statler Hotel, Detroit, on February 21. It will be a "Victory Banquet," and its special purpose is to honor the Cornell men who have returned from the service. Professor Kimball will attend and describe present conditions at Ithaca and Cornell's share in the war. The club also plans to have some films of Cornell doings.

KIMBALL IN CINCINNATI

The Cincinnati Club is planning to hold its annual banquet on February 22. It will be largely a memorial to Dr. White. There will be speeches, it is expected, by Messrs. Buchwalter and Hendryx, both of '69, and by Professor Kimball. Judge Buchwalter holds the oldest diploma held by a living Cornellian.

A Sequence of Four Sonnets

By Thomas S. Jones, Jr., '04

Sanctuary

How may one hold these days of wonderment
And blight them into stillness with a song,
Ere as a fleeting dream they pass along
Into the waste of lovely things forspent;
How may one keep what the Great Powers have sent,
The prayers fulfilled more beautiful and strong
Than any thought could fashion into song
Of all the rarest harmonies inblent?

There is an Altar where they may be laid
And sealed in Faith within its sacred care—

Here they are safe unto the very end;
For these are of the things that never fade,
Brought from the City that is built four-square
The gifts of Him who is the Perfect Friend.

The Last Spring

The first glad token of the Spring is here
That bears each time one miracle the more,
For in the sunlight is the golden ore,
The joyous promise of a waking year;
And in that promise all clouds disappear
And youth itself comes back as once before,
For only dreams are real in April's store
When buds are bursting and the skies are clear.

at your touch the sleeping land
Quickens to rapture, and a rosy flame
Is the old signal of awakening;
Thus in a mystery I understand
The deepest meaning of your lovely name—
How it will be in that perpetual Spring!

The Garden

Behind the pinions of the Seraphim,
Whose wings flame out upon the swinging spheres
There is a Voice that speaks the numbered years
Until that day when all comes back to Him;
Behind the faces of the Cherubim
Whose smiles of love are seen through broken tears
There is a Face that every creature fears,
The Face of Love no veil may ever dim.
O Ange's of Glad Laughter and of Song,
Your voices sound so near the little wall
Can scarcely hide the trees that bend and nod;
Unbar the gate for you have waited long
To show the Garden that was made for all—
Where a'll is safe beneath the Smile of God.

The Path of the Stars

Down through the spheres that chant the Name of One
Who is the Law of Beauty and of Light
He came and as He came the waiting Night
Shook with the gladness of a Day begun;
And as He came He said: Thy Will Be Done
On Earth; and all His vibrant Words were white
And glistening with silver and their might
Was of the glory of a rising sun.

Unto the Stars sang out His Living Words
White and with silver and their rhythmic sound
Was as a mighty symphony unfurled:
And back from out the Stars like homing birds
They fell in love upon the sleeping ground
And were forever in a wakened world.

Biography of R. H. Williams Sketch of Nominee for Alumni Trustee Papers Filed in January.

The list of nominees for the three positions on the Board of Trustees that are to be filled in June remains stationery for the present. E. N. Sanderson '87, Major L. L. Seaman '72, G. J. Tansey '88, and R. H. Williams '95 have been announced as candidates, and sketches of all except Mr. Williams have appeared in the ALUMNI NEWS during the past month.

The following biographical sketch of Mr. Williams has been furnished by the secretary of the University:

Roger H. Williams was born at Ithaca on July 27, 1874, a son of the late Professor Henry Shaler Williams and a grandson of Josiah Butler Williams, one of the original Cornell Trustees. He graduated from the Ithaca High School in 1891 and from Cornell, with the degree of Ph. B., in 1895, and then took graduate work in finance and economics at Yale, where he received the degree of M. A. From New York University he has received the degrees of LL.B. and J.D.

After traveling abroad, he passed nearly two years in the office of his uncle, the late George R. Williams, then president of the First National Bank of Ithaca and chairman of the finance committee of the Cornell Board of Trustees. He then took up banking work in New York City, first with N. W. Harris & Co. (now Harris, Forbes & Co.) and afterward with N. W. Halsey & Co., having charge of that firm's legal and corporation work when he resigned. In 1914 he opened offices of his own, making a specialty of the handling of estates and trusts. He is now the head of the law firm of Williams, Glover & Washburn, with offices at 70 Fifth Avenue, New York.

During his business career Mr. Williams has been an executive officer in numerous corporations, including the Crane Valve Company, Bridgeport, Conn.; the Union Gas Company, Spokane; the Montgomery Traction Company, the Klinger Company, and the Manchurian Development Company. In the last-named company he succeeded the late Willard Straight as chairman of the board of directors.

In college Mr. Williams was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and was a Woodford orator. He was a member of Kappa Alpha, the Era board, the Glee Club, and the Masque, and was president of the Christian Association.

He has retained his interest in Y. M.

C. A. work since he left college, and for the last several years has been chairman in charge of the entire student Y. M. C. A. work in the United States and Canada. He is serving on the executive and financial committees of the National War Work Council of the association, and as chairman of his local legal advisory board.

He is a life member of the Cornell University Club of New York and has served many years on its board of governors. For about five years he was chairman of the Cornell Community Service Committee of the club, which was organized to make Cornell men in New York City and vicinity acquainted with opportunities for service.

Mr. Williams is the representative of the Class of 1895 on the Cornellian Council.

During the war he has been an officer of the 9th Coast Artillery Corps, New York Guard.

He married, in 1901, Miss Frances Page Coleman, a member of the Page family of Virginia, and has four sons. His home is in the Washington Square district of New York. He has been for almost twenty years an elder in the Old First Presbyterian Church on lower Fifth Avenue. He is a member of the Bar Association of New York, the Academy of Political Science, the American Economic Association, the executive committee of the Civil Service Reform Association, the Asiatic Association, and the Century, Bankers', and University Clubs of New York City.

ATHLETICS

Fifth Basketball Victory

The basketball team continued its winning streak Monday night by defeating the five of the University of Buffalo at Buffalo by the score of 30 to 11. This was Cornell's fifth straight victory. The first game with an Intercollegiate League team will be played Saturday night in the new Drill Hall with Columbia the opposing team.

Cornell had no difficulty in defeating Buffalo, taking the lead almost at the beginning of the contest and maintaining a comfortable margin all the way. Molinet again led in the scoring, with five field goals. Ortnier threw four baskets, but his foul shooting was not up to standard. The summary:

CORNELL 30	BUFFALO 11
Ortnier -----	Underer
Stewart -----	Cohen
Molinet -----	Roberts
Kendall -----	Goldenson
Sidman -----	Leicht
	Right Forward
	Left Forward
	Center

	Left Guard

Field Goals—Cornell: Molinet 5, Ortnier 4, Stewart 2, Kendall 2; Buffalo, Long 2, Goldenson, Roberts.

Foul Goals—Cornell: Ortnier 4 out of 9; Buffalo: Cohen 1 out of 4, Roberts 2 out of 2.

Substitutions, Cornell, Sullivan for Sidman; Buffalo, Long for Underer.

St. Lawrence Defeated

The basketball team had no trouble defeating St. Lawrence University last Wednesday night by the score of 34 to 11. There was no doubt of the outcome at any time, and toward the end of the game the Cornell offense had the visitors completely bewildered.

Chances for a close game seemed bright for a few minutes after the opening of play when the ball zig-zagged up and down the court, but Cornell finally got away and was soon leading by a comfortable margin. The end of the half saw the score 15 to 4 in favor of the home team. St. Lawrence opened strong in the second period but the rally was short lived and then the Cornellians proceeded to pile up the score. Ortnier and Molinet were again the chief factors in Cornell's scoring, the center netting seven field goals, while Ortnier threw 10 out of 11 foul goals. The passing of the team was an improvement over that of the Bucknell game and the basket throwing fairly accurate. The summary:

All-Day Rowing Program

An all day practice schedule, starting at 9 a. m. and running through until 6 p. m., has been inaugurated by the rowing coaches in order to accommodate the big squad that has reported for varsity and freshman rowing. Nearly 250 men have registered for this sport, and the congestion in the crew room late afternoons was so great that it was impossible to give many of the men a chance to use the rowing machines. There are only 32 such machines available.

Under the new arrangement Coach Courtney goes up to the Armory at 9 o'clock and remains in charge until one, and then John Hoyle takes up the work. Candidates are urged to arrange their rowing schedules at such hours. It has been found that a number of men have a free hour at noon time, and others are coming in at odd times. The coaches desire to give every man a chance to row before selecting varsity and freshman combinations.

It is probable that within a short time Coach Courtney will have had an opportunity of sizing up all of the material and some sort of permanent combinations may be expected soon.

1922 Wins on Track

The freshman track team defeated the sophomores in an underclass meet last Saturday afternoon by the score of 55 1-2 to 32 1-2. The meet was well attended and the competition keen. The running of John, Minar, and Carpenter for the freshmen was among the features.

Varsity track practice is continuing with satisfactory results. The squad has been strengthened by the return of K. H. Mayer '20, who finished in second place in the half mile run at the Intercollegiate meet last year and is one of the most promising short distance runners Coach Moakley has developed in recent years. H. E. Shackleton, captain of last year's team and place winner in hundred yard dash and the broad jump at the Intercollegiates, has also begun regular practice.

BREVITIES

A GENERAL ASSEMBLY of all students in agriculture was held last week in the interests of wider acquaintance and common helpfulness throughout the college. Dean Mann was the principal speaker.

THE SAGE CHAPEL preacher for February 16 will be the Rev. Dr. John D. Adam, of the Hartford Theological Seminary.

THE FRONT PAGE of the Cornell Sun is again enlivened each morning by a cartoon, about three columns square, by J. N. Darling, known as "Ding," who contributes to several newspapers, and whose work as it appears in the Sun is a feature of The New York Tribune.

MacCabe '20, of Brooklyn; and two acting managers of freshman teams: Harold J. Hettinger '20, of Freeport, Ill., track; and Alger E. Hunkin '20, of Cleveland, football.
