AGRICULTURAL COUNCIL

The Agricultural Council will meet at the Station on Friday. This group is composed of representatives from the college, agricultural business groups, and farm organizations. The council meets twice a year to review the program of the College of Agriculture and to help the college orient its program to meet the needs of agriculture in New York State. Included in Friday's meeting will be demonstrations of research being done on foods at Ithaca and Geneva.

CANNERS AND FREEZERS MEETING

The College Irrigation Committee and the Agricultural Committee of the New York State Canners and Freezers Association met in Jordan Hall on Wednesday. The meeting was called to review irrigation research here and at Ithaca.

ATTENDING MEETINGS IN MILWAUKEE

Drs. Atkin and Peck will participate in the 4th National Bean Improvement Cooperative Conference in Milwaukee on the 16th of November. Dr. Atkin will be moderator for a panel discussion during the morning session. Both scientists will be on several panels during the day.

SYMPATHY

Ethel S. Mack died October 16 at her home in Corvallis, Oregon after a long illness. She was 85. We extend our sympathy to Gil and the family.

ATTENDING ALBANY CONFERENCES

Dr. Gambrell attended a conference in Albany with representatives of the Plant Industry Bureau and the Quarantine Committee of the New York State Nurserymen last Monday. He will have another conference there next Monday with Federal and state workers on the European chafer program in New York State.

TRAINING SCHOOL

The County Agent's Vegetable Training School will be held in Ithaca on November 7th thru 10th. Drs. Atkin, Vittum, and Peck are on the program and other Vegetable Crops members will attend.

NEW APPOINTMENT

John Atkinson has received an appointment as Laboratory Assistant in the Entomology Department under a National Institute of Health grant.

PEA IMPROVEMENT CONFERENCE

Dr. Marx and Dr. Schroeder will attend the 5th National Pea Improvement Conference in Milwaukee next week. Dr. Marx will present a paper.

HOUSEWARMING

The Vegetable Crops Department held a surprise housewarming for the Shannons last Saturday night at their new home in Phelps.

RADIO INTERVIEW

Leo Klein's taped talk on "Different Apple Varieties on the Market and their Usefulness to the Consumer" which came over the WHEC Rochester Station last week wasn't exactly as advertised. It started out fine -- the announcer gave the title of the talk plus some background on Leo -- then turned on the tape and listeners heard Otis Curtis's taped talk on "Apple Maturity Studies". Midway of the program the announcer broke in to say that "Due to technical difficulties we are unable to present Mr. Klein's talk" etc, etc, etc. Leo Swears that they were using his name as a "bell-wether" to get a lot of listeners. Leo's talk will probably be used sometime in the near future.

MAIL BAG

Dr. Chapman received a card from John Schadt of the Poughkeepsie Lab. John is in California on his annual travel "binge".

NOTE

Missing --- the medium size brush point pen for the Wrice pen set belonging to the Food Analysis Laboratory. Anyone knowing the whereabouts, call Joanne Whitcombe.

News is rather scarce this week. Plant Pathology and Entomology are involved in the Insecticide-Fungicide Conference in Ithaca and as a result, Entomologists and Plant Pathologists are hard to find.

Dr. Atkin and Beck will participate in the 4th National Pea Improvement Conference in Milwaukee on the 10th of November. Dr. Atkin will be moderator for a panel discussion during the morning session. Both scientists will be on several panels during the day.

Michael S. Mack died October 16 at her home in Corvallis, Oregon after a long illness. She was 85. We extend our sympathy to all and the family.

Dr. Campbell attended a conference in Albany with representatives of the Plant Industry Bureau and the Quarantine Committee of the New York State Horticultural Society. He will have another conference there next Monday with Federal and State workers on the European chestnut program in New York State.

The County Agent's Vegetable Training School will be held in Ithaca on November 14th and 15th. Dr. Atkin, Dr. Beck and other Vegetable Crops members will attend.
