IBM Makes $8 Million Equipment Grant to Cornell

With Law School Dean Peter W. Martin at the keyboard, a sample of the computers to be provided by a major equipment grant to the university is put through its paces. Standing, from left, are Caroyl Reid, I.B.M. account executive for academic informational systems; Albert R. DeFlorio, I.B.M. manager of special studies and academic projects; and Gordon L. Galloway, Cornell's director of academic computing.

Program Is Named 'Project Ezra'

A major equipment grant from I.B.M. Corp. to Cornell will permit faculty members from diverse disciplines to explore the utility of current and advanced computer workstations in classrooms and laboratories.

Valued at approximately $8 million, the grant will provide support for a program named Project Ezra, in honor of the founder of the university.

"Cornell views Project Ezra as both a commitment and an opportunity," said University President Frank Rhodes. "We will join a small number of leading institutions in developing advanced and innovative computing applications that support instruction and research."

According to Rhodes, who accepted the grant on Monday, July 2, from I.B.M. Senior Vice President Jack D. Kuehler, Project Ezra has three other goals:

- to develop broad faculty familiarity with the power of micro-based scholars' workstations;
- to investigate ways of creating an integrated computing environment containing networked workstations and mainframes;
- and to provide direction to other institutions considering the large-scale infusion of computing into instruction and research.

Over the three-year period of the grant, faculty members from the humanities, social sciences, professional schools, physical sciences, and engineering will be involved in software development, according to Gordon Galloway, director of academic computing for the university.

"Faculty members will create new instructional software to function in a network containing microcomputers and mainframes," Galloway said. "They will also experiment with utilization of powerful personal computers in research."

Proprietary rights to the software developed using the granted equipment will remain with the university.

More than 100 faculty members have submitted proposals for developing software appropriate to their courses. These proposals can be classified into broad categories such as: analyzing and understanding complex phenomena, computer-aided design, computer simulation of laboratory experiments, computer-assisted instruction, expert systems, testing hypotheses, retrieving information, and analyzing data.

"Many of the proposed projects involve more than one of these categories," Galloway noted. "Collectively they cover a very broad spectrum of studies and will test the limits of applicability of both current and future technologies in microcomputers."

It is expected that individual projects will go through three phases. In the first phase, appropriate workstations will be distributed to faculty, who will develop instructional applications. In the second phase, pilot installations will be established to permit students access to materials developed. For these pilot installations, modest or experimental networking links may be in place. In the third phase, larger clusters of workstations with appropriate networking connections will be installed to conduct full-scale testing.

Some faculty will begin projects this summer, but most of the grant activity will begin in the fall.

The university provost will determine, within the constraints of the grant, how to allocate the approximately 500 units to Cornell's schools and colleges. Individual deans will establish the priority of projects within their schools and colleges. The vice provost for computing will be responsible to the provost for achieving overall project objectives. Individual projects will be directed by one or more faculty members, responsible to their deans for completing project objectives successfully.

Summer at Cornell: A Wide Range of Events

A wide range of music, lectures, and theater productions planned to appeal to a variety of audiences is scheduled over the next three months by the University's Division of Summer Session, Extramural Courses, and Related Programs. All are free and open to the public, and many are related to this summer's theme, "The American Experiment."

A total of 63 events and activities, 18 of them musical, will be presented in settings as diverse as Statler Hall Auditorium, Anabel Taylor Hall Courtyard, and the A.D. White Garden.

The program devotes Monday evenings to classical music; Tuesdays at noon to Shakespeare lectures; Tuesday evenings to jazz, country, and folk music in outdoor settings; Wednesday evenings to formal lectures; Thursday noons to brown bag lectures and evenings to music and lectures; and Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights to Shakespeare.

This year will be the second Summer Shakespeare Festival at Cornell. "The Comedy of Errors" opens July 5; "Romeo and Juliet" on July 13. Subsequently, they will run in repertory every Thursday through Saturday until closing Aug. 4.

The Monday concerts will be held from July 9 through Aug. 6 at 8:15 p.m. Four of the five performances will be in Statler Auditorium: pianist Peter Takas on July 9; violinists John Hsu, Selina Carter and Brent Wissick with harpsichordist Dooley Kiefer on July 16; fortepianist Malcolm Bilson on July 23; and cellist Csaba Onczay and pianist Katalin Komlos, both of Budapest, on Aug. 6. The July 30 concert will be an organ recital with Acting University Organist Stephen May in Sage Chapel.

Tuesdays at noon, Shakespeare brown bag lunchtime lectures planned to complement the Shakespeare Festival on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, will be given in the A.D. White Garden. Remaining are "Shakespeare and Combat" with M. Boyan, July 17; "Acting Shakespeare" with C. Marcroft and H. Palmer, July 24; and "Directing Shakespeare" with A. Cronin, July 31.

The Tuesday concerts on the Arts Quadrangle are at 7 p.m., and they began and will end with performances by the Tompkins County Horseflies on July 3 and July 31. In between, there is a July 10 performance of "Songs from the Golden Land: The American-Jewish Encounter," with mezzo soprano Martha Birnbaum and harpist Barbara Dechario; "The Jazz Age: Lovers and Losers" with Peggy Haine and the Lowdown Alligator Jazz band on July 17; and an evening of country music with Desperado on July 24. On Wednesday, Aug. 1, harpist Myra Kovary will give a concert at 4:15 p.m. in the A.D. White Garden.

Lectures at 8:15 p.m. are set for Wednesdays. All will be in Statler Hall Auditorium except the July 18th lecture, which will be given in Bailey Hall. The schedule:

—Isaac Kramnick, professor of government at Cornell, "The American Experiment in Church-State Relations: The 18th Century Perspective," July 4;

—L. Pearce Williams, the John Stambaugh Professor of the History of Science at Cornell, "What's New? The Impact of the Discovery of America on Western Thought," July 11;

—Irving Younger, senior partner in the Washington, D.C., law firm of Williams & Connolly, "The Trial of Alger Hiss and Its Place in American History," July 18;

—Robert Barker, University Provost, "Biotechnology and Genetic Engineering as an Aspect of American Experimentalism," July 25;

—Yervant Termian, professor of astronomy at Cornell, "Exploring the Universe with Giant Radiotelescopes," August 1.

Five more brown bag lunchtime lectures, most related to the theme "The American Experiment," are planned for Thursdays at noon in 202 Uris Hall. Caryl Emerson, assistant professor of Russian literature at Cornell, "Russian Views of America During the Current Freeze: Recent Impressions," July 5; Nina Bassuk, assistant professor of floriculture and ornamental horticulture, "Horticulture Takes to the Streets — or It's Tough to be a Tree in New York City," July 12; "The Future of American Agriculture: Energy and Natural Resources," Professor David Pimentel, Department of Entomology, July 19; Work in Progress: "Hoping and Wishing: Their Role in Psychotherapy," with Professor Ronald Mack, and "Migraine Headaches" with Professor David Ricks, July 26; and "Acting Affirmatively: Admissions, Jobs and the American Dream," Glenn Altschuler, Assistant Dean, College of Arts and Sciences, Aug. 2.

A variety of events is scheduled for

Five, Count 'em Five, Jazz Bands Will Perform on Arts Quad Sunday

Five traditional dixieland jazz bands will perform on the Arts Quadrangle July 8 from 12:30 p.m. "until exhaustion," according to its organizer, Peggy Haine, of Cornell's Summer Session office.

The event is free and open to the public. Food and beverages will be sold at booths on the Arts Quad. The festival will be held in Cornell's Bailey Hall in case of bad weather.

Haine, who will perform with the Lowdown Alligator Jass Band from Ithaca, said the show is "in keeping with an international revival of interest in early jazz...and to share the joys of America's own music."

She said the other bands scheduled are "Buffalo's Morgan Street Stompers, featuring the virtuoso trumpet work of powerhouse Dean Lilac; Bourbon Street Parade, a versatile and contagiously enthusiastic group from Rochester; banjo wizard Charlie Mussen's I Love Jazz Band from Tonawanda, and the Jazz Band Ball of Binghamton."

The Lowdown Alligator Jass Band will play styles ranging from New Orleans funeral dirges to Chicago dance hall favorites to Harlem's bawdiest rent party fantasies, Haine said.

Traditional jazz is no stranger to the Finger Lakes area. Nearly 20 years ago the annual Bix Beiderbecke Birthday Bash began, a March festival honoring the jazz giant. In September, the area hosts thousands of guests for the Schuyler County Jazz Festival.

Jazz began in New Orleans late in the 19th century, Haine said, and its roots are in African polyrhythms, German marching band music, blues and ragtime. It developed and flourished in New Orleans, then spread in the 1920's to Kansas City, Chicago, St. Louis and New York.

Comment On Ted Wood's Contributions

Editor, The Chronicle

June 30th marked Theodore C. Wood's official retirement from Cornell (along with that of many other devoted, and noted servants, I'm certain). Writing as an alumnus and co worker however, I want to make sure that full public recognition is given to his achievements over the past 10 years in developing, implementing and maintaining a fair and equitable Cornell patent and licensing policy designed 1) to encourage early disclosure of Cornell owned inventions and a prompt decision on whether or not to file for U.S. patent protection 2) to afford proper financial recognition to Cornell inventors and to the future research efforts of their academic units through the sharing of earned royalties 3) to encourage the licensing of Small Businesses (and in particular "spin off" groups in Ithaca 4) to

Credit Union Office Reopens; Fumes Obnoxious, but not Toxic

The East Hill office of the Cornell Federal Credit Union reopened Monday morning, after fumes from renovation work in a nearby office prompted a closing Friday, June 29.

Fumes from carpet adhesive, although non-toxic, caused nausea and irritation after entering the credit union office through a common ventilation system, according to Office of Environmental Health Assistant Director Judith A. Crawford.

"There is no evidence to indicate that the substances will cause adverse health effects," Crawford noted in a July 2 report to Cornell units in the East Hill complex.

"It is common to have a buildup of odors such as we experienced when new carpet has not been aired out and the room is not given additional ventilation," Crawford said. Smoke ejector fans from Cornell Life Safety and the Ithaca Fire Department were brought in to ventilate the offices.

Consultation with the carpet adhesive manufacturer determined that the glue contained latex, an aqueous suspension of natural rubber and protein; resins; one-tenth of a percent mineral spirits; clay; and water. The carpet backing was made of jute, a vegetable fiber used to make burlap.

Air samples taken Friday by the Office of Environmental Health found no significant amount of organic vapors in the office air, according to Crawford.

Projector Transparency Production Is Offered

An overhead projector transparency production service has been established, on a trial basis, in G26 Uris Hall by Cornell Computer Services.

Known as WITS for the Walk-in Transparency Service, the facility will produce transparencies with up to eight lines of text in a variety of fonts, with a maximum of eight colors on each slide. The service is being established on a trial basis to determine the need for computer graphics-generated transparencies.

Transparencies can be made "while you watch" or by leaving instructions with the operator in G26 Uris. The service will be charged to Computer Services "real money" accounts.

More information is available from Margie Wilson or Donna Bergmark at 256-4981.

'Drug Abuse' Show For Radio Wins Journalism Award

"Drug Abuse: A One-Way Trip Through Hell," a Cornell radio documentary about the extent of drug abuse in the United States, has won the 1983 "Health Journalism Award" sponsored by the American Chiropractic Association (ACA).

The national competition recognizes journalists whose "constructive thoughts suggest solutions to basic health problems, motivate consumers to take care of their health, and contribute to fair and responsible health reporting."

Selected from more than 200 finalists, the Cornell Media Services documentary features drug addicts and drug experts exploring chemical abuse, its causes, and its solutions. The 30-minute program blends the research and expertise of some of the country's leading drug abuse specialists with the candor and sensitivity of young people from all cross sections of society who have been victimized by drug involvement. More than 110 stations in the U.S. and Canada have broadcast the program.

Executive producer/writer and narrator is Michael D. Veley of the Consumer Information Network, a broadcast news service. Others involved in the production of "Drug Abuse: A One-Way Trip Through Hell" include Elizabeth A. Giuliano, associate producer; Gordon C. Webb, audio producer/mixer; and Joh L. Hilton who produced the musical score.

Media Services provides broadcast, print, public information, publication design, production and distribution, graphics design, exhibit design and construction, photography, editing and word processing support for the State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, the State College of Human Ecology and Cornell Cooperative Extension.

Publications Office Receives Awards

The Office of University Publications has received three Citation Awards in the Council for Advancement and Support of Education's annual recognition program.

Claude Schuyler was cited as a designer of the year.

The other awards were in the category of total publications programs and the newsletter category, in which the Arts & Sciences Newsletter received a Citation Award.

It is the policy of Cornell University actively to support equality of educational and employment opportunity. No person shall be denied admission to any educational program or activity or be denied employment on the basis of any legally prohibited discrimination involving, but not limited to, such factors as race, color, creed, religion, national or ethnic origin, sex, age or handicap. The university is committed to the maintenance of affirmative action programs which will assure the continuation of such equality of opportunity.

insure prompt publication and 5) to avoid any charges of preferential treatment to one company or another.

Ted would be the first to admit, I'm sure, that what he has been able to accomplish would not have been possible without the cooperative and generous support of Messrs. W.D. Cooke, T.R. Rogers, R.R. Barnard, T.W. Mailey, R.H. McCarthy '22 and others but the existing results are, in my judgment, that Cornell policies and practices in this area stand as a national model and more properly reflect the role of the invention process in an up to date, modern American research university than almost any other.

With possibly two or three exceptions, Ted is more well versed in this subject than anyone else in the country. Certainly I personally feel lucky to have worked with him over just these past three years. I learned a great deal!

Fortunately, much of the experience Ted has accumulated over the years has been reduced to writing by him and with just minor editing could (and will, I hope) result in an outstanding and lasting publication.

Certainly, if nothing else, it will give the new head of the office Mr. H.W. Haeussler, an excellent base upon which to build an expanded and even more exciting program for Cornell - an effort in which we wish him every success.

Recital, Lecture, Repertory Highlights of Week's Events

Seasonal fireworks continue, indoors, with the free 8:15 p.m. recital on Monday, July 9, by Romanian-born pianist Peter Takacs. A faculty member at the Oberlin College Conservatory of Music, the 38-year-old virtuoso is frequently praised for what one critic has called "commanding presence and dedicated zeal."

Monday's free concert, including Alexander Skryabin's "Black Mass," sonatas by Beethoven and Schumann, and a Chopin ballade, is sponsored by Cornell's Summer Sessions office and is in Statler Hall Auditorium.

As part of its summer long series on "The American Experiment," the summer programs office has scheduled a free lecture, titled "What's New? The Impact of the Discovery of America on Western Thought," at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, July 11 in Statler Hall Auditorium.

Speaker is L. Pearce Williams, Cornell's John Stambaugh Professor of the History of Science. Professor Williams, director of the 1984 Freshman Summer Start Program, is teaching a special history seminar for newly arrived freshmen, "Man and His Values in the Western Tradition," and next week is also teaching "Foundations of Modern Science: Galileo and Newton," a short course for Cornell's Adult University (CAU).

And don't forget the free outdoor Shakespeare, beginning at 8:15 p.m. today in the Anabel Taylor Courtyard with "The Comedy of Errors." Cornell Summer Shakespeare's other 1984 production, to be staged in alternating repertory, is the account of star crossed lovers named Romeo and Juliet and begins, appropriately perhaps, on Friday the 13th.

Library Tours Planned

Tours of Uris Library are scheduled for students in Cornell's Adult University at 4 p.m. Mondays during July (2, 9, 16, 23 and 30).

Cornell, Other Employers Form Health Care Coalition

Nine Tompkins County employers, with more than 15,000 total employees, have joined together to address a major national concern on a local level: the soaring cost of health care.

Samuel S. Gruenbaum, former manager of employee benefits at Cornell, was a key organizer of the group and served as its first chairman.

The Tompkins County Employers Health Care Coalition, created earlier this year, recently wrote to some 350 providers of health care in the area to inform them of the group's establishment and of its purposes, according to Richard Thorn, newly elected chairman of the coalition, and personnel and safety manager of New York State Electric & Gas Corp.

In addition to Cornell, employers now in the coalition are: Ithaca City School District, Tompkins Community Hospital, Tompkins County Personnel Department, New York State Electric & Gas Corp., NCR Corp., Morse Industrial Corp., Ithaca College and Morse Automotive Products.

Membership is open to any area group interested in group health care plans, which are most often provided by employers as a benefit, said Thorn.

"We expect membership to increase in the future as the organization's goals and by-laws are more clearly developed, he added. "We hope to involve people who have an active interest in group health care from many different points of view."

"Coalitions such as this began in the U.S. about two years ago," Thorn said, "and many of them have taken an adversarial position with health care providers. That is not the case here. We want to evaluate the situation in Tompkins County and work with providers to find the most efficient ways of delivering health care services."

The recent mailing to doctors, dentists, druggists, hospitals and nursing homes stressed that the coalition seeks to work cooperatively with both the providers and users of health care services, to assure the highest care possible at a reasonable cost.

"As health care costs rise, they have a drastic effect on employers and employees," Thorn said. "Health care plans provided by employers are part of a worker's compensation. When costs go up, money goes into the plan, not into the employee's pocket."

One of the coalition's initial objectives is to develop an effective education program for employees, to make them effective health care consumers, Thorn said. For example, using generic drugs, after consultation with a doctor and pharmacist, is one way to lower costs, he suggested.

Thorn said the coalition will also investigate the various prepaid health plan options and alternate delivery systems for health care, such as home health care, to evaluate their appropriateness in Tompkins County.

Other objectives of the coalition are: —to review area utilization of health care services, to determine areas which may be positively affected by changes in employer-sponsored programs;

—to develop positive working relationships between employers and local health care providers;

—to provide employers with an active voice in health care planning for the Tompkins County area.

Faculty, Staff Wishing Macintosh Computers Should Make It Known

Faculty and staff members who are interested in purchasing Macintosh computers for departmental or personal use should make their intentions known as soon as possible, according to John W. Rudan, assistant vice provost for computer services.

"So far the deliveries of Macintosh have been disappointing and below expected levels," Rudan said. "Having a better idea of the unfilled demand could help our negotiations with Apple, and could improve delivery of ordered s-stems."

Cornell Computer Services, which offers Apple and other microcomputers at discount prices to students, faculty and staff members, has received only 250 Macintosh systems since March 1, compared with 750 outstanding requests.

Faculty and staff members are eligible to purchase one Macintosh for their personal use. Delivery preference will be given to faculty requests.

Letters of intent to purchase should be sent to Macintosh Request, Network Communications, 438 Day Hall. All such letters will be acknowledged on receipt.

Announcements

Alternatives Library

The Anne Carry Durland Memorial Alternatives Library will be open all summer, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday through Thursday, 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. The library has books on the environment, energy, hunger and development, Native Americans, religion and spirituality, communities, agriculture, women's and gay liberation, health and many other topics. It has nearly 200 progressive periodicals on similar topics, plus a tape collection.

Summer Relationship Workshops

The Transformation Program and CRESA are offering a series of one-day workshops this summer with Let Davidson, Ph.D., each on a specific theme, for creating loving and satisfying relationships with life partners, lovers, friends, co-workers, parents and children. The first two programs in July are: Satisfaction in Relationships: From Victim to Cause, July 14, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Accepting One Another, July 21, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. For information and registration, call Let Davidson at 272-4131.

Exhibits

Herbert F. Johnson Museum

"Donde Iremos?": The Vanishing Art of Guatemalan Textiles, June 28 through August 5. This exhibit will present a wide range of colorful and intricately patterned weavings created by the highland Mayas. Spanning the last fifty years, included are belts, handwear, handbags and altar pieces as well as an authentic backstrap loom. The exhibit was organized by Jim Macbeth and Suzette Lane of the Johnson Museum.

"Drawings and Sculpture by Fernando Botero," July 3 through September 2. On display will be fourteen drawings and fourteen sculptures by a renowned Colombian artist who now lives in Paris. His exaggerated human and animal forms combine high art and caricature with an absurd sense of proportion. The works are on loan from the George and Virginia Ablah Collection, Wichita, Kansas.

Olin Library

"Diderot and the Encyclopedie, A Retrospective" richly illustrates the arts and crafts of 18th century France. Daily, 9-5 through September 15.

Barton Blotter

Two wallets and a purse with losses totaling $136 in cash and valuables were among the six thefts reported on campus for the week June 25 through July 1, according to the morning reports of the Department of Public Safety.

Other thefts included an Iranian passport, $7.80 in food and a toaster worth $15.

A person identified as Henry Mora Font was released on $20 cash bail by Ithaca City officials after being charged by public safety with trespassing in University Hall No. 5.

Some $25 in damage was reported done to a mailbox in Noyes Center and a mirror worth $15 in University Hall No. 1 was reported shattered with a pellet gun.

"General" by Fernando Botero, is among the works on exhibit currently at the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art.

Fernando Botero Drawings and Sculptures Currently on Exhibit at Johnson Museum

Drawings and Sculptures by Fernando Botero, an exhibition of recent works by a contemporary South American artist, is now open at the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art and continues through Sept. 2. It consists of 14 sculptures, some more than six feet tall, and 14 drawings that relate to the sculptures.

The works are from the George and Virginia Ablah Collection of Wichita, Kan. The exhibition was organized by Caroline Lerner Goldsmith, a Cornell alumna from the class of 1946. Mrs. Goldsmith is senior vice president of Arts and Communications Counselors, Ruder Finn & Rotman, New York.

Botero's sculptures combine art and caricature with an absurd sense of proportion. He depicts generals, ballerinas, lovers, children, animals, and still lifes.

"Botero creates oddly exaggerated figures which are at once stolid and voluptuous, tragic and humorous," said Cynthia J. McCabe, curator of the 1979 Botero retrospective at the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden in Washington, D.C.

Fernando Botero was born in the Andes of Colombia in 1932. He now lives and works in Paris. Long noted as a painter, he first exhibited sculpture in 1976. One man shows of his work have been held in the United States, Europe, and South America.

George and Virginia Ablah's extensive art collection includes sculpture by Rodin, Remington, Giacometti, Botero, and approximately one hundred works by Henry Moore. New York City is displaying twenty-five of the Moore sculptures in various parks throughout the city through November, 1984. George Ablah's current business interests are in real estate and oil.

After closing in Ithaca, the exhibition will travel to the Wichita Art Museum in Kansas.

The Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art is open Tuesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is always free. For more information call 256-6464.

Kirkwood Emeritus in Classics

Gordon M. Kirkwood has been elected the Frederic J. Whiton Professor of Classics Emeritus, in the College of Arts and Sciences, effective upon his retirement June 30.

A specialist in Greek literature, particularly Greek poetry, Kirkwood has been a member of the Cornell faculty since 1946. In addition to his teaching and scholarly endeavors he has served as chairman for nine years and acting chairman for two years of the Department of Classics.

His book, "A Study of Sophoclean Drama," is considered by many as the best study of literary analysis that has been produced in this country by a living classicist. Published by the Cornell University Press, the book was given the Award of Merit of the American Philological Association in 1959.

In addition to numerous articles and reviews he is also the author of the book, "A Short Guide to Classical Mythology," and co-editor of "Cornell Studies in Classical Philology." "Early Greek Monody," a history of the lyric poetry of Archilochus, Sappho, Alcaeus, Anacreon and other poets of the great age of ancient Greek solo lyric poetry, was published in 1974 by Cornell University Press.

"Selections from Pindar," an edition of the major poems of the greatest of the ancient Greek lyric poets was published in 1982 by Scholars Press. He contributed a preface and notes to the posthumously published translation of Aristotle's "Poetics" by the late Cornell Professor of Classics James Hutton. It was published by W.W. Norton, 1982.

Roe Emeritus in History of Art

Albert S. Roe, a member of the Cornell faculty since 1961, has been named Professor of the History of Art Emeritus effective July 1.

Roe is widely known as an expert in the decorative arts of the Colonial period in America, with a particular interest in silver. He recently was a major contributor to a show of American decorative arts at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Roe came to Cornell as professor and chairman of the Department of Fine Arts after three years as keeper of prints and paintings at the Winterthur (Del.) Museum. He also taught at the museum and at the University of Delaware.

In 1963, Roe was named part-time curator of the Andrew Dickson White Museum at Cornell. Three years later he was named senior curator with administrative responsibility for the museum and its program.

Roe has also been a professor of art history at the State University of New York at New Paltz, assistant professor of the history of art at the University of Pennsylvania, visiting assistant professor of fine arts at Swarthmore College, and instructor and assistant professor of art and curator and acting director of the Museum of Fine Arts at Bowdoin College.

He was born in New York City and received the bachelor of arts and master of fine arts degrees at Princeton University in philosophy degree in 1950. During 1940-42, he was a teaching fellow in fine arts at Harvard and Radcliffe College.

Norman R. Scott has been appointed director of research for the State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences and director of the Cornell University Agricultural Experiment Station at Ithaca. Scott succeeds Theodore L. Hullar who is now executive vice president at the University of California at Riverside. Hullar came to Cornell in 1979 as associate director of research and of the agricultural experiment station; he had been director of research and of the agricultural experiment station since 1981. As director of research, Scott will provide leadership in the development and administration of the overall research effort of the State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. As director of the experiment station, he will serve as the chief executive officer in the administration of federal research grants and cooperative projects conducted in the statutory colleges.

Biographer Elledge Retires

Scott Elledge, hailed in recent months for his biography of E.B. White, has been named the Goldwin Smith Professor of English Literature Emeritus effective July 1.

Elledge, who joined the Cornell faculty in 1962, is an authority on 17th and 18th century English literature. He gained popular attention in February when his 400 page "E.B. White: A Biography" was published by W.W. Norton & Co., which will publish a second edition in London in the fall. Elledge began work on the book in 1970.

Virtually every major reviewer in the country has praised this first biography on White, an essayist and editor for The New Yorker, author of children's classics "Stuart Little" and "Charlotte's Web" and a 1921 Cornell graduate.

Writing in The New York Times Book Review, Russell Lynes, former managing editor of Harper's Magazine, said: "Mr. Elledge is fair, respectful, thorough, enterprising, skillful and unpedantic. He has performed a splendid exercise in scholarship and literary analysis, and the result is fun."

Elledge is a 1935 graduate of Oberlin College. He earned master's and Ph.D. degrees from Cornell in 1936 and 1941 respectively. He taught at Purdue University, Cornell and Harvard University before joining the faculty at Carleton College in 1947. He was the Mary Jewett Professor of English and chairman of the department there when he rejoined the Cornell faculty in 1962. He was named to the Goldwin Smith chair in 1977.

Elledge is the editor of "The Continental Model: Selected French Critical Essays of the Seventeenth Century" and "Eighteenth Century Critical Essays," in two volumes, the standard work in its field. He has also edited "Paradise Lost" in the Norton Critical Editions series.

Colby-Hall Wins Humanities Grant

Alice M. Colby-Hall, professor of Romance studies in the College of Arts and Sciences, has been awarded a fellowship for independent study and research for 1984-85 by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

During the 12-month grant period, she will be writing a book on the surviving traces of the lost Rhone valley epics and traditions concerning William of Orange.

Since joining the Cornell faculty in 1962, Colby-Hall has served repeatedly as director of the graduate programs in Medieval Studies and Romance Studies. She is a Councillor of the Medieval Academy of America and is known for her book on the portrait in twelfth-century French literature.

Her areas of specialization are medieval French literature and the history of the French language.

A graduate of Colby College, she holds a master's degree from Middlebury College and a Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Bronfenbrenner Gets Regents Medal

Urie Bronfenbrenner, the Jacob Gould Schurman Professor of Human Development and Family Studies in the State College of Human Ecology and of psychology in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, has received a Regents' Medal of Excellence from the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York.

Bronfenbrenner was honored for his "outstanding contributions to the cause of human development and lifelong learning."

An expert on developmental psychology, child rearing, and the ecology of human development, Bronfenbrenner is well known for his cross cultural studies, as a founder of Head Start, and as a scholar, teacher, and author.

Bronfenbrenner earned the B.S. degree (1938) from Cornell, the M.S. (1940) at Harvard University, and the Ph.D. (1942) at the University of Michigan.
