CORNELL CONGRESSMEN Busy in Washington

Pictured on our cover are the six Cornellians who are members of the Seventy-sixth Congress of the United States. With the help of Congressman Thomas C. Hennings, Jr. '24 they were prevailed upon in these busy times to be photographed for the ALUMNI NEWS on the steps of the Capitol in Washington. Left to right, they are Congressmen Hennings of St. Louis, Mo.; Daniel A. Reed '98 of Dunkirk; Fred V. Bradley '20 of Rogers City, Mich.; John G. Alexander '16 of Minneapolis, Minn.; Edwin A. Hall, Jr. '31 of Binghamton; and Clarence E. Kilburn '16 of Malone.

Hennings, the only Democrat in the group, has served in Congress since 1935; is a member of the foreign affairs committee. Receiving the AB in 1924, he completed a law course at Washington University in 1926 and was instructor in English and track coach; has since practiced law in St. Louis. He won the track C as an undergraduate; is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sphinx Head, and Phi Delta Phi; a former director of the Cornell Alumni Corporation and past president of the Cornell Club of St. Louis.

Daniel A. Reed was first elected to Congress in 1918 and has served continuously since. He is a member of the ways and means committee. Last winter as a member of a joint House and Senate committee on forestry he travelled through the North, South, and West, holding hearings of that committee. Earlier, he was a delegate of the Inter-parliamentary Union at a meeting in Oslo, Norway, and visited several European countries. He received the LLB in 1898; was a hammer thrower on the track team, held the University heavyweight wrestling championship, played guard on three Varsity football teams, and later coached football at Cornell; is a member of Delta Chi and Quill and Dagger.

Fred V. Bradley is serving his first term in Congress, having defeated the Democratic incumbent in November, 1938. He is a member of the committees on merchant marine and fisheries and on mines and mining. He entered Arts in 1916 from Montclair (N.J.) Academy, received the AB in 1921; is a member of Delta Chi. Mrs. Bradley is the former Marcia M. Hillidge '20.

John G. Alexander is also serving his first term, the first Republican ever to be elected from his district. He is a member of the House committees on enrolled bills, pensions, and World War veterans' legislation. He entered the Law School from Marathon in 1911 and received the LLB in 1916 as Ivan G. Alexander; changed his name in 1937. He competed on the '86 Stage, and on his College baseball and track teams; is a member of Acacia. He has been in Minnesota since 1916.

Edwin A. Hall, Jr. was elected in November, 1939, to fill a vacancy, said to be one of the youngest Congressmen. He is a member of the committees on roads, war claims, and public buildings and grounds. He entered Arts in 1927 and remained one year, then joined the Peoples Trust Co. in Binghamton. He is a former president of the American Institute of Banking and served two years on the Binghamton city council, resigning to enter Congress. He ran on the Freshman track squad; is a member of Chi Phi.

Clarence E. Kilburn was likewise elected to fill a vacancy, last February; has been appointed to the committees on civil service and territories. He has been president and managing director of ice cream manufacturing firms and is president of Peoples Trust Co. in Malone; is holding his first public office. He entered Arts from Malone in 1912 and received the AB in 1916, then served in France as a captain of infantry. He is a member of Psi Upsilon; brother of the late Edward D. Kilburn '06.

CLASS OF '40 AT WORK

Announcements by the Colleges of Engineering and Home Economics indicate that of the 1940 graduates in Engineering, more than 83 per cent were assured of jobs by Commencement Day; while only sixteen of the ninety-three Home Economics graduates had not reported jobs or other prospects.

Of the Engineering Senior Class of 148, six will take graduate work and 113 have jobs. From Chemical Engineering, 91.6 per cent were placed; Mechanical Engineering, 90.3 per cent; Administrative Engineering, 86.3 per cent; Electrical Engineering, 75 per cent; and Civil Engineering, 71.4 per cent. Many civil engineers, it is said, normally find employment after they leave the University, whereas the other Schools are more likely to be visited by employment representatives before Commencement.

Fifty-nine Home Economics graduates of this year are reported employed; eleven were to be married; six plan graduate study; and one will travel. More than half of those with jobs will teach. The next largest number will deal with foods and institutional management. Others have gone into social service, home service for utilities, and into business offices.

UNIVERSITY GETS READY To Serve National Defense

President Day announced July 22 that the entire facilities of the University for research and specialized training would be mobilized for national defense at the disposal of Federal and State agencies when needed. As in the last war, he said, when most of the University was devoted to government service and more than 9,000 alumni, Faculty, and students joined the armed forces, the University is prepared to cooperate to the fullest extent in the present emergency.

A special report of facilities available for research in physics, chemistry, and civil, mechanical, electrical, and chemical engineering has been prepared for the National Research Defense Committee by University officials under the direction of Dean S. C. Hollister, Engineering. Dean Hollister has also conferred for the University with representatives of other technical schools in New York State to formulate a program for co-operating with State and Federal officials in training industrial workers. Laboratories, shops, and direction by the Faculty of the College of Engineering have been offered for this purpose. Conferences have also been held with regional NYA officials concerning the use of the facilities of the College to inaugurate a special program of training for airplane mechanics.

The Civilian Pilot Training program, supervised by the College of Engineering in cooperation with Ithaca Airport, will be continued. Thirty-nine pilots were trained during the winter, and a second group of fifty-seven has nearly completed ground school and flight instruction. Some of these pilots are expected to take more advanced training under the direct supervision of the War Department to build up a national reserve of men equipped for military service with the Army Air Corps.

Members of the Faculty of Civil Engineering will continue their close cooperation with the resident staff of the laboratory established here several years ago by the Army Engineer Corps.

Cornell, as a land grant institution, has always had compulsory military training for male students, and a special committee of the Board of Trustees, appointed some time ago to survey this situation, recently recommended that the program be continued and President Day was instructed by the Board to communicate to the War Department the University's willingness to expand its military training program as desired.

The State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics have been cooperating for several weeks in the organization of a State Emergency Agricultural Defense Committee, which is rapidly setting up subcommittees in every county. Composed of representatives of State and Federal farm agencies, these committees will survey the agricultural resources of their areas with the double purpose of finding remedies for dislocations caused by the war, such as lack of imported seed from Holland, Denmark, and other parts of the war zone, and of organizing, if necessary, to supply food to European refugees or to take any other steps called for by the general program of national defense. Headquarters of the State committee is in Roberts Hall, and members of the Extension Service throughout the State are taking an active part in the program.

James Lynah '05, director of Physical Education and Athletics, has been granted a leave of absence to serve in Washington as director of specifications under William Knudsen, and is expected to play a key role in speeding up the procurement of war supplies. Professor Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30, Public Administration, as chairman of the State Planning Commission, is directing a survey of the industrial resources of New York State that will have an important bearing on the industrial phase of the defense program. Governor Lehmann recently appointed Dean Carl E. Ladd '12, Agriculture, and Trustee Paul A. Schoellkopf '06 members of the new State Council of National Defense, and many other members of the University are engaged in activities related to defense.

GIFTS TO UNIVERSITY INCREASE

Alumni Fund Largest in Years

Cornell Alumni Fund Council reports gifts to the University for the year ending June 30, of $82,806.58 to the unrestricted Alumni Fund with additional $147,981.88 of gifts and bequests restricted in their use. Contributions were received from 7,219 Cornellians and friends of the University.

Number of contributors this year is the largest since 1930-31, when the University received gifts from 8,254. Last year, 6,622 contributed. The amount of the Alumni Fund is the largest since 1932-33, except 1936-37 when $86,659.67 was given in honor of President Livingston Farrand who retired that year. During the last fiscal year, 1938-39, the University received $71,251.01 through the Alumni Fund and $174,288.79 in restricted gifts and bequests.

Increase in the Alumni Fund during the year 1939-40 is attributed by Walter

C. Heasley, Jr. '30, executive secretary, largely to consistent efforts on behalf of Cornell by newly reorganized Class committees. Alumni Fund representatives and their committees in most Classes solicited their Classmates personally and by mail throughout the year.

Quotas were set for all Classes based on $100,000 as the year's objective, and twenty-four Classes exceeded the amounts assigned. Results attained by these twenty-four Classes are tabulated on this page, the last column in the table showing a "combined percentage" obtained by adding the percentage of contributors and the percentage of quota received. Leading all Classes in combined percentage is '92, whose Alumni Fund representative is Robert T. Mickle. Class of '69, whose only living member is John A. Rea, shows 100 percent contributors and 320 per cent of its quota.

TRUSTEE PFANN REPORTS

Report of George R. Pfann '24 to the Cornell Alumni Association upon completion of his first term as Alumni Trustee was distributed at the annual meeting of the Association in Bailey Hall June 15. Andrew J. Whinery '10, whose term also expired this year, died April 21, 1938. Pfann's report is printed herewith:

During my term as Alumni Trustee, Cornell University has paused, critically examined herself, made certain readjustments and has again moved forward on a charted course.

The causes for these readjustments are somewhat obscure but it seems clear that the impact of a rapidly changing social and economic national pattern has not left Cornell untouched. Moreover, at this time many of Cornell's great leaders, both in the University and among her alumni, passed from active service. Their mantles had to be placed on new shoulders. The administrative machinery of the University needed extensive repairs. In fact, the interim could be characterized as a period of movement without direction.

I am pleased to report that all that has been changed. Only the future can measure the wisdom of the changes but to the credit of those charged with the responsibilities of the University in such trying times, it should be noted that they recognized the problems and faced them squarely to a decision.

Our new President has brought to Cornell a wealth of experience, understanding, and vigorous leadership which has been, and will be, an extremely important contribution to Cornell. New and able Deans have taken charge in the Law, Engineering, and Medical Colleges. The statutes of the University have been revised by an able and careful committee. The administrative organizations of the University and the alumni have been carefully rebuilt both as to personnel and responsibilities. Even in the Board of Trustees new responsibilities and duties have been recognized and accepted.

Without departing from those traditional principles and standards, and without losing those characteristics which have given Cornell her present place in the sun, she has, in my opinion, been revitalized to carry on the important work for which she was founded. A tremendous amount of constructive work is now being done in Ithaca for the present and future Cornell in a spirit of cooperation and joint enterprise. If the alumni can catch the same constructive enthusiasm that exists in the University proper, I have no concern for the future of Cornell. I feel that she may well be on the threshold of an era which will outshine her past in leadership and achievement, and her way should not be more difficult because of the increased emphasis which has generally been placed upon those very attributes which have always been her fundamental and traditional possessions.

In these days of unrest I can think of no cause more worthy of the best efforts of any person, particularly a Cornellian, than the cause of Cornell University and her future. It seems to me that in her various fields of endeavor can be found almost all the things which have been universally recognized as essential to the progress of mankind.

There is still much which must and will be done to accomplish the high purpose of Cornell but as Morris Bishop has said, "As the qualities in the seed persist and fructify, it may be that foreign observers hunting the essentially American college will specify Cornell University."

NEW ELMIRA OFFICERS

President of the Cornell Club of Elmira for 1940-41 is Samuel K. Wolcott, Jr. '36. James L. Burke '34 is vice-president, and Nicholas D. Powers '32 is secretary-treasurer. Additional directors are Jervis Langdon '97, Harry Moseson '10, and Frederick B. Gridley '11.

FROM FRENCH FRONT

Word has been received of three Cornellians who have been driving ambulances on the French front. New York Times reported that the Iroquois Ambulance Unit, organized and trained by Steele Powers '31 on his estate near Paris, had received a group decoration from the French. The ceremony took place in a thick wood "on the eve of the French army's 'great debacle'," the Times reports. "Everyone knew that the end was at hand, and General Jonquet was crying as he handed the cross to Steele Powers, head of the unit."

Le Clair Smith '15, who sailed from New York March 23 with the first American Field Service unit and whose letter from Paris we published May 30, has returned to the United States; is at 136 East Fifty-fifth Street, New York City. "Got back to the USA much earlier than I anticipated," he writes, "thanks to the efficiency of the German military machine. But managed to crowd quite a bit of excitement into six weeks. Our section evacuated more than 12,000 wounded soldiers and civilians in that time, most of the time under considerable bombardment."

Word came the end of July that William R. Orndorff '43 had been cited for the Croix de Guerre for exceptional services during the bombardment of Meaux. Earlier dispatches from Vichy had reported him safe and that he had been assigned to ambulance work at the state hospital in Vichy. He is the son of the late Professor William R. Orndorff, Chemistry; sailed from New York May 18 with the Benjamin Franklin unit of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps. His mother lives in Ithaca.

EXPAND SAGE CHAPEL FACILITIES

Building Has Grown With University

Sage Chapel will have thoroughly repaired musical facilities, a larger auditorium, and some other benefits as a result of work done this summer. A rebuilt organ and a new choir loft will stand in the west end, which will have been extended about thirty feet, halfway to Central Avenue. A new basement story under the enlarged nave will contain quarters such as the choir has been needing. The north transept, cleared of the old loft and floored at the main level, will be fitted with pews.

To Move Organ and Choir

The organ, virtually as good as new, will be put in the west end on the advice of experts who have agreed that in this particular building the best acoustic effects will be obtained by placing the organ and choir at that end. Suitable provision will be made, as never before, for the choristers to assemble and to enter and leave the choir loft in procession. In the new basement rooms there will be decent accommodations for the choir, which quite outgrew its dingy quarters under the old loft. The Chapel, overcrowded or overflowed at most of last year's regular services, will have about 15 per cent more seating capacity. It will also get a modern public address system and more efficient lighting.

Something had to be done before long about the organ. It had been used for more than thirty years and was wearing out. The Chapel had other infirmities, some of which have been touched upon. The Director of the Choir, Professor Paul J. Weaver, had been investigating various remedies which promised to cost more or less and to be more or less efficacious. A special committee of Trustees and Faculty members summed up his findings and joined with him in recommending that the organ be entirely rebuilt. The Committee on Buildings and Grounds, consulting with the Architectural Advisory Council, studied the complex problem from their side and advocated an extension of the nave. When all had reported to President Day and the Board, the Trustees resolved to make the extension and to have the organ rebuilt on the new site.

University Makes Improvements

For all these renovations and improvements, including the new organ, the Trustees have authorized the expenditure of $48,000 or as much of that amount as may be necessary, on the understanding that any part of the cost that cannot be obtained by special gifts shall be taken from the Oliphant Fund, an unrestricted gift of the late J. Norris Oliphant '01. The new construction is in the hands of the Department of Buildings and Grounds. The Aeolian-Skinner Company of Boston, Mass., is rebuilding the organ.

At the end of the extended nave the organ loft will take up 12 ft. and the choir loft 33 ft., both together embracing the 30-ft. extension and 15 ft. of the old nave, with a width of 32 ft. north and south. Underneath will be a basement story of the same width and a length of 60 ft., all new excavation, for the accessories of the organ and choir: the blower room, lockers and toilets, shelving for the choir's large collection of music, a robing room, and a processional corridor. Assembled in the robing room, the choir will proceed eastward through the basement corridor, upstairs to an aisle on the main floor, and thence westward to the choir stalls. The choir loft will be elevated 18 in. above the nave floor at the front and 5 ft. at the back next to the organ loft. There will be seats for 120 choristers, 22 more than in the transept. The organ console, at the north side of the front, will be mounted on a turntable so that the organist can face either the choir, if he is leading it, or a precentor.

To Match Present Appearance

Some changes are made necessary in the Chapel's western aspect. The increase of height at that end, an effect of the slope, will be modified by means of a terrace running across the front and into the slope at the sides. The rose window in the gable will be kept there, but the twin pairs of lancet windows below it must be left out of the front because the organ loft will rise above their level. A pair of them will be used in either side wall, where they will match their neighbors to the eastward. The basement will be lighted by rectangular windows and entered from the south side. New brick has been specially made to resemble the old, which is obsolete in size.

Inside the new west end, the design and decoration will accord as closely as possible with the old nave. The ancient oak roof trusses will be copied. The carved stone corbels supporting the trusses, however, are inimitable, for each is a unique composition of forms of the local flora, designed and cut by Robert Richardson, an English artisan whose sculpture here and elsewhere on the Campus moved President White to praise (Autobiography, Vol. I, pp. 408-9).

Enlarged Many Times

Since the Chapel was built in 1874, there have been several additions or enlargements. It has been altered so much that little of the primitive structure remains, only the western half of the nave, a remnant hardly any larger than the present modest extension.

On the north side of this remainder, opposite the old south porch, is the passage leading to the Memorial Antechapel, the first of the additions. This detached annex, 20 by 32 ft., with a mortuary crypt, was built in 1883 by the Trustees and the estate of Jennie McGraw Fiske in memory of Ezra Cornell, John McGraw, and Mrs. Fiske.

An enlargement which increased the number of sittings from 500 to 750 was made by the Trustees in 1898, when all of the eastern part of the Chapel was demolished and replaced by the present double transept, 64 by 66 ft.; eastern apse, 16 by 31 ft.; and porches flanking the apse, the one containing a vestry and the other a custodian's storeroom. The apse is a memorial of Henry W. Sage, the donor of the Chapel, and his wife, whose bodies are entombed there.

That enlargement made a striking change in the Chapel's appearance, inside and out. The building had consisted of the nave, 32 by 72 ft.; north and south porches; a side chapel 20 by 36 ft., projecting southward from the east end; and a tower 10 ft. square which stood in the re-entrant angle between the nave and the side chapel and carried a light belfry and spire. Nothing was left of the side chapel, tower, belfry, or spire, which appear from early photographs to have been graceful features of a shapely building.

Organ Formerly at West End

All this time the organ had stood on the south side of the nave in a recess under the tower. When the tower was taken away the organ was rebuilt at the west end and a small platform was built against it for the organist and choir. In 1903, the organ was moved to the north transept and the now discarded choir loft was built there, where room had been made by extending the transept 32 by 32 ft. The loft filled the extension and projected 8 ft. into the auditorium, so that hardly any sittings were gained by using the vacated space at the west end for pews.

When that construction was finished, the whole interior of the Chapel was decorated in its present style by Cortier & Company of London, and the elaborate mosaic of the apse was installed by J. & R. Lamb of New York City. All this adornment was a gift of the late William H. Sage.

The first organ, given to the University by the same Mr. Sage, served with one rebuilding for thirty-five years. Its successor, built by Skinner in 1909, grew old in service until this year.

Charles Babcock, the first professor of Architecture, was the architect of the Chapel and of its successive enlargements. He was a pupil and a son-in-law of Richard Upjohn (1802-78), a leader in this country of the Victorian Gothic revival.

PROFESSOR GEORGE '05 DIES

PROFESSOR SIDNEY S. GEORGE '05, head of the Department of Mechanics in the School of Civil Engineering, died suddenly July 21, at his home, 118 East Falls Street, Ithaca. He had been a member of the Civil Engineering Faculty since 1905, for two years as a graduate instructor, then as assistant professor of applied mechanics until 1916, when he was appointed professor.

Born in Astoria, Oregon, August 8, 1878, he entered Arts in 1901 from Fredonia Normal School, shortly transferred to Civil Engineering, and received the CE in 1905. He was consulting engineer on numerous projects, designed the piers of a bridge at Elmira, helped to design the Warfield web plate cars, and was a consultant on the Olean sewer system. With the late Professor Ernest W. Rettger, Civil Engineering, he wrote a textbook, Mechanics of Materials. He was a member of Tau Beta Pi.

Mrs. George and their children, Mrs. Lewis B. King (Christine H. George) '29 and Robert S. George '32, survive.

THE LAKE GUNS BOOM

The Summer Theatre closed its 1940 season with a play by Professor Alex M. Drummond, "The Lake Guns of Seneca and Cayuga." Premier of this "dramatic legend of the Finger Lakes country" was August 9, and the play was repeated August 10, 13, 14.

Strangers seeing it must be convinced that Cayuga and Seneca Lakes are sinister places, and that a lot of queer folks live around them. The author has traveled the back country pretty thoroughly to collect all the fearsome legends that appear in his play. But it is spiced with humor, and anyone who has lived in the region, even briefly, will have heard at least some of the folklore it recounts.

On Butcher Hill, overlooking both lakes and the far sweep of country northward to Ontario, the play opens and sets its scene.

Scene Two is "Down Under; perhaps in caverns between the Lakes; more likely in the bottom of Cayuga; or where you will, so long as we end up in deep water off Taghanic." Here are seen some of the mythical characters that are supposed to inhabit the Lake country—the "Serpent" of Bare Hill, fearful and wonderful indeed; The Old Man of the Lakes; Spinkster John Smith; Tauggy, the Dwarf Stone Giant of Taghanic; Tess of the Storm Country; Waneta, an Indian maiden; and a scientist who lost his life trying to find the cause of the "Lake guns." Wild Bill's ballad of the burning of the Steamer Frontenac in Aurora Bay is a classic, and there is a verse about the Treman family and amusing reference to Former Mayor Lou Smith of Ithaca as a fisherman.

Scene Three is at ghostly midnight on Taghanic Point, with the legendary "Phantom Canoe" appearing to the actors in the northern lights and more of the weird legends of the Lakes.

Central character of the play is "The Old Man of the Hills," and the booming of the Lake guns, or drums, is its frequent background and accompaniment. Professor Drummond directed the production, and he also designed the settings.

About ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Football practice will start on Wednesday, September 11. Coach Carl Snively has sent invitations to fifty-eight players. Here's the outlook, according to the coach:

"I have my fingers crossed. While we will have a veteran team, we will be short in reserves. Only a few men are coming up from the Freshman team. If we can rise to heights of morale achieved last year, and if we can avoid injuries in vital positions, we should have a fairly good team. Of course we are vulnerable with everybody pointing for us. Our constituents expect us to repeat. Our competition is stronger than ever. We ought to win at least two games this year."

Based on spring training, the tentative line-ups of the first two teams include only four Juniors: Raymond Jenkins of Philadelphia, Pa., end; Norman C. Christensen of Englewood, N. J., tackle; Peter M. Wolff of Highland Park, Ill., guard; and Louis C. Bufalino of Swampscott, Mass., back. Others are Seniors.

McCullough, Scholl, and Bufalino can play at either right or left halfback and they will be shifted as the occasion warrants.

Principal losses from last year's undefeated team are M. Witmer Baker '40, who is now on the squad of the New York Giants of the National Professional Football League, and William H. Worcester '40, who stepped into Drahos's place when Drahos was injured last season.

Other players will be available from last year's Junior Varsity. Among them are: Harry L. Tredennick '42 of Johnstown, Pa., an end; Edmund Van Order '42 of Ithaca, Enoch E. Hooker '42 of Winnetka, Ill., Donald R. Goodkind '42 of New Brunswick, N. J., and Charles R. Sweeney '42 of Scranton, Pa., tackles; Charles S. Toan '42 of Perry and William H. Viel '41 of Dolgeville, centers; and Richard L. Quigg '42 of Pueblo, Colo., Will D. Templeton '42 of Niagara Falls, Winslow W. Stilwell '42 of Staten Island, Henry Dragon '42 of Albion, and William H. Lehmacher '41 of Glenbrook, Conn., backs.

Sophomores who showed promise in spring practice include:

Ends, Dyer Holmes of Wayne, Pa., Daniel Nehrer and Roy V. Johnson of Tarentum, Pa., and Louis Helmick of Fairmont, W. Va.

Tackles, Richard Rochow of Pittsford, Pa., and Clayton Rockmore of New York City.

Guards, Donald Grady of St. Petersburg, Fla., Frederick A. Schaefer, III of Honolulu, Hawaii, and Courtney Young of Dolgeville.

Center, John Manganelli of Utica.

Backs, Kenneth Stofer of Olmstead Falls, Ohio, Thomas W. Milligan of Joliet, Ill., Edward J. Egan of Fayetteville, George Politi of New York City, Philip Goldenberg of Hartford, Conn.

The squad will be rich in kickers and passers, and there will be many reserve backs. The weakness of the team, the coach feels, will be in the limited number of men available at tackle and center. He expects keen competition for all positions.

Newcomers to the schedule this year include Army and Yale, replacing Penn State and Princeton. The Varsity schedule:

October	5	Colgate at Ithaca
	12	Army at West Point
	19	Syracuse at Ithaca
	26	Ohio State at Ithaca
November	2	Columbia at Ithaca
	9	Yale at New Haven
	16	Dartmouth at Hanover
	23	Pennsylvania at Philadelphia

NOW IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

Summer School people are being talked about—some of them are.

Thirty-odd years ago, the Summer School contingent was made up in equal parts of hard-working school teachers seeking to qualify for better jobs, and of charming undergraduate idlers making up scholastic deficiencies to the end that they might stay in college and again be eligible for the soccer team.

Summer School people in the mass are now said to be queer. They wear strange clothes and sometimes not enough. They do not conform to prevailing Campus customs. At lunch they discuss among themselves—a little too loudly, perhaps—provocative matters. They do not, in the manner of resident scholars, confine themselves to such tranquil topics as the chances of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Cincinnati Reds. When they jam all entrances to Willard Straight, they are apt to create in the mind of the passer-by the unfortunate—and wholly false—impression that Director Foster Coffin has been unfair to organized labor and is being picketed.

The Quadrangle is concerned about the effect of this picture upon the sensibilities of visitors. What will they think of us?

To your reporter, this seems the wrong approach. As long as a university thinks well of itself and can abundantly justify its course at every turn, it will deserve respect by not concerning itself with the appraisals of other people; by no means excluding its own alumni.

Cornell University has always been a little queer, and has prevailed just about to the extent that it has been queer. Its students have never conformed to any recognized pattern. In appearance, thought, speech, and manners they have always constituted a pretty representative cross section of the Republic, with the human oddities slightly, perhaps, in the ascendancy. And I suspect that through the years more ounces of pure gold have been recovered from the human oddities than from the mine-run of crude ore!

Summer School is a useful and necessary institution. It is an essential cog in the educational system of the State. It squeezes six additional weeks of productive operation out of an expensive plant. It provides a priceless opportunity for mature persons to ride an intellectual hobby with a gleam of pure joy in their eyes. And while the children are growing up, the extra stipend that it pays the members of its teaching staff (this is confidential and not to be repeated) makes all the difference between a balanced budget and the other thing in many a Campus household.

Naturally, such an institution to be effective must be loose and casual in its selections and must draw unto itself all kinds of people including nice ones and gifted ones—and those pickets around Willard Straight. Any selective system that kept out the pickets would keep out most of the others too. It's all pretty complicated, and you can't be sure about those pickets! The way refugees have been popping in from Europe, any one of those pickets might turn out to be the genius that we've all been looking for.

The easiest way out, it seems to your reporter, is to suggest to the more sensitive alumni (some of whom were themselves uncouth looking objects when they first appeared upon the Campus) that they visit Ithaca, and bring their critical guests, before or after Summer School—and not during. It would be all right, I think, to let Cornell be useful in its own way for six weeks out of the fifty-two.

WOMEN'S CLUB PRESIDENT

MRS. ALLAN H. MOGENSEN (Adele A. Dean) '23 was elected in June president of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs, succeeding Mrs. Robert C. Osborn (Agda T. Swenson) '20. As president, she became also a director of the Alumni Association.

Since June, 1938, she had been a member of the executive committee of the Federation, in charge of organizing Club teas for prospective women students, and last May was elected president of the Cornell Women's Club of Western Connecticut. She was for a time a member of the Cornell Women's Club of Rochester, and besides her Cornell activities is a member of the Women's Engineering Club of New York City, the Westport Women's Club, and the AAUW of both Bridgeport and Norwalk, Conn.

Entering the College of Agriculture from East High School, Rochester, in 1919, she was married in 1922 to Mogensen, her Classmate in Mechanical Engineering, and received the BS in 1924. She is a member of Delta Zeta. They live near Westport, Conn. Mrs. Mogensen makes garden, enlarges pictures, rides, swims, plays tennis and badminton, and, as she says, is "also a taxi man as anyone living nine miles from store, school, and railroad station must be." Their son, Allan O. Mogensen, sixteen, is a student at Northwood School, Lake Placid; intends to enter Cornell in 1941. A daughter, Sonia, eleven, is at home.

Mrs. Mogensen also assists her husband in the work of his Westport office, and accompanies him to Lake Placid for the annual Work Simplification Conferences which he conducts there for representatives of industry each summer. He has achieved national reputation for his results in increasing efficiency of operations in many industries.

JOBS OPEN

Sales opportunities in a variety of industries are offered in the current Job Bulletin of the University Placement Bureau. They include foods, textiles, building materials, specialties, mail order, and insurance. Other jobs are listed for engineers, chemists, and in shipping.

Job Bulletins are mailed regularly to Cornellians who register with the Placement Bureau in Willard Straight Hall. Placement of teachers is handled by the Bureau of Educational Service, Stone Hall.

CONSISTENT SCHOLARS

Dean's List of the College of Arts and Sciences for the second term of last year contains the names of four Juniors who have been on six consecutive Dean's Lists—every one since they entered the University. They are Louis C. Boochever, Jr., son of Louis C. Boochever '12, University Director of Public Information; Helen F. North of Ithaca; Richard H. Paul of Elmira; and Henry Tesluk of Buffalo. The list is of the twenty-five students who ranked highest scholastically in each undergraduate Class.

WOMEN GO TO THE FAIR

Dean Gilmore D. Clarke '13, Architecture, was the principal speaker at a tea July 25 which climaxed "Cornell Day" sponsored by the Cornell Women's Clubs of the Metropolitan area at the New York World's Fair. He was introduced by Mary H. Donlon '20, Alumni Trustee, and spoke informally.

Also honored was Elfriede M. Abbe '39 of Ithaca, whose sculpture group, "The Hunter," was selected last year for exhibition at the Fair. Miss Abbe has the distinction of being the only undergraduate whose work was exhibited.

A large number of alumnae registered at the College and University Women's Center during the day, and were greeted by hostesses from cooperating Cornell Clubs. Fanny G. Selden '10 and Charlotte Gristede '29 of the Cornell Women's Club of New York were in general charge of arrangements. Other Clubs which cooperated were those of Western Connecticut, Westchester County, Middletown, Long Island, Staten Island, Northern New Jersey, and Bergen County, N. J.

HEADS ALUMNI FUND

CHRISTOPHER W. WILSON '00 was elected president of the Cornell Alumni Fund Council at the annual meeting June 15, succeeding Robert P. Butler '05. He has been senior partner of the law firm of Coombs & Wilson, 32 Court Street, Brooklyn, since the death of his brother, Robert H. Wilson '89, in 1934. Other partners are Roy M. Hart '01, Harry L. Drescher '14, and his nephew, Robert H. Wilson, Jr. '16.

Wilson entered the Law School in 1897 from Trinity School, New York City, and received the LLB in 1900, immediately becoming associated with the predecessor of his present firm. He won the football C and the track C as a high hurdler; is a member of Sphinx Head and Phi Delta Phi. He is a former governor of the Cornell Club of New York, joined the executive committee of the Cornellian Council in 1938, and last year was vice-president of the Alumni Fund Council.

He has been attorney for the Brooklyn division of the Bank of the Manhattan Co. for a number of years and is a member of the Brooklyn committee of the Bank; is a vice-president of the State Bar Association; was an organizer and formerly president of the Lawyers' Club of Brooklyn; and is a delegate of the Brooklyn Bar Association to the Conference on Legal Education of the State of New York. Vestryman of St. Bartholomew's Church in Brooklyn, he is a member of the standing committee of the Episcopal Diocese of Long Island, a trustee of the estates belonging to the Diocese, member of the board of managers of the Church Charity Foundation of Long Island and a trustee of its endowment funds, president of the Brooklyn Industrial Home for the Blind, and chairman of the board of managers of the Bedford Branch YMCA and a director of the Brooklyn and Queens YMCA.

His two sons are Christopher W. Wilson, Jr. '31 and Donald S. Wilson, Dartmouth '38, who is now a third-year student in the Law School.

DAY AT PENNSYLVANIA

President Edmund E. Day will be the University's official delegate at the Bicentennial Celebration of the University of Pennsylvania, September 16-21. A program of convocations, symposia, conferences, and scientific and cultural exhibits on the Pennsylvania campus will commemorate the 200th anniversary of the founding. President Franklin D. Roosevelt will deliver an address September 20 and receive the honorary LLD.

NORTH COUNTRY ACTIVE

One hundred Cornellians attended the annual dinner and dance, June 19, of the Adirondack Cornell Club, at Fan and Bill's Restaurant near Glens Falls. Speakers at dinner were Emmet J. Murphy '22, Alumni Secretary, Paul B. Corning '27, Clifford M. Marsh '94, and Avery L. Bullen '22, chairman of a trophy committee, who reported that the Club would offer a cup each year to the high school football team in the Northern Conference League which showed the greatest improvement during the season, in school support and general spirit. T. Kenneth Bullard '22 led the singing of Cornell songs.

Orson C. Beaman '29 was elected president of the Club for this year, succeeding Dr. Irving M. Falkenbury '27. Vice-president is Gerard A. Pesetz '28, and Genevieve E. Bazinet '25 and George S. Jamison were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

HOTELMEN ELECT

Cornell Society of Hotelmen, comprising all alumni of Hotel Administration, has elected Frank H. Briggs '35, president for this year. Briggs is president and managing director of Hosts, Inc. Hotels, with offices in Springfield, Mass., and directing the operation of fifteen hotels in the East, South, and Midwest.

First vice-president of the Society is Professor Charles I. Sayles '26, Hotel Administration; second vice-president, Robert E. Redington '32; and Professor John Courtney '25, Hotel Administration, has been re-elected secretary-treasurer. Class directors elected for two years are Loyal C. Gibbs '26, Charles A. Clement '28, Harry A. Smith '30, Robert C. Trier, Jr. '32, Victor F. Ludewig '34, Richard D. Culver '36, Thomas W. Silk '38, and Henry M. Jewett '40.

LETTERS

Subject to the usual restrictions of space and good taste, we shall print letters from subscribers on any side of any subject of interest to Cornellians. The ALUMNI NEWS often may not agree with the sentiments expressed, and disclaims any responsibility beyond that of fostering interest in the University.

DORMITORY NEEDS

TO THE EDITOR:

In the July issue of the ALUMNI NEWS I was pleased to see a letter from one of my Classmates concerning the dormitory situation at Cornell. Having spent three years in the dorms, I feel qualified to express some ideas on the subject.

When we realize that less than half of the men students live either in the dormitories or fraternities, and that probably less than a third of the Freshman Class live together in the dorms, it can hardly be said that we have ample accommodations. But then, desiring more dormitories, and getting them, are quite two different things.

We not only need more dormitories; we need a new dormitory system of supervision. The dormitory group should be divided into several units. Each unit should consist of one or two lounge and recreation rooms, and would be presided over by a competent young Faculty instructor. A little guidance and discipline, so completely lacking under the present system, would go a long way to make the dormitories a more livable place, to say nothing of properly shaping the college careers of the young minds of the incoming Classes.

Certainly we could use more dormitories to better unify the student body, and at the same time have the University influence a more healthy control.

LIBRARY FINDS FRIENDS

TO THE EDITOR:

May I be permitted to write you briefly about the article by Louis C. Boochever which you published in the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS of April 18, 1940, under the title: "Library Approaches its Fiftieth Year." I need not tell you how much this effective and attractively illustrated article pleased those of us in the inner circle who are connected with the Library administration, and those who have been closely associated or deeply interested in its activities. But I do want to tell you how far-reaching an influence the article seems to have had on many Cornellians who had not hitherto given a great deal of thought to the Library and its place in the University organization. Interested comments, both local and from afar, showed that the article was both timely and welcome.

These signs of interest in the Library were very gratifying to those of us who, working under the financial and spatial restrictions which were imposed upon us by conditions as they are, sometimes felt rather pessimistic about the future development of what was really one of the great library institutions of the country. The lively reaction to Mr. Boochever's article has reassured us.

Perhaps, after all, the accelerated improvement of recent years is just the beginning of a new and vigorous growth. As American college and university libraries go, it is not surprising that a building planned fifty years ago should now begin to be inadequate. Cornell has not yet been as fortunate as Yale or Columbia or Dartmouth in finding a donor who would provide millions for a much-needed new building. But the marked relief which followed the addition in 1937 of a new wing to the old building shows what can be done, even with limited means. And since in recent years there has been an increasing and continued liberality on the part of the President and the Trustees of the University in the matter of book funds, we in the Library have every reason to be grateful, and Cornellians in general have every reason to be proud. The next step to be taken would be in the direction of an improvement in the quality and quantity of the machinery, both material-technical and human, that keeps the Library running smoothly. This should keep pace with the growth in space and in book holdings.—OTTO KINKELDEY,

University Librarian

HU '14 RECEIVES DEGREES

Dr. Hu Shih '14, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, was awarded honorary degrees by seven universities this year. Union College, where he was honorary chancellor during the year just closed and where he delivered the Commencement address, conferred upon him the degree, Doctor of Civil Law. He received the Doctor of Laws at Yale University, Brown University, University of California, Clark University, Duke University, and Wesleyan University.

Dr. Hu has also received the LLD at University of Chicago and Columbia University in 1939, Doctor of Literature at Harvard and the LHD at University of Southern California in 1936, and the LLD at University of Hongkong in 1935.

Of the ten honorary degrees conferred by Yale this year, Dr. Hu and Dean Gilmore D. Clarke '13, Architecture, received two. Dean Clarke was made Doctor of Humane Letters.

MORE ON "MACLEOD"

The ALUMNI NEWS June 13 published an account of the activities of a fraudulent Cornellian using the name of Norman L. MacLeod '11 and calling upon alumni in New York City. Last issue we noted that MacLeod himself had written us that he is still in Pasadena, Cal. and had not been East. We have since received word that a man using MacLeod's name called upon alumni in Trenton, N. J., July 19, looking for work; that one who was apparently the same appeared in and around Philadelphia a day or two later; and now we have information that a man of the same description and using the name of MacLeod was on August 9 employed by Merritt, Chapman & Scott on an engineering project in Quonset, R. I., and was living at The Spinning Wheel, Wickford, R. I. He called upon an alumnus in Providence August 5, said he was a member of the Class of '11 and of Delta Upsilon, and displayed some knowledge of certain Cornellians whose names were mentioned.

Charles B. Howland '26 writes us the following account of the fraudulent "MacLeod's" activities in Philadelphia:

On Monday evening, July 22, Bob Patch, president of the Cornell Club of Philadelphia, called me long distance from Bordentown, N. J., to report that a person representing himself to be Norman L. ("Pink") MacLeod '11, had called to see him. He had the names of a number of Cornell graduates of the period from 1909 to 1912 and made inquiries as to the addresses, business, and other personal details regarding Cornell graduates in this section, particularly those of the Class of 1911. He represented that he was looking for a job.

Several of his remarks, as well as his demeanor, caused Patch to be suspicious and as soon as he got home he found his July copy of the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS, which had just arrived, and read your article on page 474 regarding the fraudulent MacLeod."

In the meantime, the fraudulent "MacLeod" had talked to Richard Bishop '11. Bishop had not seen the real MacLeod since graduation, but they had lived for two years in the same Delta Upsilon house as undergraduates. Bishop invited the man to have lunch with him the next day at the Rittenhouse Club in Philadelphia, of course assuming that it was his old friend. Late that evening, Bishop received a telephone call stating that "MacLeod" was "in a jam" in a cafe after having had a few drinks, and needed some money. Bishop offered to drive into the city to furnish him with funds, but "MacLeod" asked him if he could not arrange to have the door-man at his club furnish the cash to save him the trip. Bishop explained that this could not be done as the door-man would have no funds available.

That night and the next morning, Bob Patch and I communicated by telephone with thirty or forty Cornellians in this vicinity whose names "MacLeod" had obtained in one way or another, warning them of the impostor. "MacLeod" had called upon at least a dozen by 11 o'clock the following morning, but had only succeeded in making one small cash "loan" out of the group.

I made arrangements to join Dick Bishop for lunch at the Rittenhouse Club and to put the gentleman in the custody of the law if he should show up. He and I met for lunch, but MacLeod never appeared nor did he return to see Burton of the United Engineers with whom he had a return appointment at four regarding a job. I had talked with Burton in the morning, not knowing "MacLeod" was there, and Burton had said "Oh, he is here now." "MacLeod" never appeared again and we never caught up with him. Apparently, Burton's chance remark in his presence and the fact that Bishop knew the real MacLeod so well that he was willing to come into the city in the middle of the night to help him out, made the impostor so fearful of detection that he skipped town.

His "take" in Philadelphia amounted to about three dollars, so far as we know. I pass the word along so that Cornellians in the next city which he may visit will be prepared and decline to cash checks or loan money.

CONVENTION IN BOSTON November 15-16, 1940

Cornell Club of New England is already making plans for the biennial convention of the Cornell Alumni Association which it will entertain at the Copley-Plaza Hotel in Boston, Mass., November 15 and 16, 1940.

Delegates from all Cornell Clubs will attend, and all Cornellians are invited. Convention sessions Friday, November 15, will be devoted to alumni activities of the University, with speakers later to be announced. That evening, President Edmund E. Day will speak at the convention banquet, and this will be followed with an old-time "Boston Teaparty" arranged by the host Club in the Copley-Plaza ball room.

Saturday morning, November 16, the convention will have a special train from Boston to the football game with Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H., returning for informal sessions that evening at the Copley-Plaza.

President Norman F. Bissell '27 and the board of governors of the Cornell Club of New England have appointed Archie C. Burnett '90 general chairman of the convention committee, with J. Duncan Upham '74, F. Ellis Jackson '00, and George H. Rockwell '13, vice-chairmen. Chairman of the hotel committee is William N. Davis '31; of publicity, Walter P. Phillips '15; reception, F. Ellis Jackson '00; finance, Newton C. Burnett '24; entertainment, Laurence M. Selleck '15; train, Lawrence Richardson '10; and of an alumnae committee, Mrs. M. Gregory Dexter (Jennie A. Curtis) '24.

Regional committees for the convention have been organized throughout New England, with L. Peter Ham '26 chairman for Western Massachusetts; H. Hunt Bradley '26, Rhode Island; R. Claud Bradley, PhD '26, New Hampshire; George Munsick '21, Hartford, Conn.; Thomas I. S. Boak '14, New Haven, Conn.; Donald J. Post '24, Waterbury, Conn.; A Bradford Reed '27, Worcester, Mass.; and Carl W. Olney '22, Vermont. Francis O. Affeld, Jr. '97 and Randolph W. Weed '10 are chairmen for New York City.

COMING EVENTS

Time and place of regular Club luncheons are printed separately as we have space. Notices of other Cornell events, both in Ithaca and abroad, appear below. Contributions to this column must be received on or before Thursday to appear the next Thursday.

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

CROWDS that will come to Ithaca for football games this fall are forecast in the arrangements already being made for special trains over the Lehigh Valley Railroad. During July, representatives from Columbus, Ohio, visited the Ithaca office to arrange for three special trains to the Ohio State game. One will bring players and coaches (who will stay at Watkins before the game); another will transport the Ohio State band and student "rooters"; a third is being run by the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. Another special train has been arranged by Buffalo Elks to the Colgate game, Cornell Club of New York will run one to the Ohio State game, and several others are in prospect.

ATHLETIC OFFICE next week will mail football ticket applications to about 42,000 alumni. Paid orders which it receives on and after September 1 will be filled according to established priorities.

RECENT VISITOR at the College of Engineering, conferring with Dean S. C. Hollister about the program of the College, was Hannibal C. Ford '03, president of the Ford Instrument Co. in Long Island City. Inventor of many precision instruments used by the Navy for gunfire control and with the late Elmer A. Sperry '89 the inventor of the gyro compass, he was recently cited as a "Modern Pioneer" by the National Association of Manufacturers.

CONFERENCE on "Youth and Money Management," August 8-10, sponsored by the Graduate School of Education and the State Department of Education, brought to the Campus August 8-10 some 300 teachers, supervisors, directors, and other leaders of youth. They were addressed by members of the Faculty and outside authorities. H. Edward Babcock, chairman of the University Board of Trustees, discussing "Economic Freedom as a Basis for a Happy and Useful Life," was outspoken and specific in attacking the present trend toward regimentation. He spoke of labor and of farmers, and said: "In my opinion, the youth of today are getting too much of the national spotlight. The result is they are becoming self-conscious, and like all self-conscious children, are developing into show-offs and generally disagreeable members of society. I am not for conceding that society owes them a living until they have at least proved that they are willing to work for it. . . . What a substantial percentage of the young people of this country need to be taught is how to go out and get money and then how to spend it so as to create opportunity, work, and wealth. Not even during SUMMER SESSION closes this week, and now those Faculty families who have remained in Ithaca will get away for their vacations before the University classes begin again September 26. Director Loren C. Petry says it has been a quiet, uneventful Summer Session, with an alumnus family or two visiting every few days through most of it. Final Summer Session enrolment this year was 1,997, a few less than last year's 2,063.

the darkest days of the depression have I seen a time when an alert, willing, and healthy boy and girl couldn't go out and make a dollar if he or she was so disposed. Yet (and undoubtedly this is an indictment of my own lack of knowledge of what is going on) I have never known of any sustained educational effort to stimulate the resourcefulness of young people in finding work, developing their staying powers once they had it, or to incite their imaginations for the creation of new opportunities. What this country needs, in addition to a good five-cent cigar, is more young people who are both earners and promoters. . . ."

CHI OMEGA sorority has purchased the house at 313 Wait Avenue which was formerly occupied by Eleusis and later by Theta Kappa Nu; has remodelled it to accommodate eighteen or twenty girls. For several years Chi Omega has been at 301 Wyckoff Avenue, corner of Wait Avenue.

"YOUR COLLEGE of Agriculture" and its work are being described by members of the Agriculture Faculty every Thursday through September 26, from the University Station WHCU, 12:40 to 12:50 p.m.

LAW INSTITUTE is being held in Myron Taylor Hall, August 15-17, under the sponsorship of the Law School and the Federated Bar Associations of the Sixth District. Chairman of the Bar Associations committee is Bert T. Baker '97 of Ithaca, and Professor John W. MacDonald '25, Law, directs the Institute. Among the speakers are Judge William H. Coon '22 of Cortland, Percy W. Phillips '15, tax specialist of Washington, D. C., Henry S. Fraser '26 of Syracuse, and William L. Ransom '05 of New York City.

TOMPKINS COUNTY FAIR opened for its 101st showing August 12, to run the rest of this week. Officers of the County Agricultural and Horticultural Society, which operates it, have learned that they can have just as successful a Fair if they hold it before the students get back.

CHAPEL SERVICES through the Summer Session, during the alterations in Sage Chapel, have been in the moot court room of Myron Taylor Hall. Aeolian-Skinner Co., builders of the Chapel's new organ, loaned to the University without cost and set up in the temporary chapel a self-contained portable pipe-organ. Preacher here July 20 was the Rev. J. A. C. Fagginger Auer, PhD '24, who was pastor of the First Unitarian Church in Ithaca, 1917-24. He is now Parkman professor of history and theology at Harvard.

JOHN REAMER, mayor of Ithaca in 1912-13, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the board of trustees of Ithaca College, died at his cottage on the Lake, July 28.

DEBATE on the advisability of compulsory military training in the United States, August 9, attracted a Summer Session audience that overflowed the Baker Laboratory lecture room. Speakers were Professors Warren A. Seavey of Harvard Law School, who argued for conscription, and George Hartmann of Columbia University, who contended that the proposed draft program is "involuntary servitude" such as is denounced in the Constitution.

WALDO F. POTTER '43, son of Colonel Waldo C. Potter, Commandant of the ROTC, has been appointed to the US Military Academy at West Point, where his father graduated in 1907. Cadet Potter reported for duty July 1; last year was enrolled in Arts and Sciences.

SEVEN CENTRAL AVENUE, next door to Willard Straight Hall, is being remodelled for the new medical staff and will become the Campus Clinic. Seven women students who had expected to live there next year are thus left without rooms—a problem not so much for them as for the Manager of Residential Halls and the Dean of Women. These seven are fifth-year students and others outside the four-class scheme of assignment to the supervised halls and annexes, and yet are not graduate students to be left to shift for themselves on or off Campus. It is a minor difficulty, but it adds to the housing problem.

DELTA CHI will hold its fiftieth anniversary international convention on the Campus August 26-29. The two days preceding, Alpha Chapter will hold its own Golden Jubilee reunion and celebration. Convention sessions will be in Willard Straight Hall, the delegates housed in Balch Halls. One of the three living founders of the fraternity is Monroe M. Sweetland, LLM '90.

NECROLOGY

'90 BL—MRS. WILLARD W. ELLIS (Edith Anna Ellis), July 31, 1940, in Ithaca, where she lived at 309 Farm Street. Born in Dryden, she entered the Letters Course from Ithaca High School in 1886. For a time she was connected with the Cornell Library in Ithaca; in 1903 was married to Willard W. Ellis '01, librarian of the College of Agriculture. She had been a member of the Tompkins County Democratic committee since 1918, was for several years associate county chairman and member of the State Democratic committee; member of the Cornell Women's Club of Ithaca, county chairman of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, member of the DAR and many other women's organizations.

'90 BS in Arch—ALEXANDER CHADBOURNE ESCHWEILER, June 12, 1940, at his home in Hartland, Wis. He had practiced architecture in Milwaukee, Wis., since 1892, recently with his sons, Alexander C. Eschweiler, Jr. '15, Carl F. Eschweiler '18, and Theodore T. Eschweiler '19, under the firm name of Eschweiler & Eschweiler. He entered Architecture in 1886. He was a past president of the Architectural Club of Milwaukee and served as a governor of the Cornell Club of Milwaukee. Sophomore crew; fencing medal.

'90—WILLIS SHARPE KILMER, July 12, 1940, at his Sky Lake estate near Binghamton. He entered the Optional Course in 1886, left after two years to enter the proprietary medicine business of his father and uncle in Binghamton. Kilmer's aggressive promotion of their product, Swamproot, is said to have laid the foundation of the family fortune. In 1904, after the death of his father, he founded the Binghamton Press as a memorial to his father, and he succeeded to the presidency of Kilmer & Co. and of the Peoples Trust Co. He was the breeder of many famous race horses, one of these, Sun Beau, ranking as the leading money winner until Seabiscuit. Psi Upsilon.

'04 LLB—JAMES TIMOTHY DRISCOLL, July 5, 1940, at his summer home in Clarence. He had practiced law in Buffalo since 1904, specializing in real estate; was one of the founders of the Buffalo Athletic Club; president of the Erie Finance Corp. Greatly interested in football and boxing, Driscoll was once prevailed upon to box three rounds with his friend, Jim Corbett, when Corbett was champion of the world. He entered Law in 1900 from Buffalo Central High School. Delta Chi; Savage Club; Masque; '86 Stage.

'05 AB—MORTIMER FRANCIS MEHLING, July 30, 1940, in Cleveland, Ohio, where he was with the Central Mutual Insurance Agency, 1076 Union Commercial Building. He entered Arts in 1902 from St. Ignatius College, stayed in the Graduate School through 1906, and then spent two years at the Philadelphia Textile School. For many years he was vice-president and general manager of The Beckman Co. in Cleveland, before he entered the insurance business. Skull.

'07—CLARENCE D. TARBELL, July 18, 1940, in Ithaca, where he had lived all his life. Long active in Republican politics, he was Tompkins County clerk from 1912 to 1921, when he was appointed postmaster of Ithaca, to serve until 1932. Last fall he was elected a member of the board of supervisors, and had carried on an insurance business in Ithaca. He was an ardent supporter of the Cornell teams. Son of the late Doctor Tarbell '72 and brother of the late George S. Tarbell '90, he entered the Law School in 1903; remained three years. Delta Phi, Cornell Club of Ithaca. Son, Lawrence B. Tarbell '31.

'08 ME—FRANK GARRETTSON SMITH, November 4, 1939, in East Orange, N. J. He entered Sibley College in 1904 from Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn; lived for a time in Brooklyn and recently in Upper Montclair, N. J. Formerly with Continental Roofing & Manufacturing Co., he had also managed a travel agency in New York City. Theta Xi; Mandolin Club.

'09 CE—HERBERT C. HANSON, April 28, 1940. He had been in the West for many years, for a time as an engineer with the Portland, Ore., Light & Power Co., then in Pasadena and Los Angeles, Cal., as a highway engineer. During World War I he was chief field supervisor with T. A. Gillespie Loading Co. at Morgan, N. J., handling shells and high explosives. He entered Civil Engineering in 1906 from Montana Normal College.

'10—COLONEL GUIDO FRIDOLIN VERBECK, head master of Manlius School, July 27, at his home in Manlius. Graduate of the school founded by his father, Brigadier General William Verbeck, as St. John's School, Verbeck entered Agriculture in 1906, returned to Manlius in 1910 as instructor and commandant of cadets. Upon the death of his father in 1930 he became superintendent, and later head master, vice-president, and a trustee. During World War I he was the youngest lieutenant colonel in the AEF, with the 106th Field Artillery; was awarded two silver stars and the Conspicuous Service Cross for valor at Verdun, St. Mihiel, and in the Argonne; was later commissioned a colonel in the 368th Field Artillery Reserve. Past president of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools, he received the honorary DSc at Colgate in 1934. Kappa Alpha. Sons, Guido F. Verbeck, Jr. '36, Samuel S. Verbeck '37.

Concerning THE FACULTY

SPEAKING at a dinner in Syracuse sponsored by the Metropolitan Milk Producer's Bargaining Agency, Dean Carl E. Ladd '12, Agriculture, told farm leaders that "this is no time to restrict production, because America is not nearly as well off on food inventories as many have supposed." He suggested that any surplus foods should be used to feed the hungry peoples of Europe "who are fighting the cause of the democracies." Dean Ladd and Trustee Paul A. Schoellkopf '06, president of the Niagara-Hudson Power Co., have been appointed by Governor Lehman to a new State Council of National Defense. Its eleven members are leaders in industry, labor, agriculture, transportation, and public utilities.

SAMUEL BOOCHEVER, father of Louis C. Boochever '12, University Director of Public Information, died August 6 at his home in Albany. He was also the father of Mrs. E. Martin Freund (Rose Boochever) '15 and Florence Boochever '18.

WILLIAM D. MOEDER '27, Electrical Engineering, was called to Cleveland, Ohio, by the death of his father, Daniel Moeder, July 18.

MRS. PAUL H. BLACK, wife of Professor Paul H. Black, Machine Design, received the MA in English Literature at Duke University, June 3.

PROFESSOR KARL M. DALLENBACH, PhD '13, Psychology, is teaching in the summer session of the University of California.

PROFESSOR CHESTER J. HUNN '08, Ornamental Horticulture, is recovering at his home near Hanshaw Corners from a major operation which he underwent June 26.

PROFESSOR CLAUDE M. PENDLETON '18, Civil Engineering, has a son, born in Ithaca July 31. He and Mrs. Pendleton live in Forest Home.

PROFESSOR WILLIAM J. HAMILTON, JR. '26, Zoology, has a research grant to travel through eastern United States this summer visiting museums to study distribution of mammals.

INCREASED DEMAND for food in Europe as a result of prolonged war cannot be met by the United States as it was in World War I except by more greatly reducing our own consumption or reversing our policy of reduced production, according to Professors Frank A. Pearson '12 and William I. Myers '14 writing in the current number of Farm Outlook, published by the Department of Agricultural Economics. They point out that in recent years American imports of foods have far exceeded exports, and that as population has increased food production has not kept pace. "To export the 1916-18 quantities would mean an increase in production of seven per cent."

PROFESSOR CHARLES W. MERRIAM, Geology, is spending the summer in California; was later to join Professor Charles M. Nevin, PhD '23, Geology, in Nevada, to pursue geological work.

PROFESSOR JOHN E. PERRY, Civil Engineering, is again director of Camp Barton, operated by the Louis Agassiz Fuertes Council, Boy Scouts, on the west shore of Cayuga Lake north of Taughanock Park. This is his fifth season as director.

PROFESSOR RUSSELL H. WAGNER, PhD '23, Public Speaking, lectured on "Forms of Argument" and "Methods of Teaching Argumentation" at Northwestern University August 1 and 2.

PROFESSOR PHILIP E. MOSELY, History, has been elected a member of the advisory editorial board of the Journal of Modern History, and a member of the committee for the award of the Herbert Baster Adams Prize of the American Historical Association. March issue of the Journal of Modern History contains an article by Professor Mosely on "Russian Policy in 1911-12," and in Foreign Affairs for April he discusses "Is Bessarabia Next?"

PROFESSOR WALTER C. MUENSCHER, PhD '21, Botany, lectured recently at the summer session of Ohio State University, on "Propagation of Aquatic Plants."

HOWARD S. TYLER, PhD '38, Agricultural Economics, has a son, James Howard Tyler, born in Ithaca June 30.

HERBERT W. TEETER, field superintendent in Plant Breeding, retired July 1, after forty years in the College of Agriculture. In 1900, Teeter walked from Lansing to Ithaca and was hired as a laborer by Isaac P. Roberts, first Dean of the College of Agriculture, in the famous old red barn which was, except for a few chicken houses, the building furthest east on the Campus. He lived in a nearby house called "the beehive," where Bailey Hall now stands. Teeter recalls many colorful personalities among the Faculty and students and tells many interesting anecdotes about his years on the Campus, during which time he has worked under five Deans of the College and three Presidents of the University.

Concerning THE ALUMNI

Personal items and newspaper clippings about all Cornellians are earnestly solicited.

'75—Mrs Edward Bausch, whose husband ('75) is chairman of the board of Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. of Rochester, died July 14 at the age of eighty-six. They had been married sixty-two years; she and Bausch were interested in many Rochester philanthropies; have given their home to the city for a municipal museum after the death of both.

'80—James L. Knapp, leaving his job on the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger to attend his sixty-year Reunion at Ithaca, was the subject of a column in the Ledger by C. William Duncan, June 14. Except four years as night editor of the Baltimore Sun, he has been on Philadelphia newspapers since he left Cornell, as city editor of the Record and later of the Evening Public Ledger staff. Duncan said that this year was Knapp's first Class Reunion, although he had visited the Campus several times. "The Campus always looks good to me," he is quoted as saying, "but my, how times have changed! We had no intercollegiate football. We played Rugby, which is something like soccer. Drilling was the principal exercise. We had literary societies. Mine was called the Irving Literary Society, and in my Junior year I was editor of its Literary Review. Boys then were much the same as now as regards mischief, but the pranks were different. Ours would probably seem too tame today."

'89—John W. Anderson, whose gift of $200,000 last February endowed the John Wendell Anderson Professorship at Cornell, made a like gift to the University of Michigan, announced June 15. After he left Cornell, Anderson entered the University of Michigan law school. His gift to Michigan endows the James Orin Murfin professorship of political science, in honor of his life-long friend, a former Michigan State senator, circuit judge, and regent of the university. It is the largest endowment of a professorship at Michigan.

'90 AB—Fred W. Ely wrote to his Class secretary, James E. Rice, before Reunion, that he had moved in May from Buffalo to Seattle, Wash., to be near his daughter's family. She is the wife of Professor Curtis C. D. Vail, head of the department of Germanics at University of Washington. Ely's address is 5547 Windemere Road, Seattle, Wash.

'95 ME—Samuel G. Colt and Mrs Colt, who live in Pittsfield, Mass., are grandparents, with the birth of a son to their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Colt, June 2.

'96 BL, '97 LLB; '31 AB—Presiding Justice Harley N. Crosby '96 of the Appellate Division, Fourth Department, inducted into the Bar June 28 in Rochester his daughter, Barbara C. Crosby '31. This was said to be the first time that a daughter had been sworn as a lawyer by her father. Miss Crosby is associated with a Buffalo firm; attended the University of Michigan law school.

'98 PhB, '03 PhD—Christabel F. Fiske, professor of English at Vassar College, has published, as one of the seventy-fifth anniversary publications of the College, Epic Suggestion in the Imagery of the Waverley Novels, a volume of 192 pages.

'99-'00 Grad—Dr. Charles A. Beard, eminent historian, was the first recipient, June 1, of an award of the New York City Association of Teachers of Social Studies. It was announced that the award would be made each year henceforth "on the basis of accomplishment relevant to the promotion of the teaching of social studies, scholarship, originality and pioneering, inspirational leadership and courage in advancing one's ideals."

'01 AB—Joseph P. Harris has become associated with the investment firm of Hawley, Huller & Co., Union Commerce Building, Cleveland, Ohio. He was formerly vice-president of the Union Trust Co. in charge of investments, and previously had been manager in Ohio for N. W. Harris & Co. and Harris, Forbes & Co.

'03 AB—John Randolph is attached to the American Consulate in Belfast, Northern Ireland, reaching there November 4, 1939, upon transfer from Quebec. He writes: "My wife and children (Caroline, my 'Baghdadi' daughter, eleven; John, Jr., my 'Rumanian' son, eight; and Catharine, my 'Quebec' daughter, five) were, under orders from Washington, not permitted to accompany me into the present European war zone."

'06 AB, '07 AM, '11 PhD—Dr. John L. Rich has been appointed head of the department of geology and geography at the University of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Save These Dates November 15-16, 1940

CORNELL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION CONVENTION

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

A "Boston Tea Party"

Special Train to the Dartmouth Game

'07—Charles W. Stanton has moved from Youngstown, Ohio, to 935 East Eighth Avenue, Denver, Col.

'09 ME—Colonel Alexander C. Sullivan can be reached in care of the Organized Reserves, U. S. P. O. & Court House, Los Angeles, Calif.

'10 AB—Harry M. Varrell, husband of the former Laura K. Johnson '10, died May 27. Dr. Varrell was dean of the graduate school at Simmons College, Boston, Mass.

'10—Dr. Benoni A. Place is a member of the staff at the State Psychopathic Hospital at Warm Springs, Mont.

'11, '12 ME—George P. Brockway, purchasing manager of the American Optical Co., and Mrs. Brockway have announced the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to William Shuster of Norristown, Pa., a graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Miss Brockway was graduated June 3 at Russell Sage College with the BS degree in Physical Education.

'12 BArch—Charles C. Colman lectured recently on "Home Building" at the real estate school of Cleveland College. He practices architecture at 1836 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, and is chief architectural supervisor of the Federal Housing Administration, Northern Ohio District. His daughter will enter the College of Home Economics in September.

'12, '13 BArch, '15 MArch—Mrs. Katherine Urband, wife of Lieutenant-Colonel Edward M. Urband '12, died July 29 in Bloomfield, N. J., where they lived. Colonel Urband survives, with a son and a daughter.

'13 ME—Robert B. Whyte has been elected president of the Kenosha, Wis., city council. Kenosha has a council-manager government. Whyte is general superintendent of The Macwhyte Co. in that city.

'13—William R. Manson is an engineer with the F. J. Kirchhof Construction Co., Denver, Colo., where he lives at 725 Dahlia Street.

'14 ME—J. Carlton Ward, Jr., July 11 was elected president of the Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corp. He will be in direct charge of the Ranger Aircraft Engine Division, engaged in the production of engines at Farmingdale; of the Duramold Aircraft Corp. which manufactures molded airplane parts; and of the Fairchild Aviation Division, with plant at Hagerstown, Md. He resigned April 15 as vice-president and a director of United Aircraft Corp. and general manager of Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Division in Hartford, Conn. A statement by Sherman Fairchild, who resigned as president of Fairchild Engine & Aircraft Corp. to become chairman of the board, characterized Ward as "a recognized American authority on organization for precision manufacturing. He was associated with United Aircraft during the period when its airplane engine production increased from fifty engines a month to its present rate, the largest for the country." Ward is a member of the University's Engineering College Council; recently lectured before students in Engineering on the construction and design of aircraft engines; and was instrumental in supplying the College with modern equipment for aeronautical engineering training. Heading a mission sent to France by General Motors to inquire into the corporation's European interests, Ward was a member of the luncheon party in the French Air Ministry which narrowly escaped death when the Germans first bombed Paris, June 3. When the bombing started, the guests, including Ambassador Bullitt and Ward, left the room for a balcony and a few minutes later a bomb lodged in the ceiling of the room they had left, but failed to explode. When it appeared that France would capitulate, Ward and Mrs. Ward hurried to Portugal, to embark for home on an American clipper plane.

'15 AB—Walker Hill, Jr. married Mrs. Ewell Gay of Atlanta, Ga., January 1, 1940. Hill is an investment dealer at 706 Security Building, St. Louis, Mo.

'15 BArch—For twenty-one years Harold R. Sleeper has been associated with Frederick L. Ackerman '01, architect, 25 West Forty-fourth Street, New York City. During the War he was a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery. He is the author of Architectural Specifications, lately published by John Wiley & Sons, companion volume to Architectural Graphic Standards, of which he is co-author; has written articles for several magazines, and is a lecturer for the New York School of Interior Decoration. He writes: "Perhaps few of the '15 Class have had the rare opportunity to return to Ithaca as frequently as I have, and this has been one of the most pleasant parts of my job. As architects for the Faculty Apartments, Balch Hall, Sigma Phi Fraternity, and numerous other jobs, I had weekly trips over a period of years to our Biggest Little City. Now if the Gym gets going, I hope to start my trips again—so badly interrupted by the bad years."

*By Weyland Pfeiffer, Class Secretary
111 Broadway, New York City*

I have had the thought for a long time that the 1916 Class might like to have a little more dope on what the members are doing and also a little more information as to our plans for our coming Twenty-fifth Reunion.

You all know our Reunion chairman,

Sam Howe, has moved from Buffalo to Kansas City, Mo., where he can be reached at 6801-17 East Thirty-seventh Street. Sam has been very active in his Class work and you will receive further communications from him from time to time.

Here in New York, Harold Bache (who spent July in Plattsburg), Pat Irish, Harry Bryne, and your secretary are meeting constantly and our Reunion program will be ready in all details by this fall.

During July I have met a lot of '16ers, including George Stevens, Meyer Willett, Grant Schleicher, Joe Inness, Al Frick, Charlie Borges, Jim Moore, Chet Smith, George Crabtree, Bob Dahn, Russ Welles, Shep Lyon, Bud Fay, Pat Porter, even had a 'phone call from Dick Foster—all of these lads have promised to be on hand next June.

Schnitz Snyder writes me from Brandon, Vt., that he will spend a month in Wisconsin taking part in the Army maneuvers—Schnitz is a Reserve major.

John Toolan has been trying to get prospective college students in Cornell—while running a law business and managing Cromwell's campaign on the side.

Ray Kelsey writes Sam that he attended '15s 25th last June. Said Matt and his committee had a grand party, but ours will top them all.

You who are regular subscribers to the ALUMNI NEWS have all received my letter of July 22, requesting help in meeting Class expenses. If the exchequer is low, a dollar bill will put you in good standing, since of course you already have the NEWS.

'17 AB, '20 MD—Dr. Raymond S. Crispell, of Duke Hospital, Durham, N. C., lieutenant commander in the Medical Corps, US Navy, is on temporary active service during August at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla. He is engaged in special work in aviation medicine, in which he has been particularly interested.

'17 ME—What was called "the most important announcement from the American rubber industry in the last quarter century" was made by John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., June 7 in New York City at a meeting of 500 industrialists, military experts, scientists, and the press. He disclosed the development of a new synthetic product—"liberty rubber" or "Ameripol"—said to be equal or superior to natural rubber in many qualities. Collyer said the new product was announced at this time "because of the responsibility which the national defense program places upon all industry."

'18, '20 WA—James H. Cummings, Jr. is associated with the John B. Stetson Co. at Fifth and Montgomery Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

'18, '21 BArch—Frederick W. Medlong is an appraisal assistant in the Assessment

Department, Municipal Building, Binghamton.

'19, '21 LLB; '34—Harold E. Simpson, city judge of Ithaca, married Elizabeth I. Lucey '34 in Brownsville, Mass., July 20. Mrs. Simpson was for a time an investigator for the city and county welfare offices in Ithaca, and recently has been 4-H Club agent in Middletown. Simpson has law offices in the Ithaca Savings Bank Building.

'20, '21 BS—Arthur L. Tuttle, Jr., is educational director at Goose Rock, Ky., CCC Camp. His home address is Happy Times Farm, Crab Orchard, Ky. He has an eleven-year-old son and a two-year-old daughter.

'20—James A. Hutchinson is with the Springfield Material Co., 402 North Jefferson Avenue, Springfield, Mo.

'24 CE—Frederic C. Wood has resigned as general operations manager of Montgomery Ward & Co. in Chicago, Ill., to accept a similar position with the W. T. Grant Co., a chain store organization in New York City. "One of the many pleasant things about this change," he writes, "is that it will bring me closer to Ithaca. One of the unpleasant things is that I will not be able to use the opening of the new Montgomery Ward store in Ithaca this fall as an excuse for a closer personal interest in the football schedule."

'25, '26 AB; '30 AB—Returning from his Fifteen-year Reunion, where he presided as master of ceremonies at the Bailey Hall Rally, Stuart H. Richardson married Isabelle S. Rogers '30, June 29, in Staten Island. Mrs. Richardson is the daughter of William W. Rogers '05 and sister of William W. Rogers, Jr. '33, Richard A. Rogers '37, and Wallace Rogers '43. Many other Cornellians were in the wedding party. Writing before the event, Richardson said, "All we need now is the 'Alma Mater' on the way into the church and the 'Evening Song' with chimes on the way out, with a 'Long Yell' for the bride, and it will be another all-Cornell day." He is with the insurance firm of F. F. Richardson, Inc., 99 John Street, New York City.

'26 BS;—'16 AB—John L. Shea has become manager of the Hotel Grosvenor, Fifth Avenue at Tenth Street, New York City. Past president of the Cornell Society of Hotelmen and for many years chairman of the national promotion committee of the Hotel Greeters of America, Shea was for six years at the Waldorf-Astoria, then was executive assistant to the general manager of the Hotel Astor, and later was assistant to Martin Sweeney, president of Hotel Chatham and the Louis Sherry Restaurant. For twenty years The Grosvenor has been owned by the Baldwin family of which the late brothers, Arthur J. Baldwin '92 and Leonard D. Baldwin '92 were members. Donald R. Baldwin '16 is now the treasurer.

'28—C. John W. Paddon is with the Royal Air Force, care of Colonel R. M. Beckett, Bussock Hill House, Newbury, Berks, England. "Unfortunately," he writes, "Father Time says I am too old to pilot, but my Cornell training and a long slide rule possibly combine to make a small dent now and then. It seems many a long year and many a long mile back to Cornell. I have, however, sworn to myself that if I survive this party I shall visit the Hill again . . . The French having collapsed for reasons of political rot, we now have to hold the fort alone—and possibly better so. . . . You may be interested in air raids from first hand. They are practically nothing once you realize that noise never laid anyone out. As long as people take cover and stay in it, it is amazing how few get hurt. It's flying glass and curiosity combined in equal parts which cause most of the casualties. . . . It may be an old story or you may class it as propaganda, but believe me, were we to go down, WHICH WE WON'T, it would be a question of 'just how long' for you all." Paddon has been abroad since 1929, in London since 1934 as chief engineer with Philips Amplifiers Co. Leaving Cornell in 1925, he attended the Guggenheim School of Aeronautics at NYU, spent a year as a flying cadet with the US Army Air Corps at San Antonio, Tex., was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps Reserve. During 1928-9 he was a field engineer with Electrical Research Products, Inc., of New York City; then was managing engineer of Westinghouse Electric of Italy in Milan; spent two years in Paris as a recording engineer with the Societe Materiel Acoustique; and during 1933-4 was in the Belgian Congo for London Films.
