Vol. XXI, No. 30

Ithaca, N. Y., May 1, 1919

Price 12 Cents

CORNELL'S overseas fighters will be honored in a meeting in Bailey Hall on Saturday. Musicians and speakers who are touring the State in the interest of the Victory Loan will appear, and Professor Orth will speak of Cornell's record in the war. The undergraduate guests will appear in overseas uniform. The affair is in charge of the undergraduate Victory Loan organization.

RIFLE PRACTICE is going on steadily at the indoor range in the Drill Hall, companies using the range on different days as assigned. Thus far about seventy per cent of the men in the infantry have met the requirement in marksmanship. The remaining infantry men will complete the test this week. In the artillery a competition for developing efficiency in gun squads, using for this purpose three-inch guns, will be carried on during the remainder of the year, all batteries competing together on May 23. A cup will be awarded to the battery which makes the best record for speed and accuracy; and a medal to the cadet who earns the highest average grade in the gunner's classification test at the end of the term.

THE FORTY-NINTH annual contest for the Woodford Prize in original oratory will be held in Barnes Hall on Friday, May 2. The six contestants and their topics are: Jacob Mertens, jr., '20, New Rochelle, N. Y., "A Practical Education"; Lucretia H. Ferguson '19, Buffalo, "An Answer to the Woman Question"; Roger C. Brown '19, La Crescenta, California, "The League of Nations"; Thomas Burke '19, Oneida, N. Y., "Self-Determination for Ireland"; Walter Measday, jr., '20, Brooklyn, "A New Colonial Policy"; Theodore B. Karp '19, Brooklyn, "Americanization vs. Bolshevism."

SEVENTEEN COMMANDERIES of the Knights Templar have given assurance that they will attend a State convocation at Ithaca on June 23, 24, and 25. The gathering promises to be one of the largest in the history of the State organization. The chairman of the committee on entertainment is Professor Charles L. Walker '04, of the College of Civil Engineering.

PUBLIC LECTURES this week include "Some Personal Recollections of Famous Modern Writers," by Hamlin Garland; "Joffre, Pétain, Foch" (in French), by Professor André Fribourg; "Newer Aspects of Socialism," by Harry W. Laidler; "Education in Africa," by F. R. Bunker, pioneer worker in Natal and Rhodesia; and an address by Mr. Oko, educational secretary of the Intercollegiate Menorah Society.

THE VARSITY DEBATE TEAM, Edward E. Dieker '19 of Ithaca, Theodore B. Karp '19 of Brooklyn, and Walter Measday, jr., '20 of Brooklyn, met the Colgate team at the Binghamton High School on Friday. The question was the government ownership and operation of railroads, already debated in the triangular league contests. The Cornell team spoke on the affirmative. Decision was given in favor of Colgate.

INSTRUCTION IN ARCHERY was given to the women of the University on two afternoons of last week by Wallace Bryant of Washington. Mr. Bryant is an enthusiastic archer, interested in making archery a college sport. Why his instructions were announced as especially for women is not made plain. For archery is a good sport for everybody. Those persons who, during its former vogue, once became familiar with a bow, will gladly welcome a revival, and will hope that a like familiarity will lead to the reading by the present generation of a number of delightful books from Roger Ascham's "Toxophilus" to Maurice Thompson's "Witchery of Archery."

THE SOPHOMORES will have their class dinner and smoker at the Clinton House on Saturday evening of this week. This, unlike the junior smoker, is open not to the whole University, but only to members of the class and invited guests. Addresses will be made by Coach Jack Moakley, by Professor Samuel P. Orth, and by Major James A. Meissner '19.

EX-PRESIDENT WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT will deliver two addresses at Cornell this month. The dates announced are May 28 and 29; the topics, though not yet specified, will be of current interest. Mr. Taft last spoke in Ithaca in April, 1918, on "The Great War."

HOUSE PARTIES to be held in connection with Spring Day will probably begin on Friday, May 23. Many fraternities had made plans for beginning their parties on Thursday. The Faculty, however, through a committee composed of Professors Hammond, Sampson, and Cavanaugh, has suggested the shorter period. It is urged that the time required for preparation and recovery takes too much from the student's scholastic duties, and that the standing of many is such that a loss of time is likely to be fraught with disaster. The Interfraternity Association as a body has taken no action, merely leaving the dates and arrangements for house parties to the individual fraternities.

A CABINET COUNCIL of the Young Women's Christian Association was held with the Cornell Y. W. C. A. last week Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. A council meets each year for the training of a new cabinet. About sixty delegates were present from women's colleges of New York. Dr. Georgia L. White '96, adviser of women, spoke on the significance of the conference; and Professor Samuel P. Orth gave an address on "America's International Responsibility." The remainder of the program was in the hands of the delegates.

A PETITION asking for a popular vote on the proposed commission form of government for Ithaca has received the required number of signatures. The Common Council at its meeting on May 7 will be asked to set a day for the special election. It is proposed that a vote be taken at the same time on the question of moving picture exhibitions on Sunday. This latter question, previously disposed of by action of the Council, is revived in consequence of a recent statute giving each municipality the power and privilege of deciding for itself whether there shall be Sunday shows.

PROFESSOR HOLLIS E. DANN, of the Department of Music, was recently elected president of the Music Supervisors' National Conference. The conference met in St. Louis, where Professor Dann and his chorus of supervisors, in cooperation with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, gave a concert with great success.

ARMY AND NAVY

French Cross for Cummings '17

Captain Edward Cummings '17 has been cited and will be decorated with the Croix de Guerre.

Cummings received his second lieutenancy in August, 1917. Then he passed the examination for the Regular Army, was promoted to first lieutenant of field artillery, and arrived in France on December 27, 1917. On his arrival, he was appointed orienting officer and adjutant to the major, this making him a staff officer. He went to the front in March, 1918, and was in some of the thickest fighting of the war. He was complimented by French officers for his work, and his regiment was also mentioned. He is now a captain and is attached to the 15th Field Artillery. His address is A. P. O. 710, American Expeditionary Forces.

Captain Cummings is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Cummings, of New York, and is a graduate of the College of Civil Engineering.

Two Dinners at Cornell Bureau

The Monday dinners of the Cornell Bureau are becoming more successful, and it has been decided to continue them indefinitely. A meeting was called following the dinner on March 31, to discuss measures in connection with the Semi-centennial Celebration. The following were present: Alphonse D. Weil '86, Lieut. Col. John S. Shearer '93, Sao-Ke Alfred Sze '01, Major Frederick Carl Ashley '05, Captain Robert M. Falkenau '05, Marcel S. Levy '09, Lieut. Lawrence M. Mintz '11, Captain James A. Sourwine '13, Ridgeway Bishop '16, Sergeant Raymond T. Kelsey '16, Lieut. Arthur T. Lobdell '16, Sydney B. Elliott '17, and Benjamin Lichtenstein '18.

It was decided that, if possible, an Overseas Reunion should be held in June, to coincide with the Semi-centennial Celebration, at which time a number of Cornell men will probably take part in the A. E. F. athletic events.

Twenty-one men were present at the April 7 dinner, and undoubtedly the attendance would have been much greater had it not been for the opening of the finals at the A. E. F. boxing matches at the Cirque de Paris, which attracted a large number. Those who attended the dinner were: Alphonse D. Weil '86, Cornell Bureau; Lieut. Col. John S. Shearer '93; Edward B. Allen '01, with a commission from the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce; Arthur W. DuBois '07, Peace Commission; Captain Clarence E. Chatfield '08, Transportation Corps; Lieut. Lawrence M. Mintz '11; Captain George S. Frank '11, American Relief Administration; Leon E. DeYoe '12; Captain Robert W. Austin '13; Lieut. Max H. Thurnauer '14, Engineers; Lieut. Harold H. Elmendorf '14, Army Educational Commission; Carl W. Vail '15, ex S. S. U. 637; Lieut. Horace R. Lamb '16; William Feller '16, Agricultural Education Department; Lieut. Herman C. Loeffler '16; Lieut. Arthur T. Lobdell '16; Bertram F. Wilcox '17, aspirant; Lieut. Sydney B. Elliott '17, Field Artillery; Lieut. Paul C. Wanser '18, Air Service; and Lieut. Walter Palmer '18, 278th Aero Squadron.

In answer to the standing question, "Do you expect to be home in time for the Semi-centennial Celebration in June?" only three answered in the affirmative. They were E. B. Allen '01, Captain Clarence E. Chatfield '08, and Carl W. Vail '15.

Woodle '15 Gets French War Cross

Lieutenant George Bradley Woodle '15 was decorated with the Croix de Guerre on April 7, the honor being conferred for the part he took in the drive in the Champagne sector last October. The 2d Engineers, to which he was attached, threw pontoon bridges across the Meuse, crossed the river in the face of German fire, and then joined the infantry in the fighting.

Woodle attended the First Officers' Training Camp at Madison Barracks, and later was sent to Camp American University, Washington, D. C., where he was commissioned a second lieutenant and assigned to the 2d Engineers. He has recently been made division engineer of the 2d Division, and is now with his regiment at Neuwied, Germany.

He is a son of Mrs. Hattie B. Woodle, of Syracuse, and is a graduate of Sibley College. He is a member of Theta Delta Chi.

In the 17th Engineers

The following letter has been received from Colonel William G. Atwood '92, American representative to the Supreme Economic Council, Paris:

The Editor, CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS:

The receipt of the March 13th copy of the ALUMNI NEWS reminds me of one alumnus who had a rather unusual career in my regiment (17th Engineers).

Charles W. Fitch '10 enlisted and came to France in July, 1917, as a sergeant. The regiment sailed for home last month with Fitch as a lieutenant colonel. This is some record for promotion.

Other Cornell men in the same regiment were: Frank E. Lawrence '06, promoted from first lieutenant to major, Engineers; Robert Max De Garmo '09, promoted from first lieutenant to major, Engineers; Robert L. James '12, promoted from second lieutenant to captain, Engineers; Austin S. Hart '14, promoted from enlisted man to first lieutenant, Engineers; William R. Dillard '17, promoted from enlisted man to first lieutenant, Engineers; Harry G. Hallock '04, promoted from first lieutenant, Engineers, to captain, Tank Corps. Percy H. Wood '20 enlisted and was a non-commissioned officer when the regiment sailed.

These were the only Cornell men besides myself in the regiment, except First Lieutenant Rice W. White '08, who was detached last year. Not a record to be ashamed of.

Yours,

WM. G. ATWOOD '92,

Col. Engrs.

Cornell Men at London Dinner

Lieutenant Harold Flack '12 sends the following account of the War Anniversary Dinner given by the American University Union (British Branch) in London on April 8, in honor of the American Ambassador.

A War Anniversary Dinner attended by five hundred American college men and forty distinguished English and American guests was given by the British Branch of the American University Union in honor of the American Ambassador, in London, on April 8. Cornell was represented at this dinner by twelve alumni. The Chinese Ambassador, Sao-Ke Alfred Sze '01, was invited to be one of the guests of honor on this occasion, but was prevented from attending on account of his important work at the Peace Conference in Paris.

The speakers at the dinner were: The Rt. Hon. Viscount Bryce, formerly Ambassador to the United States; the Lord Chancellor, the American Ambassador, John W. Davis; Sir Donald MacAlister, Vice-Chancellor, of Glasgow University; Mr. John B. MacAfee and Mr. Lawrence L. Tweedy, of the advisory council of the British Branch, American University Union; Mr. Robert L. Ewing, head of the American Y. M. C. A. in the United Kingdom; and Dr. George E. MacLean, director of the American University Union, British Branch. The keynote of the speeches was "the cultivation of friendly and cordial relations between England and the United States." One of the features of the evening was the college yells, which were given during the early part of the dinner by the different university groups present.

Cornell men present were: Major Louis L. Seaman '73, Major Andrew J. McElroy '98, Hughes Massie '01, Captain Ralph K. Robertson '04, Lieut. Harold Flack '12, Major Robert A. Doyle '14, Lieut. Howard G. Nichols '15, Major Lenox R. Lohr '16, Lieut. George A. Benton, jr., '19, Captain Willard I. Emerson '19, Sergeant John D. H. Hoyt '20, and Duncan Campbell Lee, of London, formerly assistant professor of oratory at Cornell.

Plans are under way for a dinner to be given by the Cornell men in England, at the Savage Club, some time in May. Hughes Massie '01, who is a member of the Savage Club, is in charge of the arrangements for the gathering, at which time a permanent Cornell club will be organized.

THE N. Y. CLUB AUCTION

Preparatory to moving into joint occupancy with the Delta Kappa Epsilon Club at the building at 30 West 44th Street, the Cornell Club of New York broke up housekeeping in its home at 65 Park Avenue on the evening of April 24. First it dined and ate up everything in the kitchen. Then it held an auction and sold to the members present all the furniture of the club, excluding the bar. Unexpectedly good prices were obtained, a total of more than $4,000. One odd lot consisting of the door mat, a matchbox, and a bottle of champagne was bid in for $46.75. Other articles brought prices quite as satisfactory. The door mat and the match box are being held for more complete shipping directions.

During a lull in the auction the annual meeting of the club was held. The following were duly elected to the Board of Governors: to serve until May 1, 1923: William F. Atkinson '95; Neal D. Becker '05; C. S. Rindsfoos '06; A. B. Williams '06; to serve until May 1, 1922: Robert E. Coulson '09; to serve until May 1, 1920: Frederick W. Hackstaff '05.

Although the arrangement with the D. K. E. Club does not formally take effect until the 1st of May, the members of the Cornell Club since April 15th have been generously invited to make use of the privileges of the new Club. With the old quarters largely dismantled in the process of moving, this invitation has been a most welcome one, and a normal evening at 30 West 44th Street now sees as many Cornell men as Dekes in the dining room. There is little doubt in the minds of the members of both clubs that the amalgamation will be effected to the complete satisfaction of both of the high contracting parties.

On Monday morning each member of the Cornell Club received a formal invitation from the House Committee of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Club to a reception to be given to the Cornell men on Friday afternoon, May 2d, from four to seven o'clock.

DRAMATIC CLUB SUCCESS

The Cornell Women's Dramatic Club scored a distinct success in its presentation of "The Yellow Jacket" at the Lyceum Saturday evening. The acting was excellent and the club deserves credit for the best amateur work of the season, and for surpassing its own standard set by "She Stoops to Conquer," the major production last year. Individual honors are difficult to place, for all of the girls did well, most of them unusually so. The coaching was adequate and painstaking. Regene Freund '19 as the sardonic, bored, and sophisticated "property man" made the most of a part which required a great deal. Gladys Bleiman '19, in the dual role of the chorus and Chi Moo, the first wife of Wu Sin Yin, and the mother of young Wu Hoo Git, also was especially good. One of the rare places in the play was the scene in which she takes leave, obeying the command of the voice of her ancestors, of her little son. Marcia McCartney '20 played, with distinction, two parts, first that of the maid to Due Jung Fah, the second wife of Wu Sin Yin, and later that of Moy Fah Loy, the daughter of the purveyor of tea to the emperor, and the one who enables the hero finally to win the coveted Yellow Jacket. Janet MacAdam '21 did well in the role of the effeminate second son of Wu Sin Yin. Erna Adler '19 had the part of young Wu Hoo Git, and was well cast; her facial expressions were excellent. The work of Emma Townsend '19 as Wu Sin Yin and of Alice Smith '20 as Tai Fah

Min, father of the second wife, was commendable, and their costumes were especially handsome. Helen Hui '20 played effectively the part of Lee Sin, the farmer, and her acting in the heavy scene where Lee Sin is told to kill Chi Moo was especially noteworthy.

1909—ALL OUT!

In freshman year this rallying cry brought us on the run—one thousand strong. Let's prove that the famous old battle cry has lost none of its punch in all these variegated years!

Our ten-year reunion—June 20, 21, 22 and as many more days as you can pry loose. This is slated to be our biggest reunion and the biggest days in Cornell history.

You are coming, of course, but how about that clam room-mate of yours who never answers your letters? Make sure he will be on the job with bells ringing! If he gets mulish about it, send him lengthy collect telegrams until he yells quits.

The same old committee will hold down the works—Fay Battey, chairman, Lew Henry, Dick Bishop, Jimmy Cox, Newt Farr, Van Lindsley, Jay Harris, Werner Goetz, Tede Rockwell, Connie Roland, Creed Fulton, Leon Rothschild. Note to Committee: Wire me your present addresses. I need them.

If you want rooms for the new family, tickets or any "agency work," write your Secretary. More news later, but book your reservations now for the biggest "welcome home" of all.

DETROIT LUNCHEON

At the luncheon of the Detroit Cornell club at the Board of Commerce on April 24, Lieut. Colonel George Walbridge '98 spoke on "Porto Rico." His talk was illustrated by lantern slides.

PART OF THE MATERIAL OF THE CORNELL F. A., R. O. T. C.

Photograph by H. L. Walker

The Field Artillery Unit

The Work of Training Reserve Officers in this Branch Well Under Way.

With the re-establishment of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps the first of the year at Cornell a new feature was introduced into the college military training,—a Field Artillery Unit.

Much interest and enthusiasm in the field artillery training at Cornell have been shown by the Faculty and student body. Selected from over six hundred volunteers, the present organization consists of three batteries (two light and one heavy), which constitute the Cornell Battalion, F. A. R. O. T. C. Unit. The personnel of each battery consists of six cadet officers (most of whom have been commissioned in the Field Artillery Service during the war), thirty cadet non-commissioned officers, with a total of approximately one hundred and fifty cadets.

The Government has detailed for permanent duty with the establishment, six commissioned and six non-commissioned officers of field artillery, and has provided complete and modern ordnance equipment, including a three-inch battery, types of latest light and heavy material, American and foreign, fire control instruments, with signal and engineer property. The field artillery equipment and facilities at the University are such as any Field Artillery regiment in service might well envy.

The training may be classed into the following main sub-divisions: A. Ordnance. B. Gunnery. C. Equitation, Horsemanship, Draft. D. Artillery Trucks, Tractors, Gas Engines. E. Field Artillery Topography, Orientation, and Communications.

For instruction the batteries are divided into cannoner squads, driver squads, and instrument details. It is expected that during the first year, the cadet will attain proficiency as a cannoner or gunner; as a driver and rider during the second academic year, and will qualify during the third year in conduct of fire tactics, firing data, fire control, and instrument work. The instruction carried on is both theoretical and practical, including, besides the main courses in field artillery, such miscellaneous subjects as administration, organization, military law, hygiene, guard duty, pistol practice, map making, minor tactics, maneuvers, calisthenics, athletic games, etc. The program of training includes three summer camps of six weeks' duration each, during which time of practical application, competitions will be held between the intercollegiate field artillery units.

The University authorities are undertaking the erection of stables for the shelter of twenty-eight riding and sixty draft animals. With the commencement of the next fall term, the mounted instruction will be a most interesting and varied phase of the field artillery work at Cornell.

Keen competition exists among the batteries, as well as between the artillery and infantry units. At the end of each year, a cup will be awarded to the best battery and a medal to the most proficient cannoner. The specially selected students undergoing the field artillery training are exceptionally apt and alert in mastering the work. The battalion has developed a high esprit and fine spirit; the aim of the Cornell unit is to be the best of all the college units, and with this sense of pride Cornell men have made a rapid start towards that goal.

The object of the field artillery unit is to qualify college men for commissions in the Field Artillery Reserve, but co-ordinate with this end in view is the object of simultaneously producing a more useful and better citizen.

The Field Artillery Battalion at Cornell is young in years, but will give an account of itself to the pride and satisfaction of its Alma Mater.

I. K. BERNSTEIN left Ithaca last Monday for Gary, Indiana, where he will be associated with the Glueck Realty Company.

Dr. SAMUEL A. MUFORD has been discharged from the service and is now a member of the staff of the Clifton Springs Sanitarium.

GUN CREW IN ACTION

Photograph by H. L. Walker

The Drill Hall is the scene of constant artillery action such as this. There are eight men to a gun crew, two of the crew, No. 3 and the gunner being concealed in this picture behind other members. The gunner sets the piece for direction, and another sets it for range. A third sets the fuses. All crouch to obtain protection from shrapnel. The piece shown is a three-inch gun, 1905 model, the American standard before the war. Its caisson chest is to the left. The materials shown near the wall are part of the pieces and equipment of the Field Artillery School established at the University.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

MICHIGAN'S present enrollment is about 4,500 or one thousand fewer than normal.

THE TRUSTEES OF YALE have voted to increase to $4,000 the salaries of all professors at present receiving less than that sum.

HARVARD'S registration for the term which began January 2 was 2,706, a gain of 35 over the previous year. The corresponding enrollment for 1916-17 was 4,706.

MCGILL is to erect a convocation hall as a memorial to her sons who died in the war. The building will be Byzantine in style and probably octagonal, and will seat between three and four thousand. The cost will be about $250,000.

COLUMBIA'S total budget for next year is $4,588,727.57. Of this sum $3,436,100.57 (an increase of $214,668.66 over the present year) is for the work of the University Corporation, $924,515 for Teachers College, $180,506 for Barnard College, and $47,606 for the College of Pharmacy.

THE ENROLMENT of students at the University of Pennsylvania on April 1 was 5,689. Of this number 1,146 were in the College, 648 in the Towne Scientific School, 1,923 in the School of Finance and Commerce, 314 in the Graduate School, 64 in the Law School, 488 in the Medical School, 533 in the School of Education, and 58 in the School of Veterinary Medicine.

THE MICHIGAN Board of Regents have accepted the resignation of President Harry B. Hutchins, which was presented in October, 1916, and which by vote of the Regents will become effective on June 30, 1919. He has been recommended to the Carnegie Foundation for the maximum retiring allowance. President Hutchins was professor of law at Cornell from 1887 to 1895 and dean of the Faculty of Law from 1892 to 1895.

CHICAGO LUNCHEONS

At the luncheon of the Chicago Cornellians on April 17 at the City Club, the speaker was George H. Stickney '96, illuminating engineer for the General Electric Company and president of the National Association of Illuminating Engineers. The talk was appropriately announced as "something light—but interesting." For April 24 the speaker was Lieut. David F. Taber '15, of the Royal Flying Corps, who spoke on "The British Air Service."

The club is making elaborate preparations for the annual dinner at seven o'clock on May 3, at the University Club, when Major General Leonard Wood and Professor Charles Love Durham, Ph. D. '99, will be the guests of the club. Tickets will cost three dollars. The party will be formal, and service men are asked to come in uniform. For reservations apply to John P. Dods, 910 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago.

THE OLD PALACE CAFE, formerly managed by Hammond and Quinn at 105 North Tioga Street, has been leased by Marcus N. Chacona, who proposes to open about June 1 a confectionery and delicatessen store. Chacona recently acquired title to a plot opposite Risley Hall as a site for a candy store, the first on Cornell Heights.

S. O. S.

On April 1st, we mailed statements to all subscribers whose subscription accounts had become due on or before that date. We appreciate the prompt answer of many to our appeal, but the total amount received is far below our immediate necessities.

We dislike to use editorial space for this purpose, but our needs are imperative; and those whose subscription payments are overdue can render us a real service by making a speedy and generous response.

THE VICTORY LOAN

Have you stopped to think what would be the consequences if the Victory Loan should not be fully subscribed?

It is possible to exaggerate these consequences, and we think that is occasionally done. But certainly the course of business would be seriously affected, since the Government would have to resort to a sudden increase of taxation, for which it is not now prepared; and this would cause, in some lines of trade, nothing short of consternation. And the cause with which we are here primarily concerned, the cause of education, would be the first to feel this.

It is, then, our solemn duty to subscribe for Victory Bonds up to the limit of our ability. Obey that impulse. It is a debt of honor.

And remember that Cornell needs every Victory Bond that you can spare from your pile.

PROFESSOR FIPPIN TO LEAVE

Professor Elmer O. Fippin, '04-5 Grad., of the Department of Soil Technology, has been appointed director of the agricultural bureau of the Lime Association, and will leave to commence the work at the close of the present college year.

Professor Fippin is a graduate of Ohio State University, class of 1900. From 1900 to 1905 he was an assistant first in the Bureau of Plant Industry and then in the Bureau of Soils, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. From 1905 to 1908 he was an assistant professor of soil technology and in 1908 was promoted to a full professorship. He was the first president of the New York State Drainage Association, and was a delegate to the National Conservation Congresses of 1912 and 1916. He is the joint author (with Professor Thomas L. Lyon '91) of "Principles of Soil Management" (1900) and (with Professors Lyon and Harry O. Buckman, Ph. D. '02) of "Soils: Their Properties and Management" (1915).

METRIC SYSTEM LOSES

The Cornell section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers made its meeting of April 24 a public hearing on the bill now pending in Congress to make the use of the metric system of weights and measures compulsory in the United States. Members of the Faculty, students in engineering, and the secretaries of two national organizations took part in the discussion. Professor Edward L. Nichols urged the scientific advantages of the metric system; Professor Albert E. Wells showed the practical difficulties in the way of altering the present methods. Students favoring the change emphasized the ease of computation; those opposed to the change emphasized the great cost and confusion that would follow. Howard Richards, secretary of the American Metric Association, declared that the cost attending the change had probably been exaggerated, and that the use of the metric system facilitates foreign trade. Frederick A. Halsey '78, commissioner of the American Institute of Weights and Measures, spoke of the difficulties not of bringing in the new methods but of getting rid of the old, whence a period of confusion. At the close of the discussion a rising vote was taken on the merits of the question. It showed a majority of those present was against the proposed change.

LITERARY REVIEW

Winter Plant Life

Winter Botany. By William Trelease '80. Urbana, Ill. The Author. 1918. 16mo, pp. xl, 394. Price $2.50.

Last week's recrudescence of winter made it seem highly appropriate to consider a winter book. The volume named above is intended to form a companion volume to the author's "Plant Materials of Decorative Botany," which was noticed in the ALUMNI NEWS for May 2, 1918, page 380. The present volume is arranged on the same plan. There is first a key to the genera including 463 items numbered in pairs (really 926). Then comes the systematic enumeration of the winter characteristics of woody plants; under each genus is added a key to the species. In all 326 genera are described, belonging to 93 families. The number of species and special varieties differentiated runs to about 1,100. Each description is illustrated by good drawings. The nomenclature conforms to that of "The Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture." There are two pages of general references, and throughout the volume are scattered numerous references to articles and monographs on individual genera. It is pleasant to note that a fair percentage of the books and articles noted are in English, and that German has no monopoly. There is a good glossary of twenty-two pages and an adequate index. Measuring 5¾ by 4½, the volume is of a size convenient for the pocket. It will be found a useful and we believe trustworthy manual for the study of the winter phases of plant life.

Books and Magazine Articles

In The American Journal of Public Health for April Dr. Frederick S. Crum '93 has an important article on "Infant Mortality in the United States During One Year of War." The year in question ended September 28, 1918. Forty-six cities were studied, with a population in 1910 of 19,478,021, or 21.2 per cent of the total population of the continental United States exclusive of Alaska—a proportion which has since probably grown to be nearly one-fourth. In these cities, with an estimated infant population (under one year) of 479,665, there were during the year 50,875 deaths or 106.06 per thousand. For the sixteen North Atlantic cities the average was 108; for the four Central Atlantic cities, 151.8; for the five Southern cities, 111.6; for the fourteen Middle Western cities, 103.7; for the seven Western cities, 67.3. The range was from 44 in Spokane to 192.8 in Lowell and 187.1 in Baltimore. Fall River was also high with 174.4. New York had only 88.3, which was lower by 5.7 than in the previous year. Newark, on the other hand, with 94.2, showed an increase of 8.8 from the previous year. The author concludes that "the most immediately hopeful method of attack upon infant mortality is through education of the mother."

In The American Historical Review for April Professor Carl Becker writes an interesting review of "The Education of Henry Adams." Professor George M. Dutcher '97 reviews Denys Cochin's "Louis Philippe d'après des Documents Inédits," Paris, 1918. Professor Wilbur C. Abbott, '92-5 Grad., reviews J. N. Larned's "English Leadership," Springfield, Mass., 1918. Dr. Samuel B. Harding, '90-1 Grad., reviews Professor Christian Gauss's "Why We Went to War" (Scribner).

In Outing for March, April, and May, Horace S. Kephart '85 tells "The Strange Story of the Eastern Cherokees." The article is illustrated. With the May number Mr. Kephart begins a department of questions and answers concerning problems that spring up in camp and along the trail.

In Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering for April 15 Professor Ervin S. Ferry's two volume "Handbook of Physical Measurements" (Wiley) is favorably reviewed. There is also a favorable notice of the late Joseph E. Johnson's "Principles, Operation, and Products of the Blast Furnace."

In The Journal of Forestry for February, lately received, Professor Ralph C. Bryant '00 discusses "The War and the Lumber Industry," Professor Ralph S. Hosmer makes "Some Remarks on State Forest Policy," and Professor A. R. Recknagel writes on "The Timber Census in the Northeastern States."

In The National Geographic Magazine for March, which is a dog number, Louis A. Fuertes '97 furnishes eighty-three magnificent type-portraits of "Dogs We Know," the text being supplied by Ernest Harold Bayne.

In Bird-Lore for March-April Professor Arthur A. Allen '07 describes "The Warblers of Central New York," including six photographs, and Louis A. Fuertes '97 supplies a frontispiece of three varieties of crows.

Professor Wilbur C. Abbott, '92-5 Grad., of Yale, in The Bookman for April discusses "The Literary Aftermath of the War." Professor Henry A. Lappin, of D'Youville College, Buffalo, formerly of the Cornell Department of English, reviews James Branch Cabell's "Beyond Life."

OBITUARY

Joseph E. Johnson, Jr., '92

Joseph Esrey Johnson, jr., died on April 4, 1919.

Mr. Johnson was born at Longdale, Va., on July 10, 1870, the son of Major Joseph Esrey Johnson and Mary Roche Johnson. He was graduated from Haverford College in 1888; in 1891, he entered Cornell, taking a graduate course, and received the degree of M. M. E. in 1892. After leaving Cornell he held the following positions: 1892-3, president of the Cranberry Iron and Coal Company of North Carolina; 1893-4, assistant to the engineer of tests, Solvay Process Company; 1894-5, assistant to the superintendent, Ames Iron Works, Oswego, N. Y.; 1895-9, engineer and assistant manager, Longdale Iron Company, Longdale, Va.; 1899-1901, with the Carnegie Steel Company; 1901-6, engineer and assistant manager, Longdale Iron Company, Longdale, Va.; 1906-9, general manager, Princess Furnace Company, Glen Wilton, Va.; 1909-10, general superintendent, southern furnace and coke ovens, Republic Iron and Steel Company, Birmingham, Ala.; 1910-13, manager of blast furnace and chemical plant, Lake Superior Iron and Chemical Company, Ashland, Wis. In 1913 he opened offices as consulting engineer and metallurgist, at 52 William Street, New York, and was still engaged in private practice at the time of his death. In 1916 he went to China in the interest of New York capital. His volumes entitled "Blast Furnace Construction in America" and "Principles, Operation, and Products of the Blast Furnace" were published by Wiley in 1917 and 1918, respectively.

Mr. Johnson was married in April, 1902, to Miss Margaret C. Hilles, of Wilmington, Del., who survives him, with a son, Joseph Esrey Johnson, 4th, and with Mr. Johnson's mother.

Mr. Bradley Stoughton contributes to Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering for April 15 an appreciation of Johnson, whom James Gayley pronounced "the greatest man in the metallurgy of iron and the clearest thinker of any man of to-day." He thinks Johnson's chief discoveries were the thermal theory of the iron blast furnace (which constituted one of the great advances in metallurgy), his original classification of iron and steel as an unbroken series of alloys of iron and carbon, and that oxide, instead of being an evil, actually increases the strength of cast iron. Mr. Stoughton also tells the thrilling story of how Johnson once kept a crowd of lynchers at bay for several hours and himself handed over the guilty negro to the authorities for trial and execution by due process of law. The story, Mr. Stoughton says, has already been told in The American Law Review for November-December, 1911.

John W. Baird '02

Dr. John Wallace Baird, professor of experimental psychology in Clark University, died in Baltimore on February 2, of a malady from which he had suffered for many years.

Baird was born at St. Mary's, in Western Ontario, on May 21, 1869, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baird, jr., and was educated at the St. Mary's High School and the University of Toronto, whence he proceeded B.A. in 1897. In his senior year he became interested in psychology, which he studied for a graduate year under Professor Kirschmann, and then, working his passage on a cattle-boat, he went to Germany to study under Wundt at Leipsic. On his return, in 1899, he became fellow in psychology at the University of Wisconsin, holding the appointment for two years. In March, 1901, he became Professor Titchener's assistant at Cornell and was made fellow for 1901-2, taking his degree of Ph. D. in 1902. He remained here as assistant in psychology for two more years. From 1904 to 1906 he was an instructor in psychology at Johns Hopkins, and from 1906 to 1910 an assistant professor in the University of Illinois. Then he went to a similar chair at Clark, and in 1913 was made a professor. He became an authority especially "on the phenomena of visual sensation and perception and on the processes of memory and learning." In April, 1918, he was called to Washington to serve on the committee for the rehabilitation and re-education of crippled soldiers. To this work he devoted himself with such application that in November he broke down and went to the hospital, which he never left alive. In 1918 he was made president of the American Psychological Association.

ATHLETICS

Four-Mile Team Wins

Cornell's four-mile relay team won a brilliant victory in the feature event of the annual Pennsylvania Relay Carnival at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, last Saturday, defeating Syracuse, Princeton, and Iowa and upholding the high traditions in distance running established by Jack Moakley's teams in the past. This victory was Cornell's principal achievement.

Walker Smith and J. M. Watt placed second and third in the 120-yard high hurdles, and a quartet of quarter-milers finished third in the one-mile relay championship race. Cornell's entries in the several field events, Bangs and Jewett in the weights, Ramsay and Finkernagel in the high jump, Felter in the running broad jump, and Grigson in the pole vault, failed to score, but this was not surprising to Coach Moakley, the men having been entered largely for the purpose of giving them experience in the competition. Weather conditions for the meet were poor.

Fine running by Dresser and McDermott in the last two relays was responsible for Cornell's victory in the four-mile championship race. Abrahams ran the first mile for Cornell and O'Leary the second. When McDermott took up the running Cornell was some thirty yards behind, but by fast work he managed to cut this distance down materially and when Dresser started the last lap he was only ten yards behind Raymond of Princeton. He overtook the Tiger runner at the half mile and maintained the lead for the balance of the race, finishing thirty yards ahead of Simmons of Syracuse, who had spurted and passed Raymond. Cornell's time was 18.41 4/5.

The best work of the Cornellians in the one-mile relay was done by Mayer and Coltman, the first two runners. Mayer set a fast pace and shaking off all of his competitors turned over a 12-yard lead to Coltman who managed to retain it. Robinson, the third runner, was overtaken and in the final relay, though Watt made a game try, Gustafson, Pennsylvania's crack quarter miler, went ahead and won the race, McMahon of Nebraska passing the Cornellian in the straightaway. Watt had previously run in his heat and the finals of the 120-yard high hurdles.

The hurdle race brought together the principal rivals for the Eastern hurdling championship, Erdman of Princeton, present title holder, and Smith of Cornell. The race was a battle royal all the way through, Erdman beating the Cornellian by a foot. Watt was a very close third. Both Cornell runners had won their heats, Smith easily, Watt after a fine race with Trowbridge.

Baseball Changes

Several changes in the makeup of the Cornell baseball team have been made in the last week in an effort to put out a stronger hitting team.

The infield has been reorganized. Molinet is being tried at first instead of Murphy, Corwin remains at second, Quinlan is playing short, Spiers going to left field, and Marsh has replaced Fritz at third base. Ensworth has been placed in center field and G. Cross in right field. Dr. Sharpe is giving Wagner a try-out at catcher. Among the pitchers now being tried out are McLeod and Gordon, both newcomers to varsity baseball.

The Bucknell game last Saturday was canceled because of cold weather.

HEADS TEACHERS' UNION

Dr. George W. Nasmyth '06 is the president of a trade union of college professors and school teachers which has lately been formed in Massachusetts, and which through affiliation with the American Federation of Teachers will presently become an integral part of the American Federation of Labor. The secretary of the union is Professor A. D. Sheffield, of Wellesley College. Dr. Nasmyth holds four degrees from Cornell (A. B., '06, A. M., '08, M. E. and Ph. D., '10) and was for several years an instructor in physics. He has long been prominent in the work of the Cosmopolitan Club, and expects to sail for Europe this month in connection with this work.

LOUISIANA COMING

Edward E. Soule '88, chairman for Louisiana, has sent out, under date of April 25, a compelling summons to his fellow Louisianians to accompany him to the Semi-centennial Celebration in Ithaca on June 20-23. His promise is that "you can live again your whole college life in a few days" by attending the Celebration.

THE REV. CYRIL HARRIS came to Ithaca last week to take up work as students' pastor for the Episcopal Church.
