Celebrate Valentine's Day with love songs in Barnes

Two piano jazz returns to Barnes Hall tonight, Feb. 14, at 8, when David Borden and Blaise Bryski present an evening of love songs to celebrate Valentine's Day. The two pianists will perform solos and duos of their own arrangements of tunes, including The Sporting Life, My Funny Valentine, It's All Right with Me, Someone to Watch Over Me, Love Me Leave Me, and Love and More. They will also be joined by some surprise guest artists.

Borden is the director of Cornell's Digital Music Program, and Bryski is a doctoral candidate in 18th-century performance practice at Cornell.

Also slated for the evening are performances by Philadelphia's internationally traveled Baroque music ensemble, Tempesta di Mare; the Cornell Sing Tribute Orchestra; and cellist Heidi Hoffman with Richard Faris, clarinet, and Xak Bjerken, piano.

Tempesta di Mare, named after Vivaldi’s famous concerto by the same name, performs chamber music of the 17th and 18th centuries “with nothing more than breath-taking results,” according to the American Record Guide. The group will also perform some of Borden’s own compositions and others’ works, played on flute, recorder, violin, cello, and harpsichord.

Tempesta di Mare’s artistic director, the veteran conductor of Gyorgy Robota, shares the stage with Faris and Bjerken, who are in residence at Cornell.
