Seeking Refuge from Evil.

Chapter 114: The Dawn (Ad-Dawn)
The explanation for the difference in the two words lies in their different connotations within the context. The word "demon" connotes a malevolent spirit or entity, typically associated with evil and malevolence. In contrast, the word "spirit" generally refers to the animating principle thought to inhabit living beings, often associated with goodness and spirituality. The contrast between these terms highlights the cultural and theological differences in how these concepts are understood and perceived.
