

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

At Yale University, Paul Festa earned an M.B.A. and M.A. in East Asian Studies in 1992, and an M.A. in Anthropology in 1994. In Winter and Spring 1995, he studied as an Exchange Scholar in the Anthropology Department at the University of Chicago. In Fall 1995, he continued graduate study in the Ph.D. program in the Department of Anthropology at Cornell University. In 2005-2006, he will be a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Fairbank Center for East Asian Research, Harvard University. He has studied, worked, and conducted research in China and Taiwan for over seven years.