TABLE OF CONTENTS

Biographical Sketch iii
Acknowledgements iv
List of Maps ix
Introduction 1
   The Dangerous Relationship and the Rise of Taipei 3
   Cultural Intimacy and the Nation-State 17
   Secular Rituals and Public Culture 23
   Mimesis and Methodology 31

Section One: Hunting, Nature, and the National Space
Chapter 1. Patrimonial Value and the Social Poetics of Spear Fishing--Part I
   Introduction 35
   The Division of Labor, Sexual Totemism, and the Erotic Triangle 35
   Moles, Military Brinksmanship, and the National Boundary 39
   Transnational Ships, Harbor Globalization, and the Transparency of Low-Visibility 52
   Nature, Nativism, and the Environmental Movement 62
      Environmentalist Ethics versus Native Identity 62
      New Nature Writing 68
      Buddhism and “Setting Free” 72

Chapter 2. Patrimonial Value and the Social Poetics of Spear Fishing--Part II
   Magical Spears, Dangerous Ghosts, and Taiwanese Fortuna 77
   Being the Phallus, Cross-Dressing, and Manly Virtù 96
   Structural Nostalgia and the Gift Society 105

Section Two: Carousing, Sexuality, and the National Essence
Chapter 3. The Political Public and the Socio-Sexual Agôn
   Introduction 112
   Promises, Forgiveness, and the Political Public 114
      Rendezvous and Mobile Phones 118
      Mutual Aid Associations 123
      Night Diving and “Tacit Assurance” 128
   The Socio-Sexual Agôn 133
      Military Paradise 134
      Betel-Nut Beauties 139
      Fantasy, the “Three No’s,” and “Tacit Permission” 149
   Work and Home: Transparency, Hierarchy, and Necessity 155
Chapter 4. “Drinking Flower Wine” in Taipei Hostess Clubs

Introduction 162
Ethnographic Settings 163
Social and Historical Context 169
The Flower Wine Adventure as Ritual Sacrifice
   Conceptual Framework 178
   Pre-Outing Protocols 186
   The Boundary Flirting Stage 194
   The Corporeal Stage 200
   The Karaoke Stage 202
   The Story-Telling Stage 205
Nationalist Ideology, Authenticity, and Timelessness 208
The Cash Nexus and Counter-Conducts 211

Section Three: Gambling, Fate, and the National Dialectic

Chapter 5. Fate in Individual and National History

Introduction 214
Mahjong and the Politics of the Ban 214
Patriotic Lotteries, Underground Lotteries, and the Modern Mobilization of Fate 222
Popular Religion, Millennial Ghosts, and the State of Exception 231
Lottery Fever Redux and Mingpai Madness 236
Structural Nostalgia and the Commodification of Cultural Imagination 245

Chapter 6. Mahjong Agonistics: Fate, Mimesis, and the Martial Imaginary

Introduction 254
Ethnographic Setting: Of Mahjong and Men 254
The Ritual Analysis of Play: Agôn, Alea, Mimicry, and Ilinx 268
   Agôn and Alea in Taiwanese Democracy 272
   The Martial Agôn 274
   Mahjong Mimesis, Rhythmic Intoxication, and the Martial Imaginary 276
Conjuring Fate and Battling Luck 280
Opening a Public Space of Sympathetic Agonism 284
Coda: Towards a Pluralistic Public Agôn 289

Conclusion: Intimacy, Ethnography, and Reflexivity 291

Map One 309
Bibliography 310
Glossary 335