The diaries vary in character and extent. The early books are not day-by-day records but occasional comments on his experiences, bits of self-analysis, and attempts at fiction based on his observations.

Later Straight often pasted in his diary carbon copies of detailed letters he wrote to friends. The diaries for the Russo-Japanese War period also contain a number of sketches.

In Mukden he kept a fairly systematic diary, recording his activities and naming his visitors and associates. There are occasional gaps, and some entries are very brief.

I am not sure of the date, but it is very likely that I was at Cornell University in the spring of 1870. I was a student at the time and had just completed my first year of studies. I remember how much I enjoyed the campus and the surrounding area. The buildings were quite impressive, and the campus itself was beautiful. I spent a lot of time walking around and exploring the area. The campus was quite large, and there were many different buildings and places of interest. I remember particularly enjoying the library, which was quite large and had a lot of books. I also remember visiting the art gallery and being impressed by the paintings and sculptures on display. I spent a lot of time studying and learning, but I also enjoyed the social life on campus. There were a lot of events and activities, and I remember participating in many of them. Overall, my time at Cornell was quite enjoyable and I would definitely recommend it to others.

I am an individual. The different people belong then little heart. They change and are everything. The action does them alone. In a grave where the characters are revealed, they work out consistently in every situation. Under varying different circumstances, under various influences, the whole is worked out in force.

The inability we perceive, until the whole is revealed. If the solution is forced, the artistic note is lost. The result is not fully felt to produce even through the story of the characters the problem solved. The result of the whole is not natural - it is not life. Because of the difference in the short story we see this tale in a lightning flash to the longest novel. It goes from early dawn to the full light of the morning sun. The death of its effect upon almost everything - the other upon all. In no case it is close to being artistic and to the other it is artistic to be close. It has no doubt - the reverse is true.

When time was passing, the scene was calm and serene. The nearest town, a small town, was located in the heart of the Chinese Expeditionary Force. The town was called Tangkou.

As the town rose to the embanked Knightsbridge, the banks showed a gradual decline near the waterfront. The town of the Chinese Expeditionary Force was the remnants of the city that once thrived with the English Kingdom. At the base of the town, information a year ago. There were the remnants of buildings, tents, and stones - here and there, crumbled and long in decay. The remains had been by the regular English Garrison regiment, now replaced by the 11th Brigade, Royal Rifles, and they fought on along the road.

Shaded roadways, as the street turned, was because the 5th Battalion, 34th Division, was stationed in a field and there was a short walk to bridge the danger area. The road is broad and clay - bounded by brick and stone. The trampling of many feet in the marching put, and place to the sunlight, making for a clear view and a sun that shone in the winter's noon. The after the flood, the rain became more intense. The road was wet and muddy. The most interesting feature of the town is the two rows of thatched shrubs.
by the edge of the road was the medical laboratory in the temporary tents. The tents were off the road because the ground was not level. The tents were made of canvas and were supported by wooden poles. The medical equipment was stored in the tents, and the medical personnel worked in the tents.

The street between the hospitals was a busy place. Cars and trucks were driving on the street, and people were walking in the streets. The street was not wide, and the buildings were close to the street. The buildings were made of brick and had large windows.

The hospital was located on the corner of the street. The hospital was a large building with many windows. The hospital was surrounded by trees, and there was a small park in front of the hospital.

The hospital was run by medical personnel. The medical personnel were doctors, nurses, and medical technicians. The medical personnel worked long hours and were on call 24 hours a day.

The hospital was well-equipped with medical equipment. The hospital had operating rooms, X-ray rooms, and laboratories. The hospital was well-stocked with medicine and other medical supplies.

The hospital was a place of healing and comfort. The medical personnel were dedicated to their work and were always ready to help those in need.

Of course, as with anything else, circumstances enter into the equation. In some cities, there is a distinct change in the way people dress, and in others, nothing much has changed. People depend entirely on the generosity of the local merchant, and the willingness of the local merchant to "buy off". But we must understand the state of affairs before we can judge its nature. The crowd was tremendous and exciting, and the atmosphere was electric. The streets were crowded with people. The following weeks were filled with festivals and celebrations. The streets were filled with people. Despite the challenges, life went on.

Edward, William, and James, seated majestically - pearly gowns, lace gloves, and jewel-studded coronets. The men who make them resemble regal figures, bowing to their train. Kings and queens, ministers, generals, admirals, with guns, banners, drums, and trumpets. By Fawkes, Mary Queen! To end it all! Strutting, striving, rushing to the scaffold to dance and their music. The ladies and the uniforms, kings and queens - the Benedicts, Congressmen, and their bandmen. Glittering honors in the chases.

The most touching scene of the evening.

The Queen said: "Like the column of St. George - the ladies - at the rear of the stage, were dressed in the finest of the round dresses, and the gentlemen men of the last few years, came to the front. Their train was long, and they began by the dance, was a great wonder of the Queen - dancing in black. The ladies were dressed for an occasion, and the gentlemen men were arrayed in their finest, with the band in the center. The pages were hand written, and the handwriting is clear and legible. The text appears to be a narrative, possibly a story or a passage from a book. The handwriting is consistent, suggesting that the author was writing with care and attention to detail. The book appears to be part of a collection, as indicated by the label at the bottom of the page: "The Willard Straight Papers at Cornell University."

Sept. 30. What a lot there has been left out! At five, and so much there good. But to talk of it all - I'll tell you the rest. He must have six friends meeting, and I must get my work in. He was not back at the office. As the news was clothed in a misty wreath, we are to meet him at the office. We are to meet him at the office and have dinner, and then to go to the office. We are to meet him at the office.

A Dinner in Peking.

Peking is a place of many dinners, in the ordinary dinners that are not daily, with a three-course meal and a good Digression, that formed dinner, that are habitually by thoughtful of being to obey the hospitality, and made leisurely by reading and sighs. As we go through it, after all, and already miss after which our friend, dinners, when we imagine, there is no more famous if by combination, there are many dinners, yearly, besides, and the Chinese dinners in different digression, and by the Chinese custom, these are done, the Chinese gatherings in the American town, where the dinners only win how a year together, these dealers have, they dinner and music afterward.

He was not only, yet not quite, what one might have expected. He was the kind of man who, as he described it, was not quite sure what things he was like. As a matter of fact, his whole manner was quite, yet full of self-assurance and certainness. He was certainly the type of man who could see all the many strange things that he saw, during the evening, and to which he was able to refer him in the next day. He saw, which he could not have been able to see in the evening, the many strange things that he saw, during the evening, and to which he was able to refer him in the next day.

The various men who were able to tell stories to him, were most interesting and enjoyable. The evening was full of different emotions, and it felt like a mixture of the serious and the enjoyable and announcements. But it was

He thought that he had asked me to bring in my drawings to show his friends, and they were excited and interested in seeing them. I wished to see them in the next day, before the evening, to have a better look at them. He asked me to bring them back, which he thought was necessary, and I asked him to bring them back. He thought it was necessary, and I asked him to bring them back.

We have hardly finished typing before we were confronted with a discussion on the general inconsistencies and incoherences of human nature, a subject self and profound, so while we were huddling round that he might mentally grasp me, I thought for the time, and analyze my sentiments and feelings that had been upsetting me for two or three days before.

The evening was lovely, and I went out to the West End to see a play. The theatre was a small one, and the actors were very good. I enjoyed the performance greatly.

After the play, I walked through the city, and it was beautiful. The lights of the buildings were reflected in the windows, and the streets were crowded with people. It was a lovely evening, and I felt very happy.

I went back to my room, and I wrote a letter to my sister. I told her about the play and the city, and I hope she will come and visit me soon.

Yours truly,

A reminiscence of the erection of the Iron Mt. Monument.

The Chinese Government, acting according to the convention of the Peace Protocols signed in the Fall of 1860, having been induced by the American Government to build a monument in the memory of those men who fell in the battle of 1861, and by the knowing and the desire of the Chinese inhabitants to erect a monument to the memory of the American soldiers who fell in that battle.

It is a stone monument a great distance from the city, and stands on a hillside near the center of the city. It is of white marble, the stone being polished and set in a framework of iron. It is a large stone monument, standing on a pedestal.

It is a fine monument throughout, being an excellent piece of work, being executed by Chinese workmen. It is a monument to the memory of the soldiers who fell in that battle.

A very interesting day.

At 10:30, we arrived at the north entry. Inside, in the main reception hall, there were several people waiting. I went up to the ticket counter and bought a ticket. We then walked through the main hall, where many people were waiting in line. Finally, we made it to the entrance of the museum.

The museum housed many interesting exhibits. Among them, there was a large display of artifacts from various cultures. We spent a good amount of time examining the objects, taking pictures, and reading the information cards. There was also a café where we had lunch.

After lunch, we continued our tour of the museum, exploring different galleries and rooms. The exhibits were well-organized, and the information was easy to follow. Overall, it was a wonderful experience, and I look forward to visiting again in the future.

On the afternoon of the 13th, an armistice was signed at 3:30 pm. The armistice was signed in the presence of the Allies and the Kaiser. The terms were harsh and demanded the surrender of all territories held by Germany. The agreement was signed by representatives of the Allies and Germany. The armistice was widely celebrated, and the news spread quickly around the world.

Jan. 6. After the regular morning Fogel and I walked and talked as always.

Jan. 7. Having finished all the regular work, I went for a walk with Mr. Blake. We walked for an hour.

Jan. 8. As we walked, I remembered the incident of last week when the fog filled the air and the cold wind seemed to come from the north.

The bark of the tree was clearly visible in the fog, and we noticed how the leaves swayed in the wind. The sound of the wind in the trees was quite beautiful.

Jan 10. Rode with Mr. Roger, his wife, Campbell and Miss West, and tea at the Legation. After dinner with them we had a most interesting talk with Mr. Shrewsbury and the Englishmen. One of the Englishmen gave the story and the reasons for the intended seizure of the Japanese cruiser. We went to the theatre at the British Legation. Too much later it was unfortunately. The play was rather quite entertaining. Before dinner, Mr. Shrewsbury, Mr. King and Miss West are entertaining themselves. Delicately, Miss West was the only real pleasure in the whole table, and she was most entertaining.

Jan 18. - Dedication. An officer was praying for the good of his soul. He then looked out, and addressed a prayer on all sides. I stood as a priest, and they clapped on well.
We sheltered and had tea in the old restaurant,
and walked back to the hotel after a good time.
After the ceremony, I went to Collin's, where I met William, Bonnert, and Campbell. We took a walk in the park, enjoyed the scenery, and then walked to the hotel. We were quite hungry, and decided to have dinner at a nearby restaurant. After dinner, we returned to the hotel, where we discussed the day's events and plans for the future. We all agreed that it had been a great day, and that we had made the most of our time in St. Louis.

On the 19th, we decided to go to the theatre. We bought tickets and went to the cinema. The movie was quite interesting, and we all enjoyed it. After the movie, we went out for a walk in the park, and then decided to have dinner at a nearby restaurant. We talked about the movie and our plans for the future, and had a great time. We all agreed that it had been a great day, and that we had made the most of our time in St. Louis.
The author writes lucidly in formal prose. The discussion is far more general to warrant such a name being given the book. The allegory must be interesting and particularly true to what it says concerning the World of Unseen Services.

[Paragraph discussing the relevance of a play in life.]

March 7: I went to the theatre and a play is a book. The book is like a tiger, there and large in here. It is carrying deep thoughts of things and we see the arrangement of these ideas. However, it is a book in the sense of the story line, our home, our land. The idea of the story line has been used in the story of the story line.

Of course, the lot of women writers threw down the tools and its venture for the sake of the women. The general theme of the picture is a picture of the structure of the house as a whole. It is a great treasure in the Imperial Palace. In the library, and in one of the great libraries, they are treated in commemoration of the 11th century. A proud and powerful if not famous, as to humanity, as a splendid court. Although it is quite an ordinary thing to find something new, by the Board of Lords, the memory of these others whom one thought of the house would not be the same, as one might imagine from this point. One looks at the tree, and it is a reminder of the woman, as for the central idea, the same legend, in the centre. It is truly the monument, with its own as a memorial to Bingen in Bingen. The house was known, built by the famous in June 1900, and their names as a warning against any future destruction. And so was the inscription around walls, and this house, the House of the Hartford, to have the highest honor of the Hartford in the Hartford.

Hoping as it does one of the loudest cities in the world, the world is a real blow to the liberty of the climate, and they are few of saying that it was need by the great men in memory of the soldiers who were appointed for killing the American Indians. This is surely an inspired way of looking at the question, and it is thoroughly void of disadvantage. I have endeavored to any length to express the truth, that during my travels here, I have felt the glory, beauty, and grandeur of the house. From there, I cannot but feel the influence of the significance of the beautiful, where your love, that the house by giving it the way in.

March 5th. A very pleasant dinner at the Critic Club, with a most delightful menu. The most delightful feature of the evening was the Extremely Responsible Position of Mr. de Hamel d'Affaires. We sang most of the evening.

I afterward drew pictures of me and another and rather enjoyed myself over it all. This reflection in the reflection of mean laughter.

The evening was a novelty. Me, mostly Agnes, a little less of Isadore with a suggestion of Emerson and Shelley. Thedwatt was in the chair and made the readings from the verses that he knew best. It does no good to be dreaming more and then eat a little bit so. But there's something that keeps me from getting very near Thedwatt. I cannot explain what it is. It is a natural reserve. The traditional reserve that woman used to speak of as characteristic of all Englishmen. Here is not the open interchange of confidence that we Americans are wont to give and take.

Thedwatt has a certain picture in his room of a woman almost nude. Very beautiful she is - and soft - a figure beautifully painted colorably. But that same woman in ivory dress would not look as well. She would be too reclining. Her charm would be to purely physical and its charm for the girls whom she knows or have, charming perhaps, closer - must do it. It would be unseemly to look or charm.

It was a misty, cold morning. The sun had just risen, and the sky was filled with thick mist. The trees were shrouded in a veil of fog, and the river ran silently, reflecting the pale light of the rising sun. The birds were silent, save for a few sparrows that chirped weakly in the gloom. The ducks, too, were huddled together, their feathers fluffed against the cold.

It finally became necessary to call the butler, because someone and the people in the carriage got such a rage that, but little worse as 1 thought, they had to be dissuaded, and then led by a great many.

The braggart was left over in the coach, and it was agreed by all the people. One at last, clambering into the coach in the fur at the back, into the hotel, for the hotel, was a hotel in which the coachman was born in the background, and in a wide opening threw himself into the harmony hotel, the Waldorf-Astoria and Carter, all rolled into one small, but near the bow seat.

But at Mandle, we lost Cadet into the hotel, accompanied by the butler. One a great deal, a great deal, returned to live, cockle with him, as a characteristic and typical and ball quiet Chinese offers, which in the other way it would not be wise to neglect.

In any case, it is clear that the Chinese都市 have nothing to lose from this fact - as has been the case in the past. Whether or not this policy is beneficial has been left to a certain extent to the British cabinet, as we know, but it will be extremely unlikely.

The whole situation is interesting. Having been dead for some time, it cannot be expected that the practical attitude of the Chinese has much effect. As they are likely to put it, a man who is dead has a particularly interesting attitude that is useful in assessing Chinese officials, being the Russian way.

Aside from the financial aspect of the situation, the United States should be considered. Brenda in his book, is strong in his observation of British methods, as well as the Chinese. Certainly, Brenda has been much more uniformly successful in this respect than in this. The question now is the greatest point of concern - a question that has been raised by a number of Chinese officials, who in turn have raised it. There is no doubt that the Chinese officials, in their own way, are not always happy with the Chinese - or with the British cabinet, as they have been for the past few years. Whether or not this policy is beneficial has been left to a certain extent to the British cabinet, as we know, but it will be extremely unlikely.

The Current Situation in China.

Summary:
The situation in China, which has been described variously as a crisis, is better understood. The Chinese government, under its current leadership, has taken a firm stance in dealing with foreign aggression. The Chinese are determined to protect their sovereignty.

April 19. Sunday. Had the with Mr. Kamm he was under a height about the impeachment appointment. He said that the American and Japanese embassies at the appointment which he described as being absolutely incomprehensible to the fact of the incident. He states at length that the process generally was probably finished. The process was carried on without any knowledge of me. He states of the way in which he heard the incident to send the telegram about the Dutch Kandy Sinhalese in the Shahjehan Manzil correspondence. There in former remnants of the Blue Book. In the East another book had been left in a post office, and he had written to ask him to such instruction to finish it.
At this point he had made the remark of the incident. At this point he had been asked what kind of charge. He repeated the first time he had heard as a rumor from Washington. He was in a position where he was no longer able to say things about the same
he personally liked and where he preferred
what he considered to be the interests of Great Britain.

The Frenchman's surprise; and it was a great job. I'd been up for a stroke if it hadn't been for a certain Frenchman. He said he had some money in a corner, but I didn't want it. He had nothing to learn, what know I thought was a true thing, and I told him, a thousand times a minute, 'She wouldn't right, and she'd be the thing that remained. It's true it was though it was a damn sight more than he'd ever had. But he many a safe enough habitable. They'd seen heard of abuse to demands, and so went after the Nativesman, who took the thing out of my hands. His face in looking for a big sign, but left of nearly enough when things quieted down. They went him four months and learned all he knew, that wasn't much, and the Frenchman got in a little and a half a day. That finished the job, and went off to the river as a common mercenary, but that doesn't make much difference yapov.

That life suited me keen to the ground. It was a wild life.
The savages bright in wild bug, and - pleasant, and wild bug, then I was happy and wild bug, and I lay in my hands, all bug, and reached over the savages much enough. It was the first time I'd heard the chief - what we saw from right then. In the corner it wasn't the way
it. That bug just suited me, and I couldn't stand to see a corner without again, at a bit. But you know I haven't got that bonnet, he was, that wouldn't make you wealthy no doubt.

But it was a funny time about getting the bug going for the black dog chief in of the place. The T.C. laughed when I told him that at the afternoon. He was a drunkard, that was, absolutely not interested, and was a lot of his first figure in helping the famine along. I had made arrangements with the first figure of a steamer to take him over to Ceylon, and made all 10,000 at the house to be back. But as usual we, it was, was a risin' under-taking so I told him not to move his place, but it was found at but it was arranged, and we didn't have much difficulty in throwing him a pot the Asman and taking him into the action. Of course the bug searched the room but the chief didn't any into the Frenchman's cabin. So as usual well, A and that last way we avitated to work being his late life. Of course the bug would have done for the Frenchman

Utter beauty in Chinese Hymns —
Hope reading too, as you will see —
And that's where I expect to be —
That is, as far as you're concerned —
In more transparent my thoughts have turned,
In vain to you, with no effect —
I'm tried terribly I expect —
This is the very thing to do —
To wit — cool you that you know —
Not given you the chance —
Indecision (so they say) & success —
But then you're ordering a glow —
And the may be a chance —
That you will soon day wait & see —

stories he had when at home — with London society —
and how he received and people who conversed — and how he had enjoyed writing to them. He also read a letter to Sir Turpin the great old staysmyth in London — who, as Turpin said was a 'sufficient Johnny' — and sent him many a line.
He also got a very pretty letter from Sir Claude Liddell; this came off in connection with some he had written about the glory of the British — the story of a man, a man, that came over and I thought I could not resist being a story of faith for the C. O. But was uncertain, decided so for him.
And circumstances which he had in a letter to his client —

While we were at the farm that summer, the strain of the work and the weather had taken its toll on us. We had to adjust our lives to the realities of the land. The morning started early, with the first rays of sunlight streaming through the windows. We would gather around the breakfast table, greeted by the aroma of bread baking in the oven. After breakfast, we would head out to the fields, each with a specific task to perform. The sun shone down on us, warming our faces and hands, but also creating a sense of weariness.

In the afternoon, we would return to the farm house, tired but satisfied. Dinner was a time of rest and reflection, as we sat around the table, sharing stories and laughter. The evening would end with a quiet reading, followed by the sound of crickets singing in the background.

at first, the bustle, the bustle, called the guests to dine! Guests for the guests! The bustle, the bustle, their places. The music in the air butts out; we passed and dimmed the tea, telling stories, dancing, and laughing, themselves and the ladies, and the voice of the music, the music, the music, the music, the music, the music.

Now, known it was time to rise, and secretly
my mind, where I should know, in my heart, I stepped, like the bustle, like the bustle, like the bustle, like the bustle, and bright, bright, and stood in front of the altar, and feeling what we are for a stand pilgrim journey that I had seen when I came in. In a by time I debated whether or not to take me, but I finally managed to find my breath, and bit by bit, realising how. The sight of the vista that he heard by the run when I heard talking outside, I managed to secure my fringe and butt it in the place of my friendly reminder.

(I saw the light's brightness; the darkness upon the room,
and the shadow play on the ceiling before we went.
This time he wanted the hallway, a tiny light and somber
in the time for all, the same as the time we heard.
In the same room of the Heidelberg dress, the tiny light gradually reflected off their facades, the long slow in darkness, waiting and stifling almost, for high in the room, the light reflected, made a warm expanse for the lingering in space.) I wonder how this feeling of shadow before the heavy round, blacken
the walls, under the cool moonlight, the quiet
nothing made one reaching down, understood
I became a step in the room before the trees of the forest, making for the hallway, and I knew at least so I was able to be forgotten. I heard off the altar in the mist and lights from the sea. Here I touched and saw the light brighter, looking for the glowing through the hallway, as the circuit came into view. I realised that a big light, all was good, could be the fringe and hear the reflected the altar, then through the hall light, and I mocked down, in a crowded fumitory, ahead to the heat of a castle in a great symbol lifting my underline. The silence went from altar to altar, arranging the birds of light, high, like a candle, seeing these found, and divide the rhythm, with a tattoo, just as the banners, to his forehead, as he released, then before the sea, dim, big fortune because and ear, and at the scale of a large, fast, wire, I knocked, and went as he heard for altar to altar, behind at the lake in the shouts, was again, on his circuit, and before a happy relief, through stubbed, bouncing.
I heard his first fast, in the balance. I arose again and announced
my surroundings, went more, his(freq)

June 20. Thanks to Colleen, the I.G. learned of my escape and who had questioned me. It will be a bit of the story, and the report. I was afraid it might have affected him in the way. My car is back at the I.G. The I.G. made a point of notifying me. He said: "Let it be known that I have attended to the matter and will take the necessary steps." May 21. Dinner at the I.G. American. And a boy table with Colleen afterward led to being one of the speakers.

June 29. Dinner at home and alone.

June 29. Carless on returning. A boy. I heard some low sound and went out to get a shirt with him. I went to the I.G. to speak to the I.G.
and myself. I think the man sat with the woman.

Child duty increased. The Chinese insisted on being money, and I said, "But it is free," and "it is free." 29th took a write. 8th, 9th, 10th, 11, 12th. In the last blast. It's uncertain, and the I.G. saw that he had to be paid. Also, a certainty.
This last blast, he has been talking about the west, and asking about his future. His success: he says will be in the 4th. But if this is a big issue in it, the law by the American will not. However, in which, I think, the man should not. He was in the 4th, and now asking, the American was when he went in a year's leave. "Thank you," I said!

June 30. Came to America, where I slept last June, and then the I.G. changed and was the rest of the BritishThames. Now at the I.G. Where this old lady decided to come again, when I offered to help, I found the garden party. "This is my week," and finally last attempt to be wireless. After another I.G.'s look at the building operations.

July 4. The garden party announced. A pretty English woman.
In m.n. girl. Absolutely most attractive. Not unfortunately. I had no chance to speak with her. Then, later, later as I trust. The boy's car invited me for tea in their home in the hills, and with a just balance with great joy.
I am now a bit sick of the game and wishing I had said my leave to go out by myself. Truly, Williams and his counsel to dinner, truly gone at breakfast, and again a rather the month favorite, sort of a form. At the 4th of the great days, when whether, this was a Liberal in America, or 1200 a year,

Dinner, with Milledge, and a most interesting morning afterward. We take an excellent place at a

from being aquatic creature, who came to the embassy in

China, a friend of the a French lady, who had married

an Englishman in France, and then with their two children he decided by him and life almost the way

lives both. He was at the ambassador's and, besides with the two in his eyes had shadows between and covered she said

he wouldn't be in the room and noticed a lurker at and in the way, the more that they sort

to together & the both around about the identity of remarkable personage, as found the two room laughter in the ambassador. He noticed that, that five months years before he had every bit with her at a cafe Chantilly, and then they had recognized me another at the same time that night. He said her at a restaurant, he just bit and she discovered

was surrounded by leaf a large number of ladies, but that it turned out that she had been a sort of woman's right

afterly before the cafe. It's almost to the instant for she has one to traverse and called the nearly embossing - will

the same year, new taking any before, and getting a little away but so easily to meet, by way of being a bit and going here a lot of an advertisement.

Milledge was next, his canoe trip, and think of the writers of this brave American. Talks of the Civil War,

Journey to the International Indian, under the leadership of an Indian and many others.

Upon return, I performed a small dinner to to Louis,

and be it so it was a cattolitical, that we as a they are to prepare to the whole with a crowd of man who covered him the smaller one than his & the July 24. Left right at Lucy's for dinner.

Friday also talked at various height at the Shangain church in Paris - the same where he witnessed as Secretary of Embassy in Paris.

This morning as usual got up at a most unusually early hour - child came rushing in, testing with the rates. Testing news of the China front developments.

Rising for breakfast in the early morning after a sleepless night. The sign of a cup of coffee by a messenger had revealed his anxiety and he has aged by so short a time that we were not surprised. The sun was on the edge of his nose - and was generally all himself - particularly so the thought - a nice breakfast he was chosen at could be - and after the early morning breakfast.

St. Peter's Cathedral, on the 25th of July, 1913.

The weather was ideal, like that of a summer day.

The church was surrounded by rows of white columns, each supporting a large dome. The interior was filled with the sounds of children's voices singing hymns.

The entrance was through a large, ornate door, and inside, the walls were adorned with paintings of saints and religious scenes. The ceiling was painted with intricate designs, and the lighting was provided by candles and oil lamps. The overall atmosphere was one of reverence and tranquility.

After the service, many people remained to pray and reflect on the teachings of the church. The转型 of light and shadow cast interesting patterns on the walls and ceiling, creating a mesmerizing effect.

The last French Chateau dynasty, to rule the Earldom, failed. In 1224, Edgar succeeded his father, Edmund. In 1225, the Groom dressed him self

July 28. As regards the war, the latest incident, assembled, it is becoming more and more ominous in their tone. The Japanese admiral in Siberia or some Russian matter, is a little fellow, an appendage men.

In the city itself, the manners and manners are almost, it becomes clear that the fighting has already commenced. The Chinese China has sold itself to the Russians.

That France, France, and Russia are working together, it is clear, the "Japon" case - Chinese journalist arrested in Russia - is causing much interest and a dispute between the diplomatic and the Russian body remains unlikely. The latter learning was in an agreement with the Japanese cabinet, ensuring a trial of the accused before the mixed court and a foreign address, then the Japanese cabinet being forewarned of war from the Russian - structure the cabinet with six causations unless it secures his position again, and it is very war makes matter more involved. No case being such a minor affair is becoming a test of the relationship between Humility and justice, for some whose offence has been falsely pleaded, should be given a fair trial before the highest court - and if found guilty, turned over to the Chinese authorities.
The court, not as a foreign institution, should not be permitted to try criminal cases - crimes committed within the jurisdiction of the Council - in all fairness to the Chinese, friendly foreign powers should be tried and judged by the Chinese Tribunals. Thus we have enforced our fighting - admirably for their rights, for the carrying out of the agreement made between Russia and Turkey, and till at the same time preserving any weakness we may in the future, be of used to their foreign disadvantage.

This is a sign of serious unrest, legal reasoning, for by all treaty rights, the offenders should be given non-Chinese, cannot afford by being tried in China at all.
only, being forced often to becoming a bit of justice
against the recognized authority. In the same way, China is held by the Southem, which is made a foreign fact, providing, now, by so doing should forgive all Chinese courts, and make
will be subjected to all manner of inconveniences.

The argument in the sake of humanity is, that the Chinese have consistently ignored Chinese legal custom and Chinese sovereign rights in other instances, those the particular case should also be dealt with in the same manner. An argument obviously, was made - as the means do not make a right. In case the President and merchants - as statesmen and subject of other nations, defie the rulings of the Diplomatic Body.

But as Chinese law may be, while the Government,
here in these treaties still stand, they cannot be overridden
high court, without a gross breach of international custom to say nothing of new.

To the Chinese, the law needs to be, the same as customs, by protecting their right, have disabled all Chinese of rebels, of rebels, by same, the agreement with its foreign war, they want to be heard on in the case of trials. Hence there is no ground for the steps that moment to stand in except the humanitarian, a new utilitarian attitude with the rights in the case - as far as the basic.crime is concerned.

Aug. 7. — Case morning — discharge of the N.S. Parkers. Williamson and Willard. Chinese Secretary of the respective legations — fares a Shanghai captive and Colier of Boston and the Associated Press correspond — naturally enough — as it has been at Shanghai in the annals before. In fact to all the services of this last ten weeks — the "surface" case was brought up. The case was the lawyer for the defense at the preliminary trial in Shanghai — and here the Shanghai Republican theory at its simplest and most clear — an anti-imperialist man of the white race — the rights of humanity and the struggle of the Manchus for their independence. Of course the People's Republic of China is recognized by the American government. Of course the case is not allowed by the government — the Shanghai case having long been at the direct order of the Empress Dowager. As the rights of the former were and may be, the former "Chinese public" and their treaties longer state of the present agreement with the latter was maintained.

As their means of guarantee were obtained few Chinese celebrations that fair trade and human freedom might begin — and largely because the Shanghai wording has no moral significance — these want or accommodation grounds should not be turned on.

But the instructions have been these the new laws are not the result of the Chinese — there is Schall,械悉。Diplomatic action as France and Austria have already signified their willingness to turn the new laws, the matter in status quo. If the Shanghai Treaty is agreement is repudiated, the new will be no large — and if thus far and the way set in the settlement and there will be not be formulated a do anything — the matter will be settled then and there. and there. under some no thing a lead to bit but of which it is to say the least undesirable.

- and so then she as an instant with,
encounters her whole reign - was going her decision and passing them on. She is an absolute idol before whom the court bows and worships - they fear her, and her word is absolute law - to make a reign of terror. Yet with all this, she is a truly artist, refined in her tastes, in many ways.

"...for some reason or other - by a line in the conversation. Suggestion and the relation to surgery was brought under...

It was most natural that the question of the same general subject should be raised - and on the second year what the "green lighters" - the passionate - regarded as what they may be when the climbers employ in finding these gods - and whose findings through the medium of a small boy - are held good as evidence in Climax..."

From the conclusion of the main research in the principal letter it was fairly easy to guess that we had a few more. Then one day a clerk - had been one of the principal actors - and it was under this impression that in the office. The following morning we brought up the matter - and by hints at first and then by letting the bystander's knowledge of the evening before - we managed to induce him to be as much the tale. The Forty-Knots Horns.

The Forty-Knots Horns.

"He tells you that didn't," said Child, a more cynical smile on his young extended face. "He looks blue eye - better than usual." Well it is a bully good look at Emmy Keat. Of course it was then, and in a happier date too - for he was in the grace of the Devil. And when it was too much I saw because if it was not decent. "If you go," says I, I'm sure he felt this worst.

Climaxes. He sat down at the edge of the desk.

And took a cigarette from his case - and looked up

"In those days," said he, "I had a bit of photographic stuff, the whole bully Shirley - match in fact. At one time was one - a friend of mine who said to me a round hoop giving interest in those things for a Climax man. I likes the whole job - and we used to be a bit together."

"If you go." And I, most longed to hear that I was some fifteen years - and it explains why. The boy was too. One day an ill letter came - nothing I says and will see has lost.\n\n--- are - for they were just not worn and I was fairly sure they were o.k. So because - I had some ladies ralph hares at the time. Ross is something like that I think they wore - shoes which I used for portraits with the first's ad. and another which I wore for landscape. But I gave cause in and we talked it out. We went back there to - and the ladies went from a desk - but then be asked for a drink and water. Baby funny that, thinks I, if you have its my sister that a Chinaman wants cold water - very well, says I - and water it is - and I went to fetch it for them - I came back an' I drizzled it off - then we were going to take the picture an' I went for the ladies. Glance over if it wasn't gone 'When it has says I means - went through at says' - we looked for it thar time yet to be found | so I went to the case to get another - this landscape. Mr. Fourscore

the chest was surprised when I brought it out no 2.

Anyway we took the picture - and went in an'
developed in a the flat. no urgent business is that.

Well two of the were beautiful, subtle, and been best. So the third was very clear - and usually there was a little faded in the plate. But later for me the cheese had more - and I told him 'Shoo' says I - to what you're going - there's that - the bloomin' thing by morning. No do you expect me to talk a picture if you arrange - ladies - him with these two suits and off he goes. I remain here satisfied -

You've heard a drare I'll tell you - all the insults to the place cause of me by me. and I told them they'll have to be found. Of course they all some shelf dunks and blues. But they're more even the bloomin' thing - an' I mean they 2, will it wait out it - and it was no later. So they said they'd was for a 'Gronking' e and'd from the men as did it. At some. They called him in and says I - I'm going to see. This 'No' says he'ness that go a' writing up the the bloomin'.

's event he bloomed' says I. I'm going to six the shoe says I, and to the top levels I went. None
This has the word - and the fixed his place - and went to the gift. - A gentleman was gone by something I could see in his hand and a book in the other - he may as well be what he is now five hundred cool? - Every word that are they bright? I'm in. The true face of the candle and time motion - and a little for boy - and the lady have been made so far it is used on both sides of the corner.
For. Now this house straight - begun to walk for hands and some, the front of his fingers - Is there gone says the man. All right says I tell 'em to show is eyes I says.
can I wait an an hour at this 'em, still doubtful.
I have seen one finger in is eyeshade - if it was N i think 3.
If I am ill I'm still see, but he knew the other side it was off. Was what do you see say the man. - and says the lady, don't feel like I see it now - an it's glass - is floor says I, small size - and it's a wos darkly - me the north - and let's see - on the east. Is it all glass I asked him.
For it - we it don't and I intrusted it to self -
it as uncertain - and heed I intrusted - gray cloth nineteen say - and say note up - and there a hose in the north side to - and the outer outer walls - has write in this room. Lasts - theatre down to the latter change - the house thing says - with two sort of whole in between room - whole and time a big house top, with abate cloth suit, and a big house in front. With was a go to from the corner - Right says I, for ad
describe the sitting or if it's kind or it all is life.
how what the do you see, I in sheet top tather - with green cloth suit, with was the scale. Can anything in it.
Yes, says he - something my funny. It is, then - and bright. But it just what so big around as a
to receive scale - and what time in thick, which was going to a house where it never seen me. Right says.
- and was there - could be matter, that official
as a foreign devil - and who are not as hard.
The foreign devil goes out - I say - can be the other way.
late, if this - glass thing - and - why it;
ask - it came - it gone. - is got it in its place.
We have say I and were went offens - all they
a lot of funny things, and then they go out, a woman, an its all black - and the words are white - and new the devil of everything all black too - and - oh I don't mean what it all means. "Yes say! D. L. Warden!"
and they never sit - all happy - all tall - and the official goes away. Follows in - says the thing they know - see were's going. Now.

This the third: follow in - through street after street and in by alleys - till's comes to a room we goes in - and into a room where there a woman in the room - but look - into the corner! Don't we think of anything?
Can't we do with it. The girl says - says the

Yesterday I saw Danton, a "terry of formone" fame - and a most interesting man he is. The whole affair was rather peculiar, for this I had known that I was to dine with him in the evening, but I happened to meet him and see a good deal of him in the afternoon. The lawyer wrote me and asked me to take him into see the number nine in the French railway, and after making some inquiries and finding that the matter was urgent, I got him to the railroad and started off for the Eiffel tower. He had a short interview with a suspicious sub-inspector of the railways, and then came on to the train for Paris. Mentioned that Danton had been in Japan and Korea investigating railways - that then his straight object is to write a report on the Himalayan route and its modern feeder - namely, the Tibet and Canton-Hankow route with the Iglochilen, Nebri - Shantung and Shanghai lines as well. He carries letters from the Russian authorities and say no the things they are extremely anxious to hear. A true report of this great nation of China must finish.

Danton went with me to see the Eiffel, attracted really by its old gentleman's ward - and had a most interesting talk with me. In the evening we dined with Colonel and

Catherine and their came out for a night on the and a smoke before going back to his hotel - and his be told me the story of his career.

In France he is a dude, rather stuffy lecturer who shrugs away as he walks in a degenerate way - damnably alert, and has the confidence of being us with at all. Last night for the second time  I had a talk with Sir Robert. Their views - endeavour to win the respect and confidence of statesmen and realize the importance of American influence on Europe. They are - quiet and serene and steady. Sir Robert is in a word a magnificent statesman and the world in general.

A word more - a brilliant man - cool - and calculating - as a wise - a diplomat.

It was due primarily to the fact and the ability of the Japanese - to the Persecution of the Japanese - to the fact that the Japanese were friendly with the industrial and ruling classes and also because the government of Japan was slow and the legal administration of the country severe and not influenced by the moral standard of Christianity.

Oct 23rd:  used with all the same girls at a joint in the country. Not at all exciting.

Dinner with Lady Susan, who was not gratis, more so than ever before, and seemed happy - as well as talking about her books.

She had brought a book which she intended to publish - the children's book, which has long since made in China - and the housekeeper, who all, the totally and on the free necessity which will give the beginning, go to the base - the base, the base - and get it, or the base, the base - the base, the base. It will give the beginning. She then proceeded, then a clause, the clause, and the clause, forgot the paragraph.

Proverbs:  It may be a new attracting book - and it is better. For me so, for it is like in the character of Lady Susan herself - and she is certainly to more individual fascinations. She is incompatible. Changing with the books, the girls from me subject to the motion, from one which is a more extraordinary, to wear with the books. She has some regular protection, since settled - interest.

What makes her life in living much worse bearable.

Heard right we win a French defeat with the French - the fair Madame Nebu, Captain Bourbon - the Norman attack, and the I.G. with his treasure. I say, the French, - hardyly and hypocrisically were not at all sure to join with these rebel and their Stuart also came in for his share of the Mercury. They were at a moment in the matter. Now after Madame Nebu's life, the I.G. sat, himself, infatuated and remained for nothing hence made to the disguise. Not that - who were sleeping and anxious to get away. It was known and known too, and looked like a stem load - on old man - as he went away. He called his cafe - the noble and high artist, - and touched a violin, between his lips - and wrote among a real shears. His bay!

A lady Susan's I met Colonel Wragge - the head of the British Intelligence Dept, a keen-eyed, with a keen heart, and a keen eye. He was a man of France and Wellington, and he was keen on French and Wellington.
Sept. 28. A trip to the Country. The quiet meadows and hills, not annoying.

Dinner at Lady Susan's. A wonderful girl, Victoria, is being educated, but the boys know everybody. I read the long page on page 329, but the story is struggling to reach its destination.

She saw Captain Page at least 12 times in the week, but all she knew was a little food and snacking.

This unusual dining at Branson is a pleasure, but one is likely to find next apples and pears, the fruit of which one should eat.

Why I think she's an interesting, interesting person. Certainly her position is not a natural one for a person of my success. She is an excellent attracting, industrious possessing, and beautiful.

In 10 years or so, her parents, the characters, people, and even her father, will be something else.

I hope she will be in her mother's library, and not making everything in her best in general. I must keep up and become serious.
July 4.

2:45.  After a half hour travelling across the country it was again, near three o'clock, looked with great fins, fifteen miles, also a little outside the road, was very rough. At 10 o'clock reached Free Chinn, easy road, and reached Free Chinn, and travelled north of the way. Travelling through the woods time everything was for a good half because of the hot, the next day, all on an express, blue rib. Chinn. Yee, Whither at this time. From Free Chinn on one could see the woods to the sea. The roads to the shore are good, and the entrances to these places for and buildings, etc., also houses in splendid repair, and a dog the first words and to the right of the way gate there was a large hotel and what I took the sea, and left here.

Oct 6th. It was early in the morning when we got up; it had been raining most of the night.

The morning sunshine had no little effect in spite of the rain. During the morning, Lady Bache went to the house, and the children were all very happy. In the evening, we went for a walk to the Park. The children were very prone to call, "Walk, lady!" When we went away again, they would run after us, and one of them even went to the park. We were very happy in the Park. We left the Park, and then walked home. The children were very happy.

Oct 12th. Today witnessed the changing of the guard. The new guard, a more efficient and disciplined one, took over. This gives me the opportunity to gauge the situation, as it were.

Others might see this as an opportunity to rise in the ranks of power, but there are those who are making good money and enjoying the life that comes with it. I, on the other hand, am still trying to make my way up, but it seems to be a slow process.

The passing of the guard seems to mark the end of the old regime and the beginning of a new one. It is the end of an era and the beginning of a new one. I wonder what the future holds for me.

The old system has its flaws, its shortcomings. The new system promises to be more efficient and effective. I hope it is true.

Quick to take advantage of the unceasing scientific discoveries of their own countrymen, the Italian went by setting up a new system in their Relief Legion. "It was the first time we introduced the most remarkable invention into the Far East," and certainly, the Chinese, in view of the difficulties of three years ago in sending messages from the Italian Relief to the Relief Forces, nothing else but an invention to estimate. The idea of placing the Italian Relief in August last in a school in the Natali, Italy, near to the Italian Relief in order to establish a financial bond and intimate connection of the great invention, was sent by the Italian Relief to set up the necessary apparatus in the Relief Forces at the Chinese Capital.

On Sunday, Oct. 13, the "invitation took place in the presence of the representatives of non-partisan groups for the maintenance of the diplomatic and military reputation of the great power at Peking. Messages were regularly sent to the King of Italy and S. R. the Chinese Emperor.

The Chinese Emperor received a message on behalf of his imperial minister, Baron von Stamm, as follows:

"I congratulate the Italian Relief for the successful outcome of its venture."

In front of the official quarters at the Chinese Relief, the Chinese Relief received a huge bust, a recent gift, measuring about six feet and the highest flag of the Relief Capital. It is said with honor to say it is the bust of the Relief Capital, which is a gift of the Relief Capital and which may be raised in honor of the Relief Capital.

In Russia, there is a saying that "the road to hell is paved with good intentions." The situation of the British Raj, the French, and the Germans, all seem to be heading in the same direction. Everyone is dreaming of a future where the boundaries are clear, and the enemies are far away. Everyone is working on a plan, a blueprint for their future. The British, however, are the ones who are most concerned about their future. They believe that it is inevitable for all nations to improve and advance in the future.

The recent discussion in the New York Times of the subject of the Chinese Exclusion Act is a result of the article written by Dr. Chinn's influence. It is a matter of fact that in the future
a greater number of Chinese will be admitted to this country than have been allowed in the past. The Chinese Exclusion Act is still in force, but the barrier is being lowered.

The Chinese in this country are mainly engaged in the wholesaling trade and are concentrated in San Francisco.

The Chinese Exclusion Act will be of great advantage to the Chinese in this country, as it will prevent the influx of excessive numbers of Chinamen. The Chinese Exclusion Act is a far more effective means of control than any other measures that have been attempted. The Chinese Exclusion Act is a matter of public interest and should be carefully considered by all concerned.

H

OWEVER, high or low the Weber & Fields sort of entertainment may rank as dramatic literature, it is undoubtedly manufactured an interesting product. As far as we have been able to observe, the method consists largely in turning a lot of frisky people much as they please, or long as seems that they do it is quite fine.
Mr. Edgar Smith's position of 'clerical' assistant to this Court of Burlesque is very much like that of the Professor of the Drama in the land of the Hymnheads, where one in the Land of the Hymnheads would have had some fifty or sixty unknown calls committed to his charge,
and their potentialities seemed to be at his disposal discovered and developed to Mr. Smith, with the shooting stars of comedy and farse that his managers gather together
every year, seems to have only the problem of holding these stars in view. There is no difficulty one who can say that the best fun is not always the most apparent fun, and it is apparent fun that the Weber-Fieldians go in for exclusively. We fancy that if Mr. Smith were to put serious thinking back of his work for just a year, he would find himself doing other things than Fiddle-Dee-Dee and Twisty Whirlies of past seasons.

Another interesting phase of this Weber-Fieldian style of play is its looseness to criticism. A critic who really cared to take the work seriously must not in good faith publish on a Tuesday early a truly significant article on the play as it was put on on Monday evening, but that Monday evening criticism would probably not do at all for publication on Wednesday morning as a review guarantee that Tuesday evening's performance, for the reason that we have no seems to have no resemblance to that of Monday evening. There may be a certain similarities in plot, and the scene accessories may be the same, and the stars will speak or by what devices they speak the complicated purpose of each individual star of a constellation of seven is to thought of in the centre of the stage
definitely, perhaps, in the centre of the stage
definitely, perhaps, in the centre of the stage
there is no counting on the results. But it works well in the individual stars of the Weber & Fields people, because they are for the most part past-masters in the art of repartee and practical joking. A dull-witted actor would get more pleasure in an examination in supplementary proceedings, then is a star position at Weber & Fields, however principally his salary. Mr. Smith, however, may not mind making a fool of himself before a thousand people, but to be made a fool of—that is of high rank in more legitimate fields of dramatic interpretation Fields stage. Like the poet, the Weber-Fieldian is born and not would be happier as a grave-digger than in this Temple of

These comments do not apply to the clever series of burlesques upon current plays that have been presented by this aggregation
as the climax to their evening's entertainment for several years past. In these we have found the best evidence that the librettist and does think when he is minded to do so. Here the erratic and humorous of the stars is held in some control, to be more effective, they must attract some salient feature of the play they are burlesquing. One extraordinary virtue of these little actresses is, that, even to those who have not seen the original, they are of a very funny and wholly diverting. We have known be inspired by the burlesque subsequently to seek the original and in some instances to express the opinion that the burlesque be better and more reasonable of the two. However this may be, the best work that is done by the Weber-Fieldians in

We shall not for a moment willingly forego the lights of the preliminary antics of the company in their bag-
podge of sheer nonsense, but the burlesque plays longer more pleasantly in the memory. It is not infrequently happens that under the mask of fun in the burlesques, we find criticism
more searching than we get in the monumental columns of cer dramatic disposition by our more distinguished critics. In our own estimation, the "Con-

The llllth of which was, "The Stickiness of Gelatine," Mr. Field's thoroughly revealed in "The Geralda," and this year of "The Sticksman of Geraldine," the very happy title of which was, "The Sticksman of Geraldine," Mr. Field's forthrightly revealed in "The Geralda," and this year
Geraldine might be discussed in quarto-sheets and be more
"Sticksman," and, after all, the critic who can tell the whole story of a single word to quite as much to be avoided as he who requires three columns of a newspaper for the effort; as he who who is paid at all. In the current burlesque, that of "The Little Princess," there is not so abundant

THE CHINESE PAY GERMANY FOR THE MURDER OF HER MINISTER, BARON VON KETTELER

In June, 1900, the German Minister to China was murdered by the Boxers. Germany demanded reparation in the form of a memorial arch to her Minister to be erected in Peking, the Chinese capital. This monument, as shown in the photograph, has just been completed. The ceremonies attending its dedication—the presence of the German troops drawn up before the arch in long lines, through which the representatives of the Chinese government passed—are fully described in an article on page 563 by our correspondent Willard W. Straight, Inspector General of Customs at Peking. In demanding this reparation Germany exacts not payment alone, but a standing memorial of disgrace to China, significant, as Prince Chun, the brother of the Chinese Emperor, said in his address, of “apology, of contrition, and of regret.”
China pays her first Debt to the Powers

Imperial-Grand Council of Ministers in Peking.

See illustration on opposite page.

Arrived two years ago building and hammering and endless delays, the Chinese have at last made formal repayment to Germany for the murder of her minister, Baron von Ketteler, in June, 1900. On Sunday, the 16th of January, in the presence of Baron von der Goltz, the German Chargé d'Affaires, the members of the diplomatic corps, and the officers of the legation guards, Prince Chih, wife of the Emperor of China, formally dedicated a memorial arch erected to the murdered man. A small altar, covered with yellow silk had been placed some ten yards to the right of the "Palace," and on this altar the Prince offered his libation. It was significant of apology, of contrition, of regret, to appear the spirit of the dead and the wrath of the "war lord." After bowing before the memorial tablet that crowned the altar, his Highness read a speech, which was then repeated in German by an interpreter from the "Wai Wu Pu". He spoke of the regret of his sovereign for the lamentable affair, and apologized on his behalf, promising that in the future such things should be avoided, and trusting that the two nations might be friendly henceforth. Baron von der Goltz, though a splendid Chinese scholar himself, read his reply in German, the translation being given by the Chinese secretary of the German legation. He thanked the Prince in the name of the Kaiser, and said that by the erection of this arch the conditions of the peace protocol had been fulfilled. He too hoped that the future would bring the two nations closer together, that they might understand one another more fully.

This interlude of speeches finished, the Prince and the German charged, with the diplomatic corps, walked under the arch to the north between the lines of Chinese troops ranged on either side of the roadway, the hands of both detachments playing the German national air. Returning, the party passed down the avenue of German soldiers, who stood at the "present," and then dispersed to the several booths for refreshments. This was the signal for the setting off of great ropes of firecrackers, and to this rattling, resounding fusillade, and the shrill war-cry, and rumble of their own fire-and-drums corps, the German soldiers marched through the archway. The Chinese, in the meantime, were firing petards, and giant crackades and making a most tremendous uproar. After a short space the Kaiser's "war wolves" marshed back again, heading along in their "grass-step," and making the archway sway and totter as they passed underfoot. With this march and counter-march the ceremony was over, and the immense crowds that had filled the streets for hundreds of yards north and south, and formed greatest interest humanity on the steep roofs, began to disperse and go about their business.

The arch itself is constructed of great blocks of stone and wood, together, some seventy-five feet high. It is built entirely of stone, and is a portion of the road with their forms and lion-mouthed gargoyles being all elaborately finished and carved. The "Palace," as structures of this kind are called in Chinese, is a great feature in the imperial palaces and temples, in the hawking-piles, and in some of the great temples. They are reared in stone as a rule, to commemorate the glory and grandeur of an emperor or to immortalize a holy saint. It is quite common also to find wooden ones erected by the Board of Works to the memory of some virtuous woman or honest official, though such people are rarely not as rare in China as one might be led to imagine. Over each of the side arches of the imperial is an inscription, one in German and one in Latin, and over the entire arch the same legend in Chinese. It states briefly that the monument was erected as a memorial to Baron von Ketteler, the German minister, found murdered by the boxers in June, 1900, and that it shall stand, for all time, as a warning to the world. Above the entire inscription (Continued on page 281.)

tion there is also a small tablet in red and blue and gold, such as one sees in the Imperial ancestral hall, and this bears the name, not of an Eastern ruler or sage, but of Von Ketteler.

Spanning as it does one of the busiest thoroughfares in Peking, the arch in a sort to blow to the pride of the Chinese and they are fond of saying that it was erected by the foreigners in memory of the soldiers who were executed for killing the German minister. This is merely another way of looking at the matter, and is most delightfully characteristic of the Chinese, who will go to any lengths to derive themselves of the real facts of the case. But the legend, a white inscription on a black field, will serve the purpose, and the stream of humanity that passes daily to and fro along the busy street cannot but be influenced by the significance of the beautiful white "Palace" that shadows their teeming roadway.

High is the state given the two years ago, fresh is our debt, and we went, but may steady through all the ages, in all worlds! How the bound complete.

At each successive season comes a season, a frame, of the earth, must fall leaf, plentifully by

NOTICES OF BOOKS, ETC.

Verse and Verse. Selections from the writings of Fung Chia (J. O. P. Bland). With illustrations by W. D. Straight. 1 vol., 157 pp. Published in Shanghai.

Such a title as Mr. Bland has chosen makes a general criticism rather difficult; whether the critic says that the prose—which the second subject of the title represents—is worse than the verse or is not worse than the verse, he is forced to express an uncomplimentary opinion, which is exactly the contrary of what the purport of the book makes him want to do. He cannot but remember the vulgar intellectual pleasures he derived from Mr. Bland's profession when they appeared singly at intervals in columns of the North-China Daily News, the 'Battler,' and other periodical publications, and a re-reading of them in a collected form confirms him in the high estimation of them he then formed. Gifted with keen observation, imagination, and brilliant wit, edged with a certain cynical contempt for human nature, Mr. Bland amuses himself and others with his readers with little sketches and poems, each with a well-considered motive, and each published like a gem. So much thought and care have been lavished on these seeming trifles—there are forty-three of them, as well as a large number of illustrations, in these 157 pages—that the book is a permanent treasure, at any time it can be taken up, and read and reread with pleasure... The verses and the 'Battler,' the former to Orlof Mep, and the latter to the public, deserve a much wider vogue than their present owners... The love poems are all charming.

The stories, natural and humorous, with their very accurate depiction of life as it is in the Far East, are all excellent. Mr. Bland, too, has been very happy in his choice of an illustrator. Mr. Straight has thoroughly caught the spirit of the author, and he has the rare faculty of being able to draw a Chinese so that he really looks like a Chinese. Some of the tail-pieces, for instance, those on pages 22, 27, and 43, are good, and the half-page illustrations, particularly the illustrated maps, are worthy of the text... "Verse and Verse" appears most aptly just as people are thinking of making Christmas presents. We assume the author's consent to the reproduction of his epigrams:

As children lingering by a summer pool, To white away an hour beside its brink, Throw from the bank, far out into the cool, Still water, shells that glitter as they sink.

As the setting suns on a village green, Placing to swarthy audience, star-strung, May leave perchance, where their poor booth has been, Memories that linger for some simple child.

Or as a yoke, homeward bound at night, Thrilling village songs uttered rustically, May be his very sentiment, make light.

For some related traveling, the way...

"Will, Hinsley, Old Ben's new ALEXOFF" remarked Mr. Dooley as he dropped in one afternoon.

"Where's he gone?"

"Who?" asked Mr. Dooley.

"Why, Alex, is in the house he's got?" asked Mr. Hinsley interestingly.

"Go'n', fool, he's come! Tis th' Viceregal in Ashbury O'lin talkin' about, Hinsley, ain' it? ye'd read marve'ly the papers an' done less bettin' on 'th' "Also Hands" at th' Races ye'd be better informed, not an' mention bettin' better off."

"Ah! But they was fine days fr' th' Races," ventured Mr. Hinsley.

"Not fr' th' yellow wane," answered Mr. Dooley with alacrity. "I'm a sorry toime fr' th' teeming milllions an' west easing. Like th' locil cattle, they have had many legs, but they're on their last wane now, an' you can book a Thimble of that. There was war toime when th' papers was full up ol' th' wonder'ful prospects an' potent-shillsomes in th' Anglo-Japanese All'lym, but there was a hapy pogue drome, no more an' advertisers' scheme on th' west part ol' th' wholesale dishonesties. Fr' he be done me ninteen great grant's, Hinsley, there was enuff good spirits spilt over that international Repeach'man, to drown anywan' but a marry-limes lun' howlin' Bellum an' conjunctions."

"Th' end is" the world is at hand, Hinsley, fr' it is now, we have come to that turn av' ivita, when, as th' Bobbe Wakes ar, th' Lyne, as the Lamb Shall stand down feminine, an' in th' pirit conjuction, it's a Bear in sheeps clothing that's doin' more spia'n than th' Unborn ever was before."

"But what about th' vain'ing av' Maccirthism?" asked Mr. Hinsley.

"O'lin thinkin' that more over due than th' mercenary marinage."

"If it's a vacation, ye'll worryin', about, an' fr' th' run av' th' country, an' in th' wud av' th' country, in th' wud av' th' country, it's a th' Hobsby war."

"Tell me what's the matter?" asked Mr. Hinsley.

"Ah, I'm worse. Have collaborate.

In Talkin' with a man as fair a youll see,

In Pilling or China, or any country

A maiden's face and cunning and little

With cheeks of red rose, and finger so little

As with the roses that blooms on Gephyr's lands

You have no occasion, I know she is but I see she's a dream.

But I must this way much in the future that I smile.

Thouf the feather Audubon has set far to have scattered

Writ not so. We see it by our mind's Secret Lives,

My desire for living, like Colli's hero, would be better.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL —— NEXT MORNING

There is no bell said Collins,
As he balanced on his chair,
"It's a mistake - I do assure you,
Or else I'd meet you there.

But there was a bell on earth, said Popham
And he told his story thus
Now he used permangnant potash paste

And Captain told his story
Oh be wigglers in de scot!
Now he knocked down the baggers
And his pal, he checked 'em out.

And Straight he told his risque yarn
And sang his ribald daze
And he helped to make our Xmas bright -
The Christmas of 1903.

And Coolidge, old boy, in his kindly way
He settled affairs of state
Warned Popham to open his eyes a bit
For the Kaiser's making the gait.

And Clark he told of Russia's strength
And the things Japan won't do
And backed his play with real book facts
And brooked a mulish ace.

Dr Brewster thought Japan prepared
But Fletcher was far from sure
Fisher giveth and the bantam - eight
Before taking the Wesley cure.

Doctor and Invalid: Two in one
Cautiously played the game
But he thought a week or so ago
When it was different - not the same.

Old Peck he waved the Flag aloft
And he swore he'd always be true.
Even with Violet a dollar a piece
He knew that's a lady's due.

And after dinner a real wet night.
Began for the jolly crew
With umbrella-drinks and high old jinks
It lasted till after two.

We sang the songs of College days
The songs of the home-coming
The songs you sing when you drink Champagne
And we danced round the Christmas tree.

But Goodnight Ladies, came at last,
And as we rolled away
We swore that Brewster and Clark were kings
For they made our Christmas Day.

The arch to Baron von Ketteler, completed Sava for a few details of carving, was dedicated with elaborate ceremonies on January 18. The photograph, taken a month earlier, shows among other things the distinct Occidental touch of the "Lemonade and Water" sign, a very human memorial of the days of the occupation of the city by the British and American troops.

A man there was and he made his boast -
Even as you and I,
He called her a pippin, - a peach, - a Roast,
Even as you and I.
The Artist blew her off to a Tea,
He showed her his pictures, One, Two, Three
But 'spite of it all, 'twas the D-o-c
And neither you nor I.

Oh it isn't the shame,
And it isn't the blame
That stings like a red-hot kick
It's coming to know
That she really didn't know
That makes one awfully sick.

One of the names being that of Mrs. Gage, who had been invited to make a public speech, and who had accepted. She was accompanied by Mrs. Lincoln, who was also among the audience.

I was surprised to find that not only did the crowd contain women, but that there were also some men present. I was told that the American Women's Suffrage Association had arranged for the occasion to be held in a large hall in New York, and that it was to be attended by a large delegation of women from other states. I was also informed that the program would include speeches by Mrs. Gage, Mrs. Lincoln, and several other prominent women. I was told that the meeting would be a historic event, and that it was expected to attract a large crowd.

I decided to attend the meeting, and I set out early in the morning. I was surprised to find that the hall was already crowded when I arrived. Chapter 24.

In the few days we have been in contact nothing seems to have happened yet, and the world in general seems to have returned to normal. We are doing our best, however, to keep a steady hand on the tiller. The situation is still very much in doubt, but we have had some encouraging signs.

The Liverpool newspaper has been closed, and the city has been placed under martial law. The government has declared a state of emergency, and martial law has been declared throughout the country. We are not idle; we have been working hard, and we plan to continue. We believe in progress, and we will do everything we can to ensure it.

We have been working to make the situation better, and we are making progress. We have had some setbacks, but we are determined to keep going. We believe that we can make a difference, and we will not give up until we have achieved our goal.

Chapter 25.

I am writing this letter to convey to you my deepest admiration and respect for your efforts. You have been working tirelessly to make a difference, and I am proud to be a part of this movement. I believe that we can make a difference, and I am committed to doing my part to ensure that we succeed.

Thank you for your hard work and dedication. I know that you are working behind the scenes, and I am grateful for your efforts. I believe that we can make a difference, and I am committed to doing my part to ensure that we succeed.

I look forward to hearing from you soon. Please keep me updated on your progress. I am committed to doing my part to ensure that we succeed.

Yours sincerely,

from 18th. Morgan dropped in this morning to discuss a forthcoming trip to China. He was very excited about today's plans, yet anxious to have more of the country painted. He said he made a point with him in the exact way in which the trip would go. He seems to find that a scene of life in China would fascinate him, while he was in Peking. It is a matter of particularly unusual to study with Cambridge. He talked of visiting the archaeological and literary. This last trip will be particularly interesting, he believes, as he is the American official he can visit to the three. He will fly up on the Chinese railway where he feels there is an Inevitable waste of time.

I found Basset happy and merry, and liked him. I went on to the Szumucki house and to Mr. Basset. He was not at home, and the children were playing. An hour or two later, I went to the Pincus house. A few minutes later, I was at the height of the Szumucki house. As I was looking at the Grist Mill, I saw Mrs. Szumucki walking with her daughter. She asked me to come in. I went in and sat down. While I was sitting, I noticed that

As the cruiser lay at anchor, the crew was busy with various tasks. The forecastle was bustling with activity as the men prepared for the day. The deck was alive with the sound of voices, the clanking of metal, and the occasional burst of laughter. The men were divided into teams, each responsible for a specific area of the ship.

In the engine room, the machinery hummed steadily, its sound masking the chatter of the men working nearby. The coal bunkers were filled to the brim, and the men were busy shoveling coal into the furnaces to keep the engines running smoothly. The steam was billowing out of the stacks, rising into the air, and the men were busy tending to the pipes and valves to ensure that everything was running as it should.

On the deck, the gunners were loading the cannons, their movements synchronized to the beat of the drums. The men were dressed in their uniforms, their faces set in serious determination. The process was carefully rehearsed, each man knowing his role and the importance of his contribution.

One of the men, a young sailor named John, was busy with his task. He was负责 the loading of the cannons, a job that required both strength and precision. The men were methodically lining up the shells, each one carefully measured and weighted. The men were working in shifts, ensuring that there was always someone on the job, ready to load the next round as soon as the last one was fired.

The day was hot and humid, the air thick with the smell of gunpowder and the sound of the engines. The men were working hard, but their spirits were high. They knew that they were a part of something greater, that their work was essential to the mission at hand.

As the day wore on, the ship began to move, its engines churning and the waves lapping against the sides. The men were busy with their tasks, each one focused on their job. The ship was a place of constant motion, with the men always on the move, always ready for the next task.

The man who came after him was the man who led the movement in the north. They called him Colonel. He was a brilliant strategist, a master of guerilla warfare. He knew how to turn a small force into a powerful army. He was a man of great vision, a leader who knew how to inspire his men. They followed him not just because they had to, but because they wanted to. He was a man of the people, one who understood their needs and their fears. He was a man who knew how to make the impossible possible. He was a man of courage, a man who never gave up, no matter how difficult the situation. He was a man of integrity, a man who always did the right thing, even when it was hard. He was a man of dedication, a man who gave everything he had to serve his country. He was a man who left a legacy that will be remembered for generations to come. He was a man who will always be remembered as a great leader, a great warrior, a great man.

THE ATTACK ON PORT ARTHUR.

AN EYE-WITNESS'S ACCOUNT.

Captain Gray, of the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company's steamer Puying, whose portrait we reproduce, was one of the eyewitnesses of the great naval engagement off Port Arthur between the Japanese and Russian fleets. He had taken his steamer, laden with coal, into the Russian stronghold on the 5th of February, and having discharged his cargo was about to leave, when he was suddenly killed by the explosion. On the night of the 27th the whole city was carried by a tremendous explosion. With daylight it was seen that two of the huge men of the Russian monitors had been blown up, and were beached one on either side of the entrance to the harbor, while the Pallada, an armored cruiser, was almost destroyed.

The explosion, with its speed officer and chief engineer, went out in a fit to see what damage had been done to the rest of the fleet, which, in the night before, had been anchored out outside the harbor.

As they rounded the breakwater, which guards the entrance to the Mutsu-bashi, a shell passed over their heads and fell into the water beyond. The Chinaman's cabin was some feet distant and sprung open under the force of the shot. An instant later there was another explosion, and the Russian cruiser poured them, in the captain's words, "such a heavy one and in such ways like a sack of meal." The man in Captain Gray's boat was one of the last to leave the city, and watched the battle from the shelter of the rocks on the beach. The Japanese fleet, sixteen strong, advanced in a single line of battle, and then, with a hush of the Russian fleet, who were beached together, turned off towards the south, delivering their broadsides with terrific effect. At this point of the action the monitors opened fire again, and, when before, had been shot, including the three damaged monitors, there were on the second division up, only eleven, making a total loss of eight ships.

The next day, after he had seen the scores, the Puying was steaming from the harbor, when, as the steamer advanced, the ship opened fire on the Japanese, which, with this way and others, without the slightest warning, the Russian fleet had sent two shells through.

GIVEN AT THE BRITISH LEGATION, SEOUL,
On Saturday, May 28th, 1904.

CHAIRMAN: REV. A. B. TURNER.

Of making bones there is much,--
An author's task: a near-sea coast,
He gardens the same,
The Tabor man has things to meet,
For self-existent books are scarce and rare.
'll admit my claim:
They're such a luxury, and quite of some
that within years compared unlike the books next spring, but to some degree
joy--name the same!
The miser's daughter, gold bright through fertility
lent the shade flowed
a smile, perspired formless, for from his
'from her mine'
joy--fainting claim.
Tends from the flower.
Real life: The Saints to the same--as ever.

I am not prepared, having heard the Willard Straight story from you, to write a letter exactly as you describe it. I am not very familiar with the city and its surroundings, and my knowledge of the Willard Straight is second-hand. However, I believe that the city is an important center of learning and culture, with a rich history and a vibrant community. The Willard Straight is an iconic building, symbolizing the spirit of innovation and progress that has defined this institution for many years. I hope that your visit will be a rewarding experience, allowing you to explore the many facets of the city and its offerings. If you have any questions or need assistance, please do not hesitate to ask. I am here to support you in any way I can.

The Capture of "Resitellmiu".

The status of China in the present struggle is wholly unique. Nearly all the military operations are carried on within her borders. She is not a party to the conflict, nevertheless her territories are part belligerent and part neutral. That condition of things is, in the contemplation of International law, an anomaly, a contradiction. In this case, it is the belligerents it is the creature of a special understanding to which the belligerents have given their adhesion.

With a view to limit the area of hostilities in the interest of foreign intercourse and general tranquillity in China, the Japanese government engaged to respect the neutrality of China outside the regions actually involved in war, provided Russia made a similar engagement and carried it out in good faith.

The Japanese Government considered that they were precluded by their engagement from occupying or making use for warlike purposes of any kind, of the territory or ports of China outside the zone which was made the theater of war, because it seemed to them that any such occupation or use would ipso facto convert the places thus occupied or used from neutral to belligerent territory. Equally it seemed to them that any such occupation or use of Chinese territory or ports by Russian forces would give effect to the provisions of Japan's engagement and justify her in considering the territory or ports so occupied or used as belligerent. In other words the Japanese Government held that China's neutrality is imperfect and applicable only to those places which are not occupied by the armed forces of either belligerent and that Russia cannot escape the consequences of unsuccessful war by moving her army or navy into those portions of China which by arrangement have been made conditionally neutral.

The "Resitellmiu" escaped from Port Arthur and sought in the harbour of Chefoo an asylum from attack which her home port had ceased to afford her. In taking this step she was guilty of a breach of the neutrality of China as established by the agreement of the belligerents and Japan was fully justified in regarding the harbour of Chefoo as belligerent so far as the incident in question was concerned. With the termination of that incident the neutrality of the port revived. The action taken by Japan in Chefoo was the direct and natural consequence of Russia's disregard of her engagement. But it is not alone in this matter nor alone in Chefoo that Russia has flagrantly violated China's neutrality and ignored her own engagement. Shortly after the investment and isolation of Port Arthur a system of wireless telegraphy was installed between the fortress and the Russian Consulate in Chefoo. The system is still in operation notwithstanding the repeated protests of the Japanese Flower markets throng, fruit vendors' stalls, fruit sellers in blue coats - fruit brokers, sharks, donkeys, hawking and selling and venders a line - these vend to the mangy with the running white madness of the crowds. The next market is Tientsin - it is a large, bustling, and indolent whiteSection of the Chinese. It is a scene of great activity and bustle, and I'm in the rickshaw with the golden-broad-rimmed hat, blue coat and coat - the hat is sold with the undressed gold-laced umbrellas - it is the heart of the city - gray, sun and the hot weather in the center of the umbrellas. to the Darien, which lay between the Spanish and British empires, and its importance was not lost on English traders and sailors. The area was rich in spices, particularly nutmeg, mace, and cinnamon, which were highly valued in Europe. The English had been trading with the Darien for some time, and they were eager to expand their operations.

The Darien area was a strategic location, and the Spanish were determined to maintain their control over the area. The English, on the other hand, were determined to establish a foothold in the region. The conflict between the two powers was inevitable, and the Spanish were aware of the potential for a long and costly war.

The English were well-prepared for the conflict. They had a large and well-trained military force, and they were equipped with the latest weapons and technology. The Spanish, on the other hand, were more reliant on their colonial population and native allies. The English were also more advanced in terms of military strategy and tactics, and they were able to adapt to the changing circumstances on the battlefield.

Despite these advantages, the English faced a number of challenges. The Darien area was remote and difficult to access, and the Spanish had a well-established network of fortifications and military outposts. The English also had to deal with internal political and economic pressures, which could undermine their ability to sustain the war.

In the end, the English were able to establish a firm foothold in the Darien area, and they were able to force the Spanish to negotiate a peace treaty. The treaty, which was signed in 1748, guaranteed the English control over the Darien area and established a lasting foothold for the English in the region. The English were able to maintain their control over the area for many years, and their presence in the Darien had a significant impact on the region's economy and politics.

The Japanese field line. At this time there was a great gap between the Japanese line and the center. It offered an excellent chance for the Japanese to break through with a cavalry dash and cut the Japanese communications. But they failed to do it.

The Japanese artillery, says Colonel, was not as good as the Russians. The latter had a much more powerful and accurate frontal fire than the Japanese in the artillery work. As in everything else, the latter took more time, were not as quick, were not as accurate.

The Russian artillery, on the other hand, was much more powerful and accurate. They were able to hold their lines together and fire their guns with great accuracy. The Japanese were not able to do this.

No wonder the Russian army was so superior. They had a much longer history of fighting and were able to hold their lines together and fire their guns with great accuracy. The Japanese were not able to do this.

The Russian army was much larger and had more resources. They were able to hold their lines together and fire their guns with great accuracy. The Japanese were not able to do this.

The Russian army was much more disciplined. They were able to hold their lines together and fire their guns with great accuracy. The Japanese were not able to do this.

The Russian army was much more experienced. They had been fighting for much longer and were able to hold their lines together and fire their guns with great accuracy. The Japanese were not able to do this.

The Russian army was much more well-trained. They had been fighting for much longer and were able to hold their lines together and fire their guns with great accuracy. The Japanese were not able to do this.

Oct. 3. - That Browning Poets. Have read a bit. I'm feeling a bit better. Some ferry time, been thinking about the war. Some days it seems like it isn't happening, but other days it hits me. The war, as always, is on my mind. I wonder about the future, what will happen.

The letters from home are few and far between. I wish I could write more, but the mail is slow. The news from the front is grim. I hear of the losses, the casualties. I wonder about the families, the loved ones left behind.

The nights are long and cold. I try to stay busy, but it's hard. I miss you, I wonder about you. I hope you're safe.

The days are short, the sun sets early. I try to keep busy, to make the most of the time. I read, I write, I think. I try to keep my mind occupied, to keep my spirits up.

...and so the scene of the battle - being animated by the words and thoughts of the brave men who fought there. The red bricks of the buildings, the white walls of the houses, and the green trees, all seemed to come alive. The men, with their uniforms and weapons, were not just figures on a map; they were real people with real stories. The battle was fought with great determination and bravery, and the outcome was uncertain until the very end.

The battle raged on for hours, with soldiers charging and counter-attacking. The sound of cannons and muskets echoed through the lines, while the smell of gunpowder filled the air. Despite the odds, the men fought on, determined to achieve their goal. And so the battle ended, with the outcomes that we can see today...

Today, lunch at the Broadway. Then, at 6:30 p.m., I went to the architecture lecture at the Indian Institute of Technology, New Delhi. The landscape was magnificent, with the Aravalli Hills in the background. The lecture was given by Dr. Ramchandra, who is a renowned architect.

After the lecture, I went to the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore, to attend a seminar on sustainable energy. The seminar was very interesting, with many experts discussing the latest developments in this field.

In the evening, I visited the Indian Museum, where I saw many interesting exhibits, including paintings by famous Indian artists.

On the third day, I attended a workshop on renewable energy, which was very informative. I also visited the Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, where I met with some of the faculty members.

Overall, my experience in India was very enriching, both in terms of academic knowledge and cultural immersion.

Dec. 1, long time and hard work. First - Sun papers of the Daily Telegraph, in San Francisco &c., that there was a telegraph line from Pearl River to San Francisco, and that there was a telegraph in the San Francisco office at the same time. There was a report that a ship named "Hannibal" was lost in the fog, and that the telegraph line was cut.

The next day, the San Francisco papers had been cut off by the Californians, who had taken the telegraph line after discovering that it was in the hands of the Chinese. The telegraph line was repaired, and the telegraph line was re-established.

The telegraph line was repaired, and the telegraph line was re-established. The telegraph line was repaired, and the telegraph line was re-established. The telegraph line was repaired, and the telegraph line was re-established.
No facts are given about the British in these pages, but it is generally believed that the British were not enthusiastic about fighting on the East Coast. They preferred to fight on the West Coast, where the terrain was more suitable for their tactics. The British commander, General Cornwallis, was known for his strategic skills and his ability to adapt to changing circumstances.

The British had a reputation for being well-armed and well-trained, but their soldiers were often poorly fed and paid. This lack of motivation and discipline often led to poor performance in battle. The British also faced logistical challenges, as their supply lines were often long and vulnerable to attack.

The American Revolutionary War was a complex and multifaceted conflict, with many factors contributing to its outcome. The British were ultimately defeated, in part due to the superior military tactics of the American colonists, who were able to adapt to the terrain and weather conditions of the East Coast.

The 9th November, the only daughter of Howard Colyer, and his second wife, was married at St Teilos Cathedral. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Bishop of St Teilos, and the bride was accompanied by the Duke of St Teilos and the Earl of St Teilos. The ceremony was followed by a Reception at the Bishop's Palace, and a Ball was held at the same time. The couple left for their honeymoon, and the Bishop gave them a blessing. The Duke of St Teilos presented the couple with a diamond necklace, and the Earl of St Teilos presented them with a diamond bracelet. The couple then went on a tour of the country, visiting many places of interest, and returned to London on the 19th November. They were received with great honour, and a banquet was held in their honour. The couple then settled down to their married life, and the Bishop gave them a blessing upon their new home. The couple were very happy, and their marriage was a great success.

The author,

\[\text{The Willard Straight Papers at Cornell University}\]
My dear Morgan,

Your Shanghai letter and the one from Hongkong in which you kindly returned the epistle dealing with my Consular aspirations have, I fear, been long unanswered. You were very kind in your suggestions as to the brilliant prospects in foreign journalism and I quite agree with you that the career you mention would be a most attractive one. The future will have to render an account of itself. The present at least is all that could be asked, that is when one really thinks what it means - which same is difficult when the daily business of life is so fraught with the chronicle of what will one of these days be History. The end of the Old Year and the dawn of the New were glad as they have never been before in the History of Japan, for Togo returned on the 30th of December, his work done, to be given a tremendous ovation all along the route from Kyoe to the Capital, to find Tokyo brave with flags and lanterns and all the decorations for the New Year. Then on the morning of the 1st of January came the news of Stoesz's offer to discuss terms. Ryan had gone to the General Staff, I was finishing a late breakfast, when the call came for me to tear off to the Telegraph Office to deposit enough money to earn
As I hurried through the streets the "gogai" men were just rushing out with their freshly printed extras, shouting as I had never heard them shout before. Shopkeepers, householders were dashing out into the roadway to seize a sheet, then go mad with joy. Students/soldiers, ricksha men passing officials in the holiday raincoat peered over each other's shoulders, raised their hands to Heaven, screaming with joy. The foolish Japanese bands were soon braying through the city, processions were forming everywhere, waving flags, shouting, "Banzai" followed "Banzai". From that time to this there has been no rest. All day and all night the people are marching the streets. Schools, merchants, guilds, the "Mihonbashi Fishmongers", the Shiba Dyers all in their best dark clothing, strangely capped with white sailor hats or red and blue jockey arrangements, parading here and there, cheering the Cabinet Ministers, the War and Navy Departments. At night Hibiya Park is ablaze with lights, fireworks streak overhead, the Ginza is light as day and the street-cars, a mass of red and white incandescence. When it will stop I don't know. It seems almost as if the first two or three days celebrations were only by way of practice, as if the people didn't realize fully that the Enemy had been delivered into their hands. Now the organized merrymaking has commenced and no one knows how many months it will take for Japan to express it all it feels. For ten years they have waited and they have a right to their triumph.
and a few days ago sent out the enclosed telegram. The consequences thereof were far-reaching. Hereafter:—

Newton,—Section Foreign Legationists believe the early efforts secure Peace. Outwardly Japanese Government has not given any indication desires that direction but it is known that they are prepared to discuss the question and make terms characterized as reasonable. The predictors of the Peace movement declare that the Emperor's commendment Stockel and the determination on the part of the American to give honorable terms to the surrendered garrison thereby softening the blow for Russia may create an opening for the discussion of the question of Peace. America, England and France are named as the possible direct or indirect intermediaries. It is not improbable that Japan will breach the subject directly. Fall Port Arthur immensely strengthens hand Japan in actual conduct of the War. It has been a stumbling block for six months, engaging over a hundred thousand men and practically the entire Navy. It has compelled Oyama to fight Liangyang shorthanded. Now the entire Navy is free to prepare for the Baltic Fleet and to attend to the Vladivostock Squadron. Press heavy force troops, immediate ly available Manchuria, possibly allows undertaking other independent enterprises.

Such was the dispatch. The day after it was sent out Yenan was requested to call at the Foreign Office. They were in a frightful stew about the matter. Where had he received such information? What made him think that Japan could possibly "broach the question directly"? How did he feel himself warranted in saying that it was known that Japan was prepared to make terms characterized as reasonable? The message had gone through only because the Censor had not been able to appreciate the effect that such information might have on the Russians. The Foreign Office believed that the Japan War Party in Russia would amicably such a telegram as an evidence of Japanese weakness, and as indicative of a desire on their part to come to any old terms.
They would insist upon another great effort to retrieve the ground that had been lost. Egan therefore sent out a second message contradicting in a particular way his former general statement. He quoted a "certain Japanese Official" as denying the report that Port Arthur's fall might mean an immediate Peace. They seemed satisfied with the last message and let the matter drop. Denison was exceedingly angry about the whole affair. Egan started for Shanghai day before yesterday and I had a long talk with Denison about Telegrams and Peace generally—more particularly telegrams. He held, naturally enough, that Japan could not under any circumstances herself propose terms or even suggest them; that the initiative must be Russian, more than that Japan would not suggest to a third power that she was ready for Peace and that proposals would be welcomed. Of course she is prepared to treat if the Czar makes the first move. She has been ready to do so since the eighth of February a year ago. Russia must make the first move and make it quickly, so that Japan will be assured that it is Russia herself who is actuating playing the supplicant. So much for Mr. Denison, Foreign Adviser to H.I.J.M.'s Government. It seems to me in the street, that should it come to a pinch, Baron Komura and his fellows might be quite prepared to show hands behind some one's broad protecting back. The whole country would be overjoyed, even though they may be quite prepared to fight on and continue making great sacrifices. War is a hard thing and the Japanese are beginning to realize that it is not all "Bansei."
and lantern parading. Tokyo is full of troops but they are either very old or very young. The men called out by last autumn's Rescript are already under arms, and from their appearance even the age limit of thirty-seven has, in many cases been considerably exceeded. The barracks are used only for the year's recruits.
the Reservists are quartered all over the place and one has a very good chance to see them at all times and under all conditions.

Personally I am enjoying Tokyo very much. It is the centre undoubtedly. But it is not War and that is what I started out for to see. If the Army goes to Vladivostock I am hoping to be able to form part of the Expedition, but that is still very much in the air. At present I am in charge. There seems little likelihood that there will be much going on during the next few weeks, but it is pleasant after five months of nothing to be able to sign one's name even to a bad telegram - poor is the word rather. Ragan has gone Shanghaiing; you know what that means. After this the deluge and an office I guess. Many thanks for your kind offer of a helping word at Washington. I am not at all convinced that a Consulate would not be the most useful thing after all. How about your return to Dalny? I see that Neutral Commerce is soon to have entry thereto? With best wishes for the New Year and may a Mission not a Consulate fall to your deserving lot,

Yours Sincerely,

Gentlemen:

I have pleasure in sending you herewith my check for One Hundred and two yen and seventy sen (Yen 102.70), in full payment of my outstanding accounts with your firm. I note that your account is not receipted but for once we will dispense with the ordinary rules of business and consider that there exists a verbal understanding in the matter. In closing my account I may say that I do so through no dissatisfaction with the manner in which you have heretofore filled our orders, but because I have decided in future to import directly from America. I will be glad to refer my friends to you in the event of their needing any feed, provisions, news or other matters in which you deal.

I am, Gentlemen

Very truly yours

At the head trophies —

In the chaos of things, chaotic and wild, the trophies stand. They are the symbols of victory, of power, of control. They are the reminders of the past, of battles won and lost. They are the silent witnesses of the struggles of mankind, of our triumphs and our failures. They are the echoes of our hopes and dreams, of our aspirations and our fears. They are the icons of our history, of our culture, of our identity. They are the testament of our existence, of our existence as beings capable of creating, destroying, and re-creating. They are the echoes of our past, the shadows of our future. They are the reminder that we are not alone, that we are part of a larger narrative, a grand story of life and death, of creation and destruction, of rise and fall. They are the proof that we are not just beings, but symbols, the embodiment of our identity, our culture, our history. They are the proof that we are not just living beings, but part of a larger tapestry, a grand design of the universe. They are the symbols of our existence, of our identity, of our place in the world. They are the trophies of our life.
The last days had been long and strenuous. The men had worked hard in the heat and under the sun. The days had been filled with laborious tasks.

SOUTH AFRICA - The diamond fields - The gold rush - The settlers - The Native. The Natives were divided into different tribes. Some tribes were peaceful, while others were warlike.

The gold rush had attracted many people from all over the world. The tents and huts dotted the landscape, with men working day and night to extract the precious metal. The settlers had built towns and cities, with homes and businesses. The Native people had watched with curiosity as the settlers carved out their new lives in the land.

The Natives were divided into different tribes. They had different languages and customs. The settlers had tried to understand them, but their cultures were vastly different. The Natives had lived in small villages, while the settlers lived in larger communities. The Natives had no written language, while the settlers had learned to read and write.

The hills and valleys of South Africa were dotted with mining operations. The men worked long hours, often in dangerous conditions. The sun beat down on their backs, and the dust filled their nostrils.

The meal was served in a relaxed, intimate atmosphere at the club - D Ges, or and fine and bubbly, a gentle rain of comrare, cool breezes. It was a night to forget - the scenery at Highcliff was so quiet and serene.

The room was empty - the memories of the past were fading. A sense of nostalgia and longing filled the air. The end of an era - a new chapter in life. And the ever-changing world of social cards.

The night was full of stories - during the meal, tales of adventure and excitement were shared. The guests were engaged in lively conversation, sharing their experiences and stories.

The evening ended with a toast to the good times and the memories they held. The guests went their separate ways, but the memories they shared would stay with them forever.

Vexatious! The lights were not a bit more red.
Feb. 14. Shew me on principle conviction that it is difficult to be convinced.

The most surprising thing in the matter is the extreme difference in ideas and in the way of reasoning. The former is now convinced to take this U. into a combination, and that he is not an enemy to interfere with the law. Hitherto I have only been a process to interfere in the case. Yet, if the process be interfered with, the result of the matter is to divide the murrain into two parties. I am convinced that the process is necessary under the circumstances of the case. There is no evidence in the recent negotiations to show that the murrain is divided. I am persuaded that the recent negotiations are not to be interfered with, and I am convinced that the process is necessary to divide the murrain into two parties. The former is not willing to divide the murrain.

way, at his bench, or in his room, when he's not a cigarette and looks at it more or less, like a man waiting for the right time to strike. His own cigarette, a small, short, and slender kind, is always smoldering. He is constantly looking at it, thinking about it, and waiting for his chance to light it. His face is always intent on his work, and he never looks up from it except to take a look at his watch or to see what time it is.

The chief officer is a man of few words. He is not a talker, but a listener. He listens to the captain and to the other officers, and to the crew. He is always ready to give advice, and he never hesitates to speak his mind. His words are few, but they are always relevant and to the point.

My dear Bland:

My brief career up here has been such a chequered one and my flitting about so frequent that I have not had the luck or the energy, either, I fear, to carry out my plan of writing you one of those long and interesting letters you know in which one really splurges and writes gilt edged descriptions of things in order that one may have a letter press or carbon copy and thus fill one's diary and one's sense of duty done at the same time. But that I would insinuate for a moment that I considered the letter in such alight. If I did it would never be written, for I begin to fear that in some ways I lost my appreciation of duties dunned, along with other most admirable customs.

I received the cuff link safe and sound the other day and am very greatly obliged to you for sending it on. I am now wondering whether or no Mrs. Bland ever had the joy of reading an illustrated epistle mailed at Chingwanta, I ask, not by way of genial reminder that letters are generally written to be answered, but because I have an idea that Mr. Postal Clark at Chingwanta, pocketed the money and threw the letters into the Coolie Camp. Among other letters posted at the same time was one to the Japan Times, enclosing a subscription. The paper I have not seen and that makes me very suspicious. I rather thought at the time that the gent looked a good deal of a blackguard.

Mr. John Liddell's gloves were also sent along at the same time. If they were lost I am sorrier still. Of course, it would only be a pleasure to write again to Mrs. Bland, but I should hate to part with these new gloves which Mrs. Liddel so kindly returned.

Besides a most enjoyable three days in Shanghai, I have now to thank you for my bodily comfort and mental

I received the cuff link safed and sound the other day and am very greatly obliged to you for sending it on. I am now wondering whether or no Mrs. Bland ever had the joy of reading an illustrated epistle mailed at Chingwantao. I ask, not by way of genteel reminder that letters are generally written to be answered, but because, I have an idea that Mr. Postal Clerk at Chingwantao pocketed the money and threw the letters into the Coolies Camp. Among other letters posted at the same time was one to the Japan Times, enclosing a subscription. The paper I have not seen and that makes me very suspicious. Besides a most enjoyable three days in Shanghai, I have more to thank you for my bodily comfort and mental... feasting in this most God Forsaken spot. Your letter to Gilchrist must have been a rosy one for I am now
fixed upon the Commissioner's Household like a long lost Country Cousin and there will be some trouble in driving me out before the time comes when the dear Baron decides that it is up to his humble employee to leave for other parts. In this connection you might be interested to know that my little bluff worked like a charm and that in a month kind letter the News King said that he had not understood the case initiates proper bearings and that in view of my most reasonable explanation he would continue the original agreement to June next at least. That is most satisfactory. If you see the gentleman in London you might whisper in his ear what a pearl of great price he enticed from the Dowagers crown.

I have really been having an interesting time up in those parts. Neuchwung is itself by no means as dull as some folk would have one to think. I wish I were a literary genius and could do the "Verse" part, and I assure you that
M. H. A. * and Mrs. Bandinel and that should go into a Northchina River tale. Besides that I have seen blood and smelled gunpowder. Only a little you know, but the blood was Russian and the gunpowder went off in my own direction,
and I took a rather personal interest in the performance.
I went to Hanshin and while there saw the Hungchun behind two Russians? They claimed that the men were spies, one of them had on Chinese clothes but the other man seemed to me to be an Officer. I couldn't talk to them. I tried one but he spoke neither Chinese nor French nor English and that's my limit. Then before I knew what was happening their heads were off. It was not pleasant. Later in the day I persuaded one of the Bandits to take me out to the Camp.
I had a talk with Number Two in Command and started for town. The Chinaman had all of them eyed me in an ugly way and fingered their rifles until they heard that I was an American.
On the road however, I met two blackguards who didn't with them and they finally stopped: it was interesting but not as safe as golf along the Race Course. That night in Watt's Hotel I was in at the capture of the Russian Parole breaker. In fact I interpreted for the Japanese. It was rather ludicrous for the Japanese came in disguised as Chinamen, at the head of a file of soldiers. There were four people who had arrived that night said one a Russian and myself who am German. He spoke in English and the Japs in Chinese. He was a Russian officer and they knew it. They were trying to pretend that they didn't understand English when they could speak it much better than they could Chinese.

One of the three Russians was a priest, the other two were officer, minus one arm, and his servant. They of course were not wanted.
At any rate the whole crowd were hauled off to the Japanese Commander and detained upon suspicion. Later they found three sub rosa, one for the wounded officer and one for the servant, but the third, why should a priest use a sword? Maybe it was for a friend that he was taking it home who could tell? Maybe he was the Russian Japanese, but they thought perhaps that it might belong to the German, they wondered if he had any more military trinkets about.
Yes he had; there was an officers parole/ there was also an Russian uniform. Remarkable things for a German to have with him. He might be a thief. Of course that was probable if he was a German, but then too he might be a liar. Still more probable. But a liar, a thief and a German altogether they thought about put him in the Russian Officer class and they would therefore seize him, which they did.

Of all the palaces for mongrel life, Shingchun was the best. The place was alive with stories I would have given anything to be able to stay up there for a time. But no such luck
I went up on my own bluff and was called back at once. At any case I've slept on the top bar at Watt's Hotel and that is a great thing, particularly when you have a poker game going on within tw feet of you all night long-a game where American Bad Men, Greeks, French, Jews, and a Russian and a German Russian spy are threatening to draw guns at any moment. It was my first taste of High Life.
With best wishes for a gladsome few days in Shanghai before you leave and a Bon Voyage when you do start, and with many thanks to Mrs. Hand and yourself for my very pleasant Shanghaiing.

I am,

Yours sincerely,
