Senate Begins Fourth Year

New Senate Elects Minella Speaker, Staffs Five of Its Committees

Newly-seated Senators of the fourth University Senate chose Raymond J. Minella, a second-year law student, as speaker and Michael E. Fisher, professor of chemistry and mathematics, as secretary during their organizational meeting Tuesday night in Kaufmann Auditorium, Goldwin Smith Hall.

The fourth Senate also staffed five major Senate committees by selecting members through separate constituency caucuses during the four and one-half hour meeting.

Before undertaking these elections, however, the Senators unanimously accepted without debate the Committee on Credentials' recommendation to declare the general Senate elections valid despite the possibility of voting irregularities, particularly in the undergraduate election. (See story on election and referendum results on this page.)

Community-wide participation in the elections for Senators and Trustees was 34 per cent; 38 per cent of the Cornell community voted in the referendum.

Following certification of the elections, Minella and Andrew V. Ettin, assistant professor of English, were nominated from the floor to serve as speaker. Results of the ballot votes for both speaker and secretary were not made public.

Minella, an outspoken member of the previous Senate, introduced himself as a political science graduate of the University of California at Berkeley who worked for U.S. Senator Gaylord Nelson speaker Mary Beth Norton.

Three persons were nominated for secretary in addition to Fisher. They were: Barbara M. Kauber, library assistant in University Libraries; Karen J. Youngquist, a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences and Charles K. MacKay, a second year philosophy graduate student.

Fisher, a member of the previous Senate, was a member of the Constituent Assembly, and served on several judiciary boards and the military subcommittee of the Committee on Campus Life.

A major portion of the meeting was devoted to electing members to the Executive Committee, the

Voters Support Continuation, Pick Senators, Trustees

By a vote of 71 per cent to 28 per cent, the Cornell community voted in the recent Feb. 20 to March 2 University Senate elections to continue the Senate. Voter turnout on the referendum was 38 per cent, according to the Senate's Committee on Credentials, which released all referendum and election results last weekend.

In other election results, Jane P. Danowitz, a student, and Paul Olum, a faculty member, were elected to two-year terms as University Trustees by undergraduate and graduate students. Ms. Danowitz, who succeeds Gordon Chang '73, is a sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences. Olum, who succeeds himself, is a professor of mathematics. (See story on Page 2.)

The credentials committee also announced validated results for the election of employes, faculty and students to serve as Senators in the fourth Senate. (For names of those elected, see Page 4.)

Announcement of the names of the successful candidates was delayed several days toward the end of last week pending the credentials committee's receipt of a report from Byron Yaffe, University ombudsman, concerning possible voting irregularities. The Ombudsman's Office was asked to review challenges to the elections based on allegations of procedural irregularity or improper partiality. It was also asked to review challenges concerning the counting of referendum ballots.

Following receipt of the report, the credentials committee decided to release results of the employe and faculty contests, the referendum, and the name of the student Trustees elected by students. Olum ran unopposed for re-election as student-elected faculty Trustee.

Results were also released for four of seven undergraduate constituencies after the credentials committee determined the elections were valid as conducted, based on information included in the ombudsman's report. These constituencies were: the New York State College of Human Ecology, the College of Architecture, Art and Planning, the School of Hotel Administration, and the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations (ILR).

However, because of the narrow margin separating the closest elected and eliminated candidates in the remaining undergraduate units, as shown in the Ombudsman's report, the credentials committee in a meeting Saturday, validated 51 questionable ballots and reran the results on the Hare System program for the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Engineering and the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

A computer retabulation was also required in the graduate student constituency after the withdrawal of a candidate in the midst of the election.

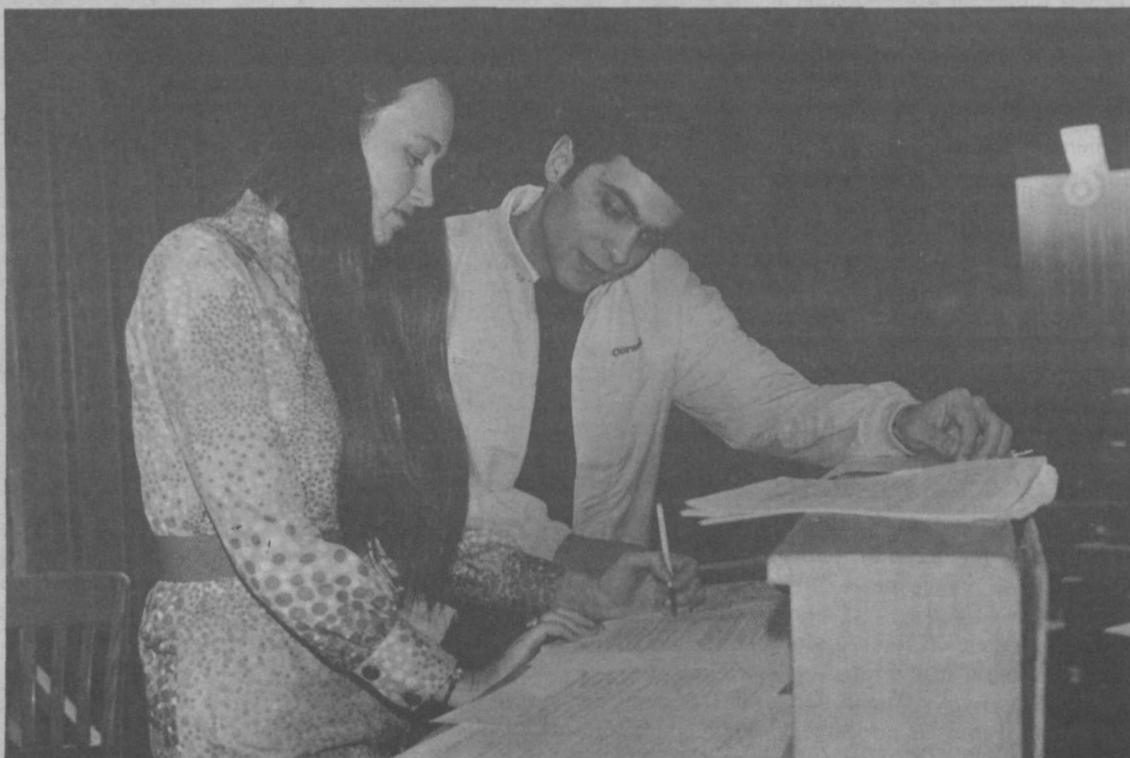

In all three undergraduate constituencies, the cut-off margins were widened by the retabulation. Based on several factors, including the increased margins, the Ombudsman's finding that only one person admitted to having voted more than once, and the overall effects of rerunning the student elections, the credentials committee decided Saturday afternoon to "recommend to the fourth Senate that it accept in its entirety the results of the election of February 20-21."

Making the decision were Mary Beth Norton, chairman of the credentials committee and speaker of the Senate, Harold O. Levy, chairman of the Executive Committee, Col. Robert Chamberlain, chairman of the Committee on Committees and John Harding, chairman of the Internal Operations Committee.

In his investigation, Yaffe found only one student who admitted to multiple voting, despite efforts in which the Ombudsman asked the complainants to refer persons they believed to have voted more than once to the Ombudsman, and advertisements placed in the Cornell Daily Sun indicating the office wished to speak with persons having personal knowledge of voting irregularities. Confidentiality and immunity to all parties were assured in both cases. Yaffe said.

The student in question voted twice by removing an ink mark from his ID card.

The Ombudsman's report concluded "that it was possible to vote more than once, that knowledge of this opportunity was widespread among students during the balloting and finally that there is no evidence suggesting widespread multiple voting."

TRANSITION — Mary Beth Norton, assistant professor of history and speaker of the Third Senate, prepares to turn over the podium to newly elected speaker Raymond J. Minella, law '74, at the first meeting of the Fourth Senate Tuesday night.

(Wisc.) as a foreign affairs specialist before enrolling in the Law School. He emphasized that the Senate "exists to serve the community," and that partisanship is "completely inappropriate in a speaker."

"I will cease to have views of my own if elected speaker," Minella said speaking for his own candidacy, "but would represent the views of the Senate."

Ettin spoke of the range of the speaker's role, and emphasized that the qualities of a good speaker were "probably not those you would want in a political leader.... I hope you will choose somebody you feel will keep in balance all these necessary functions of the speaker," he said.

"The first thing I'd like to do is thank you," he told the Senators in accepting the gavel from out-going

Committee on Campus Life, the Committee on Committees, the Committee on Academics and the Planning Review Committee in closed caucus.

The entire body also elected Steve J. Hanzlik and Maurice L. (Larry) White at-large members of the Executive Committee. Hanzlik is a technical supervisor in theoretical and applied mechanics and White is a sophomore in the Arts College.

Persons chosen to serve on the five committees and their constituencies are:

Executive Committee: Ettin, non-tenured faculty; Benjamin Nichols and William C. Kelly, tenured faculty; James C. Showacre, exempt employe; Richard Meyer, graduate student, and Tatnall W. Warner and Robert Harrison, undergraduates.

Committee on Campus Life: John W. Kelley, non-

Students Elect Jane Danowitz, Paul Olum to Board of Trustees

The election of Jane P. Danowitz as a student member of the University Board of Trustees and of Paul Olum as faculty Trustee by members of Cornell's undergraduate and graduate student constituencies in the recent general University Senate elections brings to four the number of Trustees elected this year by either the Senate or the students.

Ms. Danowitz is a sophomore from Westport, Conn. in the College of Arts and Sciences; Olum is a professor of mathematics. Both were elected to two-year terms in the general election earlier this month.

James L. Gibbs Jr., dean of undergraduate studies at Stanford University, was elected by the entire Senate in February to serve a four-year term as Trustee-at-large. Student Senators elected Harold O. Levy, a junior from New York City in the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations, to a two-year term as student Trustee in a special meeting Feb. 15.

The names of each of the four new Trustees, whose terms began March 1, will be reported to the Board of Trustees at its meeting this weekend in Ithaca.

Ms. Danowitz's campaign centered primarily around her "charge that Cornell and other Ivy League schools have cooperated in fixing tuition costs and are therefore in violation of anti-trust laws."

She also opposed a Cranch Committee report proposal to increase by 2,000 the Ithaca campus student body. She favors improving the status of women at Cornell, particularly through increasing the number of women on the University faculty.

As Trustee, she is an ex-officio member of the Senate.

Olum has been a member of the faculty for over 20 years and is former chairman of the Department of Mathematics. He has served on the executive committees of the various faculties to which he belongs, including the Educational Policy Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences, the General Committee of the Graduate School and the Faculty Council of the University faculty.

Olum was chairman of the University committee of the Constituent Assembly in 1969 which created the Senate.

Olum has held the position of faculty Trustee elected by the students since the establishment of that position two years ago.

As Trustee, Olum is an ex-officio member of the Senate and the Faculty Council of Representatives. In his capacity as Trustee, he is currently a member of the ad hoc Trustee Committee on the Status of Women at Cornell.

Gibbs, who was appointed dean of Stanford's undergraduate studies in 1970, joined the faculty in 1966 as associate professor of anthropology. Prior to that he taught at Harvard University and the University of Minnesota.

Gibbs' special fields within anthropology are African ethnology, psychological anthropology and the anthropology of law. Author of numerous articles, Gibbs is also editor and contributor to "Peoples of Africa," (1965).

Active in numerous civic, academic and professional groups, Gibbs has been a member of the Executive Board of the American Anthropological Association, the Board of Directors of the Urban League of Minneapolis and of the Minnesota State Commission Against Discrimination.

Gibbs attended public schools in Ithaca. He earned his bachelor of arts degree in anthropology and sociology from Cornell in 1952 and his doctor of philosophy degree in social anthropology from Harvard in 1961.

Russian Lit. Chairman

Carden Appointed

Patricia J. Carden, associate professor of Russian literature, has been appointed chairman of the Department of Russian Literature in the College of Arts and Sciences at Cornell, effective July 1.

The five-year term was approved by the Executive Committee of the University Board of Trustees at its February meeting in New York City. Miss Carden succeeds George Gibian, whose term will expire June 30.

She is the author of "The Art of Isaac Babel" published last year by the Cornell University Press. The book is the first full-length study of the works of one of the prose masters of the twentieth century.

Miss Carden joined the Cornell faculty in 1962 and was named associate professor in 1971.

Cornell Icemen Win ECACs, To Go After NCAA Crown

Cornell's determined hockey team returned the Eastern College Athletic Conference championship trophy to Ithaca last weekend with victories over Clarkson (9-4) and Boston College (3-2) in the ECAC playoffs at Boston Garden.

Coach Dick Bertrand's skaters go after the big prize this weekend, the NCAA title. Cornell meets Wisconsin in the semi-finals Friday night, after B.C. faces Denver in a semi-final game Thursday night. The winners playing for the championship on Saturday. Boston Garden will be the scene once again.

Cornell's wins over Clarkson and B.C. brought the Big Red the ECAC title after a two-year lapse. Cornell won four straight titles between 1967 and 1970; Boston University held the crown for the last two seasons.

Bertrand's team seeks to add its third NCAA championship — the others were in 1967 and in 1970 — to an already impressive array of accomplishments for the 1972-73 season. The Big Red, now 23-

3-1, has copped its eighth straight Ivy League championship, finished first in the ECAC Division I regular season standings and won the ECAC playoffs.

Three ECAC playoff records were set by two Cornell players. Carlo Ugolini, named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, had 12 assists and 14 points, both tourney highs. Doug Marrett's eight goals set an ECAC mark.

Cornell's first two steps to the ECAC title were relatively easy. The Big Red polished off RPI 9-3 at Lynah Rink before going to Boston and dispatching Clarkson.

The final with B.C., however, was a different story. Marrett's first period goal gave the Big Red the early lead, but B.C. tied it before the period ended. The Eagles took a short-lived lead — 35 seconds worth — in the second period before Marrett's second goal knotted the score again. The winning goal came from Bob Murray at 7:38 of the last period.

As is usually the case in a close victory, every aspect of Cornell's game was vital. Bertrand used the line of Ugolini, Marrett and Murray for 30 minutes; the Big Red forced B.C.'s goalie, Ned Yetten to record 47 saves; Cornell goalie Dave Elenbaas turned in one of his finest performances, and the Big Red checked tirelessly.

Voters Back Senate in Opinion Referendum

However, because the results of balloting in Arts and Sciences, Agriculture and Life Sciences and Engineering "could have been affected by even a few instances of multiple voting (fewer than three voted could have affected the outcome of these constituencies) and because it is not practically feasible to determine how the results would have been affected by such irregular voting, we feel compelled to recommend that the balloting for the student Senators in these constituencies be reconducted."

The report, however, recommended results in student balloting in Human Ecology, Architecture, Hotel Administration and ILR be certified because "results of the balloting would not have been affected by limited multiple voting which may have occurred."

The report also recommended that results of the student Trustee election be certified. Because of "the large margin of victory of the winner in this election," the report stated, "limited multiple voting could not reasonably have affected the results."

These recommendations were made "with the knowledge that the Credentials Committee has yet to incorporate into the machine tabulated results, the results of the tabulation of validly cast challenged ballots. It is possible that a tabulation of such ballots will change the margins which we utilized in making our recommendations. Unless the margins are significantly affected by such a tabulation, we would hold to the recommendations contained herein," according to the report.

The credentials committee reconsidered the ombudsman's report "in light of the new results" Saturday afternoon before issuing a statement recommending Senate acceptance of the undergraduate elections in their "entirety."

"Because of the magnitude of the mandate for the Senate's continuation and the high voter participation in the election, the committee decided that it could not recommend the invalidation of the election on the basis of what appears to be merely rumor and inconclusive hearsay," the report stated.

Percentages of voter turnout in the elections were announced Tuesday night to the newly-elected Senators at the fourth Senate's first meeting in Kaufmann Auditorium, Goldwin Smith Hall. They are: undergraduates, 37 per cent; graduate and professional students, 20 per cent; faculty, 55 per cent; exempt employees, 49 per cent and non-exempt employees, 32 per cent. The community-wide participation in these elections was 34 per cent.

The allegations of undergraduate multiple voting were filed with the Ombudsman's Office Feb. 21 by Roger D. London, Russell H. Pollack, both seniors, and Daniel P. Malone, a sophomore. London and Malone were instrumental in calling for a University-wide opinion referendum on whether the Senate should be "continued" or "discontinued."

Referendum results showed the Cornell community strongly in favor of the Senate's continuation. Some 6,100 persons, or over 70 per cent of those voting in the referendum, favored continuation while some 28 per cent, or 2,450 persons, felt it should be discontinued.

Student support for the Senate was greater than that of either the faculty or employe constituencies by about 10 per cent. The faculty, however, showed the greatest voter turnout at nearly 55 per cent, contrasted with a turn-out of about 38 per cent each for students and employes.

Final tallies were: faculty, 65 per cent for continuation and 31 per cent against; employes, 62 per cent for and 36 per cent against, and students, 74 per cent for to 36 per cent against. Invalid or, blank ballots account for the totals being less than 100 per cent.

NLRB Sets Up Dining Workers' Bargaining Unit

The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) handed down a ruling on March 8 finding that employees of all Cornell University dining facilities in Ithaca comprise a unit appropriate for purposes of collective bargaining and establishing procedures for a possible election that would determine whether Cornell's dining employees would be represented by Chauffers, Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Local Union No. 65.

In its ruling, the NLRB expanded the size of the unit from what had been sought by the Teamsters in the petition they filed with the NLRB almost one year ago. In addition, the NLRB denied the request from the Teamsters that students employed in dining facilities be included in the collective bargaining unit. The NLRB ruling covers all regular full-time employees and regular part-time employees who are regularly scheduled to work 20 hours per week or more.

The NLRB ruled that the appropriate unit should consist of:

"All food handlers, cafeteria workers, vending operators, cashiers, store employees, dishwashers, custodians, cooks, waitresses, bus boys, pantry men, counter men, soda bar workers, laborers, kitchen helpers, pot washers, coffee hostesses, salad makers, grill men, etc., employed by (Cornell) at all of the dining facilities operated by (Cornell) at its Ithaca, New York, campus, including the five chefs employed in fraternity houses owned by (Cornell), and excluding all other nonacademic employees, office clericals, professionals, students, guards and supervisors as defined within the meaning of the (National Labor Relations) Act."

The petition from the Teamsters asked that dining employees, including students, at Willard Straight Hall Dining, Clara Dickson, Noyes Center, North Campus Union, Sage Dining, Noyes Lodge, Risley Dining, Balch Dining, Martha Van Rensselaer and Hughes Hall be the only ones included in the unit.

Though it excluded all students in its ruling, the NLRB expanded the unit to include five chefs employed in fraternity houses and dining employees at Sage Infirmary, Statler Inn, Diary Bar, Moakley House, Phileas Fogg, the Green Dragon, The Commons and the Temple of Zeus.

In its decision the NLRB described "facts that established the similarity of the above-named dining facilities to one another" and found "that the employees of all of (Cornell's) dining facilities share a substantial community of interest separate from that of other university employees, and that a unit comprised of all (Cornell's) dining facilities on the Ithaca campus, including the five fraternity chefs, is appropriate for purposes of collective bargaining."

In considering the facts concerning student employees, the NLRB found "that students do not share a substantial community of interest with regular nonstudent full-time and part-time employees. Accordingly, we shall exclude them from the unit." The NLRB stated that this is in conformity with its recent decision in a similar situation involving Georgetown University.

The Teamsters' petition has been referred back to the Regional Director for Region 3 in Buffalo, according to Diedrich K. Willers, director of Cornell's Office of University Personnel Services. Willers said the regional office would:

"Determine whether or not the Teamsters have a sufficient showing of interest in the newly defined appropriate unit;

"Determine if Local 200 of the Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO have sufficient showing of interest to be an intervener;

"Establish certain procedural matters."

According to Willers, at some time in the immediate future the Third Regional Director will fix a date for a conference and eventually for the election.

The NLRB ruling stated that "an election by secret ballot shall be conducted among the employees in the unit found appropriate, as early as possible, but not later than 30 days from the date below (March 8, 1973)."

Love Conquers Fall (Creek)?

HUDDLED MASSES YEARNING... — The Suspension Bridge over Fall Creek Gorge was the scene of Cornell's first "kiss-in" last Friday night, a protest by some 30 men and women against the installation of high intensity lights in an effort to minimize crime. A more malicious form of protest took place Tuesday night when a person or persons smashed all 20 of the lights.

Prices Rise at Dining Facilities Because of Higher Food Costs

Rapidly rising food costs to Cornell's Department of Dining Services will mean increased costs to cash customers eating in University dining facilities, effective Sunday, March 25.

Increased costs will not be passed on to some 1,750 members of the University's Co-Op Dining Plan for spring semester because of previously determined semester rates for contract diners.

"The suppliers are passing their higher costs on to us," Jaeger said. "We have been absorbing them, but because of the big increases this past month, we are no longer able to do so.

"We will only pass along to the consumer the percentage increase passed on to us. Only selected items will be increased and there will be no general across-the-board increases.

"During the past two months we have experienced cost increases from our suppliers of between zero and 15 per cent.

"Because of yearly contracts, however, we will not have any increases in dairy products, baked goods or beverages," he said.

Jaeger cited examples of cost increases to dining services since Dec. 15 on several popular meat items. During the past three months, per pound prices for hamburger and hot dogs rose from $.63 to $.77, chopped beef steak rose from $.69 to $.89, and tiny link sausages from $.86 to $1.01, he said.

Dining prices at Cornell were last raised in June, 1972, in anticipation of a 5.5 or 6 per cent rate of inflation over the 1971-72 fiscal year, Jaeger said. However, "with the market as it is now, I can no longer say we will set prices for a whole year."

For this reason, dining services has not announced the 1973-74 cost of Cornell's Co-Op Dining Plan. "We will be unable to set the cost of contract dining until food prices stabilize," said Jaeger. "We have indications prices will rise through the summer and then stabilize at those rates."

Jaeger met yesterday with the fourth University Senate's full Campus Life Committee to discuss price increases. The Campus Life Committee includes the Subcommittee on Dining Services.

The third Senate last fall approved an across-the-board increase of 8 per cent in food prices for both cash and contract customers in 1973-74 as part of its Campus Life budget. Jaeger said the 8 per cent request was figured on current costs to University dining customers. Because of the upcoming 15 per cent increase in most food items, however, implementation of the full 8 per cent request for 1973-74 may not be required, Jaeger said.

Chronicle Takes a Break

Cornell Chronicle will not be published during Spring Recess next week. Publication will be resumed on Thursday, March 29.

Our schedule for the remainder of the academic year is as follows: April 5, 12, 19; May 3, 10, 24, 31; June 7.

The Chronicle wishes its readers a pleasant vacation and celebrates the fact that it will be spring when you read this newspaper again.

Possible Overlap Between Two Codes Viewed

The following memorandum has been addressed to the Cornell community by Richard Stumbar, executive secretary of the Academic Integrity Committee; Michael Fedak, chairman, Academic Integrity Hearing Board; Robert Young, chairman, Academic Integrity Review Board; Joseph Harmon, administrative chairman, University Hearing Board; Paul Meunier, chairman, University Review Board; and Alan Sapakie, judicial administrator.

Several cases recently presented to the University judicial boards or the Academic Integrity boards have involved acts that might be considered to be violations of either the Campus Code of Conduct or the Code of Academic Integrity. We wish to inform the community of our intent to utilize a procedure to determine jurisdiction where it appears to overlap so that one case need not be heard by two boards.

If a case referred to either the Executive Secretary of the Academic Integrity Committee or the Judicial Administrator appears to violate provisions of both codes, the person receiving the case will convene the chairmen of the University Hearing and Review Boards and of the Academic Integrity Hearing and Appeals Boards, along with the Executive Secretary of the Academic Integrity Committee and the Judicial Administrator. They will discuss the case and assign jurisdiction. This assignment will not be authoritative; but we believe that the board that hears the case will usually be persuaded by our judgement of jurisdiction. It has been agreed that, if necessary, a person involved in this determinative process will disqualify himself from a hearing in order to avoid prejudice to the accused.

Each case will be decided individually on its own merits. Nevertheless, our thinking will be guided by the following: if the act in question occurred in such a way that it would affect the process of earning a grade, it will usually be considered a matter of academic integrity. If the act occurs subsequent to the earning of the grade, e.g. alteration, misuse, or falsification of a record or grade already filed or earned, it will generally be considered a violation of the Campus Code of Conduct.

Comments addressed to any one of us would be appreciated.

Sage Notes

Students who are expecting to finish their degrees soon should pick up a packet at the Graduate School describing the mechanics of thesis preparation. The next degree deadline is May 4, 1973. The deadline for the completion of degree requirements at the end of the summer is Aug. 24, 1973.

Kramer Named Asst. Director Personnel Dept. Is Reorganized

Henry S. Kramer has joined the staff of Cornell's Office of Personnel Services, effective March 5, as assistant director. He is responsible for employe and labor relations.

Kramer is a 1963 graduate of the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations (ILR) at Cornell and graduated from the Cornell Law School in 1966. He is a member of the New York State Bar.

Before coming to Cornell, Kramer was professional and technical recruiting representative for the Ford Motor Company, Body Engineering Division in Dearborn, Mich. He was labor relations representative for Ford Tractor operations in the United States and a member of the corporate labor relations staff.

Kramer's appointment completes an overall reorganization of Personnel Services, announced Diedrich K. Willers, director. He named five assistant directors now reporting to him as Director of Personnel Services and outlined their responsibilities:

—Karl Keller, benefits administration (6-3925). For the first time all benefits programs are under one administrative head. This should speed up service and reduce the number of telephone calls needed to obtain answers to questions about benefits.

—Charles P. Arthur, records, research and operations (6-3974). Employe records, manual and computer systems liaison, personnel office operations, procedures and research are centered in this section so as to facilitate and standardize reporting of personnel information throughout the University.

—Frederick R. Hodgson, employment and wage and salary administration (6-4735). This section will continue to concentrate on problems of employment, the Promotional Openings Program, and wage and salary administration with emphasis on job classification.

—Kramer, employe relations (6-4869). Kramer has responsibility for labor relations, grievance handling and research directed towards a continuing program of improved employe relations.

—Gerald Thomas, training and development (6-4869). Orientation and training of exempt and non-exempt personnel, management development, manpower planning and consulting with departments on specific management and training problems is the thrust of this section. Virginia Rinker, who has a number of years experience with the University, has joined the section to help expand its reach.

In April, Willers said, the office will expand into the space now occupied by the Summer Session and Extramural Program.

The move will provide employes more privacy to discuss their affairs with the personnel staff. In addition, Willers said, the new space will improve the office's efficiency as it undertakes an ever-widening scope of activities and services to the employes and the administration of Cornell.

Executive Development Program

The University again this year will send two employes to the six-week Executive Development Program, sponsored annually in the summer by the Graduate School of Business and Public Administration (B&PA).

Nominations of candidates for the program must be submitted by April 1 to G.S. Thomas, director of training and development in the Office of Personnel Services B-12, Ives Hall.

Motor Vehicles on Campus Must Be Registered Soon

Faculty, staff or student members of the Cornell community operating unregistered vehicles on the University campus must register their vehicles with the Traffic Bureau before 4 p.m., Friday, March 23, or be subject to appropriate prosecution under the Campus Code of Conduct.

The announcement was made by Lance W. Haus, director of the Office of Transportation.

A prerequisite for registration or obtaining a campus parking permit is payment or successful appeal of past due parking fines, Haus said. Registrants must therefore be prepared to pay all fines or else make an immediate written appeal at the Traffic Bureau. Fines may be paid in cash, by check, by payroll deduction for University employes, or by time payment for students.

The names of Cornell community members operating unregistered vehicles who fail to comply will be "referred to the judicial administrator for appropriate prosecution under the Campus Code of Conduct" as of Monday, March 26, Haus said.

"The most immediate attention will be given to those individuals who are unregistered and have shown themselves to be chronic violators. Any penalty for conviction will include as a minimum full payment of all parking fines and penalties assessed by the Traffic Bureau," he stated.

Alan L. Sapakie, judicial administrator, said violators would be charged with refusal "to comply with a lawful order of a clearly identifiable University official acting in the performance of his duties in the enforcement of University policy," as stated in the Campus Code of Conduct.

For Desegregation Goals

NYS Guidelines Are Received

William D. Jones, assistant to the provost, reported that Cornell has received the guidelines developed by the New York State Education Department to assist institutions in achieving the desegregation goals stated by the Board of Regents in Position Paper No. 15, "Minority Access to and Participation in Post-Secondary Education."

Jones noted that the University has until June 1, 1973 to respond to the State Education Department. He said the University administration will study the guidelines and consult with various members of the Cornell community before submitting its final report to the State.

Following is the complete text of the guidelines. GUIDELINES FOR THE DESEGREGATION OF FACILITIES AND PROGRAMS TO IMPLEMENT THE REGENTS POSITION PAPER ON MINORITY ACCESS TO AND PARTICIPATION IN POSTSECONDARY EDUCATION

These guidelines have been developed to assist institutions in achieving the goals stated by the Regents in Position Paper No. 15, "Minority Access to and Participation in Post-Secondary Education," and in reporting by June 1, 1973, plans to desegregate, by the beginning of the fall semester, 1973, any currently segregated facilities and programs.

I. Desegregation of Facilities and Programs

A. Segregated facilities are defined as those in which admission or residence is restricted, by the institution or with its consent, to persons of a particular race, color, or national origin. Such facilities include buildings for residence, or other physical facilities, wings, floors, or parts of such facilities, such as separate student lounges.

Segregated programs are defined as activities, courses, courses of study, institutes, schools, or colleges administered by the institution, and organizations supported directly by an institution or through the collection of fees or dues by the institution for use by student organizations, to which admission is restricted by the institution, or with its consent, to persons of a particular race, color, or national origin.

B. All institutions of postsecondary education — including degree-granting institutions, and institutions registered or licensed under Sections 52.22, 127.1, 128.1, and 129.1 of the Regulations of the Commissioner of Education — are required to report to the Regents by June 1, 1973, the existence of any segregated facilities or programs defined above. The report should be submitted to the Office of the Deputy Commissioner for Higher and Professional Education, State Education Department, 99 Washington Avenue (Room 1910), Albany, New York 12210. Any institution having no such segregated facility or program is requested to report that fact.

A description of a segregated facility or program should include these factors:

—Name, reason for establishment, and principal purpose of facility or program;

—Number of participants;

—Race, color, or national origin of participants;

—Basis of selection or recruitment of participants;

—Nature of institutional approval or extent of institutional participation in process of identification, recruitment and assignment of students to program or facility;

—Nature of institutional support for facility or program.

Questions concerning the implementation of these guidelines should be addressed to Dr. Albert H. Berrian, Associate Commissioner for Higher Education, Room 1915, 99 Washington Avenue, Albany, New York 12210 (518-474-6960).

II. Assurance of Non-Discrimination in Off-Campus Housing

Institutions should secure assurance from landlords and homeowners that access to off-campus housing listed by the institution is not restricted on the basis of race, color, or national origin. Commencing with the beginning of the fall semester of 1973, institutions should not list any facility for which such assurance has not been received.

III. Enhancement of Minority Access

Position Paper No. 15 urges all institutions to expand the enrollment of students and faculty from minority groups and to sensitize "faculty, professional and non-professional staff and students to the diverse life-styles" of minority groups. Most institutions now participate in the statewide effort to bring students and members of professional staffs from minority groups into the mainstream of postsecondary education. Each institution is urged to increase the number of students from populations other than the traditional college-going population, over and above students in "opportunity programs."

to promote the goal of enhanced access by members of minority groups, each institution should develop a plan and program in accordance with its institutional goals, for the recruitment and retention from minority groups of students who meet its regular admission criteria and of faculty members who meet criteria for appointment. However, the plan must not indicate a preference for members of minority groups.

A. The plan should include a description of the means whereby the institution will recruit qualified members of minority groups. Such means should include formal contact with media directed at minority groups, civil rights groups, professional registers and associations, particularly those established for the primary purpose of locating members of minority groups, and other appropriate sources of referral.

B. The plan should include goals for enrollment of qualified students from minority groups and addition of qualified members of minority groups as faculty and professional staff.

C. The plan should include an administrative procedure to monitor the program. This may best be achieved by the appointment of an equal opportunity officer, or by the assignment of this task to a specific officer of the institution. The system developed should include procedures to audit the program and evaluate its effectiveness.

It is hoped that institutions will share their plans with the State Education Department by sending an information copy of such plans to the Office of the Deputy Commissioner for Higher and Professional Education.

The higher education guidelines promulgated under Executive Order 11246 (United States Office for Civil Rights, October 1, 1972) call for higher education institutions which are Federal contractors to maintain written affirmative action programs. Copies of programs prepared to meet the requirements of Executive Order 11246 may be submitted in fulfillment of the requirement of the section with respect to minority staff recruitment. ## Report of the Meeting Of the Faculty Council of Representatives

March 14, 1973

At its regular March meeting the FCR passed two amendments to the FCR Response to the Cranch Report, approved establishment of a new Master's Degree program, established a slate of nominees for Faculty Trustee (non-tenured) and FCR at-large members and discussed briefly the proposed new class timetable.

Dean of the Faculty Norman Penney opened the meeting with several announcements. He reported that he has been appointed as faculty representative on a newly-formed COSEP Advisory Committee. The Committee has met three times and will serve as a sounding board and as advisor to the COSEP administration on questions of policy. He also reported that the Carter (Africana Studies) Committee Report has been sent to the FCR by the President with a request for Faculty comment. The Report has been referred to the Committee on Academic Programs and Policies. The President has also asked for FCR comment on the Resolution presented to the Board of Trustees by Student Trustee Gordon Chang on Equal Educational Opportunity. This resolution, he stated, has been sent to the Committee on Freedom of Teaching and Learning. Dean Penney also announced recent receipt of a request from the Acting Provost David Knapp for FCR comment on the New York State Education Department's request for University plans to implement policy of desegregation of University facilities and programs. No action has been taken on this request as yet.

With respect to the FCR Response to the Cranch Report, the FCR voted, with little debate, by amendment to accept the objections raised by Prof. A. G. Korman, Industrial and Labor Relations, at the University Faculty meeting of February 14. In Section IIIA, the phrase in parenthesis was removed from the following sentence:

"We recommend that the quality of an individual's teaching, research, and public service educational efforts (and the relation of his interests to his department's commitments), continue to be the primary bases for recommending promotion."

In a second action, the following sentence was added to Section VII on Student Financial Aid:

"In addition we urge that high priority be given to finding ways to expand the amount of scholarship funds available."

The Degree of Master of Professional Studies (International Development), offered by the Graduate School, was passed without debate.

In addition to the Slate of Nominees circulated with the announcement of the meeting, the following names were added by nomination from the floor:

For Faculty Trustee (non-tenured):

Stephen E. Bloom, Assistant Professor, Cytogenetics, Poultry Science.

Mary Beth Norton, Assistant Professor, History.

For FCR Member At-Large:

Richard M. Phelan, Professor,

Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering.

Bruce T. Wilkins, Associate Professor, Natural Resources.

In other action, the FCR approved a proposal to hold elections for its standing committees in the spring immediately after the FCR elections.

Proposals were considered for establishment of grading symbols WP (withdraw passing), WF (withdraw failing) and W (withdraw at a time when a judgment about passing or failing could not be determined) and for a cessation of the present practice of converting the NA (not attending) symbol to an F. Both proposals were sent back to the Committee on Academic Programs and Policies for further study and clarification.

Finally, with about 15 minutes left to the meeting, the proposed new class timetable was discussed. Registrar Byron McCalmon introduced the topic and fielded questions. Amid comments for and against the proposal were announcements from members of the Law School and the College of Veterinary Medicine that if the new plan were passed, their units would probably request exemption from the new timetable. In citing reasons motivating the change Dean Penney noted that Saturday hours are not being used much at present. This underuses Tuesday-Thursday time. Under the new schedule, T Th times would be used more efficiently.

Med College Gets Grant to Study Kidney Transplant

The John A. Hartford Foundation, Inc. has awarded a $60,000 grant to Cornell Medical College to support a two-year study on the prevention of human kidney transplant rejection.

The grant was announced jointly by Harry B. George, Hartford Foundation president and Dr. J. Robert Buchanan, dean of the Medical College.

The research is already in progress, headed by Dr. Robert R. Riggio, assistant professor of biochemistry and surgery and associate director of the Rogosin Kidney Disease Transplant Center at The New York Hospital; one such operation now takes place every week.

Kidney transplantation is an established form of therapy for patients with end-stage kidney disease. Current survival statistics show 81 per cent of living related-donor transplants and 44 per cent of cadaver transplants to be functioning two years later. No improvement has been noted in these values, however, during the last four years.

Dr. Riggio and his associates propose to improve significantly these kidney survival rates. Recent studies have discerned biological substances called "enhancing factors" in the blood serum of kidney transplant recipients who tolerate the transplant without rejection. Dr. Riggio will use passive immunization with these enhancing factors on transplant patients.

An enhancing substance which may be identical to that recently observed in successfully transplanted patients has been found on the human placenta. As the fetus is also an allograft, its survival in the uterus may depend on a similar enhancing factor.

The research is being conducted in the Rogosin Laboratories, where facilities include a complete laboratory for immunological investigation as well as facilities for the total care of individuals with kidney disease.

Summary of the Report of the Special Committee on University Planning

The Report of the Advisory Committee on Financial Planning, better known as the "Cranch Report," recommends that the University increase enrollment to 17,500, adding approximately 1,660 students to the present enrollment.

The Cranch Committee concluded that the University and the Ithaca area could accommodate their recommended increase of students, although they did recognize that there would be some "strain" on the support facilities. For the past month the Senate's Special Committee on University Planning has investigated the six areas of campus facilities highlighted in Section 4.3 of the Cranch Report and completed a separate study in each. These areas are housing, parking and transportation, dining, University unions, athletics and health care.

After these separate studies were written, the Special Committee read and discussed all of them and their relation to each other. Finally the Committee, composed of three faculty members, two students and one employe, came to conclusions, which were shared by every member.

The Committee concluded that the University should adopt a policy to limit the number of students to the 1973-1974 level of enrollment, which will be approximately 16,200.

The Committee felt that there has not been enough careful research or study made about the costs of increasing the size of the student body. As our studies indicate, the health care facilities could handle an increase of enrollment, although there would have to be a curtailment of services. However, the Athletics, Dining and University unions studies indicate that a significant increase in the number of students would require costly renovation and construction in these support facilities. The Housing and Parking and Transportation reports indicate that an increase of 1,660 students would mean that the University would either have to make expensive improvements in the campus transportation system or enter into an arrangement to expand public transportation in the Ithaca area.

While the Committee certainly does not feel that its studies are exhaustive, it does believe that there is enough evidence to think that a significant increase in the student population will require large outlays of money merely to keep services at the same level that they are now. In short, the Committee believed that the financial impact of increasing enrollment would be to drain the University's resources. The Committee strongly felt that there must be more research done before a decision is made to increase enrollments as the Cranch Committee neglected to raise or answer some important considerations and did not document many of its important points.

The Senate Special Committee further recommends that the central administration eliminate the budgetary incentive for the growth of individual colleges and schools. Presently, endowed colleges receive a payment from the University for each credit hour taught. Therefore, there is an incentive for each college to admit as many students as possible, even though the central administration might determine that it is financially better to limit the total enrollment.

The Committee agreed with the Cranch Report's recommendation for the need of planning. Consequently, we believe that the central administration should determine the size of the University, and not the various colleges and schools. If academic units were not given a payment for each credit hour taught to their own students over a predetermined level, then there would be no pressure on the central administration to increase enrollment when such increases may be uneconomical.

Because of lack of time, the Committee had to focus on just the six campus life areas mentioned in the Cranch Report. Yet the Committee strongly felt that a significant increase in the number of students will seriously damage the quality of life on campus. We believe that a large growth of the student body will undermine the spirit of community and fragment the campus by forcing many students to live in the further portions of Ithaca and in the outlying regions of the county. Students who are already living in Danby, Ludlowville, Trumansburg and other places have lost touch with the University and identification with Cornell. The Committee feels that this is obviously bad.

Of course it is impossible to predict how the University will change under the stress of growth. Yet the Committee believes that a number of undesirable side effects may hurt the University. For example, we believe that it is possible that a loss of identification between the student and the University may adversely affect future alumni support. And, we already know that the students seeking scarce housing will displace townspeople and cause bad relationships between the Ithaca and University communities. These are just two non-productive problems that the University should consider before it decides to significantly expand enrollment.

Since we believe that there are many unanswered questions about the ability of the University and the Ithaca area to absorb an increase of 1,660 students, the Committee requests that the University respond to each of our six reports if a decision is made to increase the number of students above the 1973-74 enrollment levels.

Supplementary TIAA/CREF Coverage

The office of Personnel Services reminds non-exempt employes that they may purchase additional retirement income from TIAA/CREF to supplement their non-contributory plan or the New York State Employes Retirement program, and that they may use the payroll deduction service to do so. Endowed College employes interested in further information should contact the Office of University Personnel Services at 256-5226. Statutory College employes should contact the Finance and Business Office in Mann Library at 256-4455.

Agricultural Leaders' Forum Set

Discussion of major issues and forces affecting agriculture in the next decade and factors that will control the future of agriculture will be the highlight of this year's Agricultural Leaders' Forum in Alice Statler Auditorium, March 22.

To be held under the theme, "Agricultural Issues in the Next Decade," the forum is sponsored by the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell. The day-long program features three talks and a panel discussion to bring into focus the way things will shape up for agriculture in the years directly ahead.

'Ecology of Women' to Be Viewed

"The Ecology of Women," a three-day "consciousness raising event," is set for March 27-29 at the New York State College of Human Ecology at Cornell.

The program, which student organizers say will involve speakers, workshops, panel discussions and films, is open to the public. Sponsored and originated by the College's division of academic services, all sessions will be held in Martha Van Rensselaer Hall. (See the Chronicle Calendar on Page 8 for complete schedule.)

The opening day's program, March 27, will feature an address by Barnard College Professor Catharine Stimpson on "The Women's Movement." Professor Stimpson is a contributor to "Ms." magazine, and is the editor of a forthcoming book on Congressional hearings about sex discrimination.

Carmen Maymi, associate director of the Women's Bureau in the U.S. Department of Labor, will speak on "Employment Opportunities for Women." Ms. Maymi, who held a number of other posts in public affairs before her current appointment, holds a master's degree in education. A native of Puerto Rico, Ms. Maymi's duties include working in the area of fulfilling the employment needs of minority women.

Thursday's wrap-up events open with a lecture by Mary Anne Krupsak, New York State Senator from Canajoharie, who represents the 44th District. Ms. Krupsak, will speak on "Legislation for Women's Rights."

Nominations for Professors-at-Large

Nominations are once again invited for new Professors-at-Large. Of the 18 who now hold this title, two short of the full complement of 20 members, two will be ending their terms in 1973. Since renewal of initial appointments is permissible but not mandatory, we may expect to have two or at most three vacancies to fill. Letters in support of proposed renewals will be needed.

According to trustee legislation, Professors-at-Large are "individuals who have achieved outstanding international distinction in the humanities, the natural or social sciences, or the learned professions, or have achieved such distinction and have demonstrated broad intellectual interests through their activity in such fields as public affairs, literature, or the creative arts. Professors-at-Large shall be elected by the Board of Trustees upon the recommendation of the President for a definite term of not to exceed six years."

Nominations are invited by individuals or groups of individuals. However, nominations from departments or other academic units carry special weight. They should be sent to: Max Black, Chairman, Program for Professors-at-Large, 608 Clark (by campus or regular mail). If you have any questions, please consult with the Program's secretary, Barbara Adams (6-3810). Since the competition will continue to be severe, it is essential that all nominations be supported by careful documentation, including a vita summarizing the nominee's outstanding accomplishments, positions held, honors received, a select bibliography, and supporting letters. Nominations made in previous years can be reconsidered, if so requested.

The nominating committee will give preference to proposals for appointing outstanding men or women in fields not already represented, or not sufficiently represented, in the Program. Suggestions for scholars who are not Americans or Europeans will be especially welcome. Appointments of scholars who are over 60 can be made only in exceptional circumstances.

The last date for receiving nominations will be Friday, April 6. We hope to make final recommendations to the President and the Board of Trustees by the end of the semester. Please feel free to consult with members of the nominating committee: M.H. Abrams, H.A. Bethe, Max Black, Edmund Cranch, Henry Guerlac, W. Keith Kennedy, Robert S. Morison, Maurice Neufeld, Rudolf Schlesinger, F.C. Steward, and Alain Sezec (ex officio).

Herbert Wichelns, 78

Herbert A. Wichelns, professor of theatre arts, emeritus, at Cornell University, died March 4 at the Nassau County Hospital after a brief illness. He was 78.

A member of the Cornell Class of 1916, Wichelns was a leading authority on the history and theory of public speaking. According to a colleague, his essay, "The Literary Criticism of Oratory," written in 1925, "set the pattern and determined the direction of rhetorical criticism for more than a quarter of a century and has had a greater and more continuous influence upon the development of the scholarship of rhetoric and public address than any other single work published in this century."

A bachelor, Wichelns moved to Garden City following his retirement from Cornell in 1962. He served on the faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences for 38 years. He earned his doctorate at Cornell in 1922 after serving as Second Lieutenant in the United States Army during World War I.

Born in New York City, he attended schools in Brooklyn before coming to Cornell as an undergraduate in 1912. There are no immediate survivors. Interment was Wednesday, March 7, in Lutheran Cemetery, Brooklyn.
