First Minority Admissions Data Compiled

The first complete information on the racial and ethnic composition of an entering class at the University has been released by Donald G. Dickason, dean of admissions and financial aid. It shows that 400—11.7 percent—of this year's new students are from minority groups.

The information was compiled from Cornell admissions files, according to Dickason. He said his office began to gather such material last year, but that those first-year data were somewhat incomplete.

"This is the first time we've had good data for the entering class," according to Carl F. Brown, associate dean of admissions and financial aid. Black and Asian American students make up the largest—and exactly the same size—minority groups in the entering class: 4.5 percent, 154 students.

Other racial and ethnic groups in the class are Puerto Ricans (0.9 percent, 31 students), Hispanics (Mexican Americans, Cubans, etc.) (0.7 percent, 25 students), and Native Americans (0.2 percent, 6 students). Thirty minority students who indicated their ethnic group as "other" make up 0.9 percent of the freshmen and transfers.

"We've had requests for information such as this in the past," Brown said, "and we've only been able to provide the number of students in the COSEP program." COSEP—the Committee on Special Educational Projects—is a minority education program which seeks to enroll and support minority students at Cornell.

"In addition, this is the first time we've had racial and ethnic identification for non-COSEP as well as COSEP minority students," Brown said.

Comparing this year's statistics with last year's somewhat incomplete data indicates an overall increase of 1.1 percent in entering minority students. Asian Americans showed an increase to 4.5 percent from 3.4 percent in 1977. Blacks increased to 4.5 percent from 3.9 percent last year. Other minority groups remained about the same, Brown said.

Applications for entry in 1977 were the first that specifically requested student response to the optional question "What is Your Racial/Ethnic Background?," followed by a number of categories from which a student may have selected. This question was repeated in the application form for 1978. It was from this information that the current data have been compiled.

Dickason said that of the 18,277 students who applied for admission to Cornell this year, 2,242 (12.3 percent) were minority students. Of the 6,487 students offered admission, 829 (12.8 percent) were from minority groups.

Freshmen, Transfer Minority Students Admission Figures

Minority Group	COSEP Students	Non-COSEP* Students	Total	Percent of Class
Native American	6	0	6	0.2
Black	145	9	154	4.5
Mexican/Hispanic	22	3	25	0.7
Puerto Rican	30	1	31	0.9
Asian American	69	85	154	4.5
Other	30	0	30	0.9
TOTALS	302	98	400	11.7

*Non-COSEP students are those who indicated a minority racial/ethnic background on their first Admissions form, but did not seek admission through the COSEP program.

Minority Office Completes Report

A two-part, 101-page "Comprehensive Plan for Minority Education at Cornell University" has been submitted by Darwin Williams, director of the Office of Minority Educational Affairs, to Provost W. Keith Kennedy and the Minority Education Council.

The 1977-78 annual report for minority education also was submitted to Kennedy by Williams and represents the first description of the plan's progress.

The documents are available at the reference desks of Olin and Mann Libraries as well as in the minority affairs office, 100 Barnes Hall.

The two-part plan is the result of a two-year survey of all resources—human and program—available to Cornell's minority community through the University's minority affairs efforts.

Part I provides a complete view of all minority programs and staffing in Williams' area of responsibility: the COSEP central office, the Learning Skills Center (LSC), state programs for the Education Opportunity Plan (EOP) and the Higher Education Opportunity Plan (HEOP), admissions and financial aid.

Part II, titled "College Plans," is detailed plans for minority education action from all seven undergraduate schools and colleges at Cornell.

David C. Knapp, Cornell provost until June when he became president of the University of Massachusetts, initiated the study.

He said he expected the plan to contain "a compendium of College Plans developed following the reorganization of minority education and programs in January 1976, along with first year progress reports and annual reports for the Minority Education Office and central minority education activities.

"This volume is intended to serve as a resource for individuals interested in progress to date and as a point of reference for monitoring future progress."

The Minority Education Council, which received the plan at a meeting yesterday, is made up of students, deans, faculty and administrators and is designed to set policy and review programs.

Bulletin of the Faculty

The Executive Committee of the FCR has decided, with a dearth of crucial business on hand, NOT to hold the regular October FCR meeting, originally scheduled for Oct. 11. Consequently, the next meeting will be the regular meeting in November. REPEAT: the regular October FCR meeting will be OMITTED. The secretary is grateful for the omission.

P.L. Hartman, Secretary

Staff Directories Out Soon

Staff directories will be delivered to departments next week. The student directory will be delivered soon thereafter, according to University Publication. Delivery will be the same as in the past few years. Large orders will be delivered to one location in a building, and it is the responsibility of each department to obtain its directories from that point. Questions about delivery procedures should be directed to Lois Barber, at 6-4945.

Directories are furnished free for the transaction of University business. Copies for personal use may be purchased at the Campus Store, the Corner Book Store, Mayers Smoke Shop, or Triangle Book Store.

Author to Give Ornithology Talk

Joseph J. Hickey, professor emeritus of wildlife ecology at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, will speak on "The Ecology of Vertebrate Extinction" at 7:45 p.m. Monday, Oct. 9, at Laboratory of Ornithology, 159 Sapsucker Woods Road. His talk is free and open to the public.

Hickey, a member of the Laboratory of Ornithology's administrative board and recipient of its 1976 Arthur A. Allen Award for distinguished service to ornithology, is the author of "A Guide to Birdwatching," one of the first books on the subject, which was published in 1943 and reprinted in 1975 by Dover Publishing Co.

Historian's Topic Is Middle Ages

A Polish historian with research interests in the social history, culture and popular religion of the Middle Ages will speak at 4:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 9, in Kaufmann Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall.

Bronislaw Geremek, professor of medieval history at the Institute of History in the Polish Academy of Science, will speak on "Social Marginality in Pre-Industrial Society." His talk is sponsored by Cornell's Committee on University Lectures.

Currently a fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, D.C., Geremek has studied extensively in Warsaw and Paris. He is the author of "The Labor Market in Medieval Paris, 14th-15th Century."

UAW Staffer Is Visiting Lecturer At ILR

Nat Weinberg, a top staff member of the United Auto Workers union for nearly 30 years, will be senior visiting lecturer during the month of October at the State School of Industrial and Labor Relations.

Weinberg will be a guest lecturer in a number of ILR classes and will conduct a series of meetings with student groups during his four-week stay, according to Ronald Donovan, a professor in the ILR School.

"The main commodity a non-academic type like myself brings to the campus is experience in dealing with a wide range of practical problems from a particular point of view," Weinberg said. He seeks to relate his experience and perspective to what students "are absorbing from their classes and readings."

Until his retirement in 1974, Weinberg held key positions with the UAW.

Wason Collection Celebrates 60 Years

The Wason Collection on China and the Chinese, of the Universities Libraries, will celebrate its 60th anniversary by holding a one-day conference on "Cooperation Among East Asian Libraries" on Monday, Oct. 9, at Olin Library.

Twenty-five librarians from various major institutions will attend. Speakers will be T.H. Tsien of the University of Chicago, Warren Tsuneishi of the Library of Congress, and Wei-ying Wan of the University of Michigan. Richard Howard, of the Library of Congress, will be the moderator.

Job Opportunities

The following are regular continuing full-time positions unless otherwise specified. Please do not inquire at individual departments. An equal opportunity employer. Individuals on lay-off status will be given preference in referrals.

Council Seeks Applicants For Employee Member

The Campus Council is seeking a third employee member as a result of one of a number of charter changes recently approved by the Faculty Council of Representatives and President Frank Rhodes.

The additional member will bring the council's voting membership to 17. The Committee on Committees will advertise for applicants for the position and the two current University employee trustees will select the third employee council member, who will serve until the installation of the new council members after elections in the spring.

Following is a summary and explanation of the amendments to the charter.

Amendments which Required Presidential And FCR Approval:

—Article 1.1.3 was amended to permit the council, by the vote of 12 of its members, to remove a member or the chairperson of the Committee on Committees, when that person is not adequately performing his or her functions.

—Article 1.2 was amended to increase the number of employee representatives on the council from 2 to 3, with the total number of voting members being increased from 16 to 17. It was felt that the present arrangement imposes undue burdens on the two employee representatives to participate fully in the work of the council and its ad hoc working groups formed to examine specific issues.

—Article 1.2.1 was amended to permit the Committee on Committees, with the consent of the council, to use methods other than the Hare system in conducting council elections. It was felt that other methods might offer greater efficiency or draw a larger turnout, and that more flexibility should be provided in this area.

—Article 1.2.2 was amended to permit student and employee vacancies on the council to be filled for the remainder of the school year by persons chosen by the student or employee trustees. The present system, under which a vacancy can only be filled at the regular spring elections, could (and did) result in a seat remaining vacant for a substantial part of the school year.

—A new Article 1.2.5 was added, providing that a voting member of the council may not serve concurrently as a trustee or a member of a standing committee or board. It was felt that, with the limited number of opportunities for members of the community to participate in campus governance, it was undesirable to have a single person occupying two or more of such positions at the same time.

Amendments Which Did Not Require Presidential or FCR Approval:

—Article 1.3.5 was added to permit the council to remove one of its officers by vote of 12 of its voting members. No provision for removal was included in the original charter.

—Article 1.4.3 was amended to increase the quorum requirement from 8 to 9 voting members, reflecting the increase in total voting membership contemplated by the amendment of Article 1.2.

—Article 1.5 was amended to make clear that council members are eligible to serve on ad hoc committees established by the council to look into specific issues and report back to the council.

—Articles 1.6.1. and 1.7.7.4 were amended to provide that chairpersons of committees should be elected by a combined vote of the outgoing, continuing and incoming members of the committees. The inclusion of the outgoing members reflected the feeling that they would have a valuable perspective on the needs of the committee and the qualifications required by a chairperson.

—Article 1.6.1.1 was amended to require that student and employee members of all committees be selected by April 15, rather than May 1, to provide more time for the new committees to organize themselves before the end of the school year.

—A new Article 1.6.1.7 was added, permitting the Committee on Committees, by a specified vote, to remove a member or the chairperson of a committee, where that person is not adequately performing his or her functions.

Weekend Games Slated

The Cornell-Bucknell varsity football game this Saturday is the featured attraction on the weekend home sports schedule. Game time for the contest is set for 1:30 p.m., and plenty of excellent seats are still available.

The football team is now 1-0-1 after an opening tie with Princeton and a 21-12 victory last Saturday over Colgate.

It also will be Tompkins County Day at Schoellkopf with all county residents able to purchase regular $6 tickets for just $3 by showing some form of identification, indicating their residence in the community. Children will also be admitted for the $3 price.

In other home sports activity this weekend, the lightweight football team will open its 1978 home schedule Friday night against a strong Navy team starting at 7:30 p.m. on Schoellkopf. The rest of the action will take place on Saturday, starting with the Cornell-Bucknell field hockey game on Helen Newman Field at 11 a.m. The men's junior varsity cross country team will meet Mohawk Valley C.C. at 11:30 a.m. on the University golf course.

Following the varsity football game on Saturday, the final Cornell/Ithaca High School soccer doubleheader will be played on Schoellkopf. At 5 p.m., IHS will host Johnson City to be followed by the Cornell-Oneonta State game at 7:30. Tickets for the doubleheader are $2 for adults and 50 cents for children, ages 14 and under.

Planning Conquers Challenges

On May 5 Lani and Tim Collins left the Pacific Ocean at LaJolla, Calif., for the east and Cornell on their Honda 550 motorcycle. They had planned for more than a month the details of the month-long camping cross-country trip. Tim built a box for the back of the cycle and made rain chaps and stuff bags (for sleeping bags) for both of them; Lani made the tent and Tim's sleeping bag.

Two saddle bags and two glove compartments held their personal belongings for the trip.

The trip took them through many national parks. They encountered rain, sleet, snow and hail in the mountains, and the cycle had two flat tires in Montana, but they say they enjoyed the challenges. At the end of the 6,300-mile trip, they found Lani was off by $3 to $5 on food costs; Tim was off by $5 to $7 on the cost of gas.

Now they are facing other challenges that take the same precise planning. Lani plans her time to the minute; Tim plans the budget.

Lani is in her first year at Cornell Law School and Tim is the working spouse.

Why law school and why Cornell? After doing undergraduate work in religious studies, Lani found that she wanted to go into the foreign service. "I felt law would help me get in. Also, I saw my family experience injustices particularly in land deals and I didn't want to be a victim of that. And I enjoy a challenge," she says.

Cornell was Lani and Tim's favorite after looking last year at five law schools in the east. So they were pleased when she was accepted by Cornell.

Tim has one more year of undergraduate study before he gets his degree in business administration. He says, "It makes more sense for her to go to school now. I can take business courses just about anywhere, but Lani has to go to a specific place for law school." So he has been doing any job he can find around Ithaca, from carpentry to waiting tables to janitoring.

He also does all the housework, shopping and laundry. "I really don't mind doing it and it doesn't make me feel inferior. I did have to train Lani to let me do it — she isn't supposed to serve me. Actually, I think women's liberation has taken the pressure off men. In the long run we will both be doing what we want to."

Renovated Auditorium to Be Dedicated

Some 200 invited guests are expected to attend the formal dedication of the Hollis E. Cornell Auditorium in Goldwin Smith Hall at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 10.

The auditorium, known to Cornellians for 74 years as "Goldwin Smith A," has been renovated as the result of a gift of $300,000 from Mrs. Hollis Cornell in memory of her late husband. The auditorium seats 220 and is the largest lecture room in Goldwin Smith Hall.

At the dedication ceremony, Mrs. Cornell, a 1939 graduate of the University, will "present" the modernized auditorium to President Frank Rhodes, who will accept it on behalf of the University.

Earlier in the ceremony there will be remarks by Alvin H. Bernstein, associate professor of ancient history, and Michele Goldstein, a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences from Rochester. Alain Seznec, dean of the college, will open the program with words of welcome.

The renovated auditorium has new seats, lighting, surfaces and acoustical treatment, a sound system, a visual aid system and air conditioning.

Goldwin Smith Hall "A" (top) has been transformed into the Hollis E. Cornell Auditorium (bottom).

CORNELL CHRONICLE

Published weekly during the regular academic year and distributed free of charge to Cornell University faculty, students, staff and employees by the University News Bureau. Mail subscriptions, $13 per year. Make checks payable to Cornell Chronicle Editorial Office, 110 Day Hall, Ithaca, N.Y. 14853. Telephone 256-4206. Editor, Randall E. Shew; Managing Editor, Elizabeth Helmer; Circulation Manager, Barbara Jordan.

Chronicle Comment

Chronicle Comment is a forum of opinion for the Cornell community. Address comments to Elizabeth Helmer, Managing Editor, Chronicle, 110 Day Hall. Letters submitted for publication must be typed, double space, no more than 600 words in length. The Chronicle must adhere to this limit because of space and financial restrictions. The deadline is Monday noon. Letters addressed to someone other than the editor, personal attacks against individuals or unsigned letters will not be printed.

'Faculty Governance Needs Rethinking'

Editor:

The recent meeting of the University Faculty demonstrated the incapacity of that body either to achieve a measured consensus or to deal realistically with the problems of the modern university. The assembly was called to hear the provost discuss the financial problems of the University, and the relatively large turnout was interested mostly in just that. Before the interest was met, a complicated revision of faculty governance was given a short exercise. It was possible to get the assembly to throw out a single, incredibly bad, governance proposal, but the segment of the faculty interested in the problems of support was in no temper to take the time to allow some consensus to form about the problems of University governance.

The University Faculty, by quorum failures and by adjournment and postponement when quorums were present, has demonstrated repeated lack of interest in governance problems especially, as in the present case, where the new proposals were made without either any honest effort to obtain prior consensus or to present differences of opinion in the matter effectively. However, the net effect of the proposed changes in University governance is to scuttle effective representative faculty governance. This is especially true of alterations of quorum requirements and committee responsibilities.

The repeated collapses of representative governance within universities indicate that functional democracy does not flourish in academe. Any college or university administration is usually hostile to genuinely representative democracy in the institution. Administrations like the facade of responsibility provided by inept town meeting assemblies since these are not effective and usually can be repudiated as non-representative if they misbehave.

The collapse of the Cornell Senate is a classic demonstration of this hostility in practice. The Senate came into being because the ineptness of the Perkins administration in dealing with people problems had left major non-academic sections of the University seriously mal-administered. The task of putting the Senate together, of getting it accepted by faculty, employees, students and trustees, and of dealing with the real problems in its jurisdiction took a substantial number of scholars away from the teaching and research on which their status depended and placed their careers in special jeopardy by making them targets of various forms of political hostility. There was a time when the University problems were so simple that casual dilettantism was sufficient to deal realistically with them, but the Senate demonstrated that this era is gone.

Two things killed the Senate: the first one was the deliberate failure on the part of the administration to find a way to make it worthwhile for scholars to deflect a substantial portion of their activities to that organization. The Senate, secondarily, thereby became nonrepresentative which, in turn, increased the flow of non-representative rhetoric which drove out the remaining genuine representatives. In the end, the Senate was talked to death.

I helped put the initial Senate document together; I tried to get it accepted by the trustees and the faculty, and I helped to get it launched. But when it degenerated into a useless, non-representative body, I helped do it in.

The real problems confronting the University Faculty are even larger than those that the Senate met, yet there is no commitment of either scholarly activity or support sufficient to study the problems.

The alternate to functioning representative government of the University Faculty is standing ready in the wings. Professor Gruenfeld's repeated soundings of faculty opinion show increasingly favorable response to organization of the faculties of this institution; this response is especially marked in what most people would consider the relatively conservative faculties.

I report as a matter of interest that when SUNY was first formed, there was apparently some pressure from its top administration to facilitate unionization. There even was some sentiment among Cornell administrators to go along with SUNY wishes. University administrators can find it easier to deal with a union than with a genuinely functioning representative faculty body. I think it probable that the Cornell statutory representatives were largely responsible for postponing the organization of the SUNY faculties for a substantial period. But the ultimate organization of the SUNY faculties came about mostly by design or ineptness or both on the part of the SUNY administration.

Let us now look at the dimension of the problems which face the Cornell faculties. We have a recent circumstance where a senior University professor could not resolve a grievance within the Cornell family but had to take the University into federal court where he persuaded at least one federal judge that he had, in fact, been unfairly treated by the University. I interpret this to mean that our personnel policies, as they affect faculty, are so deteriorated that the courts are the only redress. One or another aspect of this general issue has been around for a long time, but the problems multiplied in the statutory colleges during the years of the Perkins Disaster. Neither the Cornell administration nor the old University Faculty nor the new FCR succeeded in resolving the issues. In fact, my impression is that they deliberately avoided them. Yet these are precisely the problems handled decisively (if not well) by collective bargaining.

I have always had a hope that Cornell contained sufficient good-will and talent that it might develop a form of valid faculty government which was better than the anarchy of the past and more effective than any possible labor organization. However, these repeated attempts to destroy the FCR make the hope forlorn. Those who advocate a return to town meetings, those who would increase the power of the essentially anarchic University Faculty at the expense of the Faculty Council of Representatives are as pronoun as those who actively support organization. When the administration deliberately ignores legitimate faculty opinion, when the administration withholds sufficient support necessary to study the real complex problems of modern education, it becomes as pronoun as those faculty members who are trying to weaken or destroy the FCR. This accidental or designed pressure to force the faculties into a collective bargaining posture can have only one result.

State Health Insurance Members Have Choice

October is the month when employees in Cornell's statutory units who are enrolled in the State health Insurance Program may transfer to any plan available in their area from their present plan or option.

In the Ithaca area, there are two plans available: the statewide plan (Blue Cross/Blue Shield and major medical) and the Group Health Insurance Plan (Blue Cross and GHI). Under the statewide plan, the biweekly rate is 0 for an individual, $4.56 for a family. Under the GHI plan, the biweekly rate is 0 for both an individual and a family.

Employees who wish to change their enrollment must submit an application (Form PS-404) to the Finance and Business Office, B-22 Mann Library, during October. They must fill out items 1 through 6, 30, 35 (if applicable) and 36. The effective date of the new coverage will be Jan. 11, 1979.

Effective Sept. 1, a second Surgical Consultation Program located in Syracuse has been made available to Ithaca area residents enrolled in the New York State Health Insurance Program.

Persons in Central New York who have been told they need elective surgery will no longer have to travel to Albany to get a second opinion, should they desire one, according to Patricia C. Osburn, administrative aide in the finance and business office.

Employees in the statewide plan can arrange for a second opinion in the Syracuse area by calling (518) 457-3198. Employees in the GHI plan can arrange such consultation by calling (315) 422-0163.

Prompt arrangements will be made so that the employee or a dependent will receive a consultation with an appropriate specialist as close to home as possible at no cost to the employee, Osburn said.

For further information on either plan transfer or second surgical opinion, call 6-3084 or stop in at the Finance and Business Office, B-22 Mann Library.

'Seminar Speakers Deserve Better Publicity'

Editor:

Despite a request personally delivered to the Chronicle staff, which met the appropriate deadline, the announcement of my upcoming seminar was deleted from last Thursday's issue. The seminar is scheduled for today, Oct. 5, and I had hoped to give people a week's notice so that they might plan to attend. When I inquired about the deletion, I was told that there was insufficient space for the announcement. The Chronicle staff member to whom I complained also felt that it was sufficient to provide a few hours' notice the day of the presentation.

I recognize that the Chronicle has a limited area in which to publish a number of articles. However, two questions remain. First, how could space be lacking for a five-line notice when there was room for a three-paragraph article about another seminar on the next page? Second, if a few hours' notice is sufficient, why did the Sept. 28 issue contain a general calendar listing events through Oct. 8?

I hope that future issues' space is organized so that seminar speakers are given the same privileges of advance notification as are accorded to those conducting events listed in the general calendar. Failure to do so is a disservice both to the speaker and to his or her potential audience.

Editor's note: The Chronicle has a policy of printing seminar notices only once. This is the first complaint we have had about running a seminar notice on the day of the seminar. However, Mr. Kahn does have a point and should have been informed that the announcement would be run only once and given his choice of what date he would like to have had it appear. Our apologies to him for the mix up. Starting this week, the seminars column will carry a notice that items will be run one time only.

The calendar in the Chronicle is the only deviation from this "one-time" policy. This is because we have many subscribers who live outside the Ithaca area who like to attend Cornell events. Therefore, those general interest items in the calendar are carried in advance to cover the time lag of mailing.

Chamber Music Society To Give Statler Concert

"The musical success story of the generation" is how critic Harold Schonberg of The New York Times refers to The Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center. Six of the artist-members of the society, will perform at 8:15 p.m. Monday, Oct. 16, in the second of the Statler series concerts.

Tickets for the Monday evening performance are on sale at the Lincoln Hall ticket office, open 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., 256-5144.

The program will include: Suite for Violin, Clarinet and Piano, by Darius Milhaud; String Trio in C minor, Op. 9, No. 3 by Beethoven; Trio "Pathétique" in D minor by Michael Glinka and Quartet in E flat major, Op. 47 by Schumann.

Representing the society, which is the official performing organization of New York's Alice Tully Hall, are James Buswell, violin; Gervase de Peyer, clarinet; Loren Glickman, bassoon; Leslie Parnas, violincello; Walter Trampler, viola, and Charles Wadsworth, piano and artistic director for the group. The society maintains a permanent personnel of 11 members, each with special reputation in the chamber repertoire.

Right to Eat Group Hosts Farm Tours

Those interested in finding out how an herb farm operates will have the opportunity to do it Sunday, Oct. 8. La Tierra Verde Collective of the Coalition for the Right to Eat is planning a visit to an herb garden and farm in Danby owned by Ginny Gartlein. The tour will start at 2:15 p.m. in front of Anabel Taylor Hall.

The trip to Danby is the second of a series of visits to small organic farms in the Ithaca area being sponsored by the coalition. Rick Wackernagel, a member of the coalition, says the farm tours "translate the coalition's intellectual concerns about the food situation of the world to real and practical efforts toward revitalizing our agricultural system."

Gartlein has been producing herbs for about six years. She was one of the original members of the Ithaca Farmer's Market, which is still her main outlet for the fresh and dried herbs she sells.

The first of the farm tours was to Dark Star Organic Farm, the northern branch of an incorporated collective whose members also raise tropical fish in Florida and paint houses in Ithaca. The tour of the three-year old operation included visits to the collective's intensive vegetable culture plots, explanations of methods for maintaining the land and discussions about self-sufficient farming.

For more information on the farm tours, call Wackernagel at 273-1825 or 272-2996.

Ornithology Lab Plans Visitors Day Saturday

Nature walks, tours of the Peregrine Falcon Propagation Facility, demonstrations of decoy carving and bird banding plus slide shows and films on natural history will highlight visitors' day, Saturday, Oct. 7, at the Laboratory of Ornithology, 159 Sapsucker Woods Road.

Financial Survival Booklet Is Free

A student being buried by a barrage of bills.

That's a familiar image these days and it's the drawing used on the cover of a new University publication, "Financial Survival Kit for Students," a booklet intended to keep students from perishing under the pile.

Produced by the Office of the Dean of Students and the Office of Financial Aid, the booklet is available—free, of course—at both units.

It is intended to inform students about how to stretch and manage their money. The booklet covers virtually every aspect of student finance—from spending it on housing and food to making it yourself. No, not with a printing press, but with a job.

Among the many areas covered are using a checking account, obtaining credit, paying Cornell bills, health insurance, food stamps, child care and reference books for those for whom the "Financial Survival Kit for Students" is insufficient.

Committee to Seek New B&PA Dean

A search committee has been established to find a replacement for H. Justin Davidson, dean of the Graduate School of Business and Public Administration since 1969.

Davidson announced in September that he would not seek a third five-year term as dean and asked that the Provost W. Keith Kennedy begin the process of finding a successor.

Davidson, who has not announced his future plans, will end his current term as dean on June 30, 1979.

Kennedy has named a 10-member search committee including himself. The other members, all faculty, are David M. Ahlers, B&PA; Joan R. Egner, education; Olan D. Forker, agricultural economics; Robert C. Lind, B&PA; Walter H. Lynn, environmental engineering;

Thomas G. Rundall, David A. Thomas, L. Joseph Thomas and Karl T. Weick, all B&PA.

Parents Weekend: Nothing But Treble

The University's singing ensemble, Nothing But Treble, will perform in a special Parents' Weekend concert at 8:15 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, in Barnes Hall. The performance is free and open to the public.

The concert will feature more than two dozen pieces from the ensemble's stylistically diversified repertoire. Included will be Renaissance madrigals and motets by Morley, Gibbons, Lassus and Victoria; sacred pieces, romances and children's songs by Mendelssohn, Brahms and Poulenc. Some of the lighter pieces will be barbershop favorites, Cornell songs and popular tunes.

Nothing But Treble is a select group of 12 undergraduates who are members of the larger Cornell Women's Chorus. The group was formed in 1976 and is under the direction of Jeff Rehbach, graduate assistant conductor of the Cornell Chorus.

The group has performed frequently in the Ithaca area and at Cornell alumni receptions and fraternity and sorority events. They sang at President Frank Rhodes' inauguration last year and at the Bailey Hall Convocation during Alumni Weekend last June. The group will be entertaining Cornell Clubs and other groups during a Southeast tour this January.

Council Calls Special Meeting

A special meeting of the Campus Council has been called for 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 5 in Room 302 Uris Hall in order to cover uncompleted agenda items from last Thursday's regular meeting. These are:

- Completion of plans and priorities for Campus Council consideration during 78-79 year;
- Proposed Guidelines for University Relations with Intelligence Agencies (see proposal referred by first Campus Council);

- Proposal for Cornell participation in Ivy League Plus Three Conference;
- Fund request from Suicide Prevention;
- Approve minutes of Sept. 14 and 28 meetings;
- New business.

Cornell Registrar to Give Sage Chapel Convocation

Eleanor L. Rice, Cornell University registrar, will be the speaker at the Sage Chapel convocation at 11 a.m. Sunday. Her topic will be "Theism: A Deliberate Choice."

Rice has had a varied career as a home economics teacher, social worker and academic administrator in this country and overseas since 1944. She was graduated from Hampton Institute and earned a master's degree in guidance and counseling at the College of William and Mary in 1972. Before coming to Cornell in 1976, she was registrar at Hampton Institute for two years.

She has also taught at Hampton and served as director of freshman studies there for four years. From 1961 to 1968 she was a home economics teacher and adviser with a USAID contract team from Hampton Institute in Sierra Leone, in West Africa. She was a social worker in Virginia for several years and has also taught at the International School of Bangkok in Bangkok, Thailand.

Council Sets Up Investment Committee

The Campus Council at its regular meeting last Thursday unanimously approved establishment of an ad hoc committee to study University investments pending a firm commitment from the Board of Trustees' Investment Committee that it would receive and discuss the ad hoc committee's findings.

Provost W. Keith Kennedy told council members at the outset of the meeting that Robert T. Horn, vice president and University treasurer had said such a committee if established could review the University's investment portfolio. However council members said that they were not reassured that this meant the trustees "would receive and discuss."

Council Chairman Robert

McGinnis, professor of sociology, it was decided, will attempt to obtain the firm commitment desired and pass it on to the Council's Committee on Committees before it fulfills its charge to establish an ad hoc investment committee.

According to the recommendations of a council committee which studied the investment committee idea last spring, such a committee should have five members: three faculty or staff, a student and a trustee. It would work "strictly from the financial point of view, towards maximizing income from the University's investments."

It was pointed out that the social concerns of investment activities were being looked into by the special trustee committee formed for that purpose.

In other business the council formed a special Council committee to make a preliminary study of the feasibility of establishing a Student Legal Aid Service at Cornell.

In addition the Committee on Committees, based on a resolution passed by the council, will work on the establishment of an ad hoc committee on campus life surveys. The surveys, written and by telephone, would be used to discover campus attitudes and sentiments towards many issues to which the council might be able to react constructively.

'United Way Covers A to ...'

"The United Way of Tompkins County does not cover everything from A to Z, but it does cover A to Y — the Alcoholism Council to the YMCA," said President Frank Rhodes at Monday's kickoff meeting for Cornell United Way volunteers. Rhodes encouraged all Cornell employees to pledge a gift to the United Way. To date, 290 pledges totalling $46,793 have been received. This is 20 percent of the Cornell campaign goal of $234,035. The campaign runs until the end of October. Rhodes (left) meets with Mary Call, president of the Tompkins County United Way, and Jerry Luisi, chairman of the Cornell United Way Campaign, during the kickoff coffee hour.

Poetry Is Lecture Topic

A visiting fellow at the Society for the Humanities will give a public colloquium on "Poetry and 'The Human Condition': Blake's 'London' in Context" at 3:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 6 at the A.D. White Center for the Humanities.

William D. Vanech, professor of English at Brown University, is the first visiting fellow at the society to deliver a public lecture this year.

He is currently writing a study,

Literature and Society in 18th Century England and Ireland, and preparing a monograph, Burke's Cromwell: Whig Myth and Irish Memory. In 1969, Vanech was co-editor, with Conor Cruise O'Brien, of "Power and Consciousness."

Before joining the faculty at Brown in 1973, Vanech taught literature at New York University and the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Fellowships Available

NEH Fellowships

NEH Fellowships are offered in three categories:

Category A are for independent study and research for scholars, teachers and others whose work seems likely to lead to significant contributions to humanistic thought and knowledge. Applications are encouraged from persons with broad interpretive interests as well as from scholars working in specialized fields. These will not be offered in 1979-80.

Category B are for independent study and research for persons engaged primarily in undergraduate teaching whose work will enhance their abilities as teachers and make important contributions to humanistic thought and knowledge. Faculty members in doctoral degree institutions, if they are predominantly engaged in teaching undergraduate courses, are eligible.

Category C provide opportunities to undergraduate college teachers to participate in seminars directed by distinguished scholars at designated universities and to undertake research and study of their own choosing beyond the work of the seminar. Faculty members of departments with doctoral programs are not eligible to apply.

Applications for Categories B and C are available in the Office of Sponsored Programs.

Arts Grants

Individual grants for artistic projects will be awarded in amounts up to $500 by the Council of the Creative and Performing Arts to Cornell students and non-faculty staff. The purpose of the grants is to encourage creative and performing artists to work on individual projects not primarily concerned with course work or scholarly research. Funds are to be used for consumable materials only, not for equipment, travel or living expenses.

The deadline for submitting applications for grants from the Creative and Performing Arts Council is Oct. 27. Notification of awards will be made Nov. 13. Application forms are available from Council members: James McConkey, Creative Writing; Marvin Carlson, Theatre Arts; Don Fredericksen, Film; Peggy

Correction

An item in the listing of new awards in the Sept. 7 Chronicle was incorrect. It should read: Tang, C.L. and Ballantyne, J.M., Electrical Engineering, "Nonlinear and Active Optical Devices," NSF, 12 months, $83,575.

Scholarships to Germany

Applications for the one DAAD fellowship awarded directly to Cornell for study in West Germany and the exchange fellowships to Heidelberg and Göttingen are now being accepted through Oct. 20 by the Department of German Literature, 172 Goldwin Smith Hall. The scholarships are for the 1979-80 academic year.

For further information contact Herbert Deinert, 188 Goldwin Smith Hall, 256-3932, or inquire in 172 Goldwin Smith Hall, 256-5265.

Tower Road Parking Disrupted

Part of the sidewalk on the East Avenue side of Stimson Hall is torn up and there will be no parking on the Tower Road extension between Day and Stimson Halls down to Olin Library through at least next Monday to allow for steam line repair and the installation of foundation drains at Stimson, according to Lewis Roscoe, managing architect for the Department of

Design and Project Management.

Once maintenance operations have been performed the area in front of Stimson and Day Halls will be repaved and landscaped.

Bene-Fair Scheduled

The Bene-Fair, sponsored by Personnel Services, for employees who are preregistered for the program, will be held next week. For endowed employees, the Bene-Fair will be Wednesday, Oct. 11 in the Willard Straight Memorial Room from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon, and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. For statutory employees, the same program will be held in the

International Get-Together

The International Women's Friendship Club invites women of all nationalities to a Fall Get-Together at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 11 in Emerson Hall 135.

For further information, call Inez Versage at 273-2349.

James Law Auditorium on Thursday, Oct. 12.

Employees who are not registered for this Bene-Fair may call Personnel Services at 256-3936 and ask to be put on the list for future programs.

Financial Aid to Be Closed

The Financial Aid Office will be closed to the public Oct. 12 and 13 for administrative processing. The office will re-open Monday, Oct. 16 at 8 a.m.

'Art Insights' Registration

Registration is still open for the fall "Art Insights: Making Senses" classes offered by the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art. Family workshops will be on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., starting Oct. 7. Teen workshops will be on Saturdays from 1:15 p.m. to 3:15 p.m., also starting Oct. 7. Register at first class or by calling the museum at 256-6464.

Graduate Bulletin

Late initial course registration and/or course additions is still possible upon payment of $10 processing fee. (Deadline was Sept. 22).

Oct. 27 is the deadline for dropping courses or changing the grade option.

Graduate students whose employment is other than a teaching or research assistantship and is in excess of 10 hours per week (and is not contributory toward degree) or 20 hours per week (and is contributory) may be eligible for proration of tuition. Applications are available at the Information Desk, Sage Graduate Center.

Doctoral candidates who have completed four years of residence, are not receiving money from Cornell, and who need only library facilities (use of carrel included) to complete their theses may be eligible for a special tuition rate of $400. Check with the Graduate School for details and application forms.

Graduate students planning doctoral dissertation research overseas in modern foreign languages and area studies should consider the Fulbright-Hays Doctoral Dissertation Research Abroad Training Grant Program administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Under its auspices, graduate students may be funded for six months to one year of independent research in non-Western European countries which have diplomatic relations with the U.S. Students applying for dissertation research in East Asia, East Europe and Russia, Latin America, South Asia, and Southeast Asia should request forms and deadline information from the appropriate Foreign Area Program in Uris Hall. Applicants to other non-Western European countries (e.g. Near East, Africa) should contact the Fellowship Office, 116 Sage Graduate Center, no later than Oct. 16.

Applicants for Fulbright-Hays Grants administered by IIE are reminded that their application must be typed and that all references and transcripts must be received by the Fellowship Office no later than Friday, Oct. 6.

The Fellowship Office has a limited supply of application request forms for the NSF Graduate Fellowship and NSF National Needs Postdoctoral Fellowships. Deadlines are rapidly approaching!

Information on non-Cornell administered fellowship programs for graduate study has been sent to the field offices. Students interested in obtaining additional information on 1979-80 awards in their field should consult the Fellowship Notebook at their Graduate Faculty Representative's office. Information on awards in other fields may be obtained from the Fellowship Notebook of the appropriate Graduate Faculty Representative, from the Career Center, 14 East Avenue, and from the Fellowship Office, 116 Sage Graduate Center.

Volunteer Opportunities Announced

By Mary McGinnis
CIVITAS Coordinator

JUVENILE JUSTICE SYSTEM: A new program: "Values, Education and Skills Training (V.E.S.T.);" is starting under the sponsorship of the Ithaca YMCA, now located in the old East Hill School near the campus. The overall goal of the program is to reduce recidivism among juvenile offenders through:

- (a) Involvement of youth in constructive activities ranging from graphic arts and photography to sports and educational field trips,
- (b) Promotion of positive self-identification and instruction in problem-solving and coping skills,
- (c) Strengthening of family ties through positive modes of communication among family members.

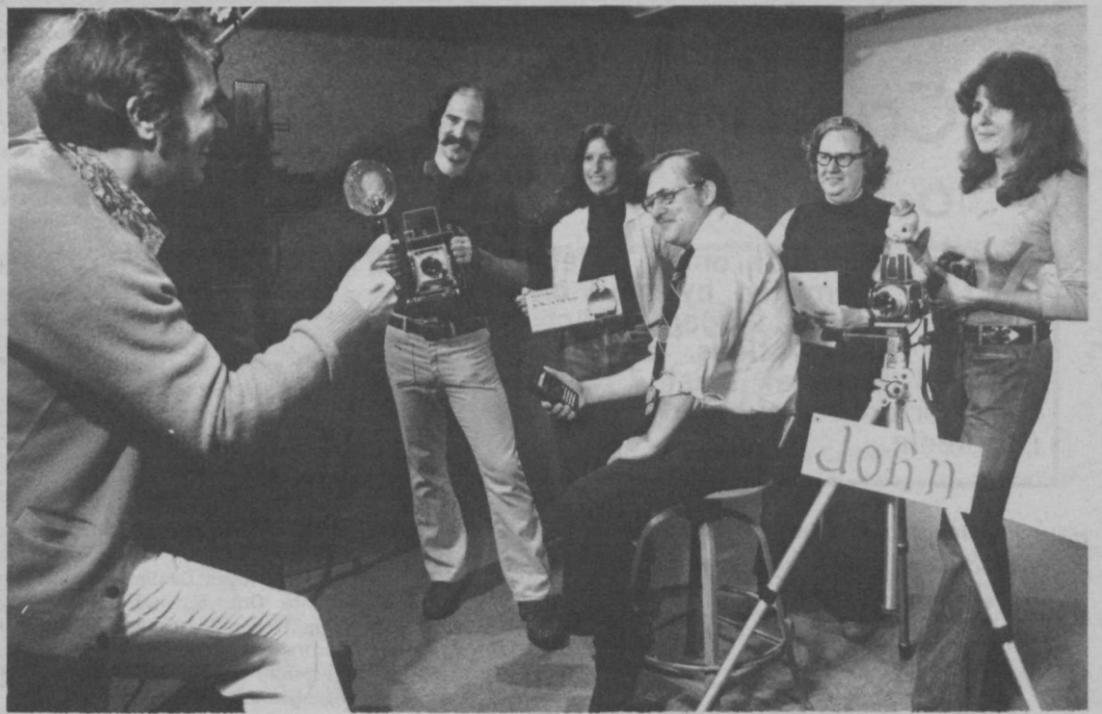

These activities require a volunteer commitment of at least three hours a week. Supervision by a trained social worker, however, ensures the volunteer of training in teenage counseling techniques and hands-on experience in the career field of juvenile justice.

SERVICES AND RESOURCES FOR OLDER CITIZENS: Volunteer opportunities exist in county office responsible for planning and coordinating services and facilities to enable older citizens to live independently.

This office tries to make volunteer experiences interesting and personally satisfying. They ask, however, that the staff time spent on orientation, supervision and consultation be offset by the contribution the volunteer makes to the organization. Two to 4 hours a week is a minimum time commitment for the semester except in the case of occasional projects.

HISTORICAL RESEARCH: The township of Ithaca was incorporated in 1825. Information of historical value is available locally, and the town supervisor has expressed an interest in updating local history. Some projects may involve working with other local agencies on matters of mutual historical interest.

To respond call CIVITAS, 256-7513, Monday to Friday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. or drop by 125 Anabel Taylor Hall.

When the name of your organization is Photographic and Micrographic Services, the outfit should definitely have a staff portrait, complete with paraphernalia. About to click the shutter at left is Morris Peck, and his subjects are (from left) Barry DeLibero, Maria Niederhoffer, Fred Keib, Gertrude Conant and Marcia Kelley. Absent but represented by the tripod was John Muckey.

Photo Services Does More than I.D.s

For an organization that has photographed such exotic subjects as diapering rats and dissecting the heads of sharks, why would laser beam photography be such a turn-on?

"Because it's impossible to take a picture of a laser beam out of focus," according to Fred Keib, who is manager of the section that has been more familiarly known over the years as Photo Science, but is now formally called Photographic and Micrographic Services. For those who would understand, he explains that you can't get a laser out of focus because unlike ordinary light, laser rays are coherent, with a very narrow range, so you get no defraction through a camera lens. So there.

Keib's organization of eight full-time and other part-time workers provides a complete still photographic service for the entire campus, including students. In fact, it is probably for its work with students that the section is best known. Everyone who has been a student at Cornell in recent years has had at least one contact—the I.D. photo.

"That's a hectic time of the

year," Keib said. "This fall we took about 4,500 I.D. pictures. Our general experience has been that about 1 percent of these have to be retaken for one reason or another, so that means some 45 to 50 students get unhappy with us each term." Like other parts of registration, the I.D. process produces lines of students, including one who came up to the window in the basement of Day Hall and asked, "What am I doing in this line?"

But this is only a small part of the section's work, which is as diverse as the expanding world of photography. Its members, including four photographers, do photo assignments all over campus, ranging all the way from studio portraits to operating room photography of veterinary surgery to stress photography on concrete or steel beams to construction photos. During the recent work on a collidingbeam facility at the University's synchrotron, Photo Services photographers have been making periodic pictures of the progress.

A large part of the business is now in microfilming, and the addition of a computer output microfilm recorder has resulted in significant cost savings for the University. It is now possible to go directly to microfilm from magnetic computer tape, making it unnecessary to go to paper first. "This is about one-third the cost of going to paper," Keib said, "to say nothing of the saving in storage space." Last year some two million computer pages went directly to microfilm and there were some eight million duplicate pages.

Other things that keep people busy in the department are making murals, doing aerial photography, processing and custom printing for anyone on campus, scientific film processing (up to a 450-foot roll of 35 mm. film at a time), passport and license photos, sports publicity pictures and slide sets.

"The one thing people don't seem to know," Keib said, "is that we're the largest photographic operation on campus, and we're available for assignments or production work for anyone who is part of the Cornell community." Randall E. Shew

ARC: At Your Service

By Natasha Graziano

At the Academic Resources Center we are prepared to answer your questions about audio-visual equipment, advising and tutorial services, and libraries and special collections at Cornell.

As term paper season approaches, ARC is revising its listing of typists, proofreaders and editors who can help students through the academic "crunch."

If you do typing, proofreading, or editing and wish to be included in our listing, please complete the form below and return it to the Academic Resource Center, Uris Library, by Oct. 10.

Students, faculty, and staff are invited to avail themselves of ARC's services by calling 256-4199 or visiting the ARC desk in the lobby of Uris Library.
