Some Hasbrouck Insulation Is Completed Other Apartments Will Wait Until Next Summer

A status report on the Hasbrouck Apartments urea formaldehyde insulation project was issued in a letter last week to all Hasbrouck residents by William P. Paleen, director of residence life.

In the letter Paleen listed the eight buildings and sections of three buildings which have been or will be insulated by Nov. 21 and informed Hasbrouck residents that after June 30, the remaining buildings will be insulated. June 30 is the termination date of the current lease year. Residents effected have seven months to decide whether they want to continue living in Hasbrouck.

The buildings, in which all tenants indicated a desire for the insulation, were completed by Monday, Nov. 17, Paleen said in his letter. He also said sections of three other buildings in which the tenants have expressed the desire for the insulation will be completed by Nov. 21, weather permitting.

The project calls for the insulation of all buildings in the 28-building complex. However, the university postponed part of the project in response to objections raised by Hasbrouck residents who said they were concerned that potential health hazards are associated with formaldehyde gas.

Air tests have been conducted in those buildings which have been insulated to determine the presence of formaldehyde gas, Paleen said. In each case, tests have shown no significant change and, in fact, in several instances the post-installation air sample indicated a reduction in the presence of formaldehyde gas. An additional test, scheduled for the end of the two-week curing period, began Nov. 13. Continued testing on a periodic basis is planned.

Based on test results conducted by Cornell's Department of Utilities, it is expected that, due to the insulation, tenants will save an average of $100 per apartment per heating season, depending on the temperatures at which the apartments are kept. The residents of Hasbrouck are responsible for their own heating bills.

The insulation project, according to Paleen, will enable the university to provide better facilities for its students.

"We are doing what we feel is the best thing for the majority of the people," Paleen said.

New World View, Universities 'Out of Sync' 'Transformation of the University' Subject of Conference

A new world view is emerging to which the university as an institution is contributing little or nothing and in many ways is absolutely opposed.

This was a basic theme touched on again and again during a three-day conference here last week sponsored by the Center for Religion, Ethics and Social Policy and Cornell United Religious Work. Three guest speakers discussed various aspects of the overall topic "The Transformation of the University," in relationship to a new cultural perspective sweeping the world. They generally claimed that a new perspective arose during the 1960s and '70s challenging past values that stress the rational over the intuitive; the masculine over the feminine; competition over cooperation; reductionism over synthesis, linear over non-linear thought; material concerns over spirituality and hierarchy over participation.

It was felt that today's university does not stand at the forefront of this cultural transformation, and that as it increases its financial dependency on government and corporations the university will more solidly entrench itself in what was called "this dying culture."

According to one of the speakers, Fritjof Capra, a physicist at the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, University of California at Berkeley, this crisis in cultural perspective is "brought about by the limitations of the Cartesian world-view (of which modern science is an outgrowth) and by our attempt to continue to apply an outdated, mechanistic view of the world in a situation which requires a holistic and ecological perspective."

Tapes of his talks and those of the other two principal speakers along with a concluding session in which the audience participated may be heard in The Alternatives Library in Anabel Taylor Hall. Transcriptions of the five formal lectures and the concluding session are expected to be available in a few weeks, also through The Alternatives Library.

The other two speakers were William Stringfellow, a lawyer and lay theologian, and William Irwin

Thompson, M.A. '64, Ph.D. '66, founder of the Lindisfarne Association in Colorado, an alternative learning community concerned with Eastern and Western thought and approaches to a new world view.

At the concluding session Tuesday, Nov. 11, the moderator Gurdon Brewster, Episcopal Chaplain, polled the nearly 200 in attendance and deplored the fact that only two university administrators and a handful of Cornell faculty were present.

During the open discussion Rose K. Goldsen, professor of sociology, stressed the need for nourishing the "pockets of the new vision" within the university.

It was generally felt that if there is to be a transformation of the university it will only occur ultimately as an outgrowth of individual transformation.

To quote Phillip Snyder, coordinator of CRESA and a prime mover in developing the conference: "thinking globally and acting locally" was one of the themes echoed here. And this work, often of a very humble sort, presages a new planetization of humanity, a cultural renaissance of even greater proportions than the changes that led to the Reformation, colonization, industrialism and the modern era."

Council Discusses University's Space Needs

Issues Center on Cornell Heights Properties

Cornell Heights and the university's present and future space needs were the topics of discussion at last week's Campus Council meeting.

Several points of view were expressed by council members on the Cornell Heights controversy, which started last month when objections were raised by residents of that area over the university's plans to convert two of its properties there into offices to house the Modern Indonesia Project and the University Publications Office.

The Modern Indonesia Project now is located in a building on West Avenue which is in a state of decay, according to university officials. The University Publications Office is located in the Sheldon Court building in Collegetown, which is being converted to student housing.

Until 1977, zoning in Cornell Heights allowed for unlimited conversion of the residences. The law was changed in 1977 in order to freeze the existing mix of residences.

The university was denied variances to convert the two properties by the City Board of Zoning Appeals and recently announced it has appealed the decision on the basis that as an educational institution it has constitutionally preferred status under the zoning laws. The case is now pending in the State Supreme Court.

David Russo, council member and student trustee, said he believes the conversion would be a mistake and proceeding with the renovations would set a bad precedent.

Isaac Kramnick, professor of government and a member of the Cornell Heights Civic Association, said, "The community in no way denies that these two purposes are legitimate educational purposes. The community is concerned about the principle."

"We feel that it was a mistake for the university to go to the courts in the first place. The university, as a good citizen, should have made its will known in 1977 when the law was changed and it should abide by the laws of Ithaca just as the rest of us do. Before long the whole nature of the community will be spoiled and changed."

Professor Benedict Anderson,

Campus Council member and associate director of the Modern Indonesia Project, said, "The 'community' involved is not a group of ordinary citizens going about their normal business. The residents of Cornell Heights are there because they want to be next to the university even if they don't want the university to be next to them."

Council had invited representatives from both the civic association and the university to appear at last week's meeting. The university declined to comment on the specific issues involved with those two properties because the matter is now in litigation.

In speaking of the university's present and future space needs, Senior Vice President William G. Herbster said that the university is "severely strained" as to where to locate new construction projects and some already existing and overcrowded administrative programs.

"This is a very complex issue," Herbster said. "We are physically dominant in an area of the community which is bordered on three sides by residential and/or rural areas. On the fourth side is Collegetown. We will have major space needs over the next few years. Where we will locate everything is the big question. No matter what we do we will impinge on someone."

Herbster cited several examples of future space needs such as new research and computer facilities as well as student housing.

"We try to be sensitive to a lot of different things including the needs of students, faculty and the local community," Herbster said. "But we cannot solve everyone's problems. No matter what we do we are undoubtedly going to make somebody mad. You can't avoid it when you're in the middle of change."

The discussion on university space needs will continue at the council's meeting at 4:45 p.m. today in 251 Malott Hall.

A resolution concerning the conversion of university-owned properties was introduced during the course of last week's meeting. After some discussion, the resolution was tabled until further information could be obtained. It is expected that the council will act on it at today's meeting.

All meetings of the Campus Council are open to members of the Cornell community.

Comment

Editor

Recent incidents on and around the Cornell campus remind us that racism and anti-ethnic sentiment are far from forgotten in our society. Of course these events and the motivations behind them are deplored by all who share a commitment to justice and human decency on this planet. But only to express our regret is not enough, for we need to see with clarity into the roots of racism and recognize that as we move increasingly into a world of fewer resources and greater tensions these incidents may become more, rather than less, numerous as people scapegoat ethnic groups instead of honestly confronting the roots of their own frustrations and problems. Much in our present system serves to divide us, rather than strengthen our sense of cooperation and mutuality. Competition is but one of these factors, and it has a formative (not to mention deforming) impact upon both economics and education.

We need to seek insights into the racism which permeates this society and is still unconsciously embedded in the white majority. But to indulge in guilt is not productive in moving us toward a social system of fairness, respect, and openness. Suppose the tables were turned: What if there had been ten Black students who had surrounded an innocent white male, harassing and threatening him? It would have made the front pages of the papers, and the fear thus aroused would likely have spread like wildfire. As it is, it will be easy for most whites to ignore recent events and proceed as if nothing had happened—or even to doubt that anything happened at all.

Most of us at Cornell come into daily contact with Blacks, Chicanos, Asians, Jews, and other minorities. The recent incidents are very likely on their minds and hearts. If each of us would reach out with some expression of solidarity with them, it would be a concrete step toward dispelling the siege mentality into which oppressed groups very understandably retreat when threatening events occur. Pronouncements from the administration and letters, like this, to the editor are all well and good, but widespread personal contacts will go much farther than all the well-intentioned words in print.

It is our hope that this entire community cannot only move beyond the barriers of race, religion, and ethnicity, but also honor and affirm the differences which are mutually enriching. Our mandate, as part of the human family, even with all our imperfections, is to be in covenant with one another.

A covenantal agreement between persons is their commitment to a process of sensitive understanding and mutual self-giving, i.e., to be with and for one another. A process is dynamic and signifies growth. In your dorm, house, work-place, wherever, take the opportunity to overcome the growing silence, filled as it may be with fear and even despair. Speak up. Reach out.

United Way on Campus Tops Its $240,000 Goal

The 1980 United Way Campaign at Cornell has reached 102 percent of its goal of $240,000, with $246,096 given so far and additional donations expected, Cornell Campaign Chairman Jerome M. Ziegler announced this week.

"We are very gratified the campaign has gone so well," said Ziegler, who also serves as dean of the College of Human Ecology. "But there are still many pledge cards outstanding, and if we can get them all in, we will do even better."

The campaign chairman praised the efforts of the dozens of volunteers who have canvassed the Cornell community since the annual drive began in October, and noted that the successful campus campaign will help the United Way meet its countywide goal of $819,454.

The total pledged by 3,830 Cornell givers represents an increase over last year's campaign when 3,510 persons gave $229,271 to the fund which aids 22 community service agencies.

Among the Cornell divisions meeting or exceeding their goals this year are Agriculture and Life Sciences, 100 percent; Arts and Sciences, 112 percent; Business and Public Administration, 114 percent; Engineering, 109 percent; Hotel School, 139 percent; Libraries, Museums and Graduate School, 135 percent; Administration, 129 percent; Athletics and Personnel, 113 percent; Campus Life, 121 percent; Facilities and Business Operations, 100 percent; and Public Affairs, 116 percent.

Music

Several Free Concerts
The Department of Music will be presenting a variety of free public concerts during the weekend of Nov. 21-23.

A "Schubertiade" is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Friday, Nov. 21, in Barnes Hall. The program will feature the vocal and instrumental music of Franz Schubert.

At 8:15 p.m. Saturday in Bailey Hall, the Cornell Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Edward Murray, professor of music, will present its fall concert.

Thomas A. Sokol, professor of music, will conduct the Cornell Chorus in an hour-long concert at 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 23, in Sage Chapel.

The "Schubertiade" program will include groups of lieder sung by soprano Mimmi Fulmer and by tenor Edward Swenson, both of the Ithaca College music faculty. Sonata in A Major, Opus posth. 162, D. 574 will be performed by violinist Sonya Monosoff and fortepianist Malcolm Bilson, both Cornell faculty members. Bilson and graduate student Katalin Komlos will perform Marche Militaire, Opus 51, No. 3 and Andantino varie, Opus 84, No. 1.

Donald Miller, Syracuse bass, will join Fulmer, Swenson and Bilson in a performance of the comic scene "Der Hochzeitbraten." The pianists will use the university's new piano, modelled after a Schubert-era Graf instrument, for the performance.

The major work on the program for the Cornell Symphony Orchestra program is Symphonie Fantastique, by Hector Berlioz, his first significant and most individual piece. It is subtitled "episode in the life of an artist" and is based on his infatuation with Irish actress Harriet

'My Sister, My Sister' Opens Next Week

Ray Aranha's award-winning play "My Sister, My Sister," a Theatre Cornell production with professional actors and New York and Hollywood director Gilbert Moses, opens this week in Willard Straight Theatre.

Performances are at 8:15 p.m. Nov. 20-22, Dec. 4-6 and 10-12. A matinee is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 7.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the Theatre Cornell Box Office, 256-5166, located on the lower floor of Willard Straight Hall, open from 1 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"My Sister, My Sister" is a drama of the nightmares of a young woman of the South. She has been described as one "whose love is so innocent and single-minded that she cannot divorce herself from the fanatic holy faith of her mother, the intense sexuality of her sister and the almost childlike love for living of her father."

Guest artist David Downing, who won critical praise in both the premiere and Broadway productions of the play, will appear as Eddie and Daddy. Actress/dancer Myrna White from Los Angeles will be seen as Mama.

Marianna Harris plays the central role of Sue Belle, with Renetta Neal as her sister, Evelina. Michael Walker appears as the only white man in the play. All three are Cornell graduate students.

Moses is regarded as one of the most distinguished black directors in American theatre. He has won recognition and awards for directing on Broadway, on television and in films.

His first Obie Award was won with "Slaveship." A second Obie, the Drama Critics Circle Award and the Drama Critics Award were received for his direction of "The Taking of Miss Janie" at Lincoln Center.

Moses won an Emmy nomination and the Humanitas Award after directing two segments of television's "Roots," the only black director to do so. He will leave Cornell for Broadway to begin rehearsals for a folk musical, "Big Man," based on the legend of John Henry.

Downing has acted in numerous stage productions on Broadway and at Lincoln Center. He was recently seen as Dixon in the Public Broadcasting System mini-series "Backstairs At The White House," and has been a guest star on a number of television series, including "The Jeffersons," "Baretta," "Little House On The Prairie" and "All In The Family."

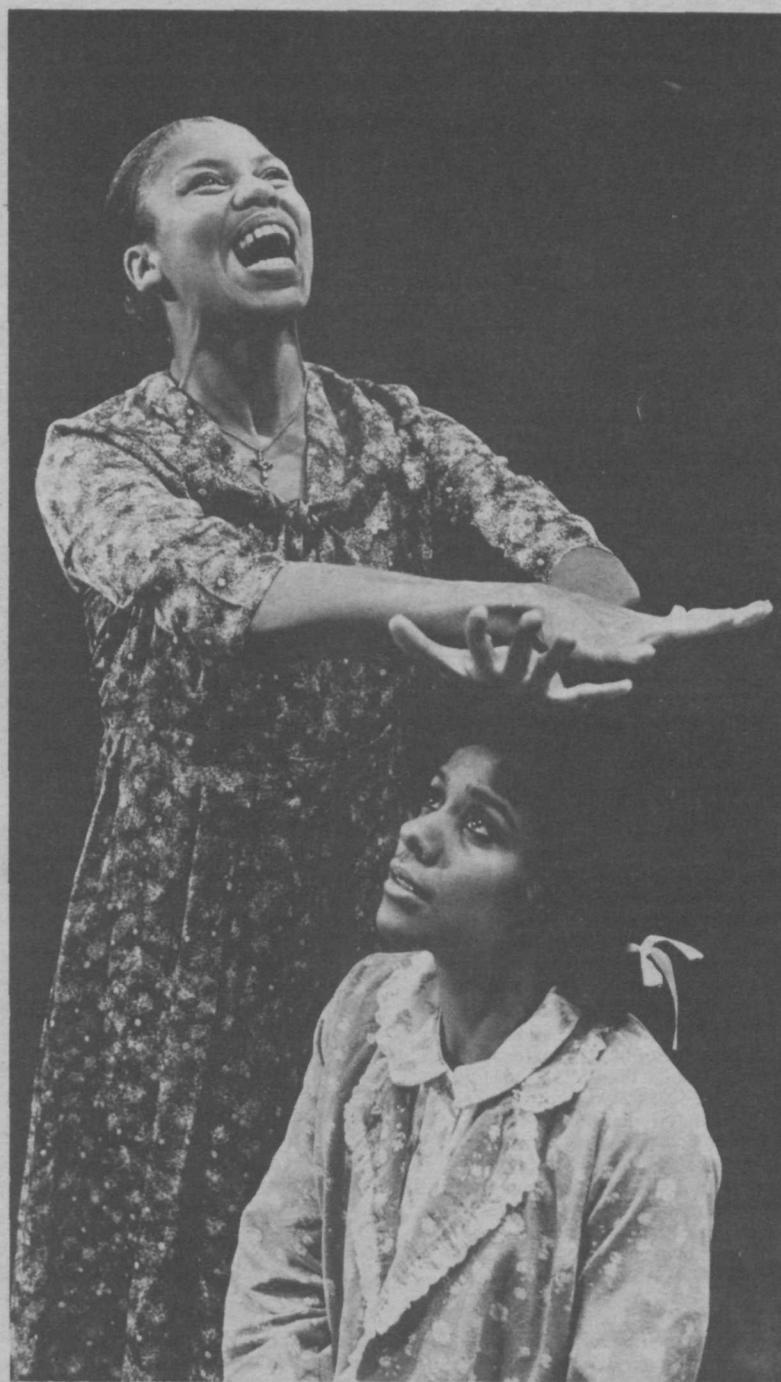

A charter member of the Negro Ensemble Company, Downing has appeared with them in many leading roles. He also directed the Los Angeles Actors' Theatre production of "My Sister, My Sister."

White was a member of the original Broadway casts of "Her First Roman," "I'm Solomon," "Purlie Victorious" and "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum." She also appeared in the film version of the latter. She has also appeared in other films such as "Lost In The Stars," "Funny Lady" and "There's A Profit To Be Made."

White has played a variety of roles in both plays and musicals at leading Los Angeles theaters, including the Mark Taper Forum, and appeared in "My Sister, My Sister" at the Actors' Theatre. She has danced professionally on Broadway, and with Alvin Ailey, Geoffrey Holder and Donald McKale.

Set design for the Cornell production is by guest artist Wynn Thomas, who has created sets for a large number of productions over the past two years for the Negro Ensemble Company. He has also designed for the New York Shakespeare Festival, the off-Broadway New Federal Theatre, Guest Artist Myrna White (top) and Cornell graduate student Marianna Harris will be seen as Mama and Sue Belle, respectively, in Theatre Cornell's production of "My Sister, My Sister," which opens tonight at 8:15 in Willard Straight Theatre. Evening performances are also scheduled for Nov. 21-22, Dec. 4-6 and 10-12, with a 2:30 p.m. matinee on Sunday, Dec. 7. Tickets may be reserved by calling the Theatre Cornell Box Office, 256-5144.

for Connecticut's White Barn Theatre and Philadelphia's Playhouse in the Park.

Thomas has designed sets for operas such as "La Belle Helene," "Don Giovanni" and "Cosi Fan Tutti." He recently served as scenic artist for New Haven's Long Wharf Theatre production of "American Buffalo" and as assistant designer for the Guggenheim Museum presentation of the Multi-Stage Theatre from France in "Ionesco: Variations On The Same Theme."

Costumes are designed by Donato Moreno. Lighting is by Ralph Dressler, instructor in theatre design at Cornell, with sound designed by Ken Golden, lecturer in theatre technology at Cornell.

Miserere by J.A. Hasse. These songs were written for girls at the Conservatory of the Ospedale degli Incurabili, one of four hospitals founded in Venice in the 16th century to care for the destitute, orphans and girls having no dowry.

Polish composer Witold Lutoslawski, will also be performed.

The first half of the concert by the Cornell Chorus will be three works for treble voices and strings, based on Psalms: Dixit Dominus by Baldassare Galuppi, Credidi by B.A. Porpora and

By the 18th century, the conservatories maintained by these institutions were acclaimed among the most outstanding in Europe. The assisting string ensemble is being made available through a grant from the recording industry and Local 132 of the American Federation of Musicians.

With Michael Salmirs at the piano, the chorus also will sing two familiar songs from Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream: "You Spotted Snakes" and "Through the House." The chorus will also perform two madrigals by Thomas Weelkes: "Four arms, two necks, one wreathing" and "The Nightingale," as well as a lively arrangement by Ruth Abbott of a Kentucky mountain song, "Hi Ho the Preacher Man."

The 90-voice Cornell Chorus has recently completed three concerts with the Cornell Glee Club and Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra in Buffalo and New York City under the direction of Julius Rudel. They have also performed with the New Jersey Symphony, Eastman Wind Ensemble and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Graduate Bulletin

Graduate students are reminded that the working schedule is somewhat limited during the holidays. Any Admission to Candidacy Examinations or Final Examinations to be held during the week of January 5 should be scheduled by 4:15 p.m. Friday December 19 in order to allow ample notification of the field concerned.

The deadline for completion of all requirements for a January degree is January 23, 1981. There will be no extensions granted.

Additional information on the awards whose deadlines are listed below may be obtained at the Fellowship Office, 116 Sage Graduate Center. Unless otherwise indicated, applications must be obtained directly from the agency concerned.

Nov. 26: National Science Foundation Graduate Fellowships—for predoctoral study/research in the sciences. Preliminary applications are available at the Fellowship Office.

Nov. 26: National Science Foundation Minority Fellowships—for predoctoral study/research in the sciences. Preliminary applications available at the Fellowship Office.

Nov. 28: DAAD Short Term Research Grants—for 2-6 months of dissertation or postdoctoral research in Germany during 1981. Subsequent deadlines: 1/31/81 and 3/31/81.

Nov. 30: Lady Davis Fellowship Trust—for graduate and postdoctoral study/research at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem or the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology, Haifa. Applications are available at the Fellowship Office.

Dec. 1: American Association of University Women American Fellowships—for women who are U.S. citizens and members of AAUW, for dissertation or postdoctoral research or for the final year of study in selected professions.

Dec. 1: American Association of University Women International Fellowships—for women who are citizens of countries other than the U.S. for graduate study at approved U.S. institutions; applicants must be members in their own country of national associations/federations affiliated with the International Federation of University Women. Preliminary applications are available at the Fellowship Office.

Dec. 1: American Society of Civil Engineers—several grants are available to graduate students in the field of civil engineering.

Dec. 1: Belgian American Educational Foundation (BAEF) Graduate Fellowships for Study in Belgium—provide a stipend of $8000 for advanced study at Belgian universities or other institutions of higher learning; applicants must be U.S. citizens who have speaking and reading knowledge of French or Dutch and who have a master's degree or are working toward the Ph.D. or equivalent. Applications must be submitted to the Fellowship Office, 116 Sage Graduate Center; only one candidate may be submitted to the BAEF by Cornell University. Applications are available at the Fellowship Office.

Dec. 1: Kappa Kappa Gamma Graduate Counselor Scholarship—for graduating Kappas who have held major office in their own chapter and are interested in assisting another chapter while doing graduate study.

Dec. 1: Social Science Research Council Fellowships for Doctoral Research in Employment Training—awards of up to $10,000 for doctoral research on topics related to employment and training; applicants must have completed all the requirements for the Ph.D. except the dissertation by the beginning date of the grant and must file an application through an accredited university or college.

Dec. 1: Stanford University Andrew W. Mellon Postdoctoral Fellowships in the Humanities—for graduate students who will receive the Ph.D. prior to the start of the 1981-82 academic year and those who have received the Ph.D. within the last five years; awards provide an annual stipend of $16,000.

Dec. 5: Inter-American Foundation Latin American & Caribbean Learning Fellowships on Social Change—awards provide an average stipend of $550 per month and allowances for dependents, transportation, insurance and research expenses for 6-24 months of research in Latin America; applicants for doctoral and postdoctoral fellowships must be in the social sciences or professions, have knowledge of Latin America and the Caribbean and must be concerned with the processes of social change.

Dec. 15: DAAD "Learn German in Germany" Program—eight-week language course at a Goethe Institute for faculty and graduate students not in the field of German, modern languages and literatures. Courses for graduate students are offered in April, May, and October through December.

Dec. 15: University of Texas System Cancer Center Wilson S. Stone Award—made in recognition of outstanding research achievement in biomedical sciences (including mathematics, psychology, sociology and biomedical engineering) by a predoctoral or postdoctoral student in academic and/or medical research institutions; the research for which the award is given must have been accomplished within five years immediately preceding the award of the doctorate or no later than the second year of research activity following the award of the doctorate (exclusive of clinical residency training). Applications are available at the Fellowship Office.

Dec. 31: National Wildlife Federation Environmental Conservation Fellowships—awards of up to $4000 each for research related to conservation and the environment including: petroleum-related studies, pollution, management, wildlife habitat, environmental law, etc.; applicants must be citizens of the U.S., Canada, or Mexico who have been accepted for graduate study by September 1981 or who are enrolled in a master's, doctoral, or law program. Applications are available at the Fellowship Office.

Jan. 1: American Political Science

Association Fellowships for Black Students—fellowships for students planning to pursue a doctoral degree in political science; preference will be given to applicants who are about to enter graduate school and who have great financial need. Applications are available at the Fellowship Office.

Jan. 1: Business and Professional Women's Foundation Fellowships and Grants—support for doctoral research pertaining to working women with special emphasis on economic issues; awards range from $500 to $3000. Applicants are required to write a preliminary letter requesting an application and detailing the proposed research subject.

Jan. 1: Ford Foundation/International Security-Arms Control and Soviet-East European Area Studies Fellowships—for graduate and postdoctoral research in either arms control or Soviet-East European area studies by scholars and analysts having expertise in the other field; 5-6 graduate fellowships are expected to be granted.

Jan. 1: Institute of International Education (Southern Region) Ambassador Kenneth Franzheim II Synergy Trust Internship in International Affairs—applicants must be enrolled in or have graduated from a postgraduate program in international affairs at a United States college or university; an honorarium of $2400 is provided, but applicants must have minimum supplemental funds of $300 per month to meet living costs in Houston. Applications are available at the Fellowship Office.

Jan. 2: Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES) Postdoctoral Research Opportunities in Islamic Civilization and in Africa—limited to U.S. citizens who will have received the doctorate or have equivalent experience by the date of application and who have the necessary language skills to undertake the research project.

Jan. 12: Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation Charlotte W. Newcombe Doctoral Dissertation Fellowships—provide a stipend of $400/month for up to 15 months of full-time dissertation research and writing; a supplementary grant of up to $1000 may be available for dissertation related expenses. Applicants must be enrolled in doctoral programs in the humanities and social sciences at graduate schools in the U.S. and must have completed all the requirements for the Ph.D. except the dissertation by June 1981.

Sponsored Programs

The Office of Sponsored Programs, 123 Day Hall, 6-5014, wishes to emphasize that the information in this column is intended for post-doctoral research unless otherwise indicated.

Please do not forget the Thanksgiving Holiday Schedule. All December 1 deadline proposals should be in the Office of Sponsored Programs by November 21.

NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION
New Research Program in International Economic Policy

The Division of Policy Research and Analysis in NSF's Directorate for Scientific, Technological and International Affairs has initiated a research program in international economics, including international monetary relations, international comparative advantage and transferring resources to developing nations.

The objectives of the program are: 1) to provide valid and timely research findings to assist Federal decision makers in dealing with specific problems in international economic policy; and 2) to provide information to the research community about important policy issues facing Federal decision makers.

A forthcoming program solicitation will outline research interests in more detail, and describe application procedures and deadlines. Universities and business concerns interested in receiving a copy of the solicitation when available may write to Dr. Rolf Piekartz, Division of Policy Research and Analysis (357-9800). The Office of Sponsored Programs has requested this brochure.

Argonne National Laboratory Announces Faculty Research Leave Program

The Program for Faculty Research Leaves at Argonne accommodates the typical needs of a faculty member wishing to use his or her sabbatical leave to conduct research for a period of a year or longer at a major energy research institution. Appointments will normally be for a calendar year, with Argonne typically paying 50% of salary and fringe benefits for the academic year and 100% of summer salary. There are also payments for travel and housing.

For further information on this program, contact the Office of Sponsored Programs, 123 Day Hall, or write to the Division of Educational Programs, Argonne National Laboratory, 9700 South Cass Avenue, Illinois 60539.

Barton Blotter

A number of cases of vandalism and criminal mischief took place on campus last week including $2,000 worth of damage to windows on the sculpture plaza of the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art. At least five stones that had been thrown at the windows were found.

In what may have been a related incident taking place sometime Nov. 10 and 11, a steel sculpture valued at $1,500 on west lawn of The Foundry was thrown into the Fall Creek Gorge.

The west hallway of Uris Hall was found covered with smashed tomatoes, beer and whiskey bottles, early in the morning of Tuesday, Nov. 11.

A rock was thrown through the window of Room 1424 of University Hall No. 1. And a window in a van parked on the east side of Barton Hall was found smashed.

A number of thefts totaling nearly $2,000 were reported. A jewelry box with a watch and other valuables set at $673 was taken from room 3665, Donlon Hall. A wallet and jacket valued at $145 were stolen from the locker room in Statler Hall.

Other thefts included nearly $200 in Playboy books and magazines taken from the Uris Library storage area. A knapsack with contents valued at $133 was taken from Lynah Rink and a two-pound package of luncheon meat was taken from the first floor of Mennen Hall.

A cabinet valued at $210 was taken from the third floor of Franklin Hall and a sign in the parking lot of Gannett Clinic was stolen. Replacement cost was set at $90.

Also listed as criminal mischief was a partially burned Bible, along with photographs and papers at North Campus 9. A pocketbook containing cash and valuables totaling $210 was taken from an office in Martha Van Rensselaer Hall. And a couch and coffee table worth $350 is missing from the basement of Anabel Taylor Hall.

No money, just food is being solicited by the Campus Store and the Salvation Army to help needy families on the Thanksgiving holiday. The 'turkey' holding the sign is Bill Brown of the store's camera department, who is with Ruth Cain, coordinator of special events at the store, and Betty Best, captain in the Salvation Army.

Probation Will Be Lifted For Veterinary Medicine

Satisfied with improvements in staffing and facilities, the Council on Education of the American Veterinary Medical Association will lift the probational accreditation status of the State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell and will restore full accreditation, college administrators have been informed.

Some $6 million has been spent to remedy inadequacies cited in a June 1976 report by the AVMA evaluation group, and staffing has been increased by 31 percent.

"Each year, as the biomedical sciences mature, we see changes in the expectations for veterinary medical education," Dean Edward C. Melby said this week, noting that the detailed report from the AVMA Council on Education has not yet been issued and that additional areas for attention may be identified.

"It is important to keep in mind that, in our field, accreditation is an on-going process and that the faculty must be continually aware of the latest advances in veterinary medicine," the dean said. "The diligence and creativity of the faculty are major factors in the College's ability to meet the demanding standards of accreditation."

Deficiencies in facilities and staffing, especially in selected clinical specialty areas, were cited in 1976 when the AVMA placed the College on a five-year probation. One year before the probationary period was to end, Dean Melby invited the accrediting group back to Cornell, and an on-site review was accomplished in April of this year.

About half the $6 million appropriated for renovation and construction at the College came from state funds. A much needed large animal sterile surgery suite is almost complete and a new large animal isolation facility is under construction.

The faculty of the College has been increased to 106 persons and two new departments have been formed, preventive medicine and pharmacology. The student-faculty ratio is now five to one.

In a brief letter announcing the restoration of full accreditation, AVMA officials stated: "Congratulations on the attainment of this goal and Godspeed in your constant pursuit of excellence. The Council is impressed by what you are accomplishing."

Counseling for Cornell Kids

Admissions Tries New Program

University admissions officers will conduct the first admissions counseling program for children of Cornell faculty and staff at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 6, in the auditorium of Martha Van Rensselaer Hall.

Representatives from Cornell's seven undergraduate schools and colleges, the central admissions office and the Office of Financial Aid will be on hand to discuss Cornell's admissions process and to answer questions about admissions at other institutions.

The program will begin with presentations by James J. Scannell, dean of admissions and financial aid, by several local students now attending Cornell, and by a member of the financial aid office.

At approximately 3 p.m., the program will break up into small group sessions. People interested in any of Cornell's seven undergraduate units will be able to talk directly with admissions officers from those units. Admissions staff also will be available to talk with people undecided about their post-high school plans or interested in schools other than Cornell.

"We're doing this program in an effort to make sure the same services are provided to our own 'family' as are provided to prospects at large," said Scannell.

Rhodes Responds on Racial Issue

Following is the text of a letter from President Rhodes to Michael Montgomery, executive director of the Office of Equal Opportunity; Darwin Williams, director of COS-EP and Professor Donald Graham of the Minority Faculty and Staff Forum, in response to a letter he received from them (Chronicle, Nov. 13, Page 1).

"Thank you for your letter of the 10th addressed to Trustee Charles Stewart and to me. I reviewed with the Trustee Executive Committee on Tuesday the series of recent racial and ethnic events which have occurred on the campus. The Executive Committee was deeply distressed to learn of these events, and joined me in condemning them. They asked me to express to the campus community both their concern and their strong support for whatever measures I take to deal with these events.

"My aim in issuing last Thursday's report condemning these events was both to alert the University to the present situation, and to seek to prevent further recurrences. I am pleased that we have had no further incidents reported during the past week.

"I want also to thank you for meeting so promptly with me yesterday to review recent events. I found our meeting constructive, cordial, positive and helpful. I shall be meeting with other individuals within the next few days, and I also look forward to meeting with the minority faculty-staff group and one or two invited students.

"Your letter of the 10th raised a number of concerns, all of which we talked about yesterday. It may be helpful if I summarize the present situation in a number of these areas.

"I have instructed Vice President

Gurowitz to insure that the Department of Public Safety pursues each reported incident with the utmost vigor. I have also requested a daily report of all such incidents, and I have asked to be kept fully informed of the progress of each investigation. I hope you will do all you can to encourage anyone who is the victim of such intimidation to report the event immediately to Public Safety.

"The Department of Public Safety will continue for as long as is necessary to provide added surveillance in areas where incidents have been reported or are considered likely to occur.

"The Trustees already have a policy which prohibits racial or ethnic discrimination. I shall issue a statement on racial and ethnic harassment, which I shall be developing in consultation with you and others.

"Vice President Gurowitz will continue to provide programs in racial and cultural awareness. He welcomes your help and advice, as well as that of others, in reviewing these and in developing new ones.

"As you know, Ms. Joycelyn Hart has been my special advisor on interpersonal relations on the campus and has been working with me for the past nine months on this important project. Her report has already been widely reviewed. It has been discussed at three meetings of the Deans' Council, at a meeting of the Executive Staff, and at various meetings of groups which report to the several vice presidents. All of these people are now considering the implementation of this report. Ms. Hart will continue to advise me in this area.

"Let me say again how much I appreciated our conversation and how grateful I am for your cooperation and support in this vital area. Our goal must continue to be, not simply the elimination of intimidation and intolerance, important as that is, but also the development of a diverse community where harmony, goodwill, and mutual respect and support are our distinguishing characteristics."

Comment

Editor:

Assumptions, especially in the form of "guilty until proven innocent", can be very damaging to the attitude of the university community. The front page statement in the Nov. 13 issue of the Chronicle, attributed to minority leaders at Cornell, unfortunately sets this sad precedent. Racial tensions will not be eased when "unidentified whites" is the term used to direct all blame for the recent incidents of bigotry and racism on the campus. In fact, the blame for these unfortunate incidents can be placed in only several of the occurrences.

What our community needs is a genuine concern for one another, for our environment and, for the rights of each community member to achieve his full potential as a free and respected individual. This calls for common sense and control by all of us. If members of the Cornell Community are guilty of these acts, they must live with their own bigotry and accept full responsibility for their actions within themselves and in the halls of justice.

War on Waste Saving for Better Department Uses

Save with Mail Permit Number

It is cheaper for all departments to use the university's permit number for Business Reply Mail than to apply for a permit number directly from the U.S. Postal Office.

More than 70 departments use this service now, which results in a total annual savings of some $7,500. Other interested departments should contact Vic DiNicola, manager of support services, 163 Day Hall, Ext. 6-4710. He explained: The post office offers two plans for users of its mail reply service; Plan 1, $30 fee plus 12 cents per piece returned; Plan 2, $105 fee plus 3 1/2 cents per piece returned.

The Day Hall Mail Room (DHMR below) offers the same service for the flat rate of 5 cents per piece returned.

Under the university's blanket permit, all replies are received at the Day Hall Mail Room. They are sorted by department and forwarded through Messenger Service daily. A record is kept of the number of replies received for each department and charges are billed monthly. Departments do not have to file for permits and do not have the bother of arranging for payment of daily receipts either from a Post Office deposit account or petty cash.

Based on these rates, total service costs (fee plus per piece charge) for various quantities have been calculated:

Annual Quantity	DHMR	P.O.
		Plan 1	Plan 2
500	25	90	122.50
1,000	50	150	140
2,000	100	270	175
3,000	150	390	210
4,000	200	510	245
5,000	250	630	280
6,000	300	750	315
7,000	350	870	350

Brief Reports

19th Century America Subject for Lecture

A public lecture on attitudes toward the family and prostitution in mid-19th century America is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 1, in 225 Goldwin Smith Hall.

Sponsored by the Cornell Women's Studies Program and the university's history department, the lecture is being given by Carroll Smith-Rosenberg, associate professor in the departments of history and psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania.

Smith-Rosenberg received a master's degree in 1958 and doctorate in 1968 from Columbia University. She is the author of a number of articles and several books on various aspects of sex roles in America particularly during the 19th century.

Sign from Ujamaa Returned with Note

The Ujamaa Residential College sign, which was taken recently from in front of the building, was returned sometime Monday night. Taped to the sign was an anonymous note of apology.

Kevin Horne, an Ujamaa resident, found the sign, bolts and the note leaning up against a tree on the side of the building.

"We are pleased to have our sign back and want to thank publicly the person or persons who returned it to us," said Katrina Hazzard, resident director.

Inclement Weather Plan For Exams

The University's Registrar's Office has announced its proposed "inclement weather" plan for the final examination period. Final examinations begin Saturday, Dec. 13.

If only one examination day is cancelled due to inclement weather conditions, the cancelled examinations will be given the next day and the remaining examination days will be moved one day later, according to Ellen Hayth, administrative supervisor. Make up examinations will be given on Wednesday, Dec. 24.

If two days of examinations are cancelled, the same procedure will be followed except the examinations will be two exam days later. For example, if days one and two are cancelled, examinations for day one will be given on day three and day two will be scheduled on day four. Make up examinations will be scheduled in the evening.

For further information, call 256-4232.

New Parking Lot Will Open Monday

Additional parking for approximately 300 vehicles on the Kite Hill lot will be open to K permit holders Monday, Nov. 24.

Persons holding K permits will no longer be permitted to park in the A lot at North Campus and temporary bus passes will be void with the opening of the expanded facility.

A limited number of K permits are still available at the Traffic Bureau to faculty, staff and students.

The Traffic Bureau, 115 Wait Ave., is open from 7:45 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. For more information call 256-4600.

Foreign Students Must Obtain I-20s

Foreign students who have an F-1 Visa and who are leaving the United States for the holidays must obtain I-20 forms from the Registrar's Office, 222 Day Hall.

The I-20 forms are used as proof that those students are registered and continuing students at Cornell and are required in order to be allowed back into the United States.

Students are urged to request the forms as soon as possible in early December and should allow at least four days for processing.

Programs Are Offered For Foreign Students

An informational meeting on job hunting and a mini-workshop on stress management have been scheduled for today and tomorrow. Both are for foreign students and are being sponsored by the International Student Office.

"Job Hunting Hints" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. today in 202 Uris Hall. "Stress Management for Foreign Students" is scheduled for 12:15 p.m. tomorrow in 202 Uris Hall.

The meeting on job hunting is designed for foreign students who will be graduating and seeking employment at home or in the United States, according to Robert Locke, foreign student adviser.

The speaker at the stress management workshop will be Sandra Stein, assistant dean of students. Stein will discuss strategies for coping with anxiety as a result of examinations, social relations and other issues, Locke said.

Birds of Cayuga Basin on Display

More than 120 works by 45 artists are included in a display of Birds of the Cayuga Basin, scheduled from Nov. 17 to Feb. 14 at the Laboratory of Ornithology, 156 Sapsucker Woods Road.

Sponsored every two years by the Cayuga Bird Club and the laboratory, the display of paintings, drawings, photographs, needlepoint, sculpture and porcelain is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

All works by the professional and non-professional artists are for sale, with proceeds going to the Cayuga Bird Club and the Laboratory of Ornithology.

Holiday Craft Fair Is Scheduled

The tenth annual Holiday Craft Fair is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 4 through Saturday, Dec. 6, at Willard Straight Hall.

A group of 40 craftspeople, selected by a jury to insure the public would see only the finest examples of contemporary crafts, will be displaying and selling work in pottery, stained glass, jewelry, wood, leather and many other media.

The fair is sponsored by the Willard Straight Hall Pot Shop and North Campus Union Craft Studio.

Panel Will Discuss Korean Government

Democracy and a dictatorship in South Korea will be the subject of a panel discussion scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 22, in the Hollis E. Cornell Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall.

The public event is under the auspices of the Asian American Coalition at Cornell, in cooperation with a number of Cornell academic units and organizations including the China-Japan Program and the Cornell Forum.

A reception is scheduled in The Temple of Zeus at Goldwin Smith after the discussion.

Guest speakers will be Channing Liem, former observer to the United Nations from South Korea (1960-61); Gregory Henderson, author, diplomat and now on the faculty at Harvard University, and Pharis Harvey, director of the North American Coalition for Human Rights in Korea.

Children Under 5 Ride Buses Free

Children five years of age or under may now ride on campus buses at no charge when accompanied by a parent. Older children, or children boarding the bus without a parent or guardian, must still pay the 20-cent fare. Bus passes may be purchased at the Traffic Bureau for older children who ride the bus regularly.

Inquiries from the family housing areas led to this policy change by the Committee on Transportation Services. The previous policy allowed "babes in arms" only to ride the bus free.

The Chase Is Still On for Football, Soccer Teams

Football, soccer and hockey will be in the spotlight this weekend as the fall sports season comes to an end and the winter season begins.

The varsity football team will meet Pennsylvania at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Schoellkopf Field in a game that has strong bearing on the outcome of the Ivy League chamampionship. A Cornell win would assure the Red of no worse than a second-place finish, its best finish in the league since 1971. A Cornell win combined with a Harvard victory over Yale Saturday would move the Red into a 3- or 4-way tie for the Ivy crown.

The soccer team will try to win at least a share of the Ivy crown when it faces Penn at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Schoellkopf. Cornell, Penn and Columbia are all tied for the league lead with 3-1-2 records, and a Cornell win Friday would assure it at least a tie for the top spot.

The Big Red, 9-2-3 overall, has been invited to participate in the NCAA soccer tournament and will play Hartwick in a first-round game at 1 p.m. Tuesday at Schoellkopf. Hartwick defeated Cornell earlier this season, 2-1, in overtime. The winner advances to face Columbia later next week.

Men's hockey is also on the weekend schedule. The varsity opens its season against U.S. International Saturday and Sunday evenings at Lynah Rink. The Red is defending ECAC champion, and returns 18 lettermen from last year's squad. Game time both nights is 7:30.

Statement on Letters

Several letters have been received on the issue of unionization at the university. After careful deliberation, it was decided that this issue is not one in which Chronicle will become involved in its letters column.

Chronicle will continue to carry news reports on developments with regard to this and other campus issues. Both the union and the university administration have developed their own communication tools for disseminating information on the unionization matter.

In the meantime, Chronicle will continue to welcome letters, (signed and 300 words maximum) on other matters of campus concern.

Lowell T. George

Lowell T. George, who retired in 1974 after having led the university's Safety Division through the height of student unrest on campus during the 1960s and early '70s, died Sunday at Tompkins County Hospital. He was 69.

George came to Cornell in 1952 from Hornell where he had served as chief of police for eight years. He also had been an F.B.I. agent. He was University Proctor until 1968 when he was named supervisor of safety. He was promoted to director of safety in 1970 with expanded responsibilities.

President of the university during this period, Dale R. Corson said, "Cornell was fortunate to have had Lowell George as proctor and later as director of the Safety Division during the campus disorder days. He was a compassionate man. From time to time he showed me letters from students, but more often from alumni, whom he had helped over a rough spot or for whom he had served as a counselor.

"In the most troubled days, he never lost his composure and his judgment was sound. I was well served in the difficult decisions I had to make in those days by having Lowell George at my side at every turn.

"Cornell has lost a faithful and dedicated member of its family and I have lost a real friend."

President (1951-63) Emeritus Deane W. Malott, said, "Lowell George came to Cornell as proctor during my years at the university. He early established himself as a friend of the students, who often invited him to their functions and to accompany their teams and clubs on off-campus trips. He will live on in the affection of those who knew him—as a staunch friend, wise counselor and firm disciplinarian."

Funeral services took place Tuesday at St. Catherine of Siena

Church. The interment was in Rural Cemetery, Hornell.

Memorial gifts may be made to the Cayuga Heights Fire Department and Rescue Squad. George was Cayuga Heights Fire Chief at the time of his death.

No Chronicle Next Week

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, there will be no issue of Cornell Chronicle next week.

There will be only two more issues before the Christmas and intersession break, with publication on Dec. 4 and 11, and then a hiatus until Jan. 29, 1981.
