'Blue Light' Escort Service Will Start Sunday

Radio-Equipped Escorts Will Wear Blue Jackets

About 200 people gathered in Hollis E. Cornell Auditorium last Thursday for an introductory training session for volunteers of the newly-created Blue Light Escort Service, which is scheduled to begin Sunday, Feb. 14.

The service, according to Lt. Randall H. Hausner, Public Safety, is intended to provide "some degree of protection from non-acquaintance rape and to promote a sense of security and safety among those in the Cornell community." It will be staffed by volunteers chosen from among the Cornell community—faculty, staff and students.

At last Thursday's meeting, Rosalind Kenworthy, sex counselor at Gannett Health Center, discussed the nature of rape and the need for the volunteer escorts to be sensitive to the issue.

"Rape is one of the most appalling indictments of our society," Kenworthy said. "It's an exercise of power by the rapist over his victim."

Kenworthy also told the group that those who use the program will be admitting a certain vulnerability and weakness, and that escorts must be sensitive to their feelings.

After Kenworthy's talk, a film about rape was shown. The participants then broke up into discussion groups, which were led by members of Community Against Rape. The groups discussed the film as well as the responsibilities of the escorts.

The Blue Light Escort Service will operate under the jurisdiction of the Department of Public Safety, which will be responsible for coordinating and operating the service.

It is expected that volunteers will be required to commit two hours each week between the hours of 10 p.m. and midnight, Sunday through Thursday. They will travel in pairs, preferably one male and one female or two females.

The service, which will be a patrolling service, will work in conjunction with the Blue Light Bus Service. Escorts will wear blue nylon jackets with "Blue Light Escort Service" printed on them. They will carry portable two-way radios and all will be assigned to a particular sector within the boundaries of the campus.

Partial funding for the Blue Light Escort Service is being provided by the Senior Class and new program funds from the Division of Campus Life as approved by the University Assemblies.

"We hope that the service will be looked upon by the community as a caring and vital part of our campus life," Hausner said. "However, its success hinges on the demand and use of the service and the commitment of the volunteer escorts."

Persons interested in volunteering for the service should contact the Department of Public Safety at 256-7302 or the Dean of Students Office at 256-4221. Training and sensitivity awareness sessions will be conducted into mid-semester.

To arrange an escort, call 256-7373. Barbara Jordan-Smith

'Gourmet' Series Goes Mexican for First Time

Dining Halls Become Las Casuelas for a Day

The "Cross Country Gourmet" may sound like the title of a television series on cooking, but it's actually the name of a unique culinary adventure sponsored by the university's Department of Dining Services.

During the academic year, the Cross Country Gourmet series brings to Cornell, for one week each, the fine cuisine plus a bit of the atmosphere from four of the leading restaurants in the United States.

As a result, Cornell students don't write home about institutional macaroni and cheese or grilled cheese sandwiches. They write home about the Beef Wellington they had from The Bakery in Chicago or the lobster from Anthony's Pier 4 in Boston.

During the week of Feb. 1, Cornell students had the chance to eat authentic Mexican delicacies from the Delgado Family's Las Casuelas Restaurant in Palm Springs, Calif.

Items such as Pollo de Mole (chicken wings in a special sauce with ground peanuts and chocolate); Albondigas (a vegetable soup with meatballs) and Huachinango ala Vera Cruzana (broiled red snapper fillets topped with a tomato sauce with onions, green olives, capers, garlic, jalapeno peppers and spices) were prepared in Cornell kitchens by Chef John Dunai and dining employees, including Cornell students, under the supervision of the Delgado Family.

From Monday through Saturday, a different Cornell dining unit each night "became" Las Casuelas as the atmosphere of the restaurant was re-created through table settings, traditional dress of the waiters and waitresses, lighting and style of service, all under the direction of Mary Beth Swan, manager of Cornell Catering.

"I was very skeptical that anyone could possibly do a reasonably good job of reproducing the Las Casuelas environment much less the food," said Ric Service who, along with his wife Patty Delgado Service, runs

Las Casuelas Terraza. "But they've done it. They've put a tremendous effort into this and it's awesome for those of us who've never tried to do something like this."

"We got involved in the series because we want to educate as many people as we can as to what Mexican food and culture is really all about," said Patty Service. "The Cross Country Gourmet series is a good vehicle to help us fulfill our objective."

Cornell's Cross Country Gourmet series, which began in 1977, is included in the Coop Dining Plan for some 5,600 students. Participants in the plan and their guests are served buffet style.

For students as well as other members of the Cornell community who were interested in a more intimate setting, table service was also available. For coop members, the cost of a five-course meal was $3 per person. For others, the cost was

"We consider the Cross Country Gourmet Series to be our contribution to the educational mission of Cornell," said Eugene Lawless, coordinator of the series.

"This is the first time we've offered Mexican food in the series," Lawless said. "Our objective was to introduce Cornell students to authentic Mexican food and culture."

Cornell Dining was a recipient of the Sixth Annual Restauranteur of Distinction, or "Ivy" award, as well as several awards from the National Association of College and University Food Services.

Las Casuelas Terraza was the 1979 recipient of the prestigious Institutions Magazine's top award for food service facility design, chosen out of 2,700 entries.

What did Cornell's students think about authentic Mexican food? "The proof," said Ric Service, "is in the leftovers and there weren't any."

Carl Frederick, inventor of the talking robot Omnivac I, endures a combination of heckling and out-and-out impudence from his brain child during the Engineer's Week Exposition in the Memorial Room of Willard Straight Hall Thursday of last week. Left in the "awake" position Omnivac spewed out a series of comments while Frederick, a founder of the local electronics firm "Wolfdana," explained the robot's operation to students. Comments included, "Get Lost, Dark Rabbit," "Scientists are basically elegant," "Bagpiping is a cheap hobby," apparently referring to Frederick's hobby. "Get lost smelly hamster" and "buzz off" were comments fired at the crowd as it moved closer to the cranky instrument.

It is the policy of Cornell University actively to support equality of educational and employment opportunity. No person shall be denied admission to any educational program or activity or be denied employment on the basis of any legally prohibited discrimination involving, but not limited to, such factors as race, color, creed, religion, national or ethnic origin, sex, age or handicap. The university is committed to the maintenance of affirmative action programs which will assure the continuation of such equality of opportunity.

Kellogg Gift Will Fund New Unit at CUMC

A $423,805 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation will enable the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center to establish a center for the improvement of decision-making in the care of long-term patients.

To be known at NYH-CMC as the Central Training Unit, the center's comprehensive programs will be administered through the Department of Public Health. Instruction will be offered in the medical, social and psychological care needs of the long-term patient in all settings. The system will also be made available to education and training schools that prepare people to work in health or psychosocial fields and to individuals from programs providing services to the chronically ill or the elderly.

According to Angela R. Falcone, project director for the Central Training Unit, the center is expected to be self-sufficient and on a revenue-producing basis by the end of the grant period. The unit will become national in scope and the facilities will be available to long-term care workers throughout the United States. A team from NYH-CMC will be prepared to travel in different regions of the country to provide on-site training.

The Kellogg Foundation was established by the cereal pioneer W.K. Kellogg and makes grants in the areas of health, education and agriculture. Numerous programs in the Colleges of Human Ecology and Agriculture and Life Sciences as well as in Cooperative Extension have been funded by the Kellogg Foundation.

Engineering students are seen pulling together last week in creating what appears will be an annual display of engineering fun and creativity on campus. A tug-of-war, keg rolling, a beer drinking contest, an exposition of engineering inventiveness in the Memorial Room of Willard Straight Hall were all part of the first "Engineer's Week" celebration, Thursday through Saturday. More than 130 students and faculty attended a ball Saturday night that capped off the three days of activities that attracted national T.V. and print media attention for the unique way the engineers presented President Frank Rhodes with a VW bug. They assembled the car around the trunk of a tree on the plaza of Day Hall. Peter Poole, Eng. '82, chairman of the student-run and initiated activities, said bigger and better things are in store for the Engineer's Week on campus next year. For the record the Civil Engineering team (on right) won the tug of war. Material Science won the beer chugging contest and Ag Engineering won the keg rolling.

Rhodes Attacks Reagan's Proposed Aid Cuts

Outlines Possible Effects on Cornell Students

President Frank Rhodes said Tuesday that the budget plan announced Monday by President Reagan "will effectively destroy the precepts of open access and free choice to institutions of higher education."

In a detailed statement on the proposed budget's possible effects on Cornell, Rhodes used figures showing that Cornell students receiving $8.4 million in federal aid this year could be receiving as little as $3.9 million in 1983-84.

Here is the text of Rhodes' message:

February 8, 1982 marked the end of an era in the history of higher education. It was 23 years ago that President Dwight Eisenhower initiated the National Defense Education Act. Congress approved that legislation in recognition of the fact that the United States had fallen behind the Soviet Union in military preparedness. President Eisenhower said, "...the security of the nation requires the fullest development of the mental resources and technical skills of its young men and women ... We must increase our efforts to identify and educate more of the talent of this nation. This requires programs that will give assurance that no student of ability will be denied an opportunity for higher education because of financial need..." Successive presidents of both political parties have continued to advocate a strong role for the Federal government in this support. It is ironic, then, that in the name of national defense, we should now see the dismantling of a program designed to improve our preparedness. How different from the attitude of President Eisenhower is that of Mr. David Stockman, who stated before the House Budget Committee, "I do not accept the notion that the federal government has an obligation to fund generous grants to anybody who wants to go to college. It seems to me that if people want to go to college bad enough, then there is opportunity and responsibility on their part to finance their way through the best they can."

Just what does this retreat in federal responsibility involve? Higher education has already been subjected to three rounds of reductions in student aid since President Reagan was inaugurated in January, 1981 (Fiscal 1981 funding levels approved last spring, Budget Reconciliation Act passed last August, fiscal 1982 continuing resolution funding levels in effect until March 31, 1982). Two additional rounds are now proposed, one affecting fiscal 1982 after the continuing resolution, the other fiscal 1983. It should be noted that the level of cuts proposed for student financial aid for the two-year fiscal period 1981-83 are far greater — 48 percent in comparison with 31 percent — than those proposed in other social programs, excluding housing (down 60 percent) and health (up 18 percent).

The latest series of reductions proposed by President Reagan, if they are approved by Congress, will effectively destroy the precepts of open access and free choice to institutions of higher education. These have served us well over the past two decades; indeed they have transformed our society, for they have allowed young men and women of all economic, racial, and geographic backgrounds to attend the colleges of their choice. This program has been a partnership between the federal and state governments and individual colleges and universities, but there is no possibility that either state governments or colleges and universities will be able to absorb the federal funding losses that are now proposed. This means in practice that the losses will have to be passed on to students and their parents.

Over the course of the next few weeks, Dean James Scannell will be explaining details of the proposed program reductions in a series of meetings with various campus community groups. In the meantime, it is important to understand the magnitude of funding cuts which Cornell faces if the present budget is accepted by the Congress. Dean Scannell has given me the following figures: (See Below)

Pell Grants. These are grants awarded to the students on the basis of financial need. They have been vitally important in providing access to higher education. In 1982-83, the maximum Pell Grant will increase to $1,800 from the 1981-82 level of $1,670, but the most recent proposal limits eligibility to those students from families with incomes of less than $25,800. This would mean that twenty percent of the Cornell students who received Pell Grants in 1981-82 would be ineligible in 1982-83. Under the F.Y. '83 proposal only 879, or slightly more than one in every three students eligible this year, would be eligible to receive a Pell Grant in 1983-84.

Social Security Benefits. Legislation is already in place to phase out the educational benefits by F.Y. '85, with no new recipients being added after June, 1982. Current beneficiaries will receive an annual reduction of 25 percent. Nationally, this will affect 750,000 students, receiving benefits totalling $2 billion annually. Cornell students with demonstrated financial need will face a loss of $350,000 in 1982-83.

Guaranteed Student Loans (GSL). Proposed changes in the Guaranteed Student Loan program would have a disastrous impact on Cornell in 1982-83. This program is "current-funded", so that the changes will take immediate effect. The Administration's proposals call for:

1. A doubling of the origination fee from 5 percent to 10 percent.
2. All students will have to prove need (needs test).
3. Interest rates will increase to market rates (9 percent to 14 percent) two years after entering repayment.
4. The removal of graduate and professional school student eligibility to borrow. (These students would have to borrow under the Auxiliary Loan to Assist Students, appropriately named ALAS).

Although all of these proposed loan changes place additional burdens on our students, the loss of graduate and professional student eligibility is of particular concern. This year (1981-82) Cornell graduate and professional students accounted for about 20 percent of the GSL borrowers (at 2000 G/P borrowers) and 40 percent of GSL money borrowed (at $9 million).

If Congress approves the Administration's recommendations, these graduate and professional schools students would be forced to other less attractive loan programs, such as ALAS. Not only are the terms less favorable under ALAS (no in-school interest subsidy and repayments due while in school) but lenders have, to date, been hesitant to lend to graduate and professional students under this program.

The impact of these changes upon students will be profound. But their wider impact will be upon the nation rather than the individual. The open society which we seek, the productivity of our industry, the quality of health care and other professional services, our military preparedness — all these will ultimately feel the effects.

It is time to reconsider the current budget proposals. To urge this is not to deny that federal spending must be reduced. It is not to deny that some abuses in the use of student aid have occurred. It is not to claim some special exemption for educational needs. But it is to assert that federal support for education involves not only spending but also investment, an investment in the future of individuals and of the nation. "If the cost of education seems high," one observer recently remarked, "ponder the cost of ignorance."

I hope that all Cornell students and their families will reflect on the implications of these proposed budgetary changes. If they become convinced that these proposals are not in the national interest, I hope that they will inform their Congressional representatives of the results that are likely to follow. I believe that the collective voices of students and their parents can have a profound effect upon the fate of this legislation in the weeks ahead. What we are seeing here is a major change in federal policy. It would be tragic if such a change were to be made without the most careful consideration of its overall impact.

Exhibits

Eye Openers: Images and Drawings, a Johnson Museum program designed to promote family experiences in museums, will be held 10:30 a.m.-noon on Saturdays. During the February, the schedule will be: Feb. 13, A Vision of 19th Century America: Golden Day, Silver Night; Feb. 20, People of Wood: Enter the World of African Art. Feb. 27, Ancient Cultures, Precious Materials: Explore the Art of Asia.

At 1 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 14, there will be a gallery talk, painting demonstrations and a story telling performance, which is being held in conjunction with the exhibition "Golden Day, Silver Night: Perceptions of Nature in American Art, 1850-1910," on view at the Johnson Museum through March 28. The exhibition features landscape paintings from several Upstate New York art museums.

"Carved Images: Art From Africa," an exhibit of 75 objects that represent the daily life in sub-Saharan Africa, will be on view at the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art Feb. 16-March 28. Works in the exhibit will be from the museum's permanent collection and from the collections of Cornell alumni and friends.

Organized by guest curator, Nancy Neaher, the exhibition emphasizes the distinctive sculptural styles of the African tribal societies.

Neaher is a visiting assistant professor in the Department of the History of Art and has traveled extensively in Africa. At 1 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 21, Neaher will give a gallery talk, which will include a film, carving demonstrations and live music.

Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday, phone 256-6464.

Laboratory of Ornithology "The Enchanted Islands," through Feb. 28. Photographs from the Galapagos Islands by Lizabeth Jamieson Menzies. Her subjects are the people, plants, and animals of the untamed Galapagos. The color and black-and-white photographs can be viewed and purchased any day of the week during regular business hours.

Herbert F. Johnson Museum "Art of the Omstead Landscape" through March 7; "Golden Day, Silver Night: Perceptions of Nature in American Art, 1850-1910" through March 28; "Carved Images: Art from Africa" February 16 through March 28.

Sponsored Programs

The Office of Sponsored Programs, 123 Day Hall, 6-5014, wishes to emphasize that the information in this column is intended for post-doctoral research unless otherwise indicated.

SOCIAL SCIENCE RESEARCH COUNCIL

Fellowships for Doctoral Dissertation Research in Employment and Training. Grants to support the dissertation research of graduate students registered in universities and colleges located in the United States who have completed all requirements for the Ph.D. except for the dissertation. Awards of up to $10,000 will be given to individuals to cover stipends, dependency allowances, clerical assistance, materials and supplies, computer time, travel, and communication costs; the academic institution may receive up to $2,500 to cover the costs of tuition and fees. Dissertation topics must relate to problems of employment and training in the United States. The deadline is March 1.

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE ARTS

Managers Fellowships - The fellowships for arts administrators cover a thirteen-week period of residency in Washington to work on the staff of the National Endowment of the Arts. Besides observing policy development, grant-making procedures and administration, fellows attend a series of seminars and meetings with members of the National Council on the Arts, Endowment panelists, artists, journalists, federal officials and leading art administrators. The application deadline is April 16, 1982.

For more information contact the Office of Sponsored Programs, 123 Day Hall.

CORPORATION FOR PUBLIC BROADCASTING/ANNENBERG SCHOOL OF COMMUNICATIONS PROJECT

Telecommunications Project Grants - These grants are designed to provide institutions of higher education with a significant new resource of educational programming and to explore and discover new ways to advance higher education through telecommunications in those areas where the need is demonstrable and where start-up funding is required. The goals of the project are to create new significant collections of innovative and high quality college-level materials (e.g. television series, computer materials) and to demonstrate the use of communication systems for addressing unique higher education problems. The primary target audiences are those persons interested in higher education but unable to pursue it, and traditional college students. The application deadline is April 5, 1982.

RESOURCES FOR THE FUTURE

The Small Grants Program announces an application deadline of March 1, 1982. Small grants are available to support research on issues related to the environment, natural resources or energy. Proposals for the small grants may come from either the social or natural sciences. Maximum grant is $30,000.

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES

The Higher Education Regional and National Grants Program announces the Humanities Institutes for 1982. Institutes offer faculty in the humanities opportunities to enrich their teaching by collaborating on the design of new curricula.

Full time faculty in universities and two- and four-year colleges in the United States are eligible to participate. Priority will be given to individuals who have not attended a NEH-sponsored Institute or Summer or Residential Seminar in the past two years. Further information on specific eligibility criteria is available from each Institute director. Participants will receive stipends to cover their expenses, and their home institutions are required to contribute toward the cost of the Institute. These stipends and contributions differ for each Institute. Each Institute manages its own application and selection process, under general guidance from the Endowment. To receive detailed information about and application materials for any Institute, please write to the director. The Endowment does not have application forms.

The following Institutes will be held: Black Studies - Southern Black Culture; Cartography - Map users for Scholars and University Map Librarians; Composition and Rhetoric; Ethics; History; Legal Studies; Middle East Studies; Paleography; Philosophy; Police; Shakespeare; and Slavic Studies.

Some additional information is available in the Office of Sponsored Programs, 123 Day Hall.

NSF WANTS SHORTER PROPOSALS

Faculty members submitting proposals to the National Science Foundation are reminded that the page limit for project descriptions is normally 15 single-spaced pages (or 30 double-spaced pages). Budgets, appendices, etc. are not included in this total. The Division of Physiology, Cellular, and Molecular Biology at NSF will return proposals that exceed this page limit for project descriptions. Somewhat greater length may be appropriate for proposals with multiple investigators or of unusual complexity.

NSF'S INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL GRANT - DISCONTINUED AS OF OCTOBER 1, 1981

A separate budget for international travel awards no longer exists. NSF has established the following policy for future support of activities previously provided for under the ITG program.

1. Proposals for travel awards to support U.S. participation in international scientific meetings held abroad will be handled by the NSF unit with responsibility for the area of scientific interest.

2. Applications for support of travel to attend NATO Advanced Study Institutes held abroad will be handled by the Directorate for Science and Engineering Education.

Each NSF directorate is establishing policies and procedures for handling proposals and inquiries from the scientific community related to the subject of foreign travel. All proposals which have been received for support with fiscal year 1982 funds are being transferred to the appropriate directorate for action. Applicants have been advised accordingly.

DEADLINE REMINDERS

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Biological Nitrogen Fixation - February 16, 1982.

Photosynthesis - February 16, 1982.

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE ARTS

Literature Program - Fellowships for $12,500 will be awarded in fiction, creative prose, and in translations for 1983 funding. Applications are accepted between January 2, 1982 and March 29, 1982.

PSH/NIH
PHS/NIH receipt deadline for new applications is March 1, 1982.

Graduate Bulletin

The next regular meeting of the Graduate Faculty will be held at 4:30 p.m., tomorrow, February 12, in Kaufmann Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall to approve the provisional list from January.

Doctoral students registered for the fall term (or those who took a leave of absence dated 8-30-79 or later) who wish to avoid paying the active-file fee of $200 for the spring term must have met all degree requirements by tomorrow, February 12. This includes filing two acceptable copies of the thesis in the Graduate School Office.

All graduate students must turn in course registration forms at Sage Graduate Center by tomorrow, February 12.

Fall 1981 grades for graduate students are available at Sage Graduate School office.

A 9-week course in Kinetic Theory (EE781/A&EP761) will be offered this spring term. First lecture: 9 March 1982, 203 Phillips Hall. For further information call Prof. R.L. Liboff, 6-4300.

Graduate faculty representatives are reminded that their nominations for the General Fellowship Competition and the Special Fellowship Competition-Round I must be received at the Fellowship Office, 116 Sage Graduate Center, by noon, Monday, February 15.

Reminder: Applications for need-based financial aid are available at the Office of Financial Aid, 203 Day Hall, and at the Fellowship Office. The GAPSFAS should be mailed to Princeton, NJ, by March 15. The Cornell Need-Based Aid Application and all supporting documents (1981 federal tax return, financial aid transcripts, etc.) must be filed at the Office of Financial Aid by April 15.

Reminder: Graduate students receiving tuition assistance from Cornell-administered sources must complete a TAP Acceptance Form and apply for a TAP award if they are residents of New York State. Students who fail to do so will be billed $300 for each term in which tuition has been received. The deadline to apply for a TAP award is March 31.

Check the Fellowship Notebook at your graduate faculty representative's office for information on the awards whose deadlines follow.

Mar 1: Cornell University/Andrew W. Mellon Student Research Grants - at least 10 grants of up to $1500 will be awarded to graduate and undergraduate students at Cornell for the support of research in the areas of ecology, natural resources, and environmental policy.

Mar. 11: NYS Herbert H. Lehman Graduate Fellowships in Social Sciences, Public Affairs or International Affairs - provide $4000 for the first year of graduate study and $5000 for the second, third and fourth years of graduate study; applicants must have been legal residents of the U.S. since September 1981, have received the baccalaureate not later than September 1982, not have entered upon any graduate study prior to July 1982, and plan to enroll in an approved program leading to a master's or doctoral degree in a college in New York State.

Mar. 15: American Hospital Association Graduate Fellowship in Health Facility Design - provides up to $6000 for formal or independent graduate study in architectural design of health care facilities or for travel with in-residence research in selected health care facilities. Applicants must be U.S. or Canadian citizens and must possess an accredited architectural degree by the start of the grant.

Mar. 15: American Museum of Natural History/Lerner Fund for Marine Research - awards range from $200-$1000 for incidental costs associated with research in marine biology, marine ecology, and zoology. Awards are tenable abroad.

Mar. 15: City of New York/Summer Management Intern Program - 50 internships from June 14 to August 21 will be awarded and will provide a stipend of $2000; applicants must have a permanent home address within NYC and must be about to start the junior or senior year in fall 1982 or be a recent graduate (fall 1981 or spring 1982).

Mar. 15: Institute of International Education/British Universities Summer Schools - a limited number of scholarships will be awarded by the participating schools: University of London, University of Oxford and Stratford-upon-Avon, University of Birmingham. Preference is given to graduates and graduating seniors whose background in the subject area chosen is sufficient to enable them to work at the graduate level.

Mar. 15: Kate Neal Kinley Memorial Fellowship/University of Illinois - one fellowship of $4000 is awarded to defray the expenses of advanced study of the fine arts in America or abroad. Preference will be given to applicants who are younger than 25.

Mar. 15: New York City Urban Fellowship Program - 20 awards will be made to outstanding college seniors and graduate students so that they may acquire a better understanding of the workings and problems of local government. Applicants must be about to start the senior year, or be an accepted or actual graduate student, or have the academic endorsement of their university/college.

CIVITAS

CIVITAS CAR GOING TO WILLARD PSYCHIATRIC CENTER MONDAY AFTERNOONS: Car leaves Anabel Taylor about 12:15 p.m. and returns about 4:15 p.m. each week. Willard offers a variety of volunteer opportunities, and the CIVITAS office will give you more detailed information on the wide range of activities and experiences available.

SENIOR CITIZEN'S GROUP IN NORTHEAST ITHACA HOPES TO FIND COMMUNITY ORGANIZERS: To survey apartment dwellers in an effort to promote neighborhood friendships and organize simple shared support services (cars, mending, social events). Also looking for certified swim instructor, Fridays, 10:30-11:30 a.m., on regular basis at the Sheraton Pool. Other specific opportunities available; details in the CIVITAS office.

DOWNTOWN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL SEEKS VOLUNTEERS FOR SCIENCE PROGRAM: To help teachers with whatever science lesson or project is currently going on, or to set up and run own project under professional supervision. The schedule is flexible, Monday-Friday, between 9-2:30 p.m. for two hours or so.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON SWIM PROGRAM, DOWNTOWN, FOR HANDICAPPED CHILDREN: Is seeking volunteers (most urgently, one or two reliable males) to work one-to-one with five or six children in swim program at Ramada Pool, on Tuesday afternoons, 3-4 p.m. Program organized and supervised by Cornell intern. Begins Feb. 9.

SMALL PRESCHOOL PLAYGROUP WITHIN WALKING DISTANCE OF NORTH CAMPUS: Has a great need for volunteers for a couple of hours or so between 8:30-11:30 on Monday, Wednesday or Friday mornings. Small, pleasant, informal program.

HANDICAPPED CORNELL EMPLOYEE WOULD LIKE HELP IN LEARNING TO READ: His work hours are 11 a.m.-7:30 p.m., and tutoring could take place before or after work. Once a week would be satisfactory at mutually convenient location on campus.

ASSISTANT LEADERS IN AFTER-SCHOOL YOUTH PROGRAMS, SEVERAL OPENINGS: Monday-Friday afternoons, 2-4:30 p.m. or 3-5:30 p.m., at local Ithaca sites; Wednesday afternoon only, 2-4:30 p.m., in Newfield. Children range from 5-10 years, and varied activities include nutrition, arts and crafts, woodworking, sports, sewing, photography. You can walk or bus to some sites, and transportation to farther places can be worked out for you.

THREE GOOD OPPORTUNITIES FOR ARTISTS/GRAPHICS PERSONS: One request involves lettering, design layout and poster production for use in civil rights informational meetings with local civic groups; another concerns assistance in historical mural project at downtown church; third relates to publicity for local chapter of national health organization. These are excellent opportunities for you to add to your portfolio.

YOUTH THEATRE PROGRAM PLANS PRODUCTION FOR EARLY MAY: And hopes to recruit volunteer musicians, dancers, artists and actors to work with children on Saturday mornings, 9-12 noon.

TO OFFER YOUR HELP: Come to CIVITAS, 119B Anabel Taylor Hall, or call 256-7513, Mon., Wed., and Fri., 9-3; Tues., Thurs., 10-2.

Barton Blotter

Some $3,800 in cash and valuables were stolen on campus during the period Feb. 1 through Feb. 7, according to the morning reports of the Department of Public Safety.

In addition two persons were arrested for driving while intoxicated and a student was turned over to the Judicial Administrator on charges of forging a parking permit.

The largest theft in terms of dollars in the 22 cases of larceny and burglary on campus during the seven-day period was a Sartorius Balance, a digital scale, worth $1,650 taken from Bradfield Hall sometime Feb. 1 and 2.

There were five incidents of wallets being stolen, two of them containing more than $100 in cash. William Yanavitch of 509 Wycoff Road reported a tiger's eye ring worth $200 taken from the first floor of North Campus Union.

Checks were another favorite target of thieves. Two checks totaling $616.77 were taken from Room 282 Martha Van Rensselaer Hall and a $193 check was taken from either Day Hall or Barnes Hall, according to a report by Leo Collins, university auditor.

A fire extinguisher worth $17.99 was reported taken from North Campus 5 and a complete telephone unit valued at $51.70 was taken from Morrill Hall. Other items reported stolen were an $80 electric percolator, a $130 portable cassette stereo and a $75 toilet fixture from the first floor men's room of Rand Hall.

Rebuildings

Scores of modern, safe, comfortable living spaces are becoming available to Cornell students as the University continues its program of refurbishing old-but-serviceable buildings on the fringes of the campus. What was once Sage Infirmary at 112 Seneca St. reopened in the fall as Schuyler House, a 104-room residence for graduate students.

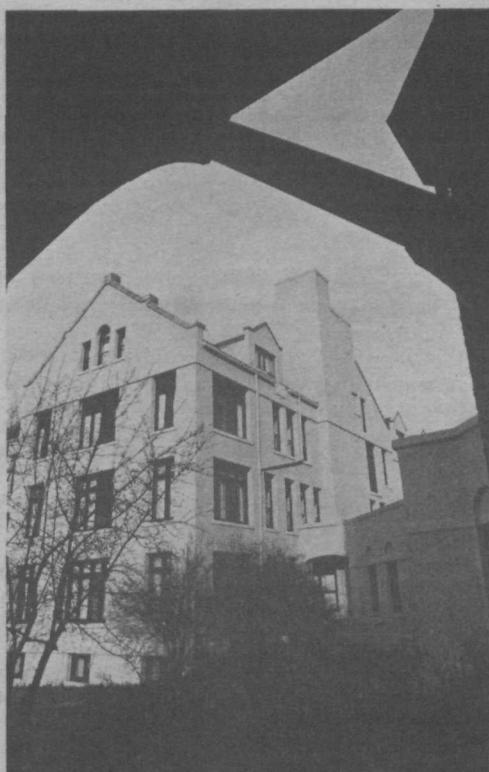

Sheldon Court on College Avenue rose — literally — from the plaster dust as rebuilders added a fifth floor to the combined residential-commercial structure where 154 undergraduate students now live. In progress is another ambitious project — refurbishing the University's oldest building, Cascadilla Hall, to accommodate approximately 390 residents.

refurbished Schuyler House gleams in the morning sun. Graduate students Glenn Pease and Margaret Miller meet with Schuyler House Head Resident Steve Payne in a room of what was once the University infirmary. Heaps of wood and plaster surround Cascadilla Hall, which is now in the middle of the rebuilding, roof-raising process.

Brief Reports

Librarian Appointed At Mann Library

Jan Kennedy Olsen, currently with the U.S. Department of Interior, has been named librarian of the Albert R. Mann Library, effective Feb. 16, according to University Librarian Louis E. Martin.

Martin said, "Ms. Kennedy Olsen is keenly interested in the agricultural mission of this country and the role of libraries in achieving that mission. She brings to Mann Library which specializes in agriculture and life sciences extensive teaching and administrative experience."

Olsen received her M.L.S. from the University of Wisconsin in 1978 and a Certification in Librarianship from the University of Adelaide, Australia in 1969.

She is currently Librarian for Analysis and Planning of Information and Library Services, Department of the Interior.

Other positions held by Olsen include: Chief of Public Services Division, National Agricultural Library, U.S. Department of Agriculture; Director of the Library and Associate Professor, Steenbock Memorial Library, University of Wisconsin; and Director of the Library, Alverno College, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Born in Australia, she is now a U.S. citizen.

Olsen will replace Jeanne White who has been acting librarian since July 1, 1981. White will resume her previous duties as Associate Mann Librarian.

Craft Studio To Offer Classes

The North Campus Union Craft Studio classes are scheduled to begin Feb. 15.

The Craft Studio will be offering new courses in woodworking, drawing and painting and blacksmithing as well as those held in the past such as weaving, jewelry and silkscreen printing.

For more information or to register, call to stop by at the North Campus Union Director's Office, open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. (256-6220) or at the Craft Studio, open 6-10 p.m. (256-6238).

Lynn Will Address Patent Law Group

Walter R. Lynn, the director of the university's Program on Science, Technology and Society, will be the featured speaker at the Central New York Patent Law Association's Inventors Recognition Dinner 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 11, at the Hotel Syracuse in Syracuse.

He will discuss problems certain patent procedures create for University research.

The dinner is part of a national program of activities that day, the anniversary of Thomas Edison's birthday. The day has been declared National Inventors Day by several national organizations including the United States Patent and Trademark Office and the National Council of Patent Law Associations.

These activities are intended to honor inventors and their inventions, and to bring to the attention of the public the importance of continued advancements in the useful arts and the value of protecting these advancements through the patent system, according to Theodore C. Wood, president of CNYPLA.

Persons wishing to attend the dinner may call Wood at (607) 256-7367. He is manager of Patent Licensing at Cornell University.

Sailing Team Plans Organization Meeting

The Cornell Sailing Team will hold its spring organizational meeting at 5 p.m. Friday in the Robison Room of Schoellkopf Hall.

The team is a varsity sport seeking new members with experience in yacht racing. Both large- and small-sailboaters are being sought to compete against other colleges and universities in the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association, of which Cornell is a member.

The team has a 30-foot racer/cruiser fully equipped and nine 420 racing dinghies. For more information call Coach Lawrence Bart at 256-4286.

Author and Feminist Will Give Lecture

Author and feminist scholar Barbara Smith will lecture on "Third World Feminist Criticism," at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 18 in Hollis E. Cornell Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall.

Her talk, which is open to the general public, is cosponsored by Cornell's Women's Studies Program and Africana Studies and Research Center. Smith also will lead an informal discussion on black feminist criticism in 227 Goldwin

Smith at 12:15 p.m. Friday, Feb. 19.

After her Thursday night lecture there will be a reception in the Philosophy Department Lounge on the second floor of Goldwin Smith.

Smith is author of "Toward a Black Feminist Criticism." She has asked that people try to look at this book in advance of her lecture. She is co-editor of "All the Women Are White, All the Blacks Are Men, But Some of Us Are Brave;" co-editor of "Conditions Five: The Black Women's Issue;" a founding member of Kitchen Table Women of Color Press; and a contributor to "Lesbian Fiction: An Anthology" and "This Bridge Called My Back: Writings By Radical Women of Color."

Korean Drum Dance Demonstration Set

Robert C. Provine, of the Department of Music at The University of Durham, England, will give a lecture-demonstration on the Korean Drum Dance, at 4:30 p.m. Monday, March 1, in Kaufmann Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall.

The lecture, to be followed by a reception in the anteroom to the hall, is free and open to the public and is being sponsored by Cornell's China-Japan Program.

Provine's presentation will provide an introduction to the music and dance of Korean villages, together with a complete performance of a solo drum dance.

The emphasis in the talk will be on the cultural contexts of Korean village music and an elementary analysis of the musical ingredients of this music.

Faculty Cancels Two February Meetings

The University Faculty meeting scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 17 has been canceled "owing to lack of sufficient items to comprise a meaningful agenda," according to an announcement sent to all faculty by Dean of Faculty Kenneth Greisen.

The monthly meeting of the Faculty Council of Representatives scheduled for yesterday was canceled for the same reason. The FCR's next regularly scheduled meeting is Wednesday, March 10.

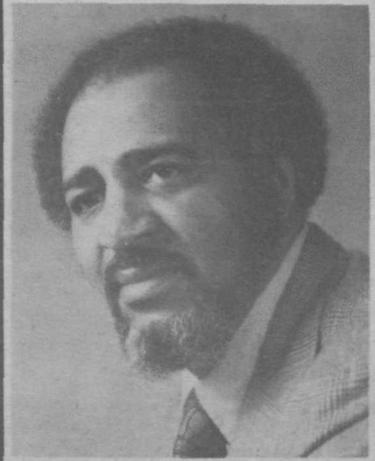

Nationalism/Landscape Subject of Lecture

"Oh, Say, Can You See? The Impact of Nationalism on the American Landscape" will be the title of a lecture by a Pennsylvania State University geography professor at 8 p.m. Monday, Feb. 22, in the Hollis Cornell Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall.

Wilbur Zelinsky, who will make the presentation, is considered to be the most creative and distinguished American scholar in the field of cultural geography, according to Michael Kammen, the Newton C. Farr Professor of American History and Culture.

In 1972-73, Zelinsky was national president of the Association of American Geographers. In 1966 he received that organization's award for meritorious contributions to geography.

SAGE CHAPEL

WILLIAM JONES

Caesar

Walker

Contemporary Black Service Scheduled

Sage Chapel will be the site of a contemporary black church service at 11 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 14. William Augustus Jones, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church in Brooklyn, will speak on "The Ultimate Allegiance."

The service will be the concluding event for the Sixth Annual Festival of Black Gospel, which is being held on the Cornell campus Feb. 12-14. The festival, sponsored by Cornell United Religious Work, is being held in conjunction with National Brotherhood Week and National Black History Month.

Jones is the author of "The Gospel and the Ghetto, Freedom of Conscience: The Black Experience in America" and "God In The Ghetto." He holds a Doctor of Ministry in Theology degree from Colgate Rochester/Bexley Hall/Crozer Theological Seminary.

From 1978 to 1980, Jones was president of the Progressive National Baptist Convention and is the current president of the Black Pastors' Conference.

Other events for the festival include a 7:30 p.m. concert on Friday, Feb. 12, in Cornell's Bailey Hall. The concert will feature civil rights leader Wyatt T. Walker, pastor, Canaan Baptist Church in Harlem, and star Grammy Award-winning songstress Shirley Caesar, "Queen of Gospel Music."

At 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, in Anabel Taylor Hall, there will be a voice workshop on Gospel music. At 8 p.m. that day the participating choirs will perform at a free public concert in Bailey Hall.

Tickets for the Friday night concert are on sale for $3 each at Willard Straight Hall, Noyes Center and the Bear Necessities in the North Campus Union on the Cornell campus; Calvary Baptist Church, St. James A.M.E. Zion Church and Logos Book Store in Ithaca and at Ithaca College. Tickets, at $4 each, will also be available at the door the night of the concert.

The Week in Sports

Busiest Home Weekend of the Winter

The busiest home athletic weekend of the winter season will take place this Friday and Saturday, as 15 home events are scheduled for Cornell men's and women's teams.

Kicking off the action will be the wrestling team, which will entertain Harvard at 5 p.m. Friday in Teagle Hall. Just one hour later, the men's basketball team takes on Brown at Barton Hall, and the Big Red and Bruin women's basketball teams are scheduled to meet in Barton at 8 p.m. Other Friday activity has the women's polo team entertaining the University of Connecticut at 7:30 p.m. at Oxley Polo Arena; the men's junior varsity basketball team playing Ithaca College at 8 p.m. at Helen Newman Gymnasium; and the men's hockey team entertaining Harvard at 8 p.m. at Lynah Rink.

A full slate of action is scheduled for Saturday, beginning with the men's and women's fencing meet with Harvard at 12 p.m. at Teagle Hall. At 2 p.m. the wrestling team will tangle with Yale at Teagle Hall. In the evening, the women cagers play Yale at 7:30 at Helen Newman, while the men's polo team takes on Connecticut at 8:15 at the Oxley Arena. The men cagers are set to play Yale at Barton Hall at 8 p.m., preceded by a high school game between Lansing and McGraw at 6 p.m.

The action continues right into Sunday, as that afternoon the men's and women's track teams entertain

Yale at 1 p.m. at Barton Hall, and the men's hockey team skates against Dartmouth at 2 p.m. at Lynah Rink.

This is the beginning of an extremely crucial four-game home-stand for the men's hockey team. The Big Red, which also plays host to powerful Clarkson on Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. at Lynah Rink, defeated Vermont, 4-2, and R.P.I., 7-4, on the road over the weekend to remain in contention for an ECAC playoff spot. Senior forward Roy Kerling led the Red over the weekend with two goals against both Vermont and R.P.I. Cornell defeated both Harvard and Dartmouth in Ithaca last year; the Big Red leads the series with Harvard, 34-23-1, and has won the last three meetings between the two schools, while the Red holds a 34-22 lead in the series with Dartmouth and split with the Big Green last year. Clarkson leads the series with Cornell, 22-14-2, and defeated the Big Red earlier this season, 4-1, to win the first ever I Love New York Tournament.

This is also an important weekend for the men's basketball team, which begins a four-game home stand of its own. The Big Red has lost its last four contests, including 55-50 and 59-46 decisions to Princeton and Pennsylvania, respectively, over the weekend, and is currently tied for fourth in the league standings with a 3-3 record. Brown and Yale will come into Barton Hall this weekend as the top two teams in the Ivy standings. Brown leads the series with Cornell, 33-24, and the two teams split the two games last year with the Big Red winning in Ithaca, 69-52. The series is tied between Yale and Cornell, 74-74, but the Elis swept the Red last season, including a 68-65 victory in overtime at Barton Hall last season.

Wrestling team is now 9-4 overall after Friday night's victories over Colgate (38-3), Cortland (38-6), and James Madison (21-17). More important, the Big Red is currently atop the Ivy League standings with a 2-0 record, having defeated both Princeton and Pennsylvania this year. Cornell won matches with both Harvard and Yale last season, and leads both series, 21-7 and 19-5, respectively. The Red is going for its first Ivy championship since 1973-74.

The women's basketball team, 5-12, is coming off a 57-43 victory at Barnard Saturday night. The women cagers have never defeated either Brown or Yale, losing to the Bruins once and the Elis twice last season. The men's and women's track teams both come off a dual meet at Syracuse in which the men nipped the Orangemen, 68-67, while the women lost, 50-31. The men's team defeated Yale in a dual meet at New Haven last year, 79-57, while the women have never competed against the Elis in dual competition.
