Rally Here Friday Seeks Financial Aid Support

Rhodes, Whalen, McHugh Among Speakers Scheduled

In response to President Reagan's proposed budget cuts to higher education and specifically in the financial aid area, students at Cornell and Ithaca College have scheduled a "major" rally for upstate New York to take place on the Cornell campus at noon Friday.

The forum, which is co-sponsored by Cornell Students for Financial Aid, the Cornell Student Assembly and the Ithaca College chapter of the Independent Student Coalition, is expected to draw several thousand students from across the state, according to John E. Mennell '82, coordinator of Cornell Students for Financial Aid.

Cornell President Frank Rhodes is expected to open the event, which will take place "in and around" Bailey Hall, Mennell said. In a recent statement Rhodes said the proposed cuts to student aid "will effectively destroy the precepts of open access and free choice to institutions of higher education."

Ithaca College President James T. Whalen will also address the audience. Whalen, chairman of the Commission on Independent Colleges and Universities of the State of New York, recently stated that the Reagan budget proposal would reverse a 25-year partnership, "originated by the federal government to be of genuine service to society and the nation." Whalen was also recently elected to the board of directors of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

U.S. Rep. Matthew F. McHugh, of Ithaca; Arnold Mitchem, executive director of the National Council of Equal Opportunity Associations; Donald Moore, vice president of the New York State Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators; Frank Slazer, vice president of the National Coalition of Independent College and University students and Darwin Williams, director of Cornell's Committee on Special Educational Projects, are among those scheduled to speak at the rally.

According to rally organizers, speakers will address the justification for a federal role in higher education and call for bi-partisan support of student aid programs. Student leaders from both campuses are expected to outline a specific strategy to oppose student aid cuts.

"It will be an attempt to get a message to Congress as quickly as possible that an investment in the potential of our nation's youth is necessary to ensure the future growth and security of our country," Mennell said.

The rally is "directed at informing both college and high school students as well as their parents of the impact of the proposed budget cuts," said Steve Fuller, director of the Ithaca College ISC. "This is an effort to mobilize the higher education community into a unified coalition to express a national concern for the survival of higher education," he added.

Al Cowger, co-speaker of the Cornell Student Assembly, described the event as a "three-pronged response to the student aid threat." Those in attendance, according to Cowger, will be urged to travel to Washington, D.C. on Monday, March 1, for National Student Lobby Day, which is being organized by the National Coalition of Independent

College and University Students. "In addition to visiting Washington, we are urging everyone to write their representatives in Congress as soon as possible," Mennell said. "Those concerned about the future of higher education must speak out now."

The Agriculture Quadrangle in this view is as seen from the top of Bradfield Hall, with Bailey Hall at the far left and Clark Hall behind it.

The Case For More Aid

The Students for Financial Aid, a group organized here to work against the Reagan Administration's proposals to reduce federal funding for financial aid, is seeking support of upstate college and university students for a rally here Friday, Feb. 26.

John Mennell, chairman of the group, said it plans to make the rally a first event in a weekend of activity that will end with busloads of students from here going to Washington for National Student Lobby Day Monday, March 1.

In a statement issued from the group late last week, Mennell said: "As you probably know, the Reagan Administration has proposed devastating cuts to the student aid that almost 70 percent of Cornell's students depend on. Cornell students will lose literally millions of dollars in the very near future and many will not be able to attend the university or complete their education here. The following is an outline of the impact the Reagan proposal would have on our campus.

"The first column is the money that was allocated to Cornell students this year (81-82). The last column is the money that would be allocated to Cornell students in 1983-84, and depicts the impact of President Reagan's proposals just entering Congress. As you can see, the Pell Grant (formerly (BEOG) program would be cut in half. Cornell students would lose $1.3 million. The Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (SEOG) would be eliminated. Cornell would lose 1.4 million dollars of the money it allocates to our most needy students. National Direct Student Loans (NDSL) are also given to our neediest students, and are slated for elimination.

"One of the most serious cuts is a $1 million loss from the College Work Study Program. This money creates jobs on campus. Such a loss translates into 1000 jobs at $1000/year or 2000 jobs at $500/year that Cornell would no longer be able to provide for students who work to help meet college costs. The Reagan proposal also calls for the immediate elimination of graduate students from the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. This not only

HOUSING

Some Help Is Available with the Off-Campus Variety

Apartment hunting can be a frustrating endeavor, one for which many people have a low threshold of pain. To help relieve some of the pain for students, Cornell offers the services of its Off-Campus Housing Office, located in 103 Barnes Hall.

The office provides a number of services including free listing of rental vacancies, assistance and referral in landlord/tenant disputes, an off-campus peer counseling program and the services of a legal adviser, who is available, by appointment only, one afternoon a week.

According to Neff Casaburri, coordinator for off-campus students, only those premises that are certified by the City of Ithaca building inspectors are listed in the Off-Campus Housing Office. Also, listings are not posted unless a non-discrimination statement has been signed by the landlord.

A "Guide to Off-Campus Housing" is also available for apartment-hunters, free of charge, from the office. The guide lists important information about housing options, characteristics of area neighborhoods, what to look for in leases, landlord and tenant responsibilities, deposits, utilities and a glossary of lease terms.

The Off-Campus Housing staff is also available to talk to students who are, as Casaburri describes them, "fence sitters" or those who aren't sure whether to live on or off campus.

"We spend most of our time with this particular group," Casaburri said. "We do a number of programs in the dorms about housing options in order to give the students a wider perspective on the housing picture—both on and off campus."

For those students who have decided that they definitely don't want to live off-campus, Casaburri encourages them not to panic and to enter the lottery process for on-campus housing.

"Above all, we don't want those students to feel pressured into signing a contract for off-campus housing at this point. They should first go through the lottery and, then if they can't get on-campus housing, they should start looking," he said.

The Off-Campus Housing Office also works with a number of Cornell and Ithaca groups in conducting educational programs for students including personal safety and energy. A recent Off-Campus Housing Fair drew some 750 to 1,000 students and included representatives from NYSEG, PIRG, New York Telephone, Tompkins County Cooperative Extension, Cornell's Public Safety as well as individual landlords and apartment managers.

And the Lottery Selects the On-Campus Winners

It doesn't have the monetary value of the New York Daily News' $50,000 Super Zingo contest, but for some Cornell undergraduate students "winning" the on-campus housing lottery could be a lot more important. The "prize" is the opportunity to live on campus next year.

Cornell's on-campus housing lottery for undergraduates will begin in the individual residence halls Monday, March 1, with sign-up and number drawings for those who are interested in staying in their same rooms next year. However, those who sign up are not guaranteed their present rooms.

If the number of persons applying to continue occupancy exceeds the space allotted, a building lottery will be held to determine which students may retain their spaces. If a continued occupancy lottery is required it will be scheduled for Wednesday, March 3. Students should check bulletin boards in their residence halls for information.

The all campus lottery number drawing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, March 10 and 11, in the third floor main lounge of Noyes Center.

For those students whose rank numbers are one through 300, room selection is scheduled for Monday, March 22, in the Noyes Center lounge on the following schedule: 4-5 p.m. ranks 1-50; 5-6 p.m. ranks 51-100; 6-7 p.m. ranks 101-200 and after 7 p.m. ranks 201-300.

For those whose rank numbers are 301 and above, room selection will be made on Wednesday, March 24, on the following schedule: 4-5 p.m. ranks 301-400; 5-6 p.m. ranks 401-550; 6-7 p.m. ranks 551-750 and after 7 p.m. ranks 751 and over.

Students who draw high numbers should not be discouraged from showing up for room selection, said Carolyn McPherson, housing assignment/summer conference coordinator in the Department of Residence Life.

"Last year, for the first time since 1973, all students who drew numbers and who came for room selection had their choice of a room—even the person who drew the highest number, 2,700," McPherson said. She also said that there were eight rooms left over at the end of the lottery.

Students who participate in the housing lottery should be aware of a policy that was instituted last year in which students who draw a number and then select roommates will not be allowed to be released from the housing contract to live off campus.

"In the past, a lot of students who had no intention of living in the residence halls drew numbers, selected roommates and then asked to be released from their housing contracts," McPherson said. "This took rooms away from many students who really wanted to live on campus."

For further information on the lottery process students should contact their residence hall director or call the Housing Assignment Office, 256-5368.

For single graduate students there will be a separate lottery, which will begin on Monday, March 1. Graduate students should go to the Housing Assignment Office, 1142 N. Balch, for complete lottery information.

For More Aid, Send a Message

has serious implications for graduate students, but for Cornell seniors as well.

"We must mobilize our whole student body, undergraduate, as well as graduate, whether dependent upon financial aid or not, to send a message to Congress as quickly as possible to prevent these cuts in student aid. Write your representative in Washington (Congressmen and Senators) as soon as possible. If you do not know who they are, just call this toll-free number to find out: 800-368-5705. Tell how Cornell is being affected and how you and your family are affected.

"As a major and direct response to the devastating Reagan proposal, Cornell and Ithaca College are sponsoring a rally on Friday, Feb. 26, at noon around Bailey Hall. We have invited students from all over upstate New York to attend the rally and join us in sending a message to Congress and the nation that these cuts are not in the best interest of our country. Everyone at Cornell must turn out for this major event if it is to be a success.

"Finally, we will be going to Washington D.C. to bring our concerns directly to individual Congressmen on Monday, March 1, National Student Lobby Day. Buses will leave from Cornell very early Monday morning and arrive back in Ithaca late Monday night. The tickets cost $23 round trip and can be purchased in the Straight Lobby, the COSEP Office, 100 Barnes Hall, or the Student Assembly Office, 165 Day Hall. Please purchase them as soon as possible so that we can reserve enough buses.

"With your enthusiasm, concern, support, and participation, the Cornell community will send their message loud and clear, 'Restore and Preserve Financial Aid for Students!' Spread the word."

Crisis Intervention Workshop Scheduled March 2,9

More than 5,000 people between the ages of 15 and 24 commit suicide in the United States every year. More than 250,000 people in that age group attempt suicide every year. Four of the eight people who committed suicide in Tompkins County in 1981 were between 19 and 25. In an effort to reduce those sad numbers, the Department of Psychological Services at Gannett Health Center is offering a two-day crisis intervention workshop for Cornell faculty, staff and students. The workshop is scheduled for 1:30 to 3 p.m. Tuesday, March 2, and Tuesday, March 9, and it's free. For information on the workshop and to register call 256-5208. The University's Personnel Services encourages release time for employees who are interested in the program. "The faculty, staff and students are the ones who usually first come in contact with the students who are troubled, depressed or in some sort of crisis situation," said Allen J. Ottens, psychologist. "That's why we feel it's important that they have the skills and information regarding crisis intervention." Topics that will be covered in the workshop include psychological states experienced by those in crisis, assessment of suicidal risk and high risk factors, emergency intervention techniques and professional referral. Suicide, according to Ottens, seldomly occurs "out of the blue." "People give verbal or behavioral clues when they are in a crisis situation. Being able to assess the seriousness of the situation and how to identify those clues are extremely important," Ottens said. Verbal clues can be as direct as expressing or admitting suicidal thoughts, plans and intent or as vague as, "You won't have to worry about me anymore." Behavioral clues include increased use of alcohol, drugs and/or cigarettes, constant agitation, a change in personal appearance and wrapping up personal affairs; for example, making out a will. "One of the things I've run into here, is that sometimes students will make out a will and leave it in a conspicuous place," Ottens said. Role playing, which participants do in the second session, plays an important part in learning how to confront someone who might be in a crisis situation. "Confronting someone is the hardest thing for people to do," Ottens said. "Very often we think we might upset the person when actually, in most cases, they're relieved that someone's picked up on their problem and that someone really cares."

Ithaca Enrollment 16,412, Down 438 from Fall

The Ithaca campus enrollment here for the spring term 1982 is down 438 from the fall term 1981, according to preliminary figures released by Vice Provost Larry I. Palmer. After the third week of the semester, Ithaca campus enrollment was 16,412. The comparable fall term figure was 16,850. There is an annual decline in enrollment from the fall term to the spring term, Palmer said, because of students taking leaves of absence, completing degree requirements, withdrawing or transferring. Total enrollment for the spring term 1982 is 16,765, down 469 from the fall term 1981 total of 17,234. The Ithaca campus enrollment does not include 149 in absentia students, 83 part-time students and 121 off-campus students who are counted in the total enrollment figure. This method of determining Cornell's Ithaca-student population was adopted in 1980 to give an accurate picture of the "real" Ithaca enrollment on the university's on-campus facilities and programs, according to Palmer. A year ago, Ithaca campus enrollment was 16,475 and a total enrollment was 16,851.

Pew Gift of $2.5 Million Goes to CUMC Projects

The J.N. Pew Jr. Charitable Trust has made a grant of $2.5 million toward construction of basic research facilities at the Cornell University Medical College in New York City. The new research facilities at the medical college are expected to achieve two primary objectives: provide space for the basic science departments and accommodate new research in such areas as pharmacology and toxicology, pathology, biochemistry, physiology and biophysics. Medical college officials believe that bringing together basic science research activities will, among other things, create a closer working relationship among research groups. The new facilities are also expected to advance extension of the college's joint M.D. - Ph.D. program with The Rockefeller University and Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. In a letter to President Robert I. Smith of The Glenmede Trust Co.

which serves as trustee for the Pew Trust, Cornell President Frank Rhodes said: "Words cannot express how much I appreciate the magnificent commitment of the J.N. Pew Jr. Charitable Trust...to Cornell. By providing such splendid support for the basic sciences department in the medical college...you have addressed (one) of the university's most pressing needs." The grant to the medical college is the latest Cornell has received from the several charitable trusts established by the Pew family that support non-profit organizations in broad areas of education, health care, arts and humanities and human services. Joseph N. Pew Jr., a 1908 Cornell graduate, was an officer and board member of The Sun Oil Co. for many years and chairman of the board from 1947 until his death in 1963. In September 1979 the engineering quadrangle on the Cornell campus was named the Joseph N. Pew Jr. Engineering Quadrangle.

Still in the hunt for a postseason playoff berth is the Cornell men's hockey team. Here John Olds (19) slides the puck past a sprawling Maine goalie Duay Loney in Saturday's 8-2 victory. Gary Cullen (7), who assisted on the play, is at right.

Wagoner Company Here

Dan Wagoner and Dancers, a professional modern dance company, will be in residence here March 3-5. The visit will be sponsored by the Cornell Dance Series.

The company will give a lecture/demonstration at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, March 4, in Barnes Hall. The lecture/demonstration is open to the public. There will be a $1.50 general admission charged at the door.

On Friday, March 5, the company will perform at 8:15 p.m. in Alice Statler Auditorium. Tickets for the Friday night performance, at $4, $2.50 for Cornell students and senior citizens, are on sale at the Willard Straight Ticket Office, the Helen Newman Dance Office and at Nippenose in the Dewitt Mall.

Wagoner, who began formal work on his own choreography in 1968, has performed with the companies of Martha Graham, Merce Cunningham and Paul Taylor. He has been characterized by a New York Times critic as "one of the best dancers on the modern dance scene."

A London Times critic has written, "As a dancer he is, as always, a joy to watch. But as a creator he is even more original and exciting."

The company of Dan Wagoner and Dancers has performed throughout the United States and abroad. The company receives funding assistance from the New York State Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts as well as from national and private companies and individuals.

In 1981, the Wagoner Dance Foundation received an unrestricted grant from the Robert Sterling Clark Foundation and an NEA grant for the choreography of a new piece by Wagoner in 1982.

Dancers Dennis Flemming and Lisa Taylor are part of the Wagoner company in residence here March 3-5.

Every Sun., 7:30 p.m. Anabel Taylor 314. The Anthroposophy Study Group will take up the topic "The Spiritual Science of Rudolf Steiner." Everyone welcome. For more information call 277-1459 or see the secretary in Anabel Taylor Hall.

Music

Haydn Concerts Scheduled

The Music Department will commemorate the 250th anniversary of the birth of composer Joseph Haydn with two free public concerts of his music in Barnes Hall Sunday, Feb. 28, by the Classical Quartet and Tuesday, Mar. 2 by the Amade Trio.

At 4 p.m. Sunday, the Classical Quartet will perform three Haydn string quartets: C Major, Opus 20, No. 2 (1772); C Major, Opus 54, No. 1 (1788); F Major, Opus 77, No. 2 (1799).

At 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, Cornell's own resident Amade Trio will perform five of Haydn's piano trios, Hoboken XV: No. 9 in A Major, No. 29 in E flat Major, No. 12 in E minor, No. 31 in E flat minor and No. 27 in C, all written between 1785 and 1796.

The New York-based ensemble consists of Nancy Wilson and Linda Quan, violins; David Miller, viola; and Fortunato Arico, cello. The quartet has performed to critical acclaim at the Smithsonian Institution, at the Aston Magna Festival and in Canada. In addition to concerts throughout the Northeastern United States this season, the quartet is performing as part of the Aston Magna series at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and has been asked to appear again at the Smithsonian. A special project for early 1982 includes participation in a Haydn chamber music series sponsored by the Abraham Goodman House (Markin Concert Hall) in New York.

Wilson, also concertmaster of the Consort Royal Orchestra, has appeared as soloist with the Baroque Music Masters and Ensemble for Early Music. She performs regularly with Aston Magna and the Smithsonian Chamber Players. Quan has been soloist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and is a member of the Aulos Ensemble and Aston Magna as well as contemporary music groups.

Miller is also a member of the Concert Royal and active with Aston Magna and the Smithsonian Chamber Players. He has appeared as guest soloist with the Amade Trio, Audubon Quartet and New York Chamber Soloists. Arico is a member of the Chamber Soloists, Aston Magna and New York Consort of Vols. He has performed and recorded with Music from Marlboro.

The instruments the quartet uses were all made before 1800. The violins are by Thomas Perry, Dublin, 1770, and Jacob Stainer, Absam, 1659. The viola was made by Matthias Albanus, Bulsani, Tyrol, 1687. The violoncello is the work of an anonymous German, circa 1750. All of the bows are original period bows by John Dodd of England.

The Sunday concert is made possible

The Classical Quartet will perform at 4 p.m. Sunday in Barnes Hall as part of the celebration in honor of the 250th anniversary of the birth of Joseph Haydn. Quartet members are (clockwise from bottom): Linda Quan, violin; Fortunato Arico, cello; David Miller, viola, and Nancy Wilson, violin. The concert is free and open to the public.

in part by a grant from Cornell's Council of the Creative and Performing Arts.

The members of the Amade Trio, well known in the Ithaca area, are Malcolm Bilson, fortepiano; Sonya Monosoff, violin; and John Hsu, cello; all are on the music faculty at the university. The three outstanding musicians also perform as soloists throughout America and in Europe. Each has devoted many years to the study of 17th- and 18th-century music and instruments. Using performance practices of the time of Haydn, Mozart and the young Beethoven, their music-making has been acclaimed for its freshness and lightness.

Bilson's fortepiano is based on one owned by Mozart which was made in Vienna by Anton Walter about 1780. The copy was built by Phillip Belt in 1977. Monosoff's violin, made by Donenico Busan, Venice, in 1754, has been restored to its original 18th-century proportions by Fred Lindeman of Amsterdam, The Netherlands. Hsu's cello, attributed to Albani, Tyrol, circa 1720, was a recent gift to the music department by Miriam Saunders. It was restored to 18th-century proportions by William Monical of Staten Island, New York.

Symphonic Band to Play

The Cornell University Symphonic Band will present a Bailey Hall concert under the direction of Professor Marice Stith at 4 p.m. Sunday, Mar. 7. The public is invited to attend without charge.

Stith will conduct the band in a variety of original pieces and transcriptions, including Folk Dances by Dmitri Shostakovich, Song of Threnos by Alfred Reed, Three Dance Episodes by Aram Khachaturian and In Storm and Sunshine March by J. C. Reed.

Thomas Duffy, associate director and graduate assistant in the Cornell music department, will lead the ensemble in performances of American Overture for Band by Joseph Jenkins, Civil War Fantasy by Jerry Bilik, Allerseelen by Richard Strauss and Variations on a Korean Folk Song by John Barnes Chance.

The instrumentalists, 100 strong, are undergraduate and graduate students representing most of the university's colleges and divisions.

Sponsored Programs

The Office of Sponsored Programs, 123 Day Hall, 6-5014, wishes to emphasize that the information in this column is intended for post-doctoral research unless otherwise indicated.

JOHN E. FOGARTY INTERNATIONAL CENTER FELLOWSHIP APPLICATIONS

Senior postdoctoral research fellowship applications from United States health scientists who wish to study abroad must be received no later than June 1, 1982. The types of activity that are supported include collaboration in basic or clinical research and the familiarization with, or utilization of, special techniques or equipment not otherwise available to the applicant. Fellowships are awarded for periods from three to twelve months duration.

Application materials must be requested by the dean or equivalent official. These applications are available until May 15, 1982. For further information contact the Office of Sponsored Programs, 123 Day Hall.

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE ARTS AND HUMANITIES
Final NFAH $ for FY'82: Arts - $143 million; Humanities - $130.6 million - The figures above represent the ones in HR 4035, the appropriations bill which included the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities and transferred the Institute of Museum Services to it. IMS receives $10,877,000 for grants and $643,000 for administration for FY'82. The details of how it will operate under the National Foundation have not yet been worked out but it seems it will be separate just as the Endowments are separate. (The bill did not make any legislative changes to enable the Federal Council on the Arts to begin setting up its advisory body of fifteen outside people as recommended by the Task Force, but legislation is being drafted to get this through Congress.)

The allocations as they came from the Endowment for the Arts are as follows:
Advancement Programs: $960,000
Artist-In-Education: $4,872,000
Dance: $8,152,000
Design Arts: $4,595,000
Fellowships: $97,000
Folk Arts: $2,716,000
Inter-Arts: $4,307,000
Expansion Arts: $7,215,000
International: $121,000
Literature: $4,317,000
Media Arts: $10,207,000
Museums: $11,331,000
Music: $14,204,000
Opera: $5,601,000
Regional Reps/Offices: $930,000
Research: $485,000
Special Constituencies: $242,000
State Programs: $21,286,000
Theater: $9,531,000
Visual Arts: $6,561,000
Challenge: $14,400,000
Not less than 20% of Program Funds are required to go to State Arts Agencies and Regional Arts Groups.

NATIONAL OCEANIC AND ATMOSPHERIC ADMINISTRATION - NOAA

Pre-proposals . . . no more than five typewritten pages are being solicited by NOAA's Office of Marine Pollution Assessment (OMPA). Current priorities call for R & D on several areas of human activity that change the character of the marine ecosystem including: marine waste disposal, accidental discharges, marine energy and transportation, deep-sea mining, coastal land non-point sources and hazardous waste disposal. Pre-proposals may be submitted at any time to OMPA, and will be reviewed regularly during the year. For the brief pre-proposal package write to Dr. Robert L. Burns, Office of Marine Pollution Assessment, NOAA, Building 264, 7600 Sand Point Way, N.E., Seattle, WA 98115; telephone (206) 442-1964.

Graduate Bulletin

Grades for graduate students for fall 1981 are available at Sage Graduate School office.

The deadline for initial course registration/adding courses was Friday, Feb. 12. All students who are late in turning in these forms will be charged a $10 late processing fee.

The final date for course change or drop without special processing fee of $10 is Friday, March 19.

Graduate students are responsible for the accuracy of charges and payments on their monthly bursar bill. Payments that have not been processed or transactions appearing incorrect should be investigated immediately. Failure to resolve outstanding charges promptly may result in a finance charge on the unpaid balance. If your billing address is not correct it can be updated at the Bursar's Office. Questions about the monthly statement should be directed to the Bursar's Office, 260 Day Hall, or the Fellowship Office, 116 Sage Graduate Center.

Applications for 1982 Graduate School Summer Fellowships and 1982 Graduate School Summer Tuition Awards should be available in March. Details will be announced in this column soon.

Check the Fellowship Notebook at your graduate faculty representative's office for information on the awards whose deadlines follow.

Mar. 15: U.S. Navy/Office of Naval Research Graduate Fellowships — applicants must be citizens or nationals of the U.S. At the time of application they must not have completed more than 20 semester/30 quarter hours (or the equivalent) of study in any one of the selected science/engineering fields following completion of their first baccalaureate in science or engineering. Fellows must enroll in a full time program leading to a doctoral degree in aerospace engineering, applied physics, computer science, electrical engineering, materials science or mechanical engineering. Up to 45 three-year fellowships will be awarded at an annual stipend of $12,000 plus a cost of education allowance of $8,000.

Mar. 31: American Vacuum Society Scholarships for Graduate Study — scholarships are granted in amounts of up to $4,000 in vacuum science and technology, vacuum metallurgy, surface physics, thin film research and electronic materials and processing. Awards are tenable at accredited graduate schools in North America.

Mar. 31: Civitan International Foundation/Shropshire Memorial Scholarship — Awards range from $500-$2,000 for students engaged in a graduate program emphasizing the teaching of history, political science, civics, or special education; application must be made through a local Civitan club.

Apr. 1: National Potato Council Auxiliary Scholarship — Award of $500 is made to a graduate student for advanced studies which will enhance the potato industry in fields such as agricultural engineering, agronomy, crop and soil sciences, entomology, food sciences, horticulture and plant pathology. Cornell is among 12 schools nationally that participate in this program.

Apr. 1: New York State Assembly Intern Program — Summer interns receive a $2000 stipend for the 10-week program (June 14, 1982-August 10, 1982); applicants must be New York State residents, must be matriculated in a degree program (college senior or graduate student) during 1982-83, and must not have participated previously in either the Assembly Scholar, Session Intern or Summer Intern Programs.

Apr. 1: Peterhouse, Cambridge/Research Studentships — Applicants must be men under 25 years of age as of December 1, 1982, who will have graduated by August, 1982, and who intend to be candidates for the Ph.D. in the University of Cambridge. The award provides L2100/year, together with certain approved fees; not more than 3 awards will be made.

CIVITAS

CORNELL STUDENT WITH BROKEN LEG IN MID-THIGH CAST URGENTLY NEEDS HELP WITH SIMPLE HOME TASKS: Temporarily disabled young woman in very real need of help with shopping, laundry, meal preparation and other errands, until her leg heals. Lives within easy reach of campus at Collegetown location, and you can offer your assistance any time, the sooner the better.

VOLUNTEERS INTERESTED IN MUSIC AND/OR ACTING SOUGHT BY DOWNTOWN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL: To enrich the Friday afternoon program for some 3rd-4th grade classes, between 12:15-2:30 p.m., for an hour or two.

nionship of another man to share outdoor physical activities once or twice a week. Weekdays after 2 p.m. or weekends are fine. Longterm commitment sought, more than one semester, continuing over the summer and/or next fall.

4H AFTERSCHOOL PROGRAM IN NEWFIELD WEDNESDAY AFTERNOONS: Will pick you up on the campus and bring you back if you will give a couple of hours to helping with a program for rural children. Two new volunteer leaders are sought to work with four already on the job. Program involves 35 children and runs from 2-4:30 p.m.

VOLUNTEER WITH ARTISTIC TALENT SOUGHT: To work on lettering, design layout and poster production for use in civil rights informational meetings with local groups. The tasks are waiting, and your help is needed now, but you can set your own schedule. This is a short-term project.

RIDING PROGRAM FOR HANDICAPPED CHILDREN: Is hoping to recruit volunteers to help on Saturday afternoons, 2-3:30 p.m., starting Feb. 13th, in the Oxley polo arena. We regret the confusion surrounding this program last semester and urge any volunteers not placed last semester who are still interested in working in the program to recontact us right away. Come to the CIVITAS office, 119B Anabel Taylor Hall, or call 256-7513.

VOLUNTEER INTERVIEWERS SOUGHT FOR STUDY OF RESIDENT PERCEPTION OF DOWNTOWN NEIGHBORHOODS: No special qualifications needed. Three to four hours of training provided. Volunteers will be asked to spend 4-5 hours/week from now till the end of Feb. conducting half-hour interviews, day or evening, on flexible schedule. This is a good opportunity, within a limited time frame, to get experience on a research project in city planning.

AFTERSCHOOL PROGRAM AT CENTRALLY LOCATED DOWNTOWN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL IS LOOKING FOR VOLUNTEER HELPERS: To play Dungeons and Dragons with 8, 9, 10 year olds on an advanced level of proficiency on Wednesday, Thursday or Friday afternoons, 3-5:30 p.m. Program also has use of a music room and would welcome any volunteers with an interest in music or dance any afternoon, Monday-Friday, between 3-5:30 p.m.

TO OFFER YOUR HELP: COME TO CIVITAS, 119B Anabel Taylor Hall, or call 256-7513, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 9-3; Tuesday, Thursday, 10-2.

Barton Blotter

There were a total of 19 larcencies on campus during the period Feb. 15 through Feb. 21, including a compound microscope worth $6,642.

The microscope was missing Feb. 16 from E-145 Biological Science Building at Langmuir Laboratory near the Tompkins County Airport.

The other 18 thefts totaled $3,099 in cash and valuables, according to the morning reports of the Department of Public Safety. Three amounted to $300 or more each.

A $300 stereo cassette recorder was stolen from the dining office of North Campus Union. Two Cornell class rings valued at $155 each were taken from the Teagle Hall Locker Room. A $398 television set was reported taken from the lounge of University Hall 5.

Four radial tires on a car parked in Phi Gamma Delta parking lot were reported damaged sometime between 1 a.m. and 9 a.m. Feb. 17. Two fire extinguishers worth a total of $76.33 were reported stolen from Noyes Center. A coffee table worth $130 was taken from University Hall 2.

Other thefts included knapsacks, clothing and calculators and a parking permit worth $180.

Ten windows at various locations around campus were broken, mostly by snowballs. One student was referred to the judicial administrator for throwing snowballs.

Students will learn the art and science of bird watching in a non-credit field ornithology course scheduled to begin in April.

Non-Credit Field Ornithology Course Starts April 7

The Laboratory of Ornithology will offer a six-week, non-credit course in field ornithology, beginning April 7.

Teaching the course, which is designed for those with a beginning interest in birds, will be Stephen W. Kress, biologist for the National Audubon Society and laboratory associate at the Laboratory of Ornithology. The course will emphasize the identification and behavior of spring birds which migrate through Ithaca and the vicinity.

The course, which continues through May 15, includes Saturday field trips to visit nearby bird watching habitats and an optional weekend trip to the salt marsh habitat of Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge in southern New Jersey. During Wednesday evening meetings at the Laboratory of Or-mithology, participants will view slides and listen to tape recordings of local birds.

Enrollment fee for the course, including field trips, is $60. The fee for participating in lectures or field trips only is $30. Registration is at the Laboratory of Ornithology, 159 Sapsucker Woods Road. For further information call 256-5056.

State Adds $2.4 Million Here

Slightly more than $2.4 million will come to Cornell this fiscal year from the New York state deficiency budget that became law on Feb. 17.

The state's deficiency budget of $185.6 million is to meet expenditures that were not anticipated in April 1981 when the current fiscal year began.

Appropriations totaling $2,405,900 are designated for the following Cornell projects or programs:

$720,500, part of federal Bankhead-Jones funds administered through the state to land grant colleges, for instruction in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences and the College of Engineering;

$529,000 for several programs in agriculture and life sciences;

$501,400 as reimbursement to the university for a portion of an October 1981 pay increase to non-exempt statutory employees;

$359,000 for renovations in Martha Van Rensselaer Hall;

$246,000 for testing race horses for illegal drugs;

$50,000 for an environmental impact study of a proposed subatomic particle accelerator beneath Tompkins County Airport.

Agencies other than Cornell will be involved with some of the projects. The State Department of Agriculture and Markets, for example, will contract with the university for research on the Northern New York Agricultural Development Program.

The New York State Racing and Wagering Board contracts with Cornell for race horse testing.

People

George M. Bantuvanis, a 1951 graduate of the School of Hotel Administration at Cornell University, has been named acting general manager of the Statler Inn, which serves as a practice inn for hotel school students. He succeeds Shelly LaMotte who is now a full-time graduate student in the hotel school. The announcement of Bantuvanis' appointment was made by Norman L. Peckenpaugh, assistant dean for business and administration. Bantuvanis is also responsible for Statler (Faculty) Club operations and is secretary-treasurer of the club.

Everett D. Markwardt has been elected professor emeritus after 35 years in the department of agricultural engineering in the State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. In the early 1960s, Markwardt was instrumental in the implementation of the mechanical harvesting of fruits and vegetables. He developed equipment and techniques to mechanically harvest cherries; today, nearly all New York state's cherries are harvested using elements of his basic design. He was also instrumental in the design and development of the Cornell Apple Harvester for processing apples.

The Office of the University Controller has added two professional staff members and transferred two others. Ruth Harrison has joined the Endowed Budget Office as a budget analyst. Harrison has a B.A. in finance from the University of Oregon and was most recently an accountant with the Vermont state colleges system. Christopher Vann has been named supervisor of the enterprises accounting section of the Endowed Accounting Office. Vann is a graduate of Rochester Institute of Technology with a B.S. in business administration. Catherine Salino, formerly supervisor of enterprise accounting, now supervises the general accounting section. Cynthia Telage has been promoted to the fringe benefit analyst position on the controller's staff. Telage was formerly the supervisor of general accounting.

Charles T. Curry has been named associate director of the Endowed Accounting Office. In his new post, Curry is responsible for the day-to-day operation of the Endowed Accounting Office. He has supervisory responsibility for the accounts payable, payroll, general accounting, enterprise accounting and sponsored programs accounting sections. He reports to Lee T. Cartmill, director of accounting.

Textile specialist Braham Norwick is a visiting professor in the department of design and environmental analysis this spring. In addition to teaching a course on the textile and apparel industries in the State College of Human Ecology, Norwick will present two public seminars, Feb. 9 and 16, as part of the series, "Frontiers in Textiles," offered by the department of design and environmental analysis. Both are set for 4:30 p.m. in 317 Martha Van Rensselaer Hall.

Fred H. Kulhawy, has been elected Professor in the Department of Structural Engineering. Kulhawy has an international reputation in several areas of geotechnical engineering including soil and rock mechanics, foundation engineering, engineering geology, numerical methods and the technology of tunneling. He came to Cornell in 1976 from Syracuse University where he had been on the engineering faculty since 1969.

James J. Bisogni Jr., associate professor in the School of Civil and Environmental Engineering, has been elected acting director of that school. Recently appointed associate director of the school, Bisogni will be acting director for the spring 1982 semester while director Richard White is on sabbatical leave. Bisogni joined the Cornell faculty in 1973.

Kenneth A.R. Kennedy, professor of ecology and systematics, has been named to the Editorial Board of the journal, American Anthropologist. A specialist in human paleontology and paleodemography of prehistoric man in South Asia, biological and forensic anthropology and skeletal biology, Kennedy will begin his duties as editor for physical anthropology with the journal's 1983 issues and will continue through publication of the 1985 volume. He is the author of "Human Variation in Space and Time" and "Climbing Man's Family Tree."

University to Contest Heating Plant Citation

An informal conference will be held Tuesday, March 2, in Syracuse concerning a five-point citation from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration arising from a January accident in the Central Heating Plant which resulted in a death.

Floyd Fields, a maintenance foreman at the plant, died after he went into an ash silo to help a fellow employee who had been overcome.

The OSHA citation lists a ladder inside the silo which is not provided with cages or wells, unfamiliarity of employees with procedures and available respirators, emergency procedures, and two counts having to do with air quality inside the silo. Altogether, OSHA assessed penalties of $1,120 in the incident.

However, both the university and the International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 71-71A, which represents workers in the plant, have defended safety procedures in the plant.

In a joint statement, Cecil L. Murrphy, director of employee relations at the university, and Ronald Bess, business manager for the union local, said:

"In cases where workplace accidents result in the death of an employee, OSHA citations are not unexpected.

"While the accident was a very unfortunate occurrence, the overall accident history at the heating plant before the tragic accident has been very good.

"Everyone realizes that it can be a potentially hazardous place to work if safety measures are not followed; therefore, Cornell and the union have worked diligently together to make the plant as safe a place as reasonably possible in which to work.

"Despite the OSHA citation having been issued, very many positive safety measures exist at the heating plant. A joint safety committee has existed and has been meeting bi-monthly since 1979. Furthermore, a surprise OSHA inspection was completed in January 1981 and only one minor problem was recorded with no fines assessed.

"The tragic accident points out that in spite of safety procedures and equipment, safety must always be everyone's first on-the-job concern."

Henry E. Doney, director of utilities at the university, said:

"The citation deals with several concerns about employees working in the ash silo at the heating plant. The fact is that, despite the circumstances in this tragic accident, the silos were not a workplace, and were not to be entered during ash-handling operations. In fact, safety procedures in place and a clear warning cast into the hatch cover on the silo emphasize this. The words on the hatch are: 'DANGER: DO NOT ENTER BIN UNLESS EMPTY AND VENTILATED.'

"Despite all this, for some unexplained reason, the silo was entered. Since the accident, we have eliminated even this unforeseen element by placing locks on the hatches at the silos, with keys kept under the control of the plant manager.

"The Heating Plant Safe Operating Procedures Manual, which was reviewed and approved by the plant Safety Committee, has a complete section about entry into vessels at the plant. All employees were familiar with these safe operating procedures.

"The plant has had an excellent safety record. For example, OSHA came to the plant for a surprise inspection a year ago. Twelve complaints were investigated and 11 were dismissed. One, having to do with the storage of oxygen and acetylene cylinders, was corrected when the OSHA report was received. No fine was assessed.

"Cornell continues its strong commitment to safety."

Brief Reports

Study Space Provided In Goldwin Smith

A program that will provide additional study space for students has been established in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Beginning this Sunday, an average of eight seminar rooms in Goldwin Smith Hall will be designated as "quiet study rooms" five nights a week, providing space for 80 to 100 students.

The designated rooms will be left unlocked and will be available Sundays through Thursdays from 7 p.m. to midnight for the rest of the semester, with the exception of spring recess March 28 through April 1.

Rooms that have been scheduled for a class or other academic function will have appropriate signs posted on their doors.

The arrangements have been made "to alleviate the severe overcrowding in the university libraries," according to Geoffrey V. Chester, associate dean in arts and sciences.

In addition to the study rooms, the Temple of Zeus coffee shop in the basement of Goldwin Smith will be open on the same schedule, but with a limited menu.

Medievalist Editor Will Give Lecture

Paul Meyvaert, editor emeritus of "Speculum," a journal of medieval studies, will give a lecture, "Reflections on the Iconography of the Ruthwell Cross," at 4:30 p.m. Monday, March 1, in 24 Goldwin Smith Hall.

Meyvaert's lecture will deal with his current research on the two most important stone carvings from the early Middle Ages, the crosses at Ruthwell and Bewcastle in England.

Meyvaert spent many years of his life as a Benedictine monk. While in the religious life, he began a career in scholarship. He has publications on history, archaeology and culture of early Medieval Europe.

The lecture is sponsored by the Committee on University Lectures in cooperation with the Departments of English, History and History of Art and "Quodlibet."

Summer Catalog Available Soon

The 1982 edition of the Summer Session Announcement will be delivered to all Chronicle drop points during the first week in March. Persons who are responsible for Chronicle distribution at each drop point are being asked to see that all members of the Cornell community receive a copy. Additional copies will be available from the Information and Referral Center in Day Hall or in the Summer Session Office in B12 Ives Hall.

The announcement cover, "The Arts Quad as Ziggurat," is a "souvenir" of an event scheduled to take place during the 1982 Summer Session, according to Robert D. MacDougall, dean.

The event, which will be performed by Stephen F. Poleskie, associate professor of art, will, according to MacDougall, transform the arts quad void into a ziggurat or stepped pyramid.

"Poleskie uses a Pitts Special, which is a tiny powerful aerobatic biplane, in an exercise of tracking an object in space," MacDougall said. "The airplane is the object; the smoke trail is merely an aid in the tracking. Thus we have an artistic process with no permanent, tangible result. While the illustration is itself a product of artistic activity and, concedes Poleskie, a work of art, he prefers to refer to it as a souvenir."

East Asian Studies Scholar to Lecture

Rudolf G. Wagner, lecturer at the Institute of East Asian Studies at the Free University of Berlin, will give a lecture, "The Implied Censor in Chinese Literature," at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 3, at the A.D. White House on campus.

Wagner, a fellow of Cornell's Society for the Humanities this semester, is described as "one of the best young scholars in Europe in the field of Chinese studies" by Eric A. Blackall, director of the society.

Wagner's interests include the literature of modern China and its agricultural and sociological structure. He has published widely, taken part in various international conferences and prepared programs on his specialty for German radio.

He has held a Commonwealth Fund Fellowship at Harvard University and the University of California at Berkeley.

'Superfluous Woman' Is Topic of Lecture

"The Superfluous Woman: The Single Woman at the End of the Nineteenth Century in England," is the title of a public lecture to be given by the essayist and authority on Victorian culture, Martha Vicinus at 4:30 p.m. Monday, March 8, in Hollis E. Cornell Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall.

Currently a visiting professor in the Department of English Language and Literature at the University of Michigan, Vicinus is appearing at Cornell under the sponsorship of the Committee on University Lectures in cooperation with the Women's Studies Visiting Scholars Program.

Vicinus received a B.A. in 1961 from Northwestern University, a M.A. in 1962 from Johns Hopkins University, and a Ph.D. in English history in 1968 from the University of Wisconsin.

She is probably best known to those in the Humanities as editor of "Victorian Studies," generally considered one of the leading journals in its field. Her own research has been largely on working-class ballads, popular culture, and the periodical press in nineteenth-century England.

Many social historians feel her work has made it possible to think seriously about gender and historiography.

Recently, she has been writing about single-sex communities in mid-Victorian England.

Three Students Win Speaking Prizes

Three students in the State College of Human Ecology will share $600 as recipients of the Elsie Van Buren Rice Award in Oral Communication.

First place award winner is Heller Sue Landecker, a junior from Remsen, New York, who spoke on "Racism." She received $300.

Second place was won by Timothy Marchell, a senior from Ithaca, New York, who discussed "Suicide Among Adolescents." He received $200.

Karen Mahlke, a senior from Oneonta, New York, won $100 for her speech, "Experiential Education: an Integral Part of Human Ecology."

Established in 1944 as the Rice Public Speaking Stage, the contest encourages students to "stand on their feet and speak" about the college's mission of improving the well-being of individuals, families, and communities. The award was endowed by the late James E. Rice, professor of poultry husbandry, in honor of his wife.

Associate Bursar To Serve on Panel

Associate University Bursar Richard Banks has been selected by the U.S. Department of Education to serve on its National Appeals Panel for Campus-Based Programs in April in Washington, D.C.

SAGE CHAPEL

Therapist Will Talk At Convocation

Carol B. Skinner, a therapist in the Psychological Services Division of University Health Services, will speak at the 11 a.m. Sage Chapel Convocation on Sunday, Feb. 28. Her sermon topic will be "Is Brighter Better?"

Skinner has been a therapist at Cornell and in private practice since 1974, having returned to Ithaca in 1973 as supervisory social worker at the Tompkins County Mental Health Clinic after a seven-year absence in California.

She received her M.S.W. from the University of California at Berkeley in 1969. She has an A.B. degree from Cornell (1949) and studied architecture at Cornell for two subsequent years, after which she spent the major portion of the next eight years in Thailand and Indonesia.

Skinner's particular therapeutic interests are in the areas of family, couple, and sex therapy, sexual orientation, and death and dying.

Music will be provided by the Sage Chapel Choir under the direction of Donald R.M. Pater-son, Sage Chapel choirmaster and university organist. Graduate student Stephen May is assistant conductor and accompanist.

The panel will meet April 26-30 to review tentative funding appeals by financial aid officers of 1982-83 awards to their institutions under the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL), College Work Study Program (CWSP) and Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant (SEOG).

Banks said the panel is also responsible for reviewing the quality of federal loan collection programs at various institutions.

A 1974 Cornell graduate, Banks has been employed in the Office of the Bursar since January 1978.

The Week in Sports

The Heptagonals Return to Barton Hall

Since its inception in 1948, the Heptagonal Indoor Track and Field Championships have provided fans with plenty of exciting action, and the last two meets have been among the most exciting ever. In 1980, Princeton nipped Pennsylvania by one point to win the title and last year, the Quakers returned the favor, edging the Tigers by one point in a meet in which the top four teams were separated by 10 points.

The 1982 version will be held at Barton Hall on Feb. 27. Tickets for the 35th annual Heps are priced at $5 for reserved seats and $3 for general admission, and are available at the Teagle Hall ticket office, Cullen Sporting Goods and Athlete's Foot in Ithaca, and at Allen's in Binghamton. The meet begins at 1 p.m. with trials, with the finals scheduled for 8:10 p.m.

Pennsylvania and Princeton will join Navy, Army, Cornell and Harvard as top contenders. However, Princeton looks to be this year's meet favorite, as the Tigers return a large number of veterans from last season.

Princeton has talented performers in both the long distance running events and the field events. Two of the Tigers' top competitors are Brad Rowe in the 1,000-meter run, and Jack Fonss in the 800. Rowe, a senior, has the fastest time of all performers in the 1,000 so far this season with a 2:25.77, and won the event at last year's Heps with a time of 2:26.68. Fonss, a sophomore who placed third in the 800 in his first Heps meet ever last year with a time of 1:52.86, has lowered his time to 1:51.8 already this season.

Two other Princeton performers are rated as favorites in their respective events. August Wolf, a junior, is among the finest shot putters in the country, winning last year's Heptagonal crown with a toss of 61-4 3/4 (a meet record, breaking the old record by more than a foot). Wolf has already bettered that mark, with a toss of 62-1 3/4 in December, putting him among the nation's best this year. Another Tiger hopeful is triple jumper Mike Gray, a junior who placed third in last year's meet with a jump of 50-5 1/2. Gray has the best jump this season of all competitors with a mark of 50-2 3/4.

Wolfe and Rowe are two of eight defending champions in the meet. The others are Leo Williams of Navy, who has won the Heps high jump championship each of the last two years (he cleared a meet record of 7-3 last season and also won last year's NCAA indoor championship with an amazing leap of 7-5 1/4); Brad Light of Army in the pole vault (vaulting 15-7 at last year's meet); Jeff Scott of Army in the weight throw (he won last season's event with a toss of 62-1 3/4; his best so far this year is 61-2); Cardell Williams of Army in the 800 meters (he was clocked in 1:52.07, a meet record); Bill Kovach of Navy in the 3,000 (he also set a meet record with a time of 8:16.2, and has run an 8:14.2 already this season); and Doug Harris of Pennsylvania in the 55-meter dash (he won the sprint event last year with a time of 6.38, and has already been clocked at 6.1 in 1982).

One defending champion who will not be able to defend his title is Adam Dixon of Harvard, the Outstanding Performer at last year's Heps. Dixon, who won the 1,500-meter run last season for the second year in a row with a record-setting time of 3:45.05, has been forced out of action with a leg injury and will not compete any more this indoor season. The favorite to replace Dixon as the 1,500-meter champion is Army's Cardell Williams, who has run a 3:48.57 in the event this year.

Pennsylvania's Jeff Hill, who took second in the 400 meters at the 1981 Heps with a time of 47.74, currently has the fastest time of all competitors in the 400 with a 48.6. Army's Blake Hawkey has already cleared 16-5 in the pole vault and has a shot at the meet record of 17 1/2, set in 1972 by Tom Blair of Pennsylvania.

For Cornell, several performers have an excellent chance at winning a Heps title. Freshman sensation Charles Fleming (Woodleaf, N.C.) even has a shot at becoming a double winner, as he currently has the second best jump in the long jump (24-1 1/2) and the third fastest time in the 55-meter dash (6.2). Junior Bob Diaz (New York, N.Y.) is right behind Fonss in the 800 meters with a time of 1:52.3, while junior Tom Healey (Madison, Conn.) has recorded the third best mark in the triple jump thus far (47-2 1/4). Senior Jay Lesch (Fredonia, N.Y.) has the third fastest time in the 500 (1:05.1), and junior Steve Putscher (Newark, Del.) and freshman John Passalacqua (West Nyack, N.Y.) both rank fourth in their respective events. Putscher has leaped 15-0 (a school record) in the pole vault, while Passalacqua has recorded a toss of 52-6 3/4 in the shot put.
