Employee Day Will Feature Colgate Football Game

Traditional Barbecue Will Follow Game

A large turnout is expected Sept. 24 for the ninth annual Cornell Employee Day, sponsored jointly by Employee-Elected Trustees, employee members of the University Assembly, the Employee Assembly, and the Departments of Athletics and University Personnel Services.

Subsidized by the administration, this event expresses a tribute to Cornell's employees by bringing them together at the Big Red varsity football team's home opener against Colgate on Schoellkopf Field. It also provides an opportunity to share a social event. This fall marks the first time the traditional chicken barbecue will be served in Barton Hall after the game. In the past it preceded the game.

Also for the first time, there will be guests in addition to all regular full and part-time staff and faculty on campus: more than 1,000 retirees in the area, the nearly 1,000 members of the university's Cooperative Extension offices, as well as employees of the Cornell Medical College in New York City have been invited to participate.

As in previous years, top administrators and other volunteers from the Cornell community will help serve the barbecue. The departments of Cornell Dining, Buildings and Grounds Care, Pomology, Public Safety, University Manuscripts and Archives, the Credit Union, Cornell's Big Red Band and Baton Twirler Kori West are also preparing for the event.

The Big Red/Colgate game kickoff will be at 1:30 at Schoellkopf Field. The chicken barbecue will follow from 4 to 6 p.m. Tickets for the game have been specially reduced to $2. These, and separate barbecue tickets at $2 each will be available at Grumman Hall Ticket Offices (across from Teagle Hall) Sept. 12 through 16 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., with a limit of four each per employee.

The bleacher crowd in Barton Hall in this case has backs to the basketball court, as a previous Employee Day barbecue overflows the tables on the floor.

New Policy Eliminates Tuition For Employees Taking Courses

A new policy eliminating all tuition charges for employees taking courses as well as eliminating distinctions between job-related, career-related and non-job-related courses goes into effect this fall.

All regular full- or part-time non-academic employees and academic non-professorial employees are eligible upon employment to take up to four credit hours per semester through the extramural division without tuition charges.

Supervisors will have the discretion to either grant release time for employees to attend class or require that all or part of the time be made up when absence from work will interfere with the department's operational requirements. In cases where the supervisor has requested that a course be taken, employees are not required to make up time.

Registration for employees taking courses through the extramural division is 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 in Barton Hall. After Sept. 1, late registration is possible by going to B12 Ives Hall, during those same hours. Late registration deadline is Sept. 16. Employees who register after Sept. 1 will be required to pay late registration fees.

For further information about the new policy, call the Training and Development Section, University Personnel Services at 256-7400.

Learning Skills Center Here To Reach All Undergraduates

The Learning Skills Center here formally will broaden its mission this fall to reach all Cornell undergraduates who need assistance from the academic support service.

Provost W. Keith Kennedy said that since the LSC was established in 1973 its programs have been targeted to COSEP students and students in New York state's two opportunity programs, although in recent years a number of other Cornell students have made use of the services.

"As a result of the increasing interest and our desire to serve efficiently all students who need help, we will be advertising the services more widely in the future," he said.

"We continue to view the center's service to minority students as central to the operation," Kennedy said. "All current and future thinking, planning and action regarding the center's programs will build around that concept."

The LSC will continue to offer a summer program for incoming freshmen to develop basic academic skills, supplemental instruction courses for several large introductory courses, tutorials for students in upper level courses, a reading and study skills course and a study skills workshop.

William Collins, director of the LSC, said "There will be continuity in the existing programs as we broaden our mission while maintaining our focus. We're adding a few programs, not diluting or removing any of the existing ones."

He noted that the effectiveness of the services seems to improve as participation rates go up, and there has been "no adverse impact" on minority students in the program due to participation of non-minority students in recent years.

The LSC has served some 500 students each semester and about 150 students in the Pre-freshman Summer Program. Additionally, over 1000 students utilize the work-shops and office hours of LSC staff.

The first major addition, Collins said, will be the creation of study groups this fall. He described these as "small groups of students meeting on a regular basis with a resource person who will serve as a catalyst to their independent thinking, their independent learning."

Vice Provost Larry I. Palmer, to whom the university-wide LSC will report, said the center will continue to coordinate its work with other services on campus: the academic and career counseling center and the Division of Unclassified Students.

"The new arrangement should improve coordination between the LSC and the college services and help in identifying those students who need assistance," Palmer said. He added that a close working relationship between the LSC and COSEP college associates is anticipated.

Personal Growth Workshops Offered

The Office of the Dean of Students will be offering personal growth workshops during the fall semester.

The workshops are all self-help discussion groups and are open to all members of the Cornell community. The groups will meet once a week for four to five weeks and will address topics such as assertiveness; building satisfying relationships; building self-esteem; women, food and self-esteem; saying goodbye, fish or cut bait (overcoming writer's block for doctoral students); interreligious relationships; international women's group, and coming out.

For further information about the free workshops, contact Barbara Beck Garton, 103 Barnes Hall, telephone 256-3608.

Libraries to Assess Local Users Borrowers' Fees

University Libraries today will begin assessing a $100 annual borrowers' fee for borrowers' cards issued to adult residents of Tompkins County with a demonstrated need to borrow books from the endowed library system, according to Louis E. Martin, the Carl A. Kroch university librarian.

Cards valid for three months are available for $40.

Martin pointed out, however, that access to all university libraries and the use of the nearly five million volumes they contain will continue to be free for all county residents.

He characterized the Cornell Libraries and their collection as "one of the richest resources in the Western world," and said he is pleased that this resource will continue to be available to all county residents free of charge if materials are used in the libraries.

The borrowing fee has been approved by the faculty library board. It does not apply to libraries in the university's statutory schools. Non-Cornell students are not eligible for borrowers' cards.

The use of the library system, including borrowing books, has traditionally been free to Tompkins County residents who need to use research collections.

"We wish we could continue all of that tradition," Martin said, "but the realities of our world today make it unfeasible."

He said more than 1,200 privilege cards have been issued annually to county residents. Over the last several years, more than 700 books they've borrowed have not been returned.

"Some of these volumes are literally irreplaceable," he said, "and for many

It is the policy of Cornell University actively to support equality of educational and employment opportunity. No person shall be denied admission to any educational program or activity or be denied employment on the basis of any legally prohibited discrimination involving, but not limited to, such factors as race, color, creed, religion, national or ethnic origin, sex, age or handicap. The university is committed to the maintenance of affirmative action programs which will assure the continuation of such equality of opportunity.

Plantations Has Wide Variety Of Fall Education Programs

Mushrooms, potpourris, fall bulbs, herbs, native ferns, plant dyeing, bonsai, nature photography, grapevine wreaths, embroidery, block printing and pen-and-ink drawing are among the topics offered to the general public in non-credit classes at the Cornell Plantations' Fall 1983 education program.

In addition, free Sunday afternoon walks are scheduled in selected gardens and areas around Cornell Plantations. The guided walks, which leave Plantations headquarters promptly at 2 p.m., include: Fall Wildflowers, Sept. 4 and 11; Fall Fruits, Sept. 18 and 25; Fall Color, Oct. 9; Mushroom Forays, Oct. 16 and 23; and a Nut Tree Walk, Oct. 30. No registration is required and the walks are open to everyone.

Dr. Scott Camazine, a research associate in the Section of Neurobiology and Behavior, will teach the course "Mushrooms; Delicious and Deadly," a combination of classroom lectures and field trips. Sessions are scheduled for 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sundays, Sept. 11 through Oct. 9.

Sue-Ryn Hildenbrand, the "Herb Lady" at Renaissance Fair, Sterling, N.Y., is the instructor for "Potpourri," a course on the uses and creation on the blends of aromatic herbs, fruits and spices. The course is offered twice, from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday Sept. 10, and at the same time Sunday, Sept. 11.

William J. Hamilton, professor emeritus of zoology and natural resources and well known Ithaca gardener, will teach "Fall Bulb Planting," a course on culture and planting procedures, at 7 p.m. Thursdays, Sept. 15 and 22.

Members of Auraca Herbarists, a local herb group, will teach "All About Herbs," a three-session course on history, lore, cultivation and harvesting. Classes are scheduled from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays, Sept. 17, 24 and Oct. 8.

Clifford O. Berg, professor emeritus of entomology, is the instructor for "Native Ferns of New York," a course which includes field trips to the Mundy Wildflower Garden at Cornell as well as the instructor's fern garden. Sessions are scheduled from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Sundays, Sept. 18 and 25.

Kay Ross, an Ithaca area craftsperson, will lead the two-session "Plant Dyeing Workshop" to identify and prepare local dye plants. Classes, which will utilize specimens from the Robison York State Herb Garden, are scheduled for 7 p.m. Mondays, Sept. 19 and 26.

Bill Valavanis, director of the International Bonsai Arboretum in Rochester, will teach "Introductory Bonsai" at 7 p.m. Tuesdays, Oct. 11 through Nov. 1, and "Advanced Bonsai Workshops" in daytime programs from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and evening programs 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays, Oct. 12 through Nov. 2.

Free-lance photographers Mike Hopiak and Barrie Cannon will teach "Nature Photography," a course on techniques for capturing flora and fauna in autumn. Classroom sessions are scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursdays, Oct. 6 through 20, with field trips at 8 a.m. Saturdays, Oct. 8 and 15.

Lynn Ackerman, Cooperative Extension horticultural program aide, is the instructor for "Grapevine Wreaths," a one-day workshop on collection, construction and decorating scheduled from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 15.

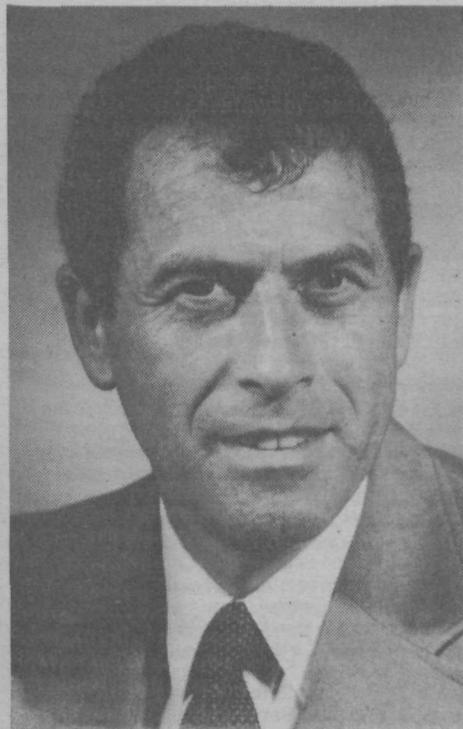

Julie Webster, a certified instructor in crewel and canvas work by the Embroiderers Guild of America, will teach "Flowers from an Embroidered Garden," a course in the stitching of canvas work herb garden samplers, at 7 p.m. Tuesdays, Oct. 25 through Nov. 15.

Bente Everhart, botanical illustrator at Cornell's L. H. Bailey Hortorium, will teach "Botanical Block Printing" with linoleum blocks at 7 p.m. Thursdays, Nov. 3 and 10, and "Pen and Ink" using live plants and herbarium specimens as models at 7 p.m. Mondays, Nov. 7 through 28.

Information on registration and fees for all courses is available by calling Cornell Plantations at (607) 256-3020.

Kurt Wuthrich to Deliver Baker Lectures Starting on Sept. 13

Professor Kurt Wuthrich of the Institute of Molecular Biology and Biophysics, ETH (Eidgenossische Technische Hochschule) Zurich, Switzerland, will give the annual

KURT WUTHRICH

Baker Lectures in the Department of Chemistry beginning Sept. 13.

The title of the lecture series will be "Nuclear Magnetic Resonance and Structure-Function Correlations in Proteins and Nucleic Acids." Lectures, which are free and open to the public, are scheduled for 11:15 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays through Oct. 20 in Baker Laboratory 200.

Wuthrich is an expert in the development and application of nuclear magnetic resonance techniques to study biological macromolecules in solution, in lipid matrices and in other non-crystalline states. He has published extensively in his research area and is the author of the well-known book, "Nuclear Magnetic Resonance in Biological Research: Peptides and Proteins."

After receiving his Ph.D. in inorganic chemistry in 1964 at the University of Basel, Wuthrich did postdoctoral work at the University of California, Berkeley, with R.E. Connick, and at Bell Telephone Labs, Murray Hill, N.J., with R.G. Shulman, then joined the ETH in 1969. Wuthrich is also Secretary General of the International Union of Pure and Applied Biophysics.

The Baker Lectures were endowed in 1925 by George Fisher Baker "to invite the most eminent chemists of the world" to lecture at Cornell. Nobel Prizes have been awarded to 16 of the Baker Lecturers and the lectures have been the bases for books which have had a major impact on chemistry.

Films

Expanding Cinema

On Aug. 28, Cornell Cinema began a bi-weekly series of free, experimental films at the Johnson Museum. The series, called The Expanding Cinema, will be shown at 2 p.m. on alternate Sundays in the museum's Lecture Room. Included in the series is the 1983 Whitney Museum Film Biennial, which consists of six programs of films selected by film and video curator John Hanhardt as the best independent work of the last two years. Filmmakers whose work will be shown include Robert Breer, Bruce Conner, Ernie Gehr and James Benning. For the first time in the Biennial, there will be a program of Super 8 films, and movie goers will have a chance to see the New Wave Super 8 filmmaking of Vivienne Dick and Ericka Beckman. Cornell Cinema will follow the Biennial with a program of Canadian Experimental Film in November and a 10-program series of Recent European Avant-Garde Cinema in the spring.

Truffaut and Lang Series

Two film series in Cornell Cinema's September schedule are devoted to two fictional characters: Francois Truffaut's Antoine Doinel and Fritz Lang's Doktor Mabuse.

The Doinel series can be seen on Tuesday nights and Mabuse on Wednesday nights in September. Also during September Cornell Cinema will present a Sunday night series called "Riding the Rails," in recognition of the role tins have played in the inspiration of moviemaking.

Unless otherwise noted films are under sponsorship of Cornell Cinema.

John Hsu

Music

Harpichord, Viola da Gamba Concert

On Sunday afternoon, Sept. 4, John Hsu, viola da gamba, and William Austin, harpichord, will present the first of several free campus concerts and recitals which will be sponsored by Cornell University's Department of Music during the academic year. Their concert will take place at 4 p.m. in Barnes Hall auditorium.

The program, which will consist of music from the 17th and 18th centuries, will include Sonata in C Major, Wq. 135 by C.P.E. Bach, Sujet avec 20 couplets by Marin Marais, two preludes and fugues from Book I of J.S. Bach's "Well-tempered Clavier" as well as his Sonata in D Major, BWV 28.

Hsu, the Old Dominion Foundation Professor of Humanities and Music, is one of the few viola da gamba virtuosos today. A specialist in French viol music of the 17th and 18th centuries, he is the author of "A Handbook of French Baroque Viol Technique" and the editor of the first modern edition of the complete modern instrumental works by Marin Marais (1656-1728). His recordings include the first complete recording of the five suites for viola da gamba by Antoine Forqueray, a series of "Pieces de viole" by Marais and other French composers, the gamba sonatas by J.S. Bach and Baryton Trios by Joseph Haydn. He has also recorded more than 30 solo recitals for European and Canadian radio broadcasts, the most recent one a program of music by Marais for the BBC in May.

During the past winter term, Hsu was artist-in-residence at the University of California at Davis. In addition to a series of concerts and lectures at the Davis campus, he also performed and lectured at other University of California campuses and at major universities in Oregon and Arizona. He is also an artist-faculty member of the Aston Magna Foundation for Music, barytonist of the Haydn Baryton Trio and cellist of the Amadeo Trio, resident ensemble at Cornell.

Austin, the Given Foundation Professor of Musicology at Cornell, is the author of "Music in the 20th Century," which was published in 1966 by W.W. Norton and received the Otto Kinkeldey Award from the American Musicological Society and the Edward J. Dent Prize from the International Musicological Society. His most recent work has been a translation from the German of "Esthetics of Music" by Carl Dahlhaus, published by Cambridge University Press.

During his tenure at the university, he served for some years as university organist and for one year directed the Sage Chapel Choir. He has played numerous recitals and collaborated as accompanist with other faculty artists. He has collaborated with Hsu since 1955 in Ithaca and elsewhere in the Northeast.

Saturday

Sept. 3, 8:15 p.m. Barnes Hall. Music Department presents Jazz Concert; Richard Boukas, guitar.

Sunday

Sept. 4, 4 p.m. Barnes Hall. Department of Music presents John Hsu, ciola da gamba, and William Austin, harpsichord. Works of Marais, Bach.

Saturday

Graduate Bulletin

The next regular meeting of the Graduate Faculty will be held at 4:00 p.m. on Friday, September 9, 1983, in the General Committee Room of the Graduate School, Sage Graduate Center, to approve the provisional degree list for August.

Nomination of Committee forms and Change of Committee forms must be turned in by Friday, September 23. Original course forms and adds are due by September 23, 1983. After that date there will be a $10 fee. The last day to turn in changes and drops is October 28, 1983.

International Graduate Students who submitted TOEFL scores below 600 or ALIGU test scores, and who did not take the English Placement Test last Friday, must report for a makeup test on Tuesday, September 6, at 4:30 p.m. in Room 106 Morrill Hall.

Need-based financial aid, including Guaranteed Student Loans, is now administered by the Graduate Fellowship and Financial Aid Office, 116 Sage Graduate Center. All GAPSFAS forms and supporting documentation as well as GSL applications should be submitted to this office. Questions concerning the awarding of hourly College Work Study, National Direct Student Loans, work-study funded Teaching Assistantships, and Guaranteed Student Loans should be directed to the Graduate Fellowship and Financial Aid Office. Questions concerning fellowships, scholarships and traineeships should also be directed to this office.

Questions about assistantships should be directed to the departmental office providing the award. Questions about payments of loans and college work-study should be directed to the Office of Financial Aid, 203 Day Hall.

Reminder: September 24 is the deadline for submitting Fulbright and other IEE grants for study abroad. Application forms and further information are available from Linda Kao at 100 Sage Graduate Center. September 10 is the deadline for obtaining applications.

Awards from the College Grants Committee, College of Human Ecology: Applicants must be in Consumer Economics and Housing, Design and Environmental Analysis, Human Development and Family Studies, or Human Service Studies. Graduate students are supported only for thesis research or for research performed as a graduate field requirement. Awards will be limited to a maximum of $800 for students in master's degree programs, and $1200 for doctoral program students. Application information may be obtained at the Office of the Associate Dean, N-115 MVR, Cornell University. Application deadlines are September 10, December 1, February 15, and May 1.

1984 Sea Grant Congressional Interns is a paid intern program that provides opportunity for graduate students to spend a year in Washington working for one of the committees with oversight in the marine field, on the staff of a member with marine interest or with one of the executive agencies having marine responsibilities. Applications consisting of (1) a letter of application from the student demonstrating the value of the internship experience to career/educational goals, (2) an educational/employment vita, and (3) a letter of sponsorship from the applicant's major professor, are due September 10, 1983. Additional information can be obtained from the Associate Director of the New York Sea Grant Institute, Dr. Bruce Wilkins, Professor of Natural Resources, 256-2162.

Graduate students who are receiving tuition assistance from Cornell administered sources must apply for a Tuition Assistance Program (TAP) award through the New York State Higher Education Services Corporation (NYSHESC) if they meet New York state residence requirements. Other graduate students who are New York state residents should also apply for a TAP award even if tuition is not paid by a fellowship or assistantship. Contact the Bursar's Office, 260 Day Hall, for information and application forms.

Graduate students who are receiving tuition assistance from Cornell administered sources who are not eligible to receive TAP must submit a TAP Acceptance Form to the Graduate Fellowship and Financial Aid Office.

Cornell graduate fellowships, traineeships, assistantships, and scholarships do not provide for Student Health Insurance charges. Students are personally responsible for these expenses. Those not wanting to participate in the insurance plan must submit a waiver card to Gannett Health Center to cancel this coverage.

Barton Blotter

Nine wallets and three purses containing some $953 in cash plus personal papers were stolen on campus in the seven-day period between Aug. 22 and Aug. 28 as students returned to campus, according to the morning reports of the Department of Public Safety.

According to safety officials most of the wallets were left improperly attended during athletic events and other activities. Several wallets contained more than $100 in cash.

In all there were a total of 24 thefts on campus during the same seven-day period with losses amounting to nearly $2,400. Among the other thefts were two bicycles valued at more than $200 each and three fire extinguishers costing a total of $60.

A backpack with contents valued at $45 was taken from the Grumman Squash Courts, site of a number of wallet thefts. Some $157 in textbooks was stolen from the Campus Store. A Cayuga Heights man was charged with driving while intoxicated after being stopped on East Avenue early in the morning Wednesday, Aug. 24.

Off-Campus Housing Notes

The Off-Campus Housing Legal Advising service has been re-instated for the academic year. Appointments are available only to registered students for housing-related matters (leases, deposits, evictions, etc.) and must be arranged in advance by contacting the Off-Campus Housing Secretary in 103 Barnes Hall. Appointments with the legal adviser take place on Thursday afternoons and usually last 15 minutes.

Off-Campus Housing listings are available on Cornell's IBM system. To obtain access from any campus terminal log on with your student IBM account and type "Cuinfo Housing."

Members of the Cornell community are welcome to list dwelling unit and roommate vacancies with the Off-Campus Housing Office. Dwellings must have a current certificate of compliance with the Ithaca Housing Code in order to be posted. No exceptions to this policy are permitted.

Area Children Offered Art Classes

There's competition this fall for Saturday morning cartoon shows on television. Cornell University is offering area children an opportunity to enroll in Saturday morning art classes.

Fourth, fifth and sixth graders are invited to sign up for nine weeks of art activities, exploring a wide range of two- and three-dimensional materials. Registration, now under way, continues through Sept. 9. The art classes start Sept. 24 and continue through Nov. 19; classes run from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Instruction will be under the direction of W. Lambert Brittain, professor of human development and family studies in the State College of Human Ecology. Brittain, with the aid of his students, provides children the chance to become artists by using their own creative expression.

"These classes are not planned for the talented and budding artist only, but rather are aimed at children who would like to have the opportunity to draw and paint," Brittain explains.

Activities each week will vary, all supplies will be provided and class size is limited. There will be a $5 fee to help defray the cost of materials.

To register, or to obtain further information, contact Susie Kennedy at 256-7620 by Sept. 9.

others the replacement costs are very high—even without including the time our staff has to spend trying to trace down the rarer books."

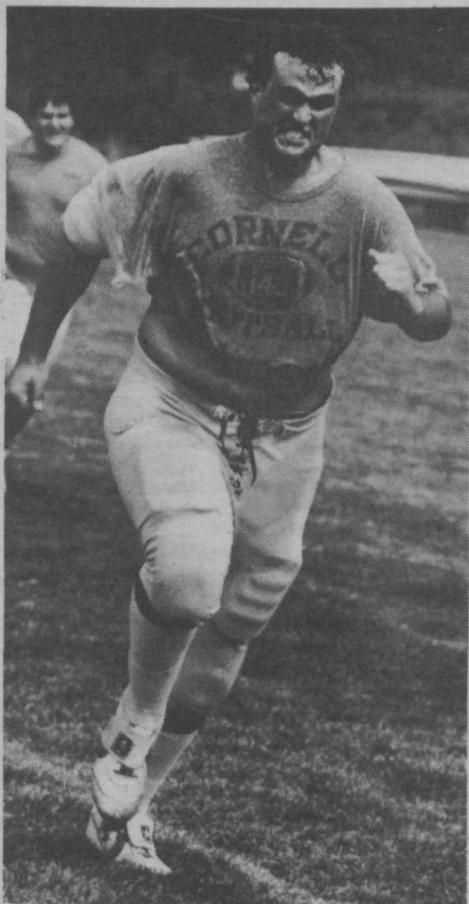

Martin said his experience with fee systems at other institutions, most of which are considerably higher than the $100 annual borrowing fee Cornell will charge, has been that fees lead to more responsible use of the libraries by those who have a serious need. He said, "My experience has shown that such a system does contribute to solving problems."

One of the problems he mentioned is the use of staff time. Each time a book is not returned, he said, his staff makes three separate attempts to contact the borrower, and only after that is the matter turned over to Cornell University Collections.

"This is a drain on staff time, and a drain on our budget at a time when that budget has been seriously eroded," he said, "and it is for a function that really has nothing to do with our fundamental mission of service to students and faculty at Cornell."

ID Cards Available

Students who applied for Sheriff ID cards are reminded they will be available beginning Monday, Sept. 5, in the main lobby of Day Hall.

A wind sprint at the end of practice takes a total effort by sophomore offensive tackle candidate Tony Mauriello, a 6-2, 245-pounder from Cranford, N.J.

Creative and Performing Arts Grants Awarded For Projects by 16 Students and Staff Members

Grants totaling $5,433 for creative and performing arts projects have been awarded by the Council for the Creative and Performing Arts to 16 Cornell students and staff members. Proposals were submitted in the spring for projects to be completed and exhibited or performed within the next 12 months.

The grants, awarded annually by the council, are funded on the basis of artistic ability, potential to complete the project with distinction and the merit of the project itself. The awards are meant to encourage artists to propose and produce art projects not primarily concerned with course work, according to Anna Geske, CCPA program director. The artists and projects receiving grants are:

In dance, $410 to Melinda Buckwalter, R. Scott deLahunta and Laura Friedman, seniors in the department of theatre arts, to choreograph a dance performance inserting sculptures and photographs with literature and music; $500 to Lonna Wilkinson, a dance instructor, to choreograph and perform a multi-media dance work.

In graphics, $300 to Erin O'Keefe, a senior in fine arts, to create a triptych of color prints which combine etching and lithography; and $186 to Michael Busch, an administrative aide in the government office, to do a series of drawings of life-size figures.

In art, Eric Larson, Uris Library Media Room staff member, $300 to do six sculptural constructions; Gary Anderson, graduate student in the College of Architecture, Art and Planning, $430 to construct a wood sculpture; Patrick Mills, MFA candidate, $407 to do a painting with mono-type prints; Alixandra Pearlstein, Design & Environmental Analysis senior, $500 for a sculpture project.

In photography, Nelson Begay, an undergraduate in the College of Architecture, Art and Planning, $500; Rosa DeBerry, a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences, $250; and for a presentation of photographs and poetry, David Bett, MFA candidate, $500.

In creative writing, $470 to Lou Robinson, a secretary at the Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art.

In music, grants to two graduate students in music for original compositions: Donald Campfield $500 to compose a piece for a 52 member wind ensemble, "Prelude to the Fall of Babylon;" and Andrew Waggoner $280 to compose a double concerto for clarinet, viola and winds.

In the spring, the Council of the Creative and Performing Arts will receive proposals for art projects to be completed in the 1984-85 academic year. Information about the grants may be obtained from Anna Geske in the Andrew D. White House.

Draft-Aid Policy Explained

The following is a statement from James J. Scannell, dean of admissions and financial aid, regarding Cornell policies with regard to draft registration and financial aid:

"On July 1, 1983 a new law was enacted requiring that all students seeking federal financial aid must file a statement indicating either that they have registered for the Selective Service Draft or that they are otherwise exempt from the registration requirement. Students not filing such a statement may not receive federal grants, federally guaranteed or subsidized loans, or federally subsidized work-study employment. In implementing this new law the Department of Education has allowed colleges and universities to distribute aid prior to Oct. 1, 1983 without securing a signed statement in advance.

"Cornell is now processing financial aid applications and awarding aid for the 1983-84 academic year. However, students are being advised that they must comply with this new law in order to maintain their financial aid eligibility. Compliance forms as well as letters advising students of their responsibilities under this new law were mailed in late July.

"The university's administration still believes that the coupling of draft registration with eligibility for federal financial aid is an inappropriate linkage of two federal programs created for distinctly different purposes. In fact, a Federal District Court earlier this year found this requirement unconstitutional and enjoined its enforcement. The Supreme Court, however, has now stayed that injunction, thus putting the law into effect on July 1. As such, Cornell will obey the law as required.

"In response, Cornell has decided that it will not replace lost federal grant funds nor replace lost federal loan funds with institutional aid. However, in an effort to assist those students who have lost financial assistance as a result of non-compliance, the university will:

"1. Refer those students to local banks that have indicated a willingness to negotiate a private loan.

"2. Refer students who have lost college work-study employment eligibility to regular student employment opportunities.

"Because the implementation of this law occurred unexpectedly as a result of the Supreme Court stay, Cornell will offer students who cannot arrange other financing on such short notice the option of a payment plan, co-signed by the student and a parent or guardian, whereby the amount lost could be repaid over the course of the fall semester. This repayment plan will bear a 15 percent finance charge, similar to other financing arrangements for Cornell students."

Epidemiology Minor Approved

The new minor graduate field of Epidemiology was recently approved by the General Committee of the Graduate School. The interdepartmental Field of Epidemiology (animal and human) will offer a graduate program in conjunction with several major areas of specialization including Biometry, Environmental Toxicology, Nutrition, Sociology, Statistics, Animal Science, and Veterinary Medicine. Graduate students enrolled in the program will conduct their research in the departments of their major advisors and may pursue an M.S., M.A., or Ph.D. degree with a minor in Epidemiology.

Faculty for the Field of Epidemiology are from the College of Agricultural and Life Sciences, the College of Arts and Sciences, the Division of Nutritional Sciences, the School of Operations Research, and the College of Veterinary Medicine. The fourteen Graduate Faculty who are expected to join the field are: John Babish, Larry C. Clark, Raymond H. Cypess, Hollis N. Erb, and Janet M. Scarlett-Kranz (Preventive Medicine); George Casella, Walter T. Federer, Charles E. McCulloch, Douglas S. Robson, and Steven J. Schwager (Biometrics Unit); Thomas J. Santner and Bruce W. Turnbull (Operations Research); Barry Edmonston (International Population Program); Jean-Pierre Habicht (Division of Nutritional Sciences). Students interested in learning more about the Field of Epidemiology should contact Larry C. Clark, Preventive Medicine, College of Veterinary Medicine.

Graduate Students' Aid Files Moved

Financial aid files of all students enrolled in the Graduate School have been transferred from the Financial Aid Office to the Graduate Fellowship Office in Sage Hall, Room 116. That office will assume responsibility for financial aid counseling of graduate students as well as for Guaranteed Student Loans.

Questions regarding application procedures and/or the availability of federal financial aid funds should be directed to the Fellowship Office. This new procedure was instituted to provide better service to graduate students.

Students who have received award letters indicating eligibility for hourly College Work-Study employment and/or NDSL funding, who have submitted all the necessary materials, may pick up payroll authorization forms and loan notes at the Fellowship Office.

Ag School Roundup Sept. 24

More than 500 graduates and friends of the State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences are expected to take part in the 1983 "Autumn Roundup on campus Saturday, Sept. 24.

Members of the classes of 1934 and 1959 will be honored during the one-day program, and David L. Call, dean of the college, will report on activities of the past year and the outlook for the future.

"Outstanding Alumni Awards" will be presented to five graduates: Jane E. Brody (1962); Julian M. Carter (1937); Barbara McClintock (1923); Donald G. Robinson (1941); and Erton W. Sipher (1943).

In addition, Brody will be the featured speaker at the "Autumn Roundup." The author and personal health columnist for the New York Times will discuss her philosophy of health and life, as well as lifestyle practices that can help individuals to achieve a healthy, happy outlook. She is scheduled to speak at 10:45 a.m. in Cornell's Bailey Hall.

Other events include a chicken barbecue, the Cornell-Colgate football game, or tours of the Laboratory of Ornithology or the Cornell Plantations, and a post-game wine-and-cheese party with jazz of the 1920s on the Ag Quad.

Registration should be made prior to Sept. 15 with the CALS Alumni Association, and information is available from its director, Gerald H. Hill at 242 Roberts Hall.

Tickets are $5 for the barbecue, $5 for the football game, $2 for each tour and $2 for the postgame party.

Faculty Committee to Help Improve Local Public Education

Provost W. Keith Kennedy has appointed a 12-member faculty committee to begin working with county educators on ventures to improve the quality of education in local public schools.

Named the Committee on Education and the Community, the group's charge is "to develop ways in which Cornell...might collaborate with local school systems to improve the quality of education at the primary and secondary levels and to enhance educational interactions between Cornell and the community," according to Kennedy.

The provost added that during the next year he expects the committee to develop a pilot collaborative project among Cornell and several local school districts.

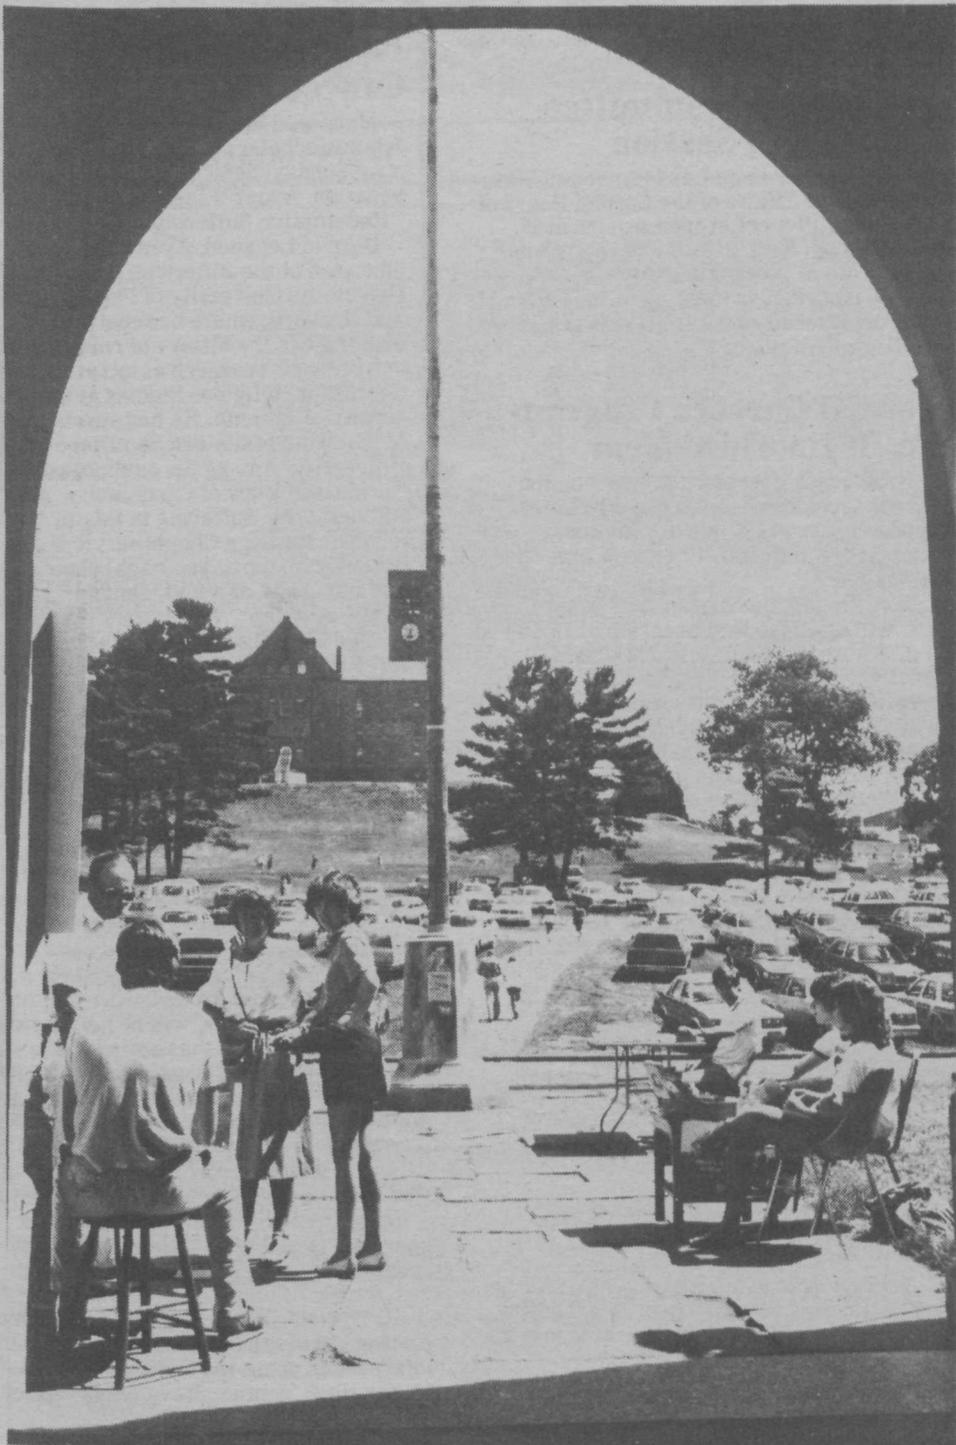

Roald Hoffmann, Nobel laureate and the John A. Newman Professor of Physical Science, will chair the committee. Joseph J. Novak, professor of science education, will be vice chairman.

Other committee members are: Donald

J. Barr, associate professor of human services studies; Alison P. Casarett, dean of the Graduate School; Dorothy Cotton, director of student activities; Herbert Deinert, professor of German literature; David W. Henderson, professor of mathematics; Philip J. Holmes, associate professor of theoretical and applied mechanics; Walter R. Lynn, professor of environmental engineering; David H. Monk, assistant professor of education; L. Pearce Williams, the John Stambaugh Professor of the History of Science; and Larry I. Palmer, ex officio, vice provost and professor of law.

The recent report of the National Commission on Excellence in Education pointed out many weaknesses in America's public schools. "Cornell has an obligation as the state's land grant university to be a leader in responding to the call for improvement in public education," Kennedy said.

'Getting to Know You'

Class of 1987 Moves In, Is Oriented

On a second brilliantly clear, cool day in a row in Ithaca, new students, families and friends gathered with university officials in Barton Hall last Wednesday for the President's Convocation.

Many of the 400 Orientation Counselors who had been busy for two days carrying, directing, advising and caring for the new arrivals, joined them.

President Rhodes welcomed the new students, including some 2,850 freshmen, 550 transfer students and some 1,600 new graduate and professional students.

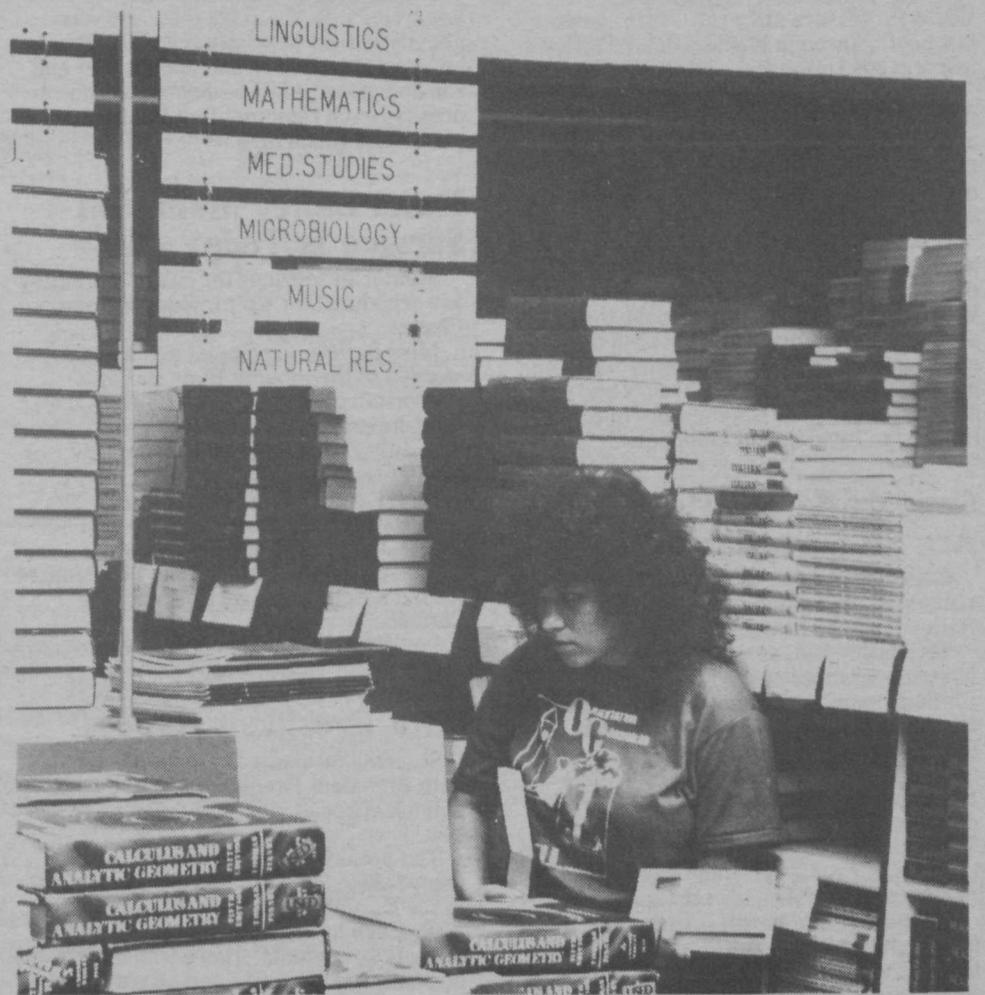

He noted that most of the freshman class members had been in the top 10 percent of their graduating class, and warned that the high standards at Cornell will push them to the limit. But choices awaited them. In the words of Andrew Dickson White, "You are not here to receive an education, you are here to create one." Rhodes drew attention to the many services available to new students, urging them to seek help from faculty advisers, TAs, counselors, RAs, chaplains, physicians, coaches and others. "All of us are here to serve you, but you must take the initiative. It is up to you."

Rhodes pointed to the size, and cosmopolitan nature of the university despite its rural location. "This rainbow community and the wealth of Cornell's resources and programs," he reassured the freshmen, "should provide not only a diploma, but also the personal satisfaction and growth that come from living in such a community."

Rhodes noted that the orientation calendar of events this year is 52 pages long, and that by the convocation last Wednesday new students had completed only two pages of its activities.

"You are destined by next week," he said, "to be our best-oriented, most exhausted freshman class ever."

Brief Reports

Jazz Guitarist Boukas Will Present Concert

Jazz guitarist Richard Boukas will be featured in an 8:15 p.m. concert Saturday, Sept. 3, in Barnes Hall. Appearing with him will be Michael Formanek, bass. The concert is free and open to the public. The event is sponsored by the Department of Music, the Cornell Council of the Creative and Performing Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts.

In addition to the Cornell concert, Boukas' fall schedule includes performances at New York University, Berklee School of Music and Purchase College. He is currently preparing, with his trio, a new album for Jazz Essence, called "Embarcadero." Boukas' earlier album for JE, "Commitment," received critical acclaim in trade publications and on the radio.

Boukas, a 1974 graduate of New York University in theory and composition, also studied jazz improvisation independently with Edward Murray, now of the Cornell music faculty. He has toured as guitarist and vocalist with Noel Pointer, Samantha Sang, and Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons. He has performed as sideman with Ben Vereen in a special White House event, with Lainie Kazan, Juliet Prowse, Ertha Kitt and Abbe Lane. He played in the Broadway production of "Evita" and the San Francisco production of "Georgia Brown and Friends."

Boukas has been a guest lecturer in jazz studies at Harvard, Pratt Institute and SUNY at Albany. Among his publications are "Improvising Jazz Guitar," "Jazz Riffs for Guitar" and "Jazz Chords for Guitar."

Hungarian Mathematician Here as Professor-at-Large

Hungarian mathematician Laszlo Lovasz will give a public lecture on "Algorithms: A New Framework of Mathematics," at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 13, in Kaufmann Auditorium of Goldwin Smith Hall.

Lovasz will give the lecture, which is aimed at a general audience, in his capacity as one of the university's Andrew D. White Professors-at-Large. He is on campus Sept. 1 through 17 and will hold office hours at 334 Upson Hall, telephone 256-4856.

In addition to his public lecture he will meet formally and informally with students and faculty, will give several specialized research seminars and will give the applied mathematics colloquium at 4 p.m. Friday, Sept. 9, in 165 Olin Hall.

Elected to a six-year term as a professor-at-large in 1981, Lovasz is a professor of mathematics at Eotvos Lorand University in Budapest. He has written more than 100 research papers and three books in the areas of combinatorial mathematics, computer science, information theory and operations research. He is a member of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences.

Concert Series Tickets Are Still Available

A limited number of subscriptions are still available for the university's 1983-84 Bailey Hall and Statler concert series.

The Bailey Hall series will feature the first appearances of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, under the direction of Carlo Maria Giulini, and the Vienna Chamber Orchestra, led by the internationally-acclaimed pianist and conductor Philippe Entremont. Also making his Bailey Hall debut is the Finnish basso Martti Talvela. Two favorites from previous seasons, pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy and violinist Itzhak Perlman, will return for solo appearances.

The Statler series will present four widely acclaimed ensembles. The Tokyo String Quartet will return for its third Cornell appearance. Three groups will make their Statler debuts; the Fitzwilliam String Quartet, the Buswell Parnas Carlin Trio and the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields Octet.

Subscription prices for the Bailey series range from $72 to $45 for the general public, depending on seating; prices for the Statler series range from $33 to $19.50. For students, Bailey series subscriptions range from $61.25 to $38.25 and for the Statler series prices are from $28 to $17.

Discount prices are also available for area students. Each student may purchase a maximum of two subscriptions or two tickets per concert at the discount price. Cornellcard holders may charge subscriptions to their accounts by presenting their cards at the Lincoln Hall ticket office. Visa and MasterCard are also accepted.

For further information about the 1983-84 concert series subscriptions, call the Lincoln Hall Ticket office at 256-5144.

New Fund Established For History Student

A new fund, the George S. Lustig History Prize Endowment, has been established here in memory of a 1978 magna cum laude graduate.

Lustig was killed in an automobile accident on Jan. 6, 1980 while returning to Ithaca from a skiing trip. He was a second-year graduate student in Cornell's Department of History at the time.

Gifts that now total more than $5,000 from Lustig's family and friends have been used to establish the prize. A cash award will be made annually beginning in 1984 to a senior history major who is planning to continue studies in history in graduate school. The recipient will be determined through a competition to be developed by the Department of History.

In addition to the prize, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Lustig Jr. of Chestnut Hill, Mass., have given their son's books, some 500 volumes, to the University Libraries. The books, primarily on United States history, are expected to be used heavily by undergraduates.

Dr. Lustig, a 1947 Cornell graduate, said his son "adored books and learning... (H) is one great dream was that he would someday write a book and travel.... He was genuinely fond of people, very sincere, honest and a good friend and brother and son and grandson. We...hope that you express to each recipient that the fund is given with much love."

Ethel Bailey Memorial Service Is Today

Memorial services for Ethel Zoe Bailey are scheduled for 4 p.m. today in Sage Chapel.

Miss Bailey, a zoologist and botanist, worked at the Liberty Hyde Bailey Hortorium at Cornell from its formal establishment in 1935 until last spring. She died July 15 at Tompkins Community Hospital at the age of 93.

A 1911 graduate of Smith College, she collaborated for years in the work of her father, the internationally renowned botanist, educator and author who donated the hortorium that bears his name to Cornell.

Students May Breakfast With President Rhodes

Students interested in having breakfast with President Frank Rhodes are invited to call his office at 256-5201 to make a reservation.

The breakfasts are held periodically from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. during the semester in the Elmhurst Room of Willard Straight Hall. Each breakfast will involve approximately 20 students. Those who attend will be reminded by mail a few days ahead of time.

Land Grant Committee Plans Open Session

The Committee on Land Grant and Statutory College Affairs of the Cornell Board of Trustees will meet in open session at 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 9, at the Cornell Club, 155 E. 50th St., New York City.

The next regular meeting of the Board of Trustee Executive Committee is scheduled for Sept. 13 in Ithaca.

Cornell Careers Program To Begin Third Year

Employees interested in learning job search techniques and exploring career opportunities at Cornell are invited to participate in the fall "Cornell Careers" series.

Tom Devlin, director of the Career Center, will offer the first program at 12:15 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 8, in 202 Uris Hall. Devlin will speak on "Conducting a Successful Job Search: The Basics." Devlin will discuss specific guidelines and ideas to assist employees in their job search at Cornell.

Other sessions this fall will include "Defining Your Career Goals" on Oct. 13; "Identifying Your Skills and Abilities" on Nov. 10; and "Writing Effective Resumes" on Dec. 8. All "Cornell Careers" programs are held 12:15-1:15 p.m. on the second Thursday of each month in room 202 Uris Hall. Employees are invited to bring a brown bag lunch. Coffee and tea are provided.

Those interested do not need to register for the "Cornell Careers" program. For further information, contact the Training and Development section of University Personnel Services, 256-7400.

Labor Day Bus Service Will Be Limited

There will be limited campus bus service on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 5, according to William E. Wendt, director of transportation services.

The AB Local and B Lot-Collegetown buses will run on reduced scheduled throughout the day. The first bus will leave B Lot at 6:45 a.m. Collegetown service will begin at 7:45 a.m. from Sheldon Court, and will continue at half-hour intervals for the day. The Blue Light Bus will operate on its normal schedule.

There will be no Langmuir Lab, Ithaca-Dryden Transit, or East Ithaca Transit service. Ithaca Transit will operate on its normal schedule.

Faculty and staff members whose vehicles are registered with the Traffic Bureau may park on central campus on Labor Day, regardless of type of permit held. Students must park in their regular permit areas.

For further information, call the Office of Transportation Services at 256-4628.

Conservation Poster Prizes Are Offered

Cornell is offering a total of $175 in prize money to the top three winning entries in an energy conservation poster contest open to all registered students at the university.

Friday, Oct. 7, at 4 p.m. is the deadline for submissions. Contest details and applications are available at all university unions. First prize will be $100, second $50 and third $25. Winning posters will be displayed campus wide.

The contest is being sponsored by the energy management office of the university's Facilities Engineering Department to promote heightened awareness of the need for energy conservation on campus, according to William F. Albern, manager of energy management.

The winners will be announced Monday, Oct. 24.

SAGE CHAPEL

Islamic Scholar Convocation Speaker

Mahmoud Mustafa Ayoub, renowned Islamic scholar, will speak at the 11 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 4, Sage Chapel Convocation. Ayoub's sermon topic will be "Redemptive Suffering."

Born in Lebanon, Ayoub has been educated at the American University of Beirut, the University of Pennsylvania and Harvard, where he received his doctorate in the history of religion.

Ayoub is a research associate at the Centre for Religious Studies at the University of Toronto. He has also taught at McGill University and San Diego State University. Among his publications are "A Muslim View of Christianity" and "Redemptive Suffering in Islam."

Music for Sage Chapel services are provided by the Sage Chapel choir and the university organist, Donald R.M. Paterson.

Sage Chapel services are administered by Cornell United Religious Work and are held at 11 a.m. on Sundays when the university is in season.

Cornell 'Happy Hour' Is a National Event

An event that is being billed as "one of the biggest reunions and cocktail parties the Big Red has ever seen," will take place in 15 major cities across the country the evening of Sept. 15.

The Cornell National Happy Hour, a coast-to-coast reunion of Cornell alumni from the '70s and '80s, will be held from 6 to 10 p.m. (local time) that day. Houlihan's Old Place, a national restaurant chain, will be host for the event. In those cities that do not have a Houlihan's, the festivities will take place in alternative locations. Locally, the event will take place at Johnny's Big Red Grill on Dryden Road in Collegetown.

The Cornell National Happy Hour is being sponsored by the Class of 1977 and co-sponsored by other classes of the '70s as well as '80, '81 and '82.

All Cornell alumni from the participating classes are invited to attend. For further information about the Cornell National Happy Hour, contact Steve Leigh, director of class affairs, at 256-4850.

Student Hockey Tickets Go On Sale Sept. 10

Student season tickets for this year's Cornell men's hockey games will go on sale Saturday, Sept. 10.

Ticket manager Peter Mariano said the price of a season ticket will be $54 this year. A full-time student with a Cornell I.D. will be allowed to purchase a maximum of two season tickets.

The actual breakdown of I.D. numbers in regard to which students will have first priority will be announced next week. Specific details regarding the procedure used for the sale of the Season hockey tickets will be announced Friday, Sept. 9, the day before the sale itself.

Tickets for Cornell faculty and staff and the general public will go on sale in October.

Registration Has Begun For EARS Training

Registration for Empathy, Assistance and Referral Service training began on Monday and will continue through tomorrow, Sept. 2, in the Dean of Students Office, 103 Barnes Hall.

EARS provides participants with training in basic counseling skills, with an emphasis on the development of non-directive listening skills. Training sessions will be on Monday nights during the fall semester. The sessions will last two and one-half hours each.

For further information, contact Barbara Beck Garton, 103 Barnes Hall, between the hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
