Cornellian on the Bench

Louis W. Marcus, '89, Appointed to Supreme Court—His Brilliant Career and Popularity.

Louis W. Marcus, LL. B., '89, has been appointed by Governor Higgins a justice of the Supreme Court of New York state to succeed the Hon. Edward W. Hatch of Buffalo, who has resigned from the bench. Mr. Marcus's appointment virtually assures his election to a fourteen-year term a year hence.

Mr. Marcus was admitted to the bar in '89 and in the following year he became a member of the firm of Swift, Weaver and Marcus of Buffalo. He immediately took rank among the ablest of the younger members of the bar and before he had reached his thirtieth year had won the distinction of being one of the keenest practitioners and most successful trial lawyers in Buffalo. His career at the bar was short, however, for in 1895, when he was but thirty-two, he was nominated by the Republicans of Erie county for the office of judge of the Surrogate's Court. Half of his party press bolted the nomination on the ground that he was too young to preside over a court through which in every score and a half of years passes the wealth of the community, close to a billion of dollars. Judge Marcus's opponent was a man twenty years his senior, who stood in the front rank of the Erie county bar. On election day Marcus had almost 5,000 votes to spare, a flattering evidence of the esteem in which he was held by the voters of the county. As surrogate he received a salary of $6,000 a year.

Judge Marcus made good from the very beginning of his term as surrogate and was soon recognized by the attorneys who practiced before him as a man endowed with one of the clearest legal minds on the bench in the western part of the state. In 1901, at the conclusion of his first term, he was renominated and was re-elected by a plurality of over 9,000, which is close to the high-water mark in Erie county.

Some thousand estates have been litigated in Judge Marcus's court in the ten years he has presided over it, and questions innumerable have been decided by him. With each succeeding year the appeals which went up from his decisions have become less frequent, for experience has taught the attorneys of western New York that the rarest thing in their practice is the reversal of a Marcus decision. His work has been of a distinguished character. He has not only contributed largely by his written opinions to the solution of the diverse matters arising in his court, but with great personal energy and persistent effort he has secured many legislative enactments of the highest importance, relative to the curing of defects in the jurisdiction and procedure of the surrogate's courts of the state. To accomplish these results Judge Marcus has been a familiar figure in Albany at the legislative sessions of the past five years.

In the eighth judicial district, as is probably the case in each of the other judicial districts of the state, there are always a half-dozen prominent practitioners waiting for a nomination or an appointment to the Supreme Court bench. Two years ago there were four men of marked ability in Erie county who aspired to the next vacancy. These men withdrew one by one in favor of Judge Marcus and when Judge Hatch resigned in September, Erie county was united for Mr. Marcus. Even if no vacancy had resulted from resignation in the eighth district, the next regular nomination would in all probability have gone to Judge Marcus.

At forty-two, in the very prime of his physical and mental powers, with a splendid judicial training behind him, Judge Marcus comes to the Supreme Court bench. The unanimous verdict of the bar of his home county is that he will be an ornament to that court; that in it he will gain success through the same qualities that brought him success as surrogate—his clearness and brilliancy of mind, his remarkable capacity for work and his absolute honesty and fairness. Judge Marcus is eligible to sit on the Supreme Court bench for the next twenty-eight years and from present indications only his own choice will cut short that term.

Personally Judge Marcus is one of the most engaging of men. He is a brilliant conversationalist and something of a connoisseur in music and painting. He is widely read and a keen judge of men, and his sympathies are as broad as his attainments.

Judge Marcus was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon at Cornell and is a prominent Mason of Buffalo.

CORNELL GLEE CLUB.

Please Great Audience

Musical Clubs of Cornell and Columbia Hold Successful Concert.

One more triumph was added last Friday night to the long list that marks the career of the Cornell Musical clubs. With a Glee club of seventy members and a Mandolin club of sixty-five, the men showed no falling off from the high standard set by smaller clubs of preceding years. When the two clubs took the stage together for the rendition of the football song, "The Big Red Team," and the big audience rose and joined in, the Lyceum theater was made to ring with a volume of melody that has seldom been equalled in its history. The clubs lost a large number of men by graduation last June, but their work Friday night showed that the gaps had been filled and promised well for the season's success.

The Glee, Banjo and Mandolin clubs from Columbia University, which joined in the dual concert, were also received with enthusiasm by the audience and obliged to respond to numerous encores. Although numbering less than thirty members, the Columbia Glee club sang with excellent volume and spirit, and their Mandolin and Banjo clubs rendered several delightful numbers.

The occasion was made a gala affair by the presence of many out of town guests of the fair sex who had come to Ithaca with their chaperons to attend the concert and the football game of the following day. The audience filled every corner of the playhouse, and the "Standing Room Only" sign was displayed long before the curtain rose for the first part.

Next to the football song, which the audience liked because it was invited to join in, the hit of the evening was a new medley arranged for the Cornell Glee club by William Luton Wood. It is a worthy successor to the long line of medleys which have helped to enliven the Glee club concerts in years past. The "Alphonse and Gaston" song was revived for the occasion, and a couple of modernized verses from the lips of Robert Burns, '07, and Neal D. Becker, '05, made the clever ditty take as well as in the days of its prime.

Penn Game Ticket Sale.

The Cornell Athletic association announces that tickets for the Pennsylvania game will be on sale at its offices, 111 North Tioga street, Ithaca, up to Tuesday evening, November 28. Alumni may procure tickets by mailing a check for the number of seats desired, at two dollars each, adding ten cents for registering. So many tickets have gone astray in the mails that the Athletic association declines to send any in future except by registered letter.

More Alumni Elected

Additions to List of Successful Candidates for Office.

Later returns received during the past week show that a number of other Cornell men were chosen to office at the recent election, in addition to the list printed in these columns last week.

While Thomas F. Cassidy, LL. B., '96, was being elected to the Massachusetts senate from the Berkshire district, his friend and classmate, William F. Feiker, also LL. B., '96, was being chosen to a seat in the senate from the neighboring district of Berkshire—Hampshire. The coincidence whereby two college chums and classmates were elected to seats in the same legislative body on the same day from adjoining districts is striking.

John N. Stockwell, jr., LL. B., '97, of Cleveland was elected to the Ohio house of representatives on the Democratic ticket from one of the Cleveland districts.

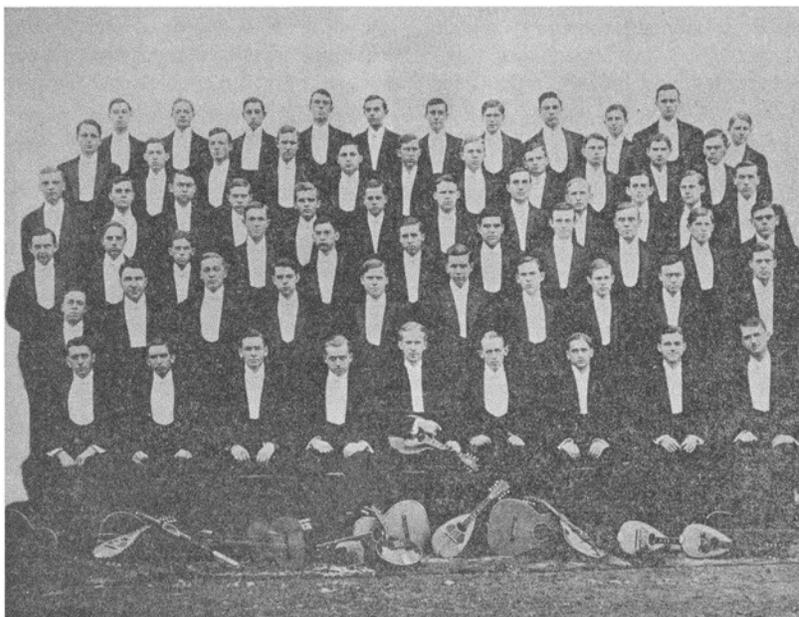

Edward J. Collins, LL. B., '98, was elected president of the Common Council of the city of Newburgh, New York, on the Republican ticket by a plurality of 1,096. Newburgh is the home town of former Governor B. B. Odell. At the recent election the Republican mayor received a majority of only 292 and the Republican candidate for city treasurer, running on the same ticket with Mr. Collins, was defeated.

Thomas J. Surpless, LL. B., '00, was elected member of assembly from the 6th district of Kings county on the Republican ticket. The district is normally Democratic, but with the indorsement of the Municipal league Mr. Surpless carried the district by 3,300 majority.

Henry Kirk Williams, '80, of Dunkirk was elected member of assembly on the Republican ticket from the first district of Chautauqua county. Mr. Williams succeeds to the seat in the New York assembly so long held by the late Speaker Nixon.

This makes a total of eleven Cornell men in the lower house of the New York state legislature at the coming session.

In Lewis county three Cornell men ran for office on November 7. Besides C. Fred Boshart, '84, who was mentioned last week as having been elected member of assembly from that district, D. H. O'Brien, A. B., '02, was re-elected school commissioner, while Romeyn Wormuth, A. B., '01, made a good run on the minority ticket for district attorney.

Dr. Robert F. McDonald, M. D., '01, was one of the successful candidates for the board of coroners of the Bronx. He is said to hold the distinction of being the youngest coroner ever elected to office, having celebrated his twenty-fifth birthday in September. Dr. McDonald graduated with high honors from the Cornell Medical College in New York city, spent two years as house physician at Gouverneur hospital, and is now on the staff of the Bellevue hospital outdoor poor department and lecturer on anatomy at Fordham University.

N. Y. Club Prospering

New Quarters Nearly Outgrown Already—Demand for Rooms.

The Cornell University club of New York is again outgrowing its quarters. For several years the club occupied a small apartment in the Hotel Royalton, in Forty-third street. This afforded scarcely more than a meeting place during the day and evening, but it served a good purpose. It started the "club habit," and formed a body of men on whom the club could depend for patronage when it grew more ambitious. This time came about two years ago. In January, 1904, the Cornell club leased the four-story and basement house at 58 West Forty-fifth street and became the "real thing." Since then it has flourished like a hive of bees in a molasses barrel.

A good restaurant is one of the club's attractions, and the table d'hôte dinner has become so popular that an annex to the dining room had to be provided this fall. The office has been moved, and the space is used to seat a dozen more diners. Eight members live in the house permanently, and the club could rent rooms to many more if it had the rooms. An effort was made recently to get part of an adjoining house for this purpose, but it did not succeed. However, there is a small colony in the neighborhood composed of members who have not been able to get rooms in the house and have compromised on quarters nearby. One bedroom in the house is reserved for non-resident members.

The club believes that before many years it will have a house of its own. The membership, which comprises about 400 residents and 150 non-residents, is increasing as Cornell men in the city find how much return they can get for their twenty dollars a year. For men who have been out of college less than three years the dues are fifteen dollars and for non-residents ten dollars. The class of 1905 has furnished a number of resident members, which is considered a very good sign that undergraduates are finding out about the club's existence and expect to join it as a matter of course if they go into business in New York after leaving Ithaca.

Last spring a committee, of which Arthur H. Sherwood, '01, is secretary, was appointed by the governors of the club to act as intermediary between employers and Cornell men who are seeking an opening in business or a chance to better their situations. This committee has already found places for a number of men, and could have placed as many more if it had had them. Most of its applications are from employers who want young men just starting out.

Team Loses to Columbia

Cornell Outplays Visitors at First, but Weakens in Second Half.

Cornell was defeated by Columbia on Percy field last Saturday by a score of 12-6. During the first half and part of the second Cornell outplayed her opponents in almost every phase of the game, the score at the end of the first period standing 6-0 in favor of the home team. A fumble and several penalties were setbacks to Cornell which compelled her to earn her one touchdown almost twice over, and this entirely by straight bucking, as the backs seemed utterly unable to find their way around Columbia's ends. This long succession of plunges left the men pretty well worn out at the end of the first half.

Then in the second half Columbia played her trump card. Von Saltza, her star fullback, who had been kept out of the game during the first half, was now sent in to strengthen the backfield. For the first fifteen minutes Cornell held sturdily but a blocked punt on her own 35 yard line turned the scale, and after that Fisher and Von Saltza ploughed through the Cornell line for two touchdowns in quick succession. During the last few minutes a whole squad of substitutes was poured into the Cornell eleven, but instead of bracing up the team this seemed only to weaken it the more.

The day was an ideal football day; the sky streaked with scudding clouds and the air crisp with the chill of November. Percy field was thronged with students and grads., and a liberal sprinkling of fair visitors who had come to the city for the concert and the game. The delegation of alumni who were back from all over the country was as large as at any game in recent years. In the covered stand on the south side of the field was a band of about a hundred Columbia rooters, who cheered persistently and effectively throughout the game. Between the halves there was the customary promenade from stand to stand, and many were the greetings and handshakings among the grads. who had not met for two or five or ten years.

The strong west wind which aided the Columbia punters in the first half combined with a fumble by Cornell in one of the opening plays to keep the ball in Cornell's territory during the greater portion of this half. A quarterback run of 35 yards by Collins brought Columbia early within striking distance of her opponents' goal, but she could not gain consistently, and was forced to kick. Two attempts at a field goal missed the mark and Cornell, gaining the ball on her own 5 yard line, carried it to midfield by repeated plunges in which Halliday and O'Rourke did most of the ground gaining.

There Cornell was held, lost on an exchange of punts on account of the strong wind, and began the process all over again. This time a penalty of 15 yards for holding stopped her advance at midfield. Again she gained the ball on a forced kick by Columbia, and this time carried it down the field for a touchdown, one more 15 yard penalty being offset by a fumble on the part of the New Yorkers. The touchdown was made on a quarterback kick from the 18 yard line, Gibson falling on the ball behind Columbia's goal, after a pretty sprint around right end. Halliday kicked a spectacular goal, the ball being partially blocked by a Columbia man, but striking the cross bar and falling over behind the goal.

CORNELL WEAKENS.

In the second half this same seesawing process was continued for some fifteen minutes, Cornell being heavily penalized twice for holding, but offsetting this by throwing Columbia for a loss on two occasions. Finally Walder attempted to punt on Cornell's 35 yard line, the ball was blocked and Columbia started down the field for her touchdown, which Cornell seemed unable to withstand. A few moments later the visitors repeated the trick, carrying the ball 80 yards in ten plunges. Captain Fisher contributed to this by a 45 yard run and von Saltza by one of 35 yards. Cornell now set out manfully to tie the score once again, but only one minute remained to play and the effort was fruitless.

A summary of the game shows that Cornell gained 210 yards to Columbia's 186. In the first half the home team gained 167, and the visitors but 37; while in the second period the proportions were reversed, Columbia getting 149 and Cornell 43. Cornell was penalized five times for a total of 65 yards; Columbia four times for a total of 30 yards. Cornell kicked eleven times for 309 yards; Columbia twelve times for 415 yards. Cornell was held for downs once in the first half and twice in the second, and was forced to kick twice in the first and three times in the second. Columbia was not held for downs at all, but was forced to punt four times in the first period and three times in the second. Cornell fumbled twice and Columbia once.

Cornell's weakness seemed to be in her secondary defence and in her interference, which was slow in starting and ineffective in its formation. Most of her gains were made by straight line bucking, in which O'Rourke was the best ground gainer. His gains were made largely by his individual strength, for he was not backed up as he should have been. Halliday went into the game in very poor physical condition as a result of the Princeton game, but fought splendidly through almost to the very end, when he was replaced by Wolheim.

Columbia's playing was marred by repeated slugging, and in the second half Davis, her right guard, was ruled off the field for a particularly flagrant offence.

Rice Dropped from Squad.

On Monday of last week Coach Warner announced that L. J. Rice, '07, substitute quarterback, who played halfback on last year's eleven, and second base on the baseball nine, had been dropped from the football squad for the remainder of the season. Coach Warner gave as his reason that Rice had been guilty of insubordination and had been stirring up dissensions that seriously threatened the welfare of the team.

This act of discipline was criticized unfavorably by some of the undergraduates and for two days discussion was rife. On Thursday afternoon a largely attended mass meeting of undergraduates was held in Sibley hall, and was addressed by E. R. Alexander, '01, who had come back for a few days to help in the coaching. He pointed out to the men the urgent need that athletics be placed on a broader, more unselfish basis. "The time has come in the history of Cornell," said he, "for us to put aside all social and political cliques which stand in the way of Cornell's progress, and to work in absolute harmony with but a single aim—the welfare of the University and the success of its teams."

The talk produced a remarkable effect. The wavering sentiment seemed to crystallize into a spirit of loyalty to the team and its coach, and on Saturday a procession of six hundred students marched down to the field for the Columbia game.

George Tandy Cook of Canton, O., was chosen president of the Sophomore class by a unanimous vote at the election held recently. Cook is filling the position of left tackle on the Varsity team this year, and is also a prominent member of the track team.

Freshmen Win Supremacy.

The underclass athletic supremacy was finally won by the Freshmen in the football game on November 17, when the Freshman team defeated the Sophomores by the score of 16-6. The Sophomores had won the underclass track meet, and the Freshmen the baseball game, and as the rush had resulted in a tie, it was left for the two football teams to decide the contest for supremacy.

There was much good individual playing by the Sophomores, but the Freshmen won the game through their superior team work. The first touchdown was made by the Sophomores shortly after the game started, as the result of a 70 yard run by Parker, the 1908 fullback. Immediately after the next kick-off the Freshmen secured the ball on a blocked kick at the Sophomores' four yard line, and proceeded to push it over for a touchdown.

After the next kick-off the Freshmen forced the ball down the field to the 29 yard line, when the Freshman fullback, McCutcheon, got through the left side of the 1908 line for a touchdown.

In the second half the playing saw-sawed back and forth until near the end of the game, when the Freshmen took a brace and worked the ball down the field for a third touchdown. The final score was 16-6.

President Schurman's Trip.

In the course of an extensive trip last week President Schurman was entertained by the Cornell club of Brooklyn on Wednesday evening, November 15 and by the University club of Newark, N. J., on the following evening. Fuller accounts of these gatherings will be published in the NEWS next week.

Tickets for Penn. Game.

The Cornell club of Philadelphia has in charge the sale of tickets to the Cornell-Pennsylvania football game on Thanksgiving day, for such Cornellians as are in the vicinity of Philadelphia. Application must be made before November 28. Not over four tickets will be sold to any one person and applicants must be identified as Cornellians. The secretary of the club is Emmett B. Carter, 236 Winona avenue, Germantown, Pa.

Chance
For a Monument.

THE CORNELL UNIVERSITY CLUB of New York has a growing library which is used by hundreds of Cornellians. One of the club's ambitions is to own a complete file of every Cornell publication. Perhaps you have an odd volume which you helped to edit. Keep it, and when you are gone your relatives' children will use it for a stamp album. Send it to the Cornell Club, and it will be a lasting monument to you.

Here are some of the things the club wants:

"Cornellian," 1869-70, 1871-72, 1879-80, and the volumes published by the classes of '85, '86, '87 and 1903.

"Era," Volumes 23, 24, 25, 27, 28, 29 and 32.

"Sun," Volumes 6, 11, 12, 13, 17, 18, 19, 20, 22, 23 and 24.

"Widow," Volumes 3, 4, 5 and 6, and No. 8 of Vol. 9.

Also Class Books, Scrap Books, Posters, Photographs, and Stunts.

Express charges will be paid by

Subscribers to the NEWS are requested, when sending word of a change of address to the business department of the paper, to include wherever possible a personal item for use in the Alumni Notes column. Often it would require but an extra line or two to tell of a change of occupation or of business relations which would be very interesting to the writer's classmates and his fellow alumni in general. The editors publish each week a certain number of items recording a change of address merely, with the idea that these will be of interest to a portion of our readers; but it would be much more satisfactory if these items contained some additional facts regarding the work of the alumnus in question, so as to give them color and more general interest.

The editors wish to announce also that all notices, announcements and other important items for publication in the NEWS must be in their hands not later than Saturday noon preceding the date of issue. This rule has been found necessary in order to get to press in time to mail the paper to subscribers on Wednesday, the date of publication.

THE NEW SPIRIT.

Last week Glenn Warner, acting under authority expressly conferred upon him as head coach of the Cornell football team, dismissed a prominent member of the squad. Mr. Warner took the step because he believed it absolutely imperative in order to preserve the morale of the team. He took the step only after careful consideration and after a conference with the members of the football committee.

We do not propose here to go into a discussion of the justice of Mr. Warner's act. We may state that careful investigation has convinced us that Mr. Warner acted justly and for the best interests of the team. We shall not attempt to explain the grounds for our conclusion, for that would involve a long narration of the details of a controversy extending over several months.

But after all, that is beside the question. The point at issue is not whether Coach Warner was justified in a particular act of authority; but whether that authority itself is to be upheld; whether the power conferred upon him when he was called to be head coach of the football team was a reality or a mere fiction to be swept aside at the first whisper of revolt.

We believe there can be but one possible answer to that question. The absolute necessity of enforcing strict discipline in an athletic team is a fact patent to everybody. In the Cornell crew room there is but one supreme authority—that of Coach Charles E. Courtney. That authority has been exercised many times in the past ten years. It has been upheld as a matter of course, as an essential to the turning out of victorious crews. Anything like insubordination has been summarily dealt with.

That the football team ought to be subject to the same sort of discipline would seem to be self-evident. That the team has not, however, been accustomed to this in the past is shown by the surprise and resentment with which Mr. Warner's action was received in some quarters last week. But the temporary doubt in the undergraduate mind was dispelled by a few moments' plain talk from the one man who was perhaps best fitted for the duty—from Edward R. Alexander. His appeal to the students struck just the right note; it cleared their vision and showed them a new perspective in which the welfare of their University stood out in bold relief and all petty bickerings and selfish personal aims fell at once into the background. Since that day the undergraduates have rallied round the team and its coach in a way that augurs well for the future of Cornell athletics. It may have marked the birth of a new era in the history of Cornell spirit.

PRINCETON'S TRIBUTE.

The current number of the Princeton Alumni Weekly, speaking of the recent Cornell-Princeton game and dual concert, says:

"But if Princeton was victorious on the football field, Cornell certainly won out in the dual glee club concert in Alexander hall on the evening before. The Cornell clubs gave Princeton a rare musical treat, which met with a most enthusiastic welcome. And the good feeling, which was so marked on the occasion of the football game at Ithaca last fall, was augmented at the smoker and reception given by the Right Wing club to both musical organizations, in the Casino, after the concert.

"At the game last Saturday afternoon, Cornell's enthusiastic delegation, about a thousand strong, occupied the large new east stand (which has been built for the Army-Navy game) and in their spirited singing and cheering were in no way surpassed by the cheers and songs of the larger Princeton crowd on the opposite side of the field. The mutual good feeling which has always characterized Princeton's meetings with Cornell was manifested with emphasis all through this game, and after it was over, the Cornell stand, though in defeat, gave Princeton a rousing cheer, and their singing of 'Alma Mater' was one of the most inspiring features of the game."

CALIFORNIANS ACTIVE.

Secretary Charles L. Chandler of the Southern California Cornell club reports that there is nothing but good news to send of the club. The members are continuing their monthly dinners, and now have sixty-seven names on the list, "each representing a Cornelian of considerable animation."

"They are not all alumni," says the secretary, "but we are not drawing the 'degree' line and don't believe in it. Our experience is that there is a great deal of real Cornell spirit in men who for one reason or another were unable to stay at Ithaca for their full courses, and we believe you will agree with us as to this."

Most assuredly the NEWS agrees with them. Its views with regard to non-graduates and their important place in the Cornell world are pretty well known. We trust the University authorities will be converted to the same views when they come to issue the next Ten-Year Book two years hence.

Professor J. L. Morris Dies.

Professor John L. Morris, who retired last year from the chair in Sibley College which he had held for thirty-five years, since the foundation of Cornell University, died at his home in Ithaca on Sunday, November 19, after an illness of only a few days.

A sketch of Professor Morris's long and distinguished career in the service of the University will appear in next week's NEWS.

1905 Records.

Secretary Harold J. Richardson of the class of '05 is making a determined effort to start off his term in that position with a complete set of statistics of the class. The experience of other class secretaries shows how important it is to get this data immediately after the class leaves Ithaca, for otherwise many members drift out of touch with the University and with each other and are not heard of again in years. Every member of '05 to whom the following statement was addressed or to whom it applies is urged to get in line at once:

My dear Classmate:

I find from my records that you are one of the very few who have not yet filed with me your statistics for the permanent class records. I was instructed by the Association of Class Secretaries at their meeting in June, as were all other secretaries, to gather in the outstanding blanks at the earliest possible moment and impressed with the necessity of doing so. Our class is large—over 650 being identified with us—and the job of keeping in touch with every member, consequently, a difficult one. Will you not contribute

Cornell Obituaries.

HARRY N. AVERY, '96.

Harry Newell Avery died at New York city on August 2, 1905, after being ill for only a few days. He was a member of the Cornell University club of New York and was known as a prominent and popular young lawyer in that city.

Mr. Avery was born in March, 1869. He prepared for college at Westport High school and entered Cornell with the class of '96. While at Cornell, Mr. Avery was prominent in student life, running on the underclass teams, serving on his Junior promenade committee, and engaging actively in class politics. He made a wide circle of friends among his fellow students.

After receiving his degree of Ph. B. in '96, he returned to the University for a year and graduated from the College of Law in '97.

In the spring of '98, Mr. Avery accepted a position with the firm of Bowers & Sands in New York city, remaining with this firm until the spring of 1905, when he opened an office for himself. While with Bowers & Sands he made steady progress in his profession and became known as an authority in certain branches of the law.

After beginning the practice of law in his own office Mr. Avery made rapid strides, but just as success seemed achieved, death intervened.

COURTNEY A. SQUIER, '07.

Courtney A. Squier of Ithaca, a Junior in the College of Law, died at the Infirmary, where he had been for ten days, on November 14. He had been in feeble health for some time, but it was not until the middle of October that his condition became serious. At that time he was attacked by hemorrhages of the lungs, and his strength waned steadily until the end, despite the utmost efforts of medical skill.

He was a young man of great promise and was popular with his fellow students and with all others with whom he came in contact. He was active in college life, being a member of the Cornell Glee club, and was financial manager of Percy field.

He came to Ithaca in 1900 from West Nicholson, Pa., where he was born twenty-three years ago. He entered the Ithaca High school and at once won the friendship of his teachers and the high esteem of his fellow students. He was the leader of the High School Glee and Mandolin clubs for several years and was manager of the high school play in his senior year. He was also active in the religious life of Ithaca, being a member of the Methodist church.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Squier of Ithaca, and by a brother and a sister. The funeral was held at the First Methodist Episcopal church in Ithaca and the interment was at the former home of the family at West Nicholson.
