DEAN HUFFCUT A SUICIDE.

Head of the College of Law Believed to Have Been Made Insane by Overwork as Adviser to the Governor.

Ernest Wilson Huffcut, '84, dean of the Faculty of Law, committed suicide last Friday night, May 3, by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. The deed was committed on board the steambot Charles W. Morse between Albany and New York. The only explanation which his friends can make is that Mr. Huffcut's mind had become deranged through overwork. As law adviser to Governor Hughes, he had labored almost incessantly ever since the present session of the legislature began last January in the drafting of bills. Since February 1 he had been on leave of absence from the University and had given all his time to his work at Albany.

Mr. Huffcut left a letter which showed beyond doubt that his act was premeditated. He boarded the Charles W. Morse at Albany on Friday evening just before she left her pier, and he kept to his stateroom in the evening. His body was found on the extreme after part of the upper deck just before the boat reached New York in the morning. It was identified by letters and papers found on the person. There was an envelope addressed to the coroner. It contained two notes. One was:

Coroner of New York:

Please let the addressed have other letter and body as soon as possible. HUFFCUT.

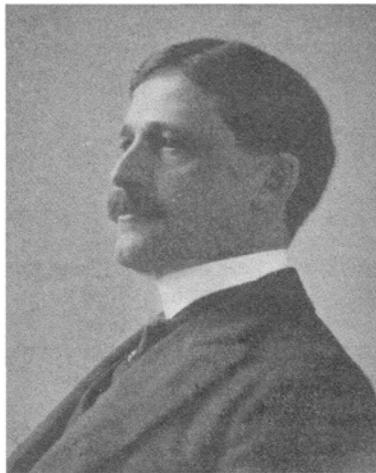

The other note was addressed to Miss Lillian Huffcut, of New York. It read:

DEAR SISTER: I left for Ithaca to-night, but decided to take my body down to you in New York in order that it might be cremated. You will attend to that for me. If you have any difficulty call on my old friend De L., who will assist you.

I am going down the river and enjoying the prospects of going out to sea. The ashes I leave behind may be disposed of at present as the others prefer, but eventually you will take them to Eastlawn. And do not permit any public services of any sort anywhere. If the immediate family want private services in B. [Binghamton, Dean Huffcut's home town], let it be soon, but have no one else.

I was never so glad to rest in my life. We must be quiet and live so. I've been thinking

all the way down the river of some one's lines:

Sweet after toil is sleep; then wherefore sorrow
For him who sleeps and will not wake to-morrow?

Good-by. I don't want you or any of the others to be troubled about this. I've really postponed it often on account of others, but this time I am doing it. After all, in the end, one must have his own way of escape.

You must stay and do what is necessary. Affectionately, ERNEST.

The person referred to by initial in the letter is Elias A. de Lima, '86, president of the Battery Park National Bank, of New York.

Governor Hughes had expected to meet Mr. Huffcut in Albany on Saturday morning to go over with him several bills which were awaiting executive action. The Governor had made an address in Elmira on Friday evening and had left that city for Albany. The engine of his train broke down at Waverly, delaying him, and he decided not to return to Albany but to go instead to New York, where he had an engagement for Saturday evening. He sent a message to his secretary in Albany to have Mr. Huffcut meet him in New York with the bills. Soon after his arrival in New York, the Governor was informed of Mr. Huffcut's suicide. To a newspaper man who talked with him he expressed the greatest sorrow. He said:

I cannot tell you how shocked and saddened I am by this event. Dean Huffcut was not only my legal adviser but had long been my personal friend, and I had the highest admiration for his qualities of mind and heart. He succeeded me in the law faculty at Cornell University and later became the dean of that faculty. He was extremely popular with the students and with the members of the University Faculty, indeed with all with whom he came in contact. He was regarded as one of the most brilliant men who had ever been identified with the University. He was an exceptionally clear thinker and his rare abilities as a lawyer had attracted wide attention.

When Judge Pound went on the bench, Dean Huffcut in the last months of his administration became legal adviser to Gov. Higgins. I found him in that capacity and was only too glad to have the benefit of his services in my administration. I cannot speak too highly of the work he has done in this office.

He has been working very hard, particularly of late, but I had no idea that he was in any danger of a breakdown. When I left Albany yesterday morning he was the last person to whom I said goodbye, and he accompanied me down the elevator, chatting about current matters and apparently in the best of spirits.

Dean Huffcut in his connection with the State administration had entered upon a career rich in promise of the greatest usefulness, and I not only feel a keen sense of personal loss, but that the State has lost one who was qualified for most important public service.

Mr. Huffcut's body was taken by his sister to Binghamton, where the funeral was held on Monday afternoon.

By the University community and by the people of Ithaca the first report of Mr. Huffcut's suicide was received with incredulity, and its confirmation with the deepest sadness. The expressed wish of Mr. Huffcut that no public services be held in his memory was observed by the University, but all exercises in the College of Law were suspended on Monday. After the morning service in Sage Chapel on Sunday, President Schurman spoke as follows:

In deferenc to the expressed wishes of Professor Huffcut, there will be no memorial services at the University, but, had there been a service today, the speaker would have dwelt upon the brilliant mental powers of the man and the depth and breadth of his culture. He would have recognized his mastery of the subject of law and his wonderful lucidity as a teacher and lecturer.

He would have dwelt upon his irreproachable life and character, and he would have signified that genius for friendship which endeared him to so many members of this University. None of these things, however, can be. It appeared to be the wish of our friend that the life and work of the world should not be interrupted by his withdrawal from it. He has gone home. Let us go on with our work.

Accordingly all work in the University will proceed as usual tomorrow and the following days. One exception, however, I make. The students of law who sat in his class-rooms and the professors of law who associated with him daily cannot find it in their hearts to work tomorrow, and in recognition of their feelings and sentiments, work in the College of Law will be suspended on Monday.

The University was represented at the funeral by Director Albert W. Smith, of Sibley College; Emmons L. Williams, Treasurer of the University; Professors Hull, Woodruff and Irvine and Dr. Luzerne Coville, who acted as pall bearers, and by President Schurman. The Beta Charge of Theta Delta Chi, of which Mr. Huffcut was a member, was represented by Horace L. Dawson, '07, of Evanston, Ill.

Mr. Huffcut was born in Kent, Conn., on November 21, 1860, and was prepared for college at the union school in Afton, N. Y. He entered Cornell in the fall of 1880 and was graduated in 1884 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. For a year after graduation he was private secretary to President White. During the years 1885-1888 he was instructor in English in the University and in 1888 he completed a course in the College of Law and received the degree of Bachelor of Laws. For two years he was engaged in practice at Minneapolis as a lawyer. In 1890 he was called to the faculty of Indiana University as professor of law, and in 1892 he went to Northwestern University in a similar capacity. In 1893 he returned to Cornell as professor of law and had held that chair ever since. He had been director of the college and dean of its faculty since 1903, having succeeded Judge Francis M. Finch. Mr.

Huffcut had a keen mind and a great fund of information. He was a brilliant teacher and an able executive and one of the best orators the University ever turned out. His sympathy and readiness to give them advice and encouragement endeared him to his students, and among his fellow professors he was no less liked. He was a member of the American Bar Association and the New York State Bar Association. Among his writings were "The Law of Agency", "Cases on Agency", "The Law of Negotiable Instruments" and "American Cases on Contract", which last was written in collaboration with Professor E. H. Woodruff, and he was the editor of the American edition of Anson on Contracts. Mr. Huffcut was unmarried. His father and mother live in Binghamton.

Mr. Huffcut succeeded Cutbert W. Pound as legal adviser to the late Governor Higgins when Mr. Pound was appointed to a vacancy in the New York State Supreme Court. His term of office expired with that of Governor Higgins on January 1. He had received leave of absence from the University and had made plans to go to Italy for a rest during the spring and summer, when he was invited by Governor Hughes to accept an appointment to the same office he had held under Governor Higgins. He accepted the invitation and gave up the vacation which his friends had been urging him to take.

Milwaukee Men Meet.

Twenty-six Cornell men met on Friday evening, April 19, at the University Club, Milwaukee, to enjoy an impromptu dinner. Like all previous occasions of a similar nature, the evening was one of pleasure to all. Parts from the opera "Panatela," given by the Cornell Masque, were played and sung by the younger members. The record of the baseball team thus far this season was reviewed by E. T. Foote. There have been two additions to the membership of the association, these being P. G. Weidner, '02, and J. O. Dodge, '04.

The Deutscher Verein gave a successful production of "Der Schimmel" in Barnes hall last week.

ELECTION IN BROOKLYN.

Franklin Matthews, '83, New President of the Association.

The most interesting Brooklyn gathering of Cornellians of the year took place on Thursday evening, April 25, at the University Club, when the Cornell Association of Brooklyn held its annual meeting and election of officers. It was the last meeting until fall, and the best attended of the year. A newly appointed entertainment committee, headed by Thomas Downs, '02, had substituted a beefsteak supper for the usual dinner, and the informality of eating juicy slices of steak out of one's fingers, with a foaming mug beside each wooden plate, seemed to enliven the assemblage and give everybody a thorough good time. The members of the class of 1902, who always turn out in large numbers at the meetings of the association, took charge of the singing, led by Downs, who was formerly a member of the Glee Club, and the "old grads" were encouraged to assist in a revival of nearly all the old songs.

Franklin Matthews, '83, cable editor of the New York Sun, was elected president for the new year; William F. Atkinson, '95, who has just been nominated for the presidency of the University Club of Brooklyn, was re-elected vice-president of the association; Joseph W. Cook, '02, was elected corresponding secretary; Richardson Webster, '02, was reelected recording secretary; and Salmon Whitcomb, '05, was elected treasurer.

The retiring president, Dr. Herbert D. Schenck, '82, and the new president both made speeches on the work of the organization, and many other speakers uttered words of praise for the efficient work of Dr. Schenck in organizing the association and giving it a prominent place among the many Cornell alumni associations of the country.

James M. Gorman, '90, reported that the work of collecting funds for the Fall Creek Gorge improvement was going on with an encouraging degree of success, and that the publication of the plans in the ALUMNI NEWS had resulted in bringing in subscriptions from alumni hundreds of miles from Brooklyn. He urged the members to solicit subscriptions from the several hundred

Long Island Cornellians who had not yet made any contribution to the fund. Salmon Whitcomb, '05, reported that the first Cornell dance, on April 13, had been an unqualified success, and that the function would be repeated every year hereafter, with possibly several dances each winter.

Those present were: Dr. John L. Moffatt, '73; H. G. Northrup, '74; J. M. Rudiger, '82; Dr. Herbert D. Schenck, '82; Franklin Matthews, '83; George T. Curnow, '84; F. P. Ingalls, '84; H. L. Carr, '85; W. A. Moss-crop, '88; J. M. Gorman, '90; W. W. Southworth, '93; W. F. Atkinson, '95; George H. Merrill, '96; G. A. Smith, '96; Frank O. Affeld, jr., '97; W. W. Macon, '98; Ogden Merrill, '99; H. R. Cobleigh, '01; C. W. Wilson, jr., '01; H. C. Bushnell, '02; Joseph W. Cook, '02; Thomas Downs, '02; C. A. Hebb, '02; S. G. Koon, '02; Richardson Webster, '02; F. C. Gobel, '03; R. W. Gulick, '03; Whitney Merrill, '03; Charles N. Pinco, '03; W. L. Gass, '04; A. E. Mudge, '04; J. S. Gorrell, '05; A. J. Hare, '05; H. J. Porter, '05; L. D. Speed, '05; A. C. Troy, '05; Salmon Whitcomb, '05; R. A. Wright, '05; C. W. McKay, '06.

Arts Feed and "Segregation".

The men of the College of Arts and Sciences, who have recently formed an organization, held what they called their "first annual feed" in the Dutch Kitchen last Friday evening. The speakers were Professors Catterall and E. W. Olmsted. It had been reported about the hill that on this occasion a movement was to be started toward "segregation." No such movement developed, but some of the newspaper correspondents are said to have been on the lookout for it and to have read "segregation" into some of the speeches, especially that of Professor Olmsted. Here is what he actually said:

I suppose that when my good friend Mr. Eells spoke to me and asked me to say a few words, it was his idea that I should speak in behalf of the men of the College of Arts and Sciences; but my natural gallantry prompts me rather to make a plea for the women of our college.

I am a member of one of the old-fashioned classes that invite the ladies to their reunion banquets, and when I was in college I was occasionally seen in Sage. I know the calibre of the women in Cornell and I believe that they are as capable as the women of any eastern female college of organizing themselves something that shall be really distinctive and interesting.

They have shown their ability in their dramatic organizations and in their athletic organizations. Why should they not also have their own class organizations and their own college organizations, and possibly, too, their own literary and news publications? I believe that their position in Cornell would be rendered in this way more dignified and attractive. Instead of being asked to support that in which they have but scanty interest and for which they have only a minority vote, they might devote their money and ingenuity to developing something that would be distinctive of the women of Cornell.

The alumnae of Cornell have already organized a dinner for Saturday of Alumni Week to make up for the failure of recent classes to issue invitations to the ladies of their class. A class day for the women could be instituted, and customs could be initiated and developed as attractive as the daisy chain at Vassar, or others that might be mentioned. Why should not the women of our University have their own Class Book or even their own Cornellian? They certainly have the ability to produce them.

Possibly the time may come when the authorities of the University may see fit to give them their own instruction apart from the men. That would have certain advantages, and the women would then be freed from many petty annoyances to which they are sometimes subjected, and they ought, I believe, to welcome any such movement as beneficial to their own interests.

Memorial Day Programme.

Several interesting events will take place in Ithaca about Memorial Day this year. There will be a regatta on the lake and a baseball game on Percy Field. On the preceding evening will take place a joint concert of the Harvard and Cornell musical clubs, which will be followed by the annual Navy Ball. The complete programme will be as follows:

WEDNESDAY, MAY 29.

8 p. m. Joint concert, Harvard and Cornell Musical Clubs, Lyceum Theater.
10:30 p. m. Navy Ball, Armory.

THURSDAY, MAY 30.

2 p. m. Baseball, University of Pennsylvania vs. Cornell, Percy Field.
5 p. m. Regatta on Cayuga Lake. First event, race between Harvard and Cornell varsity eights. Second event, race of eights representing Cornell freshmen, Cascadilla School of Ithaca and Stone School of Boston.

Alumni who wish tickets for any of these events may obtain them through the Alumni News.

W. N. Smith, '90, of Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Company, is delivering a course on the electrification of steam railways before the students in electrical engineering.

BASEBALL VICTORY OVER YALE.

Score 2 to 1—Deshon Wins Game With Home Run in Ninth—Team Beaten by Pennsylvania State and Columbia in Long Games.

Cornell beat Yale at baseball last Saturday. The victory was all the more welcome because the team's work earlier in the week had not been encouraging. As a result of poor batting and fielding at critical times it had been defeated on Wednesday in a seventeen-inning game by Pennsylvania State College, and on Friday in a twelve-inning game by Columbia, and this after beating Columbia decisively only nine days before.

CORNELL, 2; YALE, 1.

At New Haven, on Saturday, the team defeated Yale by a score of 2 to 1—the exact reverse of the score last year. A home run by Deshon, the Nicaraguan pitcher, won the game for Cornell in the ninth inning. The Red and White had scored one run in the first inning and the Blue had tied the score in the seventh. Deshon held Yale down to five hits. Parsons, who pitched against Cornell last year, was again in the box for Yale and gave nine safe hits. The field was in poor condition owing to an all-night rain.

In the first inning, Heilman was out on a high fly to Madden. Ebeling was thrown out at first by Kinney. Captain Brown hit to Kinney, who threw to first, but Sweeney dropped the ball and Brown was safe. He advanced a base on Bigelow's single over second. Hastings drove a liner at Cushman, who threw poorly and Hastings was safe. Brown, who had taken a long lead off second, went right on past third and crossed the plate before the ball was thrown in. Higgins was out, Cushman to Sweeney. Cornell now had one run. In Yale's half of the first, Jones was thrown out by Hastings and Madden struck out. Kinney singled, but Watson gathered in Sweeney's grounder.

Watson began the second inning with a clean single over short. He was forced out at second by Reiber's infield grounder, and the same fate befell Reiber when Deshon hit to Cushman. Heilman was safe on Kinney's fumble, but Ebeling was out on a high fly to Sweeney. For Yale, Cushman and Clifford struck out and Church was thrown out at first by Brown.

After Brown had begun the third inning with an easy fly to Madden, Bigelow singled to right, but both he and Higgins were put out on a double play. Chapin, for Yale, reached first on a hit past third, and advanced a base on Parsons's sacrifice. Reiber handled Jones's grounder in good style. Chapin went to third on the play, but Watson retired the side by putting out Madden at first unassisted.

In the fourth, Watson's high fly was caught and Reiber and Deshon struck out. In Yale's half, Kinney got a base on Brown's poor throw to first, but was forced out at second by Sweeney's grounder. Deshon's curves fooled Cushman, and Hastings caught Sweeney trying to steal second.

Things looked promising for Cornell in the fifth inning. Heilman hit safely over second, but Ebeling's grounder to Cushman was fatal to both base runners. Brown singled and stole second. Parsons gave Bigelow a base on balls. Hastings failed to rise to the occasion and dribbled an easy ball to the Yale pitcher. In Yale's half Church was hit by a pitched ball and Clifford sacrificed, but Chapin put up an easy fly to Ebeling and Deshon got Parsons's grounder to first in plenty of time.

Reiber was the only Cornellian to reach first in the sixth. For Yale, Jones went out on a high foul fly to Brown. Madden hit cleanly to center and stole second, but was put out on Kinney's drive to Heilman, who retired the runner and then threw to first in time to catch Kinney.

At the beginning of the seventh inning the score was still one to nothing in favor of Cornell, and so it remained throughout Cornell's turn at bat. Yale, however, succeeded in getting a run. Sweeney reached first on an error and went to third on a wild pitch. Cushman was out at first on Deshon's pick-up, and Church struck out. It looked as if Deshon might avert a run, but Clifford singled over second, and Sweeney came home. Chapin struck out, and the score was a tie.

In the eighth Cornell came near getting a score. Hastings singled, Higgins got a base on Sweeney's error, and then both base runners made a double steal. Watson, however, sent out a fly to Clifford, whose beautiful throw from center field cut off Hastings at the plate. Reiber was out on a fly to Clifford. In Yale's half Parsons, Jones and Kinney were put out easily on infield grounders.

"Nic" Deshon was the first man to bat for Cornell in the ninth inning. With a mighty swing he sent the ball away into left field. While the Yale fielders were chasing after it, Deshon was doing some leg work himself, and he crossed the plate with a home run. After Heilman's fly had been caught by Clifford, Ebeling hit for two bases. Brown was hit by an inshoot and walked to first. Bigelow, however, could do no better than to knock up an easy fly for Kinney. Yale was retired with comparative ease in her half of the ninth. Kinney hit safely over short, but Sweeney and Cushman were out on easy grounders to Deshon. Heilman ended the game by fielding Church's grounder to first.

SEVENTEEN-INNING GAME.

The seventeen-inning contest with the Pennsylvania State team on Percy Field last Wednesday was a pitchers' battle. The visitors got a run in the fourth and Cornell tied the score in the sixth. Nothing more was accomplished by either side until the seventeenth, when five errors in the Cornell infield let in two runs, giving the Pennsylvanians the victory by a score of 3 to 1. Deshon struck out sixteen men and Robert Vorhis thirteen, and neither pitcher allowed a base on balls. The work of the visitors' infield was brilliant. A year ago Cornell beat this team on Percy Field in the sixteenth inning.

Two misplays led to the visitors first run, which came in the fourth inning after two men were out.

The seventeenth was calamitous. Cree, the first man at bat, was safe on Brown's error. Mason's sacrifice sent him to second. L. Vorhis reached first on another error by Brown, and Cree went to third. L. Vorhis stole second, and Hastings, seeing Cree well off third, made a beautiful throw to that base which would have put the runner out had not Brown dropped the ball. Coulson then hit to Heilman, who properly threw to the plate, but the throw was slow and Cree scored. The next man up flied out to Brown. Heilman fumbled another grounder, allowing L. Vorhis to score. Deshon struck out the next man, but the game was lost, for in her half Cornell did not get a man to first.

BEATEN BY COLUMBIA.

The team went to New York on Thursday night and on Friday was beaten by Columbia, 4 to 3, in a twelve-inning game. The defeat was due simply to listless playing. Lovejoy was in the box for six innings, when Gable, a sophomore, replaced him. Gable's work was quite satisfactory except for a costly fielding error.

The members of the Princeton track team were guests at the annual Junior Feed, which was held in the Dutch Kitchen last Saturday evening. James E. Sullivan, of New York, who had acted as referee at the dual meet in the afternoon, was one of the speakers.

The undergraduate Spanish club, La Tertulia, gave a successful performance of "Zaragueta" in Barnes hall last Thursday evening.

CORNELL WINS DUAL MEET.

Princeton Defeated 71 to 46—Weather Unfavorable for Track Work.

Cornell defeated Princeton in the annual dual track meet held on Percy Field last Saturday afternoon. The final score was 71 to 46. Cornell won nine first places out of thirteen events. Princeton won the 100 and 220 yard dashes and the broad jump. Jackson, of Cornell, and Vezin, of Princeton, tied for first in the pole vault.

Considering all the conditions, the work of the athletes was good. The track was slow, the day was cloudy and so cold that the spectators shivered in winter overcoats, and a high wind was blowing. Trial heats were dispensed with in all events.

One of the interesting events was the two-mile run. Eisele was Princeton's only starter, and Cornell was represented by Magoffin, Nobis and Lemon. Eisele took the lead and set the pace, with Magoffin at his heels. Nobis and Lemon were unable to keep the pace and were practically out of the contest at the mile. Seven times Magoffin dogged Eisele around the quarter mile track, and on the last lap, just after passing the clubhouse, he drew out and shot by him. He kept up his sprint to the tape, finishing ten yards ahead of the Princeton runner. His time was 9 minutes 55 4-5 seconds, which was considered remarkable for such a day. It was one-fifth of a second faster than the time in which he won the event in the intercollegiate last year.

The mile and half-mile brought out some good team work on the part of Cornell. In the former event Lewis, who was leading in the stretch, gave Jamieson every chance to win, but the quarterback could not do it and Lewis had to jump in to win the race from McGee, of Princeton. Parsons was Princeton's only entry in the half-mile. Chandler, Townsend and Lewis, of Cornell, took turns in pacing. In the stretch Townsend and Lewis gave way enough to let Chandler by them and then covered his tracks. He won the race and this gave him his C. Townsend was second and Lewis third.

Talcott, of Cornell, beat Armstrong, of Princeton, in both hurdle events. In the low hurdles "Bob" Treman, a sophomore, son of R. H. Treman, '78, was third.

The summary:

100 Yard Dash—Won by Gamble, Princeton; Connors, Princeton, second; Kelsey, Cornell, third. Time, 10 2-5 seconds.

120 Yard Hurdles—Won by Talcott, Cornell; Armstrong, Princeton, second; Hutchinson, Cornell, third. Time, 16 seconds.

440 Yard Dash—Won by French, Cornell; Atlee, Princeton, second; Tittman, Princeton, third. Time, 50 4-5 seconds.

880 Yard Run—Won by Chandler, Cornell; Townsend, Cornell, second; Lewis, Cornell, third. Time, 2 minutes 6 seconds.

Pole Vault—Jackson, Cornell, and Vezin, Princeton, tied for first at 10 feet 6 inches; Mills and Foster, Cornell, tied for third.

220 Yard Low Hurdles—Won by Talcott, Cornell, Armstrong, Princeton, second; Treman, Cornell, third. Time, 25 3-5 seconds.

Putting 16 Pound Shot—Won by White, Cornell, with 42 feet 2½ inches; McCormick, Princeton, second, with 40 feet 2½ inches; Cook, Cornell, third, with 37 feet ½ inch.

High Jump—R. L. Rossman and R. Rossman, Cornell, tied for first at 5 feet 6 inches; Reuquardt, Cornell, third.

Throwing 16 Pound Hammer—Won by Sturgis, Cornell, with 132 feet 6 inches; Cook, Cornell, second, with 132 feet 2 inches; Daub, Princeton, third, with 122 feet 10 inches.

220 Yard Dash—Won by Gamble, Princeton; Hutchinson, Cornell, second; Connors, Princeton, third. Time, 22 3-5 seconds.

One Mile Run—Won by Lewis, Cornell; McGee, Princeton, second; Jamieson, Cornell, third. Time, 4 minutes 41 3-5 seconds.

Two Mile Run—Won by Magoffin, Cornell; Eisele, Princeton, second; Nobis, Cornell, third. Time, 9 minutes 55 4-5 seconds.

Broad Jump—Won by Simons, Princeton, with 21 feet 6 inches; Connors, Princeton, second, with 20 feet 10¾ inches; Gould, Cornell, third.

DEAN HUFFCUT.

Sorrow for a promising life tragically cut off, grief at the passing away of a friend, and regret that Cornell has lost a brilliant teacher are felt by Cornellians of all classes in the death of Ernest Huffcut. It seemed as if almost any career he chose was open to him. If his friends found a fault in him, it was that he asked too little of their sympathy. Students were drawn to him by his power of making their work seem worth while and by his unselfish devotion to their needs. We cannot soon fill his place as teacher, administrator and friend.

THE BLEACHERS.

We have cheer leaders, and we expect them to work. What are they for if not to make the bleachers cheer? And how can the bleachers cheer properly without megaphones to tell them when and waving arms to show them how? Some men are born cheer leaders, and who hasn't cleared his throat and inflated his lungs when our side was just going to bat with the score tied and a born cheer leader faced the stand and called for "Three short ones"? Who hasn't berated the cheer leaders when the opposing pitcher showed signs of "going up in the air" and the stands were losing this splendid opportunity of helping our batters to "knock him out of the box"?

And yet there are some persons who would like to see a baseball game decided on its merits. They think it is unfair to compel a visiting team to face the home team plus all the disconcerting noises the home team's friends can make. There were some of these persons at the game between Cornell and the Pennsylvania State College on Percy Field last week. It must be said, to the shame of the cheer leaders, that they had been "loafing on their job." They probably had not imagined that the game was going to be so close, or perhaps they were themselves so interested in pure baseball that they had forgotten the part they were expected to play in it. Scarcely a yell was called for until well along in the extra innings, when both pitchers began to tire. Then the cheer leaders saw their opportunity and leaped heroically into the fray. This should have decided the game at once, for the Pennsylvania State team had nobody to yell for it. But Pennsylvania State won. It is possible that the yelling "rattled" the wrong side? If we had won the game would the credit have gone to the players or to the yellers?

These persons who like to see a team tested on its merits said that up to the time the yelling began the game had been one of most absorbing interest and of the greatest good feeling on both sides. In the fourteenth inning, when a foul tip caught "Ham" Hastings on his sore finger and the game stopped while "Danny" Coogan solemnly massaged the injured member, the captain of the enemy's team called out from the bench: "He's probably tired out. That's the worst of these long games. Suppose we match for it." A little later "Larry" Vorhis, the Pennsylvania State catcher, ran around the Cornell bench in a vain attempt to catch a foul fly, and as he went back to his place one of the Cornell players said to him, "Good try, old man." The players were actually behaving as if they thought baseball was sport. The cheer leaders must have decided that this pleasantry had gone far enough, for they were soon afterward engaged in trying to "rattle" a weary but obstinate pitcher. Some persons are still asking: If the bleachers had saved the game, would it have been a victory for the team or for the bleachers?

Names for Colleges.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS—Sir: I notice with great pleasure the progressive individualizing, so to speak, of the colleges of Cornell University. In common, no doubt, with many other alumni, I should like to see the colleges renamed. Already we have Sage College, so-called. Why not White College, Agassiz College, Thurston College, etc.? Then the formula for Cornell would run as it does for Oxford:

"I am a Cornell man. What college? White."

Why should the scientific farmer be burdened with a diploma from "the New York State College of Agriculture" when his degree might come from, say, Cascadilla College? A hundred years from now such names will have acquired a character and a history such as are possessed by Christ Church, Balliol and other of the English universities.

F. A. CLEVELAND, '99.
April 21, 1907.

The freshman baseball team beat the Syracuse High School nine 4 to 0 in a five-inning game on Percy Field last Wednesday.

The grading about the new College of Agriculture is almost finished.

OBITUARY.

JAMES H. BRAYTON, '76.

James Henry Brayton, principal of the Raymond public school, Thirty-sixth place and Wabash avenue, Chicago, committed suicide at his home, 6319 Yale avenue, on April 11, by shooting. He had become despondent over ill health and was laboring under the idea that his usefulness was ended. Mr. Brayton was sixty-one years old. He entered Cornell in 1872, taking the optional course. His home at that time was in Englewood, Ill. He remained in college but one year, and then went to Chicago to take charge of the Springer school, of which he was principal for eleven years. In 1884 he was transferred to the Webster school and two years later to the Raymond school. He was past commander of the Englewood commandery, Knights Templar. Mr. Brayton leave a widow, a son—George Brayton, of Pittsburg—and a daughter, Mrs. Albert Beath, of Chicago.

WILLIAM T. KAMMANN, '88.

William Theodore Kammann died at his home in Dubuque, Iowa, on March 8 last. He entered Cornell with the class of 1888, taking the optional course, but remained only three years.

CHARLES M. SMITH, '91.

Charles Marvin Smith, B. L., '91, died at Hamburg, N. Y., on March 4 last.

ELIZABETH A. DOUGHTY, '02.

Miss Elizabeth Almy Doughty died at her home in Matteawan, N. Y., on April 17, after an illness of about ten days. She was twenty-eight years old. At Cornell she was a member of the class of 1902 and graduated in the Arts course.

University Preacher.

Dr. William Everett, Unitarian, master of Adams Academy, Quincy, Mass., occupied the pulpit of Sage Chapel last Sunday.

Robert Stanton, '07, who was painfully burned in an explosion in the chemical laboratory in February, has left for his home in Paris. He is a son of Theodore Stanton, '76.

REUNION NOTICES.

BACK TO ITHACA!

As Young As Ever.

They will all be there: Maurice Whinery, who has positively agreed not to talk baseball; Cupid Brinckerhoff; Richardson Webster, now one of the rising politicians of Brooklyn; Hal Chase, with the San Francisco débris all brushed off; Gene Batchelar, who will leave Philadelphia five days ahead of time so as to get there; Tower Taussig, as india-rubbery as ever; Harry Powley, Tony Beltaire and Joe Kittredge, who retain their ornamental as well as their other good qualities.

In fact, those of us who do look old, after these five years, have been directed to shave off the beards and are guaranteed to look as young as ever.

One definite announcement can be made at this time. It is remarkable the secret has been kept so long. The much heralded 1904 Water Wagon is being brought to Ithaca for the express purpose of being presented to 1902. Your committee, however, decline to state at this time what we will do to it. Elaborate preparations have been made for the presentation ceremonies, and Heinie Burgweger will make the formal address of presentation, Susan B. Anthony Kelly accepting the gift on behalf of the rest of us.

1904 Bulletin XIX.

Six weeks—five weeks—such a little while to the Ides of June! Imagine the scene on those same Ides. The hills, the lake, the town and the university with all their gold beads on in honor of the occasion! The W. W. spread with garlands, wreaths and votive offerings, rolling into town from one side; the gang rol—marching in from the other! The innumerable brass bands! Breathes there a man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said, "Sure"?

Nothing has been omitted in the way of preparation. From where we sit, it looks as though it only remained to see that no slip-up occurs and to end the contest for Grand Marshal. All the boys are coming—the thin, the fat, the lame, the halt, the blind and the married. Their various troubles can't stop 'em in a matter of such vast moment.

And the costumes! It's hard not to blurt the whole thing out. We'll admit right here, though, that they will cost but the nominal sum of $2.50, that the fabric is "approximately-velvet," a material which will afterwards make up into ornate and serviceable costumes for the children and that, apart from the fun of the thing, the costumes are a "good buy."

But enough! The Ides of June, remember. SURE! EVERYBODY IS.

SEATTLE ALUMNI DINE.

Centenary of Ezra Cornell's Birth Observed on the Pacific Coast.

The Cornell alumni of Seattle and the Puget Sound district celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Ezra Cornell by a banquet held at the University Club in Seattle on Saturday evening, April 27. H. W. Treat, '88, acted as toastmaster. The toasts of the evening were responded to as follows: "Ezra Cornell", by Frank B. Cooper, '82; "Reminiscences", by Frank Barnard, '74; "Pioneers of Cornell", by John A. Rea, '69; "Charles E. Hughes—a Type", by Frank D. Nash, '72. Mr. Rea paid a glowing tribute to his classmate, Senator Foraker, of Ohio. Mr. Nash expressed the sentiment of nearly all present when he said that either Charles E. Hughes or a man of the same type would be the next President of the United States. The exercises of the evening were closed with a toast to "Prexy" Schurman, in which every one joined heartily.

The following men were present:

George B. Kittinger, '86; E. A. Duffy, '03; J. D. Hull, '03; Thomas D. Stimson, '08; Lawrence Arnold, '06; Mark D. Rector, '09; E. B. Chinn, '99; Cyrus A. Whipple, '03; W. L. Hoffman, '98; John A. Dempsey; Raymond P. Tarr, '98; Thomas F. Kelly, '02; W. A. Hamilton, '02; H. W. Rutherford, '06; S. H. Kelleran, '03; S. D. Chalmers; M. H. Ingersoll, '97; James B. Kinne, '02; Mark Odell, '97; Frank I. Barnard, '74; Frank D. Nash, '72; John A. Rea, '69; H. W. Treat, '88; Frank B. Cooper, '82; James A. Haight, '79; Harold Preston, '79; W. M. Somerville, '92; C. B. LaMont, '00; Carl M. Johanson, '92; Albert H. Beebe, '01; Stirling B. Hill, '05; Walter W. Hay, '99, and Felix R. Caldwell, '03.

There is a large number of Cornell men in western Washington and a strong organization is developing. Cornell men coming to the Northwest are requested to register their names with the secretary-treasurer, Albert H. Beebe, 26 Haller building, Seattle.

The C. E. Camp.

Ninety-five juniors will be taken to the Civil Engineering camp early in June. The camp will be near Etna, and for a month the men will continue the survey of the Fall Creek watershed begun several years ago.

Rain and the Centennial have delayed intercollegiate baseball.

ALUMNI ANNOUNCEMENT.

Cornell Railroad Men.

In view of the success of the banquet held last year, plans are being formed to bring together again all the Cornell men in attendance at the conventions of the Railway Master Mechanics and Master Car Builders, to be held at Atlantic City, June 12 to 19, by means of a banquet, to be held at the Marlboro-Blenheim Hotel on the evening of Saturday the 15th. It is requested that all Cornell men able to be there at that time leave their names and hotel addresses with Mr. E. A. Averill at the booth of the American Engineer & Railroad Journal located in the entrance hall of the Steel Pier, as soon after arrival as possible so that arrangements can be made for the proper number at the banquet.

Taylor Wins Woodford Prize.

The thirty-seventh annual contest for the Woodford prize in oratory was held in the Armory last Friday evening, and the prize was won by William Winthrop Taylor, of Brooklyn. The judges were President L. C. Stewardson of Hobart College; Judge C. H. Blood, '88, of Ithaca, and Frank A. Abbott, '90, of Buffalo. Taylor's oration was entitled "An Age of Optimism." In it he considered some of the evils which are to be found in American life to day, and concluded that the outlook for the country was rather good than bad.

Taylor was also chosen as Cornell's representative in the contest of the Central Oratorical League, to be held in Chicago this week. But, owing to illness, he was forced to reject the opportunity to enter the League contest and Joseph Henry Kohan, of Brooklyn, who was second choice of the judges, will be the representative. His oration was "When Shall the Jew Pass"?, and he will deliver this at the contest of the League.

Taylor, the winner of the Woodford, is president of the senior class and is studying law. He has won numerous undergraduate honors in debate.

The senior banquet will be held next Saturday evening.

“There's a lot of things you never learn at School.
There's an awful lot of knowledge you never learn at College.
There's a lot of things that never go by Rule.”
However, they do learn at Cornell that TODD'S is the Pharmacy at Ithaca.
