TWO BUILDINGS in the eastern part of the Campus are about completed, so far as the steel and masonry construction is concerned. They are intended for the departments of forestry and animal husbandry of the College of Agriculture. The latter building is east of the new athletic field, near the barns. Between it and the barns will be a large judging pavilion. The forestry building is near the Carnegie filtration plant. Bids for the new stock judging pavilion will be opened this week. It is to be a steel structure, faced with brick, and will have a tanbark arena 160 by 80 feet. The old judging pavilion will probably be given to the department of farm management.

A BRANCH LABORATORY of the United States Bureau of Mines has been established in Morse Hall, in connection with the department of chemistry. This is only one of many instances in which that department has lent its assistance to the Government and others for the study of special problems. Investigations will be made here in problems related to the manufacture of brass and other alloys of copper. Dr. H. W. Gillett and Dr. J. M. Lohr are making the experiments under the direction of Dr. Charles Lathrop Parsons, B.S., '88, chief mineral chemist of the Bureau of Mines, and Professor Bancroft. The director of the Bureau of Mines is Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, B.S., '81.

LEE F. HANMER '00, director of the department of recreation of the Russell Sage Foundation, is here this week as a lecturer in the course on citizenship. His subject is "The citizen and the recreation needs of the community." The introductory lecture of the series was given last week by Clinton Rogers Woodruff of Philadelphia.

THE MUSICAL CLUBS have chosen the night of November 14, the eve of the Lafayette game, for their fall concert. After the concert there will be a military hop at the Armory. It was at first planned to hold these events at the time of the Michigan game. But so many Michigan undergraduates and so many Cornell alumni are expected in Ithaca for that game as to make it impossible for fraternities to give house parties at that time. So the later date was chosen. It is reported that Michigan students are coming to Ithaca in two special trains.

THE JUNIOR CLASS ELECTION is being held as this paper goes to press. There are two candidates for president—Charles Shuler, of Davenport, Iowa, and David F. Taber, jr., of Brooklyn. All the offices are contested. The class will follow the example of the seniors and vote whether its affairs this year shall be "wet" or "dry."

THE JUNIOR PROMENADE last winter made a profit of $572.43, according to the report of the chairman of the committee, R. A. Doyle. The total receipts were $6,020.20, and the expenses were $5,447.77. The balance has been turned into the class treasury. A profit of $239.34 has been reported by the 1916 freshman banquet committee.

ALBERT F. COUTANT '13, now a graduate student, has been elected general secretary of the Association of Cosmopolitan Clubs of America. The club at Cornell had the privilege of filling that office this year, and it elected M. A. Gonzalez '13 last spring, but Mr. Gonzalez resigned because he is to be absent from the University this year. Charles L. Slocum '14, of Ithaca, was elected secretary of the local club in place of K. Z. Lin '15, resigned.

"THE CORNELL ANNUALS" has filed articles of incorporation and the merger of the editorial boards of the Cornellian and the Class Book is now complete. The new company is authorized to issue capital stock up to $5,000. The officers are: M. R. McMicken, editor-in-chief and president; R. S. Lasher, business manager and treasurer; C. O. Benton, vice-president; R. B. Lee, secretary; R. E. J. Summers, C. W. Worcester and M. S. Halliday, directors.

ISWZA, a local society established at Cornell in 1908, has obtained a charter of Lambda Chi Alpha, and will be Omicron Zeta chapter of that fraternity. Lambda Chi Alpha was founded at Boston University in 1911 and now has twelve chapters. The Cornell chapter has the house at 614 Stewart Avenue. It has been admitted to the interfraternity association

A PARADE OF UNDERGRADUATES marched from State Street to Percy Field for the Carlisle game. About 600 were in line, headed by the cadet band. Special hats were worn, varying in color according to the class of the wearer.

SIX EIGHTS, two of them composed of freshmen, were boated last Saturday afternoon and had practice on the upper Inlet. The practice was continued this week. The freshman crew registration shows no falling off in numbers this year, and the squad includes several members of last season's successful Cascadilla crew.

THE WALKING CLUB proposes to repair the paths in Fall Creek Gorge and to make some new ones there. C. H. Olmstead '15, of Troy, has been elected president of the club for this year.

DREDGING in the Inlet will be resumed this week and the contractors expect to complete the work before freezing weather comes. About all that remains is to dredge the terminal basin and slips opposite the university boathouse. Concrete walls and docks have been built there. The silt will be pumped upon the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company's lands west of the Inlet.

WILLIAM R. THAYER of Boston will lecture here late this month on "The Makers of Italian Unity." Mr. Thayer is the author of "The Dawn of Italian Independence," "Life and Times of Cavour," and other books on Italian history. He has been the editor of the Harvard Graduates' Magazine since 1892. He will be the guest of Dr. Andrew D. White.

THE AUDITORIUM of the College of Agriculture is reported to have an echo which threatens to impair the usefulness of the building. A fair test of the hall's acoustics has not been made yet, for the seats have not been put in. Reverberation in an empty hall does not always prove that there will be a troublesome echo when there is a large audience in the hall.

Large Increases Reported by Arts and Agriculture

The table printed below shows the number of new and of old students in the several colleges of the University on October 9, 1913, also figures taken at about the same time in 1912 and 1911, and the increase or decrease in numbers in each college this year as compared with the early figures of 1912 :

Grand totals .. 4635 4501

The only medical students counted are those at Ithaca, and they are all new students because all the work of the later years of the course must be taken in the college at New York. There will be two more students in the college at Ithaca. They had not yet matriculated when these figures were obtained.

In the College of Arts and Sciences there will probably be five more old students this term, and the number of new is expected to be at least 400. Some of those counted as new students were enrolled last year in other colleges of the University, and others come with advanced standing from other institutions. The registration in the college this year is the largest in its history.

In the law school the falling off is in old students. There are 49 seniors, as compared with 72 last year. The class of 1913 was the last class which entered the law school under the old requirements. The sophomore class is also smaller, because of a decrease last year in the entering class. That was probably occasioned by the new requirements for admission to the New York bar, which added a year to the required period of study. Of the 89 new law students, 72 are registered in the first year of the four-year course and 17, having had at least one year of college work either at Cornell or elsewhere, are in the first year of the three-year course. Not included in the law school total of 264 are 22 Arts seniors who are taking work in the school.

The Veterinary College expects two more students this term than the number reported above. Last year the college found that it was receiving some students who had failed to enter other colleges of the University and who did not intend to complete the veterinary course. This year it insisted strictly that applicants present the veterinary student's certificate of the state education department.

Of the 250 new students in Sibley College 238 are freshmen; a few are men who are taking the work of the freshman year a second time. The falling off in numbers in that college is attributed to higher entrance requirements and to the fact that, owing to economic changes, agriculture now offers a profession to many men who formerly would have gone into engineering.

An increase of 178 students is shown in the College of Agriculture. This increase is almost entirely in the number of old students. There would have been many more new students but for a strict enforcement of entrance rules. Until this year the college admitted students who were conditioned in not more than one entrance subject; last year the number so admitted was forty; this year no applicant was accepted who had a single condition, and the college held strictly to the fifteen-unit rule. As a consequence about fifty applicants for admission were excluded. In making a comparison of this year's figures with last year's, therefore, the fact must be taken into account that but for the stricter application of the rules the number of new students this year would be more than fifty greater. The college is now in a position to hold absolutely to the entrance requirements.

In the College of Civil Engineering about twenty of those classed as new students came with advanced standing. The number of freshmen is nine larger than last year.

Fraser Scholarships

Awarded Respectively to C. C. Lemnitzer and A. E. Disinger

The Fraser Scholarships in the College of Law, established in memory of Alexander Hugh Ross Fraser, late librarian of the Law Library, were awarded on October 9, the First Scholarship to Coe Charles Lemnitzer, of Honesdale, Pa., and the Second Scholarship to Allen Eugene Disinger, of Lockport, N. Y.

These scholarships are awarded annually to seniors, the Boardman Scholar being ineligible. The Faculty selects a group of men deemed worthy on the basis of high scholarship, and the class elects the two scholars from this group, basing its choice upon considerations of manliness and general character.

The following names were submitted by the Faculty to the class, as constituting the group eligible by reason of scholarship :

David Cohen, Ithaca; Allen Eugene Disinger, Lockport; Harry Louis Drescher, Brooklyn; John Francis Greaney, Newburgh; Coe Charles Lemnitzer, Honesdale, Pa.; Nathaniel Lester, Brockport; Gil Rafael Ponce, Panama City, Panama; John Beaman Putnam, Fredonia; Remington Rogers, Brooklyn.

The Fraser Scholarships were established by William Metcalf, LL.B., '01, of Pittsburgh. The Boardman Scholar this year is Harry Zelic Harris, of Olean.

The Senior Societies

Fall Elections from the Class of 1914

The senior societies have announced their fall elections from the class of 1914. Eight members were added by Sphinx Head and one was added by Quill and Dagger to those announced last spring. The membership of the two societies is now as follows :

Sphinx Head

Arthur Murray Acheson, Chicago; baseball team; Delta Upsilon.

Alba Stenson Ainsworth, Gilbertsville; basketball manager; Beta Theta Pi.

Edwin Hunter Clark, Union City, Pa.; manager 1914 Cornellian; Theta Delta Chi.

Otho Myron Clark, Rochester; captain, hockey team; Sigma Nu.

Philip Joseph Coffey, jr., Long Island City; track team; sophomore president.

Thomas Bouldin Crews, St. Louis; manager, track team; Beta Theta Pi.

Guernsey Thomas Cross, Neversink; basketball team; Alpha Chi Rho.

Lawrence Eddy, Canaan, Conn.; varsity crew; Zodiac.

Richard Greenwood, Philadelphia; navy manager; Phi Delta Theta.

Gilbert Coutant Halsted, jr., Brooklyn; captain, basketball team; track team; Phi Kappa Psi.

Harold Camerden Halsted, Brooklyn; basketball and baseball teams; Phi Kappa Psi.

Hosea Dexter Hyland, Weymouth, Mass.; varsity crew.

Ralph Montgomery Johnson, Ogden, Utah; manager, wrestling team; Delta Chi.

Harold Slada Kinsley, Buffalo; track team; Theta Xi.

Ramsdell Stanton Lasher, Evanston, Ill.; business manager The Cornell Annuals; Phi Gamma Delta.

Sturgis Samuel Lawler, Minneapolis; football manager; Psi Upsilon.

Quill and Dagger

Donald Alexander, Canton, Ohio; head of C. U. C. A. social service work; Alpha Delta Phi.

Alexander Hayes, Springfield, Ont.; business manager, the Sun; Delta Phi.

Emerson Hinchliff, Rockford, Ill.; editor-in-chief, the Sun; Kappa Sigma.

Maurice Rey McMicken, Seattle, Wash. president, The Cornell Annuals; Sigma Chi.

MacRae Parker, Washington, D. C.; president, C. U. C. A.; Telluride.

Harry Ernest Schirick, Kingston; baseball captain.

Norman Stewart Stone, Wausau, Wis.; manager, freshman baseball; Delta Phi.

CORNELL WOMEN OF WASHINGTON

The Cornell Women of Washington held their annual meeting for the election of officers on October 3, with Miss Eliza Tonks. Mrs. George Ashley was elected president, to replace Mrs. A. C. Muhse, who expects to spend the coming year in London. Miss Elizabeth Donnan was elected secretary, and Miss Margaret Connor treasurer. The remainder of the evening was spent in informal discussion of the work of the past year and plans for the future.

Exhibition of Drawings

Work Done by Students in Architecture in the Summer

An exhibition of work in drawing and composition done by students of the College of Architecture during the summer vacation was opened this week in White Hall. It will continue through next week. Prizes will be awarded for the best work.

The Faculty established this competition last spring with the idea of encouraging students to make the most of the long vacation for keeping up their architectural studies. The four-year course is about as full of instruction and opportunity for work as can be. It was hoped to give students an incentive for summer work that would contribute to their progress in the college. Three series of prizes were offered, and in June students were invited to submit work at the end of the summer in competition. About twenty have responded with more than a hundred exhibits—sketches and drawings, and a few photographs.

Prizes were offered for three classes of work: sketching in any medium, measured drawings of executed work, and photography. In photography the standard is simply composition and not technical excellence. What is sought in the photographic work is to teach the student to know a "picture" when he sees one and to lead him to acquire some skill in selecting the elements of his picture.

The exhibition includes some contributions by alumni of the college. One of these is a group of eight excellent sketches in oils by Henry G. Kanzler '13. The sketches were made near his home in Saginaw, Michigan. E. M. Urband '13 sent two sketches made in New York during the summer.

Among the exhibitors are S. B. Elwell '14, Cambridge, Mass.; R. L. Kaiper '14, Covington, Ky.; R. E. Coate '14, Richmond, Ind.; B. M. Douglas, jr., '15, Chicago, Ill.; G. L. Kaufman '15, New York City, and H. S. Kirchner '15, Chicago. Kaufman exhibits a measured drawing of the portico of Trinity Church, New York, besides several sketches. Elwell is a son of Frank Edwin Elwell, the sculptor, and came here from Harvard College. He shows talent in several watercolor sketches made in Europe during the summer. There are many drawings by other exhibitors than those named which are above the ordinary in merit.

There will be six prizes, a first and a second in each class. Standard books on architectural subjects will be given to the winners. A few Ithaca friends of the college contributed the prizes this year. The Faculty is encouraged by the success of the first competition and hopes to hold one every year.

Senior Class Elections

A Divided Vote on the Question of Serving Drinks at Class Affairs

In the senior class election last week an opportunity was given to vote whether the serving of alcoholic drinks should be permitted at various class functions. The result was an even break between the "wets" and the "drys." The class voted, 295 to 213, that the senior banquet should be dry. There were slightly smaller majorities in favor of putting no prohibition on the senior boat ride and the "senior nights," and there was a majority of 44 in favor of barring intoxicants at all the other class functions.

As reported in the NEWS last week, J. J. Munns was elected president of the class without opposition and several other offices were filled in the same way. Heber Wallace Peters, of Yonkers, was elected life secretary of the class. He is a son of H. C. Peters '92. Other results were: treasurer, H. D. Hyland, Weymouth, Mass.; class orator, B. W. Hendrickson, Brooklyn; ivy orator, C. N. Whitman, Ithaca; memorial orator, A. H. Henderson, New York. There were no nominations for the offices of class prophet, class historian and sergeant-at-arms, and they will be filled by appointment.

The women of the class elected the following officers: president, Eva Marcella Haigh, Brooklyn; vice-president, Bernice Lee Spencer, Pennellville; secretary, Mary Abell Doty, Geneseo; class essayist, Margaret Grace Merriss, Brooklyn; class poet, Lewette Beauchamp Pollock, Alliance, Ohio; members of the executive committee, Louise Cluett Bontecou, Troy; Merle Marion Mosier, Brooklyn; Miss Doty, and Ruth Helene Bayer, Toledo, Ohio; members of the election committee, Natalie Brookes Thompson, Jersey City, and Charlotte Tilden Sherman, Buffalo.

BOOK AND BOWL held its first meeting of the year last Thursday night at the Delta Phi House. Norman S. Stone resigned the presidency and J. B. Putnam was elected to the office.

Old Rowing Days Recalled

C. S. Dutton at Crew Celebration Tells of the Regatta of '73

The 1913 crew celebration was held on the Library Slope last Friday night. It was a fine night for an out-door meeting. The hill was crowded with a few thousand enthusiastic undergraduates who had assembled to honor the Cornell crews. The program was similar to those of former years, with speeches, songs, red fire and cheers. A parade led by the cadet band formed at Sheldon Court about 8:15 o'clock and after marching about the campus went to the speakers' platform, near which a great bonfire was started.

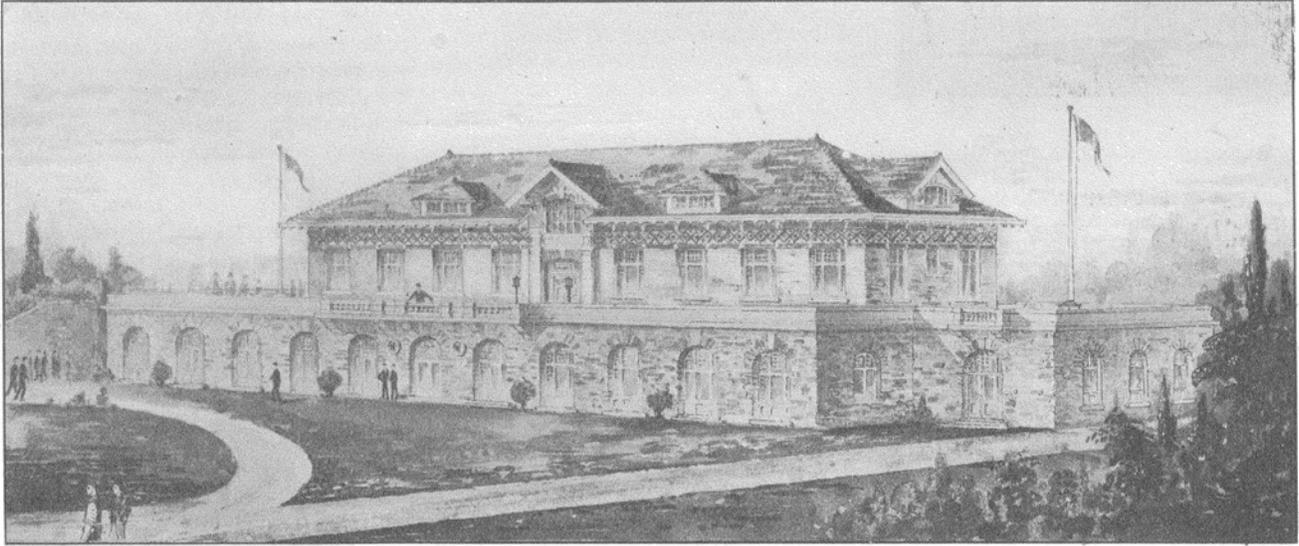

After the singing of "Alma Mater," Professor J. E. Rice '90 took his place as chairman. He recounted some of Cornell's rowing history and said that a high standard of clean athletics had been maintained here.

Eugene Buckley, of the Boston Globe, was the first speaker. He praised Mr. Courtney and the Cornell crews. The Glee Club then led in the singing of the "Rowing Song" and responded to two encores.

Dean Irvine received a hearty welcome when he took the speaker's stand. He said he could tell in a few words the real reason of the defeat of the varsity eight last June. The previous speaker had explained it but had not given the reason. In the words of the Dean, the real secret of the defeat was that the Syracuse boat was just two-thirds of a length ahead of the Cornell shell. He praised the spirit of loyalty that the students had shown to the crews, and said that the last eight-oared varsity contest was the best race he had ever seen on the Hudson.

The presence of Charles S. Dutton '73, who rowed in Cornell's first intercollegiate race, was a surprise. His reminiscences of the first days of Cornell rowing were very interesting and threw light on the hardships those pioneer oarsmen had to contend with. Just forty years ago, Mr. Dutton said, Cornell made her bow in rowing circles. At that time the property of the Cornell Navy consisted of a four-oared boat and a single shell. Even at that early day Charles E. Courtney was an inspiration to the oarsmen of Cornell.

In 1872 Cornell had a rowing squad anxious to compete with the older universities, but, Mr. Dutton said, if they had gone to the race it would have been necessary for them to walk and carry their boat. So they did not go. However in 1873, while there was no gymnasium or athletic association, the sum of $1,500 was raised and the crew was sent to Springfield. In that first race there were eleven crews entered. The course stretched three miles down the river and it was not by any means straight, for the reason that the river wasn't straight. Positions were drawn, and it was the fate of Cornell to get one of the poorest. As Mr. Dutton put it, Cornell may have come in second in that race, probably did come in third, but at any rate was awarded fourth place. Considering that this was the first appearance of Cornell in competition with older and well trained crews, the work in this race surely must be counted a victory.

Mr. Dutton, who was the oldest member of the crew, is now in his sixty-sixth year.

Mr. Courtney attended the meeting but could not be persuaded to speak. The celebration closed with the singing of the "Evening Song." After the meeting a parade was formed and marched to Mr. Courtney's house on Eddy Street, where the cheering continued for some time.

THE STATUE which stood above the drinking fountain at the City Hall and which was broken during a freshman class jubilation a few days ago will be repaired and restored to its pedestal at the cost of the three upper classes. The class presidents met and voted that money to pay for the repairs should be raised at once.

New Prize for Running

F. W. Poate Gives the Cross Country Club a Handsome Trophy

A handsome and original bronze trophy will be presented to the Cornell Cross Country Club by Frederick W. Poate '05, of Shanghai, China. The trophy is given by Mr. Poate to promote interest in the club and offer an incentive to cross-country running.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the club it was decided that the trophy should be awarded each year for one year to the new varsity man having the best record for the year who was not a winner of the freshman cup and who did not make the freshman team. Considering that the awarding of the freshman cup is still to continue, it was thought best to give the new trophy to a man who did not win cross-country honors in his freshman year.

The trophy is unique. It is a bronze figure, nineteen inches high, representing an athlete breaking the tape. It is mounted on an ebony base. Besides the inscription plate there will be space for the engraving of about thirty names of winners. The trophy is to remain in the possession of the Cross Country Club, but the winner, besides having his name inscribed on the big trophy, will also receive a silver cup to be kept by him permanently. This year the smaller cup will also be the gift of Mr. Poate, but in future years it will be purchased by the club.

The trophy is similar to one which Coach Moakley had in mind and which the Cross Country Club had intended to purchase, but is handsomer and more costly.

At the request of Mr. Poate the prize is to be known as the "Lung Mow" trophy. Those words mean "increasing prosperity." There is sure to be keen competition for the new prize. Judging from the results of a novice race held last week, there are already two sophomores, five juniors and seven seniors who promise to make sharp fighting for the cup.

There was some very creditable running in the first novice race held last Friday. The winner made the three mile course in 15 minutes 45 seconds, and of the forty-five entries there were several who made good time. These novice races will be held from time to time and will figure in the competition for the new trophy. The time made by the runners in the novice meets will be compared with the varsity trials with a view to giving new men a place on the varsity team.

Poate was a member of the cross-country and track teams. He still competes with considerable success in running and walking events in China. Together with Barrett Smith '04, he was the originator of the freshman cup, which for the past seven years has been an incentive to freshman runners.

THE LECTURES on the history of civilization will be continued this week by Professor Schmidt, who will speak Friday on "Our debt to the excavator."

ONLY TWO COLLEGES of the University show a large increase in numbers of students this year. The College of Agriculture has gained slightly more than the net increase of the whole University. The College of Arts and Sciences also reports a continued growth and is now larger than it ever was before. It is not hard to explain the increasing numbers of students in agriculture. That fact is due to economic influences which are country-wide. As Professor Bailey has expressed it, the College of Agriculture here is now having its turn in growing large, just as the colleges of engineering swelled for a while. Many young men who would have been attracted to the engineer's profession a dozen or twenty years ago are now interested in agriculture. An explanation of the growth of the College of Arts and Sciences may not be so easy to make. Partly, no doubt, the growth there is caused by more students coming here to study chemistry as a profession, for the department of chemistry is still within the arts college, although many of its students are doing purely technical work. But that is only one factor, and perhaps a minor one. It is interesting to note that the students of the two state colleges now comprise almost exactly one-third of all the undergraduates in the University. Ten years ago there were 227 students in the College of Agriculture and the Veterinary College; now their total number is 1471, and of these 1350 are in the College of Agriculture.

INTERSCHOLASTIC COMPETITION IN ARCHITECTURE

At a conference of the representatives of the schools of architecture at Columbia, Harvard, McGill, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Syracuse, and Cornell, held in New York City on Saturday, Oct. 11, for the purpose of arranging a competition for this year, an interesting fact came out concerning last year's competition.

At the preliminary conference last year it had been decided in a close discussion to limit the competition to undergraduates in architecture, but in printing the rules of competition—revised from rules of the preceding year—the clause admitting graduate students was not stricken out. Cornell lost the competition; but it developed at the conference on Saturday that the winner of first prize had been a graduate student for nearly two years, one year of which had been spent in study abroad, and that the winner of first honorable mention was also a graduate student. Since Cornell took part in the competition with only an informal objection to the rules as printed there is no ground for protest, but under the circumstances as now known defeat seems much less humiliating than it did when the competition was supposed to have been conducted on even terms.

The competition this year will be limited to undergraduates and will be held from February 9 to March 14. Cornell was chosen to act as the directing school in charge of the competition and the schools invited to compete are Michigan, the Carnegie Technical School, and the six schools represented at the conference.

CORNELL CLUB OF NEW YORK

An announcement has been made by the entertainment committee of the Cornell University Club of New York, William D. Kelly, chairman, containing the program of entertainment for the coming season. It follows: Friday, October 17, illustrated lecture by J. Alden Loring, "Through Africa with Roosevelt;" Friday, November 21, illustrated lecture by Louis Agassiz Fuertes, "Up the Magdalena and down the Llanos;" Friday, December 12, illustrated lecture by John F. Moakley, "Athletics at Cornell;" Friday, January 16, musical recital, John Barnes Wells, tenor; Friday, February 20, vaudeville; Friday, March 20, illustrated lecture by B. R. Baumgardt, "An Evening with the Stars." Cornell men who are not members of the club will be welcome at any or all of these entertainments. They will all take place at the clubhouse, 65 Park Avenue, at Thirty-eighth Street.

1913 CLASS NOTICE

Members of the class of 1913 who have changed their addresses since they communicated with me in June are requested to send me their corrected addresses at once. The Class Directory will be going to the press in a couple of weeks and I want to have everything up to date. Address letters to 136 Broadway, Cambridge, Mass.

GEORGE H. ROCKWELL, Secretary.

NOTICE OF INTERSCHOLASTIC MEET

Manager J. M. Horn, who has charge of the interscholastic cross-country meet which is to be held at Cornell under the auspices of the athletic association on November 15, has sent out announcements to schools throughout New York, northern New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania. He has also notified the secretaries of the alumni associations of New York State.

As this is the first of a proposed series of annual events it is desired that alumni give what aid they can in obtaining entries. Manager Horn will be glad to correspond with interested alumni. His address is Zeta Psi House.

THE MASQUE has chosen Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Gondoliers" for presentation this year.

EXAMINATIONS for Rhodes Scholarships were held on the Campus this week.

William L. Ransom's Nomination for the New York City Court

In the article on Cornell men nominated for judicial office, contained in the NEWS of October 2, mention was not made of the selection of William L. Ransom '05, as Fusion candidate for Justice of the City Court of the City of New York, although the fact was told elsewhere in the same number. Mr. Ransom has been nominated by the Republican Party, the Progressive Party, the Direct Nominations Alliance (a ticket placed on the ballot by Sulzer Democrats), the Independence League, and the Anti-Tammany Jeffersonian League (an organization of Wilson Democrats recruited largely from the Southern Society), and inasmuch as his opponent, Robert L. Luce, formerly of the Court of Claims, has only the Tammany Democratic nomination, Mr. Ransom's chances of election are deemed excellent. While he was in the University Mr. Ransom won the '94 Memorial Prize, the '86 Memorial Prize, the Congress debate medal, and honorable mention in the Woodford contest. He also led winning debate teams against Columbia and Pennsylvania. He has been in practice in New York City since 1907, and has been trial counsel in a number of notable cases. He is a member of the Cornell Club of New York City.

Cornell Men in Charge of Reconstruction Work

Cornellians took a prominent part in the reconstruction of the public utilities plant destroyed in the recent eight million dollar fire at Hot Springs, Ark. With H. L. Lowe '03, chief engineer of the National Light & Power Company, St. Louis, in charge, and S. W. Booth, jr., '09, of the same company, acting as line superintendent, temporary service sufficient to operate the waterworks, electric lights and street cars was established in ten days and a new modern plant will have been finished within sixty days. The reconstruction is under the general direction of the company named above, of which Judson H. Boughton '03 is president and A. D. Brinkerhoff '05 is secretary and treasurer.

The Team Unable to Score

Carlisle defeated the varsity eleven last Saturday in a game which pointed almost conclusively to a Cornell victory right up to the last five minutes of play. The Indians scored 7 points and Cornell none. By all the probabilities of football the score should have been 21 to 7 in Cornell's favor. After the touchdown was made in the first five minutes of play, Carlisle never got within Cornell's 34-yard line. In the third quarter, the ball was never in scrimmage on Cornell's side of the midfield mark; and in the last period, the Indians did not carry the ball nearer to Cornell's goal line than the 39-yard line.

On the other hand, the varsity had the ball on Carlisle's 4-yard line at three different times. On one of these occasions, they had three downs in which to carry the ball the four yards for a touchdown. But each time, the Indians pulled together and the varsity backs hurled themselves in vain against an impregnable wall. Once, even, it was Cornell's ball on Carlisle's 2-foot line; but it was the same old story, several chapters of which were written in the Colgate game. Once inside the enemy's 5-yard line, the varsity seemed to get stage-fright or to lose its power from some mysterious cause.

Some critics would ascribe the failure to score to Barrett's lack of generalship; but the real cause of Cornell's "0" went deeper than that. It involved the whole team. What the trouble was, no one can say. It seems incredible that a team which could carry the ball in straight rushes for forty and fifty yards in midfield, could not gain four yards in four downs in the very shadow of their opponents' goal.

Aside from their failures under Carlisle's goal, the work of the team was at all times satisfactory. The men as individuals displayed good football sense and ability and the team as a whole ran like clockwork. There is no more of the blind, unreasoning defensive playing which used to be Cornell's besetting sin. The men are quick to diagnose the enemy's attack and meet it in an intelligent manner.

 Photograph by The Corner Bookstores

This was strikingly demonstrated in the reception which Carlisle's criss-cross received. The Indians depended on this play for their biggest gains and they were rather chagrined at its lack of effect. The play required that one of the backs should receive the ball and start with it around his own right end. But just as he got well started, with the opposing eleven theoretically rushing to head him off, his own right end would pass him full tilt, grab the ball and carry it through the deserted right side of the defensive line,—again theoretically.

On the first two attempts, the trick worked pretty well; but thereafter, the end carrying the ball was met by O'Hearn and Mallory and could consider himself lucky if he were merely downed on the scrimmage line and not thrown for a loss of several yards. The latter incident did occur several times.

Both teams were surprisingly strong on offensive playing; and both equally weak on the defensive. Cornell tried several forward passes and two of them were successful. One of these netted fifteen yards and the other twenty-five. O'Hearn received both. The Indians, contrary to their usual style of play, did not attempt a single pass over the scrimmage line. They relied entirely for their gains on old-fashioned line bucking and the aforementioned criss-crosses. Of the two styles of play, they gained by far the more ground on the straight line plunges.

Weak Spot in the Line

Here, they found the centre of Cornell's line especially weak and concentrated their attack mainly on Cool, McCutcheon and Mallory. The Cornell forwards played too high at the start, and the short, stocky Indians lifted them right off their feet and carried them back for a yard or more at a time, making a good-sized hole for their own backs. As the game progressed, however, the varsity line accommodated themselves to the attack and the Indians' gains through the line were greatly diminished.

Guyon at left half and Captain Welch at quarter were the particular stars of the Carlisle team. Welch single-handed kept Cornell from scoring a touchdown at one time, when he leaped up and blocked a forward pass flying straight to the arms of Rees, who was standing over the goal line.

The Cornell men who shone were O'Hearn at right end, Fritz at right halfback and Shuler at left halfback. Fritz and Shuler did most of the ground gaining for Cornell and O'Hearn worked equally on the offensive and on the defensive. His diagnosis of the Indians' plays was quite uncanny and he rarely lacked a method of breaking them up. His tackling was of a kind that usually threw his man backward, thus subtracting his length from the gain instead of adding to it.

Fritz and Shuler, by keeping their feet when tackled, often gained a good deal of additional territory. They were both good consistent players and proved themselves especially clever in picking the momentary holes in the Carlisle line. Shelton, at fullback, was not such a strong ground gainer as the two halves, but on the defensive work he was second to none. His work in this department could hardly have been improved upon and when he gets a little more power into his offensive rushes should develop into one of the best fullbacks in the game.

In a game marked by such excellent work on the part of the whole team, the playing of Captain Munns at left guard did not show up so strikingly as in other games this fall. But his work, although not spectacular, was fully up to his standard and he proved himself again one of the strongest men on the team, both on offensive and defensive work. Rees, at left end, also played in a quiet unsensational manner that accomplished the desired results nine out of ten times. He was especially good in running down under punts.

Williamson at left tackle is rapidly vindicating Dr. Sharpe's judgment in giving him the position permanently. His work was at most times good, and, on occasions, brilliant. More than once, he broke through the Carlisle line and threw the Indian runner for a loss.

In short, except for the lamentable weakness when within the opponents' 5-yard line, the showing of the team in Saturday's game was encouraging. It is not difficult to imagine the outcome if the Cornell team, as it was at this time last year, should have met the Carlisle team that played on Percy Field last week; 35 to 0 would be a conservative estimate of the score of such a contest. And, to that extent, the team's work rather exceeded expectations. But the fact still remains that more than one defeat is in store for Cornell until the team gains the "punch" or skill necessary to put the ball over the opponent's goal line in four downs from the 4-yard line.

The summary :

Cornell	Carlisle
Cool.....center	Carlow
McCutcheon.....right guard	Busch
Mallory.....right tackle	Look Around on the varsity eleven, joined the squad of coaches at Percy Field this week to help in putting more strength into the middle of the line.

Freshmen, 27; Junior Republic, 0

The freshman eleven met its first extra-university opponent last Saturday in the eleven from George Junior Republic. The score was 27 to 0 in favor of the freshmen. After the first quarter, the game was but little better than a series of processions from midfield to the Republicans' goal line. During the first period, the play was quite even, but thereafter, the superior weight and stamina of the freshmen told their story in unmistakable language.

Mueller and Sperry proved the biggest ground gainers for the first-year men; and the two Franzheim brothers on the ends played the best game in the line. George Junior fought hard from start to finish and gave the freshmen valuable experience for later and more strenuous contests.

THE INTERCOLLEGE soccer series is in progress. Chemistry defeated Arts in the first game. Architecture defaulted to Agriculture.

ALUMNI NOTES

'86, B.S.—H. C. Chatfield-Taylor's "Goldoni : a Biography," a companion volume to his life of Molière, will be published by Duffield & Company about November 1st.

'89, Ph.B.—Frank S. Fielder, M.D., is in charge of the vaccine and rabies laboratories of the department of health of New York City, and is attending physician in diseases of children at the Bellevue Hospital out-patients' department.

'91, B.S.—Professor J. H. Tanner of the department of mathematics is absent on leave this year and his address is in care of Brown, Shipley & Co., 123 Pall Mall, London, England.

DO YOU DESIRE A FEW TECHNICAL BOOKS?

Each year the Co-op. issues a revised list of the better books in Agriculture and Engineering. Of course we consider the lists a form of advertising, but at first we issued them because many wrote to us inquiring what books were being used here. You are welcome to one of these if you will write for it.
