THE melting snowdrifts in the Quadrangle have given ammunition for many intercollege battles this week. On St. Patrick's Day there was fighting all along the line, from Sibley and Franklin all the way around to Lincoln. The lawyers raked the Library entrance with their missiles. The architects fought the electrical engineers, and the civil engineers were between two fires.

THE ANNUAL PARADE of the architects in honor of the saint had a rival this year, and that rivalry was the cause of some of the snowballing. The electrical engineers had an orange parade. Before the parade there was a lively snowball fight between the two schools, at close quarters between White and Franklin Halls. A truce was declared about noon, when the architects marched from White Hall for their parade. They were headed by a brass band, the "musicians" in long green robes. Then came the bearers of a huge green paper snake which had adorned the front of White all the morning. Strung out behind was the column of architects, each man wearing his class blouse and a green paper cap. Their parade around the Campus was followed by the ceremony of burning the snake on the slope behind McGraw. While they were on the march the brilliant orange forces of the electrical engineers, also headed by a band, issued from Franklin Hall. They were linked together with long streamers of orange. Moving pictures of the two parades were taken by The Corner Bookstores.

BOTH UNDERCLASS banquets will be held next Saturday. In the afternoon the annual organized rush between the two classes will be held north of the Armory.

ANOTHER PURCHASE of land on Cornell Heights for a fraternity is reported. The Seal and Serpent society has bought from E. G. Wyckoff a large plot on the south side of Thurston Avenue, opposite Mr. Wyckoff's home. It is said that the society does not plan to build immediately but will hold the property against the time when it may wish to do so. Its present house is at the corner of West Avenue and Edgemoor Lane. Among the fraternities now occupying houses on the Heights are Alpha Chi Rho, Alpha Zeta, Bandhu, Eleusis, Nayati, Phi Epsilon Pi, Phi Kappa Sigma, Skull, and Theta Xi. Two other fraternities which plan to move to the Heights are Beta Theta Pi and Delta Chi.

A BOOK has been published under the title "The Buildings, Lands, and Activities of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University." It contains 148 pages and is profusely illustrated with photographs, plans, charts and maps. A historical sketch of the college is contributed by Professor H. H. Wing '81. Practically all the rest of the volume is made up of matter descriptive of the college domain, its lands and buildings, and of the vast amount of experimental work that is carried on there. The value of the book is increased by a good index.

A MOVING PICTURE COMPANY is to have permanent headquarters in Ithaca. There will be a studio on Cornell Heights, and the scenery of the whole region will be used for backgrounds. The producer is Theodore Wharton, who was here all last summer as manager for the Essanay Company, which produced a dozen "photoplays" hereabouts. A company of actors will be assembled and work will begin about the first of May.

C. W. STEPHENS '15, assistant manager of the Widow, represented that publication at the annual banquet of the Yale Record, held in New Haven Monday night. At a meeting of representatives of the leading college humorous magazines steps were taken to standardize the size of the publications and to fix advertising rates according to circulation.

DAVIES E. JENKINS, of New York City, has been selected as the holder of the industrial fellowship recently founded in Sibley College to investigate the permeability and porosity of concrete. Mr. Jenkins was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1906, and has since that time been continuously in the employment of large cement firms.

The fellowship was established through the cooperation of a large New York contracting concern with the University. It is through the efforts of Dean Smith, of Sibley College, and Maxwell M. Upton '99, that the research will be conducted at Cornell. The work will begin at once under the direction of the experimental engineering department of Sibley College.

"THE GARROTTERS," by William Dean Howells, and "A Bit of Instruction," by Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland, were successfully presented by the Dramatic Club in Barnes Hall last Saturday night. Both are short farces. These plays are the third and fourth that the Dramatic Club has produced this year under the new policy of giving several one-act plays instead of a single more ambitious production, as in former years. Arrangements are now being made to give two or three short farces at the Lyceum on May 8. The Dramatic Club has also secured the permission of the Committee on Student Affairs to present two one-act farces in Auburn on March 27. The proceeds of the performance will be turned over to a local charity.

TWENTY MEMBERS of the junior class have been appointed to serve on the Freshman Advisory Committee next year. Each of them will be the chairman of a sub-committee of three 1916 men. The chairman of the whole committee is R. W. White '15, of Brockport. Especial attention will be given by the committee next fall to establishing information bureaus for the freshmen. Advice will be given about location and prices of rooms.

L. L. TATUM '97 and another representative of the Cutler-Hammer Manufacturing Company of Milwaukee were in Ithaca recently for the purpose of employing members of the graduating class for the company. Eight men were engaged. They are H. S. Kinsley, H. W. Stevens, L. B. Timmerman, T. S. Towle, H. N. Wade, Morgan Washburn, jr., W. E. Addicks, and B. C. Spransy. Six of the men will go to the works of the company at Milwaukee and the two last named will be employed in New York.

The Conferences in Cleveland and Pittsburgh

The subject of organization among Cornell alumni received a thorough discussion at two meetings held last week, at Cleveland on Friday and at Pittsburgh on Saturday. The Northeastern Ohio Cornell Alumni Association had called the meeting at Cleveland to consider the creation of a federation of Cornell clubs. At Pittsburgh the occasion of the gathering was a regular meeting of the board of directors of the Associate Alumni. Upon the invitation of the Cornell Alumni Association of Western Pennsylvania, other associations had sent delegates to meet with the directors and to attend the annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Cornell men that evening.

So many of the men who were at Cleveland on Friday moved on to Pittsburgh the next day that the two meetings were in effect one gathering. The effect of unity was increased by the fact that the acts of the board of directors on Saturday were profoundly influenced by the deliberations of Friday.

It was the sense of the meeting at Cleveland that a separate federation of Cornell clubs should not be established until existing organizations had been tried and found to be ineffective. But the main principle for which the movers of a federation had contended was endorsed, namely, the principle of direct representation of alumni and especially of local alumni associations in the governing body of the general alumni association. On the next day, at Pittsburgh, the board of directors of the Associate Alumni accepted this principle in instructions to its nominating committee with respect to the elections of the coming June, and in instructions to its president to prepare an amendment to the constitution of the Associate Alumni which shall adapt the method of choosing officers and directors to the principle of direct representation. Another need which found expression at Cleveland, that of regular inter-club meetings by geographical sections for the exchange of information and opinion on University matters, was recognized by the board of directors. There was considerable discussion of methods for holding such meetings. It was concluded that the provision for forums gave opportunity for the holding of inter-club meetings in different parts of the country; that purely sectional meetings might be held, but that a meeting purely sectional would not have the force and authority that would be given to it were it at the same time a general forum which delegates from any part of the country might attend if they were able to do so. It was pointed out that of twenty-four local associations which have qualified for representation by delegates at the annual meeting and at forums of the Associate Alumni, only one, the Northeastern Ohio Association, voted at Cleveland for a federation of clubs. None of the other three which supported the federation plan had so qualified. Still another suggestion which the board endorsed was that advocating a central alumni bureau in Ithaca.

The Cleveland Conference

On Friday morning there was a large gathering of Cornellians in the Hollenden Hotel. The board of directors of the Associate Alumni met in one of the parlors of the hotel about ten o'clock. Several of the delegates to the conference were at that meeting, and a few members of the Northeastern Ohio Association also were present. There was some preliminary discussion of the question which was to come up in the afternoon.

The meeting which the Northeastern Ohio Association had inaugurated was called to order in the large assembly hall of the University Club about 1:30 o'clock.

Twenty-two local clubs and associations were represented by delegates, as follows :

enhelm '05.

W. J. Crawford, jr., '07, president of the Northeastern Ohio association, called the meeting to order. He welcomed the delegates and then called E. R. Alexander '01 to the chair.

Mr. Alexander said that the meeting had been called to form a federation of clubs. He recounted general university problems which, the Northeastern Ohio Association believed, called for the active interest of alumni and said that it was in the belief that a federation of clubs was needed to give proper consideration to these problems that the call had been sent out. He invited President Thwing of Western Reserve University, a Harvard graduate, to tell about the Associated Harvard Clubs.

President Thwing said that the Harvard organization was formed in 1897 and since then had held seventeen meetings in different cities of the country. At these meetings divers questions relating to university matters had been discussed. The association now includes fifty-four clubs and twelve thousand members. The greatest service rendered by the organization, he thought, had been to show that Harvard graduates were loyal. If he had any criticism to make of the Harvard clubs, he said it would be that men presumably intellectual could stand a more intellectual type of meeting than was the rule.

The chairman then said that some feeling had arisen that a federation would conflict with existing organizations and that the question was open for discussion.

William C. Geer '02, of Akron, said that there was need of an organization that should be representative, that is, to which all clubs could be sure of sending a representative. He said that the board of directors of the Associate Alumni was not representative, that even though a member of the board belonged to some local association and was to that extent a representative of that association, if such member were unable to be present at a meeting the association was unrepresented because it could not send a substitute with power to vote.

J. P. Harris '01 spoke along the same lines. He said there was need of an organization that could ascertain alumni opinion and get action immediately if the alumni were ever going to take their part in the affairs in the University. The federation, he said, would be able to clarify alumni sentiment and put a stop to any "knocking."

Members of the board of directors of the Associate Alumni defended that board from the imputation of not doing things. Professor Rowlee said that the board was on the whole a hard working board. It had done all it could to accomplish the things called for here to-day. It had invited calls for forums, and the reason no forum had been called was not that the board was stagnant but because nobody had seemed to want one. Some of the directors had not attended meetings.

Mr. Geer said that Professor Rowlee had proved the point which the Northeastern Ohio association was trying to make. He himself, for example, had been unable to attend meetings of the board when he was a member of it, but if the board had been made up on the basis of representation his association would have been able to send a substitute in his place, with power to vote.

At that point Mr. Hauxhurst, secretary of the Princeton Associated Clubs, gave a talk describing that organization and saying that it had accomplished a great deal for Princeton's good. He closed with a courteous offer to give any assistance he could to Cornell men in solving their problems of organization.

There was a long discussion of the federation question pro and con, and finally William M. Irish '90, of Philadelphia, moved the following resolution:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this conference that no new and independent alumni organization be undertaken until after the means provided by existing organizations be tried out and found ineffective."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of fifteen to four, each club voting as a unit. The four clubs which voted against the resolution were those of Northeastern Ohio, Toledo, Baltimore, and Northern California. Clubs not recorded in the vote were Boston, Louisiana and Central New York.

Adjournment was taken until evening.

At the opening of the evening session Mr. Irish, speaking for the board of directors of the Associate Alumni, invited suggestions for the guidance of that board.

Mr. Weldgen, of Rochester, suggested that the nominating committee invite nominations from local associations. Several other delegates advocated direct representation of clubs in the board of directors and urged that opportunity be given for inter-club meetings in different sections in the country. The acquisition and control of the ALUMNI NEWS by the Associate Alumni was also urged. Mr. Tuck, of Rochester, urged that the board of directors take up the question of centralizing the work of the alumni in Ithaca. All these suggestions were put in the form of motions and were adopted by the conference as recommendations to the Associate Alumni. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, that it is the desire of this meeting to convey to President Schurman and the Board of Trustees of the University an expression of our confidence and we, as alumni and Cornell alumni associations, hereby pledge to them our cordial and constant support in the solution of the problems which they have to meet. It is also our desire to convey to the board of directors of the Associate Alumni the assurance of our loyal cooperation and support and we hereby recommend to them the active consideration at their meeting to-morrow of ways and means for utilizing to the best interests of the University the enthusiasm and activity which has to-day been evidenced by the local associations here represented."

Although the discussion in the afternoon had been keen, the conference had found itself at the evening session to be generally agreed on most points, and the latter session was marked by cordiality of feeling.

There were so many delegates going from Cleveland to Pittsburgh Friday night that a special sleeping car was engaged on the Pennsylvania Railroad and the car was filled with Cornell men. It reminded some of them of a football trip from Ithaca to Philadelphia, or vice versa.

President Schurman at Pittsburgh

At Pittsburgh, on Saturday, the principal session of the board of directors of the Associate Alumni was held in the afternoon, at the University Club. In the morning there was a somewhat informal meeting of the board, together with representatives of various alumni associations who had come there upon the invitation of the Western Pennsylvania alumni association. Two-thirds of the clubs which had been represented at Cleveland were represented here, and there were some newcomers, including G. F. A. Brueggeman '95, president of the Cornell Club of St. Louis, and several members of the Pittsburgh association.

All these persons had come together in the morning for the purpose of hearing a talk by President Schurman. About thirty men sat around a table in a large room. President Schurman, seated in the circle, gave a talk on the subject he had been invited to discuss, how alumni can aid the University. He said that all departments of the university body had their own responsibilities and duties. There were some things for an alumni association to do and other things which did not devolve upon such an association. He thought, for example, that the work of Mr. Edwards's committee on the business administration of the University was not a thing which the association need worry about at present. Explaining the task of that committee, he described the composition of the executive committee of the Board of Trustees and told what kind of matters come before that committee and demand its constant attention.

He mentioned several ways in which he thought alumni could be of assistance. The most obvious way was by financial support of the endowment. Alumni could also help by bringing the claims of the University to the attention of philanthropic persons whom they might know. Still another service which alumni might render was by helping young graduates to get positions and to adjust themselves to the demands of business and professional life. He said further that alumni would be of greater help to the University the better and more closely they were organized in different cities, and that the general alumni association could help to bring that about.

After the President had finished his talk he said he would be glad to answer any questions, and he answered a great many from different alumni. These questions related to the sort of matters that come before the executive committee, the full board of trustees, the university faculty, and the college faculties; to the departure of members of the faculty; to the participation of professors in outside work as experts and the relation of the University to that work, and a variety of other questions.

Talk by Professor Sill

After President Schurman had gone, Professor H. A. Sill was invited to speak. He was in Pittsburgh to act as toastmaster at the banquet in the evening. Professor Sill read a letter which he had recently addressed to President Schurman. He said it had come to his notice that somebody had asserted that the scholastic standing of the University was not being maintained and had quoted him in support of the assertion. The quotation which was used, he said, was taken from the Cornell Daily Sun of December 18 last. The Sun had asked several professors what would be the best Christmas gift for Cornell. Professor Sill, knowing that some of them would emphasize the need of money, had chosen to lay emphasis on the need of strong men in the faculty and of earnest men for students. In saying that, he had no thought of insinuating that the University was declining in those respects. On the contrary, he thought it was stronger than ever before. Professor Sill then took his turn at being questioned and answered many queries which were put to him by various alumni, giving on the whole a very encouraging report of conditions at the University.

Regular Meeting of Directors

The directors and delegates then adjourned for luncheon. They began their regular business session early in the afternoon. The directors present were Roger Lewis '95, president; E. H. Hooker '94, vice-president; W. W. Rowlee '88, secretary; L. L. Tatum '97, A. D. Warner '00, J. H. Edwards '88, Bert Houghton '92, F. S. Porter '00, William M. Irish '90, and Charles M. Thorp '84. Mrs. F. V. Coville '89 was constructively present, having met with the board at Cleveland on the day before.

Mr. Lewis was unable to attend the afternoon session and Mr. Hooker was in the chair. The matter of bringing the three existing general alumni associations closer together was brought up and it was voted that President Lewis be authorized to prepare an amendment to the by-laws which would permit the president of the Association of Class Secretaries and the president of the Cornellian Council to be ex-officio members of the board of directors of the Associate Alumni.

Then came the reports of committees and sub-committees. Mr. Warner reported for the sub-committee on the celebration of Commencement and presented a tentative schedule for the two alumni days which was accepted and was referred to the University's Commencement committee.

N. J. Weldgen, of Rochester, reported for S. L. Adler as to the work of the sub-committee to arrange for the annual meetings and for presentation of annual reports from alumni trustees. He asked for suggestions and it was voted by the board that that committee be requested to find out from alumni, by such means as they could see fit to employ, what questions alumni should like to have answered in the reports of the alumni trustees. Mr. Edwards reported for the sub-committee to arrange for transmitting information concerning the University to the alumni. He said that the plan was to incorporate such a report in the annual report of the President of the University.

The Matter of Forums

For the committee on forums, Mr. Rowlee read a letter from R. O. Walter, chairman, dated March 12. Mr. Walter reported that the committee was composed of H. D. Mason '00, J. H. Agate '03, N. D. Becker '05, and R. W. Sailor '07. There had been no meeting of the committee, but they had exchanged views by correspondence. It had not seemed necessary to call a general forum. If matters should develop at Cleveland and Pittsburgh which seemed to demand such action, the committee would be ready to make arrangements for a forum. The question of an "All Cornell Day" next year, and if successful annually thereafter, had been under consideration, but the committee was not in a position to make a recommendation in regard to this matter at the present time. Suggestions from any source would be welcome. Mr. Walter said that the activities of his committee in the immediate future would depend to a large extent upon the outcome of the meetings in Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Considerable discussion followed the reading of Mr. Walter's report. This discussion showed that the sentiment of the board of directors was decidedly more in favor than it had been of direct representation of clubs in its deliberations. The directors had underestimated the need of forums and had failed to recog-

The Sibley Banquet

James Hartness Pays a Tribute to John E. Sweet

James Hartness, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Professor Frank Thilly, Dean E. L. Nichols of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Dean A. W. Smith of Sibley College, comprised a list of speakers that attracted a large crowd to the Sibley Banquet in the Armory last Saturday night.

Mr. Hartness, in the principal speech of the evening, defended that phase of the engineer's life which has so often been attacked—specialization. He said in part:

"Let us be active in spreading the gospel of specialization and desirability for furnishing an efficient use for each brain and each body, and the avoidance of the stultifying use of the brain and the inefficient use of the body that is so harmful to the welfare of mankind where specialization is not practiced. Specialization rightly managed brings about the end that is now so arduously sought for by many of our statesmen, our welfare workers, our great leaders of various movements for general and special benefit of mankind."

Mr. Hartness spoke highly of the work and influence of Sibley College. He paid the following tribute to Professor John E. Sweet, who was director of the machine shops in Sibley College from 1873 to 1879:

"There is no one who has been a greater inspiration to me in my engineering work than your own Professor Sweet, yours because his life and works, in mechanism and the lives of others, form one of the elements that make up what is known as Sibley College. You know his clear view of things mechanical—his terse way of stating mechanical problems—and you know of his beautiful character that has been of so great inspiration to not only those who have had the pleasure of meeting him but every one that has read his contributions to the technical press.

"His influence carries many lessons. He has not been a great contributor to the press, he has not been a great lecturer, and yet he has made a most profound impression on all who have received his various views on the subject of machine design. Not only from the technical side, but from the personal side he has given us all a get-together feeling; a feeling of kinship; a feeling of industry of the wholesome kind. Pride and the anxious commercial struggle never enters into a thought that radiated from the mind of Professor Sweet."

Civil Engineers' Banquet

Technical Men Need Precision of Speech, John C. Wait Says

J. C. Wait '82, of New York City, made the principal speech at the eleventh annual banquet of the College of Civil Engineering. The others who spoke were Dean Haskell, Professor Heinrich Ries, Professor Barnes, and H. A. Mossman '14.

Mr. Wait spoke on "The Engineering Vernacular." He laid stress on the necessity for engineers to have a good command of the English language. Precision in the power of speech he considered to be a quality which every young engineer should strive to cultivate. He deplored the tendency of the present generation of students to speak carelessly, confining themselves too much to slang expressions, and cited instances of financial loss resulting from an inexact use of technical terms in specifications.

Dean Haskell gave some interesting and amusing reminiscences which concerned themselves with the graduation of his class, 1879.

Nearly three hundred undergraduates and members of the faculty attended the banquet, which was held in the "cafeteria" of the Home Economics building.

For a Student Assembly

Undergraduates Propose a General Meeting Every Two Weeks

Sixty representative undergraduates met last week to consider means to secure a student assembly to be held every two weeks in the Agricultural Auditorium. The meeting was instituted by the two agricultural senior societies, Hebs-Sa and Helios, in an attempt to carry out a plan which has been agitated for some time. With the completion of the new auditorium the idea has crystallized in this form.

The undergraduates present at the meeting decided to petition the Faculty to set aside the hour from 12 to 1 o'clock every other Friday for the purpose of bringing about a general student gathering.

The petition which was presented to President Schurman last Monday read as follows :

"Whereas, it is desired to have a general assembly of the undergraduates and Faculty from time to time in order to bring together the students of the various colleges with a view to promoting acquaintanceship and a more unified spirit throughout the University ;

"Also, to provide for a time when all students may assemble to hear prominent speakers, musicians, etc.;

"And further, to furnish an opportunity for undergraduates to discuss their student problems and affairs—

"We, the undersigned, speaking in behalf of our respective colleges and organizations, respectfully petition the President and Faculty of the University to set aside the hour from 12 to 1 every other Friday to be at the disposal of the students; that the use of this hour be in the hands of a committee of students acting with the President of the University; such committee to consist of three seniors, two juniors and one sophomore, appointed by the presidents of their respective classes, the presidents of these classes to be members ex-officio."

The petition will probably be considered at the next Faculty meeting.

SO THOROUGHLY were Cornell alumni affairs overhauled at the Cleveland-Pittsburgh conference, and so much did that overhauling do in bringing out ideas, that one needs more than a few days to review the results and see all that was accomplished. The conference was itself an object lesson in the profit to be gained by opportunity for getting together men from different centers for a frank discussion. Probably it is safe to predict that we shall have more frequent meetings of alumni as a result and that there will be a better understanding of the common desire for first-hand knowledge and of the common eagerness to be of help. The men who came together at the dual meeting represented all departments of the University. The President was there and the Trustees and Faculty were represented, and delegates from widely scattered alumni associations were present. To one observer, at least, it was apparent that we all desire the same thing, the welfare of the University, and that we can work to that end more smoothly if we know one another better. Another result was the recognition of the fact that the University's graduates want their deliberate conclusions to count for something. They want a channel through which they can make themselves heard with all the authority that is due to them as alumni. On that point the only difference of opinion was as to ways and means. It was decided by the majority present that existing means should be tried before inaugurating a new form of organization. It was determined to try to adapt the Associate Alumni organization to that desire for expression. Members of the board of directors of the Associate Alumni declared that its organization had been devised for that very purpose, that their efforts to make it effective had not been met with an equal responsiveness from most of the local associations, and that, if there had been a general expression of eagerness to take part, the board of directors would naturally have become a body composed of actual representatives. All that was needed to make a representative board a success was a manifestation of a general desire on the part of local bodies to be represented. On the other hand it was contended that the thing needed was not the mere nomination of members of local associations for election to the central body, but the election by the local association or by a sectional group of a representative who could be sure to attend any meeting of the central body and have a vote there as a representative. An amendment of the by-laws of the Associate Alumni was authorized to the end that its executive board may be more thoroughly representative.

FAR WESTERN MUSICAL TRIP

Efforts are being made to arrange for a far western trip of the Cornell Musical Clubs in the summer of 1915, at the time of the San Francisco exposition. A letter from a Cornell man in Seattle says:

"The alumni of the Puget Sound region have met three times during the last two months, at all of which meetings considerable enthusiasm was shown over the prospects of a 1915 western trip for the Glee Club. We all want to get behind the movement and shove! boost it!"

ATHLETICS

Rowing

The Crews Will Be Unusually Late in Getting on the Water

The newly established race for second eights at the Poughkeepsie regatta will be the only race in which the Cornell junior varsity crew will row this year. Pennsylvania has declined an invitation to race the Cornell junior eight on Cayuga Lake on Spring Day, and the Athletic Association has decided not to send the second eight to the American Henley Regatta at Philadelphia this year.

The elimination of the Pennsylvania race, which has heretofore been a biennial event, makes the Spring Day naval program consist at present of a triangular varsity race with Yale and Princeton, a possible freshman race with Princeton, and the intercollege race.

Unusually backward weather is keeping the squad on the machines this year. Last spring the crews took to the water first on March 12. At present, with about a foot of ice on the Inlet, the indications are that the oarsmen will not be reporting at the boathouse before the last week in March.

Only three members of last year's varsity eight are now in college. They are Lawrence Eddy '14, B. C. Spransy '14, and W. W. Butts '15, all of whom are rowing regularly. E. S. Bird '14, stroke of the last varsity four, is stroking one of the varsity combinations.

The following four combinations contain the men from whom Mr. Courtney will probably select a varsity and junior varsity eight:

J. E. O'Brien '15, bow; W. W. Butts '15, 2; Lawrence Eddy '14, 3; H. D. Hyland '14, 4; J. H. Allen, jr. '16, 5; B. C. Spransy '14, 6; R. Welles, jr., '16, 7; A. R. Gilman '16, stroke.

E. Ornelas '15, bow; R. G. Bird '16, 2; A. L. Boegehold '15, 3; C. Andrus '16, 4; F. H. Rayfield '15, 5; R. M. Smith '16, 6; K. H. Fernow '16, 7; J. C. Smaltz '15, stroke.

G. G. Terriberry '15, bow; J. F. Greaney '14, 2; W. B. Cookingham '16, 3; G. W. Bonney '16, 4; J. T. Moir '16, 5; B. C. Duffie '16, 6; C. W. Bailey '16, 7; E. S. Bird '14, stroke.

C. R. Adelson '15, bow; W. C. Cool '16, 2; R. H. McNaughton '16, 3; L. F. Craver '15, 4; L. E. Chamberlain '16, 5; G. C. Crabtree '16, 6; T. S. Kraft '15, 7; H. J. Brooks '15, stroke.

The first freshman combination is now boated, as follows:

Morgan, bow; Overlock, 2; Meyers, 3; Stahl, 4; Worn, 5; Cushing, 6; Lund, 7; Collyer, stroke.

Fencing

A Victory Over Columbia—Intercollegiate Semi-Finals Next Week

Cornell's fencing team won an unexpected victory last Saturday by defeating the strong Columbia trio in a dual meet held in Barnes Hall by a score of 5 to 4. Captain H. W. Sibert '14, after losing a close bout to Captain Clough of Columbia, won his remaining two bouts in easy fashion. Alfred Savage '15 scored two wins for Cornell, and C. T. Chapman '15 scored one. Columbia's points were scored by Captain Clough, who won two of his bouts, and by W. Shumway and L. Mouquin, each of whom won a bout.

Columbia up to this time had not been defeated, while the Cornell fencers had lost both of this season's matches, one to Pennsylvania and the other to the Navy.

No more dual meets will be held until the semi-finals of the northern division of the Intercollegiate Fencing League, to be held in Boston on March 28. Cornell, Bowdoin, Harvard, and Yale will compete at that time for representation in the finals, which will take place in New York on April 11 and 12.

At that time the survivors in the northern division will meet the survivors in the southern division, which is composed of Columbia, Pennsylvania, and the Navy.

Wrestling

Cornell Wins from Indiana, the Western Champion

Cornell defeated the University of Indiana in a non-league wrestling contest last Friday night by a score of 16 to 10. Cornell secured two falls and one decision, while the western champions won two decisions. The other two bouts were drawn after both had gone fifteen minutes without the contestants losing their feet.

Cornell's points were scored by Julius Samkoff '15, in the 135 pound class, and E. J. Gallogly '15, in the 158 pound class, both of whom threw their opponents, and by Captain T. I. S. Boak '14, who secured a decision.

In the 145 pound class Drollinger of Indiana won the decision for superior form against G. T. Culbertson '15, and Davis of Indiana outpointed E. W. Kleinert '16, in the heavyweight division. W. J. Culbertson '15 and Thompson of Indiana wrestled fifteen minutes in the 115 pound class, as did W. I. Craig '15, and LaDuron in the 175 pound, class both bouts ending in a draw.

The Indiana meet was the last contest in which Cornell wrestlers will take part before the intercollegiate championship tournament to be held in Philadelphia March 27 and 28. The bouts will take place in the University of Pennsylvania gymnasium. H. Leonard, the New York Athletic Club referee, will officiate.

Cornell, Columbia, Lehigh, Pennsylvania, and Princeton will contest for the League championship. Cornell has won the meet three times in the last four years, and is again picked by the critics as the probable winner, having already defeated each of the other teams in dual meets this season. Besides these matches Cornell has defeated McGill and Indiana, and has lost to the Naval Academy.

Interscholastic Meet

Fourteen Schools Already Have Accepted Invitations

Cornell's annual interscholastic track meet will take place on May 9, the day of the dual track meet with Harvard. The list of schools to be represented is not yet complete, as not all of the invitations have been answered. Thus far the following schools have signified their intention of entering teams: Arlington (Mass.) High School, Buffalo Central High School, Chamberlain Military Academy, Canton (Pa.) High School, Erie (Pa.) High School, Kiskiminetas Springs School, Mercersburg Academy, Monongahela High School, Perkiomen Seminary, National Cathedral School, Rochester Eastern High School, Rutherford (N. J.) High School, Stone School, St. Bernard's Academy.

Present indications point to the largest and most closely contested meet in the history of the interscholastic.

Awards of Insignia

The Major Sports Athletic Council has awarded the minor sports "C" to five men of the basketball team which tied Columbia for the championship of the intercollegiate league. The men who received the "C" are Captain G. C. Halsted, jr., '14, H. C. Halsted '14, S. R. Jandorf '15, W. C. Lunden '15, and Leslie Brown '15.

The minor sports Athletic Council awarded the basketball monogram to

G. T. Cross '14, W. G. Haeberle '15, and J. C. Ashmead '16.

The hockey letters were awarded to Captain O. M. Clark '14, A. C. Day '14, Winthrop Kent '15, J. S. Babbitt '15, and F. T. Hunter '16.

R. S. Cullum '15 was elected manager of tennis, and H. R. Powell '15 was elected to fill Cullum's former position as assistant manager of golf.

An amendment to the constitution was proposed in the major sports Council meeting, providing for the award of insignia to the eleven men of the second varsity football team. The award suggested is a "C" enclosing a "2nd." The amendment will be voted on at the next meeting of the council.

Basketball.—The tie between Columbia and Cornell for the championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League will not be played off. Graduate Manager G. E. Kent has received no official communication from the Columbia management. Mr. Kent's request to invite Columbia to play off the tie was not granted by the faculty committee on student affairs. The league meeting will be held on March 27.

Rifle shooting.—Cornell defeated the University of Maine in the ninth round of the Intercollegiate League matches by a score of 960 to 883. In the tenth match, with Lehigh, the University team shot 949. Lehigh's score has not yet been reported. The last match of the season, that with the Naval Academy, had not been completed at this writing. A victory in this match will put Cornell in a tie with the midshipmen for second place in Class B. Washington State College leads the division with a total of nine matches won and none lost. Michigan Agricultural College, the leaders of Class A, set a new record in the ninth round by shooting 994 out of a possible 1000.

Collegiate basketball.—The College of Civil Engineering won the collegiate basketball title by defeating the law school five in the last game of the season. The engineers won all their games. The Arts team, which finished second, lost only to the C.E. quintet.

A FORCE OF WORKMEN is engaged in the construction of the large organ provided by friends of the University for the agricultural auditorium. They expect to have it completed by the first of April.

Cleveland and Pittsburgh

nize a general demand among alumni for opportunities to meet and discuss important university questions. They recognized now that the call issued by the Northeastern Ohio Association was evidence of a condition which called for the holding of a forum and which might have been met by such a means.

In a report on the Cornellian Council, Mr. Hooker said that that organization would be brought into closer relation to the Associate Alumni by the adoption of the method of interlocking directorates. Mr. Houghton made a similar statement with respect to the Association of Class Secretaries.

For the committee which was designated to keep a list of alumni with their addresses, Mr. Porter said that that task was performed by the secretary of the University and that lists were now available for various alumni purposes. The report of the committee for establishing an Alumni Bureau was made by Messrs. Irish and Thorp, who compose the committee at present. They said that the committee should be enlarged to three or more, one of whom should be the Secretary of the University. The bureau headquarters should then be in Ithaca. On motion it was voted by the board that the Secretary of the University be added to the committee.

Mr. Irish reported that since the resignation of W. C. Geer from the board of directors, he had been looking after the sub-committee for the promotion of Cornell local clubs and associations and had made some progress in building up his committee. He said that at present it consisted of himself, J. B. Richards, of Buffalo, Barrett Smith of Boston, and J. P. Harris of Cleveland.

Mr. Thorp reported progress for the sub-committee for the establishment of an employment bureau. He said it was proposed to have the committee made up of representatives from various cities and he thought that it should have a central office in Ithaca, with a paid secretary to look after the work.

A committee on elections, to canvass the vote cast for alumni trustees in June was appointed, consisting of Professor C. L. Crandall, Professor C. S. Northup, Professor H. H. Wing, Professor B. S. Monroe, F. R. White and Professor F. A. Barnes.

For the auditing committee Mrs.

Coville reported that she had appointed C. D. Bostwick and E. S. Banks to act with her on the committee.

The resignation of F. R. White, of Cleveland, as a member of the board of directors, was presented. On motion the secretary was instructed to notify him that his resignation had been accepted with regret and to ask him to suggest a successor from Cleveland after conferring with the Northeastern Ohio Association.

Recommendations Acted On

Having disposed of its regular business the board then took up for consideration several recommendations which had been made to it by the gathering at Cleveland. It was moved, seconded and carried that it be made compulsory upon the nominating committee of the Associate Alumni to request from each local alumni association recommendations and nominations for directors or other officers of this association and that the president be instructed to prepare and report in June such an amendment to the by-laws. It was agreed that for this year the invitations to the local associations should be sent out by the secretary on behalf of the nominating committee.

On motion, the president was instructed to appoint a committee to consider the acquisition or control of the Alumni News by the Associate Alumni, this committee to report in June.

It was resolved that, in order to have a representative at Ithaca to look after the interests of alumni, the president and secretary take up with the Cornellian Council and the Association of Class Secretaries the matter of arranging for broadening the scope of duty of the Secretary of the University so as to include in his duties the establishing of a bureau to keep in touch with and promote the interests generally of the alumni.

The president, was, on motion, instructed to appoint a committee to prepare biographical sketches of candidates for alumni trustee.

The board passed a vote of thanks to the Western Pennsylvania Alumni Association for its hospitality and adjourned.
