ITHACA, N. Y., JANUARY 11, 1917

PRICE 10 CENTS

THE meeting which the Board of Trustees was to have held in New York on January 6 was given up on account of the death of Mr. Boldt. A regular meeting of the committee on general administration was held in Ithaca on that day. Those present were Trustees Van Cleef, Schurman, Williams, T. B. Wilson, Andrew D. White, Westinghouse, C. E. Treman, and Edwards, and Professors Willcox, Comstock, and Kimball. Several interesting matters of business were transacted, which are reported under separate heads in this paper.

TO-DAY is Founder's Day, the 110th anniversary of the birth of Ezra Cornell. It is not a holiday this year, because the university calendar was revised to make up for the loss of two weeks which the poliomyelitis epidemic cost at the opening of the term. University exercises are held except between the hours of 12 and 1 p. m., when they are suspended for a Founder's Day address in Bailey Hall. The orator to-day is John D. Rockefeller, jr., who speaks on "The personal relation in industry." Mr. Rockefeller's knowledge of this subject is more than academic, for he is to some extent financially interested in industry, and in Colorado not long ago he had personal relations with it.

TWO DISTINGUISHED PROFESSORS of economics will give special courses of lectures here this term. They are Dr. J. Laurence Laughlin, late of the University of Chicago, and Dr. F. W. Taussig of Harvard. They will each give three lectures. Dr. Laughlin was a member of the Cornell faculty in 1890-92. He left here to become head of the department of political economy at the University of Chicago. He retired last fall and is now making his home at East Jeffrey, N. H. In the lectures to be given by him here he will deal with financial problems resulting from the present war. This is a subject on which his thought is likely to be ripe, for he has long been an eminent specialist in problems of money and banking. He will give his lectures next week. Dr. Taussig is perhaps the most conspicuous figure among American economists. He has never been in Ithaca, and in his letter accepting the invitation to lecture here he said he would welcome the opportunity to visit Cornell University. His lectures will be given in the middle of March. The topic he has chosen is "Government control of wages." He is to be a member of the new federal tariff commission, and Harvard has given him an extended leave of absence.

JACQUES REICH, whose etched portrait of Mr. White is well known, has given the University a large collection of portraits of American worthies. The pictures have been hung in the reading room on the top floor of Goldwin Smith Hall. There are thirty or forty in the collection—enough to give the room a dignity and interest which it had lacked. The subjects include most of the Presidents, several statesmen of the rank of Hamilton and Marshall and Webster, and a few of the eminent New England writers of the last century. Most, if not all of the engravings, are the work of Mr. Reich himself. Mr. Reich's two sons are graduates of Cornell University.

THE UNIVERSITY PREACHERS from the Christmas recess to the end of the first term are named in the following list: January 7, the Right Rev. Charles Fiske, Syracuse, N. Y.; January 14, the Rev. William Pierson Merrill, New York; January 21, the Rev. Charles Francis Carter, Hartford, Conn.; January 28, the Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, Evanston, Ill.; February 4, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, New York; February 11, the Rev. William Elliot Griffis, Ithaca.

GOLDWIN SMITH B, the semi-circular room, is now a home of the drama. The fact that the rostrum had been fitted with a curtain and a new system of lights was related several weeks ago. The Cornell Dramatic Club, with the permission of the authorities, made these changes so that it might have a place in which occasionally to present short plays. Members of the club met the expense. Students of design in the College of Architecture were persuaded to paint scenery. Now the authorities have given the club permission to charge admission to its performances. It is contrary to the University's custom to grant the use of its buildings for financially profitable entertainments, and a special ruling was made by the administration committee in this case. The committee decided that Room B might be used for such a purpose by any organization recognized by the Committee on Student Affairs and under the auspices of a language department or the department of public speaking. The Dramatic Club will inaugurate the season to-morrow night by presenting three short plays, namely, "Between the Soup and the Savoury," "Indian Summer," and "The Master of the House." The players' amateur standing will not be impaired by the fact that admission is charged. The Dramatic Club is a praiseworthy organization. Its manner toward the drama is respectful rather than patronizing.

THE NEWS BULLETINS of the information service of the College of Agriculture are now sent throughout the State under a frank which gives them free carriage by post. This privilege saves the college a considerable outlay for postage stamps. It is a part of the generous provision made under the Smith-Lever act of 1914 for federal and state co-operative agricultural work. The envelopes in which the bulletins are sent to various publications carry, in addition to the required frank, the legend "Better farming news for New York State." For the most part the bulletins contain seasonable information for farmers.

A SERIES of biographical lectures, by H. W. van Loon, lecturer in history, is announced for the second term. They will treat of men whose thought had an influence on the history of the last hundred years. The subjects announced are: Goethe and the internationalism of the revolutionary period, Jahn and the European wars of liberty from the Napoleonic yoke, Byron and the reaction in Europe, Victor Hugo and romanticism, Marx and Darwin, Mazzini and the unity of Italy, Hertzgen and the Russian revolutionary evolution, Delane and the Victorian era in England, and Rhodes and the modern imperialism. These lectures will displace a series on the French Revolution which had been projected. They were announced after the Sun had asked for a course on the biographies of modern thinkers and statesmen.

Tuition Fees to Be Increased

A Uniform Rate of $150 a Year to Be Charged in All Departments

A UNIFORM rate of $150 for tuition will be charged in all colleges of the University, beginning with the next academic year, in September, 1917. At present the rate is $125 for regular students in the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Law. Students from outside of the State of New York pay $125 in the College of Agriculture and $100 in the Veterinary College. The rate already is $150 in the colleges of engineering, architecture, and medicine, and students of engineering pay in addition a fee of $25 for materials used in shops and laboratories. In effect there will be an increase of $25 a year in the Colleges of Arts and Sciences, Law, and Agriculture, and $50 a year in the Veterinary College.

The new scale of charges was adopted by the administration committee of the Board of Trustees last Saturday. At that time the report of a special committee on the subject was received and approved. That special committee had been appointed at the board's November meeting. It consisted of Messrs. Edwards, Pound, Willcox, C. E. Treman, and Ickelheimer.

In its report the special committee referred to the report of a similar committee, of which Mr. Edwards was chairman, made in 1913. An elaborate study of the costs of instruction had been made at that time. The present committee said: "That the present financial situation of the University makes a further increase of tuition imperative appears from the report of Mr. Edwards as Alumni Trustee, printed in the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS for July, 1916." And it recommended that in all undergraduate colleges the tuition charge be $150.

The committee estimated that the adoption of the new rate would increase the University's income by about $38,000 a year. Its estimate was based on a count of the number of regular students liable for tuition, in the second term of last year, in the four colleges where the rate is to be increased. The number of such students was found to be: in Arts and Sciences, 1,008; in Law, 192; in Agriculture, 278; and in the Veterinary College, 16.

The Costs of Instruction

The recommendation which was adopted last Saturday was based in part upon a careful study of the costs of student instruction, made by the former committee in 1912-13. In that investigation, departmental costs were figured in terms of the student-hour. In apportioning general university costs the student was taken as the unit. In the summary of costs there were four items charged against each college, namely, (1) the departmental expense per student per year, which item varied according to the college; the interest on (2) general buildings and (3) general equipment, and (4) the general expense of administration, etc. The last three items were apportioned equally among the colleges and were, respectively, per student-year, $7.37 for buildings, $5.51 for equipment, and $52.55 for general expense. These, added to the departmental expense in each instance, gave the following total cost per student year (what it costs to instruct one student for one year) in the several colleges: Arts and Sciences, $287; Law, $203; Architecture, $288; Civil Engineering, $259; Mechanical Engineering, $276.

At that time the tuition rates were: in Arts, $100, or 35 per cent of the cost; in Law, $100, or 49 per cent; in Architecture, $150, or 52 per cent; in Civil Engineering, $150, or 58 per cent, and in Mechanical Engineering, $170 (including a fee of $20), or 62 per cent.

Therefore in 1913 the Trustees, in order to make the rates more equitable, ordered certain changes, the most important of which were increases from $100 to $125 in the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Law. Even so, the new rates were not wholly consistent with the costs as determined by the investigation, and Mr. Edwards, in his report as Alumni Trustee last June, urged that the rate be made $150 in all courses. Part of his argument was as follows:

Justice to the Teaching Staff

"After the argument, that had been so convincing when no actual figures were available, was exploded,—that is, that the engineering departments were more expensive because of their costly equipment, the only reason given why tuition rates should not be increased to a sum that would put the rates for all colleges on the same basis, and be commensurate with the cost, was that the increase would keep away students, and particularly that desirable class of students who have to make some personal sacrifice for an education. An investigation showed that no particular course or college could boast of more students of this class than any other. Two years experience, after the tuition has been raised, shows that there were no grounds for such fears. The Arts Department, the one most fearful of the result, has increased its enrollment more than any of the other departments.

"Good students, the kind we want at Cornell, do not choose their educational institution because it is cheap. Cornell wants students who are after the best; those who believe they are spending valuable time while seeking an education, and are willing to make a sacrifice to get something worth while. It is what we obtain at a sacrifice that is appreciated and gives the most lasting benefit. Certainly it is not fair to the student who comes to the University to receive the best instruction available, not to provide him with high class instruction. Furthermore, it is not fair to the instructing staff to keep their compensation down below a reasonable living wage, because some are fearful we will lose students in case tuition rates are made sufficient to provide properly for high class instruction.

The Poor Student

"Some have argued that it would not be democratic to increase the tuition rates, but the present condition, when equal rates do not obtain, certainly is not democratic, and is not in accord with the idea of true American independence, the idea that everyone should pay a reasonable and equal price for what he gets. The old idea of free or small tuition rates dates back to Colonial days, when there were but few institutions for higher education, when the country did not have large developed resources, and when the majority of the students came from a struggling pioneer class. Conditions are very different to-day. There is an institution of higher learning within the easy reach of every person who desires such an education. Our country's resources are so developed and distributed, and the need and usefulness of education is so well known, that no worthy person need go without a college education. To-day the large majority of students are able to pay a reasonable charge while fifty years ago but few were so able.

"What we do need to meet the conditions of to-day is an adequate fund to help the worthy financially poor student, and an efficient way of finding him out. In other words, we need a sufficiently large student loan fund to take care of all the worthy students who for one reason or another are not able to provide for themselves financially. With this class taken care of, there should be no hesitation about charging a proper rate to those who are perfectly able to pay.

"With the free income of the University less by $65 per student than it was ten years ago, and the income from tuition only $25 more, we have to-day $40 per student less to pay the expenses of the University. This means but one thing: the University is not paying its instructing staff what it should; its physical property is not being kept up to a proper degree of efficiency, and the students are consequently not getting what they should expect from a first class institution.

"After a two years trial of the slight increase in tuition rates, I do not hesitate to urge that the tuition be further increased by making the rate in all courses $150, and, in addition, such laboratory fees charged as would cover the actual cost of material and use of equipment. In urging this increase I am only recognizing the present day conditions of life, and am well supported by the action taken by many of the other universities in Cornell's class, all of which have increased the tuition rates since our committee's report was made; and some considering further increase."

Alumni Fund Keeps Growing

New York City Has Passed the $20,000 Mark—Connecticut Has $1,000

These are busy days at the Alumni Fund headquarters in Morrill Hall. The first six days of January brought in checks amounting to more than three thousand dollars in contributions to the Fund. There never had been a week since the Fund was started when so much money as that came in.

Subscriptions are still coming thick and fast from the New York City campaign, and the indications are that the committees there will continue to be busy for some time to come. The New York City campaign has passed the $20,000 mark, and now the goal is $25,000 by February 1st.

There is a whirlwind campaign going on in Connecticut. Returns from that state are incomplete, but the goal of $1,000 has already been reached. The work will continue in an effort to sign up every Cornell man in the state.

A letter received from Karl Gass says that the Cornell men of Western Pennsylvania are getting ready to mobilize early in February. The plan of campaign is like that which was followed in New York. The campaign will be launched at an informal dinner to which President Schurman and Dan Reed have been invited as speakers.

George Crofts, president of the Buffalo association, came to Ithaca on January 4 with his pockets full of subscription cards and checks. He said that a few Buffalo Cornellians had not yet taken the opportunity to subscribe, so the final results of the Buffalo campaign cannot be announced yet.

Katherine R. Buckley, chairman of the special committee in charge of the campaign for the women's dormitory fund, reports that subscriptions for this purpose amounting to nine thousand dollars have been obtained, besides special gifts of $1,000 for the preparation of plans.

The semi-annual meeting of the Cornellian Council will be held at the Cornell Club in New York on January 13.

Bequest of an Alumnus

The Estate of Eudorus C. Kenney '82 Given to Endow Scholarships

Eudorus Catlin Kenney, of the class of 1882, who died at Washington on December 24, by his will bequeathed his estate to Cornell University for the endowment of scholarships. Announcement of the bequest was made at the administration committee's meeting last Saturday.

The value of the estate is not yet known to the University authorities. Mr. Kenney's will was executed in 1902, when he wrote a letter to the President conveying the information that he intended to leave his property to the University. He had provided, he said, that if his father survived him the father was to have a life interest in the estate. The property at that time, he said, yielded an income of about $750 a year. Mr. Kenney's father died several years ago, and it is understood that an inheritance then added somewhat to the value of his possessions.

Preference in the awarding of scholarships under this endowment is to be given to students resident in the town of Truxton, in Cortland county, N. Y., the town in which Mr. Kenney was born.

A Memorial of Mrs. Gage

Her Husband and Son Establish a Fund for Research in Physics

Announcement was made at the meeting of the administration committee last Saturday of the establishment of a fund of $10,000 to be known as The Susanna Phelps Gage Fund for Research in Physics in Cornell University. The fund is the gift of Professor S. H. Gage, B.S., '77, and Dr. Henry Phelps Gage, A.B., '08, Ph.D., '11, to Cornell University. It is given by them as a memorial of Susanna Phelps Gage, Ph.B., '80.

A memorandum accompanying the announcement of the gift recites that Mrs. Gage was the first woman to take laboratory work in physics in Cornell University, and that by her subsequent career she showed the highest appreciation of the need for research in this country.

It is the wish of the donors that the fund be administered by the professors of physics, with the co-operation of the President of the University. The income is to be expended in any way which at the time gives promise of advancing knowledge in physics. The money may be applied to the support of a graduate fellowship or scholarship, to the purchase of apparatus, books, or periodicals, or to any other purpose which may help to attain the prescribed end. The first instalment of the income is to become available at the beginning of the second half-century of the University, in the academic year 1918-19.

Professor Carpenter Resigns

He Will Reach the Retiring Age on the Day Before Next Commencement

Professor Rolla Clinton Carpenter of Sibley College has resigned and his resignation was accepted by the administration committee of the Trustees last Saturday. It will take effect at the end of this academic year. Professor Carpenter will reach the age of sixty-five on June 26, 1917, the day before Commencement. The committee instructed the President to apply to the Carnegie Foundation for a retiring allowance for Professor Carpenter.

Orion, Mich., is Professor Carpenter's native town. The biographies of him and his two younger brothers fill the better part of a page in Who's Who in America. The brothers are Louis George Carpenter, irrigation engineer, of Denver, and Judge William Leland Carpenter, president of the Detroit College of Law. They are all three graduates of the Michigan Agricultural College.

After he took the bachelor's degree in 1873, Professor Carpenter went to the University of Michigan and became a C.E. Then he returned to his alma mater and taught mathematics and civil engineering till 1890. Meantime he took the degree of M.M.E. at Cornell in 1888. He has been a member of the Sibley faculty since 1890. In 1906 the Michigan Agricultural College made him an honorary Doctor of Laws.

Throughout his mature life Professor Carpenter has had a large practice as consulting engineer. He has constructed numerous power stations for electric railways and has had active charge of many engineering constructions. In the building of many cement plants he has been consulted. High pressure fire systems, including those in New York, Brooklyn, and Baltimore, have been installed under his supervision. A year ago he served in a national scientific commission which was appointed at the request of the President of the United States to investigate the problem of the slides at the Panama Canal.

PREPARATIONS for the Junior Promenade on February 16 are progressing. The drawing of boxes takes place this week.

The Schiff Lectures

Dr. Camillo von Klenze to Come Here in March—Other Lecturers

The first lecture of this year on the Jacob Schiff Foundation was given on January 4 by Dr. Hans Müller, professor in a Realschule near Berlin, on the subject of German folk songs. Dr. Müller illustrated the lecture by singing eighteen songs. The attendance was good and the lecturer was well received.

Dr. Camillo von Klenze, who was an instructor in Cornell in 1890-93 and who is now head of the department of German in the College of the City of New York, will give the next series of lectures on this foundation, speaking on the 1st, 2d, and 5th of March. The subjects of his three lectures will be: (1) Realism in the modern German drama, (2) pessimism and optimism in German literature (Lenau and Nietzsche), and (3) realism and romanticism in modern German fiction.

Toward the end of March there will be a series of three lectures by Professor Eugen Kühnemann of the University of Breslau. Announcement of the dates and subjects is yet to be made.

Dr. Camillo von Klenze is a native of Switzerland. He took his A.B. at Harvard in 1886 and afterward studied at Berlin and Marburg, at which place he received his doctorate in 1890. He taught at Cornell for three years and at the University of Chicago for thirteen years. He was head of the department of Germanic languages and literatures at Brown University for ten years. Last fall he took a similar office at the College of the City of New York. He has published several books on German literature.

VARIOUS UNIVERSITY NOTES

THAT fish can be raised as a profitable farm crop is the belief of the College of Agriculture. The college is planning to add to its present fish hatchery a series of ponds in which fish may be kept and reared to maturity under known conditions. Up to the present time there has been scarcely any scientific fish-raising, and most of the hatcheries are raising "fry" and turning them loose in the streams to shift for themselves. The only places where trout are raised to any extent are on commercial farms, and even there the process has not been standardized nor has the problem received the study necessary to place fish-raising on a practical basis. The questions of fish foods, selection of breeding stock, and methods of fish pond management have been neglected, and it is these questions that the college hopes to solve. Based upon the preliminary work, carried on by the college at its fish hatchery, plans are being made to go into the problem on a larger scale, using the scientific facts already collected and adding to them, until the raising of trout or other fresh-water food fish will be no longer a matter of guesswork, but, instead, a practical, standardized method of adding to the food resources of the farm and of the nation as a whole.

AMONG THE LECTURERS who have visited the University thus far this term are Professor E. de Martonne of the University of Paris, who gave an illustrated talk on the geography of Rumania and its bearing on the war, and Mr. Frank Backus Williams, of New York, who, in two lectures under the auspices of the College of Architecture, discussed the law of the United States with relation to city planning. Mr. Williams's lecturers were a part of a course comprehensive of the subject of city planning.

CONTRIBUTIONS from the university community for the war prisoners' relief fund amounted to about five thousand dollars when the students reassembled last week. Canvassers were still reporting daily this week at the University Club. Dr. John R. Mott '88 is the director of this relief work. Its needs were explained to the community at a meeting called by the Student Council just before the Christmas recess.

THE Sun announces the election of Frank Brace Bateman '19, of Grenloch, N. J., to be second assistant business manager, and of Henry Clay Cheyney, jr., '19, of Evanston, Ill., to be assistant circulation manager of the daily pending their promotion in due course to the managerships. Bateman belongs to Zeta Psi and Cheyney to Delta Phi.

A SPECIAL DISPLAY illustrating the conservation of wild animal life and the most approved methods of game farming is a new feature announced by the College of Agriculture for Farmers' Week, beginning February 12. Mounted and live specimens of wild birds, fishes, and fur-bearing animals of economic value will be exhibited; models of houses, shelters, coops, vermin traps, and other appliances used in the propagation of game birds will be displayed. There will be a model farm fishpond and fish eggs in the process of hatching; furs of common wild animals of the state will occupy a part of the space in this exhibit.

PROFESSOR STEPHENS ILL

Professor H. Morse Stephens of the University of California has been seriously ill with pneumonia, but his condition this week was reported to be much improved.

In the last week of December he went from New York to Cincinnati to attend the annual meeting of the American Historical Association. He was ill then, but insisted upon going because of his warm friendship for Professor George L. Burr, who was to give the president's address. In Cincinnati Professor Stephens became worse, and Professor C. H. Hull took him back to New York. There he was met by Willard Straight, who took him to his own home and cared for him.

A CORNELL LAW FIRM

A fifth Cornell man has been admitted to membership in the law firm of Sackett, Chapman & Stevens, of New York. He is Harold L. Cross, LL.B., '11. The other members of the firm are Colonel Henry W. Sackett, A.B., '75; William P. Chapman, jr., A.B., '95; Edward L. Stevens, A.B., '99, LL.B., '02; and Stanley D. Brown, A.B., '05, LL.B., '08. Announcement of Mr. Cross's admission to the firm was made on January 1st. The firm will continue practice under the same name as before and with the same offices, in the Tribune Building, 154 Nassau Street.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT TOUR

The musical clubs returned to Ithaca on January 5 after a long and successful tour. Financially the trip was more successful than any other tour of equal extent in recent years. Ten concerts were given. Everywhere they went the men were cordially and pleasantly entertained by alumni. They had good houses in all the cities they visited, and every one of the audiences seemed to be pleased.

PLAN OF CHINESE STUDENTS

Yuen R. Chao, A.B., '14, who is now a graduate student in Harvard, writes that Tsu Mai Yu, B.S.A., '13, and Jen Chow, M.E., '14, M.M.E., '15, and a number of other Chinese students most of whom are Cornellians are planning to establish a university at or near Shanghai.

PROFESSOR A. E. WELLS of the department of machine construction of Sibley College has received leave of absence for nine months for the purpose of doing special work in the shops of the Thomas Aeroplane Company in Ithaca.

The Busted Will Pay to Get Back
A Reinstatement Fee of $25 to Be Charged to Students who Are Dropped

The high cost of living compels the University to use all possible means of eking out its income. A neglected streak of pay dirt has been discovered by a professor, and the Committee on General Administration last Saturday determined to work that streak. The material is not exactly high-grade ore. In fact, it has so little value that it had been overlooked. But one of the professors has thought of a way to extract the precious metal from it, and hereafter it will be properly panned. This material, in non-figurative and colloquial language, is the busted student. After this a busted student who gets back into the University will be panned in the process of getting back and will yield twenty-five dollars in refined gold or its equivalent in greenbacks.

The professor who thought of this scheme had sat on committees to hear the pleas of students who had been dropped. He had given perfectly good afternoons and evenings to the weary job of reading petitions and debating with his fellow sufferers the question whether So-and-so was quite hopeless or might have another chance. One day it struck him that a good many members of the faculty were giving a good many valuable hours to this sort of occupation. The aggregate cost to the University, in the time and energy of its teachers, was considerable. Couldn't somebody be made to pay for it? The answer came to his mind at once: Make the student pay.

His idea has borne fruit in the following resolution of the University Faculty, received and adopted by the Administration Committee of the Trustees last Saturday:

"Resolved, that the University Faculty recommend to the Board of Trustees that a reinstatement fee of twenty-five dollars be charged to every student who has been dropped from the University for delinquency in scholarship or conduct, except for such delinquency in scholarship as is due to ill health or to other reasons beyond the student's control, in which case the fee may be remitted upon recommendation of the Dean of the college in which the student is registered."

A COMMISSION as second lieutenant of infantry in the Reserve Officers Corps of the Army has been given to Jacob Gould Schurman, jr., the President's youngest son, who is a member of the senior class in the College of Arts.

ITHACA, NEW YORK, JANUARY 11, 1917

THE plan to have a real alumni convention in the spring was announced not so very long ago, but already the managers are hearing expressions of warm approval of it. The convention will take place at Chicago on Friday and Saturday, May 11 and 12. There will be business sessions so that important matters affecting the alumni and their relations to the University may receive due consideration. Such sessions will be held during morning hours. Afternoons will be given up to golf, tennis, or any other form of recreation, and social meetings will be held in the evenings. There is sure to be a large assemblage of Cornellians from all over the country.

In a recent letter George Mosher '08, secretary of the Cornell Alumni Association of Kansas City, wrote to his classmate Jack Dods, president of the Cornell University Association of Chicago:

"Dear Jack: You can depend on having a good delegation from Kansas City to the Cornell convention to be held at Chicago next spring. I regard the convention idea as a fine one and believe it will be a big thing for the University. While no class gathering should be held to detract from the main business, I do think it would be a fine idea if there were a little quiet 1908 rejuvenation meeting held on the side lines. If you will write a few of the ex-students and get some of the Chicago 1908 men to do likewise, and will send me the names of the ones you are writing to, Rick Lally and I will add a few words of urging. After nine years of labor, certainly there should be a few easterners who could buy a ticket to Chicago and return. It would be very broadening for some of them. Let's urge them."

ALUMNI ASSOCIATIONS

NEW ENGLAND

The nineteenth annual banquet of the Cornell Club of New England will be held at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, on Saturday, January 20, at 6:30 o'clock.

The principal speakers will include Mr. George Wilson of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, who is a clever after-dinner talker. He will speak on a subject of national interest.

Representing the University the club is fortunate in being able to have Professor Frank Thilly, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. In recommending him, President Schurman wrote: "Dean Thilly is an interesting speaker, an influential member of the University, an excellent teacher, and a writer of established reputation in the field of philosophy and ethics." Dean Thilly will speak on Cornell.

The third speaker will be Lieutenant C. S. Flamand, a retired French army officer and an honor medal man. He is the son of the French consul in Boston. He fought in the present war until he was disabled. He will tell of his experiences in the fighting.

The committee has engaged a good orchestra. A number of talented Cornell men will give stunts. Rooms will be provided at the hotel where members may change their clothes. At former banquets a number of the diners have worn business suits.

The price will be three dollars. At that price there must be a large attendance to insure against loss. Members may feel free to bring guests.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN

The annual dinner of the Rocky Mountain Cornell Association will be held at the University Club in Denver on Saturday, January 13, at 7 o'clock. Moving pictures of the University will be one of the special features of the entertainment.

CLEVELAND

The Cornell Club of Cleveland will hold its annual banquet on February 24, 1917, at the University Club. Professor T. F. Crane has been invited to address the club at that time. He will be the guest of C. W. Wason '76 while he is in Cleveland. Herb Putnam dropped into the News office during the holidays and left this information about the coming banquet:

UMUSKUM: Main 224, 178, 003, 813
Party E

"Put" said that every Cornell man who could get to Cleveland on February 24 would be well repaid for arranging his plans so as to be there.

PHILADELPHIA

The annual dinner of the Cornell Club of Philadelphia has been postponed to Saturday, February 24, in order that President Schurman may attend it.

SYRACUSE

The Cornell Alumni Association of Central New York gave a luncheon on December 29 for the Cornellians who were attending a state conference of teachers in Syracuse. More than forty persons were present. Professor George P. Bristol, John C. Bliss '89, and Walter G. Seely '15 were the speakers.

Honors for Faculty Members

Cornell Professors Elected to Presidencies in National Societies

Professor Frank Thilly, at present Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, was elected president of the American Association of University Professors for the year 1917 at the association's annual meeting in New York City during the holidays.

Professor Allyn A. Young of the department of economics was elected president of the American Statistical Association. Professor Young was re-elected secretary of the American Economics Association.

Professor George L. Burr retired as president of the American Historical Association. William Roscoe Thayer, of Cambridge, Mass., is his successor. Professor Burr's presidential address, delivered at the association's meeting in Cincinnati, is entitled "The Freedom of History."

Professor E. B. Titchener was elected vice-president of the section of anthropology of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, at the annual convocation meeting in New York.

The New York State Science Teachers' Association, in convention at Syracuse, chose Professor R. C. Gibbs, of the department of physics, as its president.

Penn Wins at Chess

City College Takes Second Place in Tournament at New York

The University of Pennsylvania retained the championship of the Triangular College Chess League by defeating Cornell and the College of the City of New York in the annual tournament at the Manhattan Chess Club in New York City during the holidays. The City College took Brown's place in the contest this year and won second place. On the first day Pennsylvania and City College played to a draw; either team won two games. On the second day Pennsylvania defeated Cornell, three games to one, and on the third day Cornell and the City College made it a draw.

The Cornell players were H. Berman '17, C. P. Hotson '18, and S. Wilson '17, all of Brooklyn, and S. Ginsburg '17, of New York. Hotson was the only one of the four to win his match against Pennsylvania. He defeated E. S. Jackson.

The contest with City College was noteworthy for the prolonged fight between the two captains, B. P. Gill and H. Berman. It was drawn out to seventy-five moves. Gill's victory saved City College from defeat. S. Ginsburg won for Cornell, and the other games were both drawn.

SHALL MANAGERS HAVE THE C?

The Athletic Council will hold a regular meeting next Monday night, January 15, in Schoellkopf Memorial Hall. Among the matters of business which will receive attention will be a motion to give the privilege of wearing the varsity C to managers of major sports teams. This project was brought up in the Council some time ago. Final action may be taken at the meeting next Monday. The Council has been told that several eastern universities have the custom of giving managers the varsity letter.

Basketball

Columbia 39, Cornell 38

The Columbia basketball team came to Ithaca and on Tuesday night of this week defeated Cornell by a single point—39 to 38. The decisive score was a shot from the field in the last minute of play, when Cornell was leading by a point.

This was Cornell's second game and second defeat in the league series. A game was lost to Princeton in December. The season is so young and the green Cornell team is playing so well that it may yet get a high ranking in the league.

Columbia got the jump on the home team and led, 22 to 17, at the end of the first period. Early in the second half Cornell scored seven field goals within a few minutes and had 32 points to Columbia's 26. The visitors then gained, and the contest was very close till the end.

Ortner was high scorer for Cornell, with four field goals and ten goals from fouls out of fourteen chances. Flock shot four baskets, Houck four, and Kendall two. Allen, Cornell's right guard, and Ward, his substitute, did not score. Columbia's players were Roberts, Latour, Leonard, Farer, and Farrell; substitutes, Katz and Alexander.

Colgate 30, Cornell 29

A practice game last Saturday night in the Armory resulted in a 30—29 victory for Colgate. The game was close throughout. Cornell led, 18 to 15, when the first half ended.

PROFESSORS Hosmer, Spring, and Adams of the College of Agriculture will attend meetings of foresters in New York and Washington next week.

OBITUARY

Charles T. Mould '77

Charles Town Mould, B.Arch., '77, died on December 29 at his home in Pottsville, Pa., after an operation for intestinal trouble. He was born at Utica, N. Y., on February 10, 1854. After his graduation from Cornell he practiced in St. Paul, Minn., and Nashville and Bristol, Tenn., until 1892, when he settled in Pottsville. The Pottsville Journal of December 30 said: "His best work is revealed in such buildings as the Thompson skyscraper, the Hummel building, the Sheaffer office building and the residences in the most aristocratic sections of Pottsville, the most notable being the Arthur Sheaffer home at 16th and Mahantongo streets, Edward Luther's residence and a number of others that grace the thoroughfare. He has left a permanent monument to his skill and architectural abilities in the great number of handsome homes that ornament the principal streets of Pottsville and breathe the higher art, and his death is, therefore, a distinct loss to the city." Mr. Mould's wife, a son, and two daughters survive him.

Eudorus C. Kenney '82

Eudorus Catlin Kenney, B.S., '82, died on December 24 at Washington, D. C. Mr. Kenney was a native of Truxton, N. Y. For several years he had made his home in Washington but had spent his summers in Cortland, N. Y.

Frederick H. Johnson '96

Frederick Habershaw Johnson, of Syracuse, N. Y., who was a student here in 1892-93, was killed on December 24 in an automobile accident near Boonton, N. J. He was born at Albany on October 19, 1873, the son of William H. Johnson, then owner of the Albany Argus. After he left college he went into the printing and publishing business with his father in Albany. In 1894 he purchased the Syracuse Courier and made his home in Syracuse. When the Courier went out of business he established The Johnson Press in Syracuse. He made his printing plant one of the best in the state. Mr. Johnson's wife survives him. He was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Paul M. Pilcher '97

Dr. Paul Monroe Pilcher died on January 4 at his home, 405 Grand Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. The cause of his death was pneumonia. He was in his forty-first year. Dr. Pilcher, together with his brother, Dr. James T.

Pilcher, had directed the private hospital at 145 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, which was established by their father, Dr. Lewis S. Pilcher. He was prepared for college at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn and entered Cornell in 1893. He left here in 1896 to enter the College of Physicians and Surgeons. After he graduated there he continued his medical and surgical training at the Universities of Vienna and Berlin. Dr. Pilcher was the first editor of The Long Island Medical Journal. He was a brother of Lewis F. Pilcher, state architect of New York. His wife, who was Miss Mary Finlay of Montclair, N. J., survives him. He was a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Susan Moses Graham '03

Susan Williams Moses Graham, the wife of Edward Kidder Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, died on December 22 at her home in Chapel Hill, after a seven-weeks illness of a complication of diseases. Mrs. Graham was a daughter of Edward Pearson Moses and was born at Goldsboro, N. C. She studied for three years at the University of North Carolina and in 1902 entered Cornell University, where she took the B.A. degree in 1903 and the M.A. degree in 1904 and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She played the title rôle in a performance of "Trelawney of The Wells" which The Masque gave. Miss Moses taught Latin and Greek for two years in Sophie Newcomb College, New Orleans, and then at Sweet Briar College, in Virginia, until her marriage in 1908 to Dr. Graham, who was then professor of English in the University of North Carolina. She leaves a son five years old.

H. A. Burgard '16

Howard Alfred Burgard, A.B., '16, died on December 31 at his home in Buffalo. The cause of his death was heart trouble, which had been aggravated by the accidental breathing of poisonous fumes in the Du Pont powder plant at Wilmington last summer. Burgard graduated from the Masten Park high school in Buffalo in 1912 and entered the College of Arts and Sciences at Cornell, where he specialized in chemistry. Last June he went to work for the Du Pont company. After three months in Wilmington he returned to Buffalo and entered the employment of the Schoellkopf Aniline & Chemical Works. Ill health compelled him to stop work a month before his death. Burgard was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity. When he was in college he was a member of the varsity baseball squad.

ALUMNI NOTES

'71, B.S.—Governor Whitman has designated Supreme Court Justice Albert H. Sewell '71 to succeed Justice Wesley Howard as a member of the Appellate Division, in the third department. The third department sits at Albany. The term of such designation is five years or the term of office of the appointee. In the present case it is until October 30, 1917, when Justice Sewell will retire from the bench under the age limitation. He was born in 1847. He came from Union College to Cornell when the University was opened in 1868, and after his graduation in 1871 he went to the Albany law school. Two years afterward he was admitted to the bar and began the practice of law at Walton in his native county of Delaware. He was county judge and surrogate from 1889 till 1899, when Governor Roosevelt appointed him to the Supreme Court to fill a vacancy. The next November he was elected for the full term of fourteen years, and in 1913 he was re-elected. Early in his first term he served in the Appellate Division, in the second department, which sits in Brooklyn, and in 1907 Governor Hughes designated him to the third department of the Appellate Division. He served there five years and then returned to the circuit. Justice Sewell was a member of the Board of Trustees of Cornell University from 1908 till 1913, elected by the alumni.

'82, A.B.—Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, commissioner of health of the State of New York, is to go to France for the Rockefeller Foundation. He will make an investigation of methods for the control of tuberculosis in that country. A leave of absence for that purpose has been granted him by Governor Whitman. In announcing this action the Governor made public a letter which he had received from Joseph D. Greene, secretary of the foundation. Mr. Greene said: "The trustees have sought to find the man who, in all the country, was best qualified both as a physician and as a public health administrator to study the situation in France and to determine the lines along which help could best be given. They have had no difficulty in making up their minds that Dr. Hermann M. Biggs was the man whose character and attainments best fulfilled the requirements of the case. They realized that it was asking a great deal of Dr. Biggs to make the sacrifice involved in a visit to France, and that the state of New York had the first claim upon his services. They felt, however, that if it should be the happy result of Dr. Biggs' going to France that the benefits of his long and wonderfully fruitful service in New York could be availed of in the organization of a campaign in that country, the effect in terms of human welfare would be so large and far-reaching as to constitute a very strong claim both on his public spirit and upon the generosity of the state of New York. We are deeply gratified to learn that this claim has been recognized by you as governor of the state, and it is my agreeable duty to acknowledge the obligation which the trustees of the Rockefeller Foundation feel for the consideration that has been shown to their appeal for Dr. Biggs' services. I may add that in an interview which I had with the French ambassador yesterday he expressed himself in terms of the most cordial appreciation of the sympathy and good will implied by the tender of Dr. Biggs' services."

'85—Charles C. Anthony has changed his address to Los Altos, Cal.

'86, B.S.—H. C. Chatfield-Taylor is in Santa Barbara, Cal., for the winter.

'90, M.E.—George C. Hicks, jr., vice-president and engineer of the P. H. & F. M. Roots Company, of Connersville, Ind., for the last fifteen years, announces his retirement from the company on January 1, 1917. He will act as consulting engineer for the company for a short time. Before resuming work he expects to take a vacation of six months.

MINING INVESTMENTS

"The business of mining was never in a more flattering condition, and the mining men of the United States were never in better shape to enjoy those splendid opportunities which this industry affords."

The above advertisement has appeared in several magazines. It is true to a certain extent, but you, always, should remember that mining brokers and promoters, or any who sell stock, can easily win, whether the stock purchaser does or not, and also that sometimes the mining prospector is himself mistaken.

There is a way to be protected.

I write this advertisement to serve as a reminder that it is not necessary to lose in mining any more than it is in any other pursuit, and to urge rigid investigation at the start by those who seek to invest in this business.

During the next year or two, big mining promotions will be instituted. Many will be fakes pure and simple. I shall be pleased to serve any clients faithfully and to examine mining properties, old and new, anywhere, furnishing complete confidential reports.

An Invitation from Chicago

The Cornell University Association of Chicago invites all alumni to attend the First Annual Convention of the Associate Alumni of Cornell University, to be held in Chicago, May 11 and 12, 1917. We call your attention to it now, to give you plenty of time to make your plans.

Many important matters affecting the University, the Trustees, and the Faculty, as well as the Alumni, will be discussed and acted upon. This concerns you.

This convention will be a live session from start to finish. No dry, long-winded debates, but real discussion by Trustees, Faculty, and Alumni on important matters.

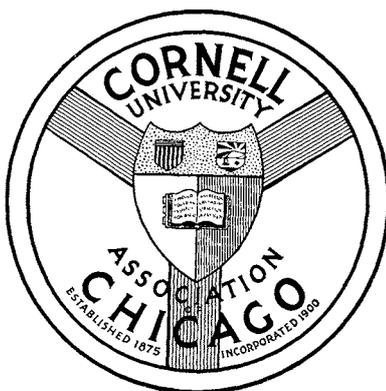

These are some of the subjects that will come up:

University Financial Matters.

Alumni Organizations.

Professors' Salaries.

The Semi-Centennial Celebration of 1918.

The Chicago alumni will be there "with bells on". But we particularly want a big attendance from outside of Chicago. Plan to come. You will enjoy it.

Our gift booklet is an all year round affair

As we are still receiving orders for the Troy calendar we presume that there are others who have delayed ordering until they saw one of the calendars, possibly that of a friend. There are now less than one hundred available. If you desire one, send us one dollar and six cents and we will forward one to you postage paid.

Our friends are still sending to us for the Gift book which was not intended strictly for a Christmas affair, altho former students would like to use the Cornell things for Christmas presents but there are birthdays and special occasions always coming. Why not send for one and have it on hand.
