SUBSCRIPTIONS to the second Liberty Loan at Cornell University reached the total of $370,900.
Professors, officers of administration, and employees of the University took $234,550 worth of the bonds; the subscriptions of students aggregated $36,- 350, and the University Treasury itself took $100,000 worth. Of the first item —purchases of professors et cetera—$162,900 was subscribed through the four banks of Ithaca, and $71,650 through the University Treasurer’s office.

ITHACA’s allotment of the bonds was $1,527,000, and it was oversubscribed by more than $100,000. George F.
Rogalsky ’07 was the chairman of the county committee. Several members of the Faculty and a large number of undergraduates worked in the campaign.
Professors were members of a band of “four-minute speakers” who addressed public assemblies throughout the county.
The principal contribution of the students was a house-to-house canvas of Ithaca by a committee under E. P. Tuttle ’18.
That committee obtained more than fifteen hundred individual subscriptions amounting to about $125,000. The canvas of the undergraduates was made by a committee under L. H. Clark ’18.
About a hundred and fifty students gave their services in the campaign. Among the elder members of the University community hard work was done by a committee of thirty, chosen by an executive committee. The chairman of the executive committee was Professor W. F. Wilcox.

MEMBERS of the Student Council have been chosen by all the classes. The councillors are: From the Class of 1918:
E. P. Tuttle, Honolulu; Arthur L. Hoffman, Elmira; S. R. Irish, Auburn; J. B.
D. Kirkland, Ithaca; R. C. VanHorn, Elmira; Nelson W. Cornell, Chemung, and C. F. Ackernicht, Johnstown; from the Class of 1919: D. G. Nethercot, Winnetka, Ill.; W. M. Kendall, Buffalo;
H. E. Shackleton, Buffalo; E. A. Lein-roth, Philadelphia, and Arthur Aloe, Philadelphia; from the Class of 1920:
C. W. Carry, Chicago, and T. E. Moffitt, Wallace, Idaho; from the Class of 1921:
The senior class on Monday of this week elected Tuttle to the presidency of the Council, the office which now and the chapter dining rooms are in operation almost without exception.

One unexpected effect of the early pledging was to release a number of rooms in the new residence halls which had been reserved by freshmen as long ago as last March. The Interfraternity Association maintains its organization, and it will probably retain the alumni advisory committee which was created for the recent emergency.

PROFESSOR D. S. KIMBALL, acting dean of Sibley College, has been apnointed fuel administrator for Tompkins County. The appointment was made by the state fuel administrator, Albert H. Wiggin, president of the Chase National Bank of New York. Each county administrator is required to appoint a committee to supervise the fuel problem in his district. The committee’s duty is to gather information about the supply and cost of fuel in its district and to furnish such information as may be needed by the state administrator. The work of the department of fuel administration is entirely a patriotic service.
The national administrator and all those working under him are expected to serve without compensation.

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN went to Syracuse on Wednesday of this week to make an address at the formal opening of the new University Club. From Syracuse he planned to go to New York City for the rest of the week to attend meetings of the State Food Commission.

FRITZ KREISLER gave a recital on October 29 before an audience which filled Bailey Hall. It was the first of the series of four University Concerts.
The first part of the program consisted of Bach’s Sonata in E major and Wieni-awski’s Concerto in D minor, No. 2.
The rest of it comprised ten selections, six of which were of Kreisler’s own composition or arrangement. Others were a Haydn minuet, Padre Martini’s Andantino, “Variations,” by Giuseppe Tartini, and a song by Louis Couperin on muted strings. The Philadelphia Orchestra will be heard in Bailey Hall on November 24.

Work is progressing on the new mess hall which the University is building near the Drill Hall for the U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics.
Alumni Give Cornell More Than $15,000 in Liberty Bonds

MORE than $15,000 of Liberty Bonds have been added to the Cornell University Alumni Fund. That is the result of Cornell Liberty Loan Week, October 22-27. About twenty cities have been heard from. In several of them the committees report that their work is not complete. Harold Flack, secretary of the Cornellian Council, said on Tuesday of this week that the reports made to him indicated that the final sum would considerably exceed $15,000. He hazarded a guess that it might be as much as $30,000. He said that some of the local committees were continuing their work this week and were still getting Cornellians to give Liberty Bonds to the University.

Mr. Flack said that the Cornell alumni of Chicago had the first place on the honor roll of cities in this campaign. They had reported thirty-nine bonds aggregating $5,450. Rochester is second with $1,200. New York City is third with $1,150. Elmira, N. Y., and Milwaukee, Wis., share the honor of fourth place with $1,000 each. That the Cornell alumni of the country took up this project with enthusiasm is shown by the tone of the following reports from the local committees:

Roger S. Vail ’06, of Chicago, wired on Saturday: “Chicago reports thirty-eight subscriptions to date, $4,450. As only one-sixth of our alumni have been approached we prefer to continue drive until balance has been thoroughly canvassed. We hope the total will be approximately $7,000.”

Leon Stern ’89 and L. A. Wilder ’06 report from Rochester: “Incomplete returns $1,200; hope to make it $2,000 within a week.”

L. L. Tatum ’97 reports from Milwaukee: “The members of the Cornell University Alumni Association of Milwaukee will give one thousand dollar bond to Cornell.”

Frank E. Gannett ’88 has reported a $1,000 bond from Cornellians in Elmira. W. F. Atkinson ’95 says in a letter dated October 27: “I enclose to you seven subscriptions from the Class of 1895 amounting to $400. I think this is only the start.”

Tell S. Berna ’12, of the Cincinnati committee, wired: “Four hundred fifty to date; just begun to fight.”

Albert E. Metzger ’88 wired from Indianapolis: “Liberty Bonds and cash subscription $367.”

E. H. Fitch ’97 telegraphed from Philadelphia: “Six hundred sure; will try for thousand; wish it were a million.”

The following report is from H. J. MacWilliams ’12, of Scranton: “Have pledges two hundred and fifty dollars, total Scranton Wilkes-Barre alumni.”

R. W. Beardslee ’00 says: “Class of nineteen hundred Metropolitan district contributes four hundred fifty dollars.”

Other cities report gifts of Liberty Bonds to the University in the following amounts: Buffalo, $850; Akron, $350; Detroit, $300; Harrisburg, four $50 bonds from eight Cornell men: Wilmington, $600; Newark, N. J., $300; New Orleans, $100; Albany, $100; Waterbury, Conn., $100; Jamestown, N. Y., $50; Raleigh, N. C., $50; Ithaca, $150; Kenwood, N. Y., $100; Salem, Ohio, $50: Syracuse, $50; Penn Yan, $50; Franklin, Pa., $50; Columbia, Mo., $50.

Reports for the classes could not be made yet, Mr. Flack said, because the pledges had not been received by the Cornellian Council. He said that W. F. Atkinson, president of the Class of 1895, and R. W. Beardslee of the Class of 1900 had done especially good work in their respective classes, reporting $400 and $450 respectively. Three hundred dollars was reported from the Class of 1882, $100 from the Class of 1890, and $100 from the Class of 1905 in New York City.

"Cornell Liberty Loan Week," Mr. Flack said, "has been a distinct success. In addition to serving the Nation, it has given Cornell men throughout the country an opportunity to serve patriotic Cornell at the time when she is facing the most serious financial situation in her history. Cornell men have responded generously to the appeal made on behalf of the University for Liberty Bonds at a time when it is almost impossible to make contributions of cash. The dozens of patriotic meetings of Cornell men in various cities have been worth while."

The Cornellian Council will continue throughout the year to ask Cornellians to pay their subscriptions to the Alumni Fund in the form of Liberty Bonds in every case where the subscription is of such an amount that can be done. The Council will ask that every Cornellian who has never made a gift to Cornell give one Liberty Bond to the Alumni Fund as a special gift for this year.

Letters and telegrams from several cities indicated that Cornell men throughout the country were taking an active part in the national Liberty Loan campaign in their respective territories. The Cornell men of Cleveland were so many of them busy in selling Liberty Bonds that they said they preferred to do their bit for Cornell in a separate campaign later. E. R. Alexander '01, of Cleveland, wrote to the secretary of the Council as follows: "I feel entirely confident that the Cleveland Cornellians will do their full share for the University in the course of the next few months, as the nature of the situation at Ithaca becomes more apparent to them and several of the national campaigns for various subscriptions are, at least temporarily, out of the limelight."

Several alumni associations which did not have time to get mobilized for this Cornell campaign have signified an intention to do their part for Cornell when Uncle Sam makes his next appeal.

CHICAGO

A meeting of the Cornell University Association of Chicago, which was held on Friday night, October 26, at the Morrison Hotel, was interesting and successful, as is proved by the announcement, in another column of this paper, of Chicago's contribution of $5,450 in Liberty Bonds to the Alumni Fund. President J. P. Dods, in reporting the result of the meeting in a letter written to the News on Monday, said that the pledges already obtained added up to about $6,000, and he was hoping that the sum of $10,000 might yet be reached.

The gifts from Chicago alumni, Dods said, included a $1,000 bond from Henry J. Patten '84, of the University Board of Trustees, and a $1,000 bond from Frank Matthiessen '85. Frank's son Dick was a junior in Cornell last year and is now serving in the U. S. Naval Reserve. Harry A. Wheeler, Food Commissioner in Chicago, gave $200 in Liberty Bonds in the name of his son, Harry Lindsay Wheeler, M.E., '13, who is now in the service.

Mr. Wheeler was a guest and a speaker at the meeting. He had postponed a trip to Washington in order to be present. He spoke about the food situation, thoroughly convincing everybody present of the sacrifices which Americans must make if they are not going to let their Allies in Europe go hungry.

Charles S. Young '95 was master of ceremonies. The first speaker was Captain Knyvet, a graduate of Sydney University, Australia, who is in this country recovering from wounds received while serving with the Australian forces on the Flanders front. He stirred the men with a description of the German treatment of non-combatants in Flanders and Northern France. Another speaker was Anthony Carnecki, formerly school commissioner of Chicago, who was sent by the Chicago Daily News to Poland to report conditions there and who returned just before the United States declared war. Erskine Wilder '05 gave an interesting talk on the work of the Alumni and the University's needs.

MARYLAND

The Cornell Alumni Association of Maryland announces the election of the following officers: President, Dr. Samuel H. T. Hayes, Cecil Apartments, Baltimore; vice-president, Arthur V. Foord; secretary and treasurer, J. S. Gorrell, 108 East Lexington Street, Baltimore. The secretary's telephone number is Madison 5347.

An Association of Graduates of the Old School and the Present One

The Alumni Association of Cornell Foresters is the latest organization of Cornellians. Its membership is for all who have studied or taught forestry at Cornell, either in the old school or in the present Department of Forestry.

A temporary organization was effected at a meeting held in Ithaca last spring. A temporary secretary was appointed--Cedric H. Guise, M.F., '15. In July a circular letter was sent out by Mr. Guise informing Cornell foresters of the organization and of its purpose to bind them together and to the University. A second letter, written late in August, said: "The response to the circular letter, announcing the starting of the Alumni Association of Cornell Foresters, has been very gratifying. The new organization has received a warm welcome from the 'old grads' both of the former school and of this Department. There is no question but that the Association is going to be a success."

A large number of Cornell foresters are now in the national service. The secretary of the association is keeping a roster of graduates of both the Cornell schools and has sent out already two news letters.

Co. E, 308th ENGINEERS

Among the officers of Company E, 308th U. S. Engineers, now at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, Ohio, are these graduates of Sibley College: Captain Charles M. Seymour '05, First Lieutenant William E. Munk '12, and Second Lieutenant Joseph A. Cook '15.

NOTICE TO ROTARIANS

John Prince '99 is first vice-president of the Rotary Club of Kansas City. He writes that he will be glad to receive word from any Cornell man who expects to attend the international convention of Rotary Clubs in Kansas City next June. Prince is president of the Prince-Johnson Limestone Company, 1012 Baltimore Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Modern Language Courses

Wartime Registration Figures of Spanish, French and German

In the number of students of the College of Arts and Sciences taking instruction in the department of German this term there is, as compared with the number last year, a sharp decline. Last year the registration in all German courses was 423; this year it is only 208. The French courses have 425 students this fall, an increase of 20 over the figures of last year. In Spanish the number has declined from the high levels of the last two years and is now 208, the same as in the department of German.

The following table shows the number of students electing courses in Spanish, in French, and in German, in each of four years:

<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>1914-15</th>
<th>1915-16</th>
<th>1916-17</th>
<th>1917-18</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Spanish</td>
<td>165</td>
<td>309</td>
<td>294</td>
<td>208</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>French</td>
<td>339</td>

<td>425</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>German</td>
<td>433</td>
<td>443</td>
<td>423</td>
<td>208</td>
</tr> </tbody>

In 1915, as the above table shows, the study of Spanish suddenly attracted a greatly increased number. The cause of the increase was patent in the prospect, which the war had opened, of closer commercial relations between the United States and the Latin-American countries to the south. A knowledge of Spanish had suddenly acquired a new value. Last year the number of students who elected Spanish was a little less; this year it is still less. The French courses are shown by the table to have attracted a steadily increasing number of students during the four years. German appears to have held its numerical lead among the modern foreign languages until this year of America's entrance into the war against German aggression, when it fell suddenly, far below French, to a numerical parity with Spanish.

The foregoing figures relate to all courses in the three departments of modern language. Perhaps more significant would be a comparison of the registrations in elementary courses alone. For a student's selection of advanced language courses is determined to a considerable degree by what his preparation has been. The college requires at entrance at least three years of a single foreign language. And in his first two years in college the student must obtain credit of at least six hours in one or more languages other than English. A preparation of three years in some one language gives the student an inclination toward further study of that literature rather than of a new tongue when he comes to satisfy the college requirements. And the past primacy of German in the schools is still effective in providing students for the advanced Germanic courses in the college. But how about the student who is beginning the study of a foreign language in the college? What is his inclination now? The following figures suggest the answer: The registrations for elementary courses (equivalent to first, second, and third year of high school) in the three departments for the current year are: Spanish, 124; French, 224; German, 44. For last year the corresponding figures were: Spanish, 266; French, 308; German, 141. There are less than one-third as many students of the elements of German as there were last year; less than one-half as many beginning Spanish, and a comparatively larger number beginning French. Course 1 in French, a six-hour course for beginners, has increased in numbers this year from 142 to 173. In German the corresponding course has declined from 36 to 20 and Course 3 (equivalent to the third year of high school) has fallen from 105 to 24. In some of the courses in Spanish the registration is larger than it was last year. For instance, Spanish 5 (conversation) has increased from 17 to 41.

New Funds for Education

How the Smith-Hughes Act Will Affect the College of Agriculture

The work, and likewise the income, of the New York State College of Agriculture will be increased under the provisions of the Smith-Hughes bill, an Act of Congress which became a law last February. That law appropriates federal money for three purposes, namely, (1) salaries of teachers of agriculture in secondary schools, (2) salaries of teachers of trades, home economics, and industrial subjects in secondary schools, and (3) the training of all such teachers. The federal appropriations are to be apportioned among the several states, and any such apportionment becomes available as soon as the state has itself appropriated to the same purposes a like amount. The use of the combined appropriation is to be governed by a state board, which in New York is the Board of Regents of the State University.

To the College of Agriculture at Cornell has been assigned the task of giving the training which the Smith-Hughes act provides for teachers of agriculture. The college will divide the task of training teachers of home economics with the State Teachers' College at Albany and the State Normal School at Buffalo.

A somewhat complex system is established, in the act, for the distribution of appropriations. Federal funds for the first of the three purposes named above will be apportioned among the states according to their rural population; for the second, according to their urban population, and for the third, in proportion of total population. The money made available in any state for the training of teachers is to be equably apportioned to agriculture, trades, and home economics.

The act provides for an annually increasing gift of federal funds during a term of years. This year the federal allotment for the training of teachers is $500,000, of which New York's share is about one-tenth, $49,712. The allotment for that purpose will be doubled in the course of four years, at which time the combined federal and state allotment for the training of teachers in New York will be about $200,000 a year. Probably not less than $75,000 will thereafter be employed annually by the College of Agriculture under the provisions of the Smith-Hughes act.

Already the College of Agriculture has highly organized the work of training teachers of agriculture and the new funds now forthcoming will reinforce the work. The college is already responding to a great demand for such teachers, in New York and in other states. In New York there are seventy or more high schools which have organized departments of agriculture, and there are a dozen schools of agriculture which employ from six to ten teachers each. Calls for teachers have come to the college, within recent months, from not less than twenty-two states.

The Smith-Hughes act provides for the training of only of teachers but also of directors and supervisors of agricultural subjects. That work in this state will also fall to the College of Agriculture. In consequence the department of rural education will have a considerable graduate school of its own.

Educational methods in agriculture and home economics are now taught in a model school which the college has established in Trumansburg. That village was chosen because it is fairly representative of rural conditions throughout the state. The college has assigned a competent teacher to the school, and it sends there periodically members of its teachers' training class to observe the work and the methods.
Opportunities for Special Service

Army and Navy Journal

There is a splendid opportunity for young men having any mechanical trade in the new Engineers regiments or aero battalions or quartermaster supply companies and the like: and in such, any who have had military training or who are honorably discharged soldiers of the Regular Army or National Guard, may be rapidly promoted to non-commissioned grades from which opportunities for commissions may be anticipated. Such vacancies are being rapidly filled and any men under forty who contemplate volunteering should lose no time in so doing. Blank applications may be obtained from Major J. E. Bloom, 266 Market Street, Newark, N. J., or write direct to the Chief of Engineers, or the Chief Signal Officer, or the Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C., setting forth your trade and military record and references.

The United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., announces that the United States Government is still in urgent need of thousands of typewriter operators and stenographers and typewriters, and that all who pass examinations for the departments and offices at Washington, D. C., are assured of certification for appointment. Women especially are urged to undertake this office work. Examinations for the departmental service, for both men and women, are held every Tuesday, in 450 of the principal cities of the United States and applications may be filed with the commission at Washington, D. C., at any time. The entrance salary ranges from $1,000 to $1,200 a year. Advancement of capable employees to higher salaries is reasonably rapid. For full information and application blanks address the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

The organization of the Mechanical Repair Shops, Q. M. C., N. A., unit for service in France is developing rapidly under Lieut. Col. H. A. Hegerman, U. S. A. Its contingent of more than six hundred officers has been practically filled, there remaining only a few vacancies, all in the harness making branch. The corps offers opportunities to several hundred enlisted men. The need is for skilled mechanics and artisans, toolmakers, machinists, men familiar with repairs of motors of all kinds, harness makers, wheelwrights, painters, carpenters, tailors, shoemakers, and almost every other branch of repair work. A draft will be made upon the National Army for men to fill out the enlisted strength, but there is also an opportunity for several hundred civilians who are willing to use their trades in Army service.

An appeal to secure the experts in photography necessary for service in France has been issued by the Signal Corps, U. S. A. The appeal was sent to all newspapers and news syndicates, asking them to release men for work with the American Armies. Men who can work with the required speed are few in number and mostly connected with news photography. These men will form photographic development squads, working either in small laboratories or in motor trucks behind the lines and responsible for the immediate development and printing of all photographs taken by America’s air forces. Owing to the importance of speed in Army tactics, plates must be developed, printed, and placed in the hands of the intelligence officer for transmission to headquarters in about ten minutes from the time they are received from the airplane photographer. Candidates for this work are asked to write the Signal Corps, Photographic Division, Washington, or to enlist at their nearest recruiting office as in the Signal Corps. There will be a brief period of military training for those accepted who will become the foundation of the laboratory force the U. S. Army must build up. This force will be large and opportunities for advancement correspondingly good.

CONSIDERABLE CHANGE

Grantland Rice in the New York Tribune

He looked as cheerful as if he'd just bought a million dollars’ worth of Liberty bonds.

"Why the hip-hip-hooray?" I inquired.

"My old college got beat 40—0 last Saturday," he said.

"Since when did a 40—0 trimming turn into a cheer producer?" was the come-back query.

"Since this season. Out of our 11 veterans of last year we sent 10 into some form of government service. The team that beat us 40 to 0 returned six veterans and three subs. Only three of its men went into service. Which eleven would you rather claim?"

And there was, of course, only one answer.

But it has taken a world-wide war to make a man feel prouder over a badly beaten eleven than over one mopping up with five or six regulars in tow.

Cornell 20, Bucknell 0

Dr. Sharpe made some experimental shifts in the line-up of the eleven during the week following the defeat by Colgate. The team which met Bucknell on October 27 was therefore a slightly different combination. Either the shift or something else was responsible for a considerable improvement. The eleven played with more snap than in any previous contest this season and won the game by a score of 20 to 0.

The principal change made by the coach was at the center of the line, where Huntington and Swanson, the guards, were displaced. Harris '20 was shifted from right end and Straus '20 from the second team to take their places. Reuther held his place at center, although Sherman Trowbridge '19 took his place for a time in the practice. Eisenbrandt '18 went in at right end.

G. R. Minier '18 had a trial at fullback in Pendleton’s place, both in practice and in the Bucknell game. Carry's injury gave Nethercot '19 a chance to go in at quarterback, and he ran the team throughout the game.

Where improvement showed most in Cornell’s playing was the work of the line in offensive plays. Holes were made for the backs which were not instantly plugged up as they were in the Colgate game. This showed in a great difference of ground gained, for Cornell made seventeen first downs in the course of the game and Bucknell made only five.

Cornell started the game raggedly, and fumbles gave the visitors two chances to threaten the home goal. They were held both times, and drop kicks were tried. In one of these attempts the ball hit a goal post and in the other it hit the crossbar. Cornell's first score was made in the second period, when a long run by Nethercot around the end put the ball twenty yards from the Bucknell goal. After two plays Hoffman made a run of thirteen yards for a touchdown. In the final period Cornell scored two more touchdowns by means of straight football, and had the ball within five yards of the Bucknell goal when time was up.

Nethercot justified his selection for the post of quarterback. Straus, at left guard, was a useful defensive player. Many times he broke through the line and spilled the Bucknell play before it got started.

The freshman eleven played a 0—0 game with Poodie Institute.

CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS
LESSONS in the wisdom of economy are not easy for Americans to learn, perhaps, but we are all going to learn some of them this winter. President Schurman has pointed out a way by which a good many Cornell alumni may be able to do a little in the promotion of economy—maybe only a little, but every little will help. The President’s suggestion was made to the president of the Associate Alumni, and Mr. Noyes thought it was well worth giving to the alumni, so he has sent it to the News for publication. Mr. Noyes had written to President Schurman, asking him if the Associate Alumni could help him arrange his tour among the alumni associations of the country this winter. The President replied that his work as a member of the New York State Food Commission would prevent any extended tour, and that his visits to the alumni could be only an occasional run to one city or another. Then he wrote this: “There is another thing to be considered this year. It is war time, and every one is called upon to economize. I hope that our Alumni, wherever they gather together, will keep that in mind and avoid costly entertainments or unnecessary expense of any kind.” To that suggestion the president of the General Alumni Association adds a hearty endorsement. Mr. Noyes writes: “We have spent a good deal of money in the past on entertainments that were more elaborate than was necessary, and sometimes perhaps more numerous than was necessary.” Neither of the two men suggests that any damper be put upon meetings of Cornellians or upon good fellowship at such meetings. The sum of their recommendation is simply that unnecessary expense be avoided.

THE WINTER COURSES of the College of Agriculture will begin on November 17 and will continue for twelve weeks. Arrangements have been made with Colonel Barton by which the young men who attend the winter courses may receive military training.

WHEN THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES holds its regular fall meeting in Ithaca on November 10, it will receive the annual reports of the President and the Comptroller of the University.

THE GLEE CLUB is rehearsing regularly. What its program for the year will be is uncertain. No arrangements have been made for a tour at Christmas time.

TRANSLATIONS BY T. STANTON ’74

Since the close of the last college year, Theodore Stanton ’74, who has been sojourning in America for the last few months, has brought about the publishing of two interesting war books and a Cornell prize poem. “A Soldier of France to His Mother” (Chicago: McClurg, $1) was translated by him, with an introduction. It is made up of a curious series of letters written from the western front by a young sergeant who was afterward killed on the firing-line. The second little book, “The Undying Spirit of France” (New Haven: Yale Press, 80 cents), is an English version of an oration delivered before the British Academy, a year ago, by a member of the French Academy, M. Maurice Barrès. For this book Mr. Stanton writes the preface, presenting M. Barrès to the American public. Mr. Stanton was the first to write publicly in America of the originals of these books and it was this notice of them that decided the American publishers to take them up.

Mr. Stanton has also been instrumental in giving publicity to a Cornell undergraduate literary effort. Last summer he called the attention of Dr. Henry T. Schmittkind, of the editorial department of the Boston publishing firm, The Stratford Co., to the Morrison Prize Poem for 1917, “The Comet,” by Samuel Wilson, ’17. Word has just been received at the University that the poem will be included in the 1917 issue of “The Anthology of College Verse,” edited by Dr. Schmittkind and published by The Stratford Co.

A PRISONER IN GERMANY

Pierre Pochet, a young Frenchman who was a special student of the College of Agriculture in 1904-06, and who was a member of the Cosmopolitan Club, was captured while fighting in the French army in June, 1916, and is now in the officers’ prison camp at Gütarsah. The Cornell Countryman will publish in its next number an interesting article, contributed by Mrs. Anna Botsford Comstock ’85, and containing extracts from letters written by Lieutenant Pochet at the front.

The officers of the corporation which publishes the Syracuse Post-Standard include William P. Baker ’91, secretary of the corporation and editor of the paper; Charles S. Estabrook ’00, vice-president, and Jerome D. Barnum ’12, treasurer and manager.
OBITUARY
Norwood Macleod '10

Norwood Macleod of Toronto, a lieutenant in the British Royal Flying Corps, died on October 14 at No. 4 British Casualty Clearing Station of wounds received in action. He was 31 years old.

Macleod was the only son of Henry C. Macleod, formerly general manager in Toronto of the Bank of Nova Scotia. He was a student in Sibley College in 1906-08 and was a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. After he left the University he went into the bond business in Montreal.

When war was declared, in 1914, Macleod enlisted immediately and went overseas with the first Canadian contingent as a private in the heavy artillery. He received his commission in the artillery in August, 1916. Not long afterward he was transferred to the Flying Corps. He made a high reputation in the latter arm of the service. A short time before his death he was made an acting flight commander and was referred to by his squadron commander as the best pilot in the squadron. His parents and two sisters survive him.

Monroe K. Miller '10

Monroe Kanouse Miller, who was a student in the College of Arts and Sciences in 1906-08, died on October 25 at Spokane, Wash. In a collision between his motor car, which he was driving, and a trolley car he received an injury which caused his instant death. Miller was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. His wife and a four-year-old son survive him.

W. G. Wheaddrick '19

Word has been received at the University of the recent death in Canada of Winfield George Wheaddrick, of Buffalo, who was a student in the College of Arts and Sciences in 1915-16. In a letter to Miss Phillips at Cascadilla Hall, H. S. Fisher of Company 5, U. S. N. Aero Station, Pensacola, wrote: "You may remember Winfield Wheaddrick, who roomed on the first floor of Cascadilla Hall the college year 1915-16. Poor Win was killed while flying in Canada. He had joined the Royal Flying Corps and was just about to be commissioned when he met with the accident." Wheaddrick was born in Buffalo on September 21, 1896, and was a graduate of the Masten Park High School. His father is George E. Wheaddrick of 510 Winslow Avenue, Buffalo.

Your duty as a red-blooded American requires that you know how to handle a rifle, as your ancestors knew at Lexington, Concord, and Gettysburg. There is no such thing as "Modern Warfare." In the end American marksmanship must be the deciding factor. We teach you all about the army rifle, how to care for it, how to shoot it, and how to drill, giving the manual of arms in complete detail, by means of our Military Instruction Charts, (actual size 11 by 14 inches) edited by Lieut. Col. Simonds, U. S. A. Endorsed by General Wood.

A set of charts for your son or brother will help him in the National Army will help him secure promotion.

HAVE WE YOUR ADDRESS FOR THE 1916-17 DIVIDEND?

November first we begin paying the dividends to students in Ithaca. We are kept pretty busy for a week or two doing that. Then we begin making out checks and money orders for those who graduated last year or did not return this fall. If we have your address we will send a money order and that saves the exchange on a check. Let us have your address.
