SEVERAL hundred Cornell men have filed their applications for admission to the third series of officers' training camps, which will begin early in January. This series was planned primarily for enlisted men of the Regular Army and National Guard and drafted men of the National Army, and a limited number of graduates and undergraduates of certain military colleges will be admitted. Cornell's quota of this number is fifty-two, plus an equal number of alternates. Applications were received up to midnight of December 1st by Col. Frank A. Barton '91, commandant of the Cornell R.O.T.C. The applications came from Cornell men all over the country—men in cantonments and camps and in various forms of volunteer service. They came from the Cornell undergraduates. Colonel Barton said that all the seniors and juniors over twenty-one years of age must have been represented in the pile of applications on his desk. Many of the officers of the R.O.T.C. are seeking admission to the training course. Examinations are held this week wherever the applicants are. The list of successful candidates will be published about the middle of this month.

PROFESSOR ARTHUR W. BROWNE (Ph.D. '03) of the department of chemistry has been appointed Chemical Expert of the Ordnance Department at Large. When he accepted the appointment he was urged by the Ordnance Department to attach himself to a headquarters staff. To do so would have made it necessary for him to leave Ithaca. He has succeeded in convincing the authorities that he can do his work for the government as effectively in Ithaca as anywhere else. He will therefore remain here, and he will be able to continue his work with his classes and accomplish in his spare hours all the work that the Ordnance Department expects of him.

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN is giving a series of talks at meetings of county farm bureau associations in New York State. This is a phase of his work for the State Food Commission and the state board of the federal food administration. He spoke in Chautauqua County on December 1st. Other counties in which he had promised to speak in the course of the first ten days of the month are Niagara, Otsego, Oneida, Erie, Monroe, and Broome. In his talks he explains the national problems involved in the successful prosecution of the war and especially the problem of food supplies for ourselves and our allies.

IN THE EDITORIAL BOARD of the Cornell Law Quarterly, Professor Charles Kellogg Burdick has succeeded Professor George G. Bogert as faculty editor. Professor Bogert is now a major and judge advocate in the National Army. He was the first faculty editor of the publication and it owes much of its success to him. The first number of the Quarterly's third volume has just appeared. Its leading article, which Professor Bogert wrote, is on the proposed uniform conditional sales act. The Quarterly announces the election of the following students to the editorial board: Ralph L. Emmons '18, of Borodino, N. Y.; Jane M. G. Foster '18, of Portsmouth, Ohio; Olive J. Schmidt '18, of Spring Valley, N. Y., and Louis W. Dawson '19, of Boonton, N. J.

THE BOARDMAN SCHOLARSHIP for this year has been awarded to Frederick Schuyler Reese, jr., of Ilion, N. Y. This scholarship was founded by the late Judge Douglas Boardman, first dean of the law school, and its value is $100. It is awarded annually to the junior in the College of Law who has, in the judgment of the faculty, done the best work during the two preceding years. Reese is a member of the Gamma Eta Gamma fraternity.

WORD was received in Ithaca during the last week of the award of the French war cross to two Cornell men. One of them is ARTHUR J. PUTNAM '14, who resigned an instructorship in the department of Romance languages last April to join the American Ambulance Field Service in France. Last summer he was promoted to be chief of Ambulance Section No. 70, and since then he has received a commission. The sixth Cornell man to receive the war cross for distinguished bravery is JAMES O. PECK, a member of the class of 1918 in the College of Arts and Sciences. Peck is a son of the Rev. George C. Peck of Baltimore. He was prepared for college at the Holbrook School in Ossining and entered Cornell in 1914. He has just completed his six months enlistment in the ambulance service and is now in the American aviation corps. Peck earned money in a novel way to pay his college expenses. On winter nights he peddled "hot dog" sandwiches on the streets of Ithaca. He had had a pushcart made with an arrangement for steaming the sausages. He carried on the business with much success and came to be known as "the hot dog boy."

PROFESSOR O. G. GUERLAC of the department of Romance languages returned to this country from France last week. He has been ordered to Washington by the French Government for service with the special mission under M. André Tardieu. During the last year he was on duty in the press bureau of the French department of foreign affairs, where his duties kept him in daily touch with the Paris representatives of foreign newspapers. Professor Guerlac was in Europe in the summer of 1914, and when the war began he was detained there under orders till December of that year. He returned to Ithaca but was recalled to France in September of 1915 and was in active service in the trenches for several months.

THE CO-OP reports that the year 1916-17 was the best in its history. The society's fiscal year ends on April 1st, and therefore the loss of students last spring was not felt much in that year's business. The number of students who signed slips during the year was 4,986. Their purchases were figured until July 1st so that all who graduated might receive all their dividends. On some days during the year 1916-17 the Co-op served more than four thousand customers a day. This fall the amount in dividends claimed at the window was about $700 less than usual, probably because so many of the students did not return to the University. A correspondingly larger amount of dividends will be paid by check or money order. The total dividend this year is more than $8,000.

THE COSMOPOLITAN CLUB announces that next Saturday night, December 8, will be American Night at the club. Professor Samuel P. Orth will speak on "Militant America."

Opportunities for Graduate Work Here in Summer

Report of the Dean of the Graduate School

To the President of the University:

SIR: I have the honor to present the Report of the Graduate School for the year 1916-1917.

The total number of students registered during the academic year was 467, as against 482 for the academic year 1915-1916. During the summer of 1916, however, there were registered 213 graduate students, as compared with 147 during the summer of 1915. The total number of graduate students for the year 1916-1917 was thus 680, as compared with 629 for the year 1915-1916. Of the 213 students registered during the summer of 1916, 128 were members of the Third Term, which is regarded for purposes of graduate study as the equivalent of one of the terms of the regular academic year

Of the remainder 55 were students in the Summer Session, and 30 were advanced graduate students carrying on special investigation under the direction of members of the Faculty of the Graduate School.

That so large a body of graduate students carry on advanced studies during the summer in residence at the University is a fact worthy of note. The provision made for instruction in certain departments by the Third Term in the College of Agriculture is the most important cause of this development. It is to be hoped that it may prove possible in the near future to make provision also in other divisions of the University for extending the opportunities for graduate study during the summer months. During the academic year the energies of the teaching staff and the facilities of the University are mainly devoted to the instruction of undergraduates, so that the claims of research and advanced study have difficulty in obtaining a hearing. It would be of great advantage to the University to make such provision for advanced study during the summer as would tend to throw the emphasis on the work of the Graduate School, and would make Cornell during these months a centre of investigation and research in the arts and sciences, and in engineering, as well as in subjects connected with agriculture. There are throughout the country many summer schools where elementary instruction is given. The location of Cornell University, as well as its excellent equipment in the way of libraries and laboratories, seems to offer an opportunity to develop here summer work of a more advanced character. It can scarcely be doubted that if the University were to a greater extent than at present a centre of investigation during the summer months this would tend to promote productive scholarship among the members of the teaching staff.

The Board of Trustees, acting on recommendations from the Faculty of the Graduate School, adopted during the year two changes in the statutes governing the work of the Graduate School. The first of these changes was the abolition of the rule which made holders of Fellowships and Graduate Scholarships liable for service to the University in the way of teaching or giving assistance in examinations. It was felt that the conditions of graduate work had changed materially since this provision was first adopted, and that Fellowships and Graduate Scholarships should now be regarded as exclusively endowments for the promotion of research and productive scholarship. The second change was the establishment of the new degree of Master of Science. Formerly candidates for the Master's degree who were not seeking a professional degree became candidates for the degree of Master of Arts. It is now possible to admit certain classes of students who do not wish for a professional degree to candidacy for a degree that is more appropriate to the studies which they have pursued than is that of Master of Arts.

Several conferences were held during the year on the subject of tuition in the Graduate School which were participated in by representatives of the Board of Trustees, of the State Colleges, and of the Faculty of the Graduate School. As a result of these conferences a general agreement of opinion was reached that it is desirable that there shall be a uniform fee for all students registered in the Graduate School. There are still some differences of view in regard to the details of the legislation which it is desirable to adopt, but it is hoped that the Trustees may be able at an early date to take some action which will open to all graduate students on equal terms the opportunities and facilities afforded by the University for study and research.

During the year 1916-1917, 109 advanced degrees were conferred by the University. Of these 43 were Doctors of Philosophy, 33 Masters of Arts, 1 Master of Science, 16 Masters of Science in Agriculture, 4 Masters of Forestry, 2 Masters in Landscape Design, 2 Masters of Architecture, 4 Masters of Civil Engineering, and 4 Masters of Mechanical Engineering.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES E. CREIGHTON,
Dean of the Graduate School.

New Army Commissions

The Cornell men whose names are printed below have received commissions as graduates of officers' training camps, second series. The list is still incomplete:

1908

1912

1913

Herbert W. Arnold, Tucson, Arizona; 1st Lt., Coast Artillery R.C.

George T. Houston, jr., Chicago; capt., Field Artillery O.R.C.

Don Lee, San Angelo, Texas; 1st Lt., Field Artillery O.R.C.

1916

S. E. Bolton, Amarillo, Texas; 2d Lt., Field Artillery, Regular Army.

George H. Bradley, Hornell; 1st Lt., Infantry O.R.C.

George B. Van Buren, Poughkeepsie, 2d Lt.

1917

Mario Lazo, New York, capt.

Thomas H. Dugan, jr., New York; 2d Lt., Field Artillery O.R.C.

1919

L. E. Bretz, Dobbs Ferry, capt.

1920

Laurence E. Stevens, El Paso, Texas; 1st Lt., Infantry O.R.C.

At Fort Leavenworth

Cornell Men in the Officers' Training Battalions

There are about 250 men in the Provisional Officers' Battalion at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and in addition about 450 in a "Candidates' Battalion." The later battalion consists of men who obtained marks between 50 and 80 per cent in the July examinations for commission as provisional second lieutenants in the Regular Army. At the end of a three months course they may receive commissions.

In the Officers' Battalion, just beginning an intensive training of three months, are these newly commissioned second lieutenants:

Henrik Antell '17, of Brooklyn.

Robert A. B. Goodman '16, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

H. V. MacGowan '17, of Los Angeles.

Antell was a major and MacGowan was a captain in the Cornell R.O.T.C. During the summer and fall MacGowan has been chief military instructor in the U. S. Army School of Military Aero-nautics at Cornell University.

In the Candidates' Battalion are these men: N. S. Perkins '15, Mount Vernon; B. W. Shaper '13, Little Falls; Cowles Andrus '16; Rodolphus Kent '16, Brooklyn; Julius B. Gluck '13, New York; James Donald Smeallie '15, Amsterdam; Arthur K. West '13.

Letter from the Front

Henry B. Marsh '17 Is In Training for Aviation in France

The following is an extract from a letter written by Henry Birdsall Marsh, B.Arch., '17 (son of Clinton S. Marsh '91), from Blois, France, while on a three days' furlough in the "Chateau Country," just before proceeding to a second school for instruction in aviation:

"I have been flying a great deal lately and have, therefore, been very busy. I am now breveted. This means that I have learned to fly a Caudron machine. It was at a French school that I received the brevet, or, in English, the pilot's license. * * *

"We go, early on the morning of November first, to another school, where we are to learn to drive a Nieuport machine and to do 'acrobatics.' After that, we get machine-gun instruction before going to the front. That will take at least three months. * * *

"I happened to be the third one of the third platoon of thirty-five men to receive my brevet. The first to get his brevet was another Cornell man, 'Madame' Sherry, who was at the front with us and who is with me on this trip. I expect to receive my commission as first lieutenant within a month."

Teachers in War Service

More Than a Hundred Members of the Staff Working for the Government

War service has called away a large number of the members of the instructing staff of Cornell University. Many volunteered their services last spring. In the summer others were drafted. A tabulation, made for the President's Report, showed that 128 members of the staff were in the public service—sixteen professors, twelve assistant professors, thirty instructors, and seventy assistants.

Most of the information in the following list has been published already in the News.

College of Arts and Sciences

Department of History: Hugh MacKenzie, enlisted.

Department of English: C. A. Carroll, first lieutenant, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army; F. E. Fiske, second lieutenant, Infantry O.R.C.; L. H. Boulter, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University.

Department of Romance Languages: Assistant Professor O. G. Guerlac, French government service; Assistant Professor Laurence Pumelly, American Field Service in France (three months).

Department of German: Kemp Malone, first lieutenant, Infantry O.R.C.

Department of Education: Assistant Professor William S. Foster, first lieutenant, Sanitary Corps.

Department of Political Science: Professor A. A. Young, chief of the research division of the War Trade Board; R. L. McClung, first lieutenant, O.R.C.

Department of Mathematics: J. V. McKelvey, second lieutenant, National Army; L. L. Silverman, Massachusetts Committee of Public Safety; R. E. Gilman, captain, Coast Artillery R. C.

Department of Physics

Professor E. Merritt, U. S. Navy; Professor J. S. Shearer, Major, Sanitary Corps, National Army; Assistant Professor E. Blaker, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; Ralph Brown, first lieutenant, Signal Corps; Paul T. Weeks, Bureau of Standards; R. W. King, Western Electric Company; L. J. Sivian, Western Electric Company; Austin Bailey, Signal Corps; G. S. Morath, Artillery, U. S. Army; E. P. T. Tyndall, Bureau of Standards; G. M. Pearsall, U. S. Navy.

Department of Chemistry

Professor A. W. Browne, Chemical Expert, Ordnance Department at Large; Assistant Professor G. E. F. Lundell, Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.; Assistant Professor R. P. Anderson, research work for the United Natural Gas Company, Wilmington, Del.; S. A. Ma-hood, U. S. Forest Products Laboratory, Department of Agriculture; F. H. Rhodes, research chemist, The Barrett Company, Frankford, Pa.; T. W. B. Welsh, Bureau of Mines, Washington, D. C.; W. A. Adamson, research chemist, DuPont Company, Wilmington; H. G. Tanner, research chemist, DuPont Company, Chester, Pa.; L. J. Waldbauer, research chemist, DuPont Company, Chester, Pa.; A. L. Culbertson, research chemist, DuPont Company, Wilmington; J. H. Michener, Aviation Officers' Training Corps, France; Mark W. Bray, Hercules Powder Company, Kenvil, N. J.; J. A. Bridgeman, DuPont Company, Gibbstown, N. J.; J. G. Thompson, Ordnance Department; H. I. Cole, first lieutenant, Sanitary Corps; W. A. Douglass, research chemist, DuPont Company, Chester, Pa.

College of Agriculture

Professor H. E. Babcock, New York State Food Commission; Professor S. N. Spring, awaiting summons; Acting Professor Paul Work, Camp Dix, N. J.; Assistant Professor L. A. Maynard, commission in Sanitary Corps; Assistant Professor E. R. King, awaiting summons; E. S. Ham, National Army; H. E. Knowlton, National Army; H. Clum, National Army; J. T. Lloyd, ambulance service. H. D. Phillips, Camp Dix, N. J.; R. W. Cowan, inspector of butter in Michigan for the War Department; M. P. Moon, awaiting summons; L. G. Brown, National Army; G. H. Bradley, National Army; S. W. Frost, in the service of the Bureau of Entomology, Washington, D. C.; V. R. Haber, awaiting summons; C. C. Hamilton, awaiting summons; W. H. Ohlendorf, awaiting summons; Thomas Bregger, National Army; Ernest Dorsey, National Army; E. W. Lindstrom, National Army; E. F. Hopkins, leaves in the last contingent; A. H. Jenkins, National Army.

College of Architecture

Professor G. Young, Signal Corps, U. S. Army; H. E. Baxter, first lieutenant, Signal Corps; E. M. Urband, Aviation Section, Signal Corps.

College of Law

Professor George G. Bogert, major and judge advocate, Camp Dix, N. J.

College of Civil Engineering

Professor O. M. Leland, major, Engineer O.R.C.; Professor W. L. Conwell, captain, Artillery; Professor L. A. Lawrence, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; Professor E. W. Schoder, captain, Engineer

O.R.C.; W. E. Beitz, second lieutenant, Field Artillery.

College of Mechanical Engineering

Professor W. N. Barnard, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; Professor F. O. Ellenwood, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; Professor C. A. Pierce, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; Professor G. R. McDermott, U. S. Shipping Board, Baltimore, Md.; Professor C. D. Albert, U. S. Shipping Board, Baltimore, Md.; Professor S. S. Garrett, Captain of Engineers, U. S. Army; Professor L. D. Hayes, U. S. Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.; Professor D. S. Kimball, special investigations in connection with aeroplane manufacture; United States fuel administration; W. C. Andrae, U. S. Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C.; P. G. McVetty, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; A. C. Davis, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; N. N. Tilly, U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; W. A. Gavett, U. S. Army in France; G. D. Floyd, British Flying Corps.

Medical Advisers

Dr. S. A. Munford, captain, Medical Reserve Corps; Dr. R. L. McKiernan, Navy; Dr. A. J. Goodwin, Medical R.C.

Pennsylvania 37, Cornell 0

The Pennsylvania eleven made its victory decisive in the final quarter of the Thanksgiving Day game on Franklin Field. In the first and third periods Cornell played just as effectively as Penn, and neither team scored. Two touchdowns and one goal from touchdown were obtained by Penn in the second period. So the score at the end of the third quarter was 13 to 0. But in the final period Penn scored 24 points additional, with three touchdowns and a field goal. Having beaten Michigan, the conquerer of Cornell, by sixteen points, Penn had reason to expect to defeat Cornell by a score at least as large as the forty-two points that Michigan had made against Cornell. It is evidence of the fine spirit of the inexperienced Cornell team that the Penn score was less than that, and that two-thirds of the score was made in the final period. The summary:

Cornell	Pennsylvania
Straus.....	center.....Wray
Swanson.....	right guard.....Dieter
Herriman.....	right tackle.....Thomas
Eisenbrandt.....	right end.....Miller
Nethercot.....	quarterback.....Bell
Carry.....	right halfback.....Light
Hoffman.....	fullback.....Berry

Referee—C. J. McCarty, Germantown. Umpire—D. L. Fultz, Brown. Field Judge—Carl Marshall, Harvard. Linesman—W. R. Okeson, Lehigh. Touchdowns—Miller, Straus, Light, Berry 2. Goals from touchdowns—Berry 4. Goal from field—Berry. Substitutions—Cornell: Huntington for Pendleton; Pennsylvania: Weil for Van Ginkel.

The Cornell eleven outplayed their opponents in the first period. It included runs by Carry and Cross of 25 and 37 yards respectively. After the latter of these runs, Hoffman failed at a field goal from the 23-yard line. Then a Penn back fumbled and Harris recovered the ball for Cornell on Penn's 20-yard line. Hoffman missed another field goal, this time from the 15-yard line.

Early in the second period a 25-yard gain by Cross put the ball on Penn's 40-yard line. Here Hoffman's punt was blocked. The ball rolled toward the Cornell goal. On the 25-yard line Captain Miller picked it up, threw off two Cornell tacklers, and crossed the goal line for a touchdown. Berry kicked goal. Score: Penn, 7; Cornell, 0. Cornell kicked off to Penn's 35-yard line, and Penn did not give up the ball until a second touchdown had been made.

Score, end of first half: Penn, 13; Cornell, 0.

The third period was made up mostly of exchanges of punts, and neither team scored. When the teams changed goals the ball was in Penn's possession on Cornell's 28-yard line. On the first play of the fourth period Light broke through center, dodged the Cornell backs, and made a touchdown. During the remainder of the game Penn made frequent use of the forward pass and scored two more touchdowns. The last score of the game was a field goal, drop-kicked by Berry from the 17-yard line. Final score: Penn, 37; Cornell, 0.

THE SEASON'S SCORES

Cornell, 22; Oberlin, 0.
Williams, 14; Cornell, 10.
Colgate, 20; Cornell, 0.
Cornell, 20; Bucknell, 0.

Pennsylvania, 37; Cornell, 0.

THE SEASON SUMMED UP

What the Team Won

Lawrence Perry in the New York Evening Post

Cornell went in for intercollegiate football this year because the university authorities believed that in its functions as a developer of manly qualities and as an incentive to the non-athletic student to get out into the open air and make something of himself it was a desirable, if not a necessary, sport to retain. Then, too, the wishes of the Government in this respect bore an equally important part in influencing the attitude of those at Ithaca. And so, although with one exception every member of the 1916 university eleven, together with important substitutes and valuable freshman material, entered the national service at the outbreak of war, a football outfit was organized and the regular schedule of games, as arranged last spring, was met. Yesterday, the team appeared on Franklin Field, and played Cornell's twenty-fifth annual game against Pennsylvania, before a crowd of some 25,000 spectators. The fact that the Red and White was overwhelmingly defeated—37 to 0—may be allowed to stand as an incident—more or less of a minor incident—of an occasion wherein the outstanding feature was Cornell's exemplification of her belief in sport as an ideal as well as a practical virtue—her belief in sport of a sort that stands lofty and serene above all thought of defeat or victory. Cornell played as hard as she knew against Pennsylvania, and her game contained much to show how earnestly the inexperienced players had striven to master the game, and how painstaking had been the labors of the coaches. With these instructors, apparently, it was not at all a case of taking excellent preparatory school material and building upon a groundwork of basic proficiency, but of beginning at the beginning and working slowly upward. And I think any close student of football will agree with the statement that given two more weeks the Cornell coaches would have worked out a team qualified to play ball approximating the modern Ithacan standard. There were phases of the Cornell play that indicated this indubitably—interference, tackling, following the ball, and line play. The Red and White, at the outset, took the field, and for one quarter played upon the sheer basis of recently acquired knowledge, played, so to speak, by the card, and gave every Pennsylvania adherent a good solid scare. Then came a break in favor of the Red and Blue, and thereafter by gradual degrees the Big Red team degenerated, until natural failings revealed themselves under pressure and finally became dominant. So that was the way the contest went, and in the end nothing remained to Cornell but her faith in underlying principles—which she should cherish and will cherish as dearer, more to be prized than victory.

A MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Cornell Daily Sun

Cornell has just completed one of its most successful football seasons. The fact that we were able to keep a team which played the best it knew how, which played every minute of even the games in which it faced overwhelming odds, speaks well for the spirit that kept Cornell's football players together throughout the season. When the athletic season started we knew that it was a matter of toss-up whether Cornell would win or lose the majority of its games, but we also knew that the team would play the same sportsmanlike brand of football it has always played, and in the fulfillment of that aim we are satisfied.

ITHACA, NEW YORK, DECEMBER 6, 1917

IN articles telling the story of the founding of Cornell University, the Cornell Daily Sun is now offering what it hopes will become an "orientation course" to be given by the University. The Sun's new enterprise is a product of the Alumni Inquiry Regarding the Recognition of Scholarship. It is evidence that seed was sown in the course of that inquiry last year that has sprouted in good soil. One of the suggestions made in the report of the Faculty's committee under the leadership of Professor Sill was that undergraduate students might be led by means of an "orientation course" to a better understanding of their opportunities and duties in college. No such course was provided for the current year. The undergraduate daily therefore is trying to supply one. Its purpose is to suggest a line of instruction which the University itself may adopt. The Sun's notion is that a course of this character "would take up such subjects as the nature of a university; the history, organization, and characteristics of Cornell University; the work of the colleges; undergraduate life; how to study; how to improve your physical condition; how some great men were educated; some scientific and social problems that await solution; the choice of a vocation." This undergraduate response to the important inquiry which the alumni inaugurated is such a happy event that we reprint the editorial article in which the Sun announced its plan.

ORIENTATION

Cornell Daily Sun

With the sobering influence of war, Cornell may well turn to the serious task of raising the scholarship standard of the University. It requires no gifted mind to see that the tide has begun to run against intellectual triflers. Cornell can no longer be a home for those "who go to college because it is the proper or usual thing among members of their set, or because some of the college side-shows allure them, or because they seek to taste an unknown experience." The standard must be raised—it is no new realization—and scholarship must be made a goal worth striving for.

Actively in support of any move that would draw definite action from the ephemeral theorization that has befogged the solution of this question for so many years, the alumni of the University recently called for a thorough scrutinizing of ways and means that might bring a concrete result. A committee of the University Faculty, under the chairmanship of the late Professor Henry A. Sill, undertook a study of the problem. The report of this Committee of the Faculty Upon the Question of Scholarship, a most interesting document, has recently been published. It contains much of the latest that has been thought and written on Cornell scholarship.

The report of the committee makes a number of recommendations. * * *

It appears to The Sun that the zeal for learning will only in a very few cases be heightened by the promise of gold, the bait of a medal, the stenciling of an added word on the diploma. Thirst for knowledge lies deeper. And the motives that will prove a stimulus to greater efforts are foreign to the material touch.

One excellent plan is, however, embodied in the report of the committee. That is the plan of an "orientation course" for freshmen—and perhaps for all undergraduates—such as is conducted at one or two other American universities. This course would take up such subjects as the nature of a university; the history, organization, and characteristics of Cornell University; the work of the colleges; undergraduate life; how to study; how to improve your physical condition; how some great men were educated; some scientific and social problems that await solution; the choice of a vocation.

An "orientation course" has not been included in the 1917-1918 curriculum of Cornell University, and The Sun has taken it upon itself to present a substitute therefor in its columns. Each day an article that could properly come under the head of an "orientation course" will be published. With the cooperation of the Faculty and Cornell's alumni, The Sun will endeavor to fill a want in the University's list of courses—always with the hope that, should the plan prove successful, the University Faculty will see fit to institute the orientation course in its proper place, the University's halls.

OBITUARY

Willis Van Valkenburgh

Willis Van Valkenburgh, of East Orange, N. J., died on November 14. He was a son of William and Harriet Van Valkenburgh of Brookton, Tompkins County. He graduated from the Ithaca Academy and in 1874-75 attended Cornell. At one time he was secretary to President White. In 1884 he moved to New York, where he was a court reporter for many years. His son, Howard B. Van Valkenburgh, a graduate of Sibley College of the class of 1912, is now with an engineer regiment in France

A. C. Wiechers '11

Albert Cort Wiechers died at Pittsburgh on November 26 of injuries received in an automobile accident in that city. His home was at 318 Clarkson Avenue, Flatbush, Brooklyn. He was connected with the Enterprise Automobile Company of Bridgeport. Wiechers entered Sibley College in 1907. Ill health prevented the completion of his course. He was the stroke of the champion freshman crew of the class of 1911. He leaves a widow and one son, Albert, jr., who is about two years old.

IN THE GAS DEFENSE

Lieutenants H. I. Cole, Ph.D. '17, and L. A. Maynard, Ph.D. '15, are in the Gas Defense Service, Sanitary Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, France.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATIONS

CLASS SECRETARIES

The midwinter meeting of the Cornell Association of Class Secretaries will be held at the Cornell Club, New York, on Friday evening, December 28.

At this meeting the important question of class reunions in 1918 will come up for discussion.

Other topics will be brought to the attention of the Secretaries and any Secretary who has subjects for topics to be discussed should send them to the acting Secretary of the Association as soon as possible.

WILLARD AUSTEN,
Acting Secretary.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

The annual meeting of the Cornell University Association of Western Pennsylvania was held in Pittsburgh on November 17. The attendance was the smallest in years, but the reason for that was apparent when the secretary announced that more than sixty Western Pennsylvania Cornellians were in war service—over fifteen per cent of the membership and including the most active members. However, there was plenty of enthusiasm evident and a determination to maintain the association as an active Cornell unit at the service of the University and the Nation.

These officers were elected: President, E. P. Dandridge '05; vice-president, W. K. Frank '11; secretary, A. N. Slocum '01, Westinghouse Building, Pittsburgh; treasurer, H. N. Matchneer '16; registrar, Paul Hardy '16; governor for three years, Thomas Fleming, jr., '05. Charles M. Thorp '84 and L. P. Gregory '01, of last year's board, retain their membership automatically for two years and one year respectively.

The retiring officers, with the exception of C. B. Auel '92, president, who was unavoidably out of town, and from whom a telegram of regret was received and read, made reports. The retiring treasurer's report was particularly interesting because it indicated that the sliding scale of dues adopted a year ago by this association is a success. With about the same number of dues paid, the total receipts increased about 25 per cent.

The Association was greatly pleased by the report of the chairman of the Committee on Scholarships, R. E. Sheldon '04. The Western Pennsylvania Cornell Scholarship, amounting to $250, is awarded annually to a Western Pennsylvania man, who otherwise would not find it possible to start to college, to enable him to go to Cornell. This is the second year the scholarship has been in operation and two men are now in Ithaca and getting along very well. This scholarship fund is a part of the annual budget of the association.

In order to facilitate the work of the Committee on Scholarship a gift of $250 was placed to its credit at the annual meeting this year by a '93 alumnus whose name was withheld. (Rumor has it that the donor was a certain F. Kipp Smith, erstwhile of Sharon, Pa., but now of Pittsburgh.) This gift will prove of great value to more than one man in search of an education at Cornell and points a way in which alumni can do excellent service to Cornell at this particular time.

The election of the Committee on Scholarship resulted as follows: For two years: R. E. Sheldon '04, chairman; C. B. Auel '92, George W. Case '12, K. W. Gass '12.

Thomas Fleming, jr., '05, newly elected member of the Board of Governors, and member of the Cornellian Council, gave a report of the joint committee meeting held lately in New York by the Council, the Associate Alumni and the University Trustees, to study the financial problems and relations of the Cornellian Council and the Associate Alumni. A general discussion of this matter ensued and it seemed to be the general opinion that if the Associate Alumni is to have a central organization such as it should have, the expense involved should be carried by the alumni in general through the eighty-five or more alumni clubs and associations and not allowed to become a burden on the Alumni Fund, every dollar of which is urgently needed for the actual operating expenses of the University. No formal action was taken.

The newly elected Registrar of the Association requests Cornellians to send him all available information regarding Western Pennsylvania men in the service of the Nation. He will endeavor to keep an accurate and up-to-date record on file in his office at Wood Street and Oliver Avenue, Pittsburgh.

BEEBE LAKE was frozen over on Thanksgiving Day, but the Athletic Association has not yet pronounced the ice safe for skaters. The warming house at the lake is being made ready for use.

THE REV. DR. SAMUEL A. ELIOT, of Boston, will preach in Sage Chapel on December 9.

The Late Franklin Matthews Two Universities and Two Newspapers Represented at His Funeral

The funeral of Franklin Matthews '83 was held on Wednesday evening, November 28, at his home in the Borough of Queens. His son, Crosby Matthews, was present, but his daughter, Mrs. Myra L. Parsons of Chicago, was kept at home by illness. Among those present were representatives of the New York Sun and Times, Columbia University, Cornell University, and the Cornellian Council. Dr. Talcott Williams, director of the Columbia School of Journalism, headed a delegation of about fifty teachers and students. The students of the school are organizing the Franklin Matthews Memorial Association, which will erect a tablet to the professor's memory in the journalism building. To his students he was known as "Boss Matthews."

Mr. Matthews and the Chimes

EDITOR, CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS:

Franklin Matthews was University Chimemaster for a longer period than any other Chimemaster the University has had, and, as far as I can gather from those who know, he was one of the best and most conscientious ringers Cornell ever had.

In the third year of my service as Chimemaster, I was one day seized with an acute attack of indigestion just before the 1 o'clock ringing. I tried in vain to locate my assistant, and the bells remained unrung that time. That was the only time the Chimes were not rung during the four years I served as Chimemaster.

Imagine my humiliation to learn, next day, that Mr. Matthews had been in town and had made a special trip up the Tower that same noon to see the bells rung. I also learned that he had afterward spoken to one of the clerks in the Co-op about the omission of the ringing and had said that during the five years he served as Chimemaster he had not been absent from his duties one single time! In the following year I had the pleasure of becoming acquainted with Mr. Matthews and I mentioned the incident to him.

Mr. Matthews was so interested in the Chimes that he wrote an article, "Chimes and the Art of Ringing Them," which he contributed to the Atlantic Monthly in 1884. I believe this was his thesis for the baccalaureate degree.

HAROLD EATON RIEGGER,
A.B. '10, Ph.D. '13,
University Chimemaster, 1909-1913.

SIBLEY EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

574. Mr. A. G. Kessler '08, Lakeside Forge Co., Erie, Pa., is very much in need of an engineer—about thirty years old—to take over the superintendency of his company. The work consists of drop forging and general manufacturing; but it is not necessary that a man have training in exactly this line, provided he has some general engineering experience and executive ability. Mr. Kessler is especially anxious to fill this position, as he himself is in the National Naval Volunteers.

575. The Commanding Officer, Watervliet Arsenal, Watervliet, N. Y., is in need of young engineers—about 20 to 25 years old—to learn the work of cannon inspection. The positions will pay from $3.28 to $5.00 per day of eight hours. At present the shops are being run in two shifts of ten hours each, and time and one-half is paid for all work over eight hours. Men demonstrating ability in this work will undoubtedly be exempted from draft.

576. Mr. Charles A. Ritchey, President, Board of Street Commissioners, Hagerstown, Maryland, wants a graduate engineer, with some knowledge of boiler and power house work as well as business ability, to act as manager of the municipal light plant. He says they "have a good plant and want to make it still better."

577. Mr. M. F. Warner, Chief Engineer, American Zinc & Chemical Company, Langlooth, Pa., is in need of a mechanical engineer for drafting room work. He prefers a man with one or two years experience and with some knowledge of structural work. It is also desirable that the man be exempt from military conscription. Salary from $100 to $125 per month to start.

578. Mr. L. Earle Rowe, Director, Rhode Island School of Design, 11 Waterman St., Providence, R. I., wants a young man about 28 or 30 years old to act as his assistant. The school, which has enrolled about 1,300 students and over 70 teachers, offers courses in freehand drawing and painting, decorative design, sculpture, architectural design, textile design, mechanical design, jewelry design, and normal art. This position, which is a new one, is administrative rather than teaching, the young man being expected to consult with students about their courses, assist teachers in keeping records of attendance, etc. Salary will depend largely upon the man, and may be $1,500 to $2,000, with advancement.

ALUMNI NOTES

'74, C.E.—F. C. Tomlinson was elected to the office of treasurer of the Ironton Engine Company, of Ironton, Ohio, on November 23. This, says The Morning Irontonian, "means not only that Mr. Tomlinson will become actively identified with an institution that has made wonderful strides in the past few years, thus allying himself with the industrial interests of Ironton, but also that he is to resume his place in the social and religious life of Ironton after a season in New York. Few men have a warmer hold on the affections of Ironton people and few have stronger recognition for business ability and integrity than Mr. Tomlinson, whose many years with local financial interests have peculiarly fitted him for the duties he is to assume with the Ironton Engine Company."

'88, C.E.—Charles N. Green, who was president of the Cornell Society of Civil Engineers last year, has a commission as major in the Engineer O.R.C. His address at present is 120 Broadway, New York.

'89, B.L.—Charles E. Treman of Ithaca has been appointed federal food administrator for the State of New York outside of New York City by Herbert Hoover, national food administrator. The announcement of the appointment was made at Washington on November 27. At the same time it was announced in New York City that a federal food board for the State of New York had been selected, and Mr. Treman is a member of this body. The other members are the three men who comprise the State Food Commission—John Mitchell, President Schurman, and Charles A. Wieting—and Arthur Williams, the federal food administrator for the City of New York. Mr. Treman will serve without salary. He was the state director in New York of the recent campaign to organize household conservation of food. The new state board met with Mr. Hoover in New York City on December 3.

'91, Sp.—Slaughter W. Huff, vice-president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, has been elected president of the Third Avenue Railway Company of New York. He succeeds Edward A. Maher, whose resignation will take effect on December 31. After he left college Mr. Huff was employed by the Baxter Electric Motor Company of Baltimore, one of the pioneer manufacturers of electric street railway motors and equipment, and he became general superintendent of that company. Afterward he was employed by the Columbia & Maryland Railroad and the United Railways of Baltimore. In 1902 he was appointed general manager of the Virginia Railway & Power Company of Richmond, Va., and spent six years in rebuilding and reorganizing the company's properties. In 1908 he went to Brooklyn to take the presidency of the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad Company. When the stock of that company was acquired by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, he retained the office of president and in addition was made vice-president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and its subsidiaries.

'93, C.E.—Major William R. Doores of the Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. A., has received his promotion to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

'93, B.L.; '95, LL.B.—Lieutenant-Colonel John B. Tuck is acting colonel of the 106th Infantry, Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. He was transferred recently from the 108th Infantry, in which he was a major.

'95, M.E.—James Brady Mitchell and Frederick W. Phisterer, majors in the Coast Artillery Corps, U.S.A., have both been promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel. Col. Mitchell is on duty in the Canal Zone. Col. Phisterer is in Seattle, serving on the staff of the commanding officer of the North Pacific Coast Artillery District.

'96, Ph.B.—Professor William H. Glasson of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., read a paper at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Society at Raleigh on November 21. He discussed the history of pensions and relief to the Union and Confederate soldiers of the Civil War and their dependent relatives.

'98, B.S.—Charles H. Blair, of the Stock Exchange firm of Schmidt & Gallatin, New York, has volunteered his services to the American Red Cross for the period of the war, and has been assigned to the field service branch, with headquarters for the present at Washington.

'02, B.Arch.—An interesting illustrated article, "Notes on Camouflage," by J. André Smith of New York, is published in the November number of The Architectural Record. An editor's note accompanying the article says: "Since this article was written Mr. Smith has been appointed a first lieutenant in the Engineering Corps of the U. S. Army, with prospects of being assigned to the newly created Camouflage Division. He is an architect of the firm of Smith & Ross, New York."

'05—H. A. Bruce is manager of the Portland office of the National City Company, 215 Railway Exchange Building, Portland, Oregon.

'06, C.E.—Seth W. Webb is a first lieutenant with Company D, 3d Engineers, Fort Shafter, Hawaii. He left Cleveland and reported at Fort Benjamin Harrison on May 8 for the training camp; was ordered to Fort Leavenworth about the middle of June and to duty with the 3d Engineers at Honolulu about August 1st.

'06, A.B.; '08, LL.B.—Captain George G. Bogert, Field Artillery, National Army, former professor of law in Cornell University, has been promoted to the rank of major and transferred to the Judge Advocate General's Department. He has been appointed judge advocate and assigned to the headquarters of the 78th Division at Camp Dix, N. J.

'07—Robert Stanton has received a commission as captain in the U. S. Army. His address is: American Expeditionary Forces, France. Stanton entered the French army in September, 1914, and there became a corporal. He was then transferred to the British army, where he got to be sergeant. He is the son of Theodore Stanton '74.

'07—Gustav H. Patterson, formerly of Mansfield, Ohio, is now drainage engineer with the Cuban American Sugar Company at Chaparra, Oriente, Cuba.

'07, C.E.—Louis J. Sieling, engineering contractor, of Red Bank, N. J., is building a $70,000 sea wall for the City of Trenton, and a $35,000 concrete arch bridge for the state highway commission of Connecticut at Canaan, Conn.

'08, C.E.—First Lieut. Philip B. Hoge, Engineer O.R.C., is engaged in construction work at Camp Stuart. His address is in care of the Construction Quartermaster, Camp Stuart, Newport News, Va.

'09, A.B.; '12, M.D.—A son, Stearns Samuel Bullen, jr., was born to Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Bullen, 128 Crosman Terrace, Rochester, N. Y., on July 29, 1917.

'09, A.B.; '12, M.D.—First Lieut. E. S. Ingersoll, Medical R. C., has been transferred from Aviation Section, Signal Corps, Pittsburgh, to U. S. School for Aerial Observers, Fort Sill, Oklahoma, for duty.

'09, B.Arch.—August C. Bohlen is a first lieutenant in the Ordnance Reserve Corps.

'10, LL.B.—George D. Webster is counsel for The Society for Savings, Cleveland, Ohio. This is the bank of which the former Ambassador Myron T. Herrick is president.

'10, B.Arch.—Horace W. Peaslee has been commissioned captain in the Engineer O.R.C. and has been appointed architect of public buildings and grounds at Washington. He designed the new two million dollar temporary office buildings and heating plant for the War and Navy Departments now under construction by the George A. Fuller Company. His address is 1504 H Street, Washington, D. C.

'10, B.Arch.—Francis S. Marlow is a captain in the Ordnance Reserve Corps.

'10, A.B.—Stanton Griffis was, on December 1st, admitted to partnership in the firm of Hemphill, White & Chamberlain, of 37 Wall Street, New York, members of the New York Stock Exchange.

We are offering his statement to leading papers in towns and cities of 3,000 and more population, for publication during the first week in December. If your paper does not publish it (some papers will not care to) you can secure it by sending 25 cents for a copy of the December issue to

COUNTRYMAN
Ithaca N. Y.

THE CORNELL COUNTRYMAN is for all who study agriculture in schools or on the land—more than a "college paper" in that its field is beyond the campus; more than a "farm paper" in that it may enter into rural matters at a point where the farm paper must leave off. Its position is that of advanced authority on agricultural developments, its purpose to report these developments truthfully and to interpret them in terms of their probable permanence, the degree to which they should contribute to the economic uplift and future human happiness of country people.

The paper is one of the Agricultural College Magazines, Associated. Its finances are controlled by an incorporated board of professional and business men, of which M. C. Burritt is president. The subscription rate is $1.00 a year, payable in advance; single copies 25 cents. Advertising rates on application.

IT IS TIME TO BEGIN YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

There will be given Christmas presents this year as usual of course. Perhaps we may change a little regarding to whom we give. Many are not giving as many presents at home as usual but are giving to soldier friends in the training camps. You will want something useful. Cornell things will be good gifts, as calendars and the new book "Concerning Cornell." Order now at the Co-op. so that you have time to mail your package before Christmas.
