Vol. XXII, No. 6

Ithaca, N. Y., October 30, 1919

Price 12 Cents

AN enthusiastic crowd filling about half of the auditorium gathered in Bailey Hall on Saturday to hear the returns from the Dartmouth game. As the bulletins were read, the plays were traced in colors on a blackboard. Between bulletins there was singing led by Eric Dudley and music by the cadet band led by George L. Coleman. The cheerleaders had an opportunity for acrobatic practice indoors. Meantime from Schoellkopf Field came the yells of the freshmen, sometimes well suited to the news from New York.

THE SOUTHERNERS' CLUB has been reorganized with a membership of about thirty. The aims of the club are primarily social, the fostering of more intimate association among students from the South, and to this end the provision of dances and entertainments. Only those students are eligible to membership whose homes are south of Mason and Dixon's Line. The president of the club for this year is William Douglas Ellis, of Atlanta, Georgia, who is a senior in Sibley College.

THE GALLERY of the Lyceum Theater will henceforth be closed to men. Two explanations for this new policy of the management are offered in the local press. One report says that the action is taken because of the large number of women in attendance at the University and at the Conservatory of Music, and therefore, by implication, the greater demand among women for gallery seats. Another paper reports an outburst of rowdiness on Saturday evening, October 18, after the Colgate game, when a company of comedians were received with catcalls and gradually increasing uproar and for the first time in several years were pelted with fruit and eggs. Why the disturbance was allowed to continue has not been published. It appears that no arrests were made. Manager Gutstadt's declaration about the future use of the gallery is emphatic.

PROFESSOR WALTER F. WILLCOX has been reelected president of the Ithaca Social Service League. Other members of the Faculty who are on the council of the League are Professors James A. Winans and Frank Thilly.

EIGHTY-EIGHT HORSES for the use of the Field Artillery reached Ithaca on October 23. Of these sixty are light draft horses and the remaining twenty-eight are cavalry horses for riding. All are black. They come from the First Division of the United States Army, being among the horses both draft and amount used in the parades of that division in New York and Washington. They are to be kept in stables recently provided by the University. Instruction in the care and maintenance of the horses and in riding begins this week, to be followed by work in various forms of mounted duty.

PROFESSOR ALBERT C. PHELPS, of the College of Architecture, is scheduled to deliver two lectures at the Metropolitan Museum of Art on January 3 and 10, on "The Charm of English Gothic Architecture" and "The English Chapter House." On January 17 and 24 the lecturer will be Professor E. Raymond Bossange, formerly of Cornell, now of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh.

A BURGLARY on the night of October 22 is reported by the Delta Upsilon Fraternity. The thieves made off with five gold watches, about a hundred dollars in small change, a motorcycle, and a number of small articles easily picked up, stickpins, pens, and shoes. There is some reason for believing that the robbers were familiar with the house. It appears also that many, if not most fraternity lodges, perhaps rooming houses as well, are left unlocked at night, so that entrance by sneak thieves is easy. Everybody therefore has again been warned by the police to make all buildings more secure against robbery.

A STUDENT last week fell about forty feet off the bank of Fall Creek Gorge near the buildings of the Ithaca Gun Company. Since he alighted on a pile of sawdust, his injuries were so slight that after a day or two at the Infirmary he was able to go about his work as usual.

THE TENNIS TOURNAMENT came to an end on October 22. As a result of the preliminary matches the four men who made up last year's varsity team were left to compete for this year's championship: Kirk M. Reid '20, of Warren, Ohio; Leicester W. Fisher '20, of Huguenot Park, N. Y.; William T.

Mallery '21, of Owego, N. Y.; and W. S. Holt '20, of Brooklyn. In the semifinals Reid and Fisher defeated Mallery and Holt; and in the finals Reid defeated Fisher in three out of four sets, the scores being 7-5, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. This is the second time that these players have met in the finals of the University tournament, and on both occasions Reid has come off victorious.

LECTURES DURING THE PAST WEEK include "A Trip Through Phrygia and Cappadocia" by Dr. W. T. M. Forbes before the Agassiz Club; "Present Tendencies of Thought in Europe" by Dr. George W. Nasmyth '06 before the Ethics Club; "The Coming Science of Acoustical Engineering" by Professor Vladimir Karapetoff before the Society of Electrical Engineers; and an address to the freshman debate club by President Schurman. On Monday and Tuesday of this week Percy Mackaye, Harvard '97, traveler and poet, gave readings, with comment, from his work in community drama.

MISS CLARIBEL NYE, of the Department of Domestic Science at Cornell, lectured before the Housewives' League of New Orleans on October 17, on the subject of breadmaking, and subsequently acted as chairman of a committee of judges in a bread-baking contest, in which some 1,600 women took part.

THE ASSOCIATION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS has organized for the coming year. Henry John Benisch '20, of Brooklyn, is the new president, and Leonard C. Urquhart '09 Faculty adviser. At the organization meeting Dean Haskell spoke on the re-establishment of the honor system as it was before the war. Colonel Henry R. Lordly '93 spoke of the great value both in colleges and among engineers in practice of The Cornell Civil Engineer.

THE CORNELL ANNUALS announce the election of George A. Benton, jr., '19, of Spencerport, N. Y., as associate business manager. He was a member of the Annuals staff before entering the service.

CAPTAIN R. J. SOUTHERN is now acting quartermaster of the R. O. T. C. His predecessor, Major A. T. Knight, has been relieved pending discharge from the service.

The Endowment Fund Goal Raised to Ten Million Dollars

Organization is Under Way Throughout the Country---Generals Wood and Bell to Speak in the Campaign

The outstanding features of the Cornell Endowment Campaign up to date are: the resolution of the New York committee that a goal of ten million dollars be adopted at once; the action of the Chicago committee in setting its quota at two millions with ten per cent of the funds in hand; and the similar action of the Philadelphia committee in setting its quota at one million.

The action of the New York committee in recommending the ten-million-dollar goal is in exact accord with President Schurman's statement that five million dollars is needed immediately for teachers' salaries and that an additional five millions is needed for general endowment. The New York committee is determined that the full ten million dollars shall be raised in the one campaign.

From all quarters of the country enthusiastic and gratifying reports have come in in letters and telegrams. Cornellians everywhere state that they are leaving no stones unturned in their efforts to present Cornell's appeal not only to Cornellians but to all friends of higher education.

Some idea of the progress of the campaign may be gained from the following reports of meetings:

New York City Organizes

Frank S. Washburn '83, chairman of the New York committee, gave a dinner to the members of his committee at the University Club on Thursday, October 23. The principal speakers were President Schurman and J. Du Pratt White, chairman of the Semi-Centennial Endowment Committee. The New York campaign is well organized and the prospects are bright. Offices have been opened at 511 Fifth Avenue and a staff is continually at work there.

A dinner was given in Philadelphia on Friday evening, October 24, by J. N. Pew '08, chairman of the Philadelphia committee. The principal speakers were Professors A. A. Young of the Economics Department and George G. Bogert '06 of the College of Law. It was at this meeting that Pew announced the Philadelphia goal as a million dollars.

On October 24, a meeting of Cornellians in the city of Washington was addressed by Hon. Daniel A. Reed '98, member of Congress, and Professor Samuel P. Orth of the University. The plans for the campaign were outlined and committees are now at work in Washington.

Professor Kimball on a Tour

On October 25, Professor Dexter S. Kimball of the College of Mechanical Engineering, addressed a Cornell dinner in Pittsburgh which was attended by seventy-five Cornellians from Western Pennsylvania. At this meeting the Western Pennsylvania campaign was outlined. Professor Kimball has just returned to Ithaca from a speaking tour which included Cornell gatherings in the following cities, in addition to Pittsburgh: Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Davenport, and Peoria.

On October 23, Walter P. Cooke '91, alternate chairman of the campaign, gave a dinner at his residence in Buffalo to the thirty Cornellians who are serving on the Buffalo committee. Mr. Cooke was in direct touch with all of the executives of the campaign in Western New York.

Rochester's Daily Meetings

Dean A. W. Smith of the College of Civil Engineering, spoke at a luncheon in Rochester, held at the University Club on October 23. This was attended by the thirty-five Cornellians who are members of the teams to solicit funds in Rochester. The Rochester committee holds daily meetings at the University Club during the period of the intensive drive.

Professor C. L. Durham has spoken at Cornell luncheons and dinners at the following places during the present campaign: Youngstown, Toledo, Louisville, and Wheeling.

Whinery Tours Pacific Coast

Andrew J. Whinery '10, associate director of the campaign, has spoken at Cornell gatherings during the past month at the following places: Duluth, Minneapolis, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Oregon, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Denver, and Dallas. Before returning to Ithaca he will address gatherings in Tulsa, Little Rock, New Orleans, Jacksonville, and Havana, Cuba. In Havana the meeting will have the support of President Menocal of the Cuban Republic.

Generals Wood and Bell to Speak

A big Cornell gathering and campaign

dinner will be held in Chicago on November 3. General Leonard Wood, General George Bell, jr., '94, President Schurman, Professor Durham, and Chairman White have accepted invitations of the committee to speak at this affair. In connection with the Chicago campaign a committee of fathers of Cornellians is being formed. This committee consists largely of men who are fathers of students who are now in the University.

Professor Kimball and Professor Durham will be the principal speakers at a Cornell dinner in Syracuse on November 8 at the launching of the intensive Syracuse campaign.

Among the other meetings, one held on October 24 at Batavia, New York, was addressed by Professor Bristow Adams, of the College of Agriculture. This meeting reached Cornellians in Seneca and Wyoming Counties and was the occasion, not only of the launching of the Endowment Campaign there, but of the formation of an active Cornell Club representing these two counties.

On Tuesday, October 28, Professor E. P. Andrews '95 spoke to the active and enthusiastic organization of Cornellians which already exists in Jamestown, New York.

The central committee has not yet made a definite report of the total amount pledged, but has expressed itself to the effect that the results have been highly gratifying and that they are confident that the goal which has been set will be reached.

THE CHICAGO LUNCHEON

Lieut. Col. Lawrence Whiting, personnel officer on the staff of General Pershing, spoke at a Cornell luncheon at the City Club in Chicago on October 23 on "The Business Management of the A. E. F."

MEETINGS OF NEW YORK WOMEN

The Cornell Women's Club of New York will hold afternoon meetings at the Women's University Club, 106 East 52d Street, on November 8, January 10, March 13, and May 8, with the annual luncheon on February 7. Miss Mabel E. Rose, secretary, may be addressed at the club or at her home, 950 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn.

Alumni Architects Confer

Consider Ways of Improving the Work of the College

At the first meeting of the Alumni Conference Committee of the College of Architecture, held in New York City on October 13, the need for more practical experience in connection with the work of the college was emphasized. A. B. Trowbridge '90 was elected permanent chairman, and George B. Cummings secretary and treasurer. All the members of the committee were present, and it was decided that the next meeting should be held in Ithaca early in November.

An executive committee was appointed by the chairman consisting of Messrs. Joannes '00, Shreve '02, and Trowbridge, and Cummings ex-officio.

A letter from Dean Bosworth was read containing an explanation of what the Faculty is endeavoring to accomplish through a revised curriculum, after which the question of the thesis was taken up. It was decided that, if possible, some general or typical problem should be chosen by the student, and that he should be brought into contact with some practitioner specializing in that problem, who might assist in formulating the program and judging the solution.

It was also proposed that technical experts be asked to address the college from time to time, including specialists in the different fields of engineering, such as sanitation, heating, and ventilation, electric and elevator equipment, etc., and specialists in certain type problems, such as schools, hospitals, etc., as well as muralists, sculptors, and modelers.

The sentiment of the meeting was that work in interior decoration would be of questionable value, owing to the situation of the college at a distance from any large city. It was felt that work in landscape architecture should be closely united with the architectural course.

Summer work in offices, with the possibility of allowing credit for it in courses requiring similar work, was proposed.

ROCHESTER CLUB MEETS

A luncheon for Rochester alumni was held at the University Club of that city on October 24. Dean A. W. Smith was present, and reports of the Semi-Centennial Endowment Campaign were given.

DONALDSON '21 FINISHES SECOND

Captain John O. W. Donaldson, formerly of the class of 1921 in civil engineering, was the second aviator to complete the flight from San Francisco to Mineola. He made the trip in a one-seated S. E. 5 airplane. Donaldson holds the rank of ace in both the American and the British flying corps. Of his exploits against the Huns the ALUMNI NEWS last year gave brief accounts from time to time; his own story of his capture by Germans and of his subsequent escape was published in Harper's Magazine for July, 1919. This transcontinental flight places him among the four who made the best actual flying time between San Francisco and New York.

SCHURMAN LIBRARY TO LOUVAIN

President Schurman has written a letter to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, chairman of the Committee for the Restoration of the Library of the University of Louvain, offering his philosophical library of several hundred volumes for shipment immediately to the Belgian university. Announcement of the acceptance of the gift was made on Saturday.

In his letter of acceptance Dr. Butler pointed out that the destruction by the Germans of the priceless manuscripts in the archives of the Belgian university had only one parallel in history. That was in 643 A. D., when Caliph Omar caused the destruction of the library at Alexandria, with countless manuscripts dating from the times of earliest Egypt.

The library of Dr. Schurman is rated by scholars as one of the best of its kind in this country, being especially rich in books on philosophy, many of them rare first editions that could be replaced only at great cost, even in Europe. The exact number of the books has not been determined, but the gift will include all of his best volumes.

It is announced by the committee that offers of assistance in the rebuilding of the library have been made by hundreds of professors and scholars in American universities, many of whom studied in the Belgian university. Some of these gifts are priceless books and manuscripts. As soon as the offers have been classified, a list of them is to be sent to M. Ladeuze, rector of the University of Louvain. Many gifts of money also have been made.

When the library was destroyed by the Germans in 1914 it contained about 300,000 volumes. A new catalogue then being made by the librarian, Professor Deldanov, was daily bringing to light treasures among the old manuscripts, most of them being first-hand sources of information upon the history of the Low Countries. All these manuscripts were destroyed, including a rare collection of virtually every edition of the Bible from the earliest times of printing.

Reports reaching the committee here are that students are returning to the university, and it is the desire of the committee to furnish the new library as soon as possible.

UNDERGRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS

The twenty University undergraduate scholarships open annually to entering students have been awarded to members of the class of 1923. Some hundred and thirty-seven competitors tried the examinations held during registration week. Of the successful candidates fourteen are women, six are men; one new scholar comes from New Jersey, all the rest from the state of New York.

The Boys' High School of Brooklyn has lost, at least temporarily, its distinction in having every year some of its graduates among the University scholars. Two years ago four winners, last year two, were prepared at the Boys' High School; this year, none. This year, however, students from the Girls' High School of Brooklyn carry off three scholarships.

The new holders of these scholarships are: David Edward Brainard, Central High School, Syracuse; Cecelia Contin, Morris High School, New York City; Gertrude Diamant, Washington Irving High School, New York City; George Reeve Durland, Goshen High School; Stephen Albert Emery, Erasmus Hall High School, New York City; Laura Loretta Geer, Marathon High School; Madeline Margaret Hickey, Ithaca High School; Alfreda Hill, Webster High School; Violet Mabel Holloway, Wadleigh High School, New York City; William Israelson, Haverstraw High School; Semma Jackson, Curtis High School, Staten Island; Stella Ruth Kaufman, Girls' High School, Brooklyn; Bertha Anna Marks, Girls' High School, Brooklyn; Matthew Corell Pugsley, Westfield High School; Sarah Fanny Simon, Wadleigh High School, New York City; Philip Carman Wakeley, Newark Academy, Newark, N. J.; Gladys E. Wellar, Utica Free Academy; Grace Walroud West, Girls' High School, Brooklyn; Ruby Wheaton, Owego Free Academy;

Mary Alexander Ziegler, Jamaica High School.

The University scholarships may be held through the freshman and sophomore years, the tenure being dependent upon the maintenance of a high scholastic standing in all subjects in the course. The annual value of each is two hundred dollars.

DR. WHITE ON THE GERMANS

The Yale Alumni Weekly, in its issue of October 10, prints the following letter from the late President White to a Yale friend, written just after the United States joined the Allies, and of importance "as showing Dr. White's very keen sorrow over the change from the Germany he knew as a student and young man to the Germany that involved the world in a defensive war against its modern ambitious aggression. Dr. White was a friend and fellow worker with Carl Schurz and the other leaders of the '48 German democratic movement and a bitter opponent of the modern military régime which led Germany to its punishment in the Great War."

Rarely at any time in my life have I been so impressed by a letter as by yours of the 12th just received. The thoughts that it embodies have occurred to me in various forms again and again. How often I have thought, "If only Carl Schurz were now living!" How a speech from him or even a simple talk from him or one of his thoughtful letters would have cleared the whole moral and intellectual atmosphere which is now so murky. Next to my own country I have ever since my boyhood loved Germany, and more and more as time has gone on, have felt that of all things I could do the best would be to have Germany, the real Germany, to which you refer, understood in America, and America understood in Germany. I hardly dare trust myself to think upon the present condition of things. The two nations once seemed predestined each to give the other what it needed and each to stir in the children of the other the noblest thoughts. I receive letters from time to time from old German friends, but I dare not trust myself to answer them, and I am but one out of a vast body of Americans who feel toward Germany as toward a second mother country.

Think of poor, dear Professor Dr. Casper René Gregory, so lovely, so gentle, throwing his life away the other day as a soldier, for the Germany he loved so well. When I think over the great Germans you mention I feel as if I had known them all, and indeed many of them I did know and love. I dare not trust myself to think upon them. What a dream, what a blessed dream then was my life in Germany and that of my family.

I can only thank you for your letter and express the hope that in some way this present dream of horrors can be wafted away from us.

You suggest to my mind a multitude of thoughts on this great calamity and catastrophe but I dare not attempt to develop them. I am eighty-four years of age, my eye-sight is almost gone and I have not strength, even if I had the time to discuss the thoughts which crowd upon my mind as I compare that beautiful past with this great panorama of distress now before us.

As I dictate this letter I cast my eyes out over the campus of Cornell University and I see long lines of splendid young men such as we have always trained here to love Germany and to appreciate what she has done for ourselves and for the world, and I note that they are dressed in khaki uniforms on their way to military instruction having as its object the defense of this country from Germany.

Here am I who knew and loved Franz Lieber, Carl Schurz, Henry Villard and Carl Bitter, thinking of men of the present day like these, and those who laid down their lives for us during the Civil War, as enemies. I dare not trust myself to think longer upon it all.

I thank you for the kind terms of your letter and can only indulge in vague hopes that all this present condition of things, involving as it is doing so distressingly the whole modern world, may in some way be only a dream.

I remain, with renewed thanks,

Yours faithfully,

ANDREW D. WHITE.

C. E. SOCIETY ELECTS

At the annual meeting of the Cornell Society of Civil Engineers, held at the Cornell Club in New York City on October 21, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Ernest A. Truran '95; first vice-president, Charles S. Rindsfoos '06; second vice-president, Walter L. Conwell '11; recording secretary, Fred T. Coffey '14; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Carroll R. Harding '10. Harding's address is care of the Southern Pacific Co., 165 Broadway, New York.

It was reported at the meeting that the membership has just passed the mark of one thousand members. After the business meeting Lieut. Col. Fred W. Scheidenhelm '05 gave an interesting account of his experiences as water supply officer of the First Army on the Somme, St. Mihiel, and Argonne-Meuse fronts.

PROFESSOR SAMUEL N. SPRING, of the Department of Forestry, who is on leave of absence until January 1, is teaching silviculture and forest law and policy at the University of Missouri.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

PRINCETON is making satisfactory progress in her campaign for an additional endowment of $14,000,000. Among the specified needs are the following: to increase salaries, $2,000,000; to endow existing professorships and assistant professorships, $3,000,000; to endow the preceptorial system, $1,000,000; for financial aid to needy students, $300,000; for the endowment of about 200 regional scholarships ($300-$600 each), $1,000,000; for a library fund, $600,000; for the department of chemistry, $2,000,000; to develop and endow the School of Engineering, $3,000,000; to develop the School of Architecture, $350,000; to equip the astronomical observatory, $250,000; for the extension of McCosh Hall, $250,000; for graduate fellowships, $375,000; to endow the religious work of the university (chapel and Philadelphian Society), $200,000; total, $14,325,000.

THE UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA has enrolled more than 1,400 students. The largest previous enrollment, that of 1916-17, was a little over 1,100. Rooms and laboratory space are at a premium.

DARTMOUTH celebrated on October 20 the 150th anniversary of the foundation of the college. The chief address was made by Justice Wendell P. Stafford, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, on "The College, a Training School for Public Service."

COLUMBIA's registration amounts this year to about 24,170, distributed as follows: Summer, 9,500; extension, 7,441; Columbia College, 1,698, including a freshman class of 602, which is the largest by far in the history of the College; Teachers' College, 2,532; graduate colleges, 1,026; Law School, 468; Business, 229; Pharmacy, 461; Medicine, 399; Mines, 151; Journalism, 115; Architecture, 52; unclassified, 97. Of the 602 entering Columbia College, 235 were admitted on the psychological tests.

LITERARY REVIEW

A Collection of Poems

Singing Places. By Margaret Barber Bowen '96. Boston. The Cornhill Company. 1919. 8vo, pp. x, 48.

Here is a volume containing forty short poems which do their author much credit. In the first place Mrs. Bowen has something to say. The thought is not profound; yet it is never overdone; oftentimes it is merely suggested. Several of the poems have to do with impressions and incidents of European travel. One of the most pleasing of these is the sonnet entitled "At the English Craft Shop in Casa Guidi." There are songs commemorating visits to Oxford, Weimar, Oberammergau, Paestum, Capri. Echoes of the war are to be found in "The Lovely Lads of Rugby" and "Joyce Kilmer." In execution Mrs. Bowen displays much skill. She has good control over her rhymes. The rhythm usually pleases, and the style is never forced or artificial. Even in the sonnet, the most difficult of all forms, she acquits herself creditably. From the point of view of technique the least pleasing poem, perhaps, is "Joyce Kilmer," in which the lines are so long that the reader desires a more frequent recurrence of the rhyme. On the other hand, the author has succeeded to a high degree in making her songs really musical. We hope this is only the first of a number of volumes from Mrs. Bowen's pen. In spite of the poetic renaissance through which, happily, we are passing, our real singers are all too few.

Books and Magazine Articles

George I. Alden, M. M. E. '90, of Worcester, Mass., has in press a book on "The Study of Electricity by the Deductive Method."

The recently published book on "Federal Military Pensions in the United States," by Professor William H. Glas-son '96, of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., was reviewed in The American Historical Review for July. It was also noticed in The English Historical Review for July, and was earlier in the year made the subject of an extended review in The Far East, published at Tokyo, Japan.

In The Methodist Review for September-October Professor Charles Gray Shaw '94, of New York University, writes on "Balzac's Brutal Facts in the Light of the New France."

Dr. George F. Zook '14 in the October number of The American Historical Review publishes a review of Achille Viallate's "Les Etats-Unis d'Amérique et le Conflit Européen, 4 Aout 1914—6 Avril 1917" (Paris, Alean) and Emile Hovelague's "Les Etats-Unis et la Guerre: de la Neutralité à la Croisade." In the same number, Professor Alfred H. Sweet, Ph.D. '17, reviews John Brownbill's edition of "The Coucher Book of Furness Abbey"; Professor Louise Fargo Brown '03 reviews "The Immunity of Private Property from Capture at Sea" by Harold Scott Quigley; Professor W. C. Abbott, '92-5 Grad., reviews David Nichol Smith's "Characters from the Histories and Memories of the Seventeenth Century, with an Essay on the Character, and Historical Notes" (Oxford University Press).

In The Bookman for October Professor Abbott reviews three volumes on Bolshevism, under the title, "Looking Forward."

In The Guide to Nature, organ of the Agassiz Association, for September, Professor Simon H. Gage '77 writes on "Professor Burt Green Wilder, Cornell University, 1867-1910." In the same issue Dr. L. H. Bailey's four books, "Universal Service," "Wind and Weather," "The Holy Earth," and "What Is Democracy?" are favorably reviewed.

Peter W. Claassen, of the Department of Entomology, writes in The Scientific Monthly for August on "A Possible New Source of Supply," discussing the cattail as a food.

In the September number of City and State, the organ of the Baltimore Alliance and Women's Civic League, Roscoe C. Edmund '09 writes on "Federation and Social Service"; this is an extract from an address at the National Conference of Social Work at Atlantic City.

Professor Charles A. Ellwood '96, of the University of Missouri, writes in The Psychological Bulletin for March, lately received, on "The Instincts in Social Psychology," and also reviews Professor C. H. Cooley's "Social Process" (Scribner), M. P. Follett's "New State" (Longmans), B. M. Anderson's "Value of Money" (Macmillan), E. S. Bogardus' "Essentials of Social Psychology," and E. B. Reuter's "Mulatto in the United States." Professor Ellwood's own paper on "The Educational Theory of Social Progress," in a recent number of The Scientific Monthly, is reviewed by Professor James H. Leuba.

Kenneth L. Roberts '08 is the author of the following articles recently published: "Clothes" in The Saturday Evening Post for September 13 and "Food for Thought" in the Post for October 4; and "Oriental Irritants" in The Cosmopolitan for October. A story by him, "Pergola Preferred," appeared in Collier's for October 4.

Professor Vernon Kellogg, '91-2 Grad., writes in Science for October 10 on "Emil Fischer After the War," reporting some parts of a conversation with Fischer, Ballod, and Zuntz. In the issue of Science for October 17 Karl M. Dallenbach, Ph.D. '13, writes on "Snow-Rollers."

In Mycologia for July, lately received, Professor Harry M. Fitzpatrick '09 discusses "Rostronitschkia, a New Genus of Pyrenomycetes." The editor, Dr. William A. Murrill '00, contributes several short notes and articles.

In The Mining and Scientific Press for October 11 and 18 Professor Louis C. Graton '00 discusses "The Federal Taxation of Mines," tracing the development of the law as it affects the mine-owner.

Professor Edward L. Nichols '75 and Horace L. Howes, Ph.D. '15, in The Physical Review for October, write on "Fluorescence and Absorption of the Uranyl Sulphates." In the same number Professor George W. Stewart, Ph.D. '01, of the State University of Iowa, discusses "Propagation of Sound in an Irregular Atmosphere."

Professor Bancroft's papers on "The Color of Sea Water" recently published in The Scientific American, are summarized in the London Sphere for September 13.

In The Syracusean for September 15 Dean William L. Bray '93 of Syracuse discusses "The Part of the Botanist in the World War."

The Press Bulletin of the Philippine Commission of Independence for August 27 publishes a cable received on August 19 in which General Aguinaldo is reported to have denied that he intimated to Captain Kenneth Roberts that he thought the Filipinos unfit for independence. Roberts's article on the subject appeared in The Saturday Evening Post for July 12.

WHAT KIND OF LEGACY?

The following is an extract from a speech by John O. H. Pitney to a conference of district chairmen of Princeton's Endowment Fund Committee. We borrow it from The Princeton Alumni Weekly.

"A man came into my office one day, a wealthy man, and wanted a will drawn, and he wanted to tie it up so tight that his children and grandchildren could not dissipate his money, and he wanted every condition and restriction and limitation put in it that a lawyer knew about, and he wanted it to extend just as far as the law allowed. And I felt like saying to him—I wish I had, and if I had known this was coming I would have said to him: 'If, instead of drawing your will, you would draw a big check for Princeton, and make sure your boy would have a good education, you would leave him a much better heritage than all this money that is tied up in this will.'"

If our wealthy men would make a careful study of the fate of great fortunes and their effects upon the persons who do not create but merely inherit them, they would find, we feel sure, that they would be doing their children the greatest kindness by limiting their legacies in such a way that the children should not thereby be robbed of the natural incentive to effort which comes from the limitation of means. It is a far better use of money to leave it to a worthy university than to spoil a good boy with it, and infinitely better than to leave it to a spoiled boy to dissipate.

Perhaps few of the readers, certainly none of the editors, of THE CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS can become contributors on any such basis. The reasoning is nevertheless sound, we feel, and the application of it is important to the cause of education. Nearly every one of us knows more or less intimately some person whose picture is adequately drawn in the foregoing. If ingenuity and earnestness are used in the approach, it is possible that many large sums can be diverted from harmful purposes and applied to the lasting good of humanity.

The Government has made it possible for a donor to give vast sums to education at a considerable reduction in cost. A chair can be endowed for thirty cents on the dollar, without defeating the obvious purpose of the provisions of the income tax. An additional saving is made when the executors pay the inheritance tax. The Endowment Fund Committee will gladly give details.

THE CURE FOR PRESENT EVILS

The Harvard Alumni Bulletin in its issue for October 9 prints a highly pertinent editorial calling attention to the significance of the Harvard Endowment Fund campaign in connection with the present social unrest. Its contention is that in these trying times the hope of the world centers in the wisdom of its leaders, its trained men. It has been the fashion in many quarters of late to sniff at Carlyle and his doctrine of heroes. Yet Carlyle was a pretty fair judge of human nature, and we must probably admit that his belief in the necessity of heroes and of trusting to their guidance was in accord with principles of human conduct which have not greatly altered since the days of "Past and Present" and "Heroes and Hero-Worship." If the trained men, fortified and balanced by learning and reflection, are unable to pilot the ship of the commonweal through these troubled waters, then there is small hope for us and our descendants.

It thus becomes vitally and fundamentally important to keep up the supply of trained leaders. Military men tell us of the serious problem of providing enough officers for the Army in the late emergency; the supply sometimes ran so low that second lieutenants found themselves in command of battalions. Our great citizen army is in direr straits than this, for many parts of it are virtually commanded at this moment by ignorant quacks, Bolsheviks, anarchists, what not, whose very presence in our Republic is a menace.

The only places hitherto discovered for the training of leaders are our centers of education, and especially our colleges and universities. So long as these are kept at their maximum efficiency, so long will ideas have free play and truth will do its mighty regenerating and liberalizing work. When these centers begin to run down, when the teachers are allowed to receive such small pay that they must devote part of their energy to earning a living before they can teach, then things begin to suffer.

It becomes evident, then, as the Bulletin points out, that one of the first of patriotic duties of the present moment is to safeguard the welfare of our higher institutions of learning. Young men are flocking to the colleges this fall as never before. Let us see to it that they get the best of teaching; for the best is none too good to qualify them for the leadership which they will inevitably be called upon to exercise in the community as soon as they are ready for it.

A REASON FOR NON-DELIVERY

A Cornell man who had seen two years of service in various camps informs us that at one time his copy of the ALUMNI NEWS stopped coming to him. Subsequently he found copies in the camp library. Investigation showed that his weekly copy had been systematically diverted for the common good, and that men of all colleges were reading it. This may serve as an explanation to some of our subscribers who failed to receive their copies regularly while in the service.

DR. R. E. LOVING, head of the department of physics in Richmond College, has been granted leave of absence for the year, and is doing special work at the University.

MATHEMATICAL PAPERS

At the summer meeting of the American Mathematical Society, held at the University of Michigan on September 2-4, the following were among the papers presented: "Certain Types of Involutional Space Transformations" (2d paper), by Professors Francis R. Sharpe, Ph.D. '07, and Virgil Snyder, '90-92 Grad.; "Urn Schemata as a Basis for the Development of the Theory of Correlation," by Professor Henry L. Rietz, Ph.D. '02.

CLUB SERVICE LUNCHEON

The Cornell Women's Club of Philadelphia will give a luncheon on Saturday, November 1, at 1.30 p. m. at the Arcadia, to three Cornell women who have returned from service in the war zone. The guests are the Misses Ballentine, Loux, and McCaulley. This is the regular November meeting of the club.

CORNELLIANS AT SOUTH BEND

All the Cornell men of South Bend and Mishawaka, Indiana, are members of the University Club of South Bend. There are ten in all. Two of these are officers of the club, Carl L. Hibberd '11 being vice-president, and Guy B. Wiser '17, secretary.

OBITUARYHenry Gregory Northrup '74

Henry Gregory Northrup died on October 14, at his home, 152 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn. After cremation, in-terment was made in Ithaca.

Mr. Northrup was born in Ithaca on August 10, 1854, a son of John and Louise Abigail Gregory Northrup. After graduating from the Ithaca Academy, he entered Cornell in the fall of 1870 in the course in civil engineering. He became a member of Kappa Alpha and the Engineering Association. He took the degree of B. C. E. in 1874, but never practised the profession of engineering.

He first entered the employ of the Tompkins County National Bank, where he remained for six years. In 1881 he went to New York and took a position with Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor and Company, text-book publishers, remaining with them until they merged into the American Book Company, when he continued in the employ of the latter, becoming cashier of the corporation. He retired from business three years ago.

Mr. Northrup leaves three sisters, Mrs.

G. L. Bontecou of Emporia, Kansas, and Mrs. Lewis K. Thurlow and Miss Jennie Northrup of 152 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn. He was a member of the Cornell Club of New York City.

Cyril G. Hopkins '94

Professor Cyril George Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, died of congestion of the brain complicated by malaria at Gibraltar on October 6, while on his way home from Europe. He had spent a year in reclamation work on the worn-out soils of Greece, for which work he had been decorated by the King of Greece, and was returning to his university work.

He was born near Chatfield, Minn., on July 22, 1866, the son of George Edwin and Caroline Cudney Hopkins, and graduated from the South Dakota Agricultural College in 1890. He remained at the college for a time as an assistant in chemistry, then came East and studied at Cornell, taking the degree of M. S. in 1894 and that of Ph.D. in 1898. He continued his studies in agricultural chemistry at Göttingen in 1899-1900. He had become connected with the University of Illinois in 1894 as chemist of the Agricultural Experiment Station, and held this post till 1900, when he became professor of agronomy and chief in agronomy and chemistry. In 1903, also, he became vice-director of the station.

He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of the American Chemical Society, the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists (of which he was president in 1905-6), the American Society of Agronomy, Sigma Xi, Phi Lambda Upsilon, and Alpha Zeta.

He was the author of "Soil Fertility and Permanent Agriculture" (1910), "The Story of the Soil" (1911), "The Farm That Won't Wear Out" (1913), and many bulletins and articles on chemical and soil investigations. He had won high distinction in his chosen field.

He was the inventor of the Hopkins condenser and distilling tube, 1898, and the Hopkins limestone tester, 1917.

On May 11, 1893, he married Miss Emma Matilda Stelter, of Brookings, S. D.

Isaac P. Smith '94

Isaac Plumb Smith died on October 7 at Albany, N. Y. He was a graduate of the Cornell Law School, and for a number of years was engaged in the insurance business in Philadelphia, with the American Credit Indemnity Company. He was a member of Chi Phi.

Theodore G. Hubbard '97

Theodore Gilbert Hubbard died on October 24 at Geneva, N. Y., at the age of forty-three.

Hubbard was the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Hubbard, of Geneva. He prepared at the Geneva Classical and Union School, entering the College of Agriculture at Cornell in 1893, and receiving the degree of B. S. in 1897. He was a member of Bench and Board, Mermaid, and Aleph Samach.

Soon after his graduation he went to Canada with the Fairbanks Scale Company, returning to Geneva in 1907.

Augustus M. Frederikson '08

Augustus M. Frederikson died of influenza in December, 1918, at Cornwall, N. Y.

Frederikson was born on January 28, 1886, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Frederikson, of Cornwall. He entered Cornell from the Cornwall High School in 1904, receiving the degree of LL. B. in 1908. From the time of his graduation until his death, he was associated with the law firm of R. H. Barnett and Company, of Newburgh, N. Y., and was said to be one of the leading lawyers of Orange County.

He is survived by his widow and three children.

Terry P. Clay '10

Terry Pitkin Clay died on October 19 at Atlantic City, N. J.

Clay was born on September 21, 1885, the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Clay, of Cleveland, Ohio. He prepared at the East High School, Cleveland, and entered Sibley College in 1906, remaining two years. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

Louise C. Lanneau, Grad.

Miss Louise Cox Lanneau, who was a graduate student in chemistry in 1915-16, died at Raleigh, N. C., on May 3, 1919, of pneumonia, following an attack of influenza.

Miss Lanneau received the degree of B. A. at Meredith College, Raleigh, N. C., later continuing her studies at Wake Forest College and Cornell. At the time of her death, she was completing her sixth year as professor of chemistry at Meredith College, and was vice-president of the North Carolina section of the American Chemical Society.

She leaves her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Lanneau, of Wake Forest, N. C., four sisters, and a brother.

ATHLETICS

To Consider Baseball Problems

F. O. Affeld, jr., '97, captain of the '96 baseball team, has issued a call for all wearers of the baseball C to meet at the Schoellkopf Club House on Saturday, November 15, at 9.30 a. m.

Baseball matters in general will be discussed, but especial attention will be focused on consideration of the baseball coach to be selected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Sharpe. Among those who have accepted the invitation to attend is Hugh Jennings '04, whose interest in Cornell baseball has persisted through his years of connection with professional baseball.

Seats at the Penn State game will be provided for the visiting alumni. The list of addresses of the baseball alumni is by no means complete. Those C men who have failed to receive invitations should consider themselves welcome.

First Cross Country Race

The first cross country team to be selected by Coach Moakley this fall competed in an invitation intercollegiate race held under the auspices of the Syracuse University Athletic Association at Syracuse last Saturday. Teams from eleven colleges participated. The race, which was over a four-mile course, with the finish in the Syracuse stadium, was won by a well balanced Princeton team, which scored 49 points. Syracuse, which furnished the individual winner, J. G. Simmons, finished second in the team race with 78 points. M. I. T. was third with 107, Yale fourth with 116, Penn fifth with 121, Cornell sixth with 122, Harvard seventh with 191, and Williams, Columbia, Colgate, and Dartmouth finished in order.

Captain T. C. McDermott, the first Cornellian to cross the line, was fourth and J. W. Campbell of Cornell was fifth. The third Cornell runner was G. H. Stanton, in fifteenth place. G. D. Duryea, who finished fourth for Cornell, was in 38th position while I. H. Houston, the last man to qualify for Cornell, was 60th. D. P. Ayers, the last Cornell entry to finish, was in 72d place.

It is worth noting that the Cornell team was not at its full strength. L. E. Wenz, one of the few veteran runners on the team this year, was unable to compete and J. L. Dickinson, who had been running among the leaders in trial races here, was compelled to quit the race after he had gone half the distance.

The Penn State Game

The football game with Penn State on November 15 is viewed as the big home game of the year in that house-parties will be held in conjunction with it, and a considerable influx of alumni is expected. The game will be called at 2.30 p. m. Reserved seats will be sold at two dollars each. There is no war tax on this game. Alumni desiring tickets should send remittances to the Athletic Association at once as a larger crowd even than at the Colgate game is looked for, and undoubtedly all seats will be filled.

Pennsylvania Game Seat Sale

Tickets for the Thanksgiving Day football game with the University of Pennsylvania, at Franklin Field, will be placed on sale about November 12 at the Cornell Club of Philadelphia, 1223 Locust Street, and at the Cornell Club of New York, 30 W. 44th Street, as well as at the office of the Athletic Association in Ithaca, which will send out application blanks about November 6. Mail orders should be sent to Schoellkopf Building, Ithaca, accompanied by check payable to the Cornell Athletic Association. Seats are $2.50 each (no war tax), the same price as the other big games of the East. There are forty boxes in the Cornell stands, each holding ten. Box seats are $3.

Dartmouth Wins, 9-0

The Cornell football team lost to Dartmouth on the Polo Grounds, New York, last Saturday by the score of 9 to 0, a touchdown in the third quarter and a field goal by Robertson from the 47-yard line in the final period giving the Hanover eleven a well earned victory after a hard fought aggressively played contest, devoid of spectacular playing by either team. About eighteen thousand persons, including many alumni of both institutions, saw the game. Hundreds of undergraduates went down from Ithaca to cheer for the team.

Although the Cornell eleven fought much more effectively than in the Colgate contest and put up a gallant resistance, they failed, as in the Colgate and in preceding games, to show an offense worthy of the name. Consequently Dartmouth forced the fighting a good share of the time and the play was frequently in Cornell territory. The measure of the Green's superiority in offensive football is shown by the fact that Dartmouth made ten first downs to two by Cornell. Both teams stuck pretty close to straight football, the forward pass being attempted but seldom and then with no great success. Because of the stubborn resistance of both lines punting exchanges were frequent. Shiverick for a time had the better of Robertson, his Dartmouth opponent, but as the game proceeded the advantage shifted to the Dartmouth back, who had better protection. Several of Shiverick's kicks were blocked, one of them with disastrous consequences.

In sum, while the game, considered from the point of view of the team's improvement compared to its play in the Colgate game and also in the development of fighting spirit in defensive play was encouraging, the failure to exhibit any offense worth while, and the imperfect execution of such few offensive plays as were attempted, give reason for apprehension as one looks ahead at the November schedule, which includes games with Lafayette, Penn State, and Pennsylvania.

The first period of the game was a pretty even battle with frequent exchanges of punts. In the second period Dartmouth had the advantage and managed to reach Cornell's 15-yard line, where Mayer intercepted a forward pass and broke up the Green's drive on Cornell's 10-yard line. Twice again during this period Dartmouth threatened, but uncompleted passes plus the stubborn defense of the Cornell line held them off.

In the third period came a play which proved fatal to Cornell. Youngstrom drove through Cornell's left tackle and blocked one of Shiverick's punts, recovering it on Cornell's 15-yard line. The Green's backfield then hammered the Cornell line. Robertson made first down on three attempts against the left tackle, and then Holbrook and Robertson fought their way through the line until Robertson made a touchdown. He failed to kick goal.

A few minutes later Youngstrom blocked another one of Shiverick's punts, and recovered on Cornell's 8-yard line. Here the Cornell line, ably assisted by Shuler, who backed it up splendidly, gave a fine exhibition of staunch defense. Dartmouth gained six yards in three downs, but Cornell held on the one-yard line and Shiverick kicked out of danger. This superb defensive rally, coming only a few minutes after they had been scored on, proved the mettle of the Cornell team. Shiverick's long Rick put the ball at midfield and neither team had a chance to score after this until Robertson sent over his spectacular field goal from the 47-yard line in the last period, the ball striking the cross bar and bounding over. The score:

Dartmouth (9)	Cornell (0)
Worth	Ensworth
Left end
Sonnenburg	Taylor
Left tackle
Crisp	Straus
Left guard
Cunningham	Horrell
Center
Youngstrom	Miller
Right guard

THE REGULAR ORGAN RECITALS will be given this year on Friday afternoons at five o'clock. It had been planned to have them on Wednesdays, but owing to the required lectures on hygiene at Bailey Hall on Wednesdays and Thursdays, this had to be abandoned. The situation has been thoroughly canvassed, and it is most unfortunate that there is no hour that is available for the entire student body.

THE CORNELL ANNUALS, at a recent board meeting, decided to issue but one book this year, the combined Class Book and Cornellian, such as has been their practice in 1918 and 1919. The board reaffirms its intention to finish its incomplete service record of the University's deaths in service and decorations. It is expected that a welcome innovation will be made when pictures of the members are substituted for the fraternities' rolls of chapters.

ALUMNI NOTES

'92 CE—William G. Atwood is acting as technical adviser to the government of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes. His address is in care of the American Relief Administration, 115 Broadway, New York.

'97—J. Walter Ackerman is chief engineer and superintendent of the Auburn Water Works, now building a nine-million-gallon slow sand filter plant. His address is 26 Nelson Street, Auburn, N. Y.

'02—In The Providence Journal for September 21 Clair Price has an interesting article on Major Charles Wellington Furlong, whose war record is thus described: "After being rejected for physical reasons, he succeeded in 1917 in joining the First Troop, Massachusetts Cavalry, as a private. He was given the rank of captain in December, 1917, and the next year was transferred to military intelligence and attached to the General Staff. In this capacity he had charge of the fitting out of the conference room aboard the S. S. George Washington, which took President Wilson to France. This was a job which entailed the collection of vast masses of evidence and maps and the arrangements of a lighting system which would make them most available. Before this assignment Furlong had compiled a set of military handbooks on the Murmansk region, which are now the standard in the War Department. Following the armistice, Major Furlong was dispatched to Fiume and played a prominent part in the compilation of evidence which led to President Wilson's proclamation on the subject of the Italian claim to Fiume. He was the only American officer in Fiume during the Italian developments, which led up to the Fiume proclamation. Later he was assigned as military observer with the Allied and American armies in the Balkans, an assignment from which he is on his way to Tripoli."

'04 AB—Henry F. Vincent is with McElwain, Morse & Rogers, manufacturers of shoes and shoe store supplies, of New York. He lives at 11 Fernwood Road, Summit, N. J.

'04 ME; '05 AB—Walter H. (Pete) Kniskern is with the General Chemical Company, 25 Broad Street, New York. Kniskern and his family reside at 16 Trenton Avenue, White Plains, N. Y.

Mrs. Kniskern was Katherine E. Selden '05.

'04 AB, '10 PhD—Professor Floyd K. Richtmyer, who is absent from the University on leave, is devoting some time to research in the Research Laboratory of the General Electric Company, in Schenectady, and is giving some lectures at Union College.

'05 ME—Walter J. Armstrong has been discharged from the Army, having been a captain in the Explosives Division of the Ordnance Department. He is now manager of the pulverizer and crusher department of the Jeffrey Manufacturing Company, of Columbus, Ohio; he lives at 2097 Summit Street.

'06; '11 AB—Frank B. Elser and Maximilian Elser, jr., are general manager and editor, respectively, of the Metropolitan News Service, 432 Fifth Avenue, New York. The business consists of the preparation of copy for newspapers.

'07 LLB—Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Stutz, of Ithaca, announce the birth of their second son, Robert Swan Stutz, on August 24.

'07 ME—Herman Bartholomay is secretary and treasurer of the Bartholomay-Durling Company, insurance agents and bankers, of Chicago. His business address is 175 West Jackson Boulevard.

'08—Harold H. Lyon, formerly in the Syracuse office of the Walter M. Lowrey Company, has been transferred to the Boston office, as assistant sales manager of confectionery. His address is 427 Commercial Street, Boston.

'10 ME—Major George W. Blair has been released from the service and is again associated with the Mishawaka Woolen Manufacturing Company, Mishawaka, Ind.

'10 ME—Harold D. Tompkins was discharged from the service on July 28 as a first lieutenant in the Signal Corps. He is now living at 533 Communipaw Avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

'10 BSA—After two years of military service, Philip H. Elwood has resumed his duties as professor in the department of horticulture at Ohio State University. Elwood served as a captain of field artillery, and after the armistice was detailed to supervise the engineering, construction, and landscape gardening of the Argonne cemetery, said to be the largest of its kind in France.

'11 AB—Mr. and Mrs. Warren Pease, of Kenilworth, Ill., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Agnes Madeleine, to Edwin Everitt Sheridan, of Evanston, Ill. Sheridan is with the American Colortype Company, 1151 Roscoe Street, Chicago.

'11 AB—Raymond H. Fuller is a junior at the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass. His address is 36 Hawthorn Street, Cambridge.

'11 ME—Mr. and Mrs. C. Kenneth Getchell, 706 Huron Street, Schenectady, announce the birth of a son, Richard Donald, on September 8.

'11 AB, '19 PhD—J. Franklin Bradley is professor of English literature at Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va.

'11 ME—Howard W. Dix was discharged from the service on August 18, and has resumed his position with the firm of Emery, Varney, Blair and Hoguet, practicing patent, trademark, and copyright law. His business address is 149 Broadway, New York.

'12—Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Munroe announce the birth of a son, Eugene, on September 8 at Detroit. Munroe is still with the Semet-Solvay Company, Detroit.

'13 ME—Paul A. Franklin was discharged from the service on March 28, having been a captain attached to the 53d Artillery, C. A. C. Since May 1 he has been with the Hood Rubber Company, Watertown, Mass. His address is 34 Chauncey Street, Watertown.

'13 AB—First Lieutenant John F. Farnsworth has returned from France, and is now with the 51st Infantry at Camp Grant, Ill. He was married on December 31, 1917, to Miss Phillis Craig, of Portland, Maine.

'14 DVM—Harrison V. Baker received his discharge on September 2, after two years of service, as a captain in the Veterinary Corps. He has resumed the practice of veterinary medicine at Hamburg, N. Y.

'14 ME—Mason Evans, jr., has just been appointed credit manager of the Sharon Steel Hoop Company, Sharon, Pa.; the company's main office is in Sharon, with works in Sharon, and in Youngstown and Lowellville, Ohio. His address is 238 Lora Avenue, Youngstown Ohio.

'15 LLB—William W. Dodge has returned to Mishawaka, Ind., as general manager of the National Veneer Products Company, makers of Indestructo trunks.

'15 CE—Captain and Mrs. George L. Kraft announce the birth of a daughter, Jane Louise, on September 18, 1919. They live at 1730 First Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C.

'15 BArch—Major Alexander C. Eschweiler, jr., has been discharged from the service, and has resumed the practice of architecture at 720 Goldsmith Building, Milwaukee.

'15 BS, '16 ME—Victor H. Ries is professor of botany at the Iowa State Teachers College, Cedar Falls, Iowa. His address is 809 Eighteenth Street.

'16 LLB—Mario Lazo is now connected with the firm of Bodell & Company, investment security brokers, 120 Broadway, New York.

'16 ME—Harold Cole is assistant to the distribution engineer of the Detroit Edison Company. His address is 402 Lincoln Building, Detroit, Mich.

'16 BS; '17 BS—Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Irish (Araminta MacDonald '17) announce the birth of a son, Robert Goodwin, on September 10, at Delhi, N. Y. Irish is purchasing engineer with the Western Electric Company, 195 Broadway, New York.

'17 BChem—Samuel Wilson is assistant professor of chemistry at Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind., instructing in physical chemistry and food analysis.

'17 CE—Samuel J. Leonard is in the department of building design of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio. He lives at 64 Hamilton Avenue.

'17 ME—John Haydock 3d is an engineer in the production and efficiency department of the Niles-Bement-Pond Company, at their Plainfield, N. J., plant.

'17 BS; '18 BS—Edwin Ingersoll Kilbourne and Miss Elizabeth Alward were married on September 11 at St. John's Episcopal Church, Buffalo, N. Y. They sailed on September 27 for Santo Domingo, where Kilbourne has a position with the Consuelo Sugar Company. Their address is in care of the Consuelo Sugar Company, San Pedro de Macori, Dominican Republic. Kilbourne has recently returned from two years' service with the Navy.

A Viewbook of Cornell

AT the Semi-Centennial many bought the Co-op. viewbook. They had read our ads, but perhaps we had not praised our goods enough. They bought when they saw the viewbook. Will it be taking a great chance for you to trade at the Co-op?

A fact:

At the Chamberlain, as at scores of other places where one would expect only fancy, straight Turkish cigarettes to sell, Fatima is the leader. Which again shows the growing preference for this inexpensive, "just-enough-Turkish" blend.
