VISITING farmers, Junior girls, and chaperons have gone. The University has played the host—or alma hostess—in a way unequaled since 1917. And all has passed without serious mishap. Quantities of snow and ice in the streets made traveling by automobile difficult, in places dangerous; yet we have heard of only one or two collisions and of no personal injuries. Violation of the traffic regulations led to a few arrests. One young man, coming to enjoy Farmers' Week with his brother, a short course student, had his leg broken on the toboggan slide. An occasional illness is reported. On the whole officials and committee-men are satisfied.

EXPECTATIONS of a record-breaking attendance of agriculturists proved too confident. According to published reports the registration at the close of the fourth day showed a decrease from last year's of more than two thousand. The falling off is attributed in part to sickness or to the fear of it, especially the prevalent influenza; and in larger part to the difficulties of transportation, since blocked highways in many rural sections made it impossible, inexpedient, or risky to leave home even when railroads might be reached. Though disappointing on this respect, Farmers' Week in every other way scored its usual successes.

PROFESSOR LEWIS KNUDSON, of the College of Agriculture, will spend the months of March and April in Spain. He goes there to deliver a series of lectures on vegetable physiology. Since leaving Ithaca last October for his sabbatic year, Professor Knudson has been studying in Paris; after fulfilling his Spanish engagements, he will go to the University of Strasbourg. He will return to his college work next autumn.

THE RECENT CAMPAIGN of the local post of the American Legion resulted in the securing of 640 new members. The team led by Lieut. Col. Bogert brought in the larger number. Of the 806 eligible veterans in Ithaca, all but 166 are now enrolled. A few of these have refused to affiliate. Efforts will be continued to induce all the rest to join. The Legion will celebrate Washington's Birthday, Sunday, February 22, with appropriate exercises in the Lyceum Theater.

THE EASTMAN PRIZE for public speaking, most coveted of academic prizes in the College of Agriculture, was won last Thursday night by Harold Leroy Creal, a senior, of Jamestown, N. Y. His topic was "The American Farm Bureau Federation." The prize is one hundred dollars in money. A second prize of twenty dollars was awarded to James Lee Rothwell '20, of Elmira, N. Y., whose topic was "Conservation." This year, moreover, each of the remaining four contestants received a gift of money equal to the second prize, eighty dollars having been contributed for this purpose by Wallace H. Hook of the class of 1912. The Eastman prizes are the income of a fund given by Mr. A. R. Eastman of Waterville, N. Y., "with the object of developing qualities of personal leadership in rural affairs." This was the eleventh annual contest.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP CUP for excellence in cattle fitting, another prize associated with Farmers' Week, was awarded to Ellery R. Barney '22, of Milford, N. Y. The championship class was made up of winners in special classes in the grooming and care of cattle, horses, sheep, and swine. The honors as a whole were about evenly shared by regular and by short course students. Miss Ida A. Ruperti, a special student, of New York City, was victor in a colt-training contest, and Miss G. A. Schenck '21, of Rochester, took second prize for an exhibit of Jerseys.

JOHN P. HENRY, coach of the 1920 baseball team, has arrived in Ithaca, ready for his season's work. He has already been in conference with the local authorities; and the presence of the Yale basketball team last Saturday gave opportunity for a talk with Dr. A. H. Sharpe, Cornell's former coach. A call for baseball candidates will be issued shortly. At the outset Henry will be assisted by Hugh Jennings '04, manager of the Detroit team.

THE ANNUAL TRACTOR SCHOOL in the College of Agriculture opened on Monday, February 16. Here farmers and farm hands of the State have an opportunity to study both the theory and the practice of farm tractors during a period of three weeks. A single fee of five dollars secures the use of the shops and laboratories of the Department of Farm Mechanics. Besides the shop work there are two lectures each day.

THE NUMBER of college publications has been increased by The Home Economics Reminder, a leaflet which promises to appear either quarterly or once in a while. Its ambitions may be enlarged and more readily realized if the Department of Home Economics is erected into a separate college. The aims of the paper are sufficiently reflected in the title. The present editor is Alice M. Blinn, extension instructor. The principal article in the first issue is a review of work in domestic economy at Cornell.

A BRITISH-AMERICAN CLUB has recently been formed at the University, having as its object the discussion of topics and problems affecting the common relations of the Empire and the Republic, with a view to better international understanding and comity. The new association is affiliated with a like organization founded in 1919 at Oxford University; indeed it owes its inception to the presence in Oxford of several Cornell men during a term following the armistice. Among these was Harold Flack '12, secretary of the Cornellian Council, through whose interest and activity the club here has come into being. It is hoped that similar clubs may be organized at other American universities. Membership is open to all persons having an interest in Cornell, students, alumni, matriculants, members of the Faculty. Of the Oxford club Lord Bryce and the American ambassador are joint presidents; of the Cornell club President Schurman is honorary president.

PROFESSORS BRISTOW ADAMS and Herman Diederichs '97 have been elected honorary members of Quill and Dagger.

PROFESSOR NATHANIEL SCHMIDT gave a public lecture at the Cosmopolitan Club on Wednesday evening on "Ukraine and Her Problems."

THE SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER for next Sunday is the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Crothers, minister of the First Unitarian Church, Cambridge, Mass.

President Schurman Resigns

Will Retire Next June After Thirty-four Years Service—Sketch of His Career

Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman tendered his resignation as president of Cornell University to the Committee on General Administration of the Board of Trustees, which met last Saturday morning. Dr. Schurman asked in his letter that his resignation take effect at Commencement, June 23 next.

The Committee on Administration therupon decided to call a meeting of the full Board of Trustees, and such a meeting will be held on Saturday, February 28, to consider the President's letter of resignation.

The announcement that President Schurman had resigned came as a surprise except to those who are in his intimate confidence, although persons close to the President have known that he had contemplated such a step for some time, and in fact, that it had been his wish to retire at the close of his twenty-fifth year of service.

In his letter to the Board of Trustees President Schurman said:

"I have long been of the opinion that it is beneficial and salutary to great institutions, whether of government or business or education, that there should be reasonably frequent changes in the office of chief executive. The variety of situations makes it impossible to fix any particular term that might be generally applicable, but it will perhaps be recognized that there are few cases in which the period can be advantageously extended beyond twenty-five or thirty years.

"In conformity with this view I have for some time past had it in mind to resign the presidency of Cornell University, which I have now held for nearly twenty-eight years. The war compelled me to postpone the earlier execution of this purpose, for I felt in that great crisis that every one denied the privilege of bearing arms but engaged in a necessary undertaking—and the universities were as indispensable as munition factories—was under solemn obligation to remain at his post and render the best service he could to the Republic. Now, however, that peace has been established and must soon be proclaimed I am free, especially as the University's war problems have all been happily disposed of, to carry out the resolution I had previously formed.

"I may mention also the personal consideration that release from the University will set me free for other duties I much desire to attend to.

"Accordingly I herewith resign the office of president of Cornell University and request that this resignation take effect at the next Commencement, June 23, 1920.

"In terminating this official relation which has extended over so many years, I should do great injustice to my own feelings if I failed to acknowledge with sincere gratitude the friendly co-operation and support which I have always received in such abundant measure from trustees, teachers, alumni, and students, as well as from the staff of administration, or to assure them of the regard and affection which I cherish for them and of my best wishes for their welfare and happiness.

"And to the great University we have all loved and served, out of office and in office, I join them in undying devotion and also in the fervent hope that it may always be a center of the freest and most intense intellectual activity and a worthy organ of the highest education."

At the end of the present academic year, Dr. Schurman will have completed thirty-four years of service at Cornell, six as Sage professor of philosophy and twenty-eight as president.

His Career

Dr. Schurman was born at Freetown, Prince Edward's Island, on May 22, 1854. His family was of Dutch origin and settled in New York in the seventeenth century. He was the son of Robert and Lydia Schurman and the grandson of Caleb Schurman, who was born at New Rochelle, N. Y.

After studying at the Prince of Wales College and Acadia College, and after winning, in 1875, the Canadian Gilchrist Scholarship awarded by the University of London, he went to England for study, graduating A. B. from London in 1877, and A. M. in 1878, and winning the University Scholarship in Philosophy. In 1877-8 he studied at the Universities of Paris and Edinburgh, receiving from the latter, in 1878, the degree of D. Sc. Having won the Hibbert Fellowship, which was open to the graduates of all British universities, he spent the next two years in study at Heidelberg, Berlin, and Göttingen, and in Italy. Returning to Canada he spent the years 1880-2 as professor of English literature and psychology in Acadia College and the years 1882-6 as professor of metaphysics and English literature at Dalhousie College, whence he was called in 1886 to fill the newly created chair of Sage professor of philosophy at Cornell.

His lectures were substantial and inspiring. Speaking without notes, he was always entertaining without being superficial and serious without being dull. His lectures on ethics at eight o'clock a. m. were attended by large numbers. He became well known also as a writer on philosophical topics. Up to 1892 he had published, besides several articles, "Kantian Ethics and the Ethics of Evolution," 1881; "Agnosticism and Religion," 1886; "The Ethical Import of Darwinism," 1888; and "Belief in God," 1890.

In 1892, when President Adams resigned, the two men most seriously considered for the post were Dr. Schurman and Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, then professor of Greek, who has recently concluded twenty years of service as president of the University of California. Cornell never lost more from her body of teachers than she did when these men left their lecture halls, Dr. Schurman to become president of Cornell and Dr. Wheeler, in 1899, to go to California.

The University's Growth

Under the wise leadership of President Schurman Cornell has made rapid strides ahead in important particulars. The last annual report of President Adams shows that there were, in 1891-2, 1,538 students in attendance, of whom 195 were women; there were 36 professors, 11 associate professors, 17 assistant professors, 51 instructors, and 8 assistants, a total teaching staff of 123 or one man to every 12.5 students. The figures of income for that year are not at hand; the expenses were $568,102.03, including extraordinary building expenses; in 1892-3 the income was $509,135.79 ($107,449.17 being from tuition) and the expenses were $501,458.01. In 1891-2 the Library contained 111,007 volumes and 25,100 pamphlets, total 136,107 items. The first summer school, that of 1892, a private venture, attracted 115 students. The corresponding figures for 1918-19, quoted from the President's last report, are as follows: total number of students in regular courses, 4,597 (the maximum figure of 5,656 having been reached in 1915-16), of whom 913 were women; there were 178 professors, 129 associate and assistant professors, 189 instructors, and 133 assistants (not counting in the extensive staff of the College of Agriculture who are not members of the Faculty), a small number of these being absent on leave for one term, total 629, an average of about one teacher to every 7.3 students; income, $3,526,439.92 ($328,054.44 being for tuition), expenses, $3,402,877.71; Library, 605,526 items; Summer School of 1918, 1281.

President Schurman spent two years away from the University, that of 1898-9 in the Philippines as president of the first United States Philippine Commission, and that of 1912-13 as United States Minister to Greece and Montenegro. He was Stafford Little lecturer at Princeton in 1914; first vice-president of the New York State Constitutional Convention of 1915; and a member of the State Food Commission in 1917.

He spent the summer of 1918 in Y. M. C. A. work at and near the front.

Since his accession to the presidency, besides his reports he has published "A Generation of Cornell," 1898; "Report of the Philippine Commission," 1900 (4 vols., jointly); "Philippine Affairs, a Retrospect and Outlook," 1902; "The Balkan Wars," 1912-13; and "Why America Is in the War," 1917.

HONORARY DEGREES

He has the degree of LL. D. from Columbia, 1892; Yale, 1901; Edinburgh, 1902; Williams, 1908; Dartmouth, Harvard, 1909; Brown, 1914; and Pennsylvania, 1917. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Town and Gown Club, the American Academy in Rome, and the University and Union League Clubs of New York, and an officer of the Legion of Honor.

On October 1, 1884, Dr. Schurman married Miss Barbara Forrest Munro, of New York. They have had eight children, Mrs. Catherine M. Ware '10-11 spec., Robert '07, George Munro '13, Helen, Jacob Gould, jr., '17, Barbara '23, Frederick, died in infancy, and Dorothy.

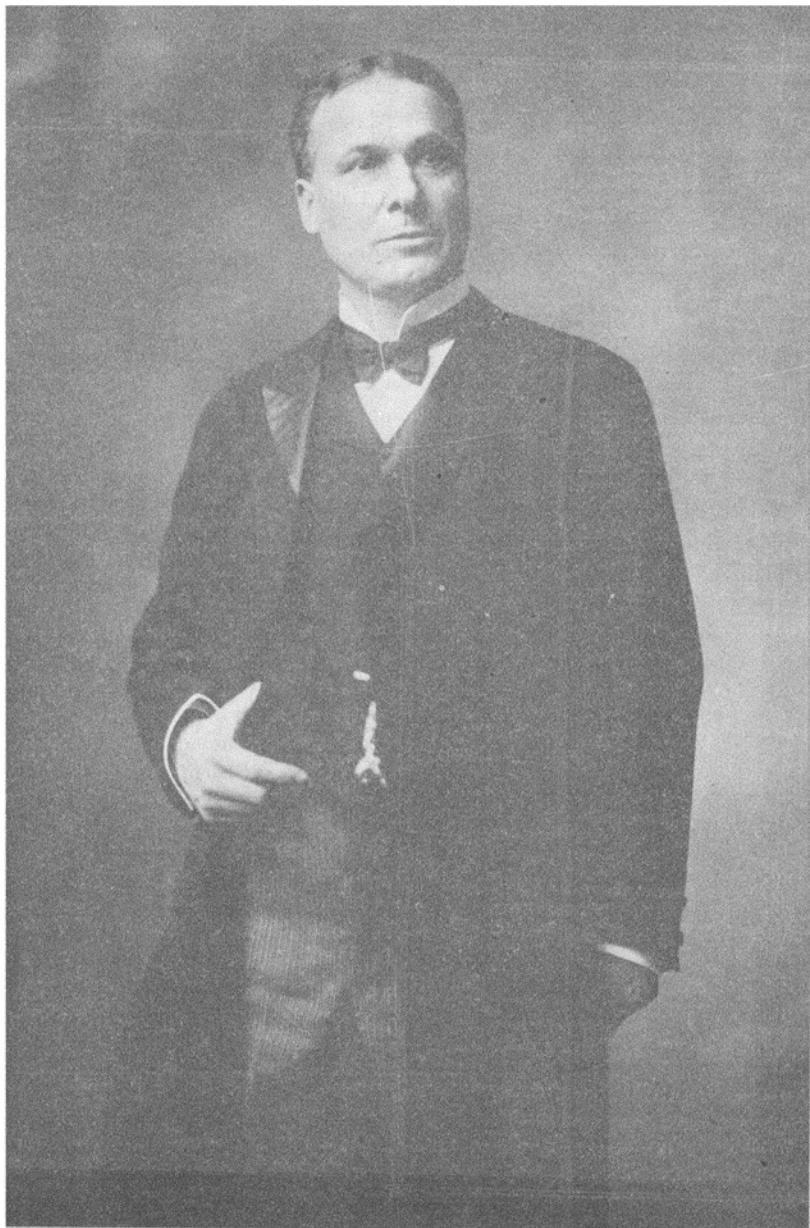

NEW PROFESSOR OF ECONOMICS

Everett Walton Goodhue, '11-12 Grad., professor of economics and sociology in Colgate University, has been appointed acting professor of economics in Cornell University for 1920-21.

Professor Goodhue was born at West Barnstable, Mass., on March 17, 1878. After graduating from Dartmouth College in 1900 he was appointed Dartmouth fellow in sociology and for two years lived at the South End House, a social settlement in Boston. After teaching for a year in the Methodist Seminary at Montpelier, Vermont, he was appointed, in 1903, instructor in economics and sociology at Colgate. In 1908 he was promoted to a professorship.

He is a Congregationalist and is a member of Chi Phi. He married Miss Mary Julia Taylor, of Hamilton, N. Y., on June 27, 1911.

THE POSTMASTERS' ASSOCIATION of the State of New York will hold its annual convention in Ithaca on June 14, 1920. B. Frank Lent, the Ithaca postmaster, is a member of the executive committee of the association; and the chairman is Andrew R. Cornwall, LL. B. '05, of Watertown, N. Y.

$2,568,660.53 to Date

Total is of February 16—Distribution by Districts

Over two and a half million dollars have been subscribed to date to the Endowment, it was announced to-day by the Semi-Centennial Endowment Committee.

This total, $2,568,660.53, which does not include a million and a half subscribed for a chemistry laboratory, half a million for the Cornell Medical College in New York City, and some other special contributions, is part of the $10,000,000 Cornell men are raising for the purpose of increasing salaries of professors and instructors and for general purposes.

Subscriptions have been received from Cornellians in thirty-six States and five foreign countries, 1933 in all.

New York City leads among the contributions, totalling $773,302.80 from the alumni and other friends of the University, and $13,760.00 from the alumnae. Chicago follows with $274,206; Cleveland, $202,050; Philadelphia, $130,000; Youngstown, $126,960; and Pittsburgh, $125,384.

A Real Junior WeekFestivities Entered Into with Old-time Enthusiasm

Cornell's first post-war Junior week, in spite of the "flu," in spite of the weather, which turned warm and sloppy just at the wrong time, and in spite, also, of the competition offered by Farmers' Week, proved a real renaissance of old-time gaiety. About thirty fraternities had large houseparties, and the official program showed that entertainments, including tea dances, evening dances, and breakfasts, were given by twenty-five fraternities, societies, and organizations in addition to the presentation of the Masque, the Musical Clubs concert, the Junior Promenade, the Sophomore Cotillion, and the Yale-Cornell basketball game staged in the Drill Hall on Saturday afternoon.

The cotillion had been the cause of much controversy during several weeks, as a large proportion of the student body were in favor of omitting this one event from the calendar by way of economy. It was finally decided, however, that the cotillion should be held, but as a concession, many of the decorations were used for both the Cotillion and the Prom.

On Wednesday tea dances were given by Chi Psi, Phi Kappa Psi, and Theta Xi, and in the evening the Musical Clubs played to a packed house which greeted the different numbers with the old enthusiasm and insatiability as to encores. Numbers sung by the Glee Club included the "Song for Cornell," written by Dana Burnet '11, "No Limit," "My Lady Chloe," the "Alma Mater" and "Evening Song," and "The Goblins," sung by a quartet composed of C. M. Christian '21, R. W. Steele '21, A. H. Treman '21, and N. A. Burns '22. Steele also sang "Annie Laurie." The Mandolin Club was equally well received, and there were several special features, including some soft shoe dancing and a number of instrumental numbers. As a whole the program was similar to that given on the recent trip.

Following the concert, the guests were hurried to the Armory, which was decorated in a way to equal the best of former years. 51 boxes occupied the sides of the hall, for in addition to the 30 fraternities entertaining, there were a number of boxes occupied by independents and townspeople. The Midnight Frolic orchestra and the Kentucky Five furnished music for the dancing.

On Thursday afternoon tea dances were given by the following fraternities: Delta Phi, Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Phi Sigma, while seven fraternity dances followed the Masque, as follows: Alpha Delta Phi, Alpha Sigma Phi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Theta Chi.

The production of the Masque, "My Junior Week Girl," a "musical hysteria in two spasms," was quite up to form. As The Cornell Daily Sun expressed it, all the necessary elements of love, blood, crime, and fraternity spirit were present, the music was melodious, and the absence of vocal talent on the part of the would-be chorines was more than compensated by their ardor. Credit for the music is due to J. S. Stanley '21, B. E. Taylor '21, G. W. Teare '22, and J. W. Ross '20. The play was written by F. P. O'Brien '19.

The first events on Friday's program were the Majura breakfast at the Dutch Kitchen, and the Beth L'Amed breakfast given at the Phi Gamma Delta House. In the afternoon five fraternities entertained at tea dances—Beta Theta Pi, Delta Chi, Kappa Sigma, Psi Upsilon, and Zeta Psi.

The Junior Prom proved a worthy climax to the festivities. The color scheme used in the decorations was green and white, and the music was the same as that which played at the Cotillion. An elaborate dinner was served by Alberger and Clapp Catering Co. of Ithaca, which has catered for this event for 22 years. There were six supper relays with about 200 persons in each relay. One of the special features of the affair was the lighting. Variegated lights were placed on the balcony and used as spot lights, and each box was individually illuminated with amber-colored lights. There were also three different changes of the lighting system which were used during the evening.

On Saturday the Masque and Savage Club breakfast was held at the Dutch Kitchen, and the event of the afternoon was the Cornell-Yale game. Tea dances were given by Pi Kappa Alpha and Theta Delta Chi and in the evening the usual closed dances were held at the various fraternity houses, while Phi Delta Sigma gave an open dance.

Fraternities having house parties were: Alpha Delta Phi, Alpha Sigma Phi, Beta Theta Pi, Chi Psi, Delta Chi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Delta Phi, Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Delta Rho, Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Kappa Psi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha, Psi Upsilon, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Scorpion, Sigma Chi, Sigma Phi, Sigma Phi Sigma, Sigma Pi, Theta Alpha, Theta Chi, Theta Delta Chi, Theta Xi, Zeta Psi, and Zodiac.

The Junior Weew Guide, with a cover containing a clever illustration by Bas-kerville, in addition to a list of the events of each day gave photographs of all the houses entertaining, and a short history of the Junior Week idea.

If anything could be said to have marred the festivities of Junior Week, it would be the crowded condition of the Armory. It is hoped that a new floor may be put into the State Drill Hall in the near future so that that building may be made possible for social purposes.

THE PRESIDENT'S RESIGNATION

Dr. Schurman's resignation came as a great surprise to most Cornellians. It was generally expected that he would round out to thirty years his term as president of the University, retiring at the age prescribed by the Carnegie Foundation, namely sixty-eight.

This is neither the time nor the place to estimate judicially and impartially his achievement as president. We are too near to him personally, and too likely to be partisan. We must wait until we can view the period of his presidency in its true perspective, as perhaps we may now view that of President White. Only a few comments are now possible.

And first we may note the remarkable growth of the institution in the last twenty-eight years, as illustrated by figures given elsewhere in this issue. Just how far Dr. Schurman is responsible for this growth, no man can say; but certainly the measure of his influence has been very great indeed.

There is no question, too, that he has been and remains a considerable force in the American educational world. In his reports will be found sane and illuminating discussions of grave educational problems. His keen interest in public affairs, too, has led him into studies of political science and international law, which have reflected themselves in many important addresses and one or two books. He has always upheld the dignity of scholarship and he has never ceased to be a student himself.

Of his relations with the various college Faculties we shall not here speak; but we are in a position to say that his relations with the University Faculty have been notably harmonious and his policies have almost invariably found favor. Even when they have not, however, he has always been listened to with respect and his position of leadership has never been questioned. He has won the reputation of being fair. One of the older professors once said to the writer, "You don't need to be afraid of speaking your mind to Dr. Schurman; if he knows you are playing fair, that is the main thing." As Secretary Patterson points out in the Sun of February 16, President Schurman has always endeavored to conciliate and convince the minority rather than to ride over them rough-shod.

It would be a strange thing if a nature so strong as that of the President's had contrived to please everybody all the time. Doubtless, like most, he has not always succeeded in this. Yet the numerous expressions of esteem and respect which his recent action has elicited testify to the reputation which he enjoys for fair dealing and conscientious devotion to the interests of the University over which he has presided for almost a generation. And all Cornellians, whether they have differed from the President or not, will join in wishing him many years of continued usefulness and happiness in the tasks to which he now wishes to devote himself.

NEW YORK WOMEN'S COMMITTEE

The New York Women's Committee for the Endowment Fund Campaign, which has been doing very efficient work, is made up as follows: Dr. Marguerite T. Lee, chairman, 66 W. 95th Street (telephone, Riverside 3562), Dr. Emily Dunning Barringer, Miss Helen

The Endowment Campaign

Providence Cornellians Organize. Albany Women 98% Subscribers

The Cornell Endowment Campaign in New England is now in full swing. Latest reports from campaign headquarters at 612 Little Building, Boston, indicate that $87,626 has been subscribed to date and most of this sum has been pledged in the last two weeks.

A series of luncheons and dinners were held in New England last week in Providence, Worcester, Springfield, and Pittsfield, winding up with a dinner in Boston on Friday evening, February 13.

The first Cornell gathering in Providence for five years was held on February 9, in a dinner at the Art Club. W. A. Viall, secretary of the Brown and Sharp Manufacturing Company and in 1888-90 instructor in pharmacy at Cornell; A. C. Burnett '90, of Boston; C. R. Marsh '07, executive secretary of the New England Committee; F. E. Jackson '00, vice-president of the Cornell Club of New England; and Professor George G. Bogert '06 spoke at this dinner and presented various aspects of the Endowment Campaign. Fourteen Cornellians agreed to solicit personally for the Endowment Fund throughout the State of Rhode Island.

At Worcester the next day, a raging snow-storm did not prevent the necessity of extra places being set at a Cornell luncheon. The news-sheets of the New England Committee says of the Worcester luncheon: "If the enthusiasm displayed is an index of the financial returns, then we expect to see Worcester County endow an assistant professorship, and that costs $70,000."

Professor C. L. Durham spoke at a Cornell smoker in Newark, New Jersey, Saturday evening, February 14.

A report from Mrs. Frederick D. Colson '00, women's chairman for the Albany district, shows that ninety-eight per cent of all the Cornell women in that district have subscribed to the Endowment Fund. In addition, says Mrs. Colson's report, "The women who have contributed are all either teachers or working for the State, and are suffering from the same malady as are college professors. It would be as reasonable to ask the profs to raise their own funds."

The latest report from the Chicago committee outlines a novel plan for reaching every Cornellian in Chicago. It is the purpose of the committee to get a subscription from every Cornellian before they ask any non-Cornellian to contribute. In order to be sure that every man is reached, every member of the committee has definitely pledged himself to approach one other Chicago Cornellian, and has given the name of this prospect to the committee. As each of these prospects subscribes, he is told that his duty to Cornell requires that in addition to his subscription he give to the Committee the name of one other Cornellian whom he will approach for a subscription. In this way an endless chain of Cornell workers is to be formed.

The first paid advertising campaign for the benefit of an educational institution started with advertisements for Cornell's Endowment Campaign in the New York Tribune and Times of February 10. The advertisements are being paid for by friends of Cornell and are designed to tell the public what Cornell University stands for and why the Endowment Campaign deserves support.

THE PHILADELPHIA DRIVE

At a meeting of Cornell alumni at the Cornell-Princeton Club, on February 2, attended by about seventy-five persons, Professor Charles Love Durham pointed out that the modern university is a work-shop and not a book-shop.

Like the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cornell has emphasized the importance of the universities to American industry not only as laboratories of scientific research, but as places where human dynamos are developed for running American industry.

Cornell University appeals not for charity, but as a great enterprise devoted to national service, to men of vision and of foresight, inviting them to invest in an institution which during the past fifty years has contributed so powerfully to the upbuilding of the nation. Cornell does not glibly promise that by the word education, in the sense of special or technical training, all the ills of the country can be cured. Even by the dreadful experience of the world war our men and women have not been transformed into perfect beings. We are still made of the same old clay, with our old-time shortcomings. The great need of the nation is for trained hearts and spirits as well as for trained hands and minds. What we need in this country are men who are schooled to work and to conquer by unremitting and stern but fair labor. Such workers for the good of mankind it has been the aim of Cornell to furnish to the world.

Cornell stands on her record of service of the nation; on this record of service she rests her claim on men of affairs in general; to men who realize their obligations to save the nation from unenlightened ignorance and perverse sophistry. To the great industrial corporations she appeals for cooperation and investment.

Early Efforts Made to Segregate—May Be Established in New York City

The announcement made last week of the Spring Day Circus to be held in the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Commodore, New York, next Monday, February 23, recalls an incident that we feel sure but few even of the keenest of Cornell historians will remember in any but the most indefinite and hazy way.

The Era for June 29, 1903 Vol XXXV, No. 21), in a summary of the action of the Board of Trustees for that momentous year (page 623), tells of a proposal to acquire, in exchange for a tract of timber which had formerly been used by the School of Forestry, "the residential halls on the branch line of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, near the junction point known as Hayt's Corners, and situate in the township of Willard." Said halls were to be used exclusively for a certain small but rapidly growing group of students in natural history whose "zeal in pursuit of their favorite studies . . . had led them to hold prolonged sessions . . . necessary perhaps to the pursuit of their hobby, but detrimental to the best interests of the . . . followers of the more learned branches of the curricula."

Prominent among these young naturalists were men who have since become famous along the line of their chosen avocations—among whom may be mentioned several prominent members of the New York Spring Day Committee—Terry McGovern, general chairman, Bingo Wells, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Kid Kugler, vice-chairman of the same.

It should be said in justification of this group of knowledge-thirsters, that their entire effort was not devoted to the mere selfish acquisition of knowledge, but that their scientific pursuits occasionally led them into humanitarian efforts of the most god darned human sort. It will suffice merely to mention how, when the young Terence was a senior his organization provided squirrel-food for the destitute families of all the squirrels of the county wherever it was shown that the head of the family had come to an untimely end through the wantonness of students.

It is this group of scientists, then, with their riper judgment of later days, mellowed by the passage of time, that is going to provide entertainment for Cornellians, their friends, wives, sweethearts, and all comers, at the Spring Day revels at the Commodore next Monday.

True to earlier forms the group has recently adopted and raised to a state of comparative affluence a cannibal flea (Pulex anthropophagus). Although legend has it that "Pinky" has bitten many of the crowned heads of Europe, of recent years he has found business among his chosen patrons to have fallen off and has become a mere gutter-pup of a flea, common as dirt. He has been rehabilitated and restored to his former high sense of savoir-faire by a most careful reeducation at the hands of these noted naturalists. They had the expert advice of Doc Wilder in this undertaking and have secured his services only after impressing on him the need of a revival among Cornell alumni of the old spirit of play that made the earlier Spring Days famous.

Accurate information may be had by addressing the Spring Day Committee at the Cornell University Club of New York, 30 West 44th Street. The official program consists of the Masque show, "My Junior Week Girl," several numbers by the Glee Club and the Savage Club, and dancing.

Communications are being sent every other day to alumni in New York and the near-by States, covering a list of about seventeen thousand. These announcements are in the form of a leaflet entitled, The Cornell Spring Lamb,—a Publication with Mint Sauce and Gravy for the Cornell Spring Day.

STUDIES IN FOLLY

At the weekly luncheon of the Cornell Club of Cleveland, on February 12, "Ted" Robinson, of The Cleveland Plain Dealer, "The Philosopher of Folly," spoke and music was furnished by Signor Cafarelli, harpist, and Jack Rich, pianist. There were eighty-five present.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIANS BUSY

Hays Matson '14, of 454 California Street, San Francisco, Calif., under date of February 5, writes to Secretary Flack as follows:

"I am enclosing herewith a notice sent out to Cornell University Club men of northern California of a luncheon held to-day in honor of Professor Dexter S. Kimball. Forty Cornellians were present at the luncheon and we listened to a very interesting talk by Dean Kimball.

"No attempt was made at the luncheon to obtain additional subscriptions to the endowment fund. However, I feel confident that our present total of $19,000 will be increased to $25,000 as a result of the enthusiasm aroused by Professor Kimball's talk.

"To date approximately twenty per cent of the Cornellians in this territory have subscribed and their subscriptions average approximately $425 each. We will keep working along, and though we are far away from Ithaca, we still have the interests of Cornell at heart."

PHILADELPHIA WOMEN

The Cornell Women's Club of Philadelphia on Saturday, January 31, gave a shower for Miss Sarah Barnholt '10, whose marriage to Dr. James Francis Roohan, Medical School '11, took place on February 4 in Philadelphia. Dr. and Mrs. Roohan will live in Washington.

In celebration of Founder's Day, the Club was tendered a dinner by Mrs. Frederick Froriep (Adeline Edmunds, Summer Session) at her home. The speaker of the evening was Dr. Eleanor Burns '04, who has just returned from Constantinople, where she has been teaching in the American College.

Yale Five Defeated

By defeating the Yale five by the score of 25 to 23 in an exciting and spectacular basketball game Saturday, the Cornell team improved its standing in the Intercollegiate League and remains in the race for first honors, for how long, the game with Pennsylvania on Saturday night will determine. The Quakers are now leading the league and they are playing top notch basketball.

The Yale game, played before a big Junior Week crowd, abounded in thrills. It was a game of long shots, the defense of both teams being of such a character as to discourage frequent sallies under the baskets. Porter and Molinet for Cornell and Van Slyck, the Yale leader, contributed most of the scores, the later caging six field goals to five for Porter and four for the Cornell leader.

In the first half the lead see-sawed from one team to another, but at the end they were even, 9 to 9. Cornell went ahead at the opening of the second, only to be tied by Yale. Again Porter and Molinet got away with baskets and Porter a foul, giving Cornell a 25 to 20 lead. Van Slyck made a foul goal and then as the whistle blew he caged a goal from the field; but his rally was not sufficient to overcome Cornell's lead.

The summary:

Cornell 25	Yale 23
Molinet, capt. —l. f.—	Van Slyck
Porter —r. f.—	Alderman
Rippe —c.—	Hamill
Sidman —l. g.—	Flynn
Bastian —r. g.—	Cohen

Field goals: Cornell, Porter 5, Molinet 4, Sidman 2; Yale, Van Slyck 6, Hamill 2, Cohen 2.

Foul goals: Porter, 3 out of 5; Van Slyck, 5 out of 9.

ALUMNI NOTES

'74 BCE—Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Tomlinson are spending some time in California; their address is in care of Albert G. Simpson, 800 Citizens' National Bank Building, Los Angeles.

'74 BS—The Rev. Dr. George R. Van de Water, for many years rector of St. Andrew's Church, Fifth Avenue and 127th Street, New York, has been elected rector of the Church of the Beloved Disciple, 89th Street near Madison Avenue, and began his work there on February 15. At present Dr. Van de Water is rector of both churches, as the vestry of St. Andrew's has not yet accepted his resignation. Dr. Van de Water gives as his reason for leaving St. Andrew's, the heavy debt of $85,000 now on the church, and the movement of the colored population south, together with the fact that many of his own people have moved away. A movement to consolidate St. Andrew's and the Church of the Beloved Disciple has been held up by the refusal of Bishop Burch and the Standing Committee of the diocese to approve of the sale of the St. Andrew's property.

'82 AB—Dr. Herman M. Biggs, commissioner of health of New York State, was reappointed by Governor Smith on January 12 for a term of six years, and the appointment was confirmed by the Senate on the same day.

'93 CE—Albert H. Perkins is division engineer and chief of the Division of Waters of the New York State Conservation Commission, Albany, N. Y.

'93—Mary Doan Spalding has been since 1915 head assistant in English at the Grover Cleveland High School, St. Louis, Mo. She lives at 3739 Windsor Place.

'93 LLB—Vernon D. Stratton is a member of the law firm of H. C. and V. D. Stratton, Oxford, N. Y. During the war he served as a Y. M. C. A. secretary overseas, leaving America in April, 1918, and returning in March, 1919.

'95—Charles S. Young has left Chicago, and is now with The Omaha Bee, Omaha, Nebr.

'96 LLB, '97 LLM; '02 LLB—George Rivet Van Namee, of Watertown, secretary to Governor Smith, was nominated last week by the Governor to be a member of the Public Service Commission, second district, to succeed T. F. Fennell '96 of Elmira. The nomination was referred to the Senate Finance Committee. Nominations are usually transmitted to the clerk of the Senate by the secretary to the Governor, but because his own name was among those announced by the executive, Secretary Van Namee did not appear; instead Military Secretary Glynn handed the names up to the desk. Van Namee has resigned as secretary to the Democratic committee, but will remain as secretary to the Governor until he is confirmed as a Public Service Commissioner. Van Namee attended the public schools in Watertown. He attended Cornell in 1897-98 and from 1899 to 1902, being graduated LL.B. He was admitted to the practice of law in 1902. He was assistant and clerk of the Assembly in 1911 and clerk in 1913. He was for five years one of the commissioners of the executive bill-drafting commission, and has been secretary to Governor Smith since his inauguration.

'98 LLB—Charles E. Chalmers has recently been appointed receiver of the Second Avenue Railroad in New York; he has been general attorney for the road for some years.

'00 ME—Frederic D. Hunting is head of F. D. Huntington, Ltd., engineers and contractors, 11 Hanover Square, W. I., England.

'03 AB—Irving I. Goldsmith was discharged from the service last July as a first lieutenant in the Sanitary Corps, and has resumed the practice of law as a member of the firm of Slade, Harrington and Goldsmith, with offices in the Citizens' Bank Building, Saratoga Springs, N. Y. He has recently been appointed a civil service commissioner for the city of Saratoga Springs.

'04 AB, '06 LLB—Romeyn Berry has lately resigned his position as a member of the advisory committee of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics of America, after seventeen years with the association. Before becoming a member of the advisory committee, he served as treasurer and as a member of the executive committee.

'05—John M. Gauntlett has accepted a position with W. R. Grace and Company, of New York, as head of the newly established department of investment securities. For the past few years, he has been at the head of the J. M. Gauntlett Company, a corporation engaged in the investment and brokerage business in Ithaca; this business will be continued under his supervision. He is also a director of the Tompkins County National Bank, the Ithaca Savings Bank, and the Ithaca Trust Company.

'06 CE—William J. Durkan was married recently to Miss Clara Knapp, of Rochester, N. Y.

Take a class of men ten years out of college

TEN PERCENT of them will have made a distinct success; sixty percent will be doing fairly well. And thirty percent will be earning no more than had they never been to college.

Why? What separates the successful ten percent from the other ninety?

The Alexander Hamilton Institute knows something about the answer to that question; for in the past ten years it has enrolled more than 110,000 progressive men in its Modern Business Course and Service.

And more than

35% were college graduates

THE DIFFERENCE between large success in business and mediocre success is not chiefly a difference in native ability nor in the willingness to work.

It consists usually in training, and in self-confidence which specific practical training gives.

Here is a quotation from the letter of a college man, typical of many which the Institute has received:

"You may be interested in knowing that two and a half months' study of your Course has given me more self-confidence than the time spent in the University of only seven years ago. To that study of the Course and the self-confidence which it bred I am directly indebted for my recognition and promotion in this bank."

110,000 self-confident men

NO COLLEGE man expects his arts course to fit him to practice medicine or law. He realizes that special training is necessary for those professions.

Modern business, also, deserves to be thought of as a profession.

It has as many departments as the human body has organs. A man may know selling and be utterly ignorant of costs and accounting. He may be able to organize an office and know nothing of corporation finance. He may be an engineer and advertising and merchandising may be Greek to him.

The business of the Alexander Hamilton Institute is to give men quickly and systematically a working knowledge of all these departments.

That its training is thoroughly practical is proved by the experience of 110,000 men who with its help have gained mastery of business and self-confidence; and by the character and standing of

The men behind the Institute

THE highest business and educational authority is represented in the Institute's Advisory Council. That Council consists of: Frank A. Vanderlip, the financier; General Coleman duPont, the well known business executive; John Hays Hammond, the eminent engineer; Jeremiah W. Jenks, the statistician and economist; and Joseph French Johnson, Dean of the New York University School of Commerce.

Surely a training so directed, a training which has meant so much to 110,000 other men is worth an evening of your investigation. It is worth at least the little effort required to

The Reason For Its Popularity

Over 100,000 of the best farms in the United States and Canada use the Guarantee Lime and Fertilizer Spreader. Many users claim it has no equal for properly spreading lime, ground limestone and commercial fertilizers. The Guarantee Spreaders sold, won this popularity by proving in actual field work against every other kind of spreader that it was the best. The unique built-in features like the covering and harrowing attachment and by selling under a 5 year Guarantee has contributed to the wonderful success of The Guarantee Spreader. We have a big catalog which shows where to save money on spreaders. Write for your copy now.

The Cornell Campus

is restricted as to its residential property. Ownership of its land is vested in Cornell University. You cannot buy a building lot on the Cornell Campus at any price the original, adjoining the campus, on-the-main-street-railway-line, Cornell Heights, with regular car service from six A. M. until after midnight, offers a limited number of building sites, perhaps six or seven only. These may be had at reasonable prices and on liberal terms.

It will soon be too late to buy either lots or residences ready for occupancy. The opportunity is here now, to-day. Write for terms to the owner,

A fact:

Day-in and day-out at the St. Charles—one of the finest hotels in the Crescent City—Fatima outsells all other high-grade cigarettes. This steady leadership is significant of the fast-growing preference for this "just enough Turkish" blend. Fatima, so men have discovered, retains that smooth Turkish flavor, while lacking entirely the oily heaviness or over-richness of straight Turkish brands.

Excuse us for a brief moment

The second term is opening and we must give our attention to the needs of the students. It may delay your order only a day. We never intentionally slight any of our customers. Send your orders right along.

Mr. Troy had about a hundred of his calendars left this year and has permitted us to sell them at $1.10 postage paid to you. Do you want one? It makes an excellent up-to-date viewbook.

ROXBURY

Roxbury's success has been due to the efficiency of teaching method. There are no forms. After a careful physical and psychological test each boy is assigned to classes no larger than 5. The number of hours' instruction in each course, the size and character of class entered, and the number of courses a boy may carry are determined by his ability and state of preparation.

Large faculty—one master for each five boys. One hundred and fifty-acre campus and farm. Three dormitories. All athletic teams, gym work, boxing, wrestling, under expert coaches and instructors. Ten saddle horses for boy's use. A large open-air swimming pool to be constructed next spring. Two months' summer session for boys who need additional work, and boys preparing for September examinations.

Roxbury's record has been extraordinary. This summer only two out of over one hundred final candidates failed to enter college.

Students admitted any time during the year when there are vacancies.
