Another Old
Landmark Gone

Martin Gibbons has removed the iron bound porch (bucket gone long ago) from over the entrance of the Senate. This porch has been the stage of many impromptu coming-outs of tragedians who have made a great success on the stage of life, to say nothing of the amusement they have afforded the multitude in the street below. Kid Kugler will have to hunt up a new opera house. You delinquents will have to hurry up and come back if you want to see the few landmarks left, or visit us up in the Forests of Stores. Fashion still requires the wearing of shirts. I am making them for $4.00 up, $22.50 up for the usual half-dozen. Buy a postal and write for samples this day.

PRICE 12 CENTS

AN AUTOMOBILE census of the Campus, probably not wholly conclusive, indicates that there is one automobile to every twenty-five students, as compared to one for every thirty-two last year. Of these cars, 124 are owned by fraternity men, four by women, and the rest by independents. As to makes, 117 Fords, in all stages of variation and camouflage, from the conventional sedan to the piratic sardine-carriage; Buicks and Dodges come next in the order named. Some cars are such mongrel or hybrid products of the junk heap that they are beyond identification. These figures are presented as supplementary to those given by Romeyn Berry in his "Sport Stuff" of two weeks ago, and with the general statement that Rym's abilities as a statistician are only exceeded by his talents as a commentator.

A GREY FOX, rare visitor from the South, was recently shot at Taughannock. The first record of an animal of this species in the neighborhood of Ithaca was of one killed at West Danby about twelve years ago.

THE SAGE CHAPEL Preacher for November 5 will be the Rev. Dr. George B. Cutten, Baptist, president of Colgate University.

CHRISTOPHER ST. CLAIRE, of Mineville, Pa., will speak before the Current Events Forum on November 5 on "The Miners and the Community."

THE STOCK JUDGING TEAM from Cornell placed ninth among twenty colleges at the National Dairy Show at St. Paul, Minnesota, recently. Richard S. Baker '23 made the highest score of the team, and placed fourth in individual rating.

THE BERRY PATCH, the "colyam" of the Sun, is having difficulty in getting contributions of the right sort, if one may judge by the appeal it is making to induce the students to contribute.

CHEER LEADERS, who have been practicing acrobatics in the Gymnasium for the past two weeks, appeared to advantage at the Colgate game, when front and back "flips" gave a snappy climax to some of the calisthenic leading.

THE FOLLOWING subjects have been announced for the Corson Browning Prize competition: "Browning's Portrayal of French Life and Character"; "Browning's Interest in Science"; "The Development of Character in Paracelsus." The essays are due on April 15.

THE SMOKESTACK of the new heating plant has superseded the Library Tower as the dominant architectural feature of the Hill. And from West Hill the façade of the new Chemistry Building is almost as conspicuous as the great bulk of the State Drill Hall.

EDWIN SHEVLIN, formerly boxing instructor at Cornell and now welterweight champion of New England, spent one week in Ithaca as the guest of John J. Fallon, present boxing coach, and helped to increase the interest in boxing at the University. Coach Fallon now has about seventy-five men under his charge.

THE CROSS COUNTRY CLUB is financing itself by the sale of tags on the Campus. The proceeds of the sale are to be applied in part to the purchase of trophy cups as prizes to the winners of the novice and freshman cross country series; in part to sending a man to look over in advance the courses on which Cornell is scheduled to run; part to be held as a reserve fund against the possibility of sending another team to England.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB began its activities of the year by presenting in the Campus Theatre, on October 20 and 21, three one-act plays; "Exiled" by Arthur Doyle; "Out of the Night" by John Smith (pseudonym); and "Jilted" by Mayer Portner.

"ANDROCLES AND THE LION" is to be presented by the Women's Dramatic Club this term. As a preliminary, Professor Martin Sampson read the Shaw play to the prospective members of the cast.

THE C. U. C. A. is offering courses in its department of religious education in advance of anything done in previous years. These include a course for freshmen on "The Life of Christ"; "An Outline of Old Testament History"; "Ten Fundamental Questions about Religion"; "Vocational Problems"; "Christ in the Life of To-day"; and "The Social Principles of Jesus." The committee on religious education, of which R. N. Chase '23, of Garden City, N. Y., is chairman, is arranging for a series of discussion groups to be held in dormitories, fraternity houses, and rooming houses.

IGNACE PADEREWSKI will appear in concert at Bailey Hall on November 13. He appears under the auspices of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, the use of the Hill auditorium having been granted by the University authorities because there was no suitable hall available in Ithaca.

A BARBECUE, of the real old-fashioned kind, is to be held by the students and Faculty of the College of Agriculture, November 14. The viands for the feast will be furnished by the various departments and the meats will be cooked as whole carcasses over open fires. Students from the South, where they have had experience in such things, are in demand in making the preparations and in carrying out the plans.

CHEMISTRY STUDENTS held their annual get-together in Barnes Hall on October 24. Herman F. Spahn '23, of Pleasantville, N. Y., president of the Chemistry Association, presided at the meeting, which was attended by more than two hundred students in chemistry.

A CHEERING SECTION is an experiment which the Graduate Manager is trying out for the Columbia game on November 4. Section F of the east stand has been reserved for male members of the Athletic Association, from which cheering in its sublimated form may be expected.

SENIOR OFFICERS of the Student Council were elected October 24, on a total vote usually high. Ernest D. Leet, of Jamestown, N. Y. editorial director of the Sun, was elected president. Arthur B. Treman of Ithaca was elected secretary, and Leonard C. Hanson of Veblen, S. D. was chosen treasurer.

THE FENCING CLUB gave a dance at the Delta Upsilon Lodge on October 26, the proceeds of which are to be applied to providing equipment for the Club this year, and furthering its interests in the world of sport.

PASSING THE HAT at the New Hampshire and Colgate games, to provide money for sending the Band to the Dartmouth game in New York, netted slightly over $1,000. Any remainder of the fund, after its purpose has been accomplished, will be used for sending scrubs to the Pennsylvania game, and for providing megaphones and insignia for the cheer-leaders.

THE SON of the sculptor of the statue of Ezra Cornell is working his way in the University, and among his other jobs is that of tending furnaces on South Hill. His name is Alden McNeil and he is registered as a freshman in the College of Architecture; his father, Hermon A. McNeil, one of the foremost sculptors of the country, taught in Sibley College from 1886 to 1889, and is now teaching in the National Academy of Design in New York City.

THE BEST STUDENT in New York State, if Regents' marks are a sound criterion, Miss Ella H. Sullivan, of Amsterdam, has entered Cornell on a State scholarship. Miss Sullivan made an average of 98.56 on her college entrance certificate; she intends to study for a career in journalism.

CONVENTION STATISTICS

An analysis of the registration figures at the alumni Convention in Pittsburgh two weeks ago shows that the total registration was 393, of whom 379 were Cornellians. Eighteen were women.

The oldest class represented was '72, George W. Luce of that class winning the hand embroidered earmuffs. Every class thereafter was represented with the exception of '75, '76, '79, '80, '81, '84, '85, and '86. First honors went to '16 with a representation of twenty-three members; '12 was one behind with twenty-two, while '14 and '17 had twenty-one each.

Cornellians were present from Delaware, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Washington, D. C.

Among the cities Pittsburgh naturally led all comers with a registration of 205. Cleveland's figure was 22, followed by New York with 14, Ithaca with 12, and Chicago with 10.

ENGINEERS MEET MONDAY

The following announcement of the coming annual meeting of the Cornell Society of Engineers is from W. W. Macon '98, president of the society.

The Cornell Society of Engineers will hold its annual meeting at the Cornell University Club, 30 West Forty-fourth Street, New York, on the evening of Monday, November 6. At that time I expect to sing a brief but effective swan song and it is understood that I am likely to give way to Carroll R. Harding '10, who has served the society well for several years as its chief executive officer, advertising the society and collecting dues. As you may know, the organization was originally the Alumni Association of Civil Engineers, but when the amalgamation of the engineering college took place, it modified its constitution and by-laws so that Sibley College men could join with it. The result is that there is a membership of over sixteen hundred and still growing.

It is proposed to limit the necessary business of electing officers to the smallest number of minutes consistent with the use of the steam roller to accept the nominating committee's slate. After that we shall provide some transition features between the severity of the business session to the freedom of the social moments of closing. These features will include a talk illustrated with lantern photographs, by John H. Lawrence, Sibley '09, of the features of the Hell Gate power station in New York, for which he was largely responsible, and an argument by Frederick A. Waldron, consulting engineer, New York, to the effect that a definite tendency is now developing to give to the engineer substantially the entire responsibility for some classes of modern architectural engineering undertakings—a movement calculated to make the architect responsible only for the artistic and embellishment features and leaving the sole charge of the development to the engineer.

THE MANUSCRIPT OF DIXIE

Editor, THE ALUMNI NEWS:

That article in your issue of October 5 concerning the gift of the "original manuscript" of "Dixie" requires a little explanation, as your correspondent has his facts a trifle mixed.

This is not the original manuscript and Dan Emmett, the composer, who has been dead for many years, is not the donor.

I am the present owner of this copy and I have loaned it for a year to the State Historical Association of North Carolina. It is now in a glass case in the Hall of History in the State Museum at Raleigh, North Carolina, with a background of some old Confederate flags that saw service in the Civil War.

Daniel D. Emmett was born in my father's home town of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and in 1859, while he was with the Bryant's Minstrels, he composed this song in New York. It was first sung in New York in September, 1859. It was first some twenty stanzas long, but only five of these are shown in the MS.

The original manuscript was stolen and so far as I am aware has never been located.

The copy which I have was made by Emmett many years ago, after he returned to his home, when he was quite an old man, at the request of my cousin, Miss Frances S. Hoey, and was left to me after her death in 1912. Other copies have also been written by Emmett, and one is owned by the Ohio State Historical Society and I believe there is also a copy somewhere in Boston. Another cousin of mine owns Dan Emmett's old violin. With my copy now in Raleigh there is an excellent photograph of the old man as he appeared in his later years.

This MS copy, although not the original MS, is authentic and will ultimately come to Cornell with some other historical things I now have.

Emmett died in Mt. Vernon, O., June 28, 1904. There is a handsome monument erected to his memory bearing the inscription, "To the memory of Daniel Decatur Emmett, born 1815, died 1904, whose song Dixie-Land inspired the courage and devotion of the Southern people and now thrills the hearts of a reunited people."

The story of how I came to loan this MS to the State of North Carolina through Colonel F. A. Olds, director of the Hall of History, is a very interesting one but much too long to be incorporated in this letter.

I am writing this to correct the slight inaccuracies in your news item and later, when I turn this wonderful old song over to my Alma Mater, I will give its history more in detail.

Rochester, N. Y.

CORNELLIANS AT CALIFORNIA

Cornell had four representatives on the program of the dedication of the new Dairy Industry and Horticultural Buildings at the branch College of Agriculture of the University of California at Davis on October 24.

Dean Thomas Forsyth Hunt of the California College of Agriculture, who was a member of the staff here from 1903 to 1907, presided. He introduced Professor William H. Chandler of the Department of Pomology and Vice-Director of Research in the College of Agriculture here, President Raymond A. Pearson '94, president of Iowa State College and chairman of the executive committee of the Association of Land Grant Colleges, and Professor Claude B. Hutchison, M.S. '13, who recently left the Department of Plant Breeding at Cornell to become director of the Davis branch of the California College of Agriculture.

Director Chandler's subject was "The Outlook of Agricultural Research," President Pearson spoke on "Dairy Research and Education," and Director Hutchison gave an address on "The Functions of an Agricultural College."

HEATING PLANT LEADS WORLD

By January 1 Cornell expects to have in operation the most extensive steam-heating plant in the world. It is foremost in actual pipe mileage and also in distance from the source to the farthest edifice served, Prudence Risley Hall, which gives about two miles of pipe from the boiler house at East Ithaca.

The old heating plants will be abandoned. These include the University plant on Cascadilla Creek near the Old Armory, and the plant near Beebe Lake built about ten years ago for the College of Agriculture, and some individual plants, such as that in Roberts Hall. It is stated that the new equipment will be thirty per cent less expensive than the old.

Four 612-horse-power boilers have been installed in the new brick building at East Ithaca, and there is space for expansion with the physical growth of the University. The building is 118 by 57 feet, with a monitor over the firing aisle, which is about sixty feet above the operating floor. The chimney, of radial brick, is 225 feet high, and is the dominant vertical accent in the Cornell landscape, as seen from a distance, superseding the Library Tower in this respect. Two Buffalo fans furnish a forced draft. The inside coal hopper has a capacity of seven hundred tons of barley anthracite coal, or approximately enough to operate the plant for a week. Both coal and ashes are handled by machinery. Coal from the hopper is dumped on an automatic weighing machine, and is carried to the furnace by bucket elevators, belts, and conveyors. It is estimated that six men can operate the plant.

Steam leaves the building at 175 pounds pressure through twelve-inch steel pipes in special hollow tile filled with asbestos insulation. The laterals which enter the buildings are from two to four inches in diameter, and are fitted with regulating valves which reduce the pressure to twenty-five pounds. Except where there is gravity return, electrically driven pumps are installed to return the condensed water in each building to the surge tanks in the boiler house, where the water is reheated and again converted into steam.

CORNELLIANS AND ROTARIANS

The Cornell Club of Utica took charge of the Rotary Club meeting in that city on October 27, with the result that the usual Rotary meeting place with its 250 chairs was not sufficiently large for the luncheon. Romeyn Berry '04 spoke in the dual capacity of Cornell alumnus and president of the Rotary Club of Ithaca. A quintet of students was imported from the University for the occasion. Miles H. Bickelhaupt '03, president of the Cornell Club of Utica, presided.

The annual dinner of the Cornell Club of Utica will be held on Monday, November 27, when President Farrand will make the principal address.

STUDENT COUNCIL FUNCTIONS

Ernest D. Leet, a senior from Jamestown, N. Y., who has just been elected president of the Student Council, says that he looks forward to this year as a real beginning in student government as an influence on the undergraduate body.

He says that the students are learning more about the Council, and see in it not a mere honorary organization, but one with a purpose not merely to reflect student opinion, but to guide it as well. The Council, he thinks, is an organization for service, as expressed in its constitution "to unite more closely undergraduate interests and activities, to foster a closer relation between students and Faculty, to the end that undergraduate affairs may be directed more efficiently and with a wholesome cooperative spirit."

Of definite plans, he looks forward to more democracy and effectiveness in the appointment of student committees, and a larger participation in undergraduate duties by a larger number. He wants more undergraduate interest in the proposed Union, made possible through the donation by Mrs. Willard Straight; a special organization to extend real service and hospitality to visiting teams; and, if possible, a student representative on the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

He says that greater interest in the Council is shown in the larger number of votes cast in student elections this year than in preceding years, and ascribes some of that interest to establishment of the honor system, with which the Council is directly connected, and in which students are taking an active part.

SPORT STUFF

The annual pushball game between the two underclasses was pushed under the cold and cynical autumn moon on Upper Alumni Saturday night. A pushball is just like a basketball in shape and construction, only it is about seven feet in diameter. Late in the afternoon the chairman of the committee on arrangements discovered that the rubber bladder of the only pushball in the State was irretrievably worn out and ruined. Being a young man of resource and decision, he collected feverishly all the old football bladders in the University and proceeded to blow them up by lung power in a series of ten thousand consecutive pouts. The cover of the pushball was in some degree inflated when these small units were at length packed away in its interior and the game went on. But the boy fainted four times in the last hour of trial and it will be weeks before his face shrinks back to normal and ceases to flap in the breeze.

That's the kind of future citizen the University is training up here in the hills—dauntless, resourceful, and faithful unto complete exhaustion. He saw his duty and he did it even though his blood vessels were about to burst and his eyes to pop out like grapes under pressure.

There is going to be a good party in New York on November 10, the eve of the football game with Dartmouth. The Dartmouth and Cornell Musical Clubs are going to give a joint concert at the Hotel Pennsylvania followed by a seething University dance. There's a pleasant advertisement about it somewhere in the rear of this paper. There is nothing like celebrating a football victory together before it happens. Whosoever gets licked is that much ahead anyway.

R. B.

DENNY STILL SAFE

Ransom L. Denny, whose history as a fraudulent Cornellian and arrest in October, 1921, have been related in previous issues of THE ALUMNI NEWS, is safe in the penitentiary at least until January, 1923, according to a letter from the secretary of the Parole Commission of the City of New York, from which the following is an extract:

"This man was sentenced October 21, 1921, on a charge of petit larceny, obtaining $10 from one Carlton P. Johnson by means of a fraudulent check. Our investigation shows that there were many complaints against this man. Small amounts and bad checks all over the country. His sentence was an indeterminate one with a maximum of three years. He was allotted a number of marks to earn by the members of this Commission, which at the maximum rate of earning per day, he will not be entitled to parole consideration until he has served about fifteen months, minimum time. If released then, he will be on parole to this office for fifteen months longer, the balance of his three-year term.

"I might also state that when he has served his term on this charge he will be turned over to the authorities in Kings county to answer another charge of petit larceny, a warrant for which has been filed against him at the penitentiary.

"So as the case stands at the present time, nothing will be done until January, 1923."

ST. LOUIS WOMEN ORGANIZE

The most recent addition to the list of women's clubs is the Cornell Women's Club of St. Louis. Its officers are: president, Mrs. Edmund Fowler Brown (Mary Relihan), B.L. '93, 775 Clara Ave.; secretary treasurer, Mrs. Alexander S. Langsdorf '03 (Elsie Hirsch), 1205 Amherst Place. The first Friday of each month is the day of the regular meeting. Every Cornell woman in St. Louis or vicinity is invited to the meetings at the College Club House and is urged to send her address to one of the officers, so that she may receive monthly notices.

USE MENTAL TESTS

Mentality tests for entering students in use at Cornell for the past few years have shown that freshmen entering the College of Arts and Sciences have stood highest, with those of the College of Engineering and the College of Architecture in second and third places respectively. Professor Paul J. Kruse, of the Department of Rural Education, who has charge of the tests, points out that definite comparisons may not be deduced from this rating because the tests themselves require knowledge of the implements of expression as well as knowledge of other sorts, and arts students, for example, are supposed to have had more practice with these implements. He thinks it is probable that, potentially, all the colleges would rate about the same in student mentality.

The Terman test, somewhat similar to the Army intelligence tests, was used this year, and the mark on the test in no wise influences a student's entrance, which is based on the usual records and examinations. However, the information gained from the results is used to help the student during his college career, and in some degree may be the basis of advice that will keep a student from going along in the old hap-hazard manner. One who is low in the tests, for instance, would be strongly advised against taking extra hours of University work.

Ultimately, the tests may be the basis of some vocational guidance, and even now the statistics derived from them are used in research on general educational problems. The tests form a record for the future, not only for educational comparisons but for definite suggestions to the individual. Professor Kruse says that it is generally thought that the average mentality of entering students is lower than it was twenty years ago. This may come about from a number of causes, such as a lowering of instruction efficiency in pre-college education, or a larger proportion of the population entering the universities. But at any rate, if the tests are continued for twenty years, a definite statement can be made, and the fact of a higher or lower mentality can then be proved.

CHICAGO OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the Cornell University Association of Chicago, held October 27, the following officers were elected for the coming year: president, Charles C. Whinery '99; vice-president, Samuel A. Bingham '05; secretary, Lincoln Norcott Hall '18; treasurer, Bostford B. Young '19; registrar, Frank M. White '11, directors, James P. Harrold '93 and Newton C. Farr '09.

CLEVELAND ENTERTAINS FARRAND

One hundred and fifty-odd members of the Cornell Club of Cleveland turned out for luncheon at the Hotel Statler on Monday, October 16, when President Farrand was the guest of honor. "Prexy" told the Cleveland alumni that one of the greatest problems facing the University was the question of limitation of numbers. He said that the University would act only after the most careful consideration of the situation in every detail.

"Bob" North and "Joe" Harris staged a debate as to how "Joe" missed the boat ride at the Pittsburgh Convention. It was a very dry debate and the club knows no more than it did before it started. Everyone of the Cleveland Club at Pittsburgh reported "one fine time." Plans are already under way to charter a boat and take the whole Cleveland Club to Buffalo in 1923.

The regular weekly luncheon on October 12 brought out a large crowd. The luncheon was a final rally for the Pittsburgh Convention. William Ganson Rose, Western Reserve '01, a well known writer and speaker of Cleveland, gave an interesting talk on conditions in Europe. Mr. Rose has just returned to this country after an extended trip through fifteen European countries including Turkey, Greece, Russia, and all parts of Asia Minor.

Charles De Woody, director of the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice, was the speaker at the regular weekly luncheon of the Cornell Club of Cleveland at the Hotel Statler on October 26. He outlined the system of cooperation between the association, the police department, and the courts in the prosecution of criminal cases. Seventy-five members of the club were present.

THE DEBATING TEAM, chosen as a result of tryouts held October 19, includes twenty-two men.

OBITUARY

B. Talworth P. Backhouse '72

Benjamin Talworth Paine Backhouse came, with his brother, Arthur Burder, from England and entered Cornell at the beginning of the spring trimester, April 1869, in the optional course, remaining until the close of the third college year.

He was born in Bolton, England, on January 17, 1850, son of the Rev. Benjamin and Isabella Caroline Burder Backhouse. The father was a Congregational minister, of studious habits, liberal in politics, and a great admirer of Cromwell; the mother was of an old Essex family, adventurous spirit, and very desirous to give their six sons a broader opportunity for success by emigrating to a new country. The family were considering coming to the United States, to either Illinois or Iowa, where several of their acquaintances and friends had settled. At this time they happened to see in the England papers a glowing account of the new university that Ezra Cornell had founded. The aims and advantages of Cornell were fully set forth, especially its liberal allowance of choice of studies, its advanced position in regard to the modern sciences, and the offer of employment which, with the knowledge that Goldwin Smith, a prominent Liberal, had left conservative Oxford to take a professor's chair at the new University, so appealed to Talworth and his brother Arthur that they decided to leave England, as soon as they could arrange to do so, and enter Cornell, where they could materially advance their education and at the same time learn something of the American ways of life, while awaiting the coming of the family.

During the first summer vacation, with the consent of President White, and the approval of Ezra Cornell, the brothers built one of the two-story cottages in the "Grove" and the settlement there, from which have gone out some of our most noted Cornell men, was begun. (There were two cottages built in the "Grove" during the summer vacation, 1869, one by the Backhouse brothers, and the other by two other '72 men, Harrison Clay Colburn and Clarence Wellborne Stanton. These cottages were building at the same time, but which was first begun or finished is not now certain.) This cottage stood southeast of the President White house and just north of the new Tower Road. It had four rooms with a lean-to kitchen in the rear, and here they lived, letting rooms to other '72 men until it was burned on May 13, 1871.

Talworth Backhouse was fitted in Mill High School, Yorkshire, and in the Commercial School, Bedford, England. He specialized in modern languages and the sciences, and won the second prize in German in the examination at the end of his first trimester, and the second prize in veterinary science in 1871. He was a member of the Y. M. C. A., and of the Baseball Club.

Before the family were ready to come to America the father was appointed secretary and representative of the British Foreign Bible Society for Australia, and went to Melbourne instead. This and the burning of their cottage caused the brothers to leave at the end of the year, in June, 1871, and after a few months in England they rejoined the family in Melbourne.

In Australia, Mr. Backhouse was engaged in teaching, and for a time was professor in Laurenston College, Tasmania, and at Elsternwick, Melbourne. Having studied engineering, and being a good draftsman, he took up architecture and practiced that profession in Melbourne. About 1890 he became associated with the Metropolitan Board of Land and Works in Melbourne as inspector of works, and served in that capacity for many years.

He was married at Berwick, Victoria, in January, 1885, to Miss Emily A'Becket, daughter of Hon. William Arthur Callender and Emma Mills A'Becket. The father was a member of the Legislative Council and a son of the first Chief Justice of Victoria. There were seven children of this union: Nigel, Geoffrey, Herbert, Isabel, Emma, Ellen, and Rita, all of whom received a college or professional school education. The sons served in the World War; Nigel was chaplain all through the Palestine campaign, and is now chaplain on board the ship Sidney, which sunk the German raider the Emden; Geoffrey served as yeoman with the heavy artillery in France, making the supreme sacrifice at Passchendaele; and Herbert was in the signal service, was present at the landing at Gallipoli and all through that campaign, and has the honor to be an "Anzac." He was afterwards present at most of the battles in which the Australians fought in France.

Our classmate, after a year of failing health, had a severe chill followed by pneumonia, from which he died on October 15, 1921, in Melbourne. His life was spent on three continents, in each of which he maintained an honorable and upright character. E. V. W. '72

Julia Cessna '93

Miss Julia Cessna died at the home of her brother at Reno, Nevada, on October 5, as a result of complications from an injury received in California about two years ago.

Miss Cessna was born on August 10, 1871, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Cessna, and was prepared for college at the Ithaca High School. She entered Cornell in 1889 in the course in architecture, receiving her degree in due course. She continued to live in Ithaca until six years ago, when she went to live with her brother John Randolph Cessna, M.E. '93, who is a Government draftsman, and who has been stationed at Reno for many years. The remains were cremated.

Frank A. Roper '15

Frank Adams Roper died at the Packer Hospital in Sayre, Pa. on October 18, of injuries received on September 10, while trying to rescue his brother from the attack of a Guernsey bull at his farm in Nichols, N. Y. His right leg was broken in four places, his hip was dislocated, and three ribs were broken. He was of splendid physique, and recovery was expected, but an abscess developed in the chest, and blood poisoning set in. His brother is still in the hospital, but is recovering.

Roper was born on February 15, 1893, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Roper of Owego. He prepared at the Owego Free Academy, and entered the University in 1911, receiving the degree of B.S. in 1915. The following year he took graduate work in animal husbandry, and received the degree of M. S. A. in 1916. He was a member of Theta Alpha.

In 1917-18 he was an instructor in economics at Harvard, but left to enter the Service. For the past two years he had been a food economy expert with the tariff commission in Washington, and was spending his vacation at his brothers' farm in Nichols, N. Y., when he was injured.

He married Miss Sarah Barclay '15, who survives him with three small children, one but three months old.

Dr. Joseph E. Winters

Dr. Joseph Edeel Winters, professor emeritus of diseases of children in the Medical College, died at the Hotel Vendome in Boston October 4, after a long illness.

Dr. Winters was born in Minnesink, N. Y., on January 11, 1848, the son of Joseph and Julia Ann Carpenter Winters. His parents moved to Oswego, N. Y., while he was still a youth, and he began the study of medicine under Dr. George F. Cady of Nichols, N. Y. He went to New York in 1869, and continued his professional studies in the medical department of New York University, graduating in 1872. For a year following his graduation he was an instructor in the university, then becoming demonstrator of anatomy, from which position he resigned in 1885. He became house surgeon at Bellevue Hospital, New York, in 1873, and was successively house physician, assistant and pathologist, and assistant to Dr. A. L. Loomis in teaching hospital diagnosis. In the summers of 1877 and 1895 he studied in hospitals in London and on the Continent. From 1881 to 1885 he was lecturer and clinical professor on diseases of children in the medical department of New York University, resigning to accept a similar professorship in the Cornell University Medical College, which he held until 1919.

He retired from active practice a year ago, to travel for his health and since his return from England last June, he had lived at the Vendome. He was nationally known as the author of monographs on child-feeding, as consultant of many organizations and institutions for the care of children, and as the originator of the formulas for the feeding of children successfully used in this country and Canada.

At the time of his death he was consulting physician of the Willard Parker and Riverside Hospitals, New York; Holiday Farm, Rhinebeck; Christs' Hospital, Jersey City; and St. Joseph's Hospital, Yonkers; and was consulting pediatrician to the Mount Vernon and Flushing Hospitals. He was a member of the American Medical Association, the Academy of Medicine, the Bellevue Hospital Alumni Association, and a number of medical associations.

Defeat Princeton at Soccer

The soccer team won an important victory Saturday, defeating Princeton by a score of 1 to 0 in a close and exciting game on Alumni Field. As the Tigers won the championship last season, the only team in the league that defeated Cornell, the victory of Coach Bawlf's protégés puts them squarely in the running for this year's honors.

The wind at their backs, Cornell took the offensive in the first half and at about half time a free penalty kick from the twenty-yard line allowed Captain Smith to score the only goal of the game. In the second half Princeton was on the offensive but the game fighting defense kept the Tigers from scoring.

Opponents Spring Surprises

While Columbia was losing to Williams Saturday Dartmouth was putting up a great fight against Harvard at Cambridge, and Pennsylvania figured in one of the great surprises of the day by defeating the Navy.

The Dartmouth line defense gave Harvard a good deal of trouble, but field goals and an intercepted forward pass brought victory to the crimson after a stubborn battle. A field goal was Dartmouth's only score. The Dartmouth team is obviously better than last year and ought to prove a doughty opponent of Cornell at the Polo Grounds, New York, on Armistice Day. Incidentally it is worth noting that Cornell has yet to beat Dartmouth on the Polo Grounds.

Apparently thoroughly beaten at the end of the first half, Pennsylvania staged a great fighting rally in the third and fourth periods and gave the Navy, reputed to be a powerful team, a trouncing. If the Quakers maintain that pace, the Cornell-Pennsylvania game ought to be well worth seeing.

The scores of the games were: Columbia 10; Williams 13; Dartmouth 3, Harvard 12; Pennsylvania 13, Navy 7.

Frosh Eleven Beaten

The freshman eleven was no match for the fast and well trained Kiskiminetas School of Pittsburgh Saturday, the visitors winning by a score of 31 to 0.

MARYLAND ELECTS OFFICERS

At the recent meeting of the Cornell University Alumni Association of Maryland, the following officers were elected for the year; Theodore W. Hacker '17, president; Adrian Hughes '12, vice-president; Ralph Bolgiano '09, secretary and treasurer.

NEXT PITTSBURGH MEETING

The Cornell University Association of Western Pennsylvania will meet in the Hotel Schenley Grill Room in Pittsburgh on Saturday, November 4, at 8 p. m. Rodney M. Cornell '09, chairman of the nominating committee, will present the slate of officers to be elected for the ensuing year.

ITHACA CLUB ELECTS

The Cornell Club of Ithaca held its organization meeting for the year on October 4, when forty members gathered in the coffee house at Barnes Hall.

Paul S. Livermore '97 presided. The evening was devoted to a consideration of the Pittsburgh convention program, and the activities of the club in Ithaca.

R. Warren Sailor '07 was elected as the delegate to the convention at Pittsburgh, with Harold Flack '12 as alternate. Officers of the club were elected as follows: president, Luzerne Coville '86; secretary, Archie M. Palmer '18; treasurer, Percy O. Wood '08.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

ONE GIFT to the Indiana University Memorial Fund should be appreciated. Archie Warner, for many years band instructor and for the last five years chime-master at Indiana, will give his salary as chime-master for the next five years to the fund. When it is understood that the action of the chime is secured by levers which must be pulled hard and swiftly to make the proper note, it will be seen that this means a real contribution.

VIRGINIA has a plan whereby every alumni chapter one-fourth of whose local alumni are paid-up members of the Alumni Association (provided these number at least ten) is entitled to have one appointee at the university. Such a scholarship carries with it, for non-Virginians, the remission of the tuition fee ($160) and half of the university fee ($20), and for Virginians, the remission of the university fee ($10). The scholarships are tenable for one year.

Published for the alumni of Cornell University by the Cornell Alumni News Publishing Company, Incorporated.

Published weekly during the college year and monthly in July and August; forty issues annually. Issue No. 1 is published the last Thursday of September. Weekly publication (numbered consecutively) ends the last week in June. Issue No. 40 is published in August and is followed by an index of the entire volume, which will be mailed on request.

A Pictorial Supplement is issued monthly except in July and August.

Subscription price $4.00 a year, payable in advance. Foreign postage 40 cents a year extra. Single copies twelve cents each.

Should a subscriber desire to discontinue his subscription a notice to that effect should be sent in before its expiration. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

Checks, drafts and orders should be made payable to Cornell Alumni News.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

The first of the series of articles, "Cornell To-day and Tomorrow," appearing in The Cornellian Council Quarterly, is on its way to all Cornellians.

The author of the first article, being president of the Council, has modestly and, we assume, wisely refused to permit the Quarterly to include a sketch of his life in a publication for which he is responsible, even though each of the succeeding articles will be thus enriched with a biography of the author.

Mr. White has no connection with THE ALUMNI NEWS that would make it immodest for us to appreciate his work publicly. We take pleasure in presenting, therefore, the sketch that the Quarterly is forced to omit.

But he is more than a lawyer; he is a public-spirited citizen with wide interests. For twenty years he was secretary of both the New York and New Jersey Palisades Interstate Park Commissions and on the death of George W. Perkins two years ago, Mr. White became president of the New York Commission.

Ten years ago Governor Hughes appointed Mr. White to the Board of Trustees and since that time he has devoted himself unceasingly to promote the welfare of the University. Cornell has become Mr. White's hobby. Scarcely a week passes when he does not take a sleeper to Ithaca to spend a day or two on the Campus to help solve some of Cornell's problems.

Three years ago he was appointed chairman of the Semi-Centennial Endowment Committees. He moved to Ithaca, bag and baggage, in the fall of 1919 to work on this campaign. He was an inspiring leader and his own personal efforts instilled energy and enthusiasm in the alumni who were working in the campaign and his own contribution set a pace for those who contributed to the fund. The result of this effort under Mr. White's leadership is well known.

After a year's trip around the world, Mr. White arrived in Ithaca last July more full of enthusiasm for Cornell than ever, to find that he had been elected chairman of the important Committee on Buildings and Grounds of the Board of Trustees and president of the Cornellian Council. These are now his principal jobs for Cornell. Mr. White has never refused an opportunity to serve his Alma Mater, and no alumnus has ever served her better.

No Cornellian who reads what Mr. White has written, and who has contributed to the support of Cornell through the Semi-Centennial Endowment or the Cornellian Council, can escape the surge of pride in what has been accomplished and satisfaction in his or her part in these efforts. Nor can the Cornellian who has been unable to render financial assistance to Cornell for the past few years escape a feeling of sincere regret that he is not numbered in the growing list of those who are endeavoring to repay their debt to Alma Mater.

FACULTY NOTES

DR. LIVINGSTON FARRAND represented Cornell at the inauguration, on October 27, of Dr. Samuel P. Capen as chancellor of the University of Buffalo.

PROFESSOR BRISTOW ADAMS is conducting an evening class in advertising in the Ithaca Y. M. C. A.

PRESIDENT FARRAND, in the discussion on medical education at the recent convocation of the University of the State of New York, affirmed it to be his opinion that a medical college was an expensive part of a university, and advised those who have an interest in any university not to encourage its trustees to start a medical school.

PROFESSOR MARTHA VAN RENNSELAER addressed the women of Corning, N. Y., on October 17, under the joint auspices of the New York State Home Bureau and the home economics division of the Corning Women's Club.

LITERARY REVIEW

An Interpretation of Italy

Italy Old and New. By Elizabeth H. Haight, Ph.D. '09, Professor of Latin in Vassar College. New York. E. P. Dutton and Company. 1922. 21.6 cm., pp. xii, 230. Price, $2.50.

This is one of the most interesting records of travel that it has been our good fortune to come across. It is a sentimental journey from start to finish, but with the word sentimental used in its best sense, and never descending to sentimentalism. Miss Haight knows her Baedeker, her Italian history, her classics; but she knows also how to travel—with sensibility, openness of mind, receptivity. By training and taste a classicist, she does not scorn medieval and modern Italy. The Italy of to-day is as interesting, if not so great, as the Italia of Vergil; and D'Annunzio claims attention as well as Catullus, if one is to understand the Italian temperament.

The author has traveled far and wide throughout the peninsula. She takes us not only to Rome and Pompeii but also to Sicily, and Sirmione, and to the haunts of Ovid at Sulmone, and to Mantua. Everywhere she has a keen eye for color and landscape and scenic beauty. But every foot of the country is also a reminder of some great event, or character, or historic idea. Of Sicily, for example, she says: "What an historical pageant the procession of occupants would make! Legendary Cyclopes and Laestrigonians first, then those mysterious early peoples, the Sicanians, the Elymi, and the Sicelians, bearing the long bronze lances now exhibited in the Syracuse Museum, magnificent Greek tyrants, crowned with the laurels of victories in the great athletic contests of Greece, swarthy Phoenician traders, Roman empire-builders, hordes of barbarian Goths, then Byzantine captains, Christian missionaries, Saracen conquerors, Norman Kings and Germans, rulers from Provence and from Aragon, English generals and last Garibaldi and the Thousand, marching by in their red shirts. No wonder that after such a history, Sicily is bewildering in the multitudinous and overwhelming impressions she makes."

The great poets, whom the author loves with a love which is not a pose—Catullus, Horace, Ovid, Vergil,—are well represented in the volume, and even the reader who knows no Latin will catch something of their spell, the quotations being translated. "One day and another as out on the point of Sirmio I lifted my eyes from Catullus' poetry to the mountains and the lake, I thought of the great Italians who had been here: Vergil, listening to Benacus rising with the surf and the roar of the sea, and naming her in the most magnificent praise of his native land that ever poet wrote. Dante on the Gothic tower, seeing his vision of Italy's future, Garibaldi, halted at Salo's curving bay across the lake and allowed no share in the battle of Solferino but biding his time of service for his country, Carducci meditating here on Catullus and Vergil and Dante and so carrying on the great literary tradition of his race, then D'Annunzio over at Gardone recuperating from the passion for the great War with which he had fired Italy and written his finest poems. Sirmio took me near the heart of her greatest sons."

For the traveler of to-day as for Dante, Vergil is still the best guide to the spirit of Italy, ancient and modern. The bees, the small animals, the changes of summer and winter, the pageant of war, the splendor of Italian tradition and history, all these are reflected in the pages of the Mantuan, and these help us to understand the phenomena of the modern world. "For Italy to-day Vergil is deeply true in his songs of an after-war time when the people must go back to the land and make it yield its fruits for the nation, the race must increase, Italian unity must be attained by conscious effort, and peace, hardly won, must be preserved."

Books and Magazine Articles

In The Nature-Study Review for October Robert W. Shufeldt '74 writes on "Conservation and Nature-Studies in the Public Schools of Washington, D. C." Clara I. Thomas '21 describes "The Yellow Lady's Slipper." Henry N. Klein writes on "The Pine." Professor W. P. Alexander, of the Buffalo Museum of Natural History, formerly an assistant in nature-study at Cornell, publishes a poem on "The Honey Bee."

"The Elements of Radio-Telephony" by Professor William C. Ballard, Jr., is announced by the McGraw-Hill Book Company. It is a book for the average college course in the subject. It contains 132 pages and sells for $1.50.

Under the title "Vicisti Loyola!" Professor Preserved Smith, in The Nation for July 5, reviews Thomas J. Campbell's "The Jesuits, 1534-1921." In the issue for July 12 he reviews Archibald T. Strong's "Three Studies in Shelley and an Essay on Nature in Wordsworth."

Dr. Samuel B. Harding, '90-1 Grad., is the managing editor of the new "Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia," which after three years of labor is now issued by F. E. Compton and Company of the Garland Building, Chicago; and Mrs. Anna B. Comstock '85 is one of the editors.

"Studies in Pollen, with Special Reference to Longevity," by Harry E. Knowlton, Ph.D. '20, has been reprinted as a thesis from the Cornell Agricultural Station Memoirs for January.

The following theses have lately appeared in print: "The Biology of Ephydra Subopaea Loew," by Chih Ping '13, Ph.D. '18, reprinted from the Agricultural Experiment Memoirs for November; "The Effect of Transpiration on the Absorption of Salts by Plants," by Walter Conrad Müncher, Ph.D. '22, reprinted from The American Journal of Botany for January.

"The Little Corner Never Conquered: the Story of the American Red Cross Work for Belgium," by Lieutenant Colonel John Van Schaick, Jr., formerly Red Cross Commissioner in Belgium, is a succinct, interesting, and valuable account of the varied activities of the Red Cross in Belgium for the period between June 12, 1917, and June 30, 1919. Of Homer Folks and Dr. Farrand the author says: "For organizing ability and all that makes great executives in the field of relief, Folks and Farrand made records unsurpassed."

John Ihlder '00 writes in The Survey for July 15 on "The Government and Housing." Bruno Lasker reviews Kenneth L. Roberts's "Why Europe Leaves Home."

A report on the fish-producing waters of Tompkins County by Professor George C. Embody, of the College of Agriculture, has just been published by the State Conservation Commission. More than fifty streams are covered, of which about thirty-five are inhabited by some species of trout. A specially prepared map locates each stream, indicates the preferred fish for stocking and places where fish may be easily planted.

In School and Society for August 5 Professor William C. Bagley, Ph.D. '00, of Columbia, publishes "Educational Determinism Again: a Rejoinder to Professor Whipple's Reply."

John Wendell Bailey '16, alumni secretary of the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College, where he also graduated in 1915, has compiled a complete "List of Publications of the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College" to December 31, and it appears in The Mississippi A. and M. Alumnus for June.

Herrick '21 writes on "Cornell's Little Theatre Plays." "Soccer Side-lines" are written up by Chilson H. Leonard '23. A brilliant anonymous historian contributes "A Short Course in Ithaca History." "The ride by ox team from Owego to Ithaca," says this learned person, "was seventeen days, but the inhabitants learned to enjoy this leisurely travel. In truth, a remnant of the old custom still survives in the trolley cars of to-day." Mayer Portner, Sp., reviews Eugene O'Neill's "Hairy Ape."

Joyce Kilmer's "The Peacemaker" has been set to music by Professor Burt G. Wilder. Copies may be obtained free from the Oliver Ditson Company, Boston, or from Dr. Wilder, Chestnut Hill, Mass., in return for ten cents in postage.

Myron W. Van Auken '73 is the author of a "Ready Digest of Accident and Health Insurance Law." The book contains digests of all Federal and Appellate decisions defining the words "accident" and "accidental means." There are two indices, one an alphabetical list of the cases referred to and the other a full topical index. The book is published by Matthew Bender & Company and is sold at $6.50. It may be obtained of The Spectator Company, New York. Van Auken has been for thirty-five years counsel of the Commercial Travelers' Mutual Accident Association of America, and is dean of all general counsels of accident and health insurance companies in the United States. The book is favorably reviewed in The Spectator (New York) for September 14.

In The Mount Holyoke Alumnae Quarterly for October Professor Ann Haven Morgan '08, of Mt. Holyoke, describes "The New Laboratory," which will house the five departments of botany, geology, hygiene, physiology, and zoology, and which it is expected will be ready for use next year. Professor Mignon Talbot, '01 Grad., writes on "The Department of Geology."

In Studies in Philology for October Dr. Murray W. Bundy '12, of the department of English in the University of Illinois, writes on "Plato's View of the Imagination."

In The Garden Magazine for October Professor Edward A. White discusses the problem of "Decorating Artistically with Flowers." Dr. Robert T. Morris '80 writes on "Trees That We Plant."

Kenneth L. Roberts '08 writes in The Saturday Evening Post for September 16 on "The Tribulations of the Senate."

Professor Oliver F. Emerson, Ph.D. '01, of Western Reserve, contributes to The Romanic Review for April-June, lately issued, an article on "Chaucer and Medieval Hunting."

In Science for October 13 is summarized the paper on "Adsorption of Salts by Cellulose" recently read by Professor Wilder D. Bancroft before the American Chemical Society.

In The University of California Chronicle for October Professor Emeritus Isaac Flagg, of the University of California, formerly of Cornell, under the head of "Phrontistery," writes an Utopian educational romance. He also contributes a translation of a Minstrel's Song in "Persephone." "The Legacy of Greece," a volume of essays one of which is by Professor Zimmern, is reviewed by "Calhoun," who also reviews the late Dr. Botsford's "Hellenic History." David Wight Prall, '11-12 Grad., reviews Richard Gummere's "Seneca the Philosopher and His Modern Message." William H. Blymer and Dr. David Starr Jordan '72 engage in friendly debate over "The Isolation Plan."

The Cornell Era for October 20 reproduces Professor Olaf M. Brauner's recent portrait of Irene Castle. It is soon to be reproduced in colors on the cover of Town and Country. There is an anonymous analysis of "Dobie's Tactics." Mayer Portner, Sp., contributes a one-act play called "The Raid."

ALUMNI NOTES

'87 PhB—At the invitation of the Westinghouse Electric Company, Francis Leon Chrisman, of Verona, N. J., gave his lecture on "A Night in the House of Commons" at WJZ (Newark, N. J.) on Sunday evening, October 1. Mr. Chrisman was fortunate in having been present in the Imperial Parliament when Gladstone was making his great orations for the independence of Ireland. The lecture was broadcasted to a radio audience estimated at over two hundred thousand, for the WJZ apparatus is said to be so good that its broadcasting is heard as far south as the Panama Canal Zone, as far west as California, as far north as the Arctic Circle, and two or three thousand miles east on the Atlantic Ocean. Mr. Chrisman gave the same lecture in Ithaca a number of years ago for the benefit of the Cornell University Athletic Association.

Seeing vs. Understanding

Can you see everything that goes on in a football game?

No—but you can understand everything by reading Percy Haughton's new book, addressed to the 5,000,000 people in the stands.

The strategy which makes modern football a contest of brains and speed is intelligible if you know the principles of the game.

Haughton's book contains 30 full pages of sharp, clear pictures of plays in actual games, snapped at the exact moment designated by the author.

A full page description faces each picture, and all important plays are analyzed.

Your full enjoyment of football depends upon your knowledge of the game. Here is a book written specifically for you, for the girl who accompanies you, and for the school boy in whom you are interested.
