VOL. XXVII, No. 5 ITHACA, N. Y., OCTOBER 23, 1924 PRICE 12 CENTS

STRANGE as it may seem, the Campus is not blasted and devastated as a result of the football defeats nor are the professors and students going around in sackcloth and ashes. They know that the team this year is light and inexperienced and they realized that the twenty-six consecutive victories—a record for other teams to shoot at for some time to come—were bound to be interrupted. On the whole, since somebody had to break it, everybody is of the opinion that Williams was about the one.

BEEKEEPERS and others at Ithaca were interested in a visit of P. J. Baldensperger, who spoke in the Baker Laboratory on "Palestine, the Land and its People," and who also spoke before a research group at the College of Agriculture. Dr. Baldensperger has lived in Asia Minor, in Northern Africa, and on several islands of the Mediterranean, where he was interested in discovering and breeding various species of honey bees. One of the problems on which he has been working has been the development of a strain of bees which will have some of the gentleness of the Italian variety and the industry of the Cyprian and other bees from farther east.

TRACK AFFAIRS are off to a good start this year. An unusual rally under the auspices of the Track Club packed the Dutch Kitchen. John S. Hoffmire '15, former track captain and intercollegiate record holder in the two-mile run, made a notably sincere and inspiring speech.

THREE SOCCER FIELDS have been laid out on Upper Alumni Field and the schedule of intercollege matches calls for the first game October 9 and the last on November 3. An interfraternity league is also being formed.

MORITZ J. BONN spoke Tuesday night in the lecture room of Baker Laboratory on present day progress in Germany. The last time he was in Ithaca was immediately preceding the diplomatic break with Germany which led to the entrance of the United States into the European war. On the preceding occasion he predicted that Germany would win the war largely because of the stupidity of the English. One of the examples of that stupidity, he said, was the fact that his, Bonn's brother-in-law was high in the counsels of the British military intelligence department.

THE SAGE CHAPEL Preacher for October 26, will be the Rev. Dr. Andrew Mutch, minister of the Presbyterian Church of Bryn Mawr, Pa.

PROFESSOR Charles de la Vallée-Poussin, of the University of Louvain, president of the International Mathematical Union, under the auspices of the Belgian Relief Educational Foundation delivered on October 23 and 24, two lectures on "Les Fonctions Quasi-Analytiques."

THIS YEAR'S MASQUE, it is announced, will be coached by George Fraser, M. Arch. '21, who is a member of the Faculty of Architecture. Tryouts have started.

A NEW CUPOLA, given to the University by the Whiting Foundry Equipment Company, is being installed in the foundry of the Engineering College. The old one, which has melted pig iron for thirty years, is being scrapped.

A VOLUNTARY class in swimming has been organized by Walter C. O'Connell '11, wrestling coach, who will instruct beginners in the Old Armory tank three mornings a week.

THE CHESS CLUB opened its season with a meeting in Barnes Hall on October 10 at which a tournament was held.

A HORSE SHOW of the Field Artillery Unit of the R. O. T. C. is announced for Upper Alumni Field on October 25.

CORNELL STUDENTS were among those of the Presbyterian faith from many colleges and universities who reported poor preaching, misstated creed, and over-conservatism the first three things wrong with the Church from their point of view. A national association of Presbyterian students is being formed to meet annually.

THE FIRST ALL-CORNELL dance of the year took place in the Old Armory on October 18. The number of stags was limited to one hundred and single stag tickets were more expensive than couple tickets.

SENIOR SOCIETIES have had their annual fall pledging. Hebs-sa and Helios, of the College of Agriculture, led off with their initiation banquets last Monday. On the following night Sphinx Head and Quill and Dagger met on the Hill—one of them using the Johnny Parson Club,—in contradistinction to the former meetings down town.

BOXING is being fostered by the Boxing Club, which resumes activities this year after a two years' lapse.

ARMISTICE DAY, November 11, will see the dedication of the Ithaca war memorial designed by Professor LeRoy P. Burnham of the College of Architecture. President Farrand will make the dedicatory address.

WISCONSIN is sending one of its graduates to Cornell in the course of a three weeks' inspection tour of leading Canadian and Eastern universities to study their methods of dealing with social problems, expecially in connection with dormitories and university unions. Besides Cornell, John Dollard, Wisconsin '22, will visit Northwestern, Chicago, Michigan, Toronto, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Yale, and Dartmouth.

THE PIPES of the heating plant still make the Cornell campus a wide-open place. A huge trench extends from the Old Armory to the new Union. Charles E. Curtis '85, superintendent of buildings and grounds, has sent a letter to the various departments of the University requesting that no one shall operate steam heating control valves in any of the buildings.

THE LYCEUM THEATER, closed because of difficulties with the musicians' and stage hands' unions, announces that it will start showing motion pictures.

POLITICS occupies considerable attention in Ithaca these days, with Governor Smith, candidate for reelection on the Democratic ticket, speaking in the Lyceum on October 17, and Theodore Roosevelt speaking at the same place on October 20. At a non-partisan meeting held in the High School auditorium on October 15, interest centered in an impromptu skirmish between Professor Charles L. Durham '99 and Congressman Gale H. Stalker, opponents for the office of Congressman.

MEMBERS of the Red Key were interrupted at their annual initiation banquet in the Dutch Kitchen on October 17 by Governor Alfred E. Smith who mistook them for his own dinner party, and was somewhat disconcerted at the formal dress, which, he explained, "would be entirely out of place at my political supper."

THE CAMBRIDGE DEBATERS who appeared at Cornell week before last met Yale last week on the subject, "Resolved: That We Pity Our Grandchildren." This question was suggested by the Yale men in response to a request from their opponents for something with life in it. Marshall was the only member of the British team on the negative side, for the reason, as he explained, that he does not pity his grandchildren.

THE ANNUALS announce the election of George E. Bliss '25 of Binghamton as managing editor of the 1925 Cornellian.

DR. F. FIDDES, pro-vice chancellor of the University of Manchester, England, spent a few days at Cornell last week in the course of a visit to America to study university methods.

FRESHMEN in the College of Architecture were addressed by President Farrand and Dean Bosworth when they gathered for a social meeting in White Hall October 13.

Honor Societies Elect

Sphinx Head and Quill and Dagger Choose Seventeen Seniors in Fall Campaigns

The annual fall initiations and banquets of Quill and Dagger and Sphinx Head were held on October 14. Seven seniors were elected to Sphinx Head, and ten seniors were taken into Quill and Dagger. Each of the organizations was addressed by several speakers prominent in University affairs. Quill and Dagger held its initiation at 626 Thurston Avenue and its banquet at the Johnny Parson Club. Sphinx Head held its initiation at the society rooms, and its banquet at 2 Ridgewood Road.

SPORT STUFF

For nearly four years Cornell football has been living up on the Boulevard along with the rich folks. This moving back across the tracks to the gas house section isn't pleasant, no matter how good it may be for the soul and the development of the more robust virtues.

But the odd part of it is that those two successive smacks by Williams and Rutgers seem to have stimulated rather than abated the desire to see the games. Almost everyone seems to be coming back for the Homecoming Game with Columbia on November 1. That thing seems to be taking on all the ear marks of a June reunion held in the fall. The University is throwing a luncheon in the Drill Hall from twelve to one-thirty (the game starts at two) and everyone will be there. The Drill Hall will be the place to foregather with your gang. R. B.

Alumni Directors Named

The Districts of Corporation Nominate Candidates for Elections at New York Convention

Some indication of the personnel of the next board of directors of the Cornell Alumni Corporation is given in the announcement of the alumni who have been placed in nomination from the twelve districts. The elections will be made by the delegates and individuals who attend the Fifth Annual Convention, at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City, on November 14 and 15.

Although nominations had not definitely closed when the ALUMNI NEWS went to press—nominations are valid if the postmark bears a date not later than October 15—the list is substantially complete:

District No. 1—Central New York: Dr. Frank M. Dyer '02, of Binghamton; District No. 2—Metropolitan New York: Miss Margaret L. Stecker '06 and Neal D. Becker '05; District No. 3—Eastern New York: Dr. Walter H. McNeill, Jr. '10 of Mount Vernon; District No. 4—Western New York: Dr. Floyd S. Winslow '06, of Rochester.

District No. 5—New England: Archie C. Burnett '90, of Boston; District No. 6—Middle Atlantic: Ralph F. Proctor '01, of Baltimore, and Andrew J. Whinery '10, of Newark; District No. 7—Keystone: Joseph N. Pew, Jr. '08, of Philadelphia, and Karl W. Gass '12, of Pittsburgh; District No. 8—Southern: Dr. Frederick V. Coville '87, of Washington.

District No. 9—Great Lakes: Harold D. North '07, of Cleveland; District No. 10—Central: William H. Powell '90, of Milwaukee; District No. 11—Western: Perry Post Taylor '89, of St. Louis; District No. 12—Pacific: Wilson D. Clark '08, of San Francisco.

George A. Blauvelt '90 Dies

Prominent Alumnus and University Trustee Succumbs to Pneumonia on October 16

George Alanson Blauvelt, a Trustee, died at his home in Monsey, N. Y., on October 16 of pneumonia. When word of his death was received, flags on the Campus were put at half-mast and kept there until after his funeral.

He was born at Monsey on November 11, 1866, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Blauvelt, and after getting his early education there and at Mt. Chappaqua Institute, came to Cornell in 1886 as a student in the letters course. He graduated in 1890 with the degree of B.L. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta.

After leaving Cornell, he took up law and attended the Columbia Law School from which he graduated in 1892 with the degree of LL.B. Later he became interested in politics and was elected to the Assembly in 1911. In 1912 he ran on the Democratic ticket for State senator in the Twenty-third District of New York and was elected. He held this office for two years, then formed a partnership with the former Attorney General of the State and his assistant for the practice of law in New York.

In 1915 he was appointed a member of the New York State Constitutional Convention which revised the State Constitution. When war was declared, he enlisted and went to an officer's training camp. In 1919, he was appointed a Trustee of Cornell by Governor Smith and this year was re-appointed by him. In 1920, he was appointed a member of the Board of Commissioners of the Enfield State Reservation, given to New York State several years ago by Robert H. Treman '78 and his wife.

Throughout the State he enjoyed the reputation of being the principal backer of a law which established the State university cash scholarships, frequently known as the Blauvelt Scholarships. This law provides for seven hundred fifty cash scholarships of one hundred dollars each to be awarded annually to high school students having the highest standings in the various districts of the State.

While serving on the Board of Trustees, he was at various times a member of the Agricultural and Veterinary College Councils. He is survived by his wife and three children.

COME BACK NEXT WEEK!

Although home-coming day on Saturday, November 1, when alumni are expected to invade Ithaca in such numbers as to challenge the attendance figures of the June reunions, will be essentially informal, the program announces several meetings of interest to different groups.

The Cornellian Council will hold its semi-annual meeting, in Morrill Hall 32 at ten o'clock. Under the auspices of the Association of Class Secretaries, representatives of the classes scheduled for reunions next June will meet in Morrill Hall 31 at half past nine. The Cornell Law Association will follow its custom of a general meeting on home-coming day. Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, former president of the Illinois State Bar Association and of the Chicago Bar Association, will speak at eleven o'clock, in Boardman Hall. That night the lawyers will celebrate with an informal smoker.

Luncheon at seventy-five cents will be served in the Drill Hall, from twelve o'clock to one-thirty. All friends of the University are welcome. The Columbia game is scheduled for two o'clock.

OFFER BELGIAN FELLOWSHIPS

The Commission for Relief in Belgium Educational Foundation announces that not more than six fellowships for study in Belgium during 1925-6 will be awarded by April 1, 1925. These are open to American citizens who have reading and speaking knowledge of French, are graduates of recognized American colleges or professional schools, and who have a definite plan for proposed work in Belgium.

Each fellowship carries a stipend of fifteen thousand francs, plus tuition fees, payable in Belgium, and first class traveling expenses going and returning. A choice of twenty subjects is given. Applications are due by February 15, 1925, and blanks and further information may be had from the Fellowship Committee, C.R.B. Educational Foundation, Inc., 42 Broadway, New York.

COUNCIL WANTS FIELD MEN

In connection with the work of the Cornellian Council during the current fiscal year, the services of a few additional field representatives will be needed, to work with local committees and with local Cornell clubs, in their efforts to acquire new subscriptions to the Alumni Fund. The Council needs some recent graduates, who have been out of college at least a year or two, and who have had some business experience in promotion work, preferably in selling.

From the point of view of experience and the opportunity to meet Cornell men of prominence and influence, this work should be attractive to young Cornellians who may not be permanently located in just the kind of positions they eventually aim to occupy.

The Cornellian Council is determined to increase the Alumni Fund to $250,000 annually this year, and the members of the Executive Committee feel that this can be done with greatest speed through the assistance of additional field representatives in order that the whole country may be canvassed.

ATHLETICS

The Football Schedule

Cornell 56, St. Bonaventure 0.
Cornell 27, Niagara 0.
Cornell 7, Williams 14.
Cornell 0, Rutgers 10.
November 1—Columbia at Ithaca.
November 8—Susquehanna at Ithaca.
November 15—Dartmouth at New York.
November 27—Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Kicked to Second Defeat

Kicking, ranking with the finest seen on Schoellkopf Field, beat Cornell Saturday. True, most of the ten points made by Rutgers while holding Cornell scoreless were acquired by a touchdown in the second period, followed by a point made by placement goal. True also that both the touchdown and a placement goal in the first period, which accounted for the first three points obtained by the New Brunswick eleven, were made possible by two timely and neatly executed passes.

But Homer Hazel, the Rutgers fullback, punted as few backs have ever punted here before, and so consistently did he gain in the kicking duel with Whetstone that Cornell was confined to her own territory much of the time and, unable to launch a sustained rushing attack, managed only in one period to get within striking distance of her opponents' goal. And then when Cornell did force the fighting into Rutgers territory, at the critical moment the attack failed; once on the two-yard line, with but a yard to go for first down, and again on the Rutgers fifteen-yard line when a pass that looked good was muffed and Rutgers recovered the ball.

So the team continued to travel the road of defeat. Twice in eight days have Cornell's colors been lowered, but there is no call to hang out crepe yet awhile. As a matter of fact the eleven showed distinct improvement, compared with its play in the Williams game. For one thing there was no fumbling of passes from center or juggling of punts. Several pretty forward passes were muffed, and once or twice punts were misjudged. But the team held on to the ball. Then, too, there were occasional flashes of effective interference, not enough to accomplish much against Rutgers, but enough to give ground for hope that in the next fortnight an effective rushing attack may be developed. Patterson, who replaced Hoekelman in the line-up and proved a distinct asset in the backfield, once or twice got away for a fifteen-yard gain because he had the proper protection, a five-man interference which managed to clear out some of the opponents.

Generally speaking, however, the backfield play is still well below par. The backs have not yet acquired the knack of putting their men out of play; they are not hitting hard enough, and true enough. As a general thing the ball carrier is not carried through the first line of defense and given a chance to cut loose. The Cornell offense has trouble getting beyond the scrimmage line.

Hazel's punts ranged from forty-five to sixty-five and seventy yards and they were thoroughly covered. Patterson, playing back, had mighty little chance to get started after he caught the punts. Three or four Rutgers men were usually on him. Apparently Cornell was unable to check the scarlet-jerseyed giants as they tore down the field. Whereas on Whetstones' kicks, the Cornell ends frequently missed their man. They were often blocked. Cornell's end play, as a matter of fact, was mediocre, whereas the line as a general thing did a good job, notably Kearney, Affeld, Morris, and to some extent Munns, who started at right guard instead of Trousdell. Hill, at right tackle, gained no laurels this day. Nor was the generalship beyond question.

Rutgers was no mean opponent; their team bore no resemblance to a "small college" eleven. They outweighed Cornell at least ten pounds to the man; their backs were husky, rangy, strong, and experienced. Their ends and tackles, indeed all of them, were big-boned, muscular and strong. The big backs were quick to start and surprisingly agile. Rutgers was more rugged than Williams and had better punting and though some of their passes fizzled, they made them good often enough to prove very dangerous. Here was a team with quite a few individual players superior to those on the Cornell team, with more experience and poise.

The damage was all done in the first twenty minutes of play. After the first period had gone ten minutes and neither team had seriously threatened to score, a forward pass, Anderson to Benkert, made twenty yards from midfield and put the ball on Cornell's thirty-yard line. Rushing failing, Hazel dropped back and kicked a fine placement goal from Cornell's thirty-seven-yard line. He had previously failed in an attempt from the forty-five.

This score was not unexpected; every one knew that Hazel was one of the outstanding kickers of the East. But the developments in the early part of the second period were somewhat staggering.

Again the pass prepared the way. This time Anderson, from about midfield, threw to Bliss, on Cornell's thirty, and he reached the fifteen-yard line before Wade downed him. Anderson went round right end for seven yards, Benkert and Hazel cut through for two short gains, and then Benkert, starting out past right tackle, cut in and ran two yards for a touchdown. Hazel kicked goal. There was no more scoring.

Cornell lost a splendid opportunity in the third period, when tactics were changed and the team resorted to passing.

A penalty gave Cornell the ball at midfield, and three passes, Patterson to Islay, and Islay to Whetstone twice, with a couple of rushes, placed the ball on Rutgers' two-yard line. It was fourth down, one yard to go. Whetstone tried a short buck into the line, but Rutgers held and recovered the ball. The situation was almost identical with that in the Williams game last week. The old punch was not there. Hazel kicked out and from midfield Cornell again tried an aerial attack, but it failed when Henderson on the Rutgers fifteen-yard line dropped a pretty toss which he had in his hands. Cornell had no chances after that, Hazel's superior punting keeping the play well in her territory. In the closing minutes Hazel tried a placement goal from Cornell's thirty-five-yard line, but Kearney blocked it.

The Lineup and summary:

Rutgers (10)		Cornell (0)
Hanf	L.E.	Henderson
Zingg	L.T.	Kearney
Bender	L.G.	Morris
Brennan	C.	Affeld
Fuchs	R.G.	Munns
Gibson	R.T.	Hill
Bliss	R.E.	Kneen
Anderson	Q.B.	Islay
Benkert	L.HB	Patterson
Singer	R.HB	Wade
Hazel	F.B.	Whetstone

New Coaches

Paul W. Eckley '17 has been appointed baseball coach, the Athletic Association announces. Eckley played varsity football and baseball while an undergraduate, winning his varsity letter in both sports and he also was a member of the basketball squad. He was right end on the championship football team in 1915. Since graduation he has coached freshman football, baseball, and basketball successfully. He is also an assistant in hygiene.

Eckley, who is now coaching freshman football, will continue on that job until the season is completed, taking up his work as baseball coach after the holidays. It is understood that members of the varsity team, who played under Eckley as freshmen, strongly favored his selection.

Guy E. Long '02, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is helping Pop Lueder in coaching the crew candidates and will remain here throughout the year as assistant coach. Long was coxswain of his freshman crew in 1899, and of the varsity eight in 1900. He has kept in close touch with Cornell rowing since he graduated, seldom missing a boat race in which Cornell was entered. He also kept up his contact with Charles E. Courtney up to the time of the latter's death and is said to have a thorough knowledge of the Courtney stroke and system.

Soccer Team Loses

The soccer team was defeated by Syracuse, 1 to 0, at Syracuse, Saturday. The teams fought for more than an hour and a half without scoring. In the second of two extra five minute periods, a penalty against Cornell allowed a free kick and Captain Horley of Syracuse booted a goal.

Freshmen Lose

Dickenson Seminary of Williamsport, Pa., defeated the freshman football team by a score of 14 to 0 Saturday. It was the first game for the yearlings.

LITERARY REVIEW

A Presidential Portrait

Concentrated New England: a Sketch of Calvin Coolidge. By Kenneth L. Roberts '08. Indianapolis. The Bobbs-Merrill Company. 1924. 20.3 cm., pp. 58. Price, $1.25.

This is a brief but adequate and illuminating study of the present occupant of the White House. Roberts has had many opportunities to observe the President at close range, and speaks from abundant personal knowledge. He is an ardent admirer of Mr. Coolidge.

The President has in him the blood not only of the New England whites but also of the American Indian—a heredity to be proud of. Perhaps he inherits from this source the ability to keep his tongue when he chooses. He is not the invariably silent man that legend represents him to be, but can get through an evening on a small allowance of words if necessary. Illustrative of this economy is the story of the young lady who started in at dinner thus, "Oh, Mr. Vice-President, I've just bet Mrs. Blimp that you will say more than ten words to me this evening." Mr. Coolidge looked at her quietly and said, "You lose."

In the entertaining description of Mr. Coolidge's personal habits emphasis is laid on his great capacity for hard work and his championship of high ideals. One gets the impression that he is a real man. A good book.

An Icelandic Magician

Jon Guthmundsson and His Natural History of Iceland. Edited by Halldor Hermannsson. Ithaca. Cornell University Library. 1924. 24.5 cm., pp. xxviii, 40. 9 plates. Price, $1. Islandica xv.

The general reader who does not read Icelandic will regret that Mr. Hermannsson has not provided a translation of this entertaining work; we hope he will do so later. For what he has given us we are grateful—a well edited text, useful and judicious notes, and a well written introduction dealing with the state of knowledge when this book was written and the life and times of the eccentric author.

Born in 1574 in the northwest of Iceland, Guthmundsson lived to the ripe age of eighty-four, and saw much sorrow. He was a worker in magic, and this brought him no end of trouble. The ghost of a minister's son troubled the neighborhood, even throwing stones at people: a rather mean sort of ghost. When appealed to Jon brought his most powerful magical songs to bear on the ghost and obliged it to desist. Thus he became a marked man, who might at any time use his knowledge to the injury as well as to the benefit of his fellows. In 1613 some Basque whalers came along the coast and having robbed some of the people were attacked by the natives and killed. Jon had been rather too intimate with the whalers and censured his neighbors for their harsh treatment of the whalers. So for several reasons he became unpopular and presently left home and began a wandering life. Without schooling, he picked up some education and became a poet and man of letters. In a credulous age he was not far in advance of it. He believed in the elves, in witchcraft, in magical cures. He was no doubt persecuted, and imagined himself to be a victim of much greater persecution than was actually the case. As a human document, and as a landmark in the history of science in northern lands, this little book is of great value.

Books and Magazine Articles

Vernon L. Kellogg, '91-2 Grad., is the author of a work on "Evolution" published by D. Appleton & Co. It is reviewed in The English Journal for September.

In the August number of the Journal of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, Professor Cyrus R. Crosby '05 and Sherman C. Bishop '13, of the State Museum at Albany, collaborate on an article entitled "Notes on the Opiliones of the Southeastern United States, with Description of New Species," illustrated with three plates.

In The American Journal of Botany for July Milislav Demerec, Grad., describes "A Case of Pollen Dimorphism in Maize."

In Torreya for July-August George T. Hastings '98, the editor, reviews R. S. Kellogg's "Lumber and Its Uses."

In Industrial Management for September John H. VanDeventer '93, under the title "The Work of an Engineer in the Cabinet," describes the varied activities of Herbert Hoover.

Edgar Williams '14 contributes an article on foreign trade from the Chilean point of view to a special foreign trade number of the Boston Transcript, issued September 29. During the past month he has also published notes on British investments in Peru, in the Trade & Engineering Supplement of the London Times; a letter answering charges against "What Price Glory," in the New York World; and a letter in the October Scribner's which recounts an incident that occurred on the Country Club branch of the Ithaca street railway,—offered in refutation of William Lyon Phelps concerning the "impersonality of conductors." The Department of Commerce is about to publish a booklet on Chile south of Valparaiso, written by Williams.

The Nebraska Alumnus for September has a sketch of the life of Professor Rollin A. Emerson, Sp. '99, of the Department of Plant Breeding, who graduated from Nebraska in 1897 with the degree of B. Sc.

To The Red Book for August Charles H. Divine '11 contributes "Post Mortems."

In The American Journal of Philology for July-September Professor Lane Cooper's "Aristotelian Theory of Comedy" is favorably reviewed by Charles W. Peppler.

In The Classical Journal for October "Greek Religion and Its Survivals" by Professor Walter W. Hyde '93, of the University of Pennsylvania, is reviewed by Wallace N. Stearns.

In The American Historical Review for October Mrs. Helen T. Catterall, widow of the late Professor Ralph C. Catterall, writes on "Some Antecedents of the Dred Scott Case." Pittman B. Potter's "The Freedom of the Seas in History, Law, and Politics" is reviewed by Professor Louise F. Brown '03, of Vassar. "Anatolian Studies Presented to Sir William Mitchell Ramsay" is reviewed by Professor Walter W. Hyde '93, who also presents a critique of "L'Art en Grèce" by A. de Ridder and W. Deonna. "The Hellenistic Age: Aspects of Hellenic Civilization" by J. B. Bury, E. A. Barber, Edwyn Bevan, and W. W. Tarn, is reviewed by Professor William S. Ferguson, A. M. '97, Ph. D. '99, of Harvard. Professor William E. Lunt, formerly of Cornell and a member of the last Summer School Faculty, now of Haverford, reviews Lawrence M. Larson's "History of England and the British Commonwealth." Gabriel Hannotaux's "Histoire de la Nation Francaise" iv. Histoire Politique ii., 1515-1804, the author of this volume being Louis Madelin, is reviewed by Professor Theodore F. Collier, Ph. D. '06, of Brown. Ludwig, Freiherr von Pastor's "Geschichte der Päpste seit dem Ausgang des Mittelalters" ix., Gregor XIII, 1572-1585, is reviewed by Professor Emeritus George L. Burr '81. Professor Lunt also notices "Surrey Taxation Returns, Fifteenths and Tenths, Part A, The 1332 Assessment," Surrey Record Society xviii. Professor George M. Dutcher '97, of Wesleyan, reviews Albert Leon Guérard's "Reflections on the Napoleon Legend."

In Classical Philology for July Professor Clark S. Northup '93 has a note on "The River Belion." Professor William L. Westermann, of Columbia, formerly of Cornell, presents an "Account of Lamp Oil from the Estate of Apollonius."

CLUB ACTIVITIES

Michigan

On October 9, the Cornell University Association of Michigan held its first weekly luncheon of the year at King Wah Lo's under the new president, Fred M. Randall '00. It had the largest attendance of any luncheon in the past few years except when President Farrand was entertained.

The principal speaker and guest of honor was Charles Bowles, the "sticker" candidate for mayor of Detroit. The new officers have made extensive plans for speakers of national as well as local reputation and hope to increase the attendance to one hundred alumni at each weekly luncheon.

Women of Bay Cities

The regular meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of the Bay Cities of California was held Saturday, October 11, at the Wild Duck Inn, Oakland. The artistic "West Room" of the Inn, overlooking Lake Merritt, afforded an unusual setting. Mrs. J. J. Rosedale, (Esther Toor) '10 was hostess at luncheon, covers being laid for twelve at one long table at which Mrs. E. A. Bridgford (Emma Gertrude Payne) Sp., president of the club presided. Red dahlias and white crysanthemums afforded floral decorations in the Cornell colors and the proper Cornell spirit was aroused by the singing of the new Cornell songs written by members of the club.

At the business meeting following the luncheon, Mrs. Finis E. Yoakum (Wilhelmine Wissmann) '11 was appointed delegate to represent the club at the convention of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, to be held in New York City on November 14 and 15.

The President in Cleveland

President Farrand had a busy day in Cleveland on October 9. He was one of the speakers at the inaugural dinner at the installation of Dr. Robert Ernest Vinson as president of Western Reserve University and he spoke at noon before one hundred and fifty Cornellians who greeted him at the Hotel Statler. The Cornell Club of Cleveland invited the Cornell women to join with them.

The luncheon marked the opening of the season of the Cornell Club. Conant Van Blarcom '08 was elected president for the coming year, succeeding Victor B. Phillips '15. Joseph K. Bole '00 is the new vice-president. Richmond L. Rathbone '98 as treasurer, and Benjamin S. Hubbell, Jr. '19 as secretary, were re-elected. Two new members of the board of directors were elected: William D. Haselton '12 and Edwin J. Truthan '19. They succeed William H. Forbes '06 and Herbert N. Putnam '12. Phillips, as retiring president, succeeded automatically to the board for a two-year term, taking the place of John C. Barker '12.

The second luncheon of the year, on October 16, brought out more than seventy men. The entertainment took an athletic and musical turn. Joseph K. Bole '00 gave impressions of the recent golf tournament for the national amateur title, Edgar J. Tyler, a Case graduate, drew on his experiences as a football referee extending over a period of sixteen years, while George W. Teare '23 and Truthan '19 interspersed selections on the saxaphone.

Milwaukee

Professor Jeremiah W. Jenks, well known to Cornellians as a member of the Faculty from 1891 to 1912, was the speaker at the luncheon of the Cornell Club of Milwaukee, held at the University Club on October 6. Professor Jenks talked informally for more than an hour. He has spent the greater part of the last two years in Europe as an unofficial representative of the Dawes Committee, and he gave the Cornell men interesting sidelights on European conditions with special reference to what the Dawes Plan means to American business.

The club took action with reference to the Alumni Convention to be held in New York City on November 14 and 15, in the nomination of William H. Powell '90 as candidate for the directorship for the Tenth District, which includes Milwaukee and Illinois, and by the appointment of A. Lester Slocum '13, president of the club, as its official delegate.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

PRINCETON admitted 634 out of about twelve hundred who applied for freshman enrollment. Of these 372 came from preparatory schools, 133 from high schools, 126 from a combination of schools, and 3 from foreign schools. 387 register in arts, 201 in science, and 46 in engineering.

MINNESOTA has this year 8,743 students, registered as follows: War specials, 73; Arts, 3,710; Engineering and Architecture, 1,028; Agriculture, Forestry, and Home Economics, 669; Law, 277; Medicine, 522; School for Nurses, 243; Dentistry, 377; Dental hygiene, 24; Mines, 72; Chemistry, 168; Pharmacy,, 169; Education, 1,192; Business, 219; Graduate School, 117 duplicates, 117. This does not include the enrollment at the Central, West Central, and Northwest Schools of Agriculture.

THE SCOTTISH RITE Masons of the Northern Jurisdiction have authorized twenty-six scholarships good in any high grade American university, and have recommended that each consistory of the jurisdiction add one or more; if this is done there will be a total of eighty-four scholarships. The order is spurred on to do this work by the belief that America must fortify herself against the threat of invasion by foreign and wholly un-American ideas of government, and that the best weapon of defence is an enlightened citizenship.

THE CART AND THE HORSE

OUT of the two recent football upsets may come some comfort to those who are sincerely interested in Cornell's welfare as a rounded whole.

It has been noticeable at every gathering of alumni that the quips of certain sport writers and "colyumn conductors" have got under the alumnal skin. It matters not that the remedies for the schedule, called "Frame-up"; "Undignified"; "Soft"; and the like, consisted invariably of a number of contracts to play games in which the proposed party of the second part had no interest in signing; nor that the persons in charge had the same aspirations and hopes, equal ability, and greater training in producing the desired result than the alumni on whom the sportitorial tick had fastened itself.

The need of Sibley for new shops and equipment; the compliment paid to the Ag College through Dean Mann; the effective reorganizations of certain departments in the Arts College; and even the sad plight of the underpaid professor and instructor; these no longer catch, not to say hold, the alumnal attention.

To boom the subscription campaigns, advertise the Convention, and put Cornell on her feet in every way, one had to go outside Cornell University proper and amend the football schedule so as to play games with teams that wouldn't play. The panacea would be the announcement of a schedule consisting of the first eight pictures in "Spaulding's Football Guide," all out of town if necessary, and topped off by an intersectional battle at the Carnival of Roses.

We are saved from a complete crash in the educational department by our two good friends, Williams and Rutgers. How many others will rescue us from disintegration remains to be seen. They are colleges of great antiquity, small registration, and burly and experienced football material. Nothing can be done about it. The Cornell team seems to lack the services of certain rugged persons with monosyllabic names that would have made this schedule continue to menace our standing in the field of letters.

Now, however, we can again view the University dispassionately, pray for a registration containing a couple of dozen persons weighing over thirteen stone, and hope for a successful year after Thanksgiving Day.

FACULTY NOTES

Dr. Howard S. Liddell of the Medical College lectured on "The Effect of the Thyroid on Growth and Development" before the Sixth District Branch of the Medical Society of the State of New York, meeting at Oneonta on October 7.

Colonel Henry S. Weygant, who has been attached to the Cornell Unit of the R.O.T.C. since 1921, has been ordered to Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, to take charge of Army recruiting headquarters there.

Professor Charles Chupp '16, of the Department of Plant Pathology, has recently completed a book on vegetable garden diseases, which is to be published under the editorship of former Dean Liberty Hyde Bailey by the Macmillan Company.

Chaparral, the Stanford comic periodical, has just issued a silver jubilee number, celebrating the twenty-fifth aniversary of its founding. It publishes a picture of Professor Bristow Adams, Stanford '00, as its founder, and reprints a tribute to him from the Cornell Widow's "Hall of Fame." Only four college comics antedate Chaparral; these are the Yale Record, the Harvard Lampoon, the Princeton Tiger, and the Cornell Widow in the order of their founding. The Widow is thirty years old.

Colson B. Hutchinson '15, head of the State agricultural station and school at Davis, California, and formerly in the Plant Breeding Department at Cornell, was a recent visitor on the Campus on his way to join Dean Albert R. Mann '04 in Rome, where he becomes associated with Dean Mann in establishing studies of international relations in agriculture.

The Ithaca Board of Health on October 14 ruled that after July 1, 1925, no milk is to be sold in Ithaca that is not from tuberculin tested cows.

OBITUARY

William K. Sinton '73

Dr. William Kelley Sinton, dean of dentists in Colorado Springs, and for forty-two years one of the leading members of the profession in Colorado, died at his home there on August 4 following an operation and illness of six weeks.

He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., on March 14, 1854 and received his early education in that city. In 1869 he came to Cornell as a student in the science course and remained for one year. In 1873 he returned and left in 1876.

After several years of work under preceptors in accordance with the custom at that time, he entered the University of Iowa as a student of dentistry and graduated in 1884 with the degree of D. D. S.

He was the first president of the Colorado Dental Society and served in an executive capacity for many years. He was also a member of the State Board of Dental Examiners and throughout his long practice was recognized as one of the leading dental specialists in the West.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lulu B. Sinton; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Handke and Mrs. Belle S. Willett of Colorado Springs; two brothers, George H. Sinton of Pasadena, Calif., and M. M. Sinton of Colorado Springs; and one sister, Mrs. Margaret S. Otis '76 of Pasadena.

Edward H. Fitch '97

Edward Hubbard Fitch, Jr., died at his home in Akron, Ohio, on September 25. His death, from mastoid trouble, is said to have been due to a football injury received when he was member of the varsity team at Cornell.

He was born on March 31, 1873, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Fitch, and after attending Oberlin for a time, came to Cornell in 1895 as a student of law. He already had a reputation as a football player and immediately won a place on the varsity as a tackle and played for two years. He was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, Chancery, and Round Table.

After leaving Cornell, he became interested in the rubber industry and was for a time manager of the Philadelphia office of the Diamond Rubber Company. Later he went with the B. F. Goodrich Company at Akron, Ohio, and was an executive of the concern at the time of his death.

F. Gordon Patterson '00

Francis Gordon Patterson died on August 15 at Cohasset, Mass.

He was born at Geneva, N. Y., on July 7, 1876, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Patterson, and received his early education in that city. In 1896 he entered Cornell as a student of mechanical engineering and remained for two years. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

After leaving Cornell he attended

Victoria College at Leeds, England, and studied textiles. Later he became known as an expert in wool-selling and wool-securing circles, as well as a designer and manufacturer of woolen goods. He was at various times associated with some of the leading woolen mills of the country, and at the time of his death was with Lawrence and Company. During the War he served as an industrial inspector for the New England territory and was later transferred to the Quartermaster Corps in Washington, D. C.

In addition to being an active member and a former governor of the Cornell Club of New England, he was an out of doors enthusiast and especially enjoyed trips through the wilds of this country. Together with his wife, he had traveled across the Continent, visiting little-known places and getting as close to primitive life as possible.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Bowditch Patterson, to whom he was married on April 25, 1905.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

HARVARD has at present dormitory accommodations for 2,046 students out of a total of 6,733, or approximately thirty per cent. Forty-nine per cent of the undergraduates and fourteen per cent of the graduate students live in dormitories.

MICHIGAN Agricultural College has thus far this year 1,776 students, an increase of 149 over last year. The facilities for instruction in chemistry are declared to be quite inadequate to care for the increased numbers.

VERMONT has this year 1250 students, of whom 1,128 are in the College and 122 in Medicine.

COLUMBIA opened on September 24 with an enrollment which will exceed the record of last year, 32,769.

A PROFESSOR in Teachers College, Dr. Walter H. Eddy, working with Drs. R. R. Wilson and Ralph W. Kerr, has succeeded in isolating bios, which it was formerly supposed was identical with Vitamin B. Bios has the formula C_2 H, NO_3 and melts at 223 degrees C.; five one millionths of a gram of it per cubic centimeter will increase the growth of yeast over twenty times. It takes nearly thirty grams to make one ounce avoirdupois. This discovery is regarded as a highly important step toward a better knowledge of nutrition.

THE HARVARD enrollment figures for this year are as follows: College, 3,020; Special, 28; Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, 702; Landscape Architecture, 27; Architecture, 42; Bussey Institution, 20; Business, 600; Education, 175; Theology, 57; Law, 1,169; Medicine, 499; Public Health, 25; Dental, 194; Engineering, 254; total, 6,812, an increase of 367 over last year. The number of freshmen has dropped from 950 to 936. The enrollment in the College is 107 more than last year.

ALUMNI NOTES

'92 AB—Dr. Clyde A. Duniway, who has been for some years president of Colorado College, was on leave last year and acted as director of the American University Union in London. Asa M. Stebbins, professor of ancient history, used to maintain an even balance in spite of the dictum that a beard divided against itself is soon parted.

It was perfectly proper when "Prof" Stebbins looked South to say: "East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet."

He was always at the parting of the waves. All Gaul, he often said, was divided in three parts. That was one of the differences between him and all Gaul—but flaring whiskers have ceased to mark him as a man apart.

COLGATE'S RAPID-SHAVE CREAM

has become the good old professor's daily solace. He gives himself a clean shave every morning now—and he shaves with ease and comfort, because he lathers with Colgate's. It softens the beard at the base—where the razor's work is done.

The undergraduate, as well as the older man, whose beard has become tough and wiry, can be rid of shaving discomforts by lathering with Colgate's Rapid-Shave Cream.

It needs no mussy rubbing in with the fingers, and it leaves the face soothed and velvety.

If you would like a free trial tube containing cream enough for 12 easier shaves than you have ever had, please fill out and mail the attached coupon.

COLGATE & CO., Dept. 212, 199 Fulton St., New York:

An Opportunity

WE have an opening in our sales organization for a college man who is looking for an opportunity for personal development and increased earnings. Selling experience would be valuable, but if you do not have it you may feel that with the right training and co-operation you can develop sales ability.

You need not necessarily be desirous of making an immediate change. We want to get thoroly acquainted with you and your qualifications, give you full information concerning our work, and arrange for a personal interview before concluding final arrangements. Write fully to

The Smallest Standard Keyboard Typewriter

IN as much as we pay the postage or express, whichever is less expensive, you can well afford to trade again with the Co-op. We carry in stock more than ten of the special keyboards, but if you want something different and the type combination is made we will get it for you without extra price if the change appears in your order. We have already sold more than 500 of these little typewriters.

Whitman's Candy

Special Cornell Shield Box

We will deliver to your friend here in Ithaca or mail to another address and pay the postage. Shield candy sells at $1.25 per pound. We suggest that you add ten cents to cover special delivery or insurance. The Shield box is a very satisfying assortment.

November 15th

Our Christmas booklet will be out about November fifteenth. The new Troy Calendar will be ready about November fifteenth. The calendar will cost $1.55 as usual. The Christmas booklet is yours for the asking.
