To Cornellians:

In your undergraduate days, the Lehigh Valley sought to earn your patronage by rendering you its best in every detail of service.

By the same means it seeks to maintain and strengthen the tie. Based solely on its capacity to please you—and not because of "old times' sake"—the Lehigh Valley invites your attention to its train service between New York or Philadelphia and Ithaca, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Detroit and Chicago. Its representatives will welcome your inquiries.

CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS

VOL. XXVII, No. 27

ITHACA, N. Y., APRIL 9, 1925

PRICE 12 CENTS

SATURDAY saw the students streaming home on special trains to spend their spring vacations far from academic halls. That is, it saw those students who hadn't taken a chance on their professors' wrath and skipped off a day or two early. Reports are that a larger number than usual remained faithful to the official schedule and stuck until the appointed time for leaving. So Ithaca is having a brief breathing spell, and is turning its thoughts to the epidemic of mumps which is reported flourishing, the griefs and unreasonableness of the musicians' strike which still lasts to fill local news columns with opposing letters, the laying of bets on when spring is going to fulfill the promise of the calendar, and other matters of nonscholastic importance.

SHERIFF CHARLES GREEN of Ithaca is hoping that the skeleton found last week in Caldwell Field will clear up a mystery that has been unsolved for eighty years. Circumstantial evidence seems possibly to point to the skeleton being that of Mrs. Harriet Ruloff, who disappeared from her husband's house in 1845. Edward Ruloff, the criminal with the big brain which is part of Cornell's collection, was convicted at that time for the murder but the Court of Appeals reversed the decision as no body was found and "the circumstance of mere absence in and of itself is not sufficient in a criminal case to establish death." Francis M. Finch, who later became a judge and dean of the Cornell Law School, defended Ruloff at this trial and won his first outstanding fame there. Ruloff was later convicted of another murder committed in Binghamton.

A LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD engineer, Frank A. Regan, was drowned in the Inlet on March 30, when he stepped from his engine as it stood on the bridge near the Stanford-Crowell plant. Apparently he did not realize where they had stopped, and fell at once into the icy water. He called to the fireman for help but although he was a powerful swimmer, drowned before aid could be secured.

THE CORNELL GRAPHIC has announced the election to its editorial board of Moorhead Wright, Jr., '27 of Little Rock, Arkansas, and Chauncey L. Grant '26 of Brooklyn, New York.

PENNSYLVANIA won the debate with Cornell held in Elmira on March 27, by a judges decision of 2 to 1. Frank C. Monaghan, Jr., '27 of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, Samuel Mezansky '25 of Poughkeepsie, and Ross E. Scanlan '25 of Buffalo composed the Cornell team, which took the negative side of the question, "Resolved, that the President's Cabinet should have seats and a voice in the Senate and House of Representatives." Jervis Langdon '97, president of the Cornell Club of Elmira, presided at the debate.

THE CAT'S ANKLES, this year's Charity Play, lived up to the promise of its name when it was presented at the Lyceum on March 28, and was so successful that a second performance will be given later in April. It was written by Albert E. Milliken '24, and the dance numbers were coached by the Misses Ariel and Norma Bement. Most of the parts were taken by University and Conservatory students.

THE WOMEN of the University presented their annual dance festival on April first, at Bailey Hall. "The Princess's Crown" was the title of the pantomime, with Myra Tolins '28 of Brooklyn starring as the princess, and Kathryn Geyer '28 of Brooklyn as the prince.

THE JUNIOR SMOKER on March 27 found two thousand students filling the Drill Hall with cheers and smoke—"smoker" is no idle term,—as they met to do honor to this year's athletes, to listen to speeches by Professor Arthur W. Brown '04, Neal D. Becker '05, John Moffit of Cambridge University, and others, and to be entertained by stunts given by the Savage Club. Charles B. Howland '26 of Philadelphia was toastmaster.

THE TWENTY-FIFTH annual banquet of students in the College of Agriculture was held on April 1. Professor Martha Van Renseelaer '09 and Professor George W. Cavanaugh '93 gave short talks, and shingles were awarded to the men who have represented the College in intramural athletic contests.

THE CORNELL CIVIL ENGINEER has announced the following staff for next year: Charles N. Strong '26 of Pittsburgh, editor-in-chief; Walter B. Brandt '26 of Ithaca, business manager; Norman E. Sanders '26 of Buffalo, managing editor; Eugene L. Lehr '26 of Southold, alumni editor; George T. Larson '26 of Stamford, Connecticut, advertising manager; and Foster S. Bowden '27 of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, circulation manager. This staff will take control with the May issue.

THE GRAPHIC staff for next year will be headed by George L. Todd '26 of Rochester as editor-in-chief. Hobart R. Avery '26 of Oakfield will be business manager; Hugh S. Fifield '26 of Denver, photographic editor; Earle E. Bolton '26 of Oil City, Pennsylvania, art editor; David P. Kuntz of Treichler's, Pennsylvania, advertising manager; Alfred A. Buerger '26 of Eggertsville, circulation manager; Truman A. Parish '26 of Avon, assistant business manager; and Frederick H. Schroeder '26 of Kingston, intercollegiate editor.

CHI EPSILON, a newly-founded civil engineering society, has elected as honorary members Professor Herbert H. Scofield '05, Professor Charles E. O'Rourke, and Frederick K. Lovejoy '24, instructor in surveying. Active members elected were Walter W. Buckley '26 of Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin, Warren R. Bentley '26 of North Tonawanda, James W. Henry '26 of Perry, Charles H. Moore '27 of Lake Forest, Illinois, Ward S. Patterson '26 of Dunellen, New Jersey, Fairfield S. Perry '26 of Brooklyn, Charles N. Strong '26 of Pittsburgh, and Harwood Warriner '26 of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

AT THE CAMPUS polls on March 13, Ernest W. Bowen '25 of Brockton, Mass., and Frank L. Henderson '25 of Detroit were elected class marshals for Class Day, with George B. Catlin '25 of Detroit as alternate. William B. Belden '25 of Cleveland was elected class prophet; Whitney M. Trousdale '25 of Rome, Pennsylvania, orator; Arthur M. Coon of Buffalo, poet; and Robert W. Eiler '26 of Pittsburgh, historian. Francis Kearney, Jr., '26, of Irvington, New Jersey, will act as junior custodian of the class pipe.

THIRTEEN JUNIORS were elected to Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering society, at a recent meeting of the Chapter. Gonzalez Abaya, Jr., of the Philippine Islands, Ernest A. Bamman of Princeton, New Jersey, James Groff Craig of New Rochelle, Donald R. Ferris of Essex, Massachusetts, Ward S. Patterson of Dunellen, New Jersey, and Winthrop D. Washburn of Ithaca were elected from the School of Mechanical Engineering; Edwin L. Harder of Buffalo, Donnell D. MacCarthy of Ithaca, Carl G. Miller of Buffalo, and Louis C. Roess of Oil City, Pennsylvania, from the School of Electrical Engineering; Walter W. Buckley of Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin, and Nelson Yuan-Jen Chiang of Shanghai, China, from the School of Civil Engineering; and Alfred S. Jarecki of Sandusky, Ohio, was elected from Chemistry.

THE PANHELLENIC ASSOCIATION held its annual banquet on March 25, with two hundred women attending. Miss Charlotte B. Hopkins '25 of New Hartford, president of the Association, was toastmistress, the speakers being Mrs. Livingston Farrand, Professor Martha Van Rensselaer '09, Professor Nathaniel Schmidt, and Professor Arthur W. Browne '03. Sigma Delta Tau won the Panhellenic Scholarship Cup for having the highest scholastic average for the past year.

Publish Health Code

University Medical Adviser Explains Procedure Being Followed to Control Communicable Diseases

Following the action of the Board of Trustees at its last meeting in adopting a sanitary code for the University, the Committee on Hygiene and Sanitation last week distributed copies of a wall chart giving a synopsis of the University's regulations for the control of common communicable diseases. The chart is intended to be posted where it can be consulted at any time. It is being given to the fraternity houses; the residential halls, and other student groups, and also to members of the instructing staff. It contains in compact form much information about the usual early symptoms of the common communicable diseases and their methods of infection, and explains concisely what is to be done to prevent the spread of any of these diseases.

Dr. Dean F. Smiley '16, University Medical Adviser, has explained the code and Cornell's relation to the general problem of public health as follows:

"The problem of controlling communicable diseases in a university community like Cornell is somewhat more important than in an ordinary adult group, and somewhat less important than in a school group. The reason for this, as the records of our office show, is that at the time of entrance into college four-fifths of our students have already become immune to measles, one-half to mumps, whooping-cough, and chicken-pox, and one-fifth to scarlet fever and German measles by having had those diseases as children. Nevertheless this leaves more than half of the students susceptible to the common contagions, and the fact that this group has escaped up to the age of college entrance furnishes no ground for presuming that it will continue to escape infection during the four years of college work. The most probable reason why this group has so long escaped infection is not that it has extraordinary resistance but that it has luckily escaped close exposure to active cases. Therefore some scheme of effective control of communicable disease cases is a real necessity.

"During the school age the State provides for immediate isolation of the patient and exclusion of all non-immune contacts from school for a stated period—the period of incubation of any particular disease. Such strictness is without doubt necessary at the school age, but a somewhat less rigorous procedure seems to be reasonably safe at the college age. Accordingly, the Committee on Hygiene and Sanitation has provided for some years past that communicable disease cases be isolated at the Infirmary, but instead of excluding students exposed to diseases from classes it has substituted a period of observation at one of the Medical Advisers' offices. This scheme saves students the loss of a great deal of time yet it seems to be quite effective. The new code simply serves to confirm these practices and to make them authoritative."

SPORT STUFF

This week's bit, gentlemen, will be information unadorned.

On Saturday, May 16th, the crews go to Derby to take on Yale and Princeton for the Carnegie Cup. On the same day and before the regatta Cornell plays baseball with Yale at New Haven.

By stipulation the game ends at a fixed hour to allow the crowd to get to the regatta in time. The ball game begins at 1:15, the observation train leaves the Derby Station at 4:30 and the first race is scheduled at 4:45. The varsity race comes last and is set for 6:15. The place is on Daylight Saving Time. There will be special train service from New York both going and coming.

Tickets for the observation train are $3.00 each. For the ball game no seats are reserved and it is therefore neither possible nor desirable to get tickets in advance. The admission is 75 cents.

The seat sale for the observation train opens for members of the Athletic Association on Monday, April 27th—the general sale on the 28th. Checks should be made payable to the Cornell University Athletic Association and 15 cents should be added to remittances to cover registration and postage. R. B.

AN ITHACA ARITHMETIC

Cornell University is to add an ancient volume to its archives. Sheriff Charles Green has in his possession a hand-written arithmetic compiled by Thomas Robertson between 1816 and 1820. This book, which has recently been in the possession of Mrs. Paris Robertson of Trumansburg, is to be given to the University in accordance with the request of her husband, who was the son of the writer.

The book is bound in an old-fashioned manila cover which shows the marks of time. It contains a unique series of arithmetical examples and tables compiled and used by Mr. Robertson over a century ago. Beneath headings written with a quill pen in a style it would be hard to equal to-day, are examples of addition, subtraction, division, and multiplication which one rarely sees now. There are also measure tables but little used now, together with other interesting contents.

The author of the book, Thomas Robertson, was one of the early sheriffs of Tompkins County. He was elected to office in the fall of 1828, the same year that Andrew Jackson was elected president, John C. Calhoun vice-president, and Martin Van Buren governor of this State. Mr. Robertson was the grandfather of the present sheriff's first wife.

Start Faculty Apartments

University Breaks Ground for First of New Buildings as Investment and to Relieve Housing Shortage in Ithaca

The University has broken ground for the first two of six Faculty apartment houses, to be built on the property between Thurston and Wait Avenues, Cornell Heights, just west of the Theta Xi House and nearly across from Prudence Risley Hall.

Two units are to be built at once, and it is hoped that they will be ready for occupancy next September. Each of these units will contain nine apartments, three to a floor, each apartment consisting of four rooms and bath. On the ground floor will be storerooms, one for each of the apartments above, and there will also be on this floor a number of studies or work-rooms to supplement the apartments.

The University is building these houses as an investment and incidentally to relieve the housing shortage in accordance with a suggestion which the Ithaca Chamber of Commerce made a few years ago. The first two units have been planned to meet the needs of married instructors. Eventually there will be six units, containing about sixty apartments, on the lot between Thurston and Wait Avenues. The plans of the later units will depend somewhat on what is learned by the operation of the first two.

Frederick Lee Ackerman '01 of New York drew the plans. The outside walls will be of brick and the floors and stair wells of concrete, practically everything except the interior trim being of fireproof construction. The style is a simple Georgian or Colonial. Each apartment will be supplied with hot and cold water, electric light and gas, steam from the central heating plant, and perhaps refrigeration.

J. Dall, Jr., Inc., has the contract for the construction and the Forest City Plumbfing Company will install the plumbing and heating systems.

THE VIOLIN RECITAL of Efrem Zimbalist on March 20, which was the final concert of the University series, filled every seat in Bailey Hall. The Sun came to the aid of a number of those music-listeners who are timid about expressing their opinions on such matters before they have checked it up, by running a signed criticism of the concert by Professor J. T. Mountford the morning after, which did not give Zimbalist's playing or the program unqualified praise. Most of those who attended the concert enthusiastically rated Zimbalist high up in that group which is second only to Kreisler.

SENIORS IN NAVAL ARCHITECTURE went on an inspection tour of the Macintosh and Seymour plant at Auburn recently. Macintosh and Seymour are among the largest manufacturers of Diesel engines.

Thousand Ithacans Contribute to University's Maintenance

President Farrand Characterizes Home City's Financial Support as Concrete Inspiration to Cornellians Everywhere

CITIZENS of Ithaca contributed $42,781 to the maintenance funds of Cornell University in a campaign which began on March 24 and ended on March 30. The larger part of this sum is in the form of annual subscriptions and represents a continuing income to the University from the citizens of its home city. This sum from 1,072 subscribers, including many members of the Faculty and alumni who live in Ithaca, is nearly $8,000 more than the quota of $35,000 set as a goal, and is more than one-fifth of the $250,000 additional annual income which President Farrand has said was needed to maintain Cornell on a plane with other universities of equal rank.

Citizens' Committee Heads Drive

Under the leadership of a committee composed of former Mayor Louis P. Smith, Jacob Rothschild, and Joseph F. Hickey, fifteen teams of Ithaca business men worked the entire week soliciting subscriptions for the fund. The city was districted and each team was assigned to a certain part, with a quota based on an estimate of the amount that might reasonably be expected. When the final count was taken every team but one had equaled or exceeded its quota, and three had reported double or more the amount set.

Three booklets explaining the purpose of the effort were sent to prospective contributors, most of the downtown and Hill stores displayed posters bearing the campaign slogan, "Itha-Can Aid Cornell," which was also repeated in banners over the streets, advertising in the newspapers, and cards in the street cars, so that by the end of the week every citizen of Ithaca knew what it was all about. Pupils in the city schools wrote essays on the contributions of Cornell to Ithaca, and a huge replica of the library tower mounted on the corner of the Rothschild store on East State Street, with the dial of the clock marked in units of $3,000, showed citizens by means of its hand the daily progress of the campaign.

In recognition of the services of President Farrand and the Cornell Club of Rochester, who organized the alumni of other universities living in that city and helped greatly in the recent successful campaign of the University of Rochester for $10,000,000 additional endowment, Harry P. Wareheim, who conducted that campaign and is manager of the Rochester Community Chest, spent the week in Ithaca without pay, directing the drive for the citizens' committee. He is nationally known as an organizer of community campaigns, and it was generally conceded that his direction of this one had much to do with its success, besides giving valuable suggestions for future community chest and other campaigns in Ithaca.

Dr. Rush Rhees, president of the University of Rochester, spoke to the teams at their first meeting on the evening before the campaign opened. He mentioned with gratitude that President Farrand, at a dinner given by the Cornell Club of Rochester, had pointed out in a compelling way to six hundred men from thirty-seven different colleges the civic importance of such an undertaking, and said that the workers in this campaign would find that Cornell was equally important to Ithaca and Ithaca to Cornell, and that the citizens they solicited would be quick to recognize that fact—as they later proved to be

President Farrand pointed out the great need of the University for more operating funds, saying that next year's budget as at first proposed was $200,000 more than the visible income and that three members of the Faculty within the past ten days had been invited to other posts at substantial increases, which they had refused because of their loyalty to Cornell and their faith in her future.

President Points out Problems

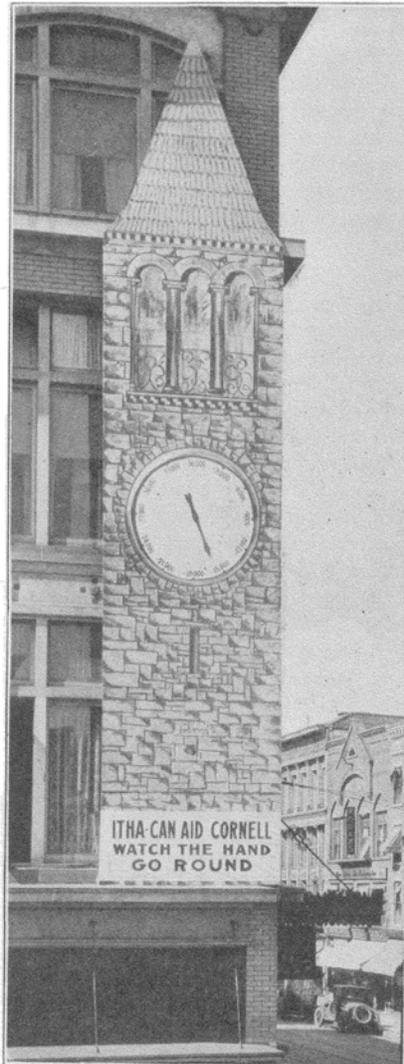

"You know Cornell's history better than I," he said, "and you know what she has contributed to this country. You may not realize that it takes study day after day and night after night to see to it that Cornell does not lose this greatness; unfortunately, the problem comes down to one of economic needs. Cornell needs money.

"This problem of finances is not peculiar to Cornell. Every university worth the name has greater needs than it has funds to meet them. The Trustees of Cornell have wisely said that the University should be operated strictly on business principles—a carefully scrutinized budget. Although there has been a deficit for the past three years, Cornell has never operated on a deficit as a principle. Last year tuition was reluctantly increased, but tuition cannot and never will pay the cost of education, because such a policy would eliminate a group of the very best material for the University. Cornell's need now is to hold its present strength.

"You, Cornell's fellow citizens of Ithaca, have said you would like to help Cornell past this present obstacle. The University appreciates your help. There is nothing more cheering to us than this offer of cooperation in one of the greatest enterprises of an American community. Democracy depends on its educational system of schools and colleges. Your concern that Cornell shall be made sound and wholesome and active, is far-sighted citizenship."

During the week the men who canvassed the city found many proofs that the citizens of Ithaca did appreciate the value of living in a university town, and were glad to show their appreciation to Cornell in a substantial way. Men and women in all walks of life made contributions according to their means, and some that were missed in the general canvass took their money to headquarters because they wanted to have a share in the campaign.

The letter written by Ezra Cornell and reproduced in last week's ALUMNI NEWS, which was given to Robert E. Treman '09 by Miss Mary E. Cornell, had brought, when the campaign ended, a total of $1,100 it was announced. One anonymous subscriber gave $500, but said that since he was not an alumnus of the University he would not think of taking the letter from Cornell. Henry Ickelheimer, member of the Board of Trustees who gave the Andrew Dickson White statue to the University, sent $100 when he heard of the letter, and Walter C. Teagle '00 offered $500 for the letter to be placed in the University Library.

THE CLOCK TOWER ON STATE STREET Transported for a week from its familiar station on the Hill to the corner of Rothschild Brothers store, where it covered three stories, with its clock face the Library Tower showed citizens of Ithaca the progress of the campaign. This photograph was taken on the second day, when the total stood at $16,713. Instead of making the clock strike fourteen for the final total of $42,781, the hand was set at XII and a huge sign was hung across the dial bearing the final results.

At the final meeting of the campaign, President Farrand told of how much it had meant to the University not only in actual financial support, but in the moral backing that only a generous display of public opinion could give.

The President spoke of a meeting with the budget committee of the Board of Trustees on the previous Saturday, and told of the changed attitude of its members, whom he characterized as being profoundly influenced by the returns from the campaign.

He said that this effort would be a stimulus to all interested in Cornell all over the United States. It will serve as an inspiration to Cornell alumni throughout the country, and show them what the University means to people who live in its home city.

Speaking of the local side of the whole affair, he said he valued more than anything else the closer relation established between the town and the University. He said it was a great thing to have the opportunity to discuss the minor points of difference that constantly arise between institutions and persons, and to come to a common understanding. Much good has already come he said from the free and open discussion of the needs of the University.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN faces a financial crisis. The Regents asked of the Legislature for the triennium of 1925-7 the sum of $2,800,000 for buildings, $200,350 for land, and about $6,400,000 for running expenses. The State Board of Public Affairs has recommended to the Legislature an appropriation of $591,000 for buildings, no money for land, and about $5,400,000 for running expenses. President Birge says that if only these appropriations are made, it will cripple the university beyond recognition.

HARVARD has increased her tuition fee in arts and engineering from $250 to $300, her fee in law from $200 to $250, and the fee in dentistry from $230 to $250. All scholarships and fellowships awarded to students paying the increased fee in Harvard College, the Engineering School, and the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, if paid from funds in the hands of the university, are to be increased $50 each.

THE RESEARCH Club at the University of Michigan on February 15 celebrated the quartercentennial of its existence by a banquet at the Michigan Union.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

St. Louis

Professor Charles K. Burdick addressed the Bar Association of St. Louis on the evening of April 6, and that noon spoke at a luncheon of Cornelliens at the American Hotel. Lewis C. Chamberlin '16 is the new secretary of the Cornell Club of St. Louis.

Springfield, Mass.

The Cornell Club of Springfield, Massachusetts, announces its April meeting for Friday, the 24th, at the Hotel Nonotuck, Holyoke. Further details are to follow. The annual field day will be celebrated on Saturday, May 23.

The club meets every Monday for luncheon at the University Club. All Cornell men are invited.

Chicago

P. Michael Fielding, Captain in the Indian Army Reserve, was the speaker at the regular Cornell luncheon in Chicago on March 26 at the University Club. He described the wild, independent territory near the northwestern frontier of India, southeast of Afghanistan, and told of experiences there during the World War and later during the third Afghan war, the Mahsud war, and the Waziristan campaign.

Ithaca Women

The Cornell Women's Club of Ithaca met in Sage Drawing Rooms on the afternoon of March 31. Mrs. R. Warren Sailor (Queenie Horton) '09, president of the Club, presided. Fifty members were present.

Ruth Stone '10 of Chicago and Teresa Fox '21 of Buffalo were nominated by the Club as candidates for first and third vice-presidents respectively of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs, to be voted on at the annual June meeting.

Mrs. Gertrude S. Martin '00 spoke briefly on the development of the American Association of University Women. Refreshments were served following the business session. Mrs. Charles L. Bruff (Anna Willson) '09 was in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

New York

The issue of The Cornell Yell which has just been mailed to members of the Cornell Club of New York announces many events for the immediate future.

The annual reception for members and their guests including ladies, will be held on Easter Sunday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock. A string quartet will furnish chamber music in the lounge and tea will be served in the main dining room.

The annual meeting of the Club on Thursday, April 30, will be combined with Faculty Night, the fifth and last of the series of serious evenings of the winter season. President Farrand has accepted the Club's invitation to speak, and other prominent members of the Faculty are expected. R. Harold Shreve '02, president of the Club, will report on progress and plans.

The annual spring smoker has been scheduled for May 15 and following the precedent of last year will be an intercollegiate affair with stunts from many colleges. John E. (Johnny) Ross '19 is in charge.

Class dinners in the Campus Room are becoming increasingly popular. The men of '10 will dine there on April 9, '13 on the 13th, '15 on the 15th, '20 on the 17th, '21 on April 23, and '04 on May 4.

The club announces twenty-four new members elected at the March meeting of the Board of Governors. Announcement is also made of a most valuable contribution to the Club library, three hundred volumes from Major Louis L. Seaman '72. The collection is particularly rich in books of travel in some of the far countries which Dr. Seaman has visited.

PHI BETA KAPPA

At a meeting of the Cornell Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa on April 3 the following were elected to membership. Of the 59, 33 are men and 26 are women. Four graduates, 34 seniors, and 21 juniors were elected.

ANOTHER OF ITHACA'S LANDMARKS is being reduced to a memory with the demolishing of the building at 124 South Aurora Street, which was built fifty years ago by Miss Belle Cowdry and left to Robert L. Drew at her death. For a number of years Sheriff Charles Green conducted a cigar store there and recently it has been used as an automobile storage and tinshop. Its removal is another step in the improvement of the South Aurora Street business section which has been in progress during the last few months.

ATHLETICS

Baseball Team on Southern Trip

The baseball team is in Virginia this week on its annual spring vacation trip. Six games were scheduled, two with Virginia, two with Washington and Lee, and two with Virginia Military Institute. Seventeen men were chosen by Coach Paul Eckley to make this trip and they constitute the varsity squad.

The group includes five pitchers, Frank L. Henderson, John J. Brown, John A. Milligan, Arthur J. Harrington and Burnett F. Wright. All were on the squad last year, though Wright pitched only a game or two. Milligan and Henderson are left handers.

The catchers are Thomas Stirling, one of last year's regular backstops and Joseph R. Greenbaum, a sophomore.

Infielders include Forbes D. Shaw and Harold K. Melnick, first base, Frank D. Rossomondo, second base; Captain David F. Davis, Jr., short stop; William Wendt, Jr., and Irving R. Groves, third base. Groves was also slated to be given a trial at second. Davis, Rossomondo, and Wendt were in the varsity infield last season.

The outfielders are William J. Dupree, Howard F. Merrill, John C. Trefts, and Charles J. Baker. The first two were members of last year's team.

Wrestlers Make Poor Showing

Cornell played an insignificant role in the Intercollegiate Wrestling Championship matches held in New York on March 20 and 21. It was the first time in a long while that a Cornell team was not a factor in the championship race. Two points scored by Captain Frank Affeld were all that the team was able to accumulate. Only two Cornellians, Geier and Howard, survived the first round. Affeld, though a favorite, was thrown by Tuttle of Yale. Both Geier and Howard were eliminated in the semi-finals. Affeld came back on Saturday and won the unlimited class bout for third place. Penn State won the meet again with 24 points. Yale was second with 14, and Lehigh third with 13. Compared to the usual Cornell season this has been a disastrous year.

In dual matches Cornell won from Springfield, Columbia, and Syracuse, and lost to Penn State, Lehigh, and Pennsylvania.

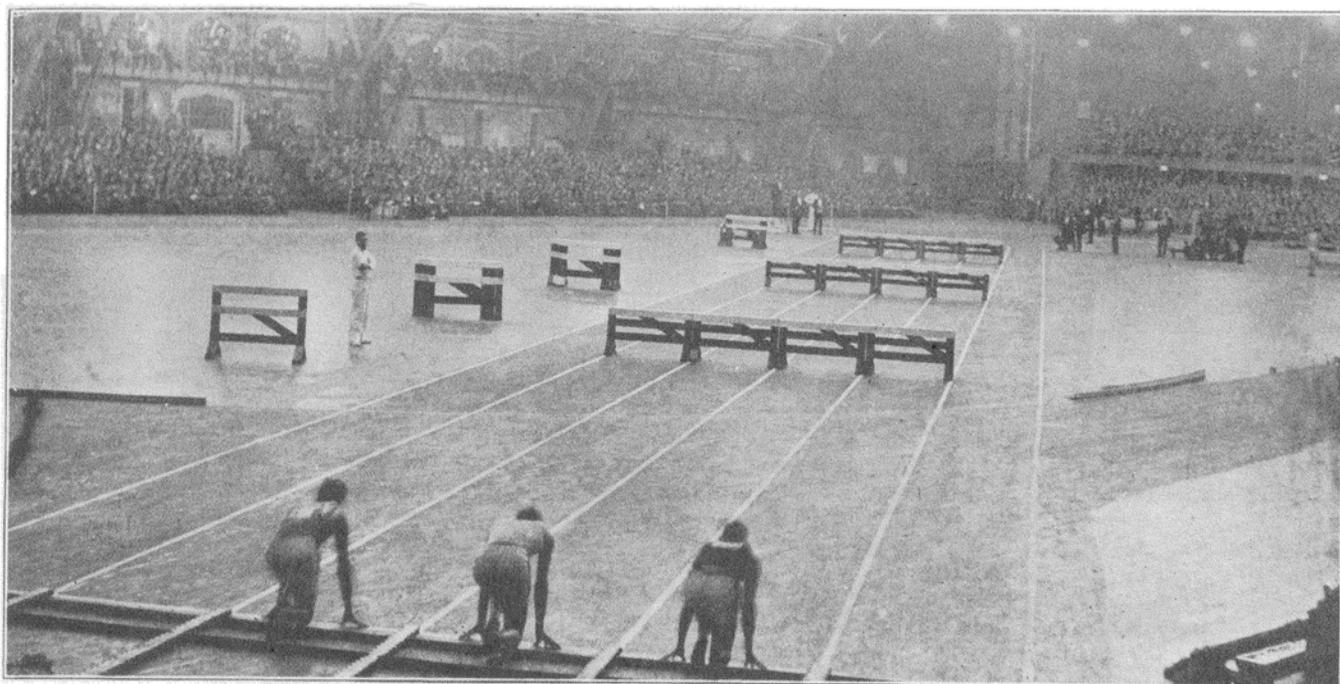

The wrestling team has re-elected Frank O. Affeld, 3d, '26 of New York, captain for next year. Affeld has played center on the football team two years and has just completed his second year as a member of the wrestling team. He was the only Cornellian to score in the championship meet.

Council Awards Letters

ITHACA, N. Y., APRIL 9, 1925

THE NEW SLOGAN: "BEAT ITHACA"

ITHACA played its part in the campaign for maintenance funds for Cornell in a highly creditable and rather astonishing manner. That a town with about a thousand alumni, many of them on the Faculty, and about three hundred merchants, should subscribe over forty-two thousand dollars a year to the University seems incredible.

The major share of credit for the success of the campaign goes to Harry Wareheim of Rochester whose genius for organization undoubtedly made the results possible. Credit must, however, in fairness be given to the citizens of Ithaca, most of whom were not Cornellians except in spirit, and whose magnificent cooperation made possible the materializing of the plans of organization.

What a par to set for the rest of the country! One might expect President Farrand to experience a certain amount of regret that he placed Cornell's immediate needs as low as a quarter of a million a year. Ithaca is not a promising locality for a drive of this sort. The mathematics of it indicate, however, that on the same basis the alumni everywhere, if they caught the idea as Ithaca did, might easily contribute a million a year. Ithaca might even then still lead the field in percentage and average contribution.

For purely local reasons, nevertheless, the great gain of this campaign was not the amount of money raised. The newly born spirit of cooperation between the University and the townspeople should capitalize far higher than the gifts of money. The efforts of men and women with every sort and no sort of college affiliation in the common cause for their University on the Hill; the airing and consequent disappearing of grudges held and nourished for twenty years, the discussion and better understanding of mutual problems, all pave the way for an enthusiasm for Cornell that Ithaca has felt and acknowledged only in moments of exaltation.

Consequently the Ithacornellians (a campaign term) have shown to Cornellians generally a pace that will require their best efforts to follow. It is not unlikely that the slogan for the Cornell Alumni Fund of the future will be: "Beat Ithaca."

OBITUARY

John R. Flanigan '80

Dr. John Richard Flanigan died in the Roosevelt Hospital in New York on August 20, 1924, following injuries received the same night when struck by an automobile.

He was born in Binghamton, N. Y., on December 28, 1856 and after graduating from the High School in that city, came to Cornell in 1876 as an arts student. Owing to ill health, he was forced to leave at the end of the college year. Later he attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Baltimore, Md., from which he graduated in 1885.

He became house surgeon in the United States Marine Hospital in Baltimore and in 1886 opened an office in Syracuse, N. Y. He practiced in that city for a number of years, then moved to New York, where he became connected with the New York Postgraduate Hospital and College as a lecturer on dermatology. He is survived by his brother, Walter J. Flanigan '81.

Frank C. Patchin '84

Frank Clines Patchin died on March 22 in Jacksonville, Fla., after a long illness to recuperate from which he had gone South.

He was born at Wayland, N. Y., on December 19, 1861, the son of Cameron and Harriet Clines Patchin. After attending the Dansville Seminary and Geneseo State Normal School, he came to Cornell in 1880 as a student of history and political science and remained for one year. He was a member of Theta Delta Chi. He graduated from Albany Law School in 1883 with the degree of LL.B.

Forsaking law for journalism, from 1889 to 1892 he was a reporter and assistant night editor on the New York Press. From 1893 to 1895 he was city editor of the New York Journal. In 1895-6 he was assistant city editor of the Washington Post. From 1901 to 1907 he was news editor and from 1907 to 1909 general manager of the Rochester, N. Y., Post Express. After leaving that paper, he joined the staff of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle and remained until last July, when he resigned because of ill health.

In addition to his newspaper work, he was the author of The Pony Rider Series of boys' books, The Circus Boys, The Range and Grange Series of books, The Boys of Steel Series, The Meadowbrook Girls, The Automobile Girls, the Grace Harlowe Overseas Series, the Grace Harlowe Overland Series, "Little Soldiers of France," "Little Boy Heroes of France," and "Little Daughters of France."

In addition to his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Alfred E. Botham of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a brother, Bert Patchin, of Patchinville, N. Y.

Robert H. Widdicombe '93

Robert Hedrick Widdicombe died late in February at San Diego, Calif.

He was born at Booneville, Mo., in 1870 and after getting his early training there, he came to Cornell in 1891 as a student of law. In 1893 he graduated with the degree of LL. B. He was a member of Delta Chi.

After graduating, he took up the practice of law in Colorado Springs, Colo. In 1904 he went to Denver, Colo., as attorney for the Colorado and Southern Railroad and in 1913 he entered the law department of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad. He was in that department as commerce attorney at the time of his death.

Jules H. Ford '94

Jules Harvey Ford, internationally known as Doc Waterbury, died at his home in Enfield, N. Y., on March 16 after a general breakdown in health.

He was born in Enfield on November 21, 1874, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ford. After getting his early education at Enfield and in Ithaca, he entered Cornell in 1890 as a special student in agriculture, remaining only a short time.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Cynthia Ford, and a sister, Mrs. Harriet Mallouf, of Port Washington, N. Y.

Charles W. Hodell '94

Charles Wesley Hodell, president of the Merchants and Dealers' Finance Corporation of Chicago, Ill., died suddenly in the hospital at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., on March 28 of complications resulting from a severe cold.

He was born at Lawrenceburg, Ind., on April 16, 1872, the son of George and Mary Shoemaker Hodell. After getting his early education there he attended DePauw University and graduated in 1892 with the degree of A. B. He was a member of Phi Kappa Psi and Phi Beta Kappa. After leaving DePauw, he came to Cornell as a graduate student and in 1894 received the degree of Ph. D.

For the next three years he was instructor in English at the Shadyside Academy in Pittsburgh, Pa. From 1897 to 1912 he was professor of English at Goucher College in Baltimore, Md. While there he became recognized as a Browning scholar by bringing out an edition, with a translation, of "The Old Yellow Book," which gave Browning the essential material for "The Ring and the Book."

While in Baltimore he became a director and treasurer of the Finance and Guaranty Company of that city and in 1916 left his position as vice-president to become president of the Finance Trust Company in New York, which position he held in 1924 when he assumed the office he held at his death.

Besides his wife, who was Miss Willa Ricketts of Shelbyville, Ind., he is survived by three sons, Louis R. Hodell '23, George Hodell, and Charles Hodell, besides his aged mother, a brother George, of New York, and a sister, Mrs. M. J. Givan, of Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Gerald B. Fluhrer '01

Gerald Bishop Fluhrer, county judge of Orleans County, N. Y., died in the Homeopathic Hospital in Rochester, N. Y., on March 20, following an operation.

He was born on March 30, 1878, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Fluhrer. When a small boy he moved with his parents to Albion, N. Y., where he received his early education. In 1897 he entered Cornell as a student of the arts and sciences and graduated in 1901 with the degree of A. B. He was a member of Phi Delta Phi.

After leaving the University, he took up the study of law and was admitted to the Bar. In 1906 he ran for State senator and although defeated, built up a Democratic-political organization in Orleans County which had much influence in county affairs. In 1919, Governor Smith appointed him county judge, and in November of that year he was elected to the office for a term which would have expired next January 1.

He was a member of Albion Lodge, B. P. O. Elks, Albion Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and the Dye Hose Company in that city, and director of the Citizens' National Bank. In addition to his wife, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Julia Fluhrer and a brother, Howard Fluhrer, of Oneonta, N. Y.

E. Wheeler Carr, Jr., '01

Edward Wheeler Carr, Jr., died at New Orleans, La., on March 15, following an operation.

He was born at Rochester, N. Y., on January 5, 1879, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Carr. While he was still a boy, his parents moved to Brooklyn and in that city he received his early training. In 1897 he came to Cornell as a student of mechanical engineering, and remained for one year. After being out a year, he returned and was a student until 1902. He became a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, did some cross country running, and contributed to The Widow.

He was well-known in the Southwest as an engineer and heating expert, and was a member of the Louisiana Engineering Society and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. In 1912 he located in

New Orleans and later organized the firm of E. W. Carr, Inc. The business will be continued by his widow, who was secretary-treasurer, a son, Edward Carr, and a brother, Chester W. Carr. He also leaves a sister, Dr. Mary B. Carr, of Jersey City, New Jersey.

Ernest I. Smith '03

Dr. Ernest Ireland Smith died on February 18 at Nashville, Tenn., following a short illness.

He was born at Randolph, N. Y., on November 11, 1874, and after attending Chamberlain Institute, went to the Freedom State Normal School. In 1900 he came to Cornell as a student of veterinary medicine and graduated in 1903 with the degree of D. V. M.

In 1906 he entered the Government service and was assigned to meat inspection work for the Bureau of Animal Industry at Newark, N. J. He later held several posts and finally in 1916 was placed in charge of tick eradication in Louisiana. At the time of his death, he was in charge of tuberculosis eradication and hog cholera control in Tennessee. Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter.

George W. Swift '16

Captain George Warren Swift died at the Post Hospital, Fort Totten, N. Y., on March 21 after a brief illness of scarlet fever and lobar pneumonia.

He was born on November 23, 1894, at Cresbard, S. D., the son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Swift. Later he moved to Forestville, N. Y., where he received his early education. In 1912, he entered Cornell as a student of agriculture and graduated in 1916 with the degree of B. S. He became a member of Kappa Phi, now Delta Sigma Phi, and served as a lieutenant in the Cadet Corps.

In August, 1917, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Reserve Corps and called into active service. After being stationed at various camps and posts in the United States, he served overseas for eleven months. On July 1, 1920, he was appointed a captain in the Army and stationed at Camp Custer. He saw three years' service in Panama, and in October, 1923, was assigned to the 77th Division with headquarters in New York.

Captain Swift made an enviable record in the Army and his death brought a high tribute from his commanding officer, Colonel Peter A. Traub. In addition to his wife, who was Miss Gratia Bullock, he is survived by his parents and one brother.

Hubert Sheppard '19

Hubert Sheppard died of blood poisoning at Atlanta, Ga., on February 23.

He was born at Lawrence, Kan., on July 28, 1885, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sheppard. He first went to the University of Chicago, from which he received the degree of A. B. Later he went to Oklahoma University and received the degree of A. M. In 1918 he came to Cornell as graduate student and in 1919 received the degree of Ph. D.

After leaving the University, he became pathologist at Emory University and Grady Hospital in Atlanta. His death resulted from pricking his finger while performing an autopsy. Besides his wife, who is a bacteriologist at Emory University, he is survived by his parents.

LITERARY REVIEW

A van Loon Fantasy

The Story of Wilbur the Hat. By Hendrick Willem van Loon '05. New York. Boni & Liveright. 1925. 26 cm., pp. 112. Many illustrations. Price, $3.50.

It is most fitting that "Wilbur the Hat" should make his initial appearance in the month of March—at any rate that was the month of his appearance in Ithaca. Indeed, it is doubtful whether these strange adventures of his would have occurred at all, had it not been for the fact that Tam the Tornado, alias Liparades Strombolus, blew him completely out of the picture. Wilbur the Hat had been bragging a bit (he came from Boston); whereupon Zeus the Mighty, happening at the moment to be listening in on his radio, heard him and, becoming wroth, ordered Aeolus to attend to him. But alas, the Greek quota had been full for over four years and Aeolus could not get by Ellis Island. He bethought him of Strombolus, his cousin, who had come to America as a child and set up for himself as a tornado, and gave over the job to him. Hence this remarkable history.

The adventures of Wilbur the Hat are varied and amazing. His first encounter after traveling straight down a dark pit for some eight hundred years or so, is the finding of the skeleton of Judas, sitting on a ledge in the wall of the pit, doomed to remain there until three minutes past the end of time. Recovering from this episode, he meets with a cheery and companionable cricket, Cedric, who serves as guide, philosopher, and friend for the rest of the journey.

Strange sights and scenes pass before them in quick succession. Paolo and Francesca in the form of two uncertain-looking palm trees; dream ships voyaging in the clouds; the man with an idea; no less a person than Stradivarius himself whittling out a fiddle with his penknife and a bit of wood; the Acropolis; Rome on its seven hills; the tiny Napoleon laboriously dragging a huge cannon by a string; Punch and Don Quixote, who, Cedric assures Wilbur, will live forever; hosts of little men who have spent their lives doing inconsequential things; and they who forever dug for the pot of gold; and they who were always absolutely right!

And now Wilbur the Hat gazes upon a surprising group apparently enjoying the best of good fellowship: Socrates; Montaigne, Erasmus, and Abraham Lincoln. They are dwelling in a place of which Cedric says, "It is a small bit of land reserved for those we like best of all."

And now the two friends observe a remarkable phenomenon: the sky is swept by a ray of most brilliant light. Wilbur thinks it is lightning, but Cedric explains: "You have witnessed a most wonderful occurrence. Millions of people have prayed that they might see it . . . Once in every hundred years a ray of pure sunshine strikes the world. It reaches the palaces of the rich and the hovels of the poor. It stops only once and for less than the thousandth of a second. But where it strikes, a genius is about to be born."

This long Dantean adventure comes to a sad and tragic ending, with Zeus the Mighty again rampant. But in spite of all, Wilbur the Hat and Cedric the Cricket lived happily forever after.

ALUMNI NOTES

'77—Justice Henry V. Borst, whose age was recently the cause of considerable dispute in legal circles as to whether he had passed the retirement age, recently sent his resignation to Governor Smith of New York State. The judge gave as his reason that ill-health forced him to retire from the bench and not an impending suit seeking his removal on an allegation that he had passed the age limit. He is now resting at his home in Amsterdam.

'84 BS—Miss Jane Durand announces the engagement of her sister, Mrs. Juliet D. Sherman of Asbury Park, N. J., to Judge Elmer G. Story '84 of Bayside, Long Island. The wedding will take place some time in April. Mrs. Sherman is the widow of Frank Dempster Sherman, formerly professor of graphics in Columbia University and a writer of verse. Story is president of the Class of '84, an attorney of Queens County and New York; president of the Bayside National Bank and of the Lions' Club of Bayside; former commodore of the Bayside Yacht Club; and a member of the Cornell Club of New York.

'06 CE—After being for twelve years with the J. G. White Engineering Com-

Pretty hard to make it read "E. E."

WHY waste time and energy trying to twist yourself into an engineer when your natural bent is away from matters technical? It isn't necessary.

In these days, industry, and particularly the electrical industry, is so broad as to require men in all lines of work. Engineers of course, but there is plenty of opportunity for men in the purchasing, manufacturing, accounting, legal and other commercial departments as well.

There's a good rule to follow. Find out what work you are naturally fitted for—then go to it. And isn't it better to be a first-rate A. B. than a second-rate E. E.?

INTERESTING FACTS OF HISTORY

Do You Know

—that Monticello, Jefferson's estate on a hill overlooking the University of Virginia is being restored by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation and will be maintained by them for the American people?

Thomas Jefferson was born on April 13, 1743. He framed the Declaration of Independence. His associates, among whom were John Adams, Benjamin Franklin and John Hancock, knew that Jefferson could do this satisfactorily and they signed it, with minor changes, as it expressed the minds of the American people.

Jefferson and Adams both served as President of the United States for opposing parties. They became fast friends, and by a singular coincidence both died on July 4, 1826.

Facsimile copies of the Declaration of Independence for framing are obtainable free on request from this company.

The John Hancock Mutual is particularly interested in insuring college men and women and obtaining ambitious college graduates for the personnel of its field staff.
