DAYS on the Hill are cloudy and cold; the trees, except a few stubborn maples and willows, are showing masses of red, yellow, and brown, and occasional winter overcoats march over the Campus among the slickers and toppers. Pledge buttons and prelim blanks are on display where students congregate. Louie's hot dog wagon has started its nightly rounds; every freshman has found the way to the Strand and Crescent. Fall has returned to Ithaca.

THE CURFEW WHISTLE, which used to blast out a warning from the Morse Chain Works at nine o'clock each evening, has joined the long line of discarded Ithaca traditions. Residents of South Hill complained that instead of serving the purpose for which it was intended, the curfew often roused young children from sleep and drove older people into nervous prostration. The Mayor, after due consideration, ordered it abandoned.

THE AFFIRMATIVE team composed of R. H. Bernays, Oxford, William C. Mansfield '27, and H. V. Lloyd-Jones, Oxford, was awarded the decision in the International Debate in Bailey Hall October 2. The subject was, "Resolved: That the principle of national self-determination is a wholesome one." The negative team was made up of Martin Rosenblum '27, H. J. S. Wedderburn, Oxford, and D. W. Falconer '26. President Farrand introduced the speakers.

CORNELL is being represented at the semi-centennial anniversary celebrations of three universities this month. President Farrand attended the semi-centennial of the reopening after the Civil War of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C., on October 12, and spoke as the representative of the twenty-six institutions comprising the Association of American Universities. Dean Robert M. Ogden '00 of the College of Arts and Sciences is attending the celebration at Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tennessee, October 15-18. Professor Thomas Lyons Martin, Ph.D. '19, head of the Department of Agronomy at Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah, is Cornell's delegate to the exercises at his own institution on October 16.

THE ITHACA public evening school opened on October 1 with 214 students enrolled. Over fifty courses, most of them of practical nature, are being offered. The school is unusually well equipped to give instruction in home nursing and other household arts.

A SEVEN-HUNDRED-DOLLAR trap gun, built to order for John Philip Sousa, who visited Ithaca recently with his band, has been on display in Treman, King and Company's windows. The gun is elaborately adorned, with the design including Shrine emblem, inlaid and embossed in gold and silver.

BISHOP WALLACE E. BROWN, who will be remembered by many Cornellians as the former minister of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Ithaca, had a narrow escape from death in Kuliang, province of Fukien, China, this summer. In company with Mrs. Brown and their son, Morris, he had taken a mountain cottage during the summer vacation, and a severe typhoon carried away the whole front of the house. Although the property damage was great, no one was injured.

FIVE HUNDRED members of the Ku Klux Klan provided a spectacular epilogue to the Niagara football game by parading along State Street on October 3. Later a Klan rally, from which the public was excluded, was held at the circus flats opposite the Fair Grounds.

THE CAYUGA Rock Salt Company is erecting a large concrete warehouse at Myers for the storing of salt. The building will be circular in shape and will be surmounted by a dome-like roof of concrete and steel. When completed it will hold about forty thousand tons of rock salt.

STUDENTS may attend the Columbia and Pennsylvania football games at special excursion rates this year, according to announcements by the Lehigh Valley. No special excursion trains will be run, and holders of excursion tickets will be expected to leave New York or Philadelphia not later than midnight of the day the game is played.

THE POPULATION of Ithaca, exclusive of students, increased from 17,004 in 1920 to 18,948 in June, 1925, according to state census figures.

SIGMA DELTA CHI, national journalistic society, which on its own request was suspended from the national organization in 1924, will soon resume activity. Membership will be recruited largely from the class in agricultural journalism. David S. Cook '23 is acting secretary.

THE WOMEN'S Judiciary Committee this year consists of the following members: Frances Eagan '26, chairman; Hope Cushman '26, Florence Burtis '26, Martha Dana '27, and Meta Ungerer '27. The committee rules on the more serious infractions of rules in the dormitories and outside houses, and its decisions are final.

THE CITY PLANNING Commission is considering proposals to increase the number of playgrounds in Ithaca. Six Mile Creek Park, which can be reached easily from the down-town schools, may be utilized for this purpose. The flats below Van Natta's Dam can be converted into playing grounds and athletic fields, while the rougher ground above the dam can be used for picnic grounds and camp-sites, the city planners say.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION membership tickets sold to undergraduates remained under 3000 on October 10. This number is two hundred below the number sold last year, and four hundred below the quota set for the annual campaign.

THE DEPARTMENT of Ornithology basks in the favor of some occult privilege not ordinarily accorded mere mortals. Bent on certain scientific observations the department advertised for a specimen of grouse viscera. As if in answer to the summons a hen grouse, uncouth in appearance but scientifically available, flew through a window of the University Museum in McGraw Hall.

THE FACULTY Tennis Club has begun its fall tournament with forty entrants in the preliminary matches. The club is building a small club house to the rear of Rockefeller Hall, which will be used to house equipment for the courts.

THE LARGEST COLLECTION of deadly reptiles ever brought to Ithaca is on exhibition in the zoology laboratory in McGraw Hall. Six different branches of the rattlesnake family are represented as well as the copperhead, the Gila Monster, and the coral snake. The collection was made by Professor Albert H. Wright '04.

THE LEHIGH VALLEY Railroad has been indicted by a Federal grand jury for transporting two carloads of beer in the vicinity of Auburn without a permit and without keeping the proper records. The indictment is the first effort made by the Government to prosecute railroads which carry liquor from one place to another without a permit and the case, if the railroad is convicted, will have a far-reaching effect upon the methods of prohibition enforcement.

THE JOURNAL-NEWS erected a playograph in front of its building on West State Street, on which World's Series games were depicted play by play.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB opened its season with a group of three one-act plays in Goldwin Smith B, Friday and Saturday, October 9 and 10. The group included "The Workhouse Ward" by Lady Gregory, "The Glittering Gate" by Lord Dunsany, and "Will o' the Wisp," by D. F. Halman.

Detroit Awaits Alumni

All Cornellians Will Be Welcome at Sixth Convention, Combining Important Business with Entertainment

Ready to offer all Cornell alumni and their husbands or wives "two days crammed full of Cornell" in addition to the overflowing hospitality of a great and fascinating city, Detroit sends out a final invitation to attend the sixth annual Cornell Alumni Convention, meeting at the Book-Cadillac Hotel Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24.

This is not the last call for reservations. They may be made by wire up to the last minute. But the Detroit convention committee urges Cornellians to decide at once that they are coming, and to notify James L. Elwood '06, 11-143 General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich., in order that their accommodation and entertainment may be assured in advance.

The completed convention program promises a round of entertaining social events, combined with meetings for business that is both interesting and important. This is the one time of the year that alumni are enabled to discuss all the problems of Cornell in an open forum. Business sessions for this purpose, and for the election of directors of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, will be held Friday morning and afternoon and Saturday morning at the Book-Cadillac. Among the speakers will be Dean Dexter S. Kimball of the College of Engineering, Acting Dean Charles K. Burdick of the College of Law, Jack Moakley, and R. Warren Sailor. Retiring Alumni Trustees Louis Livingston Seaman '72 and George J. Tansey '88 will give their reports.

The recreational side of the convention will begin a day ahead of time; golf, trips to industrial plants, luncheons, and a swimming party for women at the Women's City Club are announced for Thursday, October 22. Friday a luncheon for all Cornellians and their guests will form an interlude between the business sessions. The Convention banquet, for Cornellians, wives, and husbands alike, will be held Friday evening at the Book-Cadillac. Speakers will include President Farrand and President Clarence C. Little of the University of Michigan; Professor Charles Love (Bull) Durham '99 will be toastmaster. Following the banquet an "Old Time" dance, with a program of dances both old and new, will take place in the Book-Cadillac ball room.

Saturday afternoon the convention party will be taken to a football game between the University of Detroit and the U. S. Marines of Quantico. Cornell women and wives of alumni will be entertained at afternoon tea at the Women's City Club, and in the evening at the Detroit Golf Club. A stag smoker in the evening will close the program proper. Golf and motor trips will be provided, however, for any guests who wish to remain in Detroit over Sunday, and committees will also arrange for alumni to play golf Friday or Saturday afternoons or visit industrial plants on Friday.

The sixth annual convention, held in a city which prides itself on the vast scale on which it does things, is expected to surpass in interest, pleasure, and numbers taking part, all the gatherings that have gone before it.

SPORT STUFF

That Columbia football game at the Polo Grounds on October 31st is beginning to loom up.

The correspondence suggests that it is desirable to repeat and reemphasize some facts about it.

At this game, as at all previous Columbia games in the Polo Grounds Cornell has the north stand. At the Dartmouth game last year (and before) we had the south stand.

On the north side there are upper tier boxes only at the westerly end of the gridiron and these extend no nearer the middle of the field than the thirty-three yard line.

There are relatively few box seats. These will be passed out to applicants therefore in order of priority as long as they last. When they are gone applications for box seats must be filled with reserved seats and the difference in price returned.

The reserved seats are $3. The box seats are $4. The reserved seats are the better place from which to see the game. When you are in a box seat the vast throng gets a better chance to see your fur coat. That's the only advantage I can detect.

FACULTY NOTES

PRESIDENT FARRAND was one of the chief speakers at the inauguration of Dr. John Martin Thomas as president of Rutgers University, on October 14.

PROFESSOR BRISTOW ADAMS spoke before the fourth annual institute of the New Jersey Press Association at Rutgers University on September 28, and acted as judge in a competition of newspapers.

PROFESSOR CHARLES K. BURDICK on September 2 discussed the procedure of American criminal courts before the American Bar Association in Detroit. He expressed the opinion that this procedure is now so protective of criminals that it is a major factor in crime production.

MRS. ANDREW D. WHITE is staying for some months at the Hotel Syracuse in Syracuse, New York.

Slight Gain in Registration

Total of 4,971 Students Exceeds Figures for Past Two Years, But Number of New Students Declines

Early figures on fall registration show that the total number of students in the University is higher than it has been in the last two years, while the number of entering students continues to decrease. The total number of students registered in the University at noon on September 26, the last regular day, was 4,971, thirty-nine more than the number registered at the same time last year and fifty-eight more than the number registered in 1923.

The number of new students this year is 1,390, as compared with 1,414 in 1924 and 1,513 in 1923, a decrease of twenty-four since 1924 and one hundred and twenty-three since 1923. In the number of old students registered there is an increase of sixty-three over 1924 and one hundred and eighty-one over 1923, the figures for the respective years being 3,400 in 1923, 3,518 in 1924, and 3,581 in 1925.

The reduction of the size of the entering class is due to the University's policy of keeping the number of students within bounds. Most of the colleges are enforcing rules requiring applications for admission to be filed before August 1 and are rejecting applications received after that date. The College of Arts and Sciences has adopted a strict policy of limiting new registration to five hundred and in the enforcement of the rule over seven hundred applications that complied with the requirements in full were turned down. The College of Engineering admits to the freshman class only those applicants who are able to meet the regular entrance requirements in full, and as a result the number of freshmen in Engineering is somewhat less than it has been in former years, while the other classes in that College are larger. The Law College alone reports an increase in the number of students in the first-year class.

The increase in the number of old students registered tends to show that a larger number of students are returning for graduate work and that Cornell is becoming more and more a graduate institution.

ANTHONY H. G. FOKKER, winner of the Ford durability contest for aeroplanes, stopped in Ithaca on the return flight from Detroit to New York. While here Mr. Fokker treated city officials to a ride over the city. Mayor Will M. Sawdon, M.M.E. '08, City Clerk William O. Kerr '77, George D. Carpenter '06 of the Board of Public Works, City Chamberlain Clarence A. Snyder, Alderman William Sammons, Fred H. Atwater, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Ralph C. Smith '15, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and Russell V. Black '16, city planning expert, composed the party.

Strength of Team Surprises

A football team more capable than its partisans had hoped defeated Williams decisively on Schoellkopf Field Saturday by a score of 48 to 0. Seven to eight thousand shivering spectators, who braved the most uncomfortable weather conditions in years to see how the team had developed, were amply rewarded by an exhibition of sustained offensive strength that was as pleasing as it was unexpected.

True, Williams was not the Williams that beat Cornell last fall by a score of 14 to 7. This team from New England was neither as husky, nor as well-knit, nor as skillful as the 1924 opponents, nor did it possess a passing attack that could compare with that of its predecessor. But it is also true that the Cornell eleven was more efficient by a considerable margin than that which lost last fall. Williams was not so far below last year's standard as to charge the difference in the result solely to that. A better team is being developed on the Hill than early conditions had indicated.

Power, sustained drive, excellent interference, the first real coordination between line and backs manifested this year, clean handling of the ball as a rule, and sound and usually alert defensive play characterized the Cornell exhibition. The offense was smooth, consistent, and sometimes deceptive. The off-tackle play worked with precision; and the attack was varied sufficiently to keep Williams guessing. Delayed passes were employed, and the backs concealed the ball rather well. There will be more deception in the offense than usual, if this game is a criterion.

Williams was well coached, spry and plucky, but lacked power or finesse. The New Englanders made but three first downs, they never got beyond the forty-yard mark, and their passing game, which defeated Cornell last year, and has frequently caused trouble, was ineffective. Only three passes were completed, and none for any considerable yardage or at times when they might have been threatening. Most of the passes attempted were poorly executed, and some that looked good were knocked down by an alert Cornell secondary defense. One Williams pass was intercepted by Fratt, and this paved the way for the second touchdown. Cornell's line play was adequate at all times; of the ends the work of Courtright, a third-string man last fall, stood out.

Wester, quarterback, and Gassner, left half, carried the ball most frequently, Gassner contributing more yardage than any other back. He was the only one to play through the whole game.

Wester made several pretty runs around tackle; Gassner skirted the tackles or darted through the line with equal effect. Fratt at right halfback, and Butterfield, playing his first game at fullback as a regular, were also useful, and both contributed substantially to the steady advance. Of the substitute backs, Trefts and Robinhold made substantial gains.

Williams won the toss and chose the north goal, Carey kicking off for Cornell in the teeth of a sharp north wind. A Williams punt to Cornell's fifteen-yard line soon gave Cornell the ball, and the team drove right down for a touchdown, Gassner making the score. A little later Fratt's interception of Popham's pass on Williams' thirty-five-yard line opened the way for another touchdown and six rushes took the ball over, Gassner again making the touchdown.

Before the period ended Cornell was on Williams' eleven-yard line, and right after the second quarter began, four rushes produced another touchdown, Fratt making the score. Later in this period the running attack slowed down, and after passes had failed, Carey kicked a goal from placement from the forty-five-yard line. He had the wind at his back, but it was a beautiful kick all the same. Within a few minutes he kicked another, from the thirty-five-yard line. At the end of the half the score stood 27 to 0.

Another touchdown was scored in the third period, a few passes helping the running attack along, and in the fourth, with numerous reserves in the line-up, Cornell crossed the Williams goal line twice. Affeld's alertness in covering Popham's fumble on Williams' forty-yard line paved the way for the last of these. The only interruption in the relentless momentum of the Cornell attack came in the third period, but fresh reserves picked up the slack, and the steady drive was resumed.

It would be silly to predicate a great team on this performance Saturday and Cornell's principal opponents are all bowling along handsomely. But if the improvement of the past week can be maintained, no Cornelian need have fear of being ashamed of this eleven at New York, Hanover, or Philadelphia.

Weather conditions resembling mid-November at its worst cut down the size of the crowd. Probably a thousand persons who had tickets staid away, while hundreds of nearby enthusiasts did not venture on the journey to Ithaca by motor. It was a cold, bleak, raw day, and the Crescent was raked by a bitter north-wester. Winter coats, robes, and goloshes were mighty useful.

Situated across a foyer from the service counters, and equipped with cork floor, Celotex ceiling, and rubber composition-topped tables, the cafeteria will be a quiet and comfortable as well as spacious dining apartment. The stalls or alcoves on the sides will be used not only at meals, but also for "coffee house" meetings at all hours of the day.

The line-up and summary:

Council Makes Awards

Twenty-three varsity letters have been awarded by the Athletic Council. The awards:

Crew: Daniel H. Krouse '25, Edward L. Anderson '26, Richard Aronson '26, Samuel T. Buckman '26, James E. Frazer '26, Raymond V. Lange '26, Norman G. Stagg '26, Stanley C. Allen '27, Frederick A. C. Drew, 2d '27.

Baseball: John J. Brown '25, David F. Davis, Jr. '25, Frank L. Henderson '25, Harold K. Melniker '25, William J. Dupree '26, Harwood F. Merrill '26, Frank D. Rossomondo '26, John C. Trefts, Jr.

'26, Joseph R. Greenbaum '27, Forbes D. Shaw '27, Albert A. Vitale '27, Burnett F. Wright '26.

Junior varsity crew insignia: Eugene H. Emerson '26, Calvin Russell, 2d '26, Ralph C. S. Sutliff '26, Roger C. ter Kuile '26, William J. Bemis, Jr. '27, Erret H. Callahan '27, John M. Francis, Jr. '27, Louis H. Healy '27, Denis M. Hynes '27.

For participation in the Oxford-Cambridge-Princeton-Cornell meet last July the varsity letter was given to James G. Craig '26 and R. H. Spelman '28.

Theodorus S. Chadeayne '26 was appointed manager of crew, John Van Sickle, Jr. '27 assistant manager, Emmons W. Collins '27 assistant manager of freshman crew, and Matthew F. J. Korn '27 crew representative on the interscholastic council.

The elections of Henry A. Russell '26 and Harwood F. Merrill '26 as captains of track and baseball, respectively, and of Edward L. Anderson '26 as commodore of the crew were ratified.

Adolph H. Schimmelfennig '27 and George H. Lewis '27 were elected assistant managers of varsity and freshman baseball, respectively; and the following acting managers were appointed: Jesse M. Van Law '27, soccer; Joseph W. Houck '27, tennis; and Samuel C. Ramage '27, fencing.

THE SOCIETY of Cornell Dames, an organization of the wives of Faculty members and graduate students, held its first meeting of the year in Sage College on October 6. Plans were made for a formal reception to be given to new members at a later date.

LITERARY REVIEW

The Success of Democracy

The Moral Standards of Democracy. By Henry Wilkes Wright '99, Ph.D. '04, Professor of Philosophy and Social Ethics in the University of Manitoba. New York. D. Appleton and Company. 1925. 19.5 cm., pp. xii, 399. Price $2.

Professor Wright has written a very readable and instructive book. He is judicious and discreet in the expression of opinion; he has read widely in the literature of his subject; he shows balance and poise. His book is a distinct contribution to the best thought on this important subject.

Dr. Wright first discusses the relation between intelligence and instinct. By the advance of intelligence human conduct, based at bottom on instinct, is raised to a higher level which opens up wider vistas of achievement and of satisfaction. Incidentally he pays his respects to the theory of behaviorism, which he regards as virtually a denial of progress. Now one of these wider vistas above referred to is the social ideal. Then comes the problem of realizing this ideal, of bringing in the kingdom of God. The author quotes, with partial approval, Professor Dewey's objection to the ordinary moral and social idealism, that its prevailing tendency is to subordinate present interest to a remote future good. What we need is some impulse that will actually change present conditions for the better. The author thinks that the ordinary social activities involved in discussion, cooperation, and the evoking of imaginative sympathy will suffice to bring about the change needed.

In his chapter on "The Moral Standards of Democracy" Wright asks, What qualities of character and of conduct does the ideal of democracy require in the average citizen? In the first place, there must be a development of mind. Hence the tremendous importance of the rapid and wide dissemination of knowledge. Next, there must be capacity production on the part of every person, and not mere empty zeal. Thirdly there must be imaginative sympathy and understanding of the point of view of the other fellow.

An important chapter is that on "Democracy and Industry." The author notes the change already wrought by democracy in the common attitude toward work. The aristocrat believed himself exempted from the duty to work. There is now no leisure class; or if there is, it is gradually disappearing. Moreover, there is a growing recognition of the social and moral value attaching to work, apart from the results it produces. In this connection Wright discusses the effects of the factory system, with its tendency to reduce the worker to an automaton. Can we bring about the realization of democratic ideals under present conditions? It would seem to be possible, provided there is intelligence and awareness of community of purpose on the part of both the laborer and the employer, team-play, and recognition of faithful service. Obviously what is needed is not a radical change in the structure of industrial society, but rather a gradual transformation of existing conditions and methods resulting from a decrease of selfishness on both sides.

When the common man learns to identify the good of the community with his own, then we shall find him working for the common good at least to a far larger degree than is the case at present. There will be less litter in the park, a larger number of votes cast at elections, and a far slimmer chance for the corrupt demagogue and cheap politician. The net result of a reading of Dr. Wright's book is a feeling of optimism, a belief that while it will take a long time, perhaps, democracy will at length come through in triumph.

Books and Magazine Articles

In The Cornell Countryman for October the frontispiece is "A Shadow Study" by Professor William C. Baker '98. Dean Albert R. Mann '04 presents "Some Agricultural Observations in Europe." Professor George F. Warren, Jr. '03, writes on "The Agricultural Situation," which he finds much improved over five years ago. Professor Herbert A. Hopper '03 writes "Concerning Cows." Professor Bristow Adams answers the question "Why Agricultural Journalism?" His reasons are excellent.

In Science for October 2 Dr. David Starr Jordan '72 writes an obituary of the late Allan Riverston McCulloch, who was the leading fisheries expert of Australia. Dr. Leland O. Howard '77 presents "An Obvious New Case of Polyembryony."

In The Political Science Quarterly for September Louis R. Gottschalk '19 writes on "Communism During the French Revolution." Professor William L. Westermann, of Columbia, formerly of Cornell, reviews the second volume of the Cambridge Ancient History.

In The Medical Journal and Record for August 5 Dr. Charles L. Dana of the Medical College writes on "Cicero in Search of a Garden."

In The Historical Outlook for October "High Lights of Geography: North America" by Dr. David Starr Jordan '72 and Katherine Dunlop Cather is reviewed by John E. Orchard. The same reviewer also notices "The Story Key of Geographical Names" by Professor Oscar D. von Engeln '08 and Mrs. Jane M. Urquhart '13.

In the North Carolina Reviewer for April Dr. Katherine Gilbert '12 reviewed Galsworthy's "The White Monkey" and the Poems of Emily Dickinson. Laura R. Gottschalk '22 contributed an essay entitled "A Prophecy or a Plea."

In The Christian Herald for August 8 Graham Patterson '04 commented editorially on the "The Passing of Mr. Bryan."

OBITUARY

Arthur R. Warren '93

Arthur Robert Warren died at Tacoma, Wash., on January 31, 1925.

He was born in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, on August 15, 1870, the son of Peter W. and Annie Spencer Warren. He entered Cornell in 1891 as a student of law and remained for a year. Later he went to Ohio State University, from which he graduated in 1893 with the degree of LL.B. He was a member of Sigma Chi and Delta Chi.

After completing his course, he located in Tacoma, Wash., and engaged in the practice of law until his death. On May 10, 1902, he was married to Miss Daisy W. Lemon of Tacoma. He leaves two children, Elizabeth V. and Winifred G. Warren.

Harrison P. Reed '09

Harrison Pierce Reed died at the Columbia Hospital in Milwaukee, Wis., on September 27, from an abscess of the brain, following a short illness.

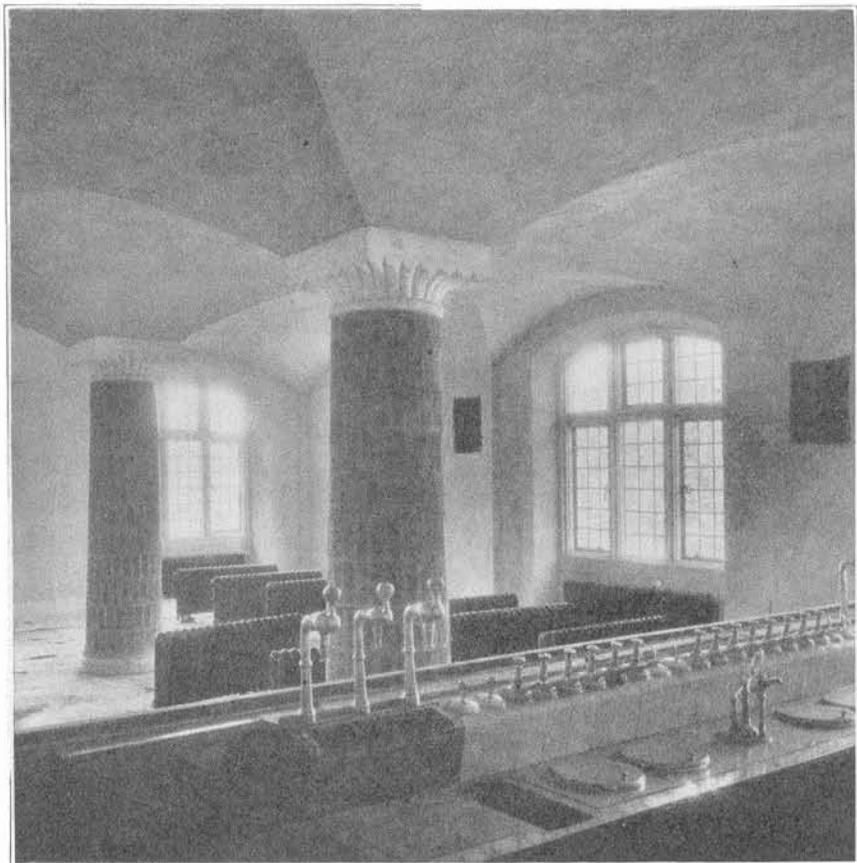

He was born in Milwaukee on September 9, 1886, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Reed. After attending the West Division High School there, he entered Cornell in 1905 as a student of mechanical engineering, and graduated in 1909 with the degree of M. E. While in the University he was active in many undergraduate affairs, and was a member of Theta Xi, Quill and Dagger, Kappa Beta Phi, the Savage Club, and Book and Bowl. He rowed on the Sibley College crew in his sophomore year and was a member of the Glee Club for three years, besides serving on numerous committees.

For a time after graduation he was with the Cutler-Hammer Manufacturing Company. At the time of his death he was general manager of the A. Kieckhefer Elevator Company in Milwaukee. He was a member of the Gyro and City Clubs in Milwaukee and the Engineers' Society there, and a frequent contributor to engineering trade publications. In 1923 he served as president of the Cornell Club of Milwaukee.

In 1911 he was married to Miss Emma Pfaff of Grand Haven, Mich. She survives him, with two sons and a daughter, besides his parents, a brother, and three sisters.

AN ITHACA AIRPLANE, built by the Thomas-Morse Aircraft Corporation, won the two-seater, free-for all race held recently at Mitchell Field, New York. The pilot, Basil P. Howe of Newport, averaged 102.9 miles per hour throughout the race.

This soda fountain, located just off the cafeteria and private dining-rooms, will be the rendezvous for a generation of Cornell men who have totally forgotten Zinck's. It will probably not take all the radiators in the background, however, to keep up the temperature of the place. They merely happened to be stored there when the picture was taken.

DAYLIGHT AND ATHLETIC HONESTY

FOOTBALL is apparently the criterion of University success, at least in athletics, in the minds of the general public. Consequently many Cornellians, crushed with the failure of Victory to perch on their banners in many months, take considerable comfort in the improvement that seems to be evident in the early fall encounters.

Unfortunately, such encouragement as can be gathered from these experiences often leads the ambitious alumni to lay plans for permanent and unquestioned superiority, and gives rise to many discussions involving the violation of the intercollegiate code of ethics.

In all the recently published babble by alleged graduate managers emeritus, and others who reply, it is quite obvious that many colleges debase their academic standards in the interest of their football machines. Only a little less questionable is, we read, the furnishing of soft jobs from which the pseudo-worker receives an honorarium for work that is not performed. The giving of athletic scholarships, the providing of room and board and tutors, are less bitterly condemned and seem to be quite generally practised. An expert sophist can make a good case for these proposals if the audience is sympathetic.

Finally, and the most difficult idea to dispose of, is that of the alumnus who sees no harm in paying the way of the athlete through college. He may do it with impunity in the case of a musician, a chess player, or any nice talented boy who is otherwise unable to secure an education. Why bar an athlete from equal rights?

There are many ways such as these, open to the alumnus for the advancement of education as exemplified by the flight of the pigskin across the chalk lines. A slight degree of encouragement in minor success, and we have them all under discussion again. We believe that the improvement in the football situation will come from an altogether different direction, with football and other athletics as beneficiaries, but not as sole or even the primary reasons for the change.

The solution lies along modern lines for the preservation of the health of the students. It lies in making provision for relaxation and play—desultory, intramural, and varsity athletics included—during the late afternoon. The movement is under frequent discussion. Eventually it must become a part of the educational program at Cornell as it is elsewhere.

The present academic schedule extends over more than fifty hours a week. A student is likely to be assigned to a wide range of hours. The selection of his own schedule seems to be quite subject to the individual professor's caprice. A university office empowered to rearrange schedules, and even to put the whole plant on daylight saving time, could undoubtedly discover the way to condense the schedules of the various departments sufficiently, having that end in view, so that he could save an hour or two of daylight for general sport and relaxation. Undoubtedly the gain in effectiveness would compensate for the loss of dignity, prerogative, or time and the exercise might even produce better teaching.

This solution of the general health problem, and perhaps many apparently unrelated problems, will incidentally solve many of the problems of organized athletics. Even eleven hired experts who are unable to practice in the daylight hours would be at a disadvantage compared with eleven healthy amateurs who get the breath of freedom in their lungs for two hours each day. The old fear of night air is exploded, and artificial light is recommended for beans and for hens. Yet such success as recent Cornell teams have had, practicing under their proud aggregate of 84,000 watts, is a testimonial only to science over-coming self-imposed obstacles, and is in spite of, rather than because of, their practising at night.

Give them daylight and the rest of the world may cut the corners of the code of ethics as close as their pride will permit. The temptation now offered alumni to help the varsity teams in their own ways will be much less acute than it is at present.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

Chicago

On September 17 a special luncheon was given by the Cornell University Association of Chicago, for the entertainment of the new freshmen from Chicago who entered the University this fall. Over twenty young men attended. Short talks to the boys were given by William G. Strong '94, president of the club, and by William H. French '73, James P. Harrold '93, and Malcolm D. Vail '12.

On September 24 the first of the regular weekly luncheons for the season opened with an hour in honor of Edward E. Goodwillie '10, who is leaving Chicago to engage in business in San Francisco. Goodwillie is one of the Chicago quartet that took a prominent part in the last annual reunion at Ithaca. Over fifty Cornellians were present to wish him well in his new home.

The luncheon on October 1 was well attended; an auspicious year seems assured. The prospects of the football team were discussed, and the score of the first game approved without dissent. The coming holiday visit of the Musical Clubs also received attention, and plans were put under way to give the singers the rousing welcome they always merit. Arrangements were perfected with regard to attending the convention at Detroit on October 23 and 24. Wythe Denby '89 and James P. Harrold '93 were selected as delegates, and they expect to be accompanied by a large number of members. The annual meeting and election of officers was announced for the next meeting.

New York Women

The first regular meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of New York, held on Saturday afternoon, October 3, filled the Sun Parlor of the Allerton House to capacity. The slogan for the day was "A minimum of business and a maximum of pleasure." Necessary reports were made short and pithy. The program committee outlined an attractive plan for the year's gatherings, promising some entertainment innovations. There was also a discussion of the desirability and possibility of permanent clubrooms for Cornell women in New York.

A special musical program was furnished by Mme. Irma Caron, French-Australian soprano and danseuse, who is now about to tour the United States. Miss Caron has a pleasing personality, and rendered English and French numbers in a delightful manner, but she appeared most thoroughly to enjoy taking her audience into the land of Maori women. She created an atmosphere by donning the reed skirt and the "mat" robe of the native woman, and made the necessary explanations a good story rather than a purely educational feature. The first native number was a Maori lullaby, and the second the "poi" ball dance and song, which afforded Mme. Caron an excellent opportunity to show her skill and vivacity. The artist was most enthusiastically received by the club.

After the program, tea was served in the Rose Room, and a very delightful social hour enjoyed.

The delegates of the Cornell Women's Club of New York at the Detroit convention will be Mrs. Joseph J. Klein (Janet Frisch) '12 and Miss Jessamine S. Whitney '05.

A mah jong and bridge party benefit for the Clara Cornell Fund is to be held on November 14. Further announcements as to place, etc., will appear later.

Any Cornell women in New York not now members of the club who wish to know about events of the year should send names to Mrs. Merton A. Darville (Isabel Shepard) '10, corresponding secretary, 162 Twenty-fifth Street, Jackson Heights, New York.

Western Connecticut Women

At the first meeting of the year of the Cornell Women's Club of Western Connecticut, held at the Stratfield Hotel in Bridgeport on October 3, Mrs. Albert H. Emery (Julia McClune) '04 made a detailed report of the reunions at Ithaca in June, with particular reference to the annual meeting of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs. This first meeting brought out a large attendance, with several new members.

The annual meeting of the club will be held on November 9 at the home of Mrs. Russel Moore (Mary Johnson) '17 on Rose Street, Bridgeport.

BUILD MEMORIAL STAIRWAY

Work has begun on a stairway and overlook on University Avenue, in memory of Morgan Smiley Baldwin '15, who was killed in France, October 8, 1918. The memorial, which is a gift to the Delta Phi Fraternity by Arthur J. Baldwin '92, father of Morgan Smiley Baldwin, is to consist of a stairway twenty-four feet wide rising from University Avenue to a walled and guarded landing above. From this landing a flight of cut stone stairs will lead to an overlook, designed in the form of a bastion, with a parapeted wall projecting over the roadway. The overlook will command a splendid view of Cayuga Lake and the City of Ithaca and will contain a lettered panel in stone bearing the following inscription: In Memory of Morgan Smiley Baldwin, Who Lies Where He Fell at Boni, France, 1918. Dulce et Decorum Est Pro Patria Mori."

The entire stairway and overlook will be done in the Gothic style and will be designed to harmonize with recent University buildings. Broad stairs will lead from the overlook to Llenroc, built by Ezra Cornell and now the home of Delta Phi, and the banks adjacent to the steps will be beautified under the direction of the landscape adviser to the University. The building of the stairway will shorten the passage through Llenroc Court from Stewart Avenue to University Avenue, and provide a direct route for students going downtown from the Hill, in place of the old path through the cemetery, which has been closed by the City. The memorial will be completed in about ten weeks.

Phi Beta Kappa Men Meet

Cornellians Take Large Part in National Council of Scholastic Society

The Fifteenth National Council of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa was held in New York on September 8-10. The opening session and the banquet were held at the Hotel Astor; other sessions were held at Hunter College, the College of the City of New York, Columbia, and New York University.

The following officers were reelected for the ensuing triennium: president, Dr. Charles F. Thwing, president emeritus of Western Reserve University; vice-president, Francis W. Shepardson, director of the Julius Rosenwald Fund and for many years national president of Beta Theta Pi; secretary, Dr. Oscar M. Voorhees; treasurer, David Layton. The following senators were elected for a term of six years: President Hibben of Princeton, Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life Insurance Company, Francis W. Shepardson, Professor Paul Shorey of Chicago, President Thwing, Dr. Voorhees, President Mary E. Woolley of Mt. Holyoke, President Alderman of the University of Virginia, Benno Lewinson, treasurer of the New York County Lawyers' Association, Professor Nelson G. McCrea of Columbia, Mrs. Berton L. Maxfield of Brooklyn, and President James R. Angell of Yale.

Charters were granted to Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Georgia, the University of South Carolina, the College of Wooster, Ohio, the University of South Dakota, the University of the South, Sewanee, Tennessee, the University of Kentucky, Occidental College, Los Angeles, and the University of Idaho.

Arrangements were completed for the vigorous prosecution of the campaign for an endowment of a million dollars, most of the income from which will be used for scholarships, fellowships, and other means of encouraging humane education in America.

At the banquet at the Astor Dr. Frank P. Graves, president of the University of the State of New York and an ex-officio Trustee of Cornell, spoke on "The Marks of the Leader." His address was a plea for the creation of an aristocracy of service rather than an aristocracy merely of brains, and for leadership through wise selection as much as through mass education and scholarship.

"We of America," he said, "have come to hold it almost an educational axiom that every one should be permitted to obtain as much education as he is capable of consuming. It has become evident, however, that in selecting those who are to be trained for leadership the moral qualities should be especially stressed. We should strive to select our leaders, men and women, wisely, and then train them definitely for the service of society."

The Commissioner also touched on the subject of eugenics as an aid to the creation of leaders. "At the present time we devote less attention to the development of leaders among men than to the breeding of leaders among kittens and puppies. We are doing little or nothing to prevent the union and mating of the tubercular, epileptic, or feeble-minded. Eugenics is a valuable contribution to the creation of leaders, but in order to make it really effective it must be popularized, and education must accomplish it—education of a universal type."

Too much poor student material in the colleges is a handicap to the creation of leaders and there is a need of a new kind of test to supplement the intelligence tests. "There are some moral qualities which we have not yet learned to measure, and these are an absolute necessity to leadership. Among them are industry and perseverance, for leadership can never be attained by the indolent and the weak-willed."

Touching on recent and local issues he remarked that "one need only to look at the inanities of a political campaign—I am not mentioning any by name—or the controversies and gyrations of the Modernists and Fundamentalists, to know that emotionalism, sentimentality, irrationality, and cave-man superstitions persist in the twentieth century."

Professor Helen Gray Cone of Hunter College read a fine poem on "Youth and Age."

A resolution passed unanimously declares it to be the policy of the Society not to enter institutions where freedom of teaching is not allowed.

The following Cornellians had a part in the work of the Council: Professor Henry C. Stancliff '89, delegate from the Cornell College Chapter; Professor John P. Deane '90, delegate from the Beloit College Chapter; Professor Edwin Mims, Ph. D. '00, delegate from the Vanderbilt Chapter; Professor Clark S. Northup '93, delegate from the Cornell Chapter; Professor William H. Glasson '96, delegate from the Duke University Chapter; Professor Thomas W. Lingle, '94-6 Grad., delegate from the Davidson College Chapter; Trustee Graves; Mrs. Dale B. Carson (Laura E. Cook) '13, a member of the New York Committee of Twenty-one; Professor Ferdinand C. French, Ph. D. '92, delegate from the Colgate Chapter; and Mrs. Chester Roberts (Abby M. Hall) '93, delegate from the Swarthmore Chapter.

ALUMNI NOTES

'73—After thirty-three years' service as chaplain of the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon, Pa., Samuel F. Forgeus recently resigned and was placed on the rolls of the State Employees' Retirement Fund. He lives at 810 Mifflin Street, Huntingdon.

'90 BSArch—At the October meeting of the Architectural League of New York, Alexander B. Trowbridge was elected president. The league includes in its membership architectural engineers, mural and decorative painters, sculptors, landscape architects, craftsmen, and designers. It is the only organization of its kind in New York and one of the oldest and strongest in America, having been founded in 1881.

'92 AB—Dr. Clyde A. Duniway is professor of history at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., and is also serving as an elector of the Hall of Fame.

'92 ME—Major Henry C. Nelson is a designing engineer with the General Electric Company at Pittsfield, Mass. His address there is 203 Pomeroy Avenue.

'94 DSc—On September 14, Dr. Ephraim P. Felt, of Albany, N. Y., completed thirty years of service in the New York State Department of Entomology.

'96 PhB—William H. Glasson is professor of economics at Duke University, Durham, N. C., and is living at 710 Buchanan Road. In September he represented Duke University at the fifteenth national Council of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa in New York. He reports that the expansion program of Duke (formerly Trinity College) is now under way, and that the George A. Fuller Company of New York has started erecting eleven new buildings to cost about four millions when equipped. The plan is being carried out in the American colonial style. He adds that many important additions to the faculty have already been made, and that others will follow as the reorganization plans progress.

'96 BL—Walter G. Pietsch writes in to say that he is associated in the advertising business in Chicago with Fred M. Randall '00. He also says that his golf game was worse than ever this year. His address is 619 Dartmouth Place, Evanston, Ill.

'00 BS—Fred M. Randall, president of the Cornell University Association of Michigan, has been appointed general chairman of the Washington Service Bureau of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. He heads the Fred M. Randall Company, advertising agency, with offices in Chicago and Detroit.
