War Book Ready

Record of 8,551 Cornellians Who Served in American and Allied Armies Included

A task which the University set itself soon after America entered the war, the publication of Cornell's war records, is now completed. Copies of "Military Records of Cornell University in the World War" will be distributed to advance subscribers early in October and 1,200 additional copies will then be offered for sale. The post-publication price is $5.00. Orders should be sent to the Alumni Office, 31 Morrill Hall, and cheques and drafts should be made payable to Cornell University.

This book, edited by the late Martin Wright Sampson, contains 640 pages and records the service of 8,851 Cornellians in the military establishments of this country and its allies during the four years of conflict. It supplies, in a separate chapter, brief biographies of the 264 men who lost their lives in consequence of their service. Two additional listings of all the names are also made,—one according to graduation classes and the other under the general heading of Decorations.

In this latter chapter it is found that Cornell men received practically every honor that the various nations had to bestow. The decorations listed range from the Congressional Medal of Honor and the British Order of St. Michael and St. George, awarded by the highest authorities, to citations for bravery awarded by brigade and regimental commanders at the front. The page devoted to the Legion of Honor alone contains twenty-three names and there were forty-seven Distinguished Service Crosses given to Cornell men. Four Cornellians gained the designation of Ace by the commander-in-chief and one the peculiar distinction of Military Aviator. Even such distant countries as Greece, Montenegro, Russia, and Japan found honors to bestow.

The ranks held in the several establishments by Cornell men are as diverse as the decorations they received. A tabulation recently made of the names in "Military Records" discloses that in the armies of the Allies Cornell had one major general, two brigadiers, 44 colonels, 77 lieutenant colonels, 310 majors, 906 captains, 1,183 first lieutenants, 1,225 second lieutenants, 592 sergeants, 295 corporals, and 1,031 privates; in the navies, one commodore, six captains, three commanders, 22 lieutenants commanders, 79 lieutenants, 129 lieutenants, junior grade, 435 ensigns, 357 warrant officers, and 167 seamen; and in the United States Marine Corps four majors, three captains, three first lieutenants, nine second lieutenants, 17 sergeants, six corporals, and 26 privates. A further study of the material in the book reveals that Cornell men were present at every major operation in which the American Expeditionary Forces participated, and at many which preceded the arrival of the American armies in France. One Cornellian was on the Russian front during the first year of the war and several served continuously with the Canadians and British from the beginning until the end.

The story of the Cornell dead, told by means of short biographical accounts in the first chapter of "Military Records" is one of deep interest. Deeds of great valor find utterance in the terse language of official reports and in letters written at the front by comrades. The following is typical: "Lieutenant Suiter, with Second Lieutenant Guy E. Morse, observer, fearlessly volunteered for the perilous mission of locating the enemy's advance unit in the rear of the Hindenburg line. Disregarding the hail of machine-gun fire and bursting anti-aircraft shells, they invaded the enemy territory at a low altitude and accomplished their mission, securing for our staff information of the greatest importance. These two gallant officers at once returned to the lines and undertook another reconnaissance mission, from which they failed to return."

Of the 264 men who lost their lives, 88 were killed in action, or died of wounds. The battle of the Meuse-Argonne alone claimed 33. Forty-eight were killed in airplane accidents in this country and abroad, and 104 died of disease.

"This book," wrote Professor Sampson in his introduction, "is a recognition of duty honorably done and for the most part gladly done. For whatever of horror war breeds, it is clear that the call to take up arms in behalf of one's country stirs in the hearts of most men their uttermost of unselfishness and self-

Will Call on Alumni

Ray S. Ashbery '25 Appointed Field Secretary—Foster Coffins Assistant for Five Years

Ray S. Ashbery '25, who for the last five years has been the assistant director at Willard Straight Hall, has been appointed Alumni Field Secretary of the University. His principal duties, as the name of his office implies, will be to visit clubs and other groups of alumni in various parts of the country. On these trips he will assist in the formation of new clubs in those sections where the alumni are not already organized.

Ashbery will be attached to the office of Foster M. Coffin '12, Alumni Representative of the University and secretary of the Alumni Corporation. A substantial part of Ashbery's duties will include assistance in these two offices.

The new Alumni Field Secretary, who has taken office as of September 1, was an active undergraduate and during his five years at Willard Straight Hall has had close contact with alumni affairs. Before coming to Willard Straight he was assistant graduate manager of the Athletic Association. He graduated in 1925 with the degree of B.S., and while at Willard Straight Hall has been studying law. He is a member of Delta Upsilon and Quill and Dagger, was a member of the Student Council, manager of the lacrosse team, and a member of other undergraduate organizations and committees.

POLAND HONORS BULLIS '09

Lt. Col. H. Edmund Bullis '09, who organized and directed the Pulaski Memorial Celebrations which were held throughout the country last October, has been honored by the Republic of Poland for his services in promoting Polish-American friendship. Tytus Filipowicz, Polish ambassador to the United States, decorated Bullis at ceremonies at the Polish embassy with the Polish Order, Polonia Restituta, officer grade. This is the second decoration Colonel Bullis has received from Poland. The Military Mission from that country, attending the American Legion convention at Louisville last fall, presented him with the Military Commemorative Medal of Poland.

ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL OFF TO GOOD START

Football practice got under way on Monday, September 8, and by the end of the week practically all of the varsity possibilities were on hand. Coach Gilmour Dobie, who begins his eleventh year as head coach, expressed satisfaction at the progress made in the opening days and the willingness and spirit of the squad.

The impression seems to be general that the season opens under more favorable conditions than last year, and in a better football atmosphere. The first week was given over to the usual conditioning practices and a number of tentative teams were organized.

The staff assisting Coach Dobie consists of Thomas F. Fennell, '3d, '26, Eugene P. Balderston, Jr., '28, and Frederick J. Wramplemeier '29, who served in a similar capacity last fall and James P. Tattersfield '30 and Arthur B. Towson '30, members of the team in the last two years.

Letter men out include Captain Paul N. Hunt, Bruce W. Hackstaff, and Irving V. Tullar, guards; Cristobal M. Martinez-Zorrilla, tackle; Samuel O. Claggett and Francis A. Lueder, ends; George C. Wallace and Herbert J. Reikert, centers; and Miles R. Stevens and Lester M. Handleman, backs. Substitutes from last year in uniform include George H. Cornish, back, John E. Estabrook, center, Albert L. Larsen, tackle, Jose C. Martinez-Zorrilla and George O. Young, ends, and Sidney P. Skokos, back.

Letter men from last year missing are Samuel Wakeman, tackle, Robert E. Alexander, end, Norman E. Scott, Howard S. Johnson, and Joseph J. Kanich, backs. Henry F. Rousseau and Amos G. Allen, ends last year, may be available and possibly also Mauritz I. Johnson, back.

The freshman team from last season has contributed Penny, center, George and Lundin, tackles, Hochbaum, end, Abbott, guard, and Beall, Beyer, Viviano Lipinski, Nieman, and Smith, backs, besides several others.

Early developments indicate that Lueder, Claggett, Jose Martinez-Zorrilla, Hochbaum, and Young are among the leading candidates for the end positions. Outstanding among the tackle candidates are Cristobal Martinez-Zorrilla, Larsen, George, and Lundin. Hunt, Tullar, Hackstaff, and Abbott head-up the guards and Wallace and Penny the centers. Three sets of backs are in the picture. They include Stevens, Handleman, Beyer, Skokos, Smith, Beall, Nieman and Lipinski.

The season opens on September 27 with Clarkson Tech as opponent.

Henry H. Wing '81, emeritus professor of animal husbandry, was elected president of the Holstein-Friesian Breeders Association of America at the annual convention in Denver, Col., recently.

MILK PRICES JUSTIFIED

Testifying in a hearing on higher milk prices conducted in New York recently, Professor George F. Warren '04 of the Department of Agricultural Economics and H. Edward Babcock, former member of the College of Agriculture Faculty, said that increased milk prices for farmers are justified by increased costs of production resulting from the drought.

Babcock said that farmers are feeding their herds twenty-five per cent more grain than at this time last year, because of the poor condition of natural feed. Dr. Warren said that a survey showed that in fifteen representative dairying counties in New York State pasturage was only fifty-three per cent usable.

sacrifice. It was in such spirit that the vast majority of Cornell men went into the armed service, and it was in such spirit that they quietly did the duty that came their way. Cornell University offers to each of them her heartfelt gratitude, and lets this book stand as tribute to her loyal sons."

SUMMER SESSION SUCCESSFUL

The Summer Session closed August 15, and although the attendance of 2,200 was below last year's registration, the Session was one of the most successful, according to Professor Riverda H. Jordan, director. More than forty per cent of the students were engaged in graduate work, and there was a decrease in the number of undergraduates attending.

ON HOOVER'S DROUGHT BOARD

Henry M. Robinson '90, president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, is serving as a member of President Hoover's national Drought Relief Committee. He headed a subcommittee of bankers investigating ways and means of expanding credit facilities to benefit farmers in drought-stricken States.

STATE CONVENTION CHAIRMAN

Frank H. Hiscock '75, chairman of the Board of Trustees and former chief justice of the New York State Court of Appeals, has been named permanent chairman of the Republican State Convention at Albany September 29 and 30.

POULTRY CONGRESS HELD

Professor James E. Rice '90, Gustave F. Heuser '15, and Leland E. Weaver '18 of the College of Agriculture sailed from Montreal July 12 for London to attend the Fourth World Poultry Congress. More than fifty countries were to be represented at the Congress, held under the auspices of the British Government.

HONOR PROFESSOR WILCOX

Professor Walter F. Willcox of the Department of Economics is one of two United States delegates to the nineteenth session of the International Statistical Institute in Tokyo, Japan, this month. With Professor W. M. Persons of Harvard he sailed from San Francisco August 2.

Professor Willcox has been a member of the Institute for thirty years, and for seven years one of the Institute's three vice-presidents. At the meeting he will present a paper on "Population of China and Its Increase since the Seventeenth Century." He intends to return by way of Europe.

World Conference Here

Agriculture Economists From Many Countries Hold Session—Leonard K. Elmhirst New President

Agricultural economists from all over the world were at Cornell for two weeks in August, studying and discussing problems of agriculture and marketing. The meeting attracted 300 men and was known as the Second International Conference of Agricultural Economists.

Leonard K. Elmhirst '21 of England was elected president at the closing session. Elmhirst was responsible for the organization of the conference in England last year.

Dean Albert R. Mann '04 of the College of Agriculture welcomed the delegates. Throughout the two weeks' session many papers on important subjects in the field of agricultural economics were presented.

Dean Mann told the delegates that "possibly in no other field of agriculture is the need for comprehensive, international acquaintance and collaboration more likely to prove fruitful than in the fields of agricultural economics, much of the exploration in which requires accurate and general and special economic materials and processes on a world basis."

Professor George F. Warren '04 was named first vice-president at the elections; Dr. Max Sering of Germany, second vice-president, and J. R. Currie of England, secretary-treasurer.

SAYS RUSSIA IS GAINING

Thomas D. Campbell, '04-05 Grad., Hardin, Mont., agricultural expert who has been advising the Soviet Government, returned to America last month and declared that Russia would be, in a few years, a greater commercial competitor than any of the other nations of the world today realize.

Three years from now, he said, Russia will be an important factor in the exportation of farm produce. The big problem today is the transportation of this produce.

HOME FROM WORLD TOUR

Professor Bristow Adams, editor of publications in the College of Agriculture, returned to Ithaca on August 16 from a tour around the world. He was at the University of Hawaii several months organizing a publications office and an information service similar to those at Cornell.

Professor Adams spoke before Cornell clubs at Los Angeles, Oakland, Honolulu, and Manila. After his stay in Hawaii, he returned to Ithaca by way of Asia and Europe.

BOOKS

A TALE OF CHINA

East Wind, West Wind. By Mrs. Pearl S. Buck, A.M. '25. New York. John Day. 1930. 19.6 cm., pp. vi, 277. Price, $2.50.

We have here a remarkable picture of Chinese life, involving two great problems of the modern Orient, that of intermarriage of members of the white and yellow races and that of the revolt against the ancient traditions and ancient customs, of Chinese youth educated in the Western world.

The author deals with these problems with skill and remarkable understanding. Although an American with Western standards and ideals, she possesses to a marked degree appreciation of the dignity and beauty of these age-old Oriental conceptions of the supremacy of clan and family over the individual.

Kewi-Lan, daughter of a prominent Chinese official, relates the events of the story in confidence to an intimate friend, a white woman.

The picture of her childhood and that of her brother, the latter separated from her and made to live in the men's quarters at the age of nine, is realistic and beautiful, but always marked by pathos.

The mother, a tragic figure, disillusioned, resigned, stern, yet devoted to her family and its interests, centers her devotion upon the only son, who, handsome and spirited, persuades his father to allow him to go away to the University at Peking, and later to America, to continue his studies. Later, he writes from America that he has taken an American wife, the daughter of one of his professors. To the parents this is the direst calamity. He is summoned home and threatened with disinheritance unless he gives up his foreign wife and marries the Chinese girl to whom he was betrothed in childhood.

Meanwhile Kewi-Lan is struggling to adjust herself to her own domestic situation. Brought up in the most conservative Oriental manner, trained to submissiveness and drilled in all the arts to please the masculine mood, she finds herself married to a man educated in America and imbued to with Western ideals, indifferent to all her cherished charms, and wishing in his wife a companion and not a mere ornament or toy. A little son is born, to the great delight of both parents, but also adding complications to the domestic problem. The father is a physician trained in modern science; the mother is versed in the superstitions and ancient rites of China. Their mutual problem and its gradual solution makes, however, a very beautiful and delightfully human story.

The author has indeed handled a difficult theme with rare delicacy and artistry

BOOKS AND MAGAZINE ARTICLES

In The Mount Holyoke Alumnae Quarterly for July Professor Ann H. Morgan '06 of Mt. Holyoke reviews John M. Warbeke, The Searching Mind of Greece. Professor Morgan published last year, through the Slingerland-Comstock Company of Ithaca, Common Water Insects: a Field Study Guide. This year she has published through Putnam's A Field Book of Ponds and Streams: an Introduction to Fresh Water Biology.

The Cornell Civil Engineer for June includes the annual directory of the School of Civil Engineering, containing the names of 2851 living graduates. 293 graduates have died; this brings the total graduate membership to 2558. There is an obituary of William J. Krome '99.

A supplement to the June issue of The Cornell Law Quarterly is devoted to the American Law Institute's Restatement of the Law of Contracts, Sections 175-303, with annotations to the New York decisions by Professor Horace E. Whiteside '22, in cooperation with a committee of the Law School Faculty.

The Alumnae News of the North Carolina College for Women for July includes the commencement address on "Adventuring Beyond College Walls" delivered there on June 9 by Professor Thomas V. Smith of the University of Chicago, who comes to Cornell this fall.

In The Washington Alumnus for July Professor Edward G. Cox, A.M. '01, Ph.D. '06, Naming Day in the Garden of Eden is reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht.

In The Journal of Physical Chemistry for August Professor Wilder D. Bancroft and John W. Ackerman present "A Study of a Methyl-Violet Lake." With Herbert L. Davis Professor Bancroft studies "The Influence of Substituents on Indicators." He also reviews Frank S. Taylor, Elemental Practical Physical Chemistry and Arthur E. Kennelly, Vestiges of Pre-Metric Weights and Measures.

In The Journal of Physical Chemistry for September Professor Wilder D. Bancroft and Charles E. Barnett, Grad., continue their "Phase Rule Studies of the Proteins." Professor Thomas R. Briggs '09, Ph.D. '13, J. A. Greenawald, and James W. Leonard '30 discuss "The Polyiodides of Cesium: Cesium Iodide, Iodine and Water at 25°." David B. Hand '30, Grad., writes on "Dimeric Distribution." Professor Bancroft and Burton C. Belden, Grad., study "Aniline and Hydrogen Sulphide." Professor Bancroft reviews Horace G. Deming, In the Realm of Carbon. Herbert L. Davis reviews the seventh revised English edition of A. F. Holleman and Herman C. Cooper, A Textbook of Inorganic Chemistry.

In The Colgate Alumni News for July Professor Stanley E. Baldwin, Ph.D. '25, of Colgate reviews Maxim Gorky, The Bystander.

Martin Sampson Dies

*Head of English Department Since 1909—
Organized Cornell Unit That Took
Flag to Front in 1917*

Martin Wright Sampson, professor of English in the College of Arts and Science since 1909, head of the English Department since then, and Goldwin Smith Professor of English Literature since 1912, died in Latrobe Hospital, Latrobe, Pa., on August 22 of a fractured skull suffered in an automobile accident the day before. He was sixty-three years of age.

The accident occurred during a motor trip with his son, Stephen. They were on their way to Cincinnati, and on a steep mountain grade on the Lincoln Highway near Laughlinton, Pa., a sudden application of the brakes sent the car across the road into an embankment.

Professor Sampson came to Cornell in 1908 as acting professor of English from Indiana University, and soon became one of the most prominent members of the Faculty. He was born in Cincinnati September 7, 1866, the son of William S. Sampson, Jr., and Virginia Ada (Wright) Sampson. He studied at the University of Munich and at the University of Cincinnati, where he took his A.B. and A.M. degrees. He did graduate work in Germany, France, England, and Ireland.

From 1889 to 1891, he was first instructor and then assistant professor of English at the University of Iowa. During the following year he taught at Stanford. For the next thirteen years he was professor of English at Indiana.

Professor Sampson made himself a part of Cornell in many ways, so much so that the Class of 1912 made him an honorary member, and he was always seen wearing the class costume at reunions.

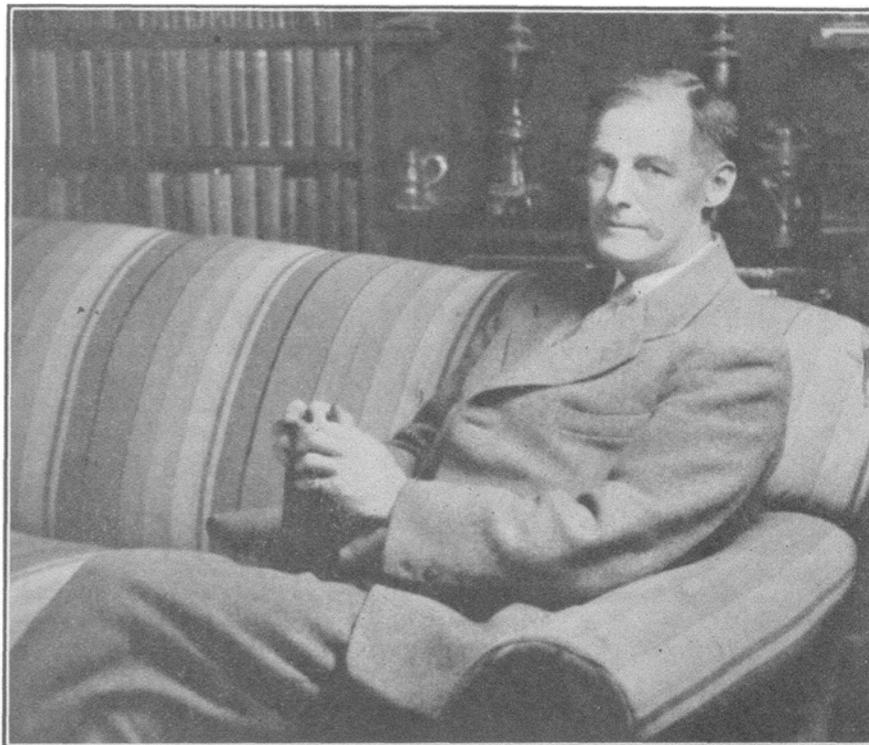

He edited a number of works in the field of English literature, notably the poems of Milton. He was well known for his original writings, including stories for children, plays, satires, and poetry. He was frequently asked to read from his own writings.

A series of stories for boys and girls, in a volume entitled The Good Giant, appearing in 1928, was one of the popular juveniles of that year. Since January, he wrote for The Alumni News a column, "The Swinging Bridge."

He was a founder of the Manuscript Club, made up of young writers, and was host to the group at his home each Saturday evening during the school year. He founded in 1909 the Sampson Fine Arts Prize, given annually to a student who showed the most intelligent appreciation of the graphic and plastic arts and of photography.

In recent years, he conducted a reading course in English literature for students in the College of Engineering. This course was an innovation in the curriculum and met with great favor.

During the war, Professor Sampson was instrumental in raising a fund for the Cornell unit of the American Ambulance Field Service. This group had the distinction of being the first to get to the front under the American flag. Just before his death, he completed editing Military Records of Cornell University in the World War. ## TWO ON GERARD'S LIST

When James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, recently named fifty-nine men who, in his opinion, "rule the United States," he included the names of two Cornellians.

Mr. Gerard explained that the actual power behind the throne is wielded by men whose wealth and important industrial positions in the nation give them a permanent influence in American life.

The Cornellians included:

Walter C. Teagle, '00, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and a newly-elected member of the executive committee of the Cornellian Council.

Myron C. Taylor '94, Trustee, chairman of the Finance Committee of the United States Steel Corporation, and donor of Myron Taylor Hall, now in course of construction as the new home of the Law School.

Also in the list were George F. Baker, donor of Baker Laboratory of Chemistry and halls in the men's dormitory group, and Charles M. Schwab, Trustee.

Anna Botsford Comstock

*Beloved Cornellian Dies in 76th Year—
Generations of Former Students
Called Her Friend*

Anna Botsford Comstock '85, emeritus professor of nature study, well-known wood engraver, and author, and one of the best-loved members of the Ithaca community, died at her home at 123 Roberts Place on August 31. Although she had been in failing health for over a year, she had completed a series of lectures in the Summer Session.

ANNA BOTSFORD COMSTOCK

Mrs. Comstock, with her husband, the distinguished entomologist, John Henry Comstock '74, was known and loved by many generations of Cornellians all over the world, both for her human qualities and her achievements. Their home was a center of hospitality not only for students of entomology and nature study but for many other undergraduates and alumni.

She was born on September 1, 1854, on a farm in Cattaraugus County, N. Y., of pioneer parents. She was educated at home and in the village school at Otto, before she attended the Chamberlain Institute at Randolph. After graduation she taught a year and then came to Cornell in 1875, remaining a year. She was then away until 1883, when she returned, receiving the degree of B.S. in 1886.

In 1879 she was married to John Henry Comstock. He became entomologist in the United States Department of Agriculture in 1879, and Mrs. Comstock began assisting him in his work. She illustrated his reports upon the scale insects of citrus fruits, and her work won her a position as assistant in the Entomological Division, which she held until their return to Ithaca.

When Professor Comstock projected a manual for the study of insects, Mrs.

Comstock learned the art of wood engraving in order to illustrate the book. She became so skillful at this work that she was elected to the Society of American Wood Engravers and to the special section of original engravers. At the Buffalo Exposition she was awarded a bronze medal for her work.

In 1896 Mrs. Comstock was asked to assist in the work of introducing nature study into the rural schools, and was made an assistant professor in the Extension Department of the University. She became a regular lecturer on nature subjects, and in 1920 was made a full professor.

The Handbook of Nature Study, a volume of more than 900 pages, was an outgrowth of her work with school teachers in the State. The book has gone through fifteen editions and is in use all over the world.

In 1917 Mrs. Comstock became editor of The Nature Study Review. She is the author of many nature stories in periodicals for children. Her books include Ways of the Six-Footed, How to Know the Butterfly, How to Keep Bees, Confessions to a Heathen Idol, The Pet Book, and Bird, Animal, Tree, and Plant Notebooks. With her husband she established the Comstock Publishing Company which furnishes nature textbooks and loose leaf studies to teachers and training schools all over the world.

She was an associate director of the American Nature Association, and a member of the Society of American Wood Engravers, and Sigma Xi. She was also active in the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs. Mrs. Comstock had been president since its founding, of the Iota Corporation of Kappa Alpha Theta. In 1923 she was selected by the National League of Women Voters as one of the twelve most famous living American women. She was a Trustee of Smith College and this summer she received an honorary degree from Hobart.

She was also interested in the Girl Scout movement, and the Ithaca camp on Cayuga Lake is named Camp Anna Bostford Comstock in her honor.

Emeritus Professor Liberty Hyde Bailey, former dean of the College of Agriculture, said of her: "Anna Botsford Comstock blessed us all. She leaves a fragrant memory of high achievement, noble service, unselfish cooperation, constructive counsel, inspired teaching, loving kindness, and unforgettable companionship. Her life was a poem."

Mrs. Comstock is survived by her husband.

LIBERTY HYDE BAILEY, dean emeritus of the College of Agriculture, was named an honorary vice-president of the Fifth International Botanical Congress at Cambridge, England, during August

THE WEEK ON THE CAMPUS

IT IS a melancholy and grievous duty to record the deaths of Anna Botsford Comstock and Martin Wright Sampson. Those of us who sat in Sage Chapel on the tragic morning of August 26, listening while the bodies of our friends were commended to the earth and their souls to eternal life, were assailed by many an all-too-poignant memory. If Cornell has an meaning, that meaning is due to Anna Comstock and Martin Sampson and their like, who attained wisdom by way of learning, and were inspired with a single zeal for communicating their wisdom to others. For each of them scholarship was a vital thing; prizing it as they did, they could find no better exercise of their time and strength than in giving it away. They were true teachers; and for this reason there are thousands of us, up and down the country, who humbly confess ourselves their disciples. Something of their spirit has passed into ours, to be passed on further; it is a kind of immortality.

THE MONTH just past is the exanguined winter of the scholastic year. From the fifteenth of August, Summer School's end, until after Labor Day only a little furtive activity was to be observed about Morrill Hall and Willard Straight, where a semblance of life was preserved with the Conventions of Agricultural Economists and the Alpha Chi Rho Fraternity. The attendance in Willard Straight cafeteria dwindled to a thin trickle of officials of the Administration, graduate students finishing their theses against September examination dates, Faculty members of unusual fidelity or impecuniousness, and a sprinkling of students in the second Summer School of Law. This last group dispersed on September 5; and about the same date appeared a few early sub-frosh, tutoring for the fall entrance exams. On September 8 the football squad began work; publication and other business managers and competitors disembarked to interview advertisers and attend to the printing of blanks with spaces for signatures; red-and-white laundry-compet hats began to burgeon forth. These are the first signs of the Spring of the University year 62.

THE SUMMER has brought its changes. The Plant Industry Building is almost finished; at last it gives proper housing to our famous Botany and allied Departments. A new heating plant has been put up, to care for the increase in buildings on the Campus. Beside the heating plant stands the new laundry, which will do the University's work and also the laundry of the women students. The Music Department is now installed in a remodeled house on Wait Avenue, beside Balch Halls, which includes a good-sized auditorium and a sound-proof stage for broadcasting purposes. In the Library, the Economics Seminary has been converted into sorely-needed book-storage space. But of course the most sensational change in our outward aspect is the colossal shell-hole which is to be Myron Taylor Hall, the new Law School building.

SUMMER SCHOOL seems to be undergoing a gradual change. There are not so many high-spirited frolickers who like a little spot of culture with their vacation. There is a constant increase in the numbers taking graduate work; the proportion this summer was between 40 and 50 per cent. There does seem to be a relation between the serenity of learning and moral immaculateness; the Committee on Student Affairs did not assemble during the summer term, for the first time in the history of an Ithaca summer.

PERHAPS the new swimming pool had something to do with the summer scholars' impeccability. You can't go far wrong when you are in water up to your neck. On Sundays more than 800 bathers were on hand, while on week days the crowds ran around 600. Next year we may have floodlights for night bathing, with the whole of Beebe Lake available for boating.

THE STATE is creating a new lake at the head end of Buttermilk Falls State Park; it is to serve as a storage basin to increase the flow of water over the falls, and is also to be a recreation center, with boating, fishing, and bathing. A concrete dam 36 feet high will impound water enough to make a lake half a mile long and 20 acres in extent.

PROFESSOR JULIAN P. BRETZ, professor of American history, is to be the Democratic nominee for Congress from this Congressional district, which includes five counties of the Southern Tier. This is pretty exciting to those of us who feel that the professorial class should demonstrate its theories by putting them into practice, and who regret that students and faculty alike abstain a thought too smugly from practical politics. Professor Charles L. Durham '99 of the Department of Classics has run for Congressman from this district, and Professor Vladimir Karapetoff of the Department of Electrical Engineering has run for almost everything on the Socialist ticket. Professor Bretz will carry the Campus, but this district has been unflinchingly Republican ever since the days of Hugo N. Frye.

DR. RICHARD S. UHRBROCK, in charge of the instruction in psychology and personnel administration in the School of Hotel Administration, is to leave us to become director of personnel research in the Division of Industrial Relations of the Procter and Gamble Company in Cincinnati. Dr. Uhrbrock, in his two and a half years here, has proved himself one of our most energetic and capable teachers, and enjoys the esteem of his colleagues and the warm regard of his students.

PROFESSOR BRISTOW ADAMS of the College of Agriculture and Professor Oscar D. vonEngeln '08 of the Department of Geology, with Mrs. von Engeln, have returned from their respective journeys around the world.

L. H. ANON, the mysterious donor of a cashier's check for $20,000 to the University last year, has sent President Farrand another cashier's check, with a typewritten note specifying that the money be used for the Engineering College. "The wishes of the donor as to anonymity and the use of the funds will be carried out," said President Farrand; so we had better not do any guessing.

A PECULIARLY horrible murder was committed here on September 9. The victim was Mrs. Alice Barnes, colored; the presumable culprit was George, "Curly" Barnes, her husband, chef at Kappa Sigma. The crime was apparently the conclusion of a quarrel; the weapon was an axe. Barnes fled, and although the crime was immediately discovered, he succeeded in eluding the police and volunteer searchers for thirty-six hours, hiding mostly on the slopes below University Avenue and venturing into the city to buy food and an Ithaca Journal-News, certainly an indication that that peerless periodical is truly indispensable. He was finally run to earth and taken to the police station. If a further touch of drama were needed, it was provided by the ensuing calamity. Patrolman Levi M. Spaulding, one of the oldest members of the force, the colored policeman long on duty at Aurora and State Streets, unlocked the captive's handcuffs—and dropped dead! By a curious coincidence, Spaulding was the owner of the house in which the murder occurred.

WHEN THE PRESS representative tried to photograph the presumed murderer, Curly Barnes protested vigorously. He would not permit the photograph to be taken until he had brushed his hair and picked the burdocks from his clothes.

"AT NO TIME was I really ill, but I constantly tasted something unpleasant. There were moments when I thought it was a lamb's kidney eaten in Glasgow. There were others when I felt sure it was one of my own. . . . A man can be quiet and polite in a foreign land, but the human stomach is a blatantly patriotic organ! —R. B. Abroad and At Home, in The Ithaca Journal-News. M. G. B.

Martin Sampson Dies

Professor Sampson was a joint author with E. O. Holland of a text book entitled Written and Oral Composition. He was a translator of Singer's Dresden Gallery, and editor of Milton's Lyric and Dramatic Poems, Plays of John Webster, Mrs. Gaskell's Cranford, Irving's Sketch Book, Milton's Minor Poems, Shakespeare's Two Gentlemen of Verona, Middleton's Plays, Selections from Milton, and James' Daisy Miller. He was also a contributor to literary journals, and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Sigma, and Quill and Dagger. He was a trustee of Wells College.

In 1910 Professor Sampson married Julia Dauchy Pattison of Troy, who survives him. He also leaves four children, Stephen Hastings, Martin Wright, Margaret Virginia, and Edward Coolidge; and two brothers, Wright and William Sampson.

OBITUARIES

ALONZO CHASE '72

Alonzo Chase, until his retirement a banker in Redfield, S. D., died in Beverley Hills, Calif., on March 21. He was born in Providence, R. I., ninety-one years ago, the son of Thomas and Lucretia Cornell Chase. His mother was a sister of Ezra Cornell, and his wife, Cordelia Wood Chase, was a sister of Mrs. Ezra Cornell. Mrs. Chase took two years of chemistry. Before settling in Redfield he was a mining engineer and did chemical research on photolithography.

JAMES H. EDWARDS '88

James Harvey Edwards, chief engineer of the American Bridge Company and for fifteen years (1906-21) an Alumni Trustee of the University, died suddenly on August 14 at his home in New York. He received the degree of C.E., was president of the sophomore class and a member of Delta Upsilon and Sigma Xi. He had been with the American Bridge Company since its founding in 1900.

ADDISON W. MOORE '94

Addison Webster Moore, professor emeritus of philosophy at the University of Chicago, died in London on August 25. He was born in Plainfield, Ind., on July 30, 1866. He took a year of graduate work at Cornell, and received the degree of Ph.D. at Chicago, where he was a member of the faculty from 1895 until his death.

EDGAR WOOD '95

Edgar Wood, a prominent educator in Hawaii, died on July 16, 1928. He was born in Parrasboro, Nova Scotia, on September 16, 1861, the son of Alexander and Margaret Fullerton Wood. He attended Acadia College and took one year of arts at Cornell, receiving the degree of A.B. He later received the degrees of A.M. in science from the University of Mount Allison and of A.M. from Columbia. Mr. Wood had been teaching in Honolulu since 1896 and for more than twenty years was principal of the Territorial Normal and Training School.

LESLIE R. PALMER '97

Leslie Richard Palmer, president of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Yonkers, N. Y., and formerly a prominent lawyer and real estate operator, died of heart disease on August 31, in New York.

He was born in Walden, N. Y., in 1877, the son of Richard and Anna Dickinson Palmer. He received the degrees of Ph.B. and LL.B., and was a member of Phi Delta Phi. His wife, Mrs. Edith Suplee Palmer, and two sons survive him.

WILLIAM E. CARROLL '01

William Edward Carroll, superintendent of the High Pressure Water System of the San Francisco Fire Department, died at his home there on May 31, of heart disease. He was born in San Francisco on June 29, 1870, the son of William V. and Mary Sullivan Carroll. He took a year of special engineering. His wife, Mrs. Charlotte Castle Carroll, three daughters, and a son survive him.

JEANETTE STERN PRICE '10

Jeanette Amalie Stern (Mrs. Walter H.) Price died at the Mountainside Hospital in Montclair, N. J., on July 23 of injuries received in an automobile accident. She was born in Hornell, N. Y., on April 17, 1889, the daughter of Leopold and Julie L. Stern. She received the degree of A.B. and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Her husband, a son, two daughters, a sister, Miss Bessie C. Stern '09, and a brother, Arthur L. Stern '17, survive her.

WALTER M. GARRIGUES '11

Walter M(cKinley) Garrigues, assistant general manager of sales in the alloy steel division of the Republic Steel Corporation, died suddenly of angina pectoris at his cottage at Turkeyfoot Lake, Ohio, on July 15. He was born in Massillon, Ohio, on March 12, 1889, the son of Edmund and Augusta C. Garrigues. He received the degree of M.E. His father, his wife, Mrs. Miriam L. Garrigues, two sons, and a daughter, survive him.

CHARLES T. SOMERBY '13

Charles Thomas Somerby, an executive of the Uppercu Cadillac Corporation in Newark, N. J., died at his home there on August 20, after a four-days' illness of blood poisoning. He was born in Scituate, Mass., forty-one years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Somerby. He took a year of mechanical engineering. His wife, Mrs. Marjory Perrine Somerby, and his father survive him.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

PUBLICATIONS ON TOP

Cornell publications of the College of Agriculture won first place in competition with publications of colleges all over the United States at the seventeenth annual meeting of the American Association of Agricultural College Editors at the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., August 28.

Cornell won awards in seven of the thirteen classes comprising the display. First prizes were given for the best circular letter, written by F. H. Morris of the office of State leader of farm bureaus; for the best radio service, conducted by Charles A. Taylor '14, and for the best poster for use in a campaign for dairy herd improvement. Professor Bristow Adams designed the poster.

CORNELLIAN INVENTS PROCESS

CHANGING SOFT TO HARD COAL

A new process whereby bituminous coal can be converted into a high-grade anthracite coal on a commercial basis has been invented by Clarence S. Lomax '91. A plant for the conversion process was opened August 16 in Chicago.

The new process was developed after eight years' experimentation, and it is said to duplicate in a few hours the work of millions of years by Nature. Low temperature carbonization is the secret.

The factory manufacturing the product has a capacity of 600 tons a day. The bituminous material has a volatility of thirty per cent, but the new process reduces the volatility to twelve per cent.

Lomax is the inventor of the coke oven and numerous other chemical inventions.

FARM LEADERS MEET HERE

Charles S. Wilson '04, former professor in the College of Agriculture, now a member of the Federal Farm-Board, and Alexander Legge, chairman of the Board, were guests at breakfast in Ithaca September 2.

H. Edward Babcock, also a former Faculty member, now manager of the Cooperative Grange League Federation Exchange, was host.

Other guests included Dr. Liberty Hyde Bailey, Dean Albert R. Mann '04, Professors William I. Myers '14, George F. Warren '04, and Frank B. Morrison and Dr. Carl E. Ladd '12.

NOMINATED FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Frank Haucke '17, Council Grove, Kan., won the Republican nomination for Governor of Kansas in a primary contest in August with Governor Reed. Haucke, a member of the football squad during his two years at Cornell, entered the World War immediately after his graduation in 1917, enlisting with the 108th Abulance Company.

Out of the storm

— by telephone

WITH his Western Electric radio telephone the pilot talks with the airport and receives directions for avoiding the storm.

He also hears Government weather reports and directional radio beacon signals which guide him through darkness, clouds or fog.

This equipment, keeping plane and ground in constant touch, marks a great step ahead in flying. It helps to put the new mode of travel on a dependable, efficient basis—doing for air transportation what telegraph, telephone and wireless have done for railroads and steamship lines.

The airplane telephone is backed by more than 50 years' experience with problems of voice transmission.

It was designed by Bell Telephone Laboratories and tested under actual flying conditions in their own planes. It is made with the same care and skill as all the Western Electric apparatus used by the Bell System.

Combination book offer $5.00

The Publishers of three books have combined to make you a very attractive offer. You can hardly afford to miss this. "Courtney and Cornell Rowing," "Sport Stuff," and "Concerning Cornell" (leather edition)—all for $5.00 postage paid. These are all good books for your library.

Bronze Cornell Shield mounted on an oak board $3.75

Last week we told you how we came to make this low offer. You save two dollars. The price is f. o. b. Ithaca. The five inch shield is the correct size for the average room.

Cornell Bookplates

Bookplates are selling fast. The drawings on the bookplates are of familiar places about the Campus. You identify your books and also have a pleasant reminder of Cornell. The bookplates are $1.50 per hundred. We print your name on them for $1.50 extra per hundred. The printing costs $2.00 for two hundred.

Banners $3.75 to $7.50

Pennants $1.25 to $1.75

Pillow covers $5.00

Send for a copy of the "Gift" folder. The designs are shown and the various sizes given in the folder. The CO-OP has always sold high grade felt goods. Graduates should continue to trade at the CO-OP.
