Entrance Conditions

Entrance conditions may be removed by means of Regents Examinations which are given at Cascadilla in June and in August. Preparation for these examinations may be had in classes or individually during the current semester or during the summer session. This instruction is given by teachers of special training who have acquired expertness through long experience. The school is convenient to university students and the expense for instruction is not great.

Our program offers unusual opportunities for rapid, but genuine, progress towards preparedness for college.

Cornellian Made Dean

Rufus D. Smith Appointed Head of the Washington Square College of New York University

Rufus D. Smith '07, associate dean of the Washington Square College of New York University, has been promoted to the office of dean to succeed Dr. James Buell Munn, resigned. Dean Smith takes office immediately.

Dean Smith has been connected with New York University for the past seventeen years. He is also at the present time professor of politics, director of the University Extension Division, and director of the Evening Division at Washington Square College.

The new dean after graduation served as an instructor at Cornell for two years. He then went to the University of Pittsburgh, where he became interested in charities. He was appointed assistant secretary of the Associated Charities in Pittsburgh, and in 1910 was named secretary of the Associated Charities in Montreal, Canada, and secretary of the Canadian Conference of Charities and Corrections.

In 1915, Dean Smith joined the New York University faculty as an assistant in government.

As director of the Extension Division since 1916, Dean Smith has organized several instructional centers outside New York and has established a series of adult education courses.

DEAN BAILEY IS BANQUET

GUEST OF HOME BUREAUS

Dean Liberty Hyde Bailey was the guest of honor at a dinner of the State Federation of Home Bureaus at Willard Straight Hall February 16. Dean Bailey, in his address, traced the evolution of the country life movement during his lifetime. He stressed the need of family occupancy of the land and neighborliness.

Dr. Bailey said that organization is essential to the progress of the country life movement and told how the neighborliness shown during the panic of 1873 strengthened the character of the people and gave them a priceless initiation into community service.

Mrs. Ruth Sawyer Durand, novelist, of Ithaca, paid tribute to both Dr. and Mrs. Bailey.

Mrs. William Eddy, Federation president, was toastmistress. Mrs. A. E. Brigden, donor of the Brigden Home Bureau Scholarship, presented the award to Catherine Laney '32 of Brighton.

A FLAGRANT IMPOSTOR

A youth posing as one of the Martinez-Zorrilla brothers of Ithaca has been victimizing persons in various cities of the East in recent months.

Carlos A. Martinez '05, father of Cristobal M. Martinez-Zorrilla '32 and Jose C. Martinez-Zorrilla '33, has been receiving letters from various persons asking refunds of sums loaned his son, "Ramon." The letters reveal that the youth has been posing as a member of the Martinez-Zorrilla family and has obtained money by saying he was stranded and was anxious to return to Ithaca. Letters have been received from persons in New York, Danville, Va., and Utica.

Several months ago, a young man visited Mr. Martinez here and said he was a brother of Ramon Navarro, motion picture actor.

The young man is described as a Mexican, about eighteen years old. He is well dressed, has a dark complexion, smooth black hair. He speaks with a marked Spanish accent.

Graduate Tuition Raised

Board of Trustees Also Make Provision to Equalize Fees for Summer and Winter Study

The annual tuition in the Graduate School has been raised to $150, effective July 1, 1932, by action of the Board of Trustees. The former tuition rate was $75 per year.

It is not planned to change incidental fees charged in the School.

Eventually it is expected that graduate fellowships and scholarships will be adjusted to enlarge the opportunities for graduate students.

The following are the principal additional changes which have been made in the rules governing tuition and other fees in the School:

The tuition for graduate work in the Summer Session has been set at $30 per year, except that a charge of $60 will be made for each graduate student undertaking graduate work for the first time at Cornell in a summer session.

The object of this provision is to equalize the tuition paid by a student taking graduate work wholly in summer sessions, with that paid by a student taking his work during the regular academic year. Four summer sessions are considered equivalent to one academic year, and the charge of $60 for the first summer session and the charges of $30 for each subsequent session will total $150 for the four summer terms.

Graduate students who elect to work under the personal direction of Faculty members will be required to pay a personal administration fee of $6.25, instead of $10 as in previous years.

Students registered under personal direction during the summer who desire resident credit for their work must pay tuition for the credit desired pro rata at the rate charged for the regular academic year, such payment to admit them to the current Summer Session classes without additional tuition payments. Students registered under personal direction during the summer, not for credit, are exempt from the payment of tuition, but may not attend either as visitors or for subsequent credit, any of the classes or exercises of the Summer Session.

ATHLETICS

WIN TWO MORE LEAGUE GAMES

The basketball team, winning two Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League games last week, is now tied with Dartmouth and Princeton for second place with a record of four victories and two defeats in six games. The team clicked nicely in both games.

Cornell won over Dartmouth, 28-27, in the Drill Hall February 16 and defeated Pennsylvania, 30-24, at Philadelphia February 20. Dartmouth's defeat was its first in league competition, but it also lost to Columbia February 20 at Hanover, 42-32, giving Columbia undisputed possession of first place. Yale and Pennsylvania are tied for fifth place.

The standing:

	W	L	Pts	Opp Pts
Columbia	5	1	248	169
Cornell	4	2	189	184
Dartmouth	4	2	171	146
Princeton	4	2	184	169
Yale	1	6	155	219
Pennsylvania	1	6	147	207

Cornell's victory over Dartmouth came in the last minute of play when Kopaczynski, guard, fouled by Smart, scored two free throws for the tying and winning points.

Cornell led most of the way, gaining a one-point margin at the half, and losing the lead, after a close second period, with about a minute to play. Captain McCall of Dartmouth scored a goal to give the Indians a one-point lead, 27-26, but Kopaczynski caged both tries on a foul.

Cornell started strong, scoring five points before Miller tallied for Dartmouth. The Green tied and went ahead, 7-5, on Smart's goal. Cornell spurted to score 7 points, contributed by Lipinski, Hatkoff, and Kopaczynski before Edwards and Stangle scored goals for the Indians. Cornell led at the half, 12-11.

Goals by Edwards and Stangle gave Dartmouth the lead at the start of the second period. Lipinski scored on a free throw, but Stangle's goal gave the Indians a 4-point lead. Reed, substitute Cornell forward, entered the game and promptly scored twice from the floor to tie the score at 17-17.

Hatkoff and McGraw scored to put Cornell ahead, but a rally, led by Edwards, who scored 3 goals on long shots, tied the score again at 23-all, with Kopaczynski and McGraw contributing 2 points on free throws for Cornell.

Stangle put Dartmouth ahead. Hatkoff cut the lead to one point with a free throw, and Lipinski added a basket to put Cornell ahead by a similar margin. Captain McCall of Dartmouth got loose under the basket, but Kopaczynski's shots ended the game.

Cornell had an easier time against Pennsylvania. Kopaczynski again starred, scoring 11 points. Cornell gained a one-point lead in the first half, with the score 15-14, but in the second period Pennsylvania rallied to tie the count at 18-18. Superior shooting by Cornell broke the tie, and the team widened its margin to six points as the game ended.

WRESTLERS LOSE TO LEHIGH

The wrestling team lost to Lehigh, intercollegiate champions, 19-9, at Bethlehem February 20. Cornell won three bouts on referee's decisions. Lehigh scored two falls in winning the other five matches.

Bancroft of Cornell, formerly of Oklahoma A. and M. College and one time national collegiate champion, lost to Peck of Lehigh in the 165-pound division in the feature match. Peck twice scored falls, using a bar nelson and reverse chancery, as the match went into two four-minute periods after the opponents failed to go to the mat in the first two minutes.

Lundin, Cornell heavyweight, defeated Hirshberg in the unlimited division. Twice previously, the Cornell wrestler had lost to this opponent.

Penny, Cornell's 175-pound intercollegiate champion, defeated Captain Shanker, repeating a victory he scored a year ago. Cothran, 155-pound entry, was the only other Cornellian to win.

The summaries:

118-pound class: Meixell, Lehigh, defeated Tretter on decision. Time advantage, 2:15.

126-pound class: Dalling, Lehigh, threw Lamberti with bar nelson and reverse chancery. Time, 6:00.

EASTMAN STAGE WINNERS

Albert E. Fowler, Sp., of Westfield, Mass., won the 23d annual Eastman Stage public speaking contest in Bailey Hall Feb. 18. His topic was the displacement of New England farmers by foreigners.

Clara M. S. Smith '32, Pottstown, Pa., was second. She discussed the question: "Will a College Girl Marry a Farmer?"

Other contestants were Edwin V. Hunt '33, London, England; William H. Sherman, Sp., Webster; Richard M. Putney '32, Ithaca; William H. Rothfuss '35, East Rochester.

Farm-Home Week Success

Registration of 5,271 Sets Record—Governor Roosevelt Guest Fourth Time. Lauds Cornell's "Magnificent" Service

The twenty-fifth annual Farm and Home Week, sponsored by the Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics and featured by the fourth visit in as many years of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, attracted a record registration of 5,271.

The previous high attendance was in 1930 when 5,077 registered. Last year the enrollment of visitors was 4,980.

Governor Roosevelt came to Ithaca February 18 to award master farmer medals to nine outstanding farmers in the State and remained to deliver the principal address on Friday's program in Bailey Hall February 19.

The State Executive urged the formation of local organizations "to wield the most formidable power that can be exercised" to keep down the mounting total of local expenditures. He declared that the relief in taxes afforded by State contributions to local governmental units had not been matched by similar reductions in costs by these units and that, as a result, "there was a gross, over-all increase of the cost of local government in the State outside New York City of approximately sixty-two millions of dollars."

The Governor paid tribute to the work of the University in these words:

"I am always particularly happy to find time and an occasion to speak in the halls of Cornell University, for it is an institution which belongs to all the people of the State of New York; I take pride in its record of magnificent service to the State and its people. From its earliest days, under the principles laid down by its Founder, it has shown a continuous, sympathetic, and soundly practical interest in the welfare of all the men and women who have been working with hand and brain to develop the State and to earn their livelihood in it.

"I am always glad, too, to greet a body of farmers here because I regard this as an especially appropriate place for them to meet. During its long life, Cornell University has been working to shed light on their problems, to contribute to their comfort and by every way possible to make them the most advanced and intelligent and capable body of husbandmen in the entire world. These efforts have produced splendid results to which the progress of our agriculture testifies. They have helped to enable the State to maintain its rank as one of the great agricultural States of the Union, side by side with its progress in industry, commerce, and finance. Early in the present century the ties which link the farmer to this University were made much closer by the establishment of the State College of Agriculture, while the State's participation in the selection of the Board of Trustees of the University has made it in fact essentially an institution in partnership with the State itself."

The visit of Governor Roosevelt climaxed a busy week of lectures, demonstrations, addresses, and exhibits, all well attended. State Senator Seabury C. Mastick, chairman of the State Commission for the Revision of the Tax Laws, presented a plan to reduce the real estate tax burden in rural counties by thirty per cent and give substantial relief to urban counties by means of State contributions.

Louis J. Taber, master of the national Grange, another speaker, told an audience of the challenge of abundance and said that "as far as the farmer is concerned, the answer to this challenge is not shiftlessness, a return to the slow, old-fashioned methods. We will find a solution only through organization and a definite and constructive program."

regular academic year does not exempt a graduate student from the payment of a personal direction fee as has been the case heretofore. In other words, a graduate student who has paid his administration fees for the regular academic year must pay the $6.25 administration fee if registered during the summer either under personal direction or in a summer session.

A survey of tuition charges in representative graduate schools of endowed institutions reveals that fees range from $250 at California Institute of Technology to $600 at the Harvard School of Business Administration. At Princeton, where the enrollment is limited to 200, the fee is $100. At Yale the fee is $300.

CLASS SECRETARIES' ASSOCIATION HOLDS WINTER MEETING

Thirty-nine of the classes—a record number—were represented at the annual midwinter meeting of the Association of Class Secretaries held at the Cornell Club of New York on February 6. With some fifty classes represented by two or more delegates, more than fifty alumni were at the luncheon and the meeting that followed.

The principal business of the afternoon was a discussion of reunions. Regular reunions are scheduled for this spring by the Classes of '77, '81, '82, '83, '84, '87, '92, '00, '01, '02, '03, '07, '12, '17, '19, '20, '21, '22, '27, and '30. Other classes will be back informally, including '73. Most of these classes were able to report plans already well advanced. The reunions will be held on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, June 17, 18, and 19.

The by-laws of the Association were amended to schedule the annual election of officers at the midwinter meeting rather than at the meeting held in Ithaca in June. The change was made inasmuch as the midwinter meeting usually attracts the larger attendance.

In the election that followed, all of the officers were reelected: President, Robert P. Butler '05; vice-president, Clark S. Northup '93; treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Sailor (Queenie N. Horton) '09; secretary, Foster M. Coffin '12; three members of the Executive Committee, Charles D. Bostwick '92, Nina Smith '12, and Allan H. Treman '21.

THE ENGLISH EXAMINATION

Examining the Examination in English. A Report to the College Entrance Examination Board. By the Commission on English, Charles S. Thomas, Chairman. Cambridge. Harvard University Press. 1931. 22.3 cm., pp. xviii, 295. Harvard Studies in Education 17.

This is in part a Cornell product, one of the members of the Commission being Professor Benton S. Monroe '96. It is a comprehensive and intelligent attempt to evaluate the main types of Examination in the field of English.

Of these there are now two. The Ordinary or Restricted Examination was developed in the last decade of the last century. The examiners assumed that the candidate had read a considerable number of prescribed books and had carefully studied a few, and they proceeded to test him thereon. They always asked one or two questions on grammar.

In time a number of teachers became impatient of using the same books from year to year, and moreover did not approve of the somewhat conservative list of prescribed books. In response to their demands there was developed the Comprehensive Examination, first given in 1916. This presupposes only that the candidate has read a large number of good books (fiction, drama, poetry, etc.) and consequently includes no questions based on specific books. In the nature of things the questions must be somewhat general and must deal with types rather than with particular works. The Comprehensive Examination has gone far ahead of the other in popularity; in June, 1931, 1237 candidates took the Restricted and 8383 the Comprehensive.

The Restrictive, however, still has its ardent supporters, who believe that it gives the greater guarantee that the candidate has really studied his texts, rather than merely been coached up to tell what a novel or a play is. Certain schools are known to send their weaker candidates to take the Comprehensive, on the ground that their chances of success are greater on that than on the other examination. It seems likely, therefore, that both types will persist in the schools for some time to come.

WASHINGTONIANA EXHIBITED

Sparks Collection in Cornell Library Contains Fine Early Specimens

One of the earliest known writings of George Washington, and other priceless memorabilia, will form the nucleus of an exhibition of Washingtoniana which will be displayed by the Cornell University Library in connection with the nationwide observance of the bicentennial anniversary of the birth of the first President of the United States.

This writing is contained in the Sparks Collection of Washingtoniana, gathered many years ago by Jared Sparks, former president of Harvard, which was purchased in the early days of the University by Ezra Cornell.

Among this collection of Washington's early writings and documents is a page from one of his first note-books in which he wrote his method of determining the area in acres, and in square rods, of a given plot of land, and a scale drawing dated 1746 (when he was 14 years old) showing the comparative lengths of the surveyor's chain, and the pole. The face of the page which contains the drawing is embellished with a carefully executed sketch of a pair of dividers, and the following statement above it: "The Chain. 2 Poles, or 33 Feet"; while below the dividers is the comparison of the lengths of the chain and the pole.

On the back of the page, traced in Washington's unmistakable handwriting, are his formulae for reducing an area to acres or square rods.

Also contained in the collection are the title page of his first surveying notebook, and notes on one of his first jobs, with a neat map of the plot of land which he surveyed, and the computations used in figuring the area. This land was described as "a parcel of waste and ungranted land" and was situated in Culpepper County, Va. The young surveyor was employed by Richard Barnes, of Richmond County.

The map and the accompanying figures and calculations show very careful work, and Washington's hand-writing showed already the same characteristics which marked it later on.

The exhibition, which is being arranged by Dr. Otto Kinkeldey, librarian, will cover the entire life of Washington, from the age of twelve years until his death. The completeness of the Sparks Collection is evidenced by the fact that it contains Washington's signature at twelve years and just before his death. The earlier signature is inscribed in a large, round, childish hand, while that written on December 10, 1799, just prior to his death, shows signs of his failing health.

The Washington Bi-Centennial Anniversary Commission is using much of the material contained in the Cornell exhibit in its official publication, and has had photostats made of all these precious writings.

One of the most interesting bits of Washingtoniana in the beautiful vellum volume which contains the Sparks Collection, is the copy made by Washington himself of the terms on which farms at Mt. Vernon might be obtained.

Washington had on his estate three farms which he let to tenants, and which he called the River, the Union, and the Dogue Run Farms. He says: "There not being much difference in the quality of the soil of the River, Union, and Dogue Run Farms, the rent of each by the acre will be the same. The soil of River Farm has, generally, been most productive, but not having the meadow grounds of the other two it will hardly be esteemed more valuable, or more profitable in future."

The rent which Washington charged his tenants for a year was "but a bushel and half of wheat for each acre contained within the limits."

"Tobacco," Washington stipulates, "will not be allowed to be cultivated for market on any of the farms." His reason for this seems to be that he feared the growing of tobacco would be oppressive to the soil, and not that he disapproved of tobacco.

Washington was among the first scientific farmers in America. The documents in the Library show that he had worked out a careful system of rotation for the use of his lands, and kept his tenants strictly to it. His instructions state that each farm of 100 acres should be divided into six fields of sixteen acres each, which left four acres for a house and out-buildings. In his own handwriting may be seen the carefully worked out system of crop rotation used on his Mt. Vernon lands. This system provided that each section should be used in turn for corn or potatoes; wheat; buckwheat; oats or barley; clover or pulse; pasture land, or manured fallow.

The line-up for a battle in 1781, with light infantry sketched neatly on a small scrap of paper, is also a part of the collection. Interestingly enough, Major General Marquis de Lafayette was placed in command of the brigade which was to take the brunt of the assault. Flanking him were four brigades drawn up in wings, which were commanded by Major General Stirling and Major General Heath. Directly before the Commander-in-Chief were placed the reserves, who were led by General Wayne.

Several of Washington's private letters are included in the collection, and one concerning Lafayette is of particular interest, for it shows the kindness of the nation's first President. It is addressed to James Madison in the House of Representatives, and is dated March 6, 1796. The letter begs Madison to use his influence in the House to persuade Congress to allow Lafayette to come to live with Washington as a member of his family.

It describes the "young gentlemen" as being of the highest type of mentality, integrity, and gentility. Congress was apparently worried about Lafayette, whose family was destitute and who was himself at the time dependent on his friends for support.

At the end of the collection are the signatures of Washington which Dr. Sparks collected, and the last of these is probably one of the last which Washington ever wrote, being inscribed just four days before he died. Others were written at the ages of 12, 17, 25, and 44.

ARCHIE C. BURNETT NOMINATED FOR ALUMNI TRUSTEE

Archie C. Burnett '90 is a candidate for election to the Board of Trustees. A petition for his nomination as Alumni Trustee, signed by a group of prominent Cornellians, was filed last week.

Burnett was born in Junius, Seneca County, New York, in 1866. He graduated from Cornell with the degree of LL.B. in 1890. He married Miss Minerva B. Swift in 1900.

Burnett was admitted to the New York bar in 1890. Then followed years of active practice in New York, Wisconsin, and Boston. He was associated with the banking house of E. H. Gay & Company in Boston, and was president of the Scarborough Company, map publishers.

From 1912 until 1926 Burnett was actively engaged as an officer and director of various manufacturing and mercantile organizations. At the present time he is president of the Perfect Oil Products Company, and treasurer of the Welsbach Water Heater Company of New England.

Burnett has long been active in Cornell affairs. He was president of the Cornell Alumni Corporation from 1924 to 1926, during which time he visited many of the alumni clubs throughout the country. He has been district director and is now treasurer of the Cornell Alumni Corporation, and regional director of the Cornellian Council. He is a past president of the Cornell Club of New England, and is now its treasurer.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

RAISES TUITION FEES

ANOTHER STRANGE but time-honored custom has been junked under the pressure of hard times. Graduate students will soon be paying about half as much as undergraduates instead of a quarter.

There is much justice, with a dash of injustice, in this raise. The graduate student is a distinct drain on the energy of the faculty committee in charge of his work. Without aid of statistics we should guess that one graduate could easily consume as much of one's time as a small classroom full of juniors and seniors—possibly even more of energy. With accounting that is accurate it would probably be discovered that the graduate student should, if he could, pay more than the undergraduate.

On the other hand, the graduate school is the feeder, and the sole feeder, for that small group of intellectuals who will contribute the University's share of research, learning, and teaching to industry, art, science, letters, to all that requires advanced education for the general purposes of culture and spiritual advancement. It is but fair that a university should in some manner subsidize the education of these who supply her both her life blood and her reputation.

All graduate students are not on a parity. By the mere securing of advanced degrees they do not all automatically begin to contribute to these cultural activities. It is conceivable that, when dividends again come, some more skillful, if less time-honored, method will be discovered for subsidizing the work of those who are valuable to the University for its own fundamental purposes.

The injustice, where it exists, can probably be overcome in some other way than by virtual free tuition to all. The average, and often non-productive, candidates for advanced degrees might well bear a fair share of the costs. The University might then eventually be in a position where it could liberally provide funds to assist outstanding graduate students. In this manner the greatest value would be produced for the University and for the world that depends on her.

HAROLD FLACK COMPLETES

FINE WESTERN TRIP

Harold Flack '12, executive secretary of the Cornellian Council, returned to Ithaca on February 14 after a two weeks' trip through the Middle West. He attended alumni meetings in Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, and Chicago.

On February 2 Flack met Paul A. Schoellkopf '06, president of the Cornellian Council, Lewis R. Gulick '05, Cornellian Council representative, and the officers of the Cornell Club of Buffalo at an informal luncheon at the Buffalo Athletic Club. Plans for the Council's work for the current year were discussed.

He spoke briefly at the weekly luncheon of the Cornell Club of Cleveland on February 4. The principal speaker at that luncheon was Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner of Cleveland, who spoke on "The World Crisis and the Outlook."

On the evening of February 4, Flack was the guest of Mrs. Edward G. Pierce (Lewette Pollack) '14, president of the Cornell Women's Club of Cleveland, and Mrs. Willard Beahan (Bessie De Witt) '78, Cornellian Council representative, at an informal dinner at the Women's University Club.

On February 8, he was the guest of James W. Parker '08, Cornellian Council representative in Detroit, and the officers of the Cornell Club of Michigan. On February 9 Flack spoke at a joint meeting of the Lions Club and the Cornell alumni of Lansing and East Lansing, Michigan. 22 Cornellians turned out and were surprised to learn that Lansing and East Lansing contained so many alumni of the University. At least 15 Cornell graduates are members of the faculty of the Michigan State College at East Lansing. The group discussed the possibility of organizing a club. Dr. Liberty Hyde

Bailey and Professor Dwight Sanderson of the Department of Rural Social Organization are graduates of Michigan State College.

The annual banquet of the Cornell Club of Milwaukee was held on February 10. George G. Goetz '12 as toastmaster, introduced Flack as the guest speaker. Tell Berna '12, who lived in Milwaukee for two years after graduation from Cornell, also spoke, as did Herman A. Uihlein '08, president of the Club. Officers were elected for the coming year: Elliott B. Mason '12, president; Clair P. Nourse '19, vice-president; Henry M. Stillman '31, secretary; and Ernst Clarenbach, Jr., '31, treasurer. This dinner was a spirited event. The songs and cheers were held by Nourse, and the moving pictures of the Cornell-Penn football game last Autumn were shown by C. Ray McCallum '18.

Flack spoke at the weekly luncheon of the Cornell Club of Chicago on February 11. The Chicago Clippings, the weekly publication of the Cornell Club of Chicago, in referring to this meeting, stated:

There was a good gang and the whole meeting was made finer because of having Bill French '73, George Graham '76, Bill Gurley '77, and John Ostrom '77 with us. Deac Flack came through and invited John Ostrom to go to the Crew Races at Poughkeepsie with him next June. You know Mr. Ostrom was the man who put Cornell crews on the map by his victory at Saratoga—in '74 we believe.

We all heard a fine talk about Cornell, Ithaca, the new Myron Taylor Hall, the fraternity housing decision, the battle on the subject of compulsory drill and many other things that we wanted to know about.

While in the Middle West, Flack spoke at meetings of alumni and faculty groups of Baldwin-Wallace College, Ohio Wesleyan University, and Michigan State College on the subject of "The Raising of Alumni Funds." Flack is chairman of a committee of the American Alumni Council which is conducting a survey of fund-raising in colleges and universities in this country.

THE WEEK ON THE CAMPUS

THE beginning of Farm and Home Week, coinciding as it does with the tail end of Junior Week, is a never-failing reminder of the variousness of our University. The Junior Week girls linger, so to speak, in the lap of the Farmers. You could make some generalizations about Life, if you cared to.

FOR A SUMMARY of the marks and jollities of Farm and Home Week, look elsewhere in this issue. Let us report only our satisfaction at Governor Roosevelt's faithfulness in attendance. This was his fourth visit to the University since his inauguration as Governor in 1929. It gave a fillip to our local vanity that His Excellency chose to make one of his most important declarations on local government and the problem of taxation from the platform of Bailey Hall.

A DRAMATIC EPISODE of the Governor's stay was a last-minute reprieve for a condemned murderer. Cock-Eyed Benny Gordon was to die in the electric chair on Thursday, February 18, The last moment for the signing of the reprieve was 11 p. m. Flash of the Governor, addressing the Farm and Home audience in Willard Straight Hall at 10.45. Flash of Arthur Corscadden, assistant secretary to the Governor, speeding over the highways from Albany with the precious reprieve in his hand. Flash of the Memorial Hall clock—10.48; 10.50; 10.52. Flash of Arthur Corscadden, skidding around the corners through Forest Home. Flash of the Governor speaking, and the Memorial clock; 10.55. Thank God! Here is Arthur Corscadden, shouldering his way through the crowd, leaping the tables to the Governor's side. The reprieve is signed, not a minute too soon! Anticlimax: the reprieve was only for a week, to give Cock-Eyed Benny Gordon a chance to tell about some unsolved New York murders.

THE UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA's annual Farm and Home Week concert featured Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite and other exigent compositions, to the pleasure of the audience and the applause of the critics. J. Bruce Boyce '33 of Superior, Nebr., repeated his triumph of the Junior Week Musical Clubs concert in the singing of baritone solos.

THE DEATH of Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske recalls that she was one of the most popular of the performers who would transport our youthful imaginations in the old days of the Lyceum. Many of you will feel a renewal of an ancient thrill when I record that she played Tess of the d'Urbervilles here on January 4, 1898, and again on April 21, 1899; that she subsequently played Becky Sharp on November 22, 1900, Hedda Gabler on June 3, 1904; The High Road on March 4, 1913; Mrs. Bumpstead Leigh on March 7, 1914; Erstwhile Susan on November 13, 1916; Madame Sand on November 7, 1917; Wake Up, Jonathan on February 11, 1922, and Paddy on December 5, 1922.

"SWEATSHOPS may not be extinct, but thanks to her [Mrs. Florence Kelley '82] they no longer flourish on the lavish scale of the negligent 90's. The Supreme Court of the United States has not seen its way clear to sanction Federal prohibition of child labor, but States that call themselves progressive have laws limiting it. And what one of them today would dare to tamper with the laws for the protection of women in industry which she helped to put on the statute books?"—The New York Times, Feb. 19.

BRIGADIER GENERAL Walter S. Schuyler, who died last week at the age of 81, was professor of military science and tactics here from 1883 to 1886 and again from 1896 to 1898. General Schuyler was a native Ithacan; his father, Secretary of State of New York, was a close friend of Ezra Cornell. The family homestead, on the corner of Seneca Street and Schuyler Place, is now the infectious ward of the Infirmary.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS are the subject of an interesting review in The Sun. Lacrosse is to be added to the program for the first time, under the supervision of Coach Nicholas Bawlf. The rifle team has won two of its three matches so far. The fencing team opened its season on Saturday with a contest with N. Y. U. "Play for Play's Sake" is the present slogan of the W. A. A.

DEBATERS from Boston University, on February 20, defeated the Women's Debate Team, consisting of Misses Dorothy L. Sheridan '33 of Pelham and Dorothea M. Ferguson '35. The Boston debaters upheld the negative of the proposition that the nations should adopt a policy of free trade.

LENTEN MUSICALES are being given weekly in Risley drawing room, under the direction of Miss Gertrude H. Nye. This is the twelfth year of this admirable institution.

THE CAMERA CLUB is sponsoring a showing of portraits, in Willard Straight Library, by Miss Jane Reece of Dayton, Ohio. Miss Reece is ranked as sixth among the world's portrait photographers.

A CHESS CLUB has been formed by sportsmen who demand rather mental than physical peristalsis. There used to be a chess club here, as certain oldsters will remember. The organization dies and is born again, following the law of life.

LAPEL-BUTTONS marked "2%," observed on the Hill, have nothing to do with fraternity pledges, forthcoming mystery dances, nor beer. They have appeared in response to Albert Einstein's statement that if 2 per cent of every nation would refuse to fight in any war, they could prevent all national belligerency. The C. U. R. W. office in Barnes Hall is distributing them. They are not regulation on R. O. T. C. uniforms; when the Sergeant snarls, "Police your buttons!" you know what he means.

PROFESSOR EMERITUS Walter F. Willcox of the Department of Economics, examining the announced results of the Literary Digest Prohibition poll, concludes: "In New York State the sentiment for repeal increased between 1930 and 1932 more than four times as fast as between 1922 and 1926 and more than twice as fast as between 1926 and 1930. It is a rolling snowball but its growth must soon end, for nearly all the snow is gone."

A LUCKY YOUNG MAN is Jesse F. Moulton '32 of East Aurora, who has just left (with his degree) to join the expedition salvaging the Lusitania. He did publicity work in New York for the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, and thus got in with the set of modern adventurers. When the Lusitania is raised, he hopes to explore Soviet Russia.

A CURIOUS BUSINESS at the University of Michigan. The late Avery Hopwood left one fifth of his estate to establish awards in creative writing. The awards are apparently so large as to upset the whole English Department. Instead of reading good literature, everyone is writing bad books. Professor Howard Mumford Jones is quoted in The Saturday Review of Literature: "The writers seemed unable to realize that the imitation of radical writers is not in itself radicalism. Equally perturbing was the absence of any interest in, or concern for, life in Michigan and the Middle West. Locale counted for nothing: subjectivism was everything. There was little concern for the history of the region, and almost none for its economic and social problems. The younger crowd, it would appear, is indifferent to the future of capitalism, and yet economically conservative. The novels in particular were populous with moon-calves, unhappy virgins, and equally unhappy demivierges, with a fringe of uncomprehending but loyal middleclass parents in the background."

"STRAWBERRIES are only $2 a quart in the New York market."—The Ithaca Journal, February 19, 1882.

M. G. B.

OBITUARIES

CHARLES LOUIS HEISLER '90, prominent engineer with the General Electric Company in Schenectady, died at Rock City Falls, N. Y., on October 13, of heart disease. He was born in Wapakoneta, Ohio, on February 22, 1863, the son of Christian and Christine Lang Heisler. He received the degree of M.E. and was a member of Sigma Xi. Mr. Heisler was interested in locomotive engineering, and developed many years ago a high duty reciprocating pumping engine, manufactured by the Heisler Pumping Engine Company. On the discontinuance of that plant he joined the American Locomotive Company, where he invented many improvements in locomotives and mechanical tools, including barometric condensers, wet type vacuum pumps, stem road rollers, and water-works pumping machinery. At the beginning of the War, he was with the Alco Manufacturing Company and developed devices for manufacturing shells and ammunition. Later he was mechanical engineer of the Washington Steel and Ordnance Plant. He had been with the General Electric Company since 1922, and at the time of his death was engaged in the development of refrigeration and reversible aeroplane propeller mechanisms. He is survived by a daughter, Laura M. Heisler, and two sons, Howard E. Heisler and Charles L. Heisler, Jr., '17.

FLORENCE HOLLISTER DANGERFIELD (Mrs. Alexander) Potter '91, the second woman admitted to the practice of law in New York State, died suddenly in Great Barrington, Mass., on January 23, following an operation. She was born in Auburn sixty-four years ago, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dangerfield. She took a year of arts at Cornell, later receiving her LL.B. at New York University, where she was president of her law class. During her years of practice Mrs. Potter was chiefly concerned with engineering law and contracts. Her home was in Grand View-on-Hudson. Her husband, a civil engineer and sanitation expert, and a sister, Miss Harriet F. Dangerfield, survive her.

THOMAS FRANCIS BOWES '91, for nearly forty years an executive with the Boston Department of Public Works, and for several years, prior to his retirement this fall, superintendent of the City water and sewage system, died in Bath, N. Y., on January 23, following an illness of several months. He was born in Bath in 1870, the son of Martin and Mary McMahan Bowes. He received the degree of C.E. He is survived by two sons, Tremaine and Robert Bowes. His wife, Mrs. Laura Hammond Bowes, died a number of years ago.

CARL HOSMER BOWEN '13, vice-president of Baker, Putnam and Company, Inc., investment brokers in Buffalo, died at his home there on January 20, after an illness of several months. He was born in Columbus, Ohio, on June 7, 1891, the son of Arthur H. and Margaret Mathews Bowen. He attended Cornell in 1909-14 and 1916-17, receiving the degree of M.E. He was a member of Sigma Chi. During the War Mr. Bowen served as a captain in the Quartermaster Corps, and at the end of the War was in charge of experimental engineering at Camp Holabird near Washington. After some years with the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company he became vice-president of the Harrison Real Estate Corporation. In 1926 he entered the investment securities field as a salesman for the firm of Baker, Trubee and Putnam, Inc. He was admitted to the firm in 1927 as assistant secretary and became vice-president in 1930 when the name was changed to Baker, Putnam and Company, Inc. His mother, his wife, Mrs. Lily Ann May Bowen, and two sons, Mathews and Henry M. Bowen, survive him.

WILLIAM THOMAS KERR '13, instructor in mathematics at the Trenton, N. J., Senior High School, died on November 27, 1929, of pneumonia. He was born on March 8, 1892, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Kerr. He took a year of civil engineering and was a member of Theta Xi.

PAUL MERCER BUNGART '21, financial editor of The Brooklyn Daily Eagle for the past four years, died on December 30 at his home in Rockville Centre, N. Y., after a week's illness of pleurisy. He was born in Philadelphia on October 12, 1897, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Bungart. He received the degree of A.B. and was on the Cornell Countryman Board. He joined The Eagle in 1924. His parents and a sister, Mrs. Helen B. Leavens (Helen E. Bungart '16), survive him.

ARTHUR WALTER LEE '25, formerly an instructor in mechanical engineering at Cornell, died at the Arnot-Ogden Hospital in Elmira, N. Y., on January 5. He was born on May 19, 1904, the son of Bert E. and Mabel Brown Lee. He received the degree of M.E. and was a member of Tau Beta Pi. Ill health forced him to retire from teaching. His step-mother, two sisters, and a brother survive him.

RAY ROBINSON LOSEY '27, a physician specializing in diseases of the eye in New York, died recently in New York of cerebral hemorrhage. He received the degree of M.D. from Nebraska in '18, and took work in medicine at Cornell in 1927.

'12 AB—From The Minnesota Alumni Weekly for February 6 we extract the following:

Student journalists have been advised to see as much of the world as possible and to enjoy a variety of experiences after graduation before settling down in one place to follow their profession. A similar bit of advice was given to A. Dale Riley, now director of student dramatics at Minnesota, at the time of his graduation from Cornell University. During his undergraduate days he had been active in various phases of dramatics and he was ambitious to become a playwright. Judging from the predominant theme of many of the popular productions on the boards at the present time, he should have been advised to get out into the world and to learn as much as he could about a three letter word ending in "X" (you know, X, as in X marks the spot).

Before attempting to write a play he was told to gather a wealth of experience. And he started by taking a civil service examination which won him a position as educational director in one of the remote sections of the Philippine Islands. The fact that the natives were not at all friendly to his plans for their mental development led to many dramatic and thrilling incidents. He had time to study the primitive drama of the natives. After seven years in the Islands he returned to this country and was offered a staff position on the magazine Asia. However, he was soon back in the Philippines. After another three years of interesting experiences which took him through many lands he returned to America to complete work for his master's degree. For his thesis he submitted an original play, "Barong," based on his observations in the Philippines. Before coming to Minnesota this past fall he was director of dramatics at the University of Uowa.

The SHELTON
at 49TH and Lexington NEW YORK

WHEN the Shelton opened (7 years ago) we began catering to college men and women. Gradually their patronage has increased; we feel safe in asserting that more students and alumni make the Shelton their New York home than any club or other hotel. One reason for this is the free recreational features plus a desire to serve on the part of Shelton employees. Room rates have been greatly reduced. Rates from $50.00 per month upward. A room from $2.50 daily.

Club features (free to guests)
are as follows: Swimming pool; completely equipped gymnasium; same rooms for bridge and backgammon;
roof garden and solarium.
Restaurant and cafeteria service at reasonable prices.
