The University Begins a New Year

Cornell is Developing Her Physical Plant and Administrative Functions and Provides a Fine Welcome for Old and New Students

THE OPENING DAYS of the University have so far provided several features of unusual importance and have been marked with a variety of interesting events. High lights of the beginning of college activities include the usual flurry of registration, the "get togethers" for freshmen men and women, the address by President Farrand to new students, and the several athletic and academic episodes typical of the times.

The first football game, with the University of Buffalo, took place two days before the actual opening of the University, and for the first time since his coming to Cornell, without the presence of Coach Dobie on the bench. Mr. Dobie is suffering from an attack of sciatica which necessitated his remaining quietly at home. J. Peyton Tattersfield, '30, assistant coach, was in charge of the game. Practice during Mr. Dobie's absence has been supervised by Tattersfield, but daily conferences at the coach's home have been carried on as usual. His return to the field is expected shortly.

The most striking change on the campus is perhaps most effective at night. Down at the head of Central Avenue, where formerly the comparatively faint lights of two fraternities showed through the trees, now the surroundings are illuminated by the blaze from the many chandeliers in the great reading room of Myron Taylor Hall, and the austere lines of the immense building are outlined by the lights from its various windows, and topped by the silhouette of the central tower.

In the dormitory group Mennen Hall has crept in between the War Memorial and the long row of buildings extending to University Avenue. Begun less than a year ago, it now appears to have been there from the beginning.

On the Agriculture Campus, the enormous new Home Economics Building dominates the quadrangle. From the outside it seems almost finished, but there is work ahead for many months. This building will house not only the students in Home Economics, but also those in Hotel Administration. It provides excellent and adequate laboratory facilities for all the work offered and has large quarters for the Nursery School, now a major undertaking in the curriculum.

So much for the physical progress. The registration figures upset all calculations. The prevailing guesses of faculty and administration had been that the freshman class would be normal, but that there might be a considerable falling off of upperclassmen. Figures for the first three days, however, which are nearly complete, showed a total of 5,453 students, including graduates, of whom there are an unusual number. This is a drop of 272 from last year. The freshman class numbers 1,536, about 300 less than last year.

Various factors other than the financial situation enter into this. A change in the requirement for the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine which necessitates a full year of Arts work has reduced the registration in the entering Veterinary class from sixty-six (last year) to fifteen. The new restrictions in the curriculum of the College of Arts and Sciences have also temporarily caused a drop in registration there. The ruling recently given out by the Secretary of Labor forbidding foreign students to work while studying may also affect Cornell in some degree.

The Law School opened quietly a week ahead of the rest of the University. The first day of registration was marked by a slight flurry among the mentally restless caused by the circulation of flyers carrying anti-drill propaganda. The statements purported to prove that the R.O.T.C. work at Cornell allows the students to "visualize war not in terms of its true horrors but in terms of gallant uniforms and pomp." The reported reaction was apparently little more than amusement from many khaki-clad members of the R.O.T.C. who have failed to discover as yet any gold braid or who are training more for hygienic and disciplinary purposes than from any love of parades. The flyers came out under the signature of the "Liberal" Club at whose first meeting it was further resolved 'to inform the incoming students of the status of military drill on the campus.'

Overshadowing these minor episodes is the problem of the working student, never so acute as this year. Over three hundred boys are registered at the University employment bureau. Most of these will find nothing to do. A few will obtain odd jobs by the hour. Places for board and room are for the most part filled by juniors and seniors who had the same situation last year, or by women students. The women students are in better relative position than the men, because in most cases where they could not obtain promise of employment ahead of time they did not try to enter the University. Many boys, on the other hand, have come to town determined to stick it out some way or at least not to go back home except as a last resort. The total number of students needing work is estimated at about five hundred.

The situation is inevitable and will only be cleared up by better times. Faculty and townspeople alike are co-operating in every way possible, even in some cases "making work" where no work existed.

President Farrand in his address to the freshmen touched upon the present problems facing college students with special reference to those covered above. He said in part:

"There has been no time in our history when there was greater need for the proper type of mind to combat the problems which confront us. Many parents have made great sacrifices to afford their children college educations and it behooves those who are so privileged to face the tasks which lie ahead of them with seriousness."

He pointed out that there is no more liberal university in [Continued on page 21

ATHLETICS

FIRST TWO GAMES WON

The football team opened its season with two victories, crushing the University of Buffalo, 72-0, September 24, and barely defeating a surprising Niagara University eleven, 7-0, October 1.

The team went into the first two games without the personal direction of Head Coach Gilmour Dobic. Dobic was stricken with sciatica September 18 and has been confined to his home since. His return is expected in the near future. In his absence, the squad has been under the direction of J. Peyton Tattersfield '30, first assistant to Dobic, and Captain Viviano.

An unusually large casualty list has added to the difficulties of the squad. Ferraro and Hedden, backs, and Reiber, end, from last year's team, were not able to start the first two games. Lundin, veteran tackle, who suffered from septic poisoning during the summer, is not available. In the Niagara game, Beall, back, suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Buffalo gave the team no opposition whatever, and Cornell ran wild, Geoffrion, Viviano, Beyer, and Grant reeling off long runs through the tackles and around the ends.

Viviano led in scoring with three touchdowns, and Grant and Geoffrion each scored two. Geoffrion, Beyer, and Grant contributed runs of 63, 58, and 45 yards, respectively, the first two resulting in touchdowns.

The Niagara game was an unpleasant surprise for Cornell. The visitors displayed a rangy eleven, weak on offense but unusually strong defensively. Cornell succeeded in rolling up a large number of first downs, but Niagara proved strong in its own territory, and Cornell was forced to go into the air in attempts to score. The aerial offensive, however, was woefully weak on the passing end. Few passes landed anywhere near a receiver, and only one scoring attempt in six was successful.

In the opening period, after Cornell's first drive had been stopped on Niagara's eight-yard line by Beyer's fumble and a recovery by Vermette of Niagara, the team regained possession of ball on Sieg's poor kick. Beyer and Viviano reeled off two first downs, but Switzer was thrown for a three-yard loss and two passes failed to find their mark. On fourth down, Switzer passed to Martinez-Zorrilla, a 15-yard toss, for a touchdown, and George kicked a placement goal.

Thereafter the game developed into a stubborn battle, with Switzer and Sieg engaging in a punting duel. Beall was injured shortly after the score, and Terry replaced him in the Red and White backfield.

Near the end of the first half, Cornell missed two chances for scores deep in Niagara territory. A series of running plays, with Viviano doing most of the ball carrying, put Cornell on Niagara's 10-yard line. Three line backs netted just four yards, and Switzer's pass grounded in the end zone for a touchback. McMahon fumbled and Martinez-Zorrilla recovered for Cornell on Niagara's 20-yard line. Switzer passed to Beyer in the end zone, but Beyer dropped the easy toss, and it was another touchback.

PLAY SECOND HALF IN RAIN

Rain began falling in the second half and before the game ended the downpour was unusually heavy. Cornell, aided by interference on a pass, and Viviano's tackle slants, advanced to Niagara's 14-yard line early in the third period only to be held for downs as another forward pass grounded. A few moments later, Cornell threw away another chance when Switzer's forward found no receiver to give Niagara its third touchback.

Geoffrion replaced Beyer as the third period waned and contributed two first downs as Cornell reached Niagara's 11-yard line. Grant, in for Switzer, passed, but the ball grounded in the end zone.

The entire complexion of the game changed a moment later as Kantak, substitute Niagara back, intercepted Grant's pass on his 25-yard line and raced down the west sideline 71 yards. Grant spilled him on Cornell's four-yard marker, and Cornell succeeded in preventing the score through the fine defensive play of Viviano, who twice threw the runner for losses. A Niagara forward passed on fourth down was knocked down by Martinez-Zorrilla.

As the game neared its end, McMahon returned Switzer's punt 45 yards to Cornell's 20-yard line, with Switzer making the tackle. The whistle blew before another play could be started.

JUST LOOKING AROUND

NEAR A THOUSAND freshmen arrived on Registration Day. Outside each adviser's office waited patient files of young men (and women), in new suits (or frocks), their hair newly cut (or washed), in their hearts a common trepidation and excitement.

The advisers felt no answering excitement. Efficiently they classified the youthful purposes, and slapped down the standard article to fulfill each purpose. You want to be a doctor? Take Animal Biology 1, Chemistry 101 and 105. Your father says you are to be a Chemical Engineer? Take Inorganic, Analyt, P<sub>3</sub> and English. Fixed up for a room? Everything going all right? Go get your assignment to sections. Next!

Do the advisers feel the full sense of their responsibility, despatching their charges so lightly on one road or another? No, of course not. A man would go crazy if he felt the full sense of his responsibility. The adviser points the young creatures to the way they choose, and sits back sombrely to wonder what will become of them. They are so undifferentiated, so difficult to explore, so ignorant, so young! No one can advise them of the things they want to know; they must try and fail and try again, suffer disappointment, the failure of dreams, ridiculous shame, and hidden pain. Only so can they learn about the world, and life, and themselves.

Youth is commonly called courageous. Well, it has to be courageous. It takes a terrible lot of courage to be young!

WHEELER IS APPOINTED

ASSISTANT TREASURER

Ralph H. Wheeler '12, professor in the extension service of the College of Agriculture since 1917, has been appointed assistant treasurer of the University.

The office is a new one, planned to bring about a greater economy and efficiency in the supervision of the business offices of the State Colleges of Agriculture, Home Economics, and Veterinary Medicine, the State agricultural experiment station at Geneva, and the University agricultural experiment station.

The financial activities of these offices will be co-ordinated with the work of George F. Rogalsky '07, treasurer of the University. Professor Wheeler will serve on the staff of Comptroller Charles D. Bostwick '92. He will also continue his duties in the College of Agriculture, being responsible for several extension activities, including the direction of the Farm and Home Week program and the College exhibits at the New York State fair.

Professor Wheeler joined the faculty in 1909 as assistant in extension teaching. He became an instructor in 1910 and assistant professor in 1912.

FRATERNITIES TO SEEK

BIDS FOR NEW HOUSES

Sigma Phi and Psi Upsilon fraternities have requested the submission of bids for the construction of new buildings. Plans of the fraternities for structures to be centered in the men's dormitory group along West Avenue have been approved by the University's architectural advisory board.

The new structures are to be of brick construction, with some stonework. The site for the fraternities is on the vacant area on the downhill side of West Avenue, formerly the property of the Cornell family, opposite the Delta Upsilon and the Telluride Association houses.

The members of the architectural advisory board are Professor Francke H. Bosworth of the College of Architecture, Dean Everett Meeks of the Yale architectural school, and Gilmore Clark, landscape architecture in Westchester County, New York.

COLONEL LAWRENCE MARTIN '04, has compiled The George Washington Atlas: a Collection of 85 Maps, Including 28 Made by George Washington, 7 Used and Annotated by Him, 8 Made at His Direction, or for his Use, or Otherwise Associated with Him, and 42 New Maps Concerning His Activities in Peace and War and His Place in History. The volume is published by the Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Student Ruling Assailed

President Farrand Opposes Restrictions On Foreign Students, Preventing Work During College Term

A ruling by the United States Secretary of Labor, William N. Doak, that foreign students will not be permitted to work their way through American schools and colleges, has drawn the sharp opposition of President Farrand.

The ruling affects foreign students entering the United States under the non-quota student provisions of the immigration law. Any alien applying for admission under the law "must be able to show that adequate financial provision has been made, or is satisfactorily assured, which will enable him to maintain an uninterrupted student status" because "if any such student already here or hereafter admitted to the United States engages in any business or occupation for profit, or labors for hire, he shall be deemed to have forfeited his status and shall be liable to arrest and deportation."

President Farrand said:

"The reported ruling of the Secretary of Labor with respect to visitors to the United States here on a student basis, if rigidly enforced against foreign students in American universities who may be financially assisting themselves by doing work in any legitimate field, seems to me not only unfair, but short-sighted and unwise from any point of view. Judging from the appearance of the problem at a university like Cornell, I am unable to see how the interests of American citizens are furthered or safeguarded by the ruling in question.

"One of our prized traditions at Cornell is our cosmopolitanism. We should like to continue our fullest co-operation to the many students who come to us from foreign lands."

President Farrand's views are in accord with those of President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, Dr. Frederick Robinson of City College of New York, President James L. McConaughty of Wesleyan, and other leading educators. At New York University students and faculty members joined in the protest against the ruling.

At Cornell, Henry S. Reuss '33, Milwaukee, Wisc., editor-in-chief of the Cornell Daily Sun, appealed to the editors of the Yale Daily News, the Harvard Crimson, the Dartmouth, the Daily Princetonian, and the Columbia Spectator to join a movement for the repeal of the ruling.

The ruling affects about 250 foreign students now at Cornell. Since its first promulgation, however, the edict has been modified to permit alien students to work in exchange for their room and board or in part payment of their tuition, but not for money to apply on their expenses. Restrictions have also been imposed by Secretary Doak on the period for which non-quota students may be admitted, heretofore interpreted to include duration of their study courses subject only to maintenance of satisfactory student status, and on the privilege of re-admission following temporary visits abroad.

FLANSBURGH IS APPOINTED

LEADER OF COUNTY AGENTS

Earl A. Flansburgh '15, assistant county leader in the College of Agriculture for the past eleven years, has been appointed county agent leader to succeed Lloyd R. Simons '11, who has been appointed director of extension.

Professor Flansburgh is a pioneer in county agent work, having organized a number of county farm bureaus in New York State after serving as a county agent in New Hampshire. His chief contribution to extension work has been the development of new projects in this field. His work in this field, it is believed, will eventually become a strong part of the marketing program of the county farm bureaus.

DR. LUSK DIES

Graham Lusk, world authority on nutrition and for twenty-three years professor of physiology at the Cornell Medical College in New York, died on July 18, after a short illness. He was born sixty-six years ago in Bridgeport, Conn., the son of Dr. William T. and Mary Chittenden Lusk. He held degrees of Ph.B. from Columbia, and Ph.D. from Munich, and the honorary degrees of A.M. and Sc.D. from Yale and of LL.D. from Glasgow. Dr. Lusk won many recognitions for supremacy in the field of nutrition. He was scientific director of the Russell Sage Institute of Pathology, and belonged to the Royal Society of Edinburgh, the Imperial Society of Physicians of Vienna, the Physiological Society of Great Britain, and the Berlin Physiologische-Gesellschaft, as well as a number of American societies. Dr. Lusk was the author of Elements of the Science of Nutrition.

LUTHERAN PASTOR DIES

Dr. William M. Horn, pastor of the Lutheran Church in Ithaca, and a leader in the religious life of Cornell, died September 21 after a long illness. He was stricken as he was conducting services last March.

When Dr. Horn arrived in Ithaca as the Lutheran pastor fifteen years ago, services were held in the west dome of Barnes Hall. Through his efforts and with the aid of many University students, Dr. Horn brought about the construction of the $125,000 Gothic church building on Oak Avenue. The students' share in the building fund was estimated at $26,000.

Cornell-in-China

An Editorial in the New York Sun Affords An Interesting Comment on Our Work There

In the New York Sun of August 19 an editorial appears which throws new light on the activities of Cornell-in-China and gives a clear summary of the work done there up to the present moment.

The editorial opens with comment on the inclusion at the Genetics Congress recently held in Ithaca of thirty-four Chinese specialists in that field. It continues:

"Their inclusion is of special significance because of the close relation existing between Cornell University and China.

"The origin of this relation was fortuitous. A former Yale undergraduate, John H. Reisner, went to Cornell for graduate work in agriculture; on completion of the course he went to the University of Nanking, China, as an instructor and ultimately became dean of the College of Agriculture and Forestry. Maintaining a close connection with Cornell, he urged that professors spend part of their sabbatical leave co-operating with the Chinese in establishing important plant-breeding experiments. The International Education Board agreed to co-operate, and three Cornell professors, Drs. R. G. Wiggans, H. H. Love and C. H. Myers, each spent two years in the work.

"The experimental farm at Nanking University, one of the most comprehensive projects in the world, is largely a product of this co-operation between American and Chinese experts. Wheat, rice, kaoliang, millet, soy beans, corn and cotton are the chief crops handled. Since 1925 thirty men, some trained at Nanking and others at Cornell, have worked on the project. Links in the country are maintained through co-operative institutions. Despite chaotic conditions in China the work has proceeded uninterruptedly. When civil war raged Chiang Kai-shek had edicts posted warning against any trespass upon fields used in the project under pain of severe penalties. Nine Chinese students are now at Cornell and a number of Cornell students are in China. The key man at Nanking is Dr. T. H. Shen.

"Dr. J. L. Buck, husband of the author of 'The Good Earth,' is professor of rural economics at Nanking University. He and his wife were both trained at Cornell, Mrs. Buck being a graduate in English. Dr. Buck is as distinguished in his field as Mrs. Buck in hers. He wrote a comprehensive report on the causes of periodic famine in China and made valuable recommendations for prevention."

THE CLUBS

PHILADELPHIA WOMEN

The officers of the Club for the coming year will be: President, Mrs. Franklin H. Pennell (Emily Whitten Augé) '27; vice-president, Miss Rachael Childrey '26; secretary, Miss Miriam McAllister '24; treasurer, Miss Barbara K. Hastings '24; directors, Mrs. Russell C. Gourlay (Marion W. Gushee) '16 and Mrs. W. Hubert Grigson (Gretchen Schweitzer) '21.

BUFFALO

The annual send-off luncheon for freshmen entering Cornell from Buffalo and vicinity was held at the Hotel Statler on September 16. Thirteen sub-frosh attended, together with five undergraduates and about forty alumni.

Sidney S. Walcott '16, president of the club, welcomed the guests, and explained the functions of the club to them. He also described the advantages of the freshman camp to be held near Ithaca immediately before the opening of school.

William E. Kennedy '10, and Ex-Senator Parton Swift '98, then described the ideals and aims of Cornell to the boys, in their usual eloquent manner.

Music was furnished by Charles G. Seelbach '19 and his Century Orchestra, and Neil M. Willard '18 led the singing.

CLEVELAND

The Club had an informal evening on September 15, when it acted as host to entering students and undergraduates. About thirty-five men were present, at what has become an annual affair. Twelve freshmen are entering the University from Cleveland this year. Four of these are sons of Cornell men—Augustine R. Ayers '00, William H. Forbes '06, Harold D. North '07, and Willard John Crawford, Jr. '07.

The attendance at these meetings indicates that the younger men appreciate an opportunity of becoming acquainted before reaching Ithaca and learning something of Cornell from undergraduates and alumni.

Under the direction of the Cornell Club of Cleveland the undergraduates have organized a club at the University. Two meetings a year are held, which, it is believed, will result in closer contact between undergraduates and their preparatory schools and leading to participation in Alumni Club affairs after graduation.

NEW YORK WOMEN

The Club held a party and reception on the afternoon of September 17th, at the Barbizon, for the women undergraduates and students entering Cornell this fall from the Metropolitan District.

Moving pictures of the Campus and Campus activities shown through the courtesy of the alumni office and Phyllis

A. Dooley '32, delighted both the alumnae and undergraduates and visualized for the entering students the scenic beauties of Cornell. College songs were sung under the leadership of Polly Cronyn, a 1931 graduate.

Short talks were given by some of the women leaders of undergraduate activities. Among the speakers were Adele Langston '33 of Wenonah, N. J., president of the Women's Student Government Association; Marion Saunders '33 of Maplewood, N. J., women's editor of the Cornell Daily Sun; and Ethel Cox '33 of Brooklyn, chairman of activities on the W. S. G. A. Council.

After the program tea was served to about two hundred and twenty-five club members, alumnae, and guests in the Club room and terrace adjoining. Ruth F. Irish '22 was Chairman of the Committee in charge of the party.

Martha E. Dodson '07 is president of the Club. Other officers are Marie Reith '21, first vice-president; Florence Burtis '26, second vice-president; Marion Nelson '26, treasurer; Edith Macon Cushman '31, recording secretary; Grace Jansen '27, corresponding secretary; and the following are directors: Laura J. Goulding '09; Ruth Darville '15; Mary H. Donlon '20; Pauline Schmid '25; Frances Eagan '26 and Helen Speyer '27.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

At the annual meeting of the Club the following officers were elected: President, William Jameson, Jr. '16; vice-president, James J. Perley '18; secretary and treasurer, Charles G. Bullis '08; directors, Floyd R. Parks '21 and Clarence B. Piper '05.

BINGHAMTON WOMEN

The officers of the Cornell Women's Club of Binghamton, for the year 1932-33 will be: president, Stella V. Goodall '01; secretary, Ruth Chaffee '29; treasurer, Hazel E. Ide '30.

ROCHESTER WOMEN

The officers of the Club for the ensuing year are: president, Miss G. Elizabeth Philbrick '29; vice-president, Miss M. Agnes Conray '19; secretary, Miss Ruth A. Boak '26; treasurer, Miss Mary Lucille West '27.

WILLCOX AT CONFERENCE

Prof. Walter F. Willcox has sailed for Geneva, Switzerland, to attend a conference of migration statisticians called by the International Labor Organization. Before he sailed, Professor Willcox conferred with officials of the United States department of labor. The conference opened October 3.

The conference was called to obtain advice on how statistics of emigration and immigration might be improved. Professor Willcox will return to Ithaca this month.

University Opens

America than Cornell. "We have a minimum of rules here. But what few we have, we insist on their being carried out until such time as properly ratified changes are put into effect. Those who are counselling freshmen to disobey the rules of the University, sincere though they may be in their espousal of their cause, are decidedly ill-advised in their course of action, and are rendering a disservice to themselves and to the freshmen alike. Change must come through established agencies. Disobedience of the rules of the University can only mean trouble to those who counsel it and to those who practice it."

TEAGLE SEES COUNTRY

QUITTING DEPRESSION

Walter C. Teagle '99, Trustee, head of President Hoover's job sharing movement, believes that "we are emerging from the depression, definitely and on a basis which gives promise of real stability." Teagle's view was expressed in an address at Boston September 19.

Addressing a conference on retail distribution, he said that national spending power could be restored quickly only by two factors in the situation—"the employers who today have work to do; and the men and women who are working for them. The employers can do their part by working out ways and means of spreading the available work over a larger number of workers through some plan of staggering or dividing or rotating the work—some plan that fits the peculiarities of their own type of enterprise.

"The workers can do their part by accepting whatever temporary sacrifice of immediate income is entailed in sharing their work with those now out of work."

THREE CORNELL OFFICIALS

ARE SELECTED AS ADVISERS

President Farrand, Professor Flora Rose, '07-08 Grad., and Dr. Ruby Green Smith, Ph.D. '14, have been appointed to the advisory committee of the newly-instituted New York State consumers' information service created by Charles H. Baldwin, commissioner of agriculture and markets.

The service has been formed to promote the uses of dairy and other farm products. Commissioner Baldwin said the new bureau will disseminate the latest information available on these products so that consumers throughout the State will be in a position to take advantage of the most favorable markets and crops, and the producers will be assisted in disposing of their products most advantageously.

CORNELL AND HER JOBLESS STUDENTS

A MINIATURE of world conditions, the student body finds that it includes, on registration, a half thousand students who have been allowed to come to Ithaca without the least knowledge of the possible source of funds for their support.

Eventually most of these registrants will have to withdraw from the University. Probably the last day for the payment of tuition will see a goodly exodus. There is no magician's list from which so many jobs can be drawn.

It is true that there are student loan funds and scholarships. Many persons have secured their educations by dint of hard labor, caring for furnaces, waiting table, washing dishes, and like chores. But the city of Ithaca has approximately only twenty thousand population exclusive of seven thousand students. It is subject to nearly all the economic conditions from which other small cities are suffering. There are not the jobs, loan funds, or scholarships to care for the unusual load.

Alumni who have advised prospective students to come to Ithaca and depend wholly or even in part on part time employment and local financial help should now advise them in some other way. A loan would be no more difficult to arrange at home than in Ithaca. There are at present at least five hundred jobless students seeking employment.

The situation is obviously serious. It cannot be met with the resources of Ithaca available for the purpose.

FOUR SQUADS BUSY

With football well along, soccer and cross country candidates are preparing for the opening of their seasons this month and candidates for crew and baseball are looking ahead to next spring.

Sixty candidates have reported for soccer to Coach Nicholas Bawlf, and a veteran eleven will meet Hamilton in the opening game with Hamilton October 8. The backfield includes Bennett, Toth, Winslow, and Taylor, all veterans. The forward wall includes Kreiger, Williams, Baneball, Serenatti, and three members of last year's freshman eleven, Mulford, Wright, and Heidt. The major problem is the development of a goal guard, with Jackson, substitute last year, ranking first on the list.

The cross country squad is headed by Captain Martin, Mangan, the intercollegiate mile champion, and Finch. Daily drills are being held under the direction of Coach John F. Moakley. The first meet is with Alfred October 15.

Coach James Wray is conducting daily drills on the Inlet with 134 crew candidates. The freshman squad this year is one of the largest and most promising in the history of rowing. Of the one hundred first year candidates, thirty are more than six feet tall. The average weight of the freshman squad is 170 pounds.

Crew Representative Haire heads the varsity squad. The other veterans from last year's varsity are Dreyer, Garber, and Williams. McLeod and Foote are rated the most promising of last year's freshman eight.

Coach Paul Eckley '17 is conducting fall practice for the baseball squad.

BROADCASTING STATION'S FACILITIES ARE MERGED

Cornell's radio broadcasting station, WEAI, merged its facilities and will share air time with a new station, WESG, at Elmira. The new station began operations October 2, with studios in Elmira and Ithaca. The Elmira Star-Gazette is sponsoring the new station.

The station will operate on a full day-time schedule at 1,270 kilocycles, with 1,000-watt power.

The new station takes the call letters of WEAI, formerly operated on limited time by the University. The agricultural hour, broadcast at 12:15 p.m. daily, will be continued under the new arrangement.

CORNELL SHARES IN ESTATE

The Law School and the Pi chapter of the Delta Phi fraternity at Cornell will ultimately share in the estate of the late George W. Hoyt '96. A New York State tax transfer appraisal reveals an estate of $57,445. The estate is bequeathed for life use to Hoyt's widow, Cora R. Hoyt, and, upon her death, the principal will go to the University and the fraternity.

THE WEEK ON THE CAMPUS

GEE, fellows, it's great to be back. Gee, I had a swell time. Ja have a good summer?

AND GEE, it's nice to see everything looking so nice. The enormous mass of Myron Taylor Hall draws the eye from hill and valley, a noble building indeed. The campus has been beautifully barbered, under the eye of Conant Van Blarcom '08, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds. New roads are put through and others eliminated. New parking spaces have been laid out here and there. Curbs have been put in along the roads, replacing the indeterminate strips of herbage strown, that just divided the desert from the sown. Half a mile of the old cinder footpaths have been resurfaced with something called Colprovia. No longer does one notice pedestrians halting by the pathside, removing their shoes and holding them aloft upside down. Another old Cornell custom gone.

THE INTERIOR of the Old Armory has been remodeled and redecorated, the Cast Room in Goldwin Smith Hall has been partly done over, and a lot of offices and classrooms have been refurnished.

YOU have been reading about the Secretary of Labor's ruling forbidding foreign students to earn money on the side. It hits us pretty hard. We have a great many foreign students, many of them here on scholarships which once were ample but which now, with the depreciation of most foreign exchanges, barely afford subsistence. Especially is this the case with the Chinese students. Another serious difficulty is that many European countries (as Germany, Denmark, Italy, Spain) forbid the export of their money. Thus some of our guests have, in theory, their means of subsistence assured, but they can't get the money. The Sun is organizing a protest of the editors of the college papers. Probably the business will be fixed up. No one seems to be in favor of the measure except the Secretary of Labor.

IN THE DISCUSSIONS of this new decree, one phrase constantly catches the ruminative eye. Editors proclaim: "This ruling, if it is enforced, will. . . ." That is interesting, isn't it? No longer do we accept law as law. Law does not become law until it passes into the stage of enforcement.

FRESHMEN to the number of 141 spent three days under the auspices of the C.U.R.W. preparing for their college years. They went to Camp Cory on Keuka Lake, and apparently had a very nice time. Thomas A. Weaver, Jr. '34 of Rochester was Director.

JULIAN P. BRETZ, Professor of History, is the Democratic candidate for Representative in the 37th Congressional District. They say he stands a chance of election, too, for although this district has been Republican since the retreat of the Great Glacier, there has been much intestinal discord in the local Republican Party this year. Professor Vladimir Karapetoff of the College of Electrical Engineering is Socialist Candidate for State Senator, and Wesley C. Eastman '29, of the Department of Agricultural Engineering is candidate on the same ticket for Assemblyman. There is no reason now to make fun of the professor in politics. Look at Yale; half the faculty is running for something.

ALSO, DANIEL A. REED '98, football star and coach of our teams twenty years ago, has been renominated on the Republican ticket for Congressman in the 43d New York district. Dan Reed's home is in Dunkirk.

THE FRATERNITY burglars made their annual cleanup in the week before registration. They went through Theta Xi, Pi Lambda Phi, Theta Alpha, Phi Delta Mu, and Psi Upsilon. The thieves used the well-tried method: walk in the unlocked front door of houses wherein the boys sleep on the third floor and leave their pants on the second. The operators work five or six houses in one night and then lie low for a year. At Theta Xi something between $200 and $500 was taken. The Pi Lambda Phis lost only $19. Their faces are, it is reported, red.

MEDICAL CARE for Cornell students is given at a cost to the University of $27.59 per caput. But each student pays, on an average, only $15.51.

TOMATO THROWING on the public roads has become a menace. Six adults from Cortland and vicinity took this method of disposing of the farm surplus. Their technique was to wham a ripe tomato from their automobile on the windshield of approaching cars. Several windshields were broken, one woman was badly cut, wrecks were narrowly averted. Indignant victims gave chase, pursued the tomato tossers, and hounded them into the Ithaca police station. There their names were taken and they were released, as they came from outside the county. That was ten days ago; justice has as yet made no move, as justice is baffled by the legal problem involved. Our citizenry is aroused, especially by the fact that two of the tomato tossers are public officials of Cortland.

THE SUN comments that if the culprits had been students they would have been hounded by the police and punished with the full rigor of the law. To this one can only cry "Hoity-toity!" It seems to this observer that the police treat the students with excellent forbearance. Only with the greatest reluctance are students arrested, and then only when they force their peccadilloes on the public view. Shambling farmhands are arrested for drunkenness, not students. The revenuers raid noisome cellars by the Inlet, and clap in jail wine-making foreigners without political or social importance. They do not raid fraternity houses. Last year six students conducted a systematic book-stealing campaign. They were punished by expulsion or suspension from the University, and their names concealed. If they had not been students they would now have matriculated in that rival State institution Far Above Owasco's Waters.

THE PRIESTLEY MEDAL, awarded annually for distinguished achievement in Chemistry, was given this year to Charles Lathrop Parsons '88 of Washington.

GEORGE I. BOTTCHEER '33, Lewistown, Mont., has been awarded the Sands memorial medal by the College of Architecture faculty for his design, "A bank interior," made last year as a student in the college. Seven other students were commended for their designs, life drawings, and paintings.

J. LOSSING BUCK '14 of the University of Nanking, with his wife, Pearl S. Buck, is spending the winter in Ithaca, working for his Ph.D. Mrs. Buck won the Pulitzer Prize in Literature this year, and the Guilford Essay Prize from this University in 1925.

WATCH FOR "The Cornell Murders," by Clifford Orr (Dartmouth '22), author of several mystery stories. Mr. Orr has been living here, and thinks Cornell an ideal place for murders.

FIFTY YEARS AGO Oscar Wilde lectured in the Wilgus Opera House.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS ago, the Journal-News remembers, a new game called Diavolo was all the rage among the professors on the Hill.

THE NEW Van Loon's Geography prompts the question: How many recognized the description of Fall Creek Gorge and Ithaca in Indian days in the same author's R. v R.?

AN ITHACA LADY was campaigning for the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. She stopped people in the street, asked them to join the organization, to write their name, address, and profession. A shabby young man signified his sympathy with the cause, and signed his name. At "profession," he paused uncertainly; then wrote laboriously: "Gigolo." M.G.B.

CORNELL MEDICAL CARE COSTS

Medical care under an organized medical service is given Cornell students each school year at a per capita cost of $27.59, according to findings of a national committee on costs of medical care headed by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior in President Herbert Hoover's cabinet.

Of this per capita cost, each Cornell student contributes $15.51.

Studies in four state universities—Michigan, Minnesota, California, and Oregon—reveal that the per capita cost ranges from $14 to $24. Studies at Yale and Cornell show a higher per capita cost because of different organization, heavy capital investment in buildings and equipment, and the like.

At all six institutions, the health services were found to be maintained through payment of student fees, supplemented by subsidies from the institutions themselves. At Yale and Cornell, students paid only slightly more than half the costs of the services they received.

DR. EPHRAIM P. FELT '94 and Dr. W. Howard Rankin '14 have just published through the Macmillans a book on Insects and Diseases of Ornamental Trees and Shrubs. It contains 526 pages and sells for $5.

FROM M. I. T.
TO CALIFORNIA
UNIVERSITY GRADUATES
AGREE IN THEIR PREFERENCE
FOR

Facts concerning automobile ownership by the graduates of fifteen leading universities were recently compiled by the Graduate Group of alumni magazines and by the alumni associations of the universities.

And the facts are these: The number of Buicks owned by the graduates of these fifteen universities is nearly double that of the next automobile in Buick's price class.*

Isn't it significant that in the cool, calm judgment of these men and women who are trained to think, Buick should be the overwhelming preference?

Yet, perhaps it is only natural after all because experienced motorists everywhere know that Buick is a surpassingly fine automobile. Everywhere ownership of Buick is accepted as a criterion of good taste and good judgment.

Buick's comfortable and perfectly styled Body by Fisher . . . Buick's great Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engine . . . Buick's rugged chassis with Wizard Control . . . Buick's capacity for giving 150,000 miles and more of perfect, care-free motoring . . . all combine to provide that sterling quality which has a special appeal to those who are accustomed to weigh and consider values.

If you are not a Buick owner yourself, may we suggest that you take the first step toward becoming one? Just drop in at the nearest Buick dealer's . . . inspect his display of new Buick Straight Eights . . . get behind the wheel of the car of your choice . . . and drive it. Then try to be satisfied with anything less!

* The Graduate Group, Inc., certifies the accuracy of these facts about the ownership of Buicks among 15 leading colleges and universities.
