One Special Friend. . .

will thank you, now, for bringing the Alumni News to his attention. It needn't cost you anything. The next time you write to that particular friend of college days, just say, as so many others are doing, "Have you seen the Alumni News lately?"

● Or send us his name and address and we'll mail him a sample copy, telling him it comes at your suggestion.

● Better yet, of course, ask us to enter him as a subscriber and send you the bill. It costs only four dollars a year. He'll thank you for your thoughtfulness each week as he reads the news of Cornell. Your request on a postcard will do.

Dr. Henry P. deForest, secretary of the Class of '84, writes us: "At the Cornell Club of New York, of which I am the librarian, the Alumni News has been much more in demand during the past few months than for some years past."

TO HUNT ANCESTORS Seek Fossil Remains

Within a month a party of students of the Department of Geology will set out to hunt in the hills east of Ithaca the fossil remains of the earliest land-living vertebrate animals. They will be led by Dr. Kenneth E. Caster '29, and the trip will furnish field experience for the members of his class in historic geology. If successful, its results will be of inestimable value to science.

The recent discovery near Susquehanna, Pa. by Dr. Bradford Willard of the footprints of a previously unknown animal which lived three to four hundred million years ago leads to the supposition that in older rocks not only the footprints but even the fossil remains of an earlier fish-like ancestor will be found.

Because of the greater age of the rocks east and south of Cayuga Lake, Dr. Caster says there is no area known on earth where the search for this missing ancestor of man and beast could be undertaken with more basis for success than in the area from Ithaca to Norwich and south to the Pennsylvania line.

"All living quadrupeds," says Dr. Caster, "developed from Paramphibius, as Dr. Willard called the animal whose footprints he found. Until recently, however, no one dreamed that this ancestor of all of us had lived much before the age of coal. The footprints in Pennsylvania were made at least a million years before the age of coal began.

"From these footprints it is suggested that Paramphibius still retained fin-like fore feet while its hind feet had developed toes rather similar to those of newts and salamanders. If true, the animal comes closest to being the 'missing link' between fishes and land-living vertebrates of any fossil yet found. However, from the fact that the hind feet are not as simple as those of the very earliest land-crawling animal would have been, it is reasonable to suppose that still older rocks may disclose fossils of an even more ancient, more fish-like ancestor.

"While the muds and sands and ooze in the inland sea which covered the Ithaca region were being transformed into rock, along the shore of the salt water the sands and dust and muds were also being transmuted into rock. These are the continental beds, usually recognizable today by their red or green color. The rocks in which the footprints were found in Pennsylvania are of the continental colors.

"But although their history is essentially the same, the rocks in which the footprints were found are not as old, by perhaps a million years, as the rocks now exposed in the ravines and gorges at the head of Cayuga Lake. When the Ithaca rocks are traced toward the south and especially toward the east, they become red and green, and it is here that probably are lurking the ancestors of Paramphibius."

In this region the Cornell party, after visiting the scene of Dr. Willard's discovery, will search for signs of the early ancestor of man and beast. The Pennsylvania tracks were wide and sprawling, with a groove between where presumably a heavy tail was dragged. The prints of the hind feet show normal toes, but those of the fore feet show delicate rays such as might have been made by fins. Dr. Caster has asked nature lovers and amateur fossil hunters of the region to communicate with him if they find any similar imprints.

GIVE FOUR MORE PLAYS

The Dramatic Club presented four original plays Saturday night in the University Theatre. "Through the Door" by Deane Dunloy was coached by Betty Stout '35 of Auburn. Lewrairie T. Magee '36 of York, Pa., who will be remembered for her performance in "Clear All Wires," did well in a poor spot as the neglected wife, as did Stanley D. Metzger '36 of New York City as her lover.

"Written in the Stars" by Annette R. Baker '35 of Hudson gave opportunity for an outstanding performance by Eva Wolas '36 of New York City, as a hard-boiled stenographer to a movie mogul who was inspired to bigger and better pictures without ballyhoo and stars. The play was coached by Laura B. Maughan '35 of Etna.

The idealistic artist in "Aprons without Strings" by Ruth Beck, directed by Marie A. Prole '36 of Batavia, was well done by Andrew C. Hartnett '38 of Elmira. The lines were good and the cast did admirably.

But "Co-ed" by Violet J. Brown '35 of Brooklyn, co-winner of this year's Heermans' Prize, was a grand play. Nine co-eds in a women's dormitory, in various stages of undress, are bull-sessioning when in walks a man, played by John A. Clausen '36 of Passaic, N. J. The situation was carried off with ease and naturalness by the entire cast. The outstanding performance of the evening was by Sharma G. Scutt '36 of Deposit, whose antics were delightful and thoroughly entertaining. The lines were catchy and interesting throughout, and we couldn't help feeling that it ended all too soon. The coach was Mildred E. Evans '35 of Utica. R.R. '31

FACULTY DISLIKES TAX Will Support Athletics

The University Faculty on March 13 head the report of its own committee on the athletic situation, headed by Professor Frederick G. Marcham, and did not favor the proposed compulsory tax for which 1,517 students voted in the poll conducted by the Student Council, as reported in the ALUMNI NEWS last week. It is expected that this committee will represent the Faculty at future meetings of the Trustees' committee, the next of which is scheduled for March 29.

Dean Cornelius Betten of the University Faculty issued the following statement after the meeting:

"At the meeting of the University Faculty held on Wednesday afternoon, the special committee which is representing the Faculty in the study now being made of the Athletic situation, presented a report of its own tentative conclusions for the purpose of drawing out Faculty opinion.

"The Faculty declared its opinion in general terms, showing clearly its purpose to support both intercollegiate and intramural athletics. It also indicated a determination to bring these activities more definitely under University control than heretofore.

"The majority opinion seemed to favor bringing intercollegiate athletics to a self-supporting basis. The proposed compulsory tax on students met with no favor as a means to that end. The existing committee was continued for the purpose of representing in the future discussions the general points of view expressed."

WHILE THE REST of the University community votes and hears reports on the situation of athletics, fifty or more employees have organized their own University Employees' Athletic Club, with Edgar A. Whiting '29, manager at Willard Straight, as president. The initiation fee of $1 and annual dues of $2, payable in installments, make the organization self-supporting and competition is keen now in basketball, Willard Straight having recently defeated College Stores, and Residential Halls the Mechanical Engineering force.

THE LAW QUARTERLY has elected four juniors to head its board next year: John M. Friedman of Rockaway Beach, editor-in-chief; Robert S. Pasley of Maplewood, N. J., business manager; Frederick W. Whiteside, Jr. of Camden, Ark., book review editor; and John F. Maddever of Niagara Falls, managing editor. Elections are based on scholarship.

ANNOUNCE SUMMER SESSION PLANS

First to Combine Five Previous Schools Opens July 8
Offer Many New Features

The forty-fourth Summer Session of the University which opens next July 8 and continues to August 16 is the first to be conducted under the new plan by which the five previous separate summer schools are coordinated under one administrative board. Several new courses and some entirely new lines of work will be offered this year for the convenience of educators, school and college officials, college students, or others who find it convenient to pursue University work at this time.

A total of 280 courses will be given by an instructing staff of 160. They include work in the Colleges of Art and Sciences, Architecture, Engineering, Agriculture, and Home Economics; in the Graduate School and the Graduate School of Education; and in the Geology Field School at Spruce Creek, Pa.

In addition to their formal University work, students will have opportunity to enjoy a series of concerts sponsored by the Department of Music, the performances of the Summer Theater in Willard Straight Hall, and the playgrounds, tennis, swimming, and other facilities for sports.

Schedule Special Conferences

Several conferences of special interest to students in various fields will be held here before and during the regular Summer Session. On July 4, 5, and 6 a symposium on ionic physics will be conducted by members of the Department of Physics and others. Professor J. Franck, formerly of the University of Gottingen and recently appointed professor of physics at Johns Hopkins, will be the non-resident lecturer in that subject this summer.

July 15-20 the American Institute of Cooperation holds its national meeting on the Campus to consider problems related to agricultural cooperative marketing. Members of the Summer Session staff and others prominent in this field will take part in its program and its sessions will be open to students in Agricultural Economics and Farm Management.

Two special conferences of interest to school officials and teachers will be held July 29 to August 2: one on the training of home economics teachers in group leadership; the other, sponsored jointly by the State Department of Education and the Graduate School of Education, on problems of school attendance and pupil adjustment. From August 10 to 17 a conference on vocational education will be held by administrators, supervisors, and teacher trainers in agricultural education of several states.

Among the new courses offered this summer is that for advanced students emphasizing the interdependence of architectural and landscape design, announced in the ALUMNI NEWS of February 21. Given in the College of Architecture, this is the only work of the sort offered in this country. Several new courses will be added to the previous extensive offerings in stagecraft and dramatics, and students in this Department will again appear in the performances of the Summer Theatre. Special courses for teachers of industrial education and industrial arts are to be given for the first time this summer with the cooperation of the State Department of Education, adding to the extensive list of courses offered in the Graduate School of Education.

The work of the former Summer School of Biology will continue this year. The courses are identical with those given during the college year and by the same staff; this feature has attracted many students in the past and is expected to continue to do so under the new arrangement.

Another popular offering being continued is the integrated course in family living given by various departments of the College of Home Economics for home economics teachers. It gives experience in selecting, organizing, and developing teaching material around everyday situations and problems.

Beginning June 24, the Department of Hotel Administration offers a series of unit courses of one or two weeks, for persons engaged in hotel or hospital work. The summer field school in geology at Spruce Creek opens June 17.

Courses In Every Subject

These are but a few highlights of a Summer Session program which includes many and varied courses, in drawing, painting and music; philosophy, history, government, economics, and sociology; education and psychology; biological sciences; geography, geology, and meteorology; astronomy, physics, chemistry, and mathematics; architecture; engineering; agriculture; and home economics. All are listed in the preliminary announcement now being distributed to inquirers, and will be more completely described in the regular Summer Session Announcement which will be published shortly. A uniform fee of fifty dollars covers tuition for the six weeks of the Summer Session; the shorter unit courses cost ten dollars a week.

Professor Loren C. Petry is Director of the unified Summer Session. He has been a member of the staff of the Botany Department since 1922 and Professor of Botany since 1925. He is secretary of the Botanical Society of America, and was chairman of the committee which presented the revision of the curriculum of Arts and Sciences in 1932. The other members of the administrative board are Dr. Floyd K. Richtmyer '04, Professor of Physics and Dean of the Graduate School; Dr. Julian E. Butterworth, Professor of Rural Education and Director of the Graduate School of Education; Dr. Herbert H. Whetzel, '04 Grad., Professor of Plant Pathology; Dr. George H. Sabine '03, Professor of Philosophy; and Dr. Robert E. Cushman, Goldwin Smith Professor of Government.

The first summer session of the University was held in 1893. In 1911 a summer session of the State College of Agriculture was established as an independent but affiliated unit. In 1923 the Summer School of Biology was similarly organized. Courses in the State College of Home Economics were added in 1928. Registration in the five last year was 1644. It is expected that enrollment in the 1935 Cornell University Summer Session—University and State Summer Schools will be larger.

ANDREWSSES SEE MANY

Visits to Cornellians throughout the Far East are reported by Professor Eugene P. Andrews '95, Archeology, and Mrs. Andrews, who have recently returned to Ithaca from a sabbatic leave spent in the Hawaiian Islands, China, Japan, and the Philippines.

Leaving Ithaca last July 28, they spent some time in the West and were for three weeks guests in Honolulu of Dean Arthur L. Andrews '93 of the college of arts and sciences of the University of Hawaii, and Mrs. Andrews. Their expedition from there to edge of the crater of Kilauea was described in a letter printed in the ALUMNI NEWS of October 11, 1934.

Returning, they visited Kauai Island and Albert Horner '13, raising "the best pineapples in the world." Later the Cornell Club of Honolulu gave a dinner for Professor Andrews, and Mrs. Andrews was entertained by the wives of the members. There they met also Mung Yee Yap '29, who is in charge of the Shanghai department of China's foreign office. Through him they were met in Yokohama by one of the secretaries of the Chinese Legation, who drove them to Tokyo. There they were invited to tea with the Chinese Minister and entertained at dinner by three secretaries of the Legation.

In Tokyo, Professor and Mrs. Andrews found Kakumaro Kemmotsu '28 managing one of the large hotels. After visiting Nikko and Kyoto, former Japanese capital, and in Keijo (Seoul), Korea, they were the guests in Mukden, Manchuria, of Lewis C. Perry, Jr. '12 and Mrs. Perry of the Standard Oil Company. There they visited the club which now occupies the former temple which Willard Straight converted into the American Consulate, and saw his picture as one of a group.

After two weeks in Peking, they travelled to Nanking and at the University found many Cornellians. Later, at Shanghai, Mung Yee Yap (now known in China as Yui Ming) entertained the travellers at the American cinema, a Chinese theatrical performance, various drives, and a supper party at a smart night club where the entertainers were all White Russians, of whom they say there are large numbers in China, many having been given Chinese citizenship.

Next they visited Hong Kong and Manila and flew and motored through the mountain provinces back from the coast. Enroute to Bantoc they spent a night at Mt. Data Lodge, owned and run by Percy W. Tinan '03, who has been living there for twenty years and is an authority on the history and folklore of the region.

Homeward bound, they stayed over night at "Silverado," the ranch of George P. Dyer '95 above Calistoga, Cal., and came to New York through the Panama Canal on the SS President Lincoln.

AWARD '94 DEBATE PRIZE

The Ninety-Four Memorial Prize of $94, established by the Class of '94, was awarded to Stanley D. Metzger '36 of New York City for his argument for the negative of the resolution that the manufacture and sale of arms and munitions should be nationalized. The debate was held in Memorial Room of Willard Straight Hall on March 12.

Metzger was the last speaker for the negative. The other speakers, all selected as the result of competition, were Arlene J. Tuck '36 of New York City, Phillip Goodheim '36 of Gloversville, and Edward H. Weeks '36 of Richmond Hill, for the affirmative; and Ruskin F. Harris '37 of Brooklyn and Harold D. Cohen '35 of Kingston for the negative.

Dean Dexter S. Kimball of the College of Engineering presided and awarded the prize. The judges were Professor Julian P. Bretz, American History; Royal E. Montgomery, Economics; and Montgomery Robinson, Agricultural Extension.

Metzger contended that government control of arms manufacturing would not decrease the probabilities of war, but on the contrary might increase them if it forced small nations to go into the business by making them more independent of each other than at present, and thus lessening the chances of international cooperation to reduce armaments.

THE SUN announces a weekly fashion column, "Clothes and the Co-ed," to appear on Wednesdays, beginning March 20. It will be conducted by Ruth M. Press '35 of Philadelphia, Pa., Alice C. Bailey '36 of Skaneateles, and Gladys L. Winters '36 of Staten Island, members of the women's board of editors.

CORNELL DAY PLANS TAKE SHAPE

Undergraduates Plan Entertainment of Visitors May 11 as Sixteen Clubs Announce Chairmen

Plans for Cornell Day, May 11, are rapidly taking shape, with a meeting of seventy undergraduate committee members held March 13 to outline the program of entertainment for the several hundred prospective Cornellians who will visit the Campus. They will eat and sleep at fraternity houses, arriving Friday evening, May 10.

On Saturday morning the guests will be shown about the Campus, and especially the colleges in which they may be interested. That afternoon they will be guests of the University at a baseball game, probably with Princeton, and it is hoped there may be a race of 150-pound crews. Saturday evening President Farrand will speak at a brief rally, with a dance planned afterward. On Sunday, those who wish to go will be taken to Taughannock and Buttermilk Falls to see something of the country about Ithaca.

Ray S. Ashbery '25, Alumni Field Representative, is general chairman of Cornell Day and Professor Herman Diederichs '97 is Faculty adviser. Besides the members of the undergraduate executive committee representing the senior societies, other honorary societies, the Interfraternity Council, the Student Council, and The Cornell Daily Sun, as printed in the ALUMNI NEWS last week, all sixty fraternities sent representatives to this meeting.

Clubs to Send Boys

Ashbery explained that there are three principal sources of nominations for Cornell Day guests: through high school and preparatory school principals, from alumni, and from undergraduates. Names which come to him by April 1 from alumni, he said, would be referred to Cornell clubs, whose Cornell Day committees would interview the boys and arrange for their transportation to Ithaca. By April 15 he will also refer undergraduate nominations to these club committees, or make arrangements direct if there is no club active in the candidate's neighborhood. Alumni who are not in a club territory are also sending names to him.

Sixteen Cornell clubs have already sent to Ashbery the names of their Cornell Day chairmen and committees. Many others, he says, are at work, following Thorne's suggestions as printed in the ALUMNI NEWS of March 7, but have not yet sent him their chairman's name. These he urges to do so at once, so that boys in their territories who are nominated may be referred to them.

The Cornell Day chairmen of the clubs which have so far reported are: Westfield, N. J., Albert M. Lamberton '09; Trenton, N. J., Howard T. Critchlow

'10; Maryland, Roger S. Hall '23; Boston, Mass., Francis Niccolis '13; Chicago, Ill., Alfred H. Hutchinson '10; Washington, D. C., John S. Gorrell '05; Rochester, Joseph B. Bloss, Jr. '22; Syracuse, Robert C. Hosmer '00; Lackawanna Club, Russell T. Kerby '13; Newark, N. J., Clarence J. Pope '11; Albany, Prentice Cushing '05; Philadelphia, Pa., Walter W. Buckley '26; Wilmington, Del., Caesar A. Grasselli, 2d. '24; Plainfield, N. J., John McGlone '06; Lehigh Valley Club, Morris D. Farr '26; Detroit, Mich., Frank Nitzberg '22.

Although their activities cover a somewhat broader territory than can be included in the Cornell Day activities, the speaking trips of the four travelling professors are closely allied with its purpose. By April 1, Professor Charles L. Durham '99 will have returned from his swing around the circle, and Professors Bristow Adams, Riverda H. Jordan, and John G. Jenkins '23 will be on the road. The itineraries of all four are included in our calendar of "Coming Events."

PLANNERS MEET HERE

Officials of the National Resources Board, Federal planning body, met in Ithaca March 10 and with Provost Albert R. Mann '04, chairman, and others of the State Planning Board the next day to consider the work of both bodies and inspect the results of planning in Ithaca and Tompkins County.

Representatives of the Federal body included Frederic A. Delano, uncle of president Roosevelt, who is chairman of the advisory committee of the National Resources Board; Charles W. Eliot, 2d., son of the late president of Harvard, executive secretary; Harold A. Merrill '22, associate executive secretary; and Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, present Messenger lecturer, who is a member of the advisory committee.

State Planning Board officials besides Provost Mann included Robert Whitten of New York City, consultant, and Jesse C. Merrill '27. Dr. Whitten addressed the class in regional planning on March 13. The visitors attended a conference at the University at which members of the Faculty of the College of Agriculture discussed various phases of land use and planning on which they have been working with the State Board. Those who spoke were Professor George F. Warren '03, Dr. Thomas E. Lamont '27, and Dr. Martin P. Catherwood, PhD '30, of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Farm Management; Dr. Frank B. Howe, Soils; and Professor Dwight Sanderson '98 and Walfred A. Anderson, PhD '29, of Rural Social Organization. George S. Tarbell '90 attended the sessions as chairman of the Ithaca City Planning Commission.

Last week Governor Lehman, in a special message to the Legislature, asked the creation of a permanent State planning council, to continue the work "so well begun" by the present board of twenty-two headed by Provost Mann. The Governor said that the recent report of the board had drawn much favorable comment, and suggested a permanent council of five to be appointed by the Governor. Among the problems which it would consider he mentioned housing, rural electrification, air terminals, industrial locations, city expansion, regional markets, and public recreation.

CLEVELAND SEES MOVIES

The Cornell Club of Cleveland was entertained at its regular luncheon March 14 with a sound picture, "Ford and the Century of Progress."

MILWAUKEE BOWLS

The Cornell Club of Milwaukee held an informal supper and bowling party at the Hollywood Recreational Parlors on the evening of March 6. Twenty-seven Cornellians and their guests were present. Clifford B. Stevens '35 led the singing, accompanied by an accordin. After supper bowling was enjoyed, the finale being a match game between C. R. (Ray) McCallum '18-Carl E. Hilbert '32 and the team of Max Sievert, the host, and Dayton Worden of Lehigh.

MRS. SAGE DIES

Mrs. William H. Sage died at the age of 78 on March 10 at her home in Menands. She was the widow of the son of Henry W. Sage, early chairman of the Board of Trustees, whose first gift to the University was $250,000 on condition that women be accepted as students.

William H. Sage died October 23, 1924. From 1888 until his retirement in 1904 he was a Trustee of the University. He was one of the charter members of the Athletic Association, for many years was president of the Council, and gave the land that later became Percy Field. He established the pension fund for University professors, made several contributions for the equipment and beautification of Sage Chapel, and with his brother, Dean Sage, gave and endowed the University Infirmary, which was the former residence of his father.

Mrs. Sage was the second wife of William H. Sage. They were married in 1898. For several years she lived in Ithaca, first with the family of Henry W. Sage and later, as the most intimate friend of the first Mrs. William H. Sage, with that family. She is survived by two stepsons, Harry W. Sage and Andrew Gregg Sage of New York City, and two step-grandchildren, Mrs. William Douglas Burden and Miss Marion Whit.

ST. LOUIS ELECTS

New officers of the Cornell Club of St. Louis are Shurly R. Irish '18, president; Donald E. Huntington '27, vice-president; Theodore A. Eggmann '27, treasurer; and Vadime V. Netch (Netchvolodoff) '32, secretary.

On February 15 the Club gave a formal testimonial dinner at the Missouri Athletic Association in honor of Franklin W. Olin '85, who had been recently appointed a Trustee of St. Louis University. Emeritus Professor Nathaniel Schmidt was the official representative of the University and attended the dinner.

On March 20 the Club planned to take advantage of the presence in St. Louis of Professor Charles L. Durham '99 with a buffer supper at the Kingsway Hotel, at which they were to entertain prospective Cornellians.

AWARD HEERMANS PRIZES

The Forbes Heermans prizes for the two best one-act plays on American themes submitted by undergraduates were divided this year between Violet J. Brown '35 of Brooklyn and Seymour A. Gross '35 of Belle Harbor, who tied for first place. First and second prizes total $150 and are derived from the income of a trust fund left to the University by Forbes Heermans '78, who was perhaps best known as the editor of David Noyes Westcott's book, David Harum. He was, however, also a playwright, having written "The Silent Witness," "Between Two Foes," and "Love by Induction."

Unknown to the judges, since plays were submitted under assumed names, it happens that Gross is president of the Dramatic Club and Miss Brown is vice-president. Both are students in Professor Alex M. Drummond's course in play writing, and both have appeared in many of the Club's productions. By a strange coincidence, Miss Brown's play, "Borax," produced last week, was coached by Gross.

Miss Brown's prize-winning play takes its title, "I Would Found an Institution," from the familiar statement of Ezra Cornell about the University. It deals with the more serious aspects of undergraduate life. "Subway Face," which won the prize for Gross, is an expressionistic laid in New York City. Its author is a nephew of Joe Weber, of the vaudeville team of Weber and Fields. Both will be produced by the Dramatic Club next month.

About ATHLETICS

CREWS TAKE TO WATER Announce Schedule

Again the crew men are making the long trek down the Hill to the boathouse from afternoon classes, rowing with a will in the ice-bordered waters of the Inlet, and getting back at dusk as best they can to the self-financed training table at the Johnny Parson Club for such as can afford it; and others to their jobs. The spirit that led the Cornell crews to their first victory at Saratoga in '75 is still alive!

Coach James Wray looks forward to having not one but three or four good crews for this sixtieth season since that historic day. "We have lots of good boys, and they want to row," he says. So far, the rowing has been intermittent, and only in the Inlet south of the boathouse, with the water still covered with ice to the north and for half a mile into the Lake.

But eighty are on the training table; a new British-built shell is about ready for shipment; and the rowing schedule is announced.

The first race of the season will be April 27 at Annapolis, when three crews will meet the Navy. On May 4 two crews will race Harvard, M. I. T., and Syracuse at Cambridge. On Spring Day, May 18, the crews will race on Cayuga Lake in the Carnegie cup regatta against Princeton and Yale; and they go to Poughkeepsie for the intercollegiate regatta June 18, where it is announced that at least six colleges besides the five member universities will be invited to compete.

For the first time in at least fifty years, and probably ever, a Cornell crew will row a foreign-built shell. Sims, famous English builder, is completing one especially timbered for the rougher American waters under the supervision of John L. Gollyer '17, captain and stroke of the 1916 crew and acting coach thereafter during the illness of Coach Courtney. Gollyer is British manager for the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Company. From 1899, when John Hoyle came to Ithaca, until his illness prevented, the Cornell shells and oars were fashioned in our own boathouse. Since then shells have been purchased in Seattle, Wash.

As candidates for the Varsity and Junior Varsity boats, Coach Wray has many with experience, including seven who rowed at Poughkeepsie last June, most of the sophomore boat which won the Treman Cup and the Forbes mugs last fall, and four experienced coxswains.

Among those from the Varsity and JV Poughkeepsie boats are Commodore Thomas C. Borland '35 of Oil City, Pa., William C. Babcock '35 of Hornell, John W. Todd, Jr. '35 of Pittsburgh, Pa., William H. Foote '35 of Miles, Wis., basketball captain, Arthur F. Glasser '36 of Paterson, N. J., Francis C. Hopper '36 of Troy, William G. Van Arsdale '36 of Castile, and James C. Forbes '36 of Shaker Heights, O.

Many Promising Oarsmen

Six of last fall's winning sophomore crew are rowing: William A. Drisler of Bronxville, stroke, James G. Dodge of Lancaster, Pa., Albert W. Hartman of Mansfield, O., Robert H. Menges of Pittsburgh, Pa., Robert W. Oneill of Syracuse, and Elbert W. Sowerwine, Jr. of Westfield, N. J.; besides Irving A. Jenkins '37 of New York City and Harry H. Huck, Jr. '37 of Savannah, Ga., stroke and No. 7 of last year's freshman boat at Poughkeepsie.

Among other promising candidates are Robert N. Avery '35 of Grosse Point, Mich., Paul M. Brister '36 of Auburn, Cornelius C. DuMond, Jr. '36 of Ulster Park, Irwin C. Lounsbury '36 of Jamaica, Morton P. Matthew '36 of Berkeley, Cal., who rowed as a freshman for California, Reinald Werrenrath, Jr. '36 of New York City, Frank M. Bigwood '37 of Schenectady, Gleeck Thompson '37 of Denver, Col., who has rowed for Yale, and Arthur T. Williams, Sp., of Highland. Coxswains include John A. Ward '36 of Hollis, William J. Brennan '37 of Fishkill, Allen L. Davison '37 of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Joseph M. Steiner, 3d. of White Plains, freshman coxswain last year.

J. Clarke Wray, son of the head coach, has three boats of freshmen at work. Of last fall's leading freshman crew, those now out are Frederick M. Huntington of Sea Cliff, Frank P. Hill of Forest Hills, F. Roy Badgley of Farmingdale, Milton R. Porter of Garden City, Noel S. Bennet, Jr. of Albany, Edward B. Lauman of East Chicago, Ind., Edmund F. Pfeifer of Hackensack, N. J., stroke, and George M. Holley of Grosse Point, Mich., coxswain. Among the other promising freshmen are Elliot H. Hooper of Aurora, Ill., Robert J. Huffcutt of Buffalo, Henry A. Lanman, Jr. of Gahanna, O., Joseph C. Noback of Scarsdale, and James A. Rocky of Elmira.

Henleys Rustle Funds

Candidates for the 150-pound crew, because it receives no financial assistance from the Athletic Association, have to be not only oarsmen but fund raisers. Last Thursday they sponsored an entertainment in Willard Straight Hall to help finance their season. Nick Bawlf, coach of lacrosse, soccer, and hockey, showed moving pictures of the Olympic games; members of the Glee Club and the Savage Club sang; and Yien Shan Chen, Grad., of Shanghai, dressed in full regalia gave a demonstration of Chinese sword fighting and boxing. John M. Chapman '36 of Rochester, manager, and aspirants for the 150-pound crew arranged the program.

If the crew is able to raise enough money, Chapman says they will race this year at Annapolis April 27 and at Cambridge on May 4; they hope to be able to invite an opponent for a race on Cayuga Lake May 11 or May 18, and to take part in the American Henley at Philadelphia, May 25. Last year, by sharing in Spring Day receipts and with the help of a donation from fraternities, they rowed in borrowed shells at several out-of-town races. This year, by handling the checking at the Junior Prom and from the entertainment last week, they have raised enough to encourage them to row faithfully in their old 1909 shell, built for Varsity weight and now passed on to them.

The entire 150-pound crew which raced last fall is at work now. They comprise Wilfred R. Kelly '35 of Coopers-town, stroke, Arthur L. Schwab '36 of Staten Island, William K. Kellogg '35 of Mt. Vernon, Frederick Peirce, Jr. '36 of Wynnewood, Pa., Charles D. English '35 of Red Bank, N. J., Stephen G. Burritt '36 of Hilton, Henry H. Sayles '35 of Elmira, and Thomas D. Bowes, Jr. '35 of Cynwyd, Pa., with Charles W. Lockhart '36 of Youngstown, O. as coxswain. Others out this spring for the 150-pound boat include Howard B. Perry, Jr. '35 of Newtonville, Mass., Edward A. Robinson '35 of Washington, D. C., Robert N. Denniston '36 of Ithaca, Frank J. Drews, Jr. '36 of Woodcliff, N. J., and George Dimeling '36 of Clearfield, Pa.

COLUMBIA SABRES WIN

The Varsity fencing team lost to a Columbia team coached by the national sabres champion, 10-17, in the Drill Hall Saturday afternoon.

Coach Georges Cointe's proteges won the epee matches, 6-3, as Morris Sandgrund '37 of Rochester, Daniel F. Macbeth '37 of Auburn, and James W. Parker '37 of Wilton each won two and lost one.

In the foils the Red swordsmen trailed 4-5, Captain Edwin O. Merwin '36 of Buffalo and Sandgrund each winning two and losing one. Daniel D. Krakauer '35 of Tannersville, however, dropped three. The Red team was clearly out-classed in the sabres matches, with Edgar M. Matthews '37 of Jamaica, John A. Ward '36 of Hollis, and Wieman Kretz '36 of Rockville Center all losing all their bouts.

Next Saturday the team will face a team of alumni in the Drill Hall, and on March 30 will compete in the intercollegiate championship matches at the Hotel Commodore, New York City.

WRESTLERS TAKE SEVENTH

With only three regular members in top shape, Coach O'Connell's crippled wrestling team made an unexpectedly good showing in the preliminaries of the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association championship meet at the University of Pennsylvania, and finished in seventh place.

George R. Brownell '36 of Westfield, N. J. gained second-place honors in the 155-pound division after losing to Gregory of Princeton in the final. In the second-place bout he defeated Walker of Yale on decision. In the semi-finals he defeated Civitts of Penn State.

Gregory T. Shallenberger '37 of Cleveland, O. lost the 118-pound final to Asman of Lehigh on time advantage and the second-place bout to Kinne of Yale, after he had thrown in the semi-finals, Wolfson of Penn State, who defeated him here.

Three other Red wrestlers were beaten in the semi-finals. George J. Morgan '36 of Westfield, N. J., wrestling for the second time at 135 pounds, lost on time to Conrad of Lehigh. Captain Charles C. Shoemaker '35 of Philadelphia, who had suffered a chest injury in practice, was wrestling at 145 pounds, 20 below his usual class. He lost on time to Servis of Syracuse, after having thrown Crockett of Lehigh. Henry B. Weigel '35 of New Rochelle, who was replacing Asa George in the heavyweight class, was downed by Scobey of Lehigh.

Lehigh won the championship for the fifth year, with Penn State second, Princeton third, Columbia fourth, Yale fifth, and Syracuse sixth.

Freshmen Lose

The freshman wrestling team lost 16-20 in Ithaca March 12 to a Syracuse yearling team which thus completed an undefeated season. Syracuse gained four falls and the freshmen two falls and two decisions. Robert R. Gibbs of Ithaca threw his opponent in the 125-pound class and Harry L. Smith of Buenos Aires, Argentina, his in the 175-pound class. Just before the meet Milton Baker of Watertown was elected captain.

The Sun recently related that Coach O'Connell's freshman heavyweight entry, Henry Hofheimer, Jr. of New York City, who weighs about 180, was commandeered from a group playing basketball in the Old Armory just before the meet with Wyoming Seminary. In that meet he was thrown in 1½ minutes by a more experienced opponent, and in 2:54 in the Syracuse encounter.

BOXERS GET TROPHIES

The University's first intercollegiate boxing team on March 14 elected Luis Torregrosa '36 of Porto Rico, captain for next year. Coach Jacob I. Goldbas '34 presented two trophies donated by Cornell lawyers of Utica, largely through the efforts of Paul J. McNamara '07. They went to Captain David Cramer '35 of Utica, undefeated until the Syracuse meet, as the best boxer of the team; and to Irving A. Jenkins '37, who, starting without experience, showed the greatest improvement during the season.

Boxing is not supported by the Athletic Association, but Coach Goldbas hopes next season to have a more extensive schedule than the four meets of this year. Only three men of this year's squad will be missing: Sidney Leopold '35 of Brooklyn, in the 165-pound class; Bo I. B. Adler '35 of Ithaca, who fought at 175 pounds; and Robert A. Saunders '35 of Cossayuna, in the 135-pound class. In addition to the remainder, several new contestants are expected to be available.

POLO MATCHES

With a record of ten victories in fourteen games played this season, the ROTC polo team competes this year for the first time in the indoor intercollegiate polo championship matches, which begin in Squadron A Armory, New York City, on March 23. That evening they will meet Pennsylvania Military College, one of the most formidable opponents they have played. Although no handicaps are allowed in these matches, their opponents have a rating of 9 goals with their star player rated at 5, as compared with one each for the Lawrence brothers of the Varsity team. If they defeat their first opponents, they will appear again in New York for the semi-finals on March 28 and perhaps for the finals, March 30. For the first time the team will ship their own horses to an out-of-town game.

Beat Essex Troop

On Saturday evening in the Riding Hall, the team decisively upheld its record of winning at home, defeating Essex Troop of the New Jersey National Guard, 23-8½. In this game Stephen J. Roberts '38 of Hamburg started in place of John S. Leslie '35, who has been high scorer at No. 1 position. He was high man with 11, of which three were made before Essex Troop scored. Of the 5 Cornell goals in the fourth chukker, Leslie made 4, which was the best that Frederick H. Anderson '32, high scorer for Essex Troop, could do. He came into the game in the second period.

Although forced to concede the visitors points handicap, the Varsity team quickly overcame it and led throughout the game, making 5 or more in each chukker. Left-handed Captain John C. Lawrence '37 and his brother Thomas '38 of Smithtown Branch made several skillful saves. The game was fast and ranged furiously from one end of the tanbark to the other with a record-breaking crowd filling the stands. The summary:

CORNELL (23)	Pos.	ESSEX TROOP (8½)
Roberts	No. 1	Skidmore
T. Lawrence	No. 2	Crump
J. Lawrence	Back	Staples

Score by chukkers:
 Cornell.....6 5 7 5—23
 Essex Troop.....1 2 2 2—7
 Scoring: Cornell, Roberts 11, T. Lawrence 4, J. Lawrence 4, Leslie 4. Essex Troop, Anderson 4, Skidmore 2, Staples.
 Foul: Essex Troop, Crump.
 Spares: Cornell, Leslie. Essex Troop, Anderson.
 Referee, Lt. Pittman, Cornell.

On Saturday evening in the armory of Essex Troop at Newark, N. J., a Junior Varsity team will play a return engagement. It will comprise Henry Untermeyer '36 of New York City, polo manager, playing at No. 1; Bartholomew J. Viviano '34, now a junior in Law, at No. 2; and Albert J. Lindemann '35 of Milwaukee, Wis. at No. 3; with Howard E. Babcock, Jr. '36 of Ithaca as spare.

Women Play Well

A women's polo team represented the University for the first time Saturday night in the Riding Hall, being defeated by the more experienced Wilkes-Barre Whipettes, 4-9. Anne M. Simpson '36 of Lyons played No. 1; A. Nathalie Colvocoresses '38 of Phoenix, Ariz., No. 2; and Virginia E. Yoder '35 of Watertown, No. 3. The Red team led off with two goals, but before the end of the first chukker the Whipettes forged ahead and thereafter kept the lead, scoring seven goals in the last two.

The capacity audience was enthusiastic and the game was well-played by both teams. The women were coached by Lieutenant Edward O. Hopkins of the Military Department, who is coach of the ROTC team. They have practiced against the men's team and use the ROTC horses. The summary:

CORNELL (4)	Pos.	WHIPETTES (9)
Simpson	No. 1	Brydon
Colvocoresses	No. 2	Harvey
Yoder	Back	Sylvester

Score by chukkers:
 Cornell.....2 1 2 1—6
 Whipettes.....2 1 3 4—10
 Scoring: Cornell, Colvocoresses 3, Simpson 2, Yoder. Whipettes, Harvey 6, Brydon 2, Sylvester.
 Fouls: Cornell, Yoder 3, Colvocoresses. Whipettes, Brydon 2.
 Referee, Lt. Pittman, Cornell.

SKI CLUB ELECTS

Millett G. Morgan '37 of Hanover, N. H., recently chosen president of the Intercollegiate Ski Union, has been re-elected president of the Cornell Ski Club for next year. Freeman Svenningson '38 of Montreal is treasurer and captain of the winter sports team, and Joslyn A. Smith '38 of Westmount, Quebec, is secretary of the Club. William Dall '36 of Brookline, Mass. is manager of the team.

The Ski Club has elected seven new undergraduate members. Its associate members are Louis C. Conant, AM '29, of the Geology Department, and from the Graduate School, Roland B. Dearborn of North Weare, N. H., Archibald G. Delmarsh of Inlet, and Seymour B. Dunn of Cortland.

FREED ON ALL STARS

Lewis M. Freed '36 of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., basketball forward, has that position on this year's all-star team of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League, selected annually by vote of the coaches. He was third high scorer of the League. Pennsylvania has two men on the mythical team, and Dartmouth and Columbia one each.

Barring the unforeseen, only Captain Foote and Jack Wilson of this year's Varsity team will not be available to play next year. Moreover, Coach Ortner has several likely prospects coming up from the freshman team which, under the tutelage of Donald F. Layton '29, lost but one game of seven this season.

Of the freshmen, Thomas A. Rich of Hobart, center, was high scorer, making 63 for the season. Robert J. McDonald of Waterbury, Conn., forward, playing one less game, made 49, followed by Carlton P. Wilson of Milwaukee, Wis. with 43, and Louis E. Dauner of Cincinnati, O. with 35. All four of these men are over six feet tall. They have been the backbone of a freshman team which frequently has scrimmaged with the Varsity, and not infrequently beaten it.

CHICAGO REUNIONS

The Classes of '20 and '22 held the record up to March 14 for attendance at the luncheons of the Cornell Club of Chicago. The previous week, however, six members of the Class of '23 appeared, and '24 and '25 were next in numbers.

At the March 14 luncheon, the members listened to "Slim" Williams, Alaskan sourdough, who gained public notice some years ago by driving a dog team from Alaska to the National Capital.

The Club announces that Roger S. Vail '06 has been added to the committee on relations with preparatory schools, of which Alfred H. Hutchinson '09 is chairman; and that Claire W. Hardy '11 is in charge of arrangements for the visit to the Chicago region of Professor Bristow Adams, April 3-5.

THE WOMEN'S POLO TEAM

HELPING THEM CHOOSE

Cornell Day this year rises to the dignity of a tradition, having been tried experimentally last year with beneficial results. It is the hope of those that initiated the movement that designation in schools to attend Cornell Day will become a coveted prize, given each year to school leaders in both academic work and student activities.

The work of Cornell Day is of course limited in geographical scope by present-day limitations of travel. There seems to be no good way of reaching, through this method, prospective students from places more than two or three hundred miles away. Even by train the limits are but twice that distance. For that reason the Faculty committee, described last week, is again traveling to the more distant points to broaden the range of the University.

It is not often realized by the prospective student that of all the contributions that go to make up his college education, he himself contributes the most valuable part. The University, out of endowments or Government funds, and the parents with cash, give the material bases of an education. The undergraduate, on the other hand, gives to the process four of the best years of his life, a contribution that is unequalled by all the funds that go into the educational process. No alumnus with ordinary devotion to his Alma Mater can deny this, for the four years of the college course are to him the swift-moving days of youth when the opportunities of the entire world were his for the mere effort of search and seizure.

How simple minded, then, to select the place in which those years are to be spent for the superficial reasons which are the usual bases of choice. The wise parent gives the child the opportunity, as often as presented, to view the surroundings in which the process might take place. Surroundings in the broad sense, physical, inspirational, educational, make their permanent impressions for good or bad. They are much more certain criteria than the make-up of present or previous delegations from home or school, the transient glory of athletic victory, the mere ease of travel to and fro, and like offerings of colleges.

So it is that an alumnus, cooperating either with the traveling professors or with the Cornell Day committee, is doing not merely a selfish service to a cause which interests him. Much more important, he is putting before each prospective student whom he helps bring into contact with Cornell the proper fundamentals of selection in one of the most important choices of his life.

UNIVERSITY'S FUNCTION Richtmyer Summarizes Service

Dean Floyd K. Richtmyer '04 in a Founder's Day address in Willard Straight Hall, so well summarized the services of the University to society and to the individuals whom it trains, that we asked his permission to print such of his talk as our space permits.

He paid tribute to the far-seeing ideals of the Founder of the new University, to his modest objection but final reluctant consent that it bear his name, and to the fact that Hiram Sibley's contribution of $30,000 was to express his admiration of Ezra Cornell and of the institution for which he and Andrew D. White worked so unselfishly and courageously.

He pointed out that the material contributions of a university are relatively easy to measure; that "we know the size of the graduating class year by year. We can point with pride to the career of this or that distinguished alumnus. We can in various ways estimate the annual output of our productive scholars. We can count the number of men serving on the brain trust!"

Individual Important

"But there is another service," he said, "as important as it is intangible and unmeasurable; and because it is intangible and unmeasurable, it is frequently minimized or even forgotten entirely. I refer to the building up of and the holding fast to certain ideals which are basic to the well being of human society. . . ."

One such, said Dr. Richtmyer, is the tradition of individualism—not necessarily "rugged individualism" as contrasted with "regimentation," but rather "the recognition on the one hand of the rights and the prerogatives of the citizen, and on the other, of his obligations to his fellows; recognition that the individual is the basic unit of society; and that no society, whatever its artificial organization, is better than the individuals of which it is composed; and the recognition of the indispensable part which individual initiative has played in the building up of present day civilization in all its complexity.

"This belief in the importance of the individual," he said, "has ever played an important part in the growth of Cornell University. The freedom of the individual professor to teach in his own way is traditional. Just as far as is possible, the problems and the requirements of the individual student are given special consideration. In the Graduate School, college and department lines are, at least officially, not recognized, the Faculty being made up of individual professors giving graduate instruction. And each professor has the utmost freedom, consistent with his relations to his colleagues. For example, it would be entirely permissible, so far as any fundamental rules are concerned, for the professor of Greek to direct graduate work in electrical engineering, though for obvious reasons he would probably not find it expedient to do so! And the Campus over, I think it is generally recognized that there is no substitute for the inspiring teacher, whatever his methods.

"It was this same general recognition, in a large way, that was the basis of Mr. Cornell's desire to put all worth-while studies on equal footing in the curriculum; and to give to any capable, worthy student, opportunity to pursue such studies.

Must Teach Responsibility

"But I raise the questions: Are we of Cornell today adequately standing by our belief that undue restrictions on individual initiative are likely to prove detrimental to the well being of society, as Mr. Cornell stood by his belief that there was no better use for his money than to found a new university? We are teaching, as best we may, the several subjects of the curriculum; but are we impressing on our students the importance of the responsibilities they will face as individual citizens of the commonwealth, when they enter upon their respective careers for which we have trained them? And if we do hold these convictions and teach them by both precept and example, are we nevertheless sufficiently open minded to meet the ever-changing conditions of the modern world—as Mr. Cornell was open minded in his willingness to change his plans if a better use for his money could be found?

"Another of our founder's characteristics was his equanimity in meeting emergencies. Mr. White dwells at length on the calm and unruffled way in which Mr. Cornell met the personal attacks directed against him. Perhaps he was able to detach himself from the present and to take a bird's-eye view of the stirring events of his life and to recognize that these attacks were mere unimportant incidents. How fortunate are those today who likewise can take an objective attitude toward the world about them and view the events of the last five years

BRIEF NEWS OF CAMPUS AND TOWN

SNOW ON THE CAMPUS prevented the usual St. Patrick's Day parade of the architects this year. Two years ago the parade precipitated a snowball fight with the engineers, which brought forth a decree that no more parades could be held when snow was on the ground.

MYRON TAYLOR HALL, however, was said by the Sun last Friday to be celebrating with the formation of a "Huey Long Club." It seems that Joseph R. Mangan '34, now a sophomore in Law, had recently received from the Southern Senator a copy of one of his speeches. The front page of the Sun therefore proclaimed Mangan president of the new "Share-Your-Wealth-Club," and David J. Chuckrow '35 as second in command.

SPRING did come to the Campus, though, in the Fastnachtfest held in Willard Straight Memorial Room Saturday evening when many guests in costume and twenty-five invited German exchange students from nearby universities danced and sang German songs under the auspices of Deutscher Verein. Sylvia Moore '38 of Yonkers won the women's prize for her Norwegian peasant costume, and led the grand march. On Sunday morning Professor Albert B. Faust of the German Department officially welcomed the foreign guests to the Campus.

HAZEL J. THOMPSON '35 of Hastings-on-Hudson has been elected acting secretary of the Council of the Women's Athletic Association to assume the duties of Charlotte M. Mangan '35 of Angola, whose University work this term has taken her to the Merrill Palmer School in Detroit, Mich.

REPORTED MISSING from her home in New York City, Gertrude Horvath was found the next day at Willard Straight Hall, where she had signed for a pack of cards and was playing solitaire. She told the State Trooper who identified her that she had come to Ithaca hoping to find employment that would enable her to enroll in the University.

HAROLD TRAPIDA '38 of Newark, N. J. is distinguished, according to the Sun, by the ownership of "Blackie," a black snake measuring six feet three inches, which he captured in the Kittatinnies in July, 1933, and which now lives in a glass cage on the top floor of McGraw Hall.

A BILLIARD TEAM, playing in the game room at Willard Straight Hall March 7, took fourth place in its first match of the Intercollegiate Telegraphic Billiard League. Making a total of 272 points, the Cornell team was led by Wisconsin, Purdue and Minnesota. Frank A. Taberski '35 of Schenectady was high man with 90; Robert N. Williams '37 of Bradford, Pa. made 54; Manford Rosenheck '37 of Elmira, 52; Mortimer Goldstein '36 of Rochester, 48; and John R. Carver '37 of Ithaca, 28. Referee was Charles C. Peterson, national fancy shot champion, who that day lectured and gave an exhibition in Willard Straight.

CIVIL ENGINEERING students have scheduled their annual banquet, revived last spring after several years' lapse, for March 23 in Willard Straight Hall. They invite members of the School Faculty and practicing engineers from nearby. Robert R. Sheridan '35 of Piqua, O. is chairman of the committee. Deans Dexter S. Kimball and George Young, Jr. '00 and Professors Paul M. Lincoln and Herman Diederichs '97 will be guests of honor.

CHI CHAPTER of Delta Gamma celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its founding over last week end. Among the alumnae whom it entertained were Mrs. Archibald A. Lovelace (Esther M. Sanford) '88, one of the three living charter members, and Mrs. J. Walter Bingham (Florence M. Cornell) '06 of Palo Alto, Cal., who is first vice-president of the national sorority.

WESTERN ELECTRIC Company of New York City sent its Director of Thrift, W. A. Schnedler, to give two lectures on March 15 to students in Administrative Engineering. He spoke on "Why Save From the Start" before a class of sophomores, and on "Industry's Views of Thrift, Saving, and Insurance" before the seniors.

LECTURES for the current week include the ninth and tenth in the Messenger series by Professor Wesley C. Mitchell on March 18 and 22; and Dr. Joseph Needham, reader in biochemistry, Cambridge University, and Terry lecturer at Yale, on "Recent Advances in the Chemistry of Embryology," on the Goldwin Smith Foundation, March 20.

SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER on March 24 is Rev. Albert W. Beaven, D.D., LL.D., president of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School and president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

REV. LESLIE T. PENNINGTON, whom some recent alumni will have known as for the past two-and-a-half years pastor of the Unitarian Church in Ithaca, has left with Mrs. Pennington for Cambridge, Mass. He is to be pastor of the First Unitarian Church on Harvard Square.

CORPORAL JOHN H. KELLY of the State Police and Mrs. Kelly have returned to Ithaca from a motor trip to Florida. Just afterward, the third serious hit-and-run accident had occurred in and near the city and the second to result fatally within a month. The body of a young woman who had apparently been hit by a car was found just outside the city on the Trumansburg road. None of the guilty drivers have been found.

VETERINARY STUDENTS have recently organized an undergraduate chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association. Its officers are Karl E. Putnam '35, of Prattsburg, president; Clark A. Metz '36 of Clarence Center, vice-president; Charles E. Hults '36 of Marathon, secretary; and George G. Pickett '37 of Ithaca, treasurer. Members of the executive board are Theodore E. Jabbs of Ithaca representing the senior class; Robert F. Brown of Bangor, juniors; Arnold Eder of Astoria, sophomores; and James E. Helyar of Stelton, N. J., freshmen; and Bernard F. Trum '35 of Natick, Mass., member-at-large.

MRS. ROOSEVELT was quoted in the newspapers recently as saying that "at Cornell, the consensus of opinion of economists was that we would be back by 1936, perhaps not at the boom apex, but to normal good times again." The Sun points out editorially that "to begin with, a 'consensus of opinion' among Cornell's economists is unheard of and preposterous. Their opinions and theories are as varied as Mrs. Roosevelt's hobbies. Mrs. Roosevelt certainly does not know her Cornell, especially the Lower Campus. She would have to search the halls of Goldwin Smith a long time before finding an optimistic economist."

ELIZABETH LAWRENCE '35 of Red Hook has been elected chairman of the women's senior banquet committee, the date tentatively set for June 12. Catherine Pennock is president of the women's Senior Class. Not yet do the girls and boys organize and dine together.

RELIEF ROLLS in Ithaca during February reached a new high mark of 2,632, approximately 13 percent of the city's population.

THE LIBERAL CLUB has elected Maurice Abbott '36 of New York City its new president. Other officers are Allan B. Campbell '36 of St. Albans, vice-president; Sadie Goodman '36 of Ithaca, secretary; Walter Balderston '35 of Chicago, Ill., re-elected secretary-treasurer; and Ward J. Fellows '36 of Claremont, Cal. and Florence M. Swire '35 of Albany members of the executive committee.

Concerning THE FACULTY

DEAN DEXTER S. KIMBALL of the College of Engineering addressed eighty "salesmen" of the Ithaca Chamber of Commerce at a breakfast on March 12 before the start of an intensive drive to obtain memberships as a part of the "speed recovery in Ithaca" movement. Dean Kimball is also chairman of the Ithaca better housing campaign.

PROFESSOR ROYAL E. MONTGOMERY, Economics, contributes the section on employment conditions to the twentieth volume of the American Yearbook, published March 11.

TWO MEMBERS of the Faculty are announced by Douglas Fisher, secretary of the New York State Committee for the Revival of Private Enterprise, as members of the new consumers' organization. They are Professors Seymour S. Garrett '04, Industrial Economics, and James E. Boyle, Rural Economy. The committee will oppose legislation which tends to strangle legitimate private industry and will encourage private enterprise through legislation and otherwise.

IN ALBANY March 27-29, municipal park officials will receive instruction from Carl Crandall '12, Assistant Professor of Railroad Engineering and secretary-engineer of the Finger Lakes State Park Commission, and from Professor Ralph W. Curtis '00, Ornamental Horticulture. Robert Moses, New York City Commissioner of Parks, heads the instruction staff for the course directed by the Municipal Training Institute of New York State, in cooperation with the Conference of Mayors, State Department of Conservation, and State Council of Parks.

AN UNIDENTIFIED MEMBER of the College of Agriculture Extension staff is reported in "Extension Echoes," sprightly house-organ edited by Professor Bristow Adams, as having accomplished a full day's work this winter. In 19 consecutive hours, from 6 a.m. to 1 a.m., he covered 365 miles, conducted two schools each 2½ hours long, and conferred with two different county agents 100 miles apart. But the editor asks for a better record!

JAMES H. GILKEY, who for years was in the business office of the College of Agriculture, died at his home in Ithaca on March 13. He had been ill for a year. He was the father of Royal Gilkey '08, teacher in Ithaca High School; of Mrs. James B. Calkins (Gladys F. Gilkey) '19, of Rochester; and of Rev. Charles W. Gilkey of Chicago, Ill., popular Sage Chapel preacher, and Rev. James Gordon Gilkey of Springfield, Mass.

UNIVERSITY'S FUNCTION

against the background of past decades and centuries. Instead, most of us indulge in much head-shaking over the present course of civilization. We see international relations strained almost to the breaking point. We see the apparent failure of our economic system. We see bewildering changes in the functions of government. We are aghast at social tendencies that would have shocked our puritanical ancestors. We who are scientists bemoan the fact that funds in support of research are so sadly lacking, in comparison with the enormous expenditures for other purposes.

"The present, with all its difficulties, real or imagined, is so clearly before us that we forget our heritage from the past.

"Should we compare our economic difficulties of 1935 with the prosperity of 1927, or with the condition of society when serfdom and slavery were parts of the accepted system? Whatever be the dangers of war today, this much is to be said: By and large, war is now regarded as horrible. It was once considered glorious.

Science at Least Free

A host of devoted servants of the human race have freed us from such scourges as yellow fever, smallpox and cholera. It may be that support for scientific research is, as many of us think, inadequate in comparison with the benefits to be derived therefrom. But at least no one questions the right of scientists to carry on research and to publish such conclusions and to hold such beliefs as their investigations warrant. It is only yesterday, as the history of the race goes, that Galileo was hauled before the Inquisition and held a prisoner for the rest of his life for daring to teach that the earth revolves around the sun. A little earlier, Bruno had been burned at the stake. Within comparatively modern times,—only a century and a quarter ago—the man who later became Lord Chancellor of England denounced Thomas Young, re-discoverer of the wave theory of light, as a menace to the progress of science.

Who today questions the right of scientists to make stratosphere flights, to study cosmic rays, to fight disease, to investigate what seems almost to be the boundaries of the universe and to show us how insignificant our earth is as a part thereof?

"As President Farrand has repeatedly emphasized, the obligations of a great university are not met merely by giving instruction. Nor are the obligations of its alumni met by serving, however effectively, in the respective callings for which the university has trained them. It is the great privilege of university and alumni together to stand firmly for those broad fundamental principles of conduct that are so essential to the well-being of human society."

It pays to advertise . . . if . . .

IF you advertise to the right people. Cornell Alumni are "the right people" for anyone selling a quality product. Both their discrimination and their buying power are above the average. As prospective customers their rating is "A plus."

IF you advertise where your advertisement will be read. The people who buy the Alumni News are not cudged into it by high-pressure methods. They buy it because they want it. Consequently they read it thoroughly, from cover to cover. And it is small enough so that every advertiser gets preferred space.

IF you get your money's worth for your advertising dollar. And you do when you advertise in the Alumni News. A full-page ad in the News costs less than one cent per reader. We know of no bigger advertising value anywhere.

If you advertise in the Cornell Alumni News, you'll find It Pays to Advertise.
