HEDRICK NEW TRUSTEE Elected Society Head

By virtue of his election last week as president of the New York State Agricultural Society, Dr. Ulysses P. Hedrick, director of the Experiment Station at Geneva, becomes ex-officio a member of the University Board of Trustees. He succeeds Dean Carl E. Ladd '08 of the Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Dr. Hedrick came to Geneva in 1905 as horticulturist, has been a member of the University Faculty since 1919 when reciprocal appointments to the experiment station staffs at Ithaca and Geneva were first arranged, and in 1928 he was advanced from chief in research at Geneva to become director of the Station. He received the BS degree at Michigan State College in '93 and the MS in '95, and taught at Oregon and Utah Agricultural Colleges and at Michigan. He is the author of the important series of monographs issued by the Geneva Station on the fruits and vegetables of New York State, and his History of Agriculture in New York State was reviewed in the ALUMNI NEWS of October 17, 1935.

The charter of Cornell University provides that the president of State Agricultural Society shall be a member of the Board of Trustees. Ezra Cornell was president of the Society in 1862 and has been followed by many alumni and others intimately associated with the University. One of these was John Stanton Gould, for five years from the opening of the University non-resident lecturer on "Mechanics Applied to Agriculture," and the grandfather of Romeyn Berry '04. Among others, besides Dean Ladd, have been Dean Isaac P. Roberts of the College of Agriculture, James H. Durkee '74, Raymond A. Pearson '94, C. Fred Boshart '84, Dr. Whitman H. Jordan, former director of the Geneva Station; H. Edward Babcock and Edward R. Eastman, now University Trustees; and Jared Van Wagenan, Jr. '91.

At the annual meeting of the State Agricultural Society, held in Albany, January 22, Dean Ladd presided and spoke encouragingly of the progress being made by New York farmers toward recovery. Maurice C. Burritt '08, Alumni Trustee of the University and State Public Service Commissioner, told of the progress being made in the construction of rural electric lines and of the State's assistance in increasing the number of farms having electricity. Harper Sibley, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and also a University Trustee, proposed that future agricultural legislation at Washington be based upon the real demands of farmers. Sibley revealed that twelve years ago he had presented to the present King Edward VIII of England, then visiting his Canadian estate which adjoins Sibley's cattle ranch in Alberta, the horse, "Colonel," which has become the King's favorite mount. Governor Herbert H. Lehman spoke of the improved situation as to farm mortgages and agricultural prices in New York State.

PRESIDENT TO TRAVEL

President Farrand, returned from a five-weeks' trip to southern Spain, will speak in Detroit, February 28, as the guest of the Cornell Club of Michigan at a formal dinner at the University Club.

The next day, February 29, he will address alumni in Buffalo.

CAMPUS TRIO IN SCRANTON

The Cornell Club of Northeastern Pennsylvania is planning an informal stag dinner for the evening of Friday, February 7, at the Scranton Club, in Scranton. The speakers will be James Lynah '05, Director of Athletics and Physical Education, Professor John R. Bangs, Jr. '21, Engineering, and Professor John G. Jenkins '23, Psychology. Seth W. Shoemaker '08 is chairman of the committee in charge.

ENGINEERS TO MEET LOCALLY

Edward C. M. Stahl '13, president of the Cornell Society of Engineers, announces in The Cornell Engineer for January a new plan of regional organization of the Society. Organized in Baltimore, Birmingham, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Washington, and other cities where there is demand, each section will be headed by a vice-president of the Society. Through local meetings it is hoped to interest a greater number of Engineering alumni in the work of the Society.

This issue of The Cornell Engineer contains also an explanation of the purposes of the newly-formed Engineers' Council for Professional Development, under the title, "The Engineer Becomes Self Conscious," by Clarence F. Hirshfeld, ME '05; a humorous sketch, "History in Reverse Gear," by Dean Albert W. Smith '78; a description of the machine tool industry by Harrison L. Goodman '26; and an explanation of "The Necessity of Light Railways in China" by S. Shee Wang, formerly with the reconstruction bureau of Kiangsu provincial government in China and now a graduate student in Engineering.

BALTIMORE TO BE HOST Directors Vote Fall Convention

The 1936 convention of the Cornell Alumni Corporation will be held at Baltimore, Md., November 27 and 28, the Friday and Saturday following Thanksgiving Day. The directors of the Corporation, at the regular midwinter meeting of the board in Ithaca on Saturday, accepted the invitation of the Cornell Club of Maryland to hold the next convention in Baltimore.

This will be the first alumni convention since 1929 to be held away from Ithaca. In 1930, at the tenth annual convention, and the first to be held in Ithaca, the schedule was changed to biennial meetings, and those of 1932 and 1934 were both in Ithaca.

Attending the directors' meeting on Saturday were C. Reeve Vanneman '03 of Albany, president of the Corporation; Foster M. Coffin '12, secretary; Mrs. Albert H. Emery (Julia McClune) '04 of Stamford, Conn.; Herbert R. Johnston '17 of Buffalo; George H. Rockwell '13 of Boston, Mass.; Eugene C. Batchelar '02 of Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Ray S. Ashbery '25, alumni field secretary.

At luncheon preceding the meeting, the directors discussed athletics with James Lynah '05 and Romeyn Berry '04; the ALUMNI NEWS with R. W. Sailor '07 and Howard A. Stevenson '19; and publicity problems of the University with Louis C. Boochever '12.

At its meeting following, the board considered the Corporation's program of secondary school activities, especially with reference to the coming Cornell Day in Ithaca May 16; the Alumni Institute, which the University inaugurated last June at the recommendation of the Corporation; and surveyed the field of possible candidates for Alumni Trustee of the University. Each year the board of the Corporation suggests that Trustee candidates be nominated to the number of at least one more than twice as many as there are places to be filled. With two Alumni Trustees the usual number to be elected, it is the hope each year to have at least five candidates. Nominations must be in the hands of the Treasurer of the University not later than April 1.

OPPOSE PENDING BILL

Reiterating their opposition to Senate Bill 2253, eighty-one members of the Faculty signed a second message last week to Congressman Sterling W. Cole explaining their previous request that he vote against the bill.

Their letter pointed out that although the pending bill might appear to affect only persons who deliberately incite disaffection among personnel of the Army and Navy, it would, if passed, be invoked, as was the Espionage Act of 1917, to interfere with the general rights of free speech.

Transmitting the letter, Emeritus Professor Walter F. Willcox, Economics, added this personal note:

"My wartime colleague, H. J. Davenport, a loyal supporter of the Government, then incurred obloquy by urging that the World War should be financed more by taxation and less by bond issues. Today most economists believe that the post-war depression would have been lighter if Davenport's advice had been followed and that the main obstacle then was uninformed public opinion, which he tried to educate. Under the Espionage Act he might have been imprisoned for it. This suggests why university teachers protest against the present bill.

MICHIGAN WHOOPERUPPER

Cornell Whooperupper is the new name of the weekly news sheet of the Cornell Club of Michigan, by which members are apprised of coming functions of local interest and given reports in sprightly fashion of past Cornell Club events.

Matthew Carey '15, the Club's president, won the contest for the best name for the sheet; its editor is the secretary of the Cornell Club of Michigan, Warren D. Devine '26, 1742 Buhl Building, Detroit, Mich.

VAN ALLEN'S POEMS

Ten Poems. By George R. Van Allen '18. New York. Privately Printed. 1935. 14 pages. Ten More. 12 pages.

George Van Allen has been known for some years as a competent writer of verse worth reading. He has now undertaken the publication of his verse in a series of ten pamphlets to be issued at frequent intervals, each to be autographed; for the whole series he asks only the modest sum of one dollar. When one recalls the prices to which autographed first editions have in some instances advanced, the verdict may well be in favor of the small investment. The author's address is 207 East Nineteenth Street, New York.

Van Allen writes real verse, reflective, graceful. Now and then he flashes insight into some corner or causes us to behold a familiar scene in a new light. There is now and then a line which some would like to change; and the writer should make closer acquaintance with Beethoven (Ten More, p. 10). But the percentage of good verse that one would like to think over is surprisingly large. We wish him luck and deserved success.—C. S. N. '93

FOR GOLD IN CALIFORNIA

Roll On, Pioneers. By Fred Lape '21. New York City. Godwin. 1935. 310 pages. $2.00.

This is a story of the '49ers, reminiscent of Emerson Hough's The Covered Wagon. In his fictionized account of the long trek of a wagon train across the country to California, Lape succeeds well in portraying the varied character of the families who banded together in their quest for gold. In the motley company making up the train which started from the banks of the Missouri are the "Richmond Gold Boys" from Virginia; Job and Lizzie Crump and their two daughters, from western Pennsylvania;

THE TOBOGGAN SLIDE ON BEEBE LAKE IS A POPULAR PLACE THESE DAYS

Bird Lawless, the trapper from the wilds of Wisconsin; the austere New England Todds, with their nine-year-old daughter and delicate son; and the lawless Parker boys, run out of their saloon with their aged mother after shooting the sheriff.

In an epilogue, "1935," Mrs. Crump, of the San Francisco Crumps, travelling westward by Pullman, and complaining fretfully of the desert's heat and dust, makes a chance acquaintance of young Lawless, whose father "went back to Wisconsin and stayed."

PERSONAL ADVENTURES

Of All Places. By Howell Cullinan '16. Norwood, Mass. The Plimpton Press. 1935. 258 pages. $2.00.

Cullinan has been around. This latest book of his proves it! He touches hastily upon his adventures in various corners of the earth and with many kinds of persons. Student, sailor, private secretary, newspaper man, radio broadcaster, or adventurer without portfolio, Cullinan is primarily and always the reporter.

Much of the sea is in the book, of newspaper offices, of travel in far places, and of club life in Boston. It is an informal collection of good yarns, told as one man talks to another.

In the chapter on "Fresh Water and Salt Water Colleges," Cornell looms large. He tells of fraternity rushing and initiation, of "bull sessions" and house parties, a regatta on the Lake, John Paul Jones and Jack Moakley, of Professors Durham, Titchener, Reed of Zoology, Creighton, Hull, Burr, and of Professor Browne's Chemistry "sideshows." Next in rapid succession came Harvard Law School and the United States Naval Academy for a war-time short course.

SELLING DOBIE SHORT

A vacuum cleaner salesman tells it on himself that one day he tried to interest Gil Dobie in a cleaner.

Mr. Dobie said no. The salesman beat a retreat.

The Dobie domicile stands on the corner of Mitchell Street and Delaware Avenue in such a manner as to have entrances from both thoroughfares. The salesman, perhaps preoccupied in thinking what he might have said back, walked around the corner and up to the other entrance, thinking it was a neighbor's house.

He rang the doorbell. There was no immediate answer. Impatiently, he gave the bell a good healthy push. And Dobie came thundering to the door again! It was too late now for George to undo his folly. While the irate coach was collecting his resources for a fresh outburst at the luckless salesman, the latter drew himself up to his full height and shouted in derisive scorn: "And so are you!"

He then took his leave hastily.—C. R. R. '25 in the Ithaca Journal.

FARM AND HOME WEEK FEBRUARY 10

Former students of Agriculture and Home Economics who come to Ithaca for Farm and Home Week this year will have their annual opportunity to hear reports of the Colleges and to dine together and with Faculty friends at the alumni banquet Wednesday evening, February 12, in Willard Straight Hall.

Professor Howard B. Meek, Hotel Administration, will be the toastmaster this year, and the guest speaker will be Edward L. Bernays '12 of New York City, public relations counsel and graduate of the College of Agriculture. Dean Carl E. Ladd '12 and Director Flora Rose will summarize the year in their respective Colleges, and it is expected that President Farrand will also be present.

At noon that day the Alumnae Association of the College of Home Economics sponsors a luncheon meeting for all former students, in Martha Van Rensselaer Hall. Marion Fish '23 is president of the Association. On Thursday at 3 the Alumni Association of the College of Agriculture will hold its annual meeting in Roberts Hall 292, with William D. McMillan '24 presiding.

As usual, hundreds of Cornellians and their families will be back to Ithaca for Farm and Home Week, which opens February 10 and continues throughout the week. This has come to be the time each year when alumni engaged in agricultural pursuits—and many who are not—come back to brush up on the latest information relating to the farm and home, or just to see old friends whom they knew in college. Increasingly, too, alumni are taking part in the program of lectures on every conceivable subject with which every minute of the crowded five days is filled. Not a few are officers and members of the many farm organizations which hold meetings on the Campus during the week.

Now a habitual Farm and Home Week visitor, and headliner among the speakers, is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will address a Bailey Hall and overflow audiences by loudspeaker at 2 on Thursday, February 13. Her subject is "What is Today's Challenge to Women?" On Friday at the same hour and place, Governor Herbert H. Lehman will give an address. Wednesday, February 12, at 2, Frank E. Gannett '98, University Trustee and publisher of The Gannett Newspapers, will speak on "Peace or War: What Can We Do?" On Tuesday, Provost Albert R. Mann '04, chairman of the New York State Planning Commission, will discuss "State Planning in Relation to Agriculture and Rural Life."

No brief account could even mention all the subjects to be covered in the continuous program of lectures and demonstrations which will occupy the five days. Virtually every member of the staff of Agriculture and Home Economics takes part, with many speakers from outside of Ithaca. The program includes a bewildering array of information, including all phases of the production and marketing of milk, meat, eggs, fruit, vegetables, timber; important improvements in plants and animals, soils and crops, and rural living; and the important questions of farm prices, credit, and financing. The women, meanwhile, are told and shown many new developments in running the home, from settling family quarrels to management of the family money, meals, and children; gardening, and style shows; with something for everyone.

Nor is entertainment lacking; with moving pictures, community singing, and a recreation hour each day in Bailey Hall, and the traditional evening concerts and undergraduate speaking contests. On Monday evening comes the Rice Debate Stage, with prizes provided by Emeritus Professor James E. Rice '90, this year on the subject: "Resolved: That production should not be restricted for the purpose of raising prices." Tuesday evening the University Orchestra gives its annual Farm and Home Week concert in Bailey Hall. Wednesday evening the best of the State's little theatre companies present their shows in the Willard Straight Theatre, Young Farmers' amateur night is scheduled for Roberts Hall, and Professor Arthur A. Allen '08, with sound pictures, describes the recent expedition to record the songs of vanishing birds. Thursday evening in Bailey Hall is the Eastman Stage and in Willard Straight Hall the annual Master Farmer banquet of American Agriculturist, with Governor Lehman presenting the awards. Friday afternoon in Bailey Hall, Luther M. Noss, University organist, and the Women's Glee Club give a concert, and that evening students will present three one-act plays in the annual Kermis performance.

JUNIOR PROM BROADCAST

Following announcement last week that the Columbia network would carry a half-hour broadcast originating at midnight February 7 at the Junior Prom in the Drill Hall, alumni in several cities have inquired which stations would carry the program. Just which stations will participate cannot yet be ascertained, but it is suggested that alumni interested make inquiries and requests for the program from their favorite stations.

MOST '35 ALUMNI AT WORK

From questionnaires sent to 835 members of the Class of '35, Herbert H. Williams '25, director of the University Placement Bureau, reports that only ten percent were unemployed by January 1. From the 626 replies received, Williams finds that 57 percent are satisfactorily employed, 10 percent are temporarily employed, 23 percent are continuing their studies, and of the 10 percent who reported themselves unemployed, 45 percent are women.

A smaller proportion of the men than of the women are still looking for jobs. For example, of graduates from the Arts College, 11 percent of the women reported themselves unemployed as compared with 5.7 percent of the men; from Agriculture, 11.1 percent of the women and 5.7 percent of the men. Only one graduate of Administrative Engineering, 2.3 percent of last June's class, reported himself unemployed.

Salaries reported by 59 Agriculture men average highest, at $122.70 a month, followed by 20 reports from Administrative Engineers averaging $114.50; 21 Mechanical Engineers, $113.50; and 14 Civil Engineers, $112.60. Nine Electrical Engineers average $97.95; 40 Home, Economics women graduates, $96.04; 42 Arts men, $92.15; 19 Arts women $91.85; and 7 Agriculture women, $78.60.

LOSE TO YALE 27-39

A fast, fighting Yale five defeated the Varsity basketball team 39-27 in the Drill Hall Saturday night before a record crowd, estimated at 2500. When it was over, Cornell and Yale were tied for third place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League, with two wins and two losses each. Columbia leads with both of its two games won, and Dartmouth is second with three won and one lost.

Only once, when Coach Ortner sent in little Lewis M. Freed '36, out the first time this year a week ago, and Freed had made five tallies in quick succession, did the Varsity challenge Yale at all. Then the score was 19-16, in Yale's favor, but they shortly pulled far into the lead again, and were never headed. Yale had the ball for most of the game, and their fast passing attack, contrasted with the wild passing and unlucky basket shots of the Cornell players, gave Yale the clear advantage throughout. Carlton P. Wilson '38 of Milwaukee, Wisc., center, played a consistently good game at the backboards, but his efforts were unavailing.

Charles E. Dykes '36 of Springfield, Ohio, veteran from last year, also got into this game, at guard, for the first time this season. Ortner started Captain Ernest A. Downer '36 at forward, but used him also at guard and for a brief time at center.

The next game is February 8, the Junior Week event with Pennsylvania, now tied with Princeton for fifth place in the League.

Captain Downer leads the League to date in scoring, with 33 points to his credit in four games. Barrett of Pennsylvania is his nearest rival, with 31 points gained in three games. Thomas A. Rich '38 of Hobart is tied for third place in the League ranking with Wilson of Yale and Thomas of Dartmouth, each having 29.

POUGHKEEPSIE RACE JUNE 22

The 1936 Poughkeepsie regatta date was fixed last week for June 22 by the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association. At the meeting in New York City Cornell was represented by James Lynah '05 and Romeyn Berry '04, in the absence of John Collyer '17, Cornell's member of the board.

Again this year it was voted to invite to Poughkeepsie the winner of the "Mid-America" regatta, which will be rowed at Marietta, Ohio, earlier in June. Also, as in the past, California, Washington, Princeton, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be invited. Members of the I. R. A. are Columbia, Navy, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, and Cornell.

The remainder of the Varsity schedule is May 2, Navy at Annapolis; May 16, Yale and Princeton at Princeton; May 23, Harvard and Syracuse on Cayuga Lake. It is hoped that the Varsity crew may also compete in the Olympic trials early in July on Lake Carnegie at Princeton.

CHANGE WRESTLING MEET

As a courtesy to Buffalo alumni of Lehigh, it was announced on Monday, the wrestling meet scheduled with Lehigh for Ithaca February 22 will be held in Buffalo as a feature of a Lehigh alumni gathering being held there at that time.

In the Drill Hall on that date will be the first dual track meet of the season, with Yale, and the boxing team will meet the Yale team, also in Ithaca.

MORE WINTER SCHEDULES

The boxing team will meet Yale at Ithaca February 15 instead of February 22, as announced in our issue of January 9. Its next engagement is with Penn State at State College February 29; followed by a meet with Catholic University at Washington, D. C. March 7.

Hockey schedule approved last week includes, following the Junior Week game February 6 with Colgate on Beebe Lake, Hamilton at Clinton February 15, Colgate at Rochester February 29, and Syracuse at Syracuse March 7.

During the second term ROTC polo teams have scheduled nine games: February 8 with the Pittsburgh Polo Club at Ithaca; February 15 the Varsity will play a return match at Pittsburgh, Pa. while another team meets the Westfield Polo Club at Ithaca; February 22, University of Pennsylvania at Ithaca; February 29, Black Horse Troop at Chicago, Ill. and Westwood Polo Club at Ithaca; March 7, Metropolitan Polo Club at Ithaca; March 14, Cleveland Polo Club at Ithaca; March 21, 109th Field Artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The Freshman wrestling team will meet the Syracuse freshmen February 15 at Syracuse; Little Falls High School February 29 at Ithaca; and Wyoming Seminary at Ithaca March 7.

POLO TEAMS PLAY THREE

The first ROTC polo team returned to Ithaca with the honors even from a two-game week-end trip to Cleveland and Detroit. At Cleveland Saturday night they defeated the Cleveland First Cavalry team, 14-11, and the next day in Detroit lost to the Grosse Point team, 10½-15.

Stephen J. Roberts '38 of Hamburg rode at No. 1 and tied with Thomas Lawrence '38 at No. 2 for goals in both games. They made 7 each against Cleveland and 3 each in Detroit. Captain John C. Lawrence, back, scored twice in the first game and once in the second.

On Saturday night in the Riding Hall a second team played a close match with what was slated to be an alumni team, and lost, 10-10½. Playing at No. 1 for the Junior Varsity was Howard E. Babcock, Jr. '36, son of the University Trustee, who made 3 goals. Henry Untermeyer '36 of New York City, riding at No. 2, was high man with 6 goals, and Arthur B. Christian '38 of Elmira played back and scored 3.

John S. Leslie '35, who was scheduled to play on the alumni team, was prevented by the storm from driving from Boston, so his place at No. 2 was taken by James E. Diment '38 of Minetto. At No. 1 was Dr. Richard M. Sears '33 of Cazenovia, and back was Albert J. Lindemann '35, now a graduate student in the University. The undergraduates scored 13 to 11 for the alumni, but six fouls to one by the alumni brought the net score to a loss.

ARCHITECTS TAKE FIRST

Four students in the College of Architecture have won the first prize of $300 from among fifty entries in a competition sponsored by the Association of Alumni of the American Academy in Rome, it was announced this week.

Members of the winning team are Adelaide E. Briggs '38, painter, daughter of Professor Thomas R. Briggs '09, Physical Chemistry, and Mrs. Briggs (Frances O. Ingalls) '10; John C. Lawrence '36, captain of the ROTC polo team, sculptor; Robert S. Kitchen '34, landscape architect; and Benjamin J. Rabe '34, architect. Kirthen and Rabe are now graduate students.

Their winning design was for a "community recreation center for Natchez, Miss." Competitors were instructed to choose a town with a designated locality, the topography, climate, and traditions of which were to be reflected in the art and architecture of the plans submitted. Their buildings are in the Mississippi Georgian style, with large open courts, a mural for the foyer of the theatre depicting in the modern mode life on the Mississippi, and several open air cafes.

A team representing the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts won second prize, and one from the Department of Architecture at Yale, third.

SPIRIT OF THE FOUNDER

TO THE EDITOR:

The writer will be forgiven, I trust, for commenting upon the resurrection in your issue of January 16 of a student's idea of the significance of the life of Ezra Cornell to the undergraduate, expressed almost thirty years ago. I read this youthful effort with an interest, I must confess, not wholly unabashed.

The reproduction of the Founder's physiognomy strikingly reflects the "intense Americanism" alluded to in the accompanying address. In these inverted times it may be pondered if the life of Ezra Cornell does not have an immediate and general significance far transcending that held for the Cornell undergraduate of thirty years ago.

For those with a sense of tradition, the contemplation of that heroic profile, instinct with the resolution and native wisdom of the pioneer, recreates the panorama of the American epic, a composite of that "rugged individualism" once honored but now fallen on evil days. Surely, here was an American clothed in moral dignity whose unquenchable spirit could neither be coerced nor would stoop to arbitrarily coercing others; who stood on his own feet, asking for nothing beyond a fair return for service honestly rendered and meeting the obligations of life on the due date.

Ezra Cornell died not quite sixty years ago. Can it be, in such a meagre lapse of time, that it has come to pass that two and two do not, after all, make four, and that the national welfare no longer lies along the beaten path of private initiative, industry, thrift, and self-denial? If such be true the career of Ezra Cornell holds neither present nor future meaning, but becomes merely a historic example of what, in the estimation of a simpler and unregimented age, constituted the American character in the truly liberal tradition. Or, are these implications too despairing and will, phoenix-like, the American genius successfully re-assert itself in the cause of ordered liberty and of human progress founded upon a belief in and a philosophy of individual achievement?

Gazing upon the Gibraltic countenance of the Founder it is difficult to be persuaded, if only as a matter of faith, that the vital elements there portrayed have passed from the American scene and no longer constitute the dynamic influence in the shaping of our destiny.

ENGINEERS SPEAK

At least four Cornellians were scheduled to present papers at the winter convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, held in New York City January 28-30.

Professor Michel G. Malti, PhD '27, was to discuss "A Generalized Infinite Integral Theorem." Allan H. Candee '06 of the Westinghouse Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., describes "The Comet: A Diesel Electric Train." Herman Halperin '20 of the Commonwealth Edison Company, Chicago, Ill. is co-author of a paper on "Lightning Investigation in Chicago," and August Schmidt, Jr. '18 of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, collaborated in a discussion of "Static Thermionic Tube Frequency Changers."

SPOT NEWS FROM GEE HILL

One day last week the Ithaca Journal was badly scooped by the Post-Standard's correspondent at Gee Hill when she rushed this item out through the whirlwind drifts to a waiting world:

"The home bureau met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Steinmetz Wednesday with an attendance of 27. A luncheon at noon was followed by cards for the men and a talk and demonstration by Mrs. Homer Day on foundation garments."

Seldom have forty-two words been employed more effectively to tell the story of change in the rural life of a nation.

Fifty years ago Gee Hill would have holed itself in for the winter and would have believed everything told it by the Congressman and the supervisor. The astute observer will glean from the above that these conditions no longer exist. When the manhood of Gee Hill is alive in January to the heart convention and the physic bid, and when the motherhood thereof is importing guest speakers to tell it how to get more paprika in its foundation garments, you can be reasonably sure they are also intelligently aware of what is going on in Washington, at Albany, and in the Grange.

It is the vote of 10,000 Gee Hills that swing elections in America and the significance of that vibrant item quoted above is respectfully brought to the attention of those called upon to rule over us; and of those desiring to.—R. B. '04 in "State and Tioga," Ithaca Journal.

NO METEOROLOGISTS

An unsigned letter to the ALUMNI NEWS expresses the concern of its writer that the University authorities may be thinking of selecting a president for Cornell who has not the attainments and qualifications for the office that other presidents have had. He looks upon our January 9 editorial, "Replacing Farrand" as a "trial balloon," sent up to pave the way for such a step by the University authorities.

The ALUMNI NEWS does not represent the University administration. There are several good reasons why it cannot. In the first place, it has not been asked to do so, either specifically in the editorial in question, or generally. If and when it is, the representation will be properly labeled. The NEWS is looked upon by some University officials as a town or outside entity, and by some alumni as being "of the cloth." The opinions we present, unless otherwise labeled, are our own, either by origination or by adoption.

It has been called a wholesome aspect of Cornell's alumni relations that its alumni magazine is owned, not by the University, but by stockholders who are for the most part alumni; and that, like all other independent magazines, the paper is ultimately responsible only to its subscribers, who pay for the privilege of reading it. These two overlapping groups of alumni the NEWS attempts to represent.

Our editorials cannot, therefore, in the nature of things, be "trial balloons" for the University administration.

Our attitude toward the University and its administration is usually one of justifiable pride. We believe Cornell can go on nicely in its position of leadership without many or sweeping changes in personnel or policy. When we disagree with policies, we do so frankly, even bluntly. Nevertheless, we feel that the University will outlast its hardest employee; and that Nature, with the help of the management, will eventually take its course.

The writer of our unsigned letter is quite obviously sincerely and deeply concerned for the welfare of Cornell. If he will communicate his name (for our information only, if desired), so as to release us from the universal prohibition of reputable magazines against publishing unsigned communications, we will gladly print his views on our proposed "government by committee."

NO PAPER NEXT WEEK

In accordance with our custom of suspending publication following the term examination period, and in order to maintain our schedule of thirty-five issues during the year, there will be no ALUMNI NEWS next week. Our next publication date is February 13.

ENGINEERS WANTED

Alumni with engineering experience are now in demand by employers, according to the current Bulletin 17 of the University Placement Bureau. This bulletin lists seven positions open in a variety of engineering operations, mostly for men with specific training and experience, but at least two for training. Two firms offer training in sales positions, and one is looking for an experienced estimator in building construction.

Job bulletins of the Placement Bureau will be sent without cost to alumni who write for them, addressing Herbert H. Williams '25, director, Willard Straight Hall.

RECALL BALESTIER '85

The recent death of Rudyard Kipling recalled to older Cornellians that C. Wolcott Balestier '85 wrote with Kipling the Indian romance, "The Naulakha," and that Kipling married Balestier's sister. The author's affection for Balestier was expressed in his matchless dedication to The Barrack Room Ballads, in a later edition:

"Beyond the loom of the last lone star,
 through the open darkness hurled,
 Further than rebel comet dared or hiving star-swarm swirled,
 Sits he with those that praise our God for that they served His world."

Balestier as a student in the Optional Course in 1881-82, was Freshman president of the Class of '85. He died in Dresden, Germany, in 1891. The Cornell Era of December 12, 1891, said of him:

"Wollcott Balestier, the well-known author, who spent one year at Cornell, died in Dresden, Saxony, on Sunday night, of typhoid fever. Mr. Balestier, after leaving Cornell, went into journalism at Rochester, N. Y. He wrote short stories for the New York newspapers and finally went to that city. His first work of importance was "A Victorious Defeat," published by Harper's in 1888. "The Manlahka," in which Rudyard Kipling is joint author, is now running in The Century."

BRIEF NEWS OF CAMPUS AND TOWN

TWO WEEKS of steady near-zero weather have brought out ear muffs in Ithaca like flowers in the spring. Twenty years ago nobody under fifty would be seen with them, but now it is the vogue, especially for the young, to wear them—gay plaid affairs held on by a metal gadget over the head like a telephone operator's ear phones. Local stores can't keep them in stock.

TOMPKINS COUNTY got its full share of the bitter winds and snow which swept the country last week. Roads were blocked in all directions for several days, with many outlying schools closed and bus and railroad traffic far behind schedule.

WINTER SPORTS increase apace, however, with Beebe Lake well-tenanted daily and the toboggan slide operating at full capacity in spite of term examinations. The city has built a new 110-foot sled slide in Treman Park along Six-Mile Creek. Opened on Saturday, there has been a daily waiting line at the top in spite of the cold.

BRITISH SUBJECTS in Ithaca planned a memorial service in Sage Chapel for King George V January 28, to be preceded by a special program of music in his memory on the University chimes. The Rev. Frank Lambert of the C.U.R.W. staff was to conduct the services and President Farrand was scheduled to speak.

EASTMAN STAGE contestants, selected from forty candidates to appear in Bailey Hall February 13, are William F. Ken- naugh '36 of Richmond Hill, David W. Lippert '36 of Port Washington, Richard G. Milk '36 of Walton, Bernard F. Goodrich '37 of East Otto, M. Clare McCann '37 of Ithaca, and William J. Barnum '38 of Albion.

SEAL AND SERPENT fraternity house at 305 Thurston Avenue broke into the news last week as harboring a baby boa constrictor, the property of Frank W. Trevor, Syracuse Senior studying herpetology with Professor Albert H. Wright '04, Zoology. Trevor's serpent, Josephine, is one of the few rare imperial boa-constrictors to be found alive in this country. She was given to him by Dr. Harry Eno '04, himself an amateur herpetologist, who found her mother near Colon, Canal Zone, last fall, loaded her in his car, and had a litter of thirty-one young snakes presented to him shortly afterward. Now just under three feet long, Josephine lives in a box in Trevor's room with the temperature thermostatically controlled at eighty, eats two freshly killed mice a week, and has grown nearly two inches, according to her owner. Trevor is the son of Karl R. Trevor '16 and the grandson of Professor Emeritus Joseph E. Trevor '92, Physics.

SEVENTEEN DEER were seen at the height of the storm last week, herded together as if for warmth in a clump of trees on the rim of Taughannock gorge.

JOSEPH KIRSHBAUM, violinist, who joined the staff of the Music Department last fall from Yale, made his first Campus appearance in a well-attended recital Sunday afternoon in Willard Straight Memorial Room.

SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER February 2 is the Rev. William H. Powers, Dean of Hendricks Chapel, Syracuse University. On February 9, the preacher will be the Rev. Erdman Harris, of Union Theological Seminary.

DIRECTORS of the Ithaca YMCA, newly elected, include George H. Russell '18, Ithaca attorney, and Professor Martin P. Cartherwood, PhD '30, Agricultural Economics.

THE DEBATE CLUB will meet Syracuse in that city, February 22, with the subject, "Resolved: that Congress should have the power, by a two-thirds vote of each house, to override a decision of the Supreme Court declaring an act of Congress unconstitutional."

ENGINEERING SENIORS started after jobs in force during the Christmas recess, according to Professor John R. Bangs, Jr. '21, director of personnel for the College. Sixty percent of them, he says, made use of their vacation to apply for employment; many received encouragement.

TWENTY-NINE MISSIONARIES of many denominations and from various foreign countries are enrolled in the annual school for missionaries which opened on the Campus January 21 and continues through February 15.

THE OLD WILLIAMS Foundry and Machine Shop building on West State Street is no more. But as its walls were levelled a few days ago, Ithaca's old-timers re-lived, for a little while, their youth. The Foundry was one of the town's oldest buildings, and to it clung many rich associations. It was already a going concern when Moore, Hackett and Company took it over in 1853 to make everything from steam engines to sleigh shoes and scrapers. After passing through several hands the plant became the property of E. G. Holmes & Son in 1922.

TWO PRIZES, of $100 and $50, established in 1932 by a bequest of Forbes Heermans '78, for the best one-act plays by undergraduates on an American theme, have been opened to competition, the manuscripts being due by March 1, 1936.

WALTER P. BLATCHLEY, Freshman in Agriculture, will receive from Governor Lehman at the annual "master farmer" dinner February 13, the American Agriculturist award as the leading 4-H Club member in the East for 1936. Living on a farm just outside Ithaca, he has been an active junior project worker since 1929.

TWO ITHACA JUDGES were elected last week to the board of directors of Ithaca's Memorial Hospital. They are Supreme Court Justice Riley H. Heath '12 and City Judge Harold E. Simpson '19. A committee of directors under the chairmanship of E. Curry Weatherby '15 has been making a study of the possibilities of group insurance to prepay hospital treatment.

J. C. PENNY, chain store owner and breeder of Guernsey cattle on his farm near Hopewell Junction, described his long-time plan of breed improvement at the annual dinner of the Round-Up Club in Willard Straight Hall last Friday. Joseph P. King '37 of Ithaca presided as president of the Club, and introduced also Dean Carl E. Ladd '12 of the College of Agriculture and Professor Frank B. Morrison, head of the Animal Husbandry Department.

CONVINCED that Ithaca's demand for small, moderate-priced homes is larger than it has been for many years, John C. Burns of the Burns Realty Company has just sold his collateral insurance business to devote all of his time to the development and sale of residence property. James F. McKinney '13 took over Burns's insurance clientele. The latter plans to erect some twenty-five houses in 1936 with a minimum of four rooms and a maximum of six.

COMPETING on the annual Farm and Home Week Rice Debate Stage, for prizes contributed by Emeritus Professor James E. Rice '90, will be four Agriculture students selected in an extended series of elimination contests. In the Agricultural Economics auditorium February 10, Edward P. Pasto '36 of Franklinville and Joseph P. King '37 of Ithaca will contend "That production shall not be restricted in order to raise prices." Opposing them will be two Senior sons of alumni, Stephen G. Burritt, son of Maurice C. Burritt '08, Alumni Trustee; and Henry M. Munger, son of Harlan B. Munger '12.

- Or send us his name and address and we'll mail him a sample copy, telling him it comes at your suggestion.
- Better yet, of course, ask us to enter him as a subscriber and send you the bill. It costs only four dollars a year. He'll thank you for your thoughtfulness each week as he reads the news of Cornell. Your request on a postcard will do.

Dr. Henry P. deForest, secretary of the Class of '84, writes us: "At the Cornell Club of New York, of which I am the librarian, the Alumni News has been much more in demand during the past few months than for some years past."
