TRAIN AIRPLANE PILOTS In Extra-Curricular Courses

Ground school training for a limited number of undergraduates who wish to become civilian airplane pilots is being undertaken by the University, under a contract recently made with the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Instruction begins next week for fifty men selected from the 150 or more who applied, in classes in Sibley College after their regular schedules of University work and without University credit.

Director William N. Barnard '97 of the School of Mechanical Engineering has been appointed director of the civilian pilot training program here, and Professor Cyril W. Terry '24, Engineering, is in direct charge of the instruction in airplane motors, care and repair of planes, instrument reading, flying regulations, meteorology, aerial navigation, and allied subjects. It is expected that flight training will be given at Ithaca Airport under the direction of H. M. Peters, manager and chief pilot.

Students pay fees totaling $40 for cost of physical examination, insurance, and incidental items, expense of instruction being paid by the Aeronautics Authority. Training is open to students of the University, except Freshmen, between eighteen and twenty-five who are American citizens and who have never held a pilot's certificate. Physical examination, high academic standing, and promise of interest in and ability to continue flying as private pilots are the bases of selection. No military obligation of any sort is entailed.

A year ago, the CAA arranged for similar courses at Case, MIT, Purdue, and a few other colleges and schools which were especially equipped for such instruction and where adequate flying facilities were to be had. Now, with a larger Congressional appropriation, the program is being expanded to other universities and schools which qualify.

ROCHESTER PRESIDENTS OUT

Past-Presidents Dinner of the Cornell Club of Rochester, November 8, brought out twenty-one of the twenty-seven former heads of the Club. Nicholas J. Weldgen '06, one of them, was toastmaster and called the names of Andrew Tuck '98, James E. Gleason '92, Philip Will '00, Willis E. Bowen '02, John H. Agate '03, Alden Covill '96, James K. Quigley '02, Stearns S. Bullen '09, George C. Wright '03, Floyd S. Winslow '06, J. Emmett O'Brien '15, Leonard M. Gard '13, George A. Benton '19, Adrian L. Spencer '21, Philip D. Rupert '20, James C. O'Brien '10, J. Arthur Jennings

'17, Arthur B. Curran '16, Lewis B. Swift '12, and Marvin R. Dye '17, who had successively served. This year's president, Alfred M. Darlow '06, introduced Weldgen. Mayor Samuel B. Dicker '11, recently re-elected, represented the City of Rochester.

Trustees Frank E. Gannett '98 and Walter L. Todd '09 extended the greetings of the University. Resolutions were adopted memorializing President-Emeritus Livingston Farrand. Chairman of the program committee was Dr. Barton Baker '22.

DEAN WHITE ENTERTAINS

Miss Georgia L. White '96, adviser of women and dean of women at the University from 1918 to 1926, and Dr. Juanita P. Johns '22 brought together for tea at their home in Boston, Mass., November 12 many alumnae among the thirty-five present who had not previously attended meetings of the Cornell Women's Club. It was reported an unusually pleasant occasion. Those who poured were Mrs. Horace Van Everen (Alice L. Berkefeld) '94, Mrs. Harry M. Varrell (Laura K. Johnson) '10, Mrs. Samuel S. Evans, Jr. (Ella M. Behrer) '27, and Mrs. Clyde J. Heath (Betty M. Lowndes) '33.

FOOTBALL WHITE RABBITS

(R. B. in "State and Tioga," Ithaca Journal)

What fascinates me about this year's Cornell football team is the number of white rabbits they can pull out of a hat.

One week they win by blocking kicks; the next they continue to survive by having their own kicks blocked and scooping up the happy results. Twice they've won by getting two touchdowns before their opponents were warmed up, and on the third occasion they prevailed, at Columbus, by capitalizing the momentary relaxation which followed the other team's getting two touchdowns with comparable speed and facility.

They've tried everything now except punting from the opponents' three-yard line and it wouldn't astonish me much to see that attempted—on the first down, too, and with brilliant results. If a Cornell back became confused and ran toward his own goal, in the manner of a celebrated Californian, the chances are he'd lateral to an astounded team-mate who'd turn, avoid the pursuing pack, and snatch a touchdown from disaster. At least, that's the way these boys make me feel.

Right now, I wish a Gypsy fortune teller would come up our road. I'd like to consult her. What I want to know is, how many white rabbits will a hat hold?

RECEIVE RARE BOOKS For Chinese Collection

Through the interest of Cabot Coville '23, the University has acquired a valuable set of 1220 volumes reproducing original records of the Ch'ing dynasty, to be added to its famous Wason Collection on China and the Chinese. Titled "The Veritable Records of the Ch'ing Dynasty," the volumes reproduce state papers and official edicts of the various Ch'ing emperors who ruled China from 1644 until 1911 when the empire was overthrown by Sun Yat-sen. At the end of each dynasty five books were compiled by an official committee, written by hand in Chinese, and deposited in five of the Imperial palaces. With Japan's conquest of Mukden, Manchuria, in 1931, the volumes kept there in the Imperial palace fell into the hands of the new Manchuokuo government set up by Japan. The Manchuokuo government in 1937 reproduced 300 copies of the volumes by photolithography, and through the Japanese foreign office gave about thirty sets to institutions in Western nations, and sent the rest to Japan.

Dr. Knight Biggerstaff, who came to Cornell last fall as assistant professor of Chinese History, says that there was great demand for the books all over the world. Several sets were sent to European institutions and one each to Harvard, Columbia, and the University of Hawaii. During 1934-36, he went to China with a fellowship of the American Social Science Research Council especially to study in these records.

From Alumni Office records, Dr. Biggerstaff entered into correspondence with Coville, at the American Embassy in Tokyo and who was formerly United States Consul at Harbin, Manchuokuo. Interested at once, Coville unofficially brought to the attention of the Japanese and Manchuokuo governments the importance of Cornell's Wason Collection and the desirability of augmenting it with this set for the benefit of American scholars. As a result, the books were presented to the University through him, arrived in Ithaca recently, and have been placed on the top floor of the University Library in the care of Gussie E. Gaskill, curator of the Wason Collection since it was bequeathed to the University by the late Charles W. Wason '76.

Coville entered the Diplomatic Service in 1926, having entered the University in 1921 from Deep Springs School, a member of Telluride, and serving for a year after he received the AB in 1923, as private secretary to the late Lucien L. Nunn, founder of Telluride Association. As a result of competitive examinations, territory and an exchange of punts left Cornell with the ball at midfield. Injuries by then had deprived Cornell of Nicholas Drahos '41 of Cedarhurst at right tackle and Walter J. Matuszczak '41 of Lowville at quarterback. In their places were William H. Worcester '40 of Aurora, Ill., and Michael J. Ruddy '41 of Alden, Pa.

McCullough threw a 10-yard pass to Landsberg and the fullback raced another 20 yards before he was hauled down. Hershey added 10 more yards on an end-around sweep to the Dartmouth seven. Then Ruddy, in three tries at the line, went over for the touchdown. Again Lewis, in two tries as Dartmouth was again offside, kicked the point.

In nine more plays, Cornell scored again, starting from its 17-yard line. Baker reversed around left end for 17 yards, McCullough picked up 9 more around the other flank, and Hershey added another 16 on the end-around maneuver. Baker hit tackle for 17 yards. Landsberg made 5 at center. There were a few other shorter gains. Then Dartmouth hurled Baker back for a 7-yard loss to the Dartmouth 19-yard mark. McCullough threw a pass, and Hershey caught the ball all alone in the end zone. This time Ruddy placekicked the point.

With seven Cornell substitutes in, Dartmouth began to roll from its 32-yard line. Seven running plays, with Hutchinson carrying the ball six times, put the ball on Cornell's 36-yard stripe. There Bauman tossed a pass to Dartmouth's Kelley. The officials ruled that Louis C. Bufalino '42 of Swampscott, Mass., interfered with the receiver, and Dartmouth was given a first down on the Cornell 7. On fourth down, Kelley, on an end-around play, scored for Dartmouth from the 2-yard line. Hutchinson's placekick for the point went wide.

Dartmouth kicked off. Co-captain Kenneth G. Brown '40 of Millerton, in for Landsberg at fullback, returned the ball 41 yards to Cornell's 48-yard stripe. There Scholl, slicing off tackle, ran 52 yards for the final score. Ruddy again placekicked the point.

Cornell rolled up twenty first downs to ten for Dartmouth.

NO OTHERS SCORE

Three other Cornell football teams failed to score in games last Friday and Saturday.

The Junior Varsity lost to Army's reserves, 25-0, at West Point Friday; the first defeat of seven games in two seasons.

The Freshman eleven lost to Pennsylvania, 37-0, at Philadelphia Saturday, thus ending the season with three victories and two defeats.

The 150-pound team played a scoreless tie with Rutgers on Schoellkopf Field Saturday, thereby keeping second place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Lightweight Football League with four victories, one tie, and one defeat.

Calvin O. English '41 of Elizabeth, N. J., actually scored a touchdown by running 15 yards on a Statue of Liberty play, but the score was nullified by a holding penalty. Richard A. Graham '42 of Milwaukee, Wis., attempted a field goal from the 17-yard line in the closing minutes. The ball went wide. Norman E. Briggs '40 of Montclair, N. J., tackle, was acting captain of the 150-pound team.

SOCCER TEAM WINS

The Varsity soccer team scored a 1-0 victory over Lehigh last Saturday in the Middle Atlantic Soccer League, on lower Alumni Field. Daniel F. Kelley, Jr. '41 of San Juan, Puerto Rico, scored the winning goal two minutes from the end of the second overtime period. Kelley went into the game as a substitute for Sidney L. Scott '40 of Upper Montclair, N. J., at inside right.

CREWS MOVE INDOORS

The Treman Cup regatta November 9 wound up outdoor rowing until next spring.

A boatload stroked by Robert S. Chamberlain '42 of Ithaca won the mile race, with the shell stroked by William N. Kruse '43 of Davenport, Iowa, second, and the boat stroked by Richard K. Collins '40 of Ithaca, third.

Coach Harrison Sanford awarded the trophy provided by the late Charles E. Treman '89 to the winning crew and silver mugs supplied by William H. Forbes '06 to its individual members, at the annual dinner of the Crew Club. Other speakers were Professor Charles L. Durham '99, Latin; Assistant Coach Norman Sonju; Richard Aronson '26, former Varsity coxswain; Charles E.

Treman, Jr. '30; and Commodore James A. Young '40 of Angelica.

Besides Chamberlain, the winning boat comprised: Bow, Stanley W. Allen, Jr. '40 of Glendale, Ohio; 2, Mario Cuni-berti '42 of Washington, D. C.; 3, Charles C. Leigh '42 of San Diego, Calif.; 4, Harry M. St. John, Jr. '42 of Chicago, Ill.; 5, David L. Eggers '42 of Larchmont; 6, William W. Paty, Jr. '42 of Honolulu, Hawaii; 7, John G. Aldworth '42 of Garden City; and coxswain, Charles E. Boak '41 of New Haven, Conn.

POST-SEASON FOOTBALL—NEW STYLE

By Our "Inside" Reporter, "Jeb '00"

The professorial Monday quarterbacks were gathered for their usual after-game session. The Professor of Aphony opened the discussion:

"In spite of the dictum of Professor Lynah, head of the Department of Pedal Ballistics, I am of the opinion that Cornell should play a post-season game."

"What? And put us in the class of the various Bowl aspirants for fame and fortune,—particularly for the pecuniary part of that program!" exclaimed the Professor of Saponaceous Obfuscation.

"Not at all! Not at all," responded the first speaker. "This would not be for money, but would be in accordance with the program proposed by the late President Eliot of Harvard who said that intercollegiate football should be abolished, and that a Harvard eleven should play against only another Harvard eleven so, as he said, 'they would then be assured of playing with gentlemen'."

"But," interjected the Professor of Insufficiency, "these intramural sports are too tame. There isn't enough consumacious rivalry."

"There would be in this one," replied the proponent of the post-season game, "for I propose a game between the College of Home Economics and the rest of the University."

"Who's loony now?" quoted the Professor of Claudication.

"Not the least bit loony," retorted the Professor of Aphony. "Let me give you the line-up from Home Economics. Here are some of them: Schmuck, Murphy, West, Scholl, McCullough, Borhman, Hershey, Cohn, Conti, Bufalino, Blasko, and Moran."

"Why, you have about given a Varsity line-up. Besides, that isn't Home Economics; that's Hotel Administration," interrupted the Professor of Procuracy.

"I'm afraid I must disagree with you," said the Professor of Aphony, but without rancor. "Those fellows receive a degree of Bachelor of Science in Home Economics; it says so on the diploma."

"And, boy! Does it burn 'em up!" exclaimed the Professor of Contingent Subservience, who sometimes indulges in plain talk, eschewing the academic equivalents. "A lot of those fellows would like to frame the sheepskin and hang it in the managerial office; but instead they hide it in the left-hand lower drawer and pray that nobody will find it. They say that a plain BS is good enough for them, but that the addition of that feminine 'Home Economics' is just too bad."

"That's all beside the mark," said the Professor of Nescience. "Let's get back to the original question. Just how does that Hotel Administration list line up?"

"Here it is: Ends, Schmuck and Hershey; tackles, West and Blasko; guards, Cohn and Conti; center, Moran; backs, Borhman, Bufalino, McCullough, and Murphy."

"It's a honey!" ejaculated the Professor of Contingent Subservience.

"Yes; and pretty fair substitutes, too: Crowley and young Carl Snavely in the backfield, Sweeney at tackle, and Van Horn at center."

"How about the other team, from the rest of the University?" inquired the Professor of Tergiversation.

"Not bad! Not bad!" responded the Professor of Aphony, who had evidently been giving some thought to the subject. "Let's see how they match the other team, taking about five or six from the College of Arts and Sciences, and the same number from the College of Agriculture."

"Can't you throw in a coupla engineers?" inquired the professor of Contingent Subservience.

"Yes; how's this? Ends, Jenkins, Arts, and Kelley, Engineering; tackles, Drahos, Agriculture, and Dunbar, Arts; center, Finneran, Arts; backs, Brown, Matuszczak, and Landsberg, from Agriculture, with Baker, Ruddy, Burke, and Lewis from Arts. For substitutes in the line, there's Dragon from Agriculture at guard, Lafey of Engineering at tackle, and Pastuck of Agriculture at center."

"I'd bet on the All-Others team against the Hotelmen," averred the Professor of Contingent Subservience.

"Why bring in that low element?" objected the Professor of Delitescence. "As for me, I would prefer to cogitate on why Hotel students take to football, or vice versa. Could it be that these students expect to become hotel bar-room bouncers and need the knack, the knowledge, the er-training and experience?"

"Rather, isn't it more likely they are working toward a skill as waiters, in sidestepping a drunk in the dining room, or slipping between a pair of doddering dowagers without fumbling the soup?" surmised the Professor of Higher Sycophancy. "Or passing the salt without an interception. Seems to me I remember a race last spring with each of these youths bearing a salver laden with viands and beverages. Or perhaps they aspire to be hotel porters, to handle the sample-trunks of traveling salesmen. Even bell-boys have to lug some luggage."

"But, gentlemen, why all this postulation and conjectural? It seems to me that I heard someone mention a wager." This from the Professor of Nyctalopy, who was more than suspected of having low instincts. "Let's place some bets."

"On what?" yapped the Professor of Nooscopic Strabismus.

"Why, on this post-season game between Home Economics and the other Colleges," responded the Professor of Aphony.

"All right, but how?"

Then all chimed in. Finally the idea of a pool was broached. That was satisfactory, because if each put in a dime, and there were thirteen present, the winner would obtain $1.20 which was a pretty good return on the investment. But the Professor of Nullibious Rhabdology said it wasn't as simple as all that: Could they bet merely as to which would win? Out of the question! Could they bet on scores? Equally bad!

Hah! An idea! Each one to bet on the margin of difference between the scores of the two teams; for example, Hotel 13, others 17; difference 4. The man who had "4" on his secret, signed ballot would win. If two had the same figure they would divide; the yield would be only sixty cents apiece, but that would pay for a lunch at Willard Straight or four packs of cigarets.

Whereupon, they balloted, or wagered, or bet, or whichever; but when all the votes were tallied they were identical. Every one showed a zero, naught, cipher, nothing, or goose-egg (o).

"This won't do at all," said the Professor of Nooscopic Strabismus. "Evidently we think they are evenly matched, and that the game will end in a tie, say at 14-14, or 21-21. The only thing to do then is to bet on the aggregate scores of both teams, 28 or 42."

So they did. Again the results were tallied; again were they all alike; again the records were mere circles, ovals, or ellipses; all except that of the pedantic Professor of Anglican Orthoepey who wrote the word "zero."

They were still trying to find a way out of their dilemma of a scoreless tie when I left, ruminating on the ancient adage that "nothing from nothing gives nothing." Also, I still pondered the question as to whynell the Hotel boys ran to footballers to the extent that they could represent Cornell all alone, or play the combined Colleges to a standstill. And I wondered, too, whether Professor Lynah would be as obdurate against a post-season, Hotel-vs-Campus football game as he was against Touchdown IV. I think he was right about Touchdown, and that the events proved it.

FRIENDS IN WASHINGTON

Creed W. Fulton '09, president of the Cornell Alumni Association, and Kenneth W. Baker '29, secretary of the Cornell Club of Washington, D. C., represented Cornell at a recent luncheon of the University of Pennsylvania Alumni Club of Washington. Fulton was the guest speaker, and after his talk it was voted by the Pennsylvanians to arrange for an annual smoker jointly with the Cornell Club, beginning this year.

NOW IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

Perhaps you wouldn't mind hearing about another occasion when The Mogue and Dr. Law locked horns in Faculty meeting; this time with results far different from those which prevailed after the Bologna incident previously reported.

On this occasion, Dean Hammond said, Professor Fuertes arose in the middle of a debate dedicated to some esoteric phase of academic policy, to launch a bitter invective against the slack administration of the School of Veterinary Medicine. The Fuertes home, you recall, was on East Avenue south of Bobby Thurston's house, and its backyard lay close to Dr. Law's horse hospital, the scene of the Doctor's noteworthy investigations into the ailments of quadrupeds.

The Mogue arose to inform an astounded Faculty that the Fuertes family had been having a terrible time with flies. The third of the plagues visited upon the Egyptians, he said, was as nothing compared with what he'd had to suffer in the fly line. They came over in clouds from the Vet College, and would to God the Professor of Veterinary Medicine might be moved to do something calculated to keep his so-and-so flies at home.

President Schurman, in the chair, was momentarily stumped by the parliamentary situation created by The Mogue's extraordinary speech, but Dr. Law waived technicalities and answered on the merits.

Dr. Law said that his studies had dealt entirely with the higher forms of animal life and not at all with insects. Nevertheless, no man could spend his life among horses and cows without picking up some stray bits of information about flies; and it was his observation that no fly ever left a stable except when lured by some even more delectable attraction. What particularly delightful corruption could have been overlooked in the home of the Professor of Civil Engineering, which had lured flies away from the more obvious attractions of his clinic? Could one of the many charming Fuertes children—Kitty, or Estevan, or perhaps little Louis?—have brought home some interesting organic specimens and then forgotten about them? He pledged himself to investigate current conditions in his department, but first he desired to be assured that the distinguished previous speaker had gone over his own backyard and had eliminated any possibility of the Plague of Flies having originated there.

And the strange part of the episode was, Dean Hammond said, that the first scholar to be impressed by the plausibility of the new theory was The Mogue himself. He again took the floor—this time in all humility—to apologize, to withdraw his charges, and to assure the meeting that he would hold a bed of justice in his home. He conjectured that the Professor of Veterinary Medicine might be entirely correct in the profound surmise, because his son Louis was forever bringing home specimens for further study—frog's eggs, great horned owls, dead snakes, and fragments of angel cake—only to forget about them and to overlook their festering presence in the house.

Life on the Campus, Dean Hammond added with a sigh, was primitive and neighborly and sweet forty years ago, when all the professors could criticize the University administration over the backyard fence, and Faculty children sometimes rode their bicycles 'round and 'round the smooth, consecrated aisles of the Chapel itself.

HALLOWEEN, WELFARE

October 19 meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of the Mohawk Valley was a Halloween party at the home of Frances W. Rendell '39 in Utica. Seventeen were present. November meeting is being devoted to welfare work for Christmas.

NO ALLERGY FOR BEARS

Dr. William P. Garver '26, specialist on allergy, spoke on that subject at the regular luncheon of the Cornell Club of Cleveland, November 17, at Fischer Rohr's.

President J. Bentley Forker, Jr. '26 assures readers of the Cornell Cornet, published by the Club, that "there is no connection between Touchdown IV and the Bear steak dinner recently advertised by Fischer Rohr's. . . . Reports from Pennsylvania are that Touchdown is having the time of her life. Her French-Canadian accent has taken the little Pennsylvania Dutch bears by storm, and has given her no mean social standing. After all, she is the only bear that ever visited the Bronze Room and had sumptuous quarters at the University Club."

WOMEN TALK SCHOLARSHIPS

Mrs. R. H. Shreve (Ruth Bentley) '02, a director of the Cornell Alumni Association and chairman of the Scholarship Fund committee of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs, was a guest of the Cornell Women's Club of Philadelphia, Pa., November 3, at the home of Frances V. Rice '23. She described the work being done by Clubs and individuals throughout the country to provide scholarships for women at the University.

Twenty alumnae attended. Gertrude M. Goodwin '31 is temporary president of the Club. Assisting the hostess were Helen A. Carmalt '16, Mrs. William N. Chew (Luella H. Smith) '22, and Mrs. Walter H. Poole (Elizabeth R. Sloan) '29.

FROM FAR BELOW . . .

By Robert L. Bliss '30

Phil Rose, editor of Country Gentleman, talked to a group of New York business men at the Roosevelt last week and congratulated them on forming the new New York City Farmers' Club. Seems there are at least 2000 business executives in the city who operate farms for fun or profit, at a distance. Patterned after Saddle and Sirloin, the Chicago fore-runner, the Manhattan lunch club will try to learn solutions of management problems, listen to talks on new developments in ag science. Aims probably won't be too serious. One man who sat next to us is very serious, however, about developing Toulouse geese that will weigh thirty-five pounds and have five-pound livers, with a weather eye to tomorrow's pate de foies gras market. He suggested as an appropriate name for the club, "The Society of Those Who Wouldn't Take Advice."

New York Cornellians rank high in the gentleman-farmer class. The woods are full of 'em. Almost any night you hear the soil stories swapped: whether it's Bert Lemon '07 matching the merits of Ulster County with Bob Atkinson '24's Eastern Maryland Shore beef experiments (both as far from rubber and sugar as they can respectively get); or whether it's an argument between Ben Barringer '33 and your correspondent on the finer points of Muscovy ducks, as against Pekins.

Peanut farms, dude ranches, chicken, mink, and goat establishments: you meet of a raft of these part-time sons of the soil. Just before we left New York for the Columbia game, we planted a couple acres of winter rye by telephone in Orange County, up near where Ernie Bull '98 raises Shorthorns and the trotting horse is still the noblest beast of them all.

We allowed last week as how we'd finish that Ruloff yarn. Most everybody knows that Ruloff was supposed to have made away with his wife and child, but nobody could prove it because of this corpus delicti business that Frances Miles Finch was talking about. You had to produce the evidence. What lots of people don't know is that although Ruloff was hanged for murder, finally, it was for one committed later in Binghamton, and not for the two bodies or more presumably reposing on the bottom of Cayuga Lake in concrete coffins, as the old wives had it.

On a summer night around 1875, three men broke into Halbert's Department Store on Court Street, Binghamton. As was custom, two apprentices were sleeping in the store as watchmen. They grabbed one intruder, and had almost overpowered him when an accomplice came up from behind and killed one clerk, a boy named Myrick. The killer, later proved to be Ruloff, swung for this act. In swimming the Chenango River, one or both of the killer's aids were drowned, but they found Ruloff's overbig shoes on one bank and his footprints with the toe missing, his hallmark, leading up the other shore.

When he was later hanged in the courtyard at Binghamton, everyone turned out as a matter of public duty. Halberts' surviving clerk was a hero. It developed then that there was one other clerk who might have been on watch beside the fatal window that was entered, but he was on his vacation up near Watertown. That lucky youngster was my grandfather!

Al Van Ranst '39, last year's captain, predicting that we would take the Indian at Hanover. . . . Walt Heasley '30, Alumni Fund secretary, greeting Ike Aigeltinger '30, co-pilot on Eastern Air Line's Miami run. . . . Hudson P. ### FOOTBALL IN CHICAGO

Galaxy of football, coaches, owners, officials, and former players featured a dinner and smoker of the Cornell Club of Chicago, attended by 108 men at the Stevens Hotel, November 2. Millard F. Bingham, 3d '27, president of the Club, introduced as toastmaster Frederick M. Gillies '18, former Varsity tackle, and credited him with having obtained all the other speakers. Gillies described the Cornell-Ohio State game as he saw it, and introduced, in succession, Clint Frank of Yale; George Halas, coach and part-owner of the Chicago Bears and former Illinois player; "Luke" Johnsos, Northwestern, assistant coach of the Bears; Judge "Duke" Dunn, former Michigan player; John J. Schommer, University of Chicago, football and basketball official; and as a "dark horse," Cochrane of the Chicago Herald-American, the only sports writer of the Middle West who predicted the Cornell victory over Ohio State. The evening ended with motion pictures of training and playing in the National Professional Football League.

Luncheon and the Dartmouth game grid-graph in the Hotel Sherman November 18 attracted about 250 persons, including both Cornellians and Dartmouth alumni. Robert MacLeod, Dartmouth captain last year now playing with the Chicago Bears, read the play-by-play reports. Professor Charles L. Durham '99 was there from Ithaca.

At the regular luncheon of the Chicago Club November 9, Harold A. Vagtborg, director of research at Armour Institute of Technology, who designed the "snow cruiser" for Admiral Richard E. Byrd's antarctic expedition, described and showed pictures of its building.

ALBANY WOMEN SING

Cornell Women's Club of Albany started its season with thirty-five members at a meeting October 23 at the home of Mrs. Arthur G. Pellman (Helen A. Weber) '23. Mrs. Howard E. Salsbury (Helen L. Jaquish) '22 presided, and Mrs. Pellman, chairman of the program committee, outlined plans for the year. Caroline A. Lester '24, chairman of the scholarships committee, spoke on what the Club can do to further women's scholarships at the University. Innovation was the singing of Cornell songs, which were led by Mrs. Robert Blabey (Margaret B. Ellis) '31, chairman of the music committee.

BEFORE YOU WRITE!

Please do not take too seriously this week's cover. Maybe it is the result of all this talk we've heard about Cornell playing at the Rose Bowl! The ALUMNI NEWS November 9 printed the unqualified statement made by James Lynah '05, Director of Physical Education and Athletics, about post-season games. Here it is again:

"It is the very definite policy that the Cornell football team will engage in no post-season contests. That is absolutely definite and final."

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

"COUNTRY CLASSIC," which Stanley Woodward of the New York Herald Tribune dubbed the Cornell-Dartmouth football game, took the team out of the East Ithaca Station Thursday night. A cheering mob from a red-fire rally on the Willard Straight front terrace saw them off. Next forenoon they practiced on the athletic field of Deerfield Academy, arrangements having been made through Roland H. Cook '27, instructor in French at Deerfield. Friday night the team stayed at Newport, N. H., going to Hanover Saturday for the game. Paul W. Eckley '17, director of athletics at Amherst College, was among the alumni who came over to Deerfield to see them practice.

ITHACA ALLOTMENT of 2,300 tickets for the Dartmouth game was completely sold out, the Athletic Office reports.

PRESIDENT DAY was prevented from seeing the Dartmouth game in Hanover by his attendance at a meeting in Atlantic City, N. J., of the educational policies committee of the National Education Association, November 18-21. Mrs. Day drove up, however, with their son, David, and Miss Louise Hill.

NEWEST SPORT in which Cornell will enter intercollegiate competition is ping-pong, announces Nicholas Bawlf, director of intramurals. He is in charge of recruiting a Varsity team to enter the third annual intercollegiate table tennis championship matches, to be held at Princeton early in December.

ELECTIONS November 7 returned the expected Republican majorities in Ithaca and Tompkins County, with few exceptions. Joseph C. Campbell, retired Ithaca contractor, was unopposed for mayor, having been nominated by both Republicans and Democrats, as was County Judge Willard M. Kent '98. Norman G. Stagg '26 was elected district attorney and Harold E. Simpson '19 was re-elected city judge. Ithaca Common Council is now solidly Republican. Edwin S. Gillette '14 and Carl W. Vail '16 were re-elected and Arthur N. Gibb '90 was successful in his candidacy to represent the fifth ward (University section) succeeding George F. Rogalsky '07, resigned. County board of supervisors remains predominately Republican, and with all five members from the city new. One of these is Clarence D. Tarbell '06. Edwin R. Sweetland '99 of Dryden, Democrat, was re-elected.

KEENEST election battle was as to whether alcoholic liquor should be sold in the Town of Dryden. Majority voted "wet," following a contest that began in September over legality of the first MID-TERM PRELIMS have largely submerged other Campus activities in this week before the University closed for the four-day Thanksgiving holiday. Although many undergraduates will be at home and at Philadelphia, for those who are here Willard Straight Hall is having an Open House Thursday night and an informal dance Saturday evening.

local option petition filed, the filing of a second, with subsequent legal protest, and charges that demonstration voting machines and registration lists had been removed from polling places the week before election. This is the third town of the County which voted against repeal in 1933 and which has since voted "wet." Only one "dry" is the Town of Ithaca, outside the city.

CORINTHIAN Yacht Club members met with the Ithaca Yacht Club for dinner last week, and to see motion pictures shown by Henry M. Devereux '33, yacht designer, of City Island, of yachts he designed and sailed in ocean races. Commodore John H. Gray '40 of the Corinthians announced that the Club has ordered two new Tiger Class dinghies, to be delivered on Cayuga Lake next spring.

CECELIA WERNER, new social director of Willard Straight Hall, was greeted by the community at a reception in the Hall, November 12. Receiving with her were Director Foster M. Coffin '12, Claire E. Herrick '40 of Penn Yan and H. Lyford Cobb '40 of Bronxville, Senior woman member and chairman, respectively, of the board of managers.

PREVIEW of "Drums Along the Mohawk" the new Twentieth Century-Fox motion picture, caused a hurried trip to her home in Fonda November 9 for Harriet E. Fonda '43. Daughter of Albert D. Fonda '17 and the former Helen S. Clark '17, Miss Fonda's home is on the land originally owned by the first Dow Fonda, hero of the story. She is a fifth cousin of Henry Fonda, who plays the lead; was invited with the rest of family to see the picture in a special showing in nearby Amsterdam and to meet some of the stars who played in it.

LIFE of October 30 devoted six pages to pictures showing experiments of Professor Howard S. Liddell, PhD '23, Psychology, with nervous disorders of pigs, sheep, and goats at the University laboratory near Varna. ALUMNI NEWS November 2 published a picture of Life Editor Dorothy Jane Larson and Life Photographer Hansel Mieth taking the pictures and getting the story.

"TURKEY RUN," the annual interfraternity two-mile cross country race for a Thanksgiving bird, was won by Phi Kappa Tau, well ahead of Alpha Delta Phi, Alpha Psi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Kappa Sigma, and twenty-two other houses. The field of 103 starters got away from the mark on Sage Green Friday afternoon, to the cheers and giggles of the entire feminine staff of Alumni House. The last of them didn't finish until dark had fallen.

ELECTION POLITICS in the balloting November 13 for members of the Freshman governing board were alleged by Stanley E. Cohen '41 in his Sun column, "Well All Right," three days after the event. He charged that a "polished bit of machine work" had placed five of the seven candidates of what he called the "Alpha-Sig-Trans-Gorge Party" on this "juicy patronage distributing agency." Cohen said that "twenty-two or so fraternities" were pledged to vote as instructed, and that instructions were calculated to take advantage of the system of proportional representation as here practiced, with the result that the "Party" controlled not only this election but a majority of the Student Council, with a "stranglehold on all offices but the presidency."

STUDENT COUNCIL, however, the day Cohen's column appeared, declared the Freshman governing board election void, on the grounds that ballots were improperly counted, and decreed a new election for November 29. This time, rules against electioneering at the polls will be strictly enforced, there will be a Faculty expert on proportional representation present when ballots are counted, and all ballots will be preserved in the University Proctor's office for one year. Ballots of the previous election had been destroyed.

DARTMOUTH INDIAN princess, given last year by the Class of '15 through Harry N. Gordon for annual competition, did not appear, as expected, at Hanover last Saturday. The wooden Indian disappeared from her station in Schoellkopf Memorial Building last spring, you will remember, and has not been seen since. Story is that she has been re-kidnapped several times, the latest precluding a scheduled ceremony on the field at Hanover.

HOTEL ADMINISTRATION students, on their annual visit to the National Hotel Exposition in New York City, took over operation of the Hotel Pennsylvania November 13. They replaced the usual administrative and supervisory staff, with Henry M. Jewett '40 of White Plains charge as managing director.

Concerning THE FACULTY

DONALD C. KERR '12, University Counsellor to Foreign Students, and Professor E. Franklin Phillips, Apiculture, who is vice-president of Rotary International, attended conferences in Washington, D. C., November 8-11, called by the State Department to consider improved cultural relations with Pan-American countries. Somewhere, that old roommate of yours—those special friends of College days—think back as you do to that golden time of youth. . . . To these, no other remembrance of yours can mean as much as a year of the Alumni News.

What finer gift than to bring them, as you have enjoyed it, the far-flung Cornell of today? . . . To carry your greetings, we will mail to each person on your Alumni News gift list, this beautiful Cornell Christmas card announcing the News as your gift.

The cost is little enough for a year of youthful memories, renewed anew each week! . . . Four dollars for one gift subscription; three dollars each for additional ones—$7 for two; $10 for three, etc. . . . Your Cornell friends will appreciate your thoughtfulness.
