UNIVERSITY INTENSIFIES WAR PLANS

Prepares To Offer New and Varied Training as Needed

The kind and number of students which the University will have next term has been the subject of many predictions and surmises since the recent revision of the Selective Service Act, prohibition of enlistments, and the transfer of authority to the War Manpower Commission. Lack of expected announcements from Washington to the end of last week still left the future in this respect a matter of speculation.

President Edmund E. Day spent most of the week in Washington, where for months his committee of the American Council on Education has been negotiating with the War and Navy Departments and the Manpower Commission for best utilization of the facilities of colleges and universities. At a meeting of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools November 27 in New York City, Lieutenant Colonel Harley B. West of the War Department general staff predicted that the Army and Navy would detail men, on contract, for special training at some 200 selected institutions, after they are drafted. This plan followed, in general, recommendations made by the committee of which President Day is chairman.

Half of Students May Stay

Professor A. Wright Gibson '17, chairman of the University committee on student war service, told a luncheon meeting of Faculty members December 3 what he thought might be the situation at Cornell next term. He warned that what he said was largely conjectural, but predicted that at least half of the present students might remain, with various new groups to be added.

"We have approximately 1,500 women students," he said, "most of whom will presumably remain. We have approximately 400 men in the Naval Reserve, 150 in the Army Air Corps Reserve, 100 in the Marine Corps Reserve, and 100 in the Medical Administrative Corps. So far as we know, there is no prospect that any of these men will be called to active duty immediately. The Navy has definitely indicated that there will be no important change in its previous plans.

"There are also between 300 and 400 men below eighteen and therefore not yet subject to Selective Service, and perhaps 500 men physically unqualified for military service. An unknown number of men of draft age will continue to be deferred by their local draft boards to train for essential occupations. This group," he said, "may include 300 or 400 more.

"As to the 1,300 men in the Enlisted Reserve Corps of the Army and in advanced ROTC, Secretary Stimson has expressed the determination to call them to active duty by the end of the present term in February. This order, however, if it comes, will not apply to those who have expressed a Navy preference, and there is some doubt in my mind as to whether the Army can do the necessary paper work to call all the others out on such short notice. There is also a question as to whether or not the Army has training facilities to handle them all at once. It is my guess that they will be called at intervals, and that some may remain here for most or all of the second term."

Offer Army Training, New Courses

To replace students who will leave the Campus in the next few months, the University will request that contingents be assigned here for special training by the Army; and other groups, probably women, may be sent here for training by industrial concerns, Professor Gibson said. "President Day and others of the Administration and Faculty are working on these plans and conducting negotiations constantly. The over-all program of the University will be made up of many new parts as well as many of the old. The puzzle has to be put together in such a way that we can make the best possible use of our plant and equipment, our rooming and dining facilities, and our Faculty."

Last week it was announced that the University had completed arrangements with the Curtiss-Wright Corp. to train

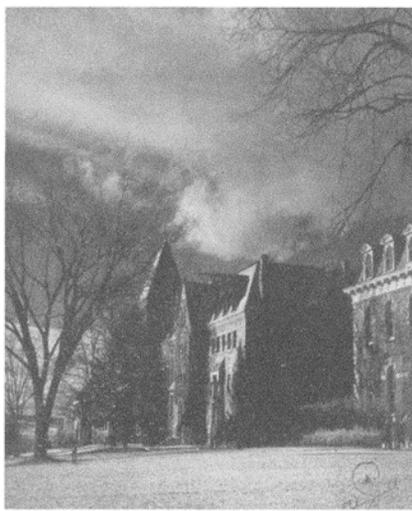

100 young women as cadet engineers to replace men in their engineering departments. Cornell is one of eight technical schools which will give this training beginning February 1. Women who are at least Sophomores and recent graduates are being interviewed by Curtiss-Wright representatives. Their tuition, board, and room will be paid by the corporation, and they will receive ten dollars a week while training. Their studies will require forty hours a week, the first term in mathematics, elementary engineering physics, chemistry, applied mechanics, mechanical drafting, slide rule, and shop practice. Second term work will be in preparation for specific jobs, including production engineering, electrical, structural, and mechanical design, electrical currents and systems, aerodynamics, stress analysis, and similar subjects. Graduates of the course will be assigned to work in Curtiss-Wright plants at starting salaries of $130 to $150 a month.

Women to Learn Map Making

At a mass meeting of all undergraduate women in Bailey Hall December 9, Dean S. C. Hollister, Engineering, outlined the requirements of this course and said others were contemplated by other firms. He announced also that the University would offer, beginning in February, a special training course for Senior women and recent graduates, in cooperation with the US Office of Education and the Army Map Service. Graduates of this course may qualify as Civil Service engineering aides, replacing men in making maps necessary to the armed forces all over the world. The course, of sixty hours a week of lectures and practice, will be given under the ESMWT program of the College of Engineering. It will include the making of aeronautical charts and planimetric and topographic maps, methods of reproduction, photo mapping, map drafting and draftsmanship, and similar jobs.

May Train for Foreign Service

Announcement was also made by Professor Cornelis W. deKieweit, History, that the University may train men and women as administrators in rehabilitating foreign countries liberated during and after the war. He is chairman of a Faculty committee which is studying opportunities for training to work with established relief organizations and foundations and the new agency of the State Department headed by Herbert H. Lehman.

"Cornell has offered to cooperate in these undertakings," Professor de Kiewiet said. "If investigations now under way indicate that such cooperation is desired, it will probably take the form of a Cornell Institute for Foreign Service." Such an institute, he explained, would include intensive language courses, modelled on the successful intensive Russian courses given at Cornell for some time under the direction of Professor Ernest J. Simmons; special courses in the history, culture, geography, economics, and institutions of important affected areas; and the development of skills in such fields as administration, nutrition, rural reconstruction, urban reconstruction, relief, and the care of children. Professor de Kiewiet emphasized the wide range and high quality of the University's resources for carrying out such a program. Courses will be given to meet the definite needs of the organizations with which the University cooperates. If needed, courses can be set up to cover Russia, Poland, Italy and the Balkans, France, North Africa and the Near East, Germany, and China and the Dutch East Indies. The faculty of the Institute for Foreign Service would be drawn, he said, from the Colleges of Arts and Sciences, Home Economics, Agriculture, Architecture, the Law School, School of Education, and any other divisions that can contribute.

All women at the meeting were asked to fill out a questionnaire indicating their wish for specific training for war service, from opportunities listed in seven classifications: business and industry, home economics, health, foreign service, education in schools and colleges, armed forces, and social service. Answers are being studied by the office of Thelma L. Brummett, Counselor of Students, and women will be interviewed to aid them in selecting courses to fit them for war training.

Meantime, University authorities have been making a detailed survey of possible housing accommodations in fraternity houses in the event that a considerable number of present men students should be called to military service, and appraising its instructional capacity to be ready for such opportunities as may be offered for training and housing men who may be sent here by the Army and Navy.

CHICAGO CHRISTMAS PARTY

Cornell Club of Chicago, Ill., will hold a Christmas party for undergraduates at home for Christmas recess, December 31 at the Hotel Sherman. Arrangements are in charge of Frank J. Durham '16 and Stewart A. Cushman '20.

At the regular Club luncheon December 10, Champ Carry '18, executive vice-president of The Pullman Co., spoke on how "The Pullman Company Moves the Army."

'22 SPEAKS TO '42

The following statement, addressed to younger alumni of colleges and universities, appeared recently in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, abridged from the original in the University of California Monthly. It is by Major Harley C. Stevens, California '22. Harvard published it with the suggestion that it be clipped and submitted to local newspaper editors, because "it deserves a wider audience than any number of willing alumni journals can give it."

... My generation believed in the Treaty in 1920; most of us believed in the Covenant and the League. I shall remember always President Wilson, ill, broken and dying, coming to the Greek Theatre in the fall of 1919 to make a last plea for ratification. To us who were there in force, he still seemed a sign and a symbol of a new and better day; and what he said filled our hearts with unutterable longing and our minds with an intolerable ache. Our elders pointed out the Treaty's faults; we were not impressed. We wanted to take the risks involved in building a world in which democratic institutions would not only be safe, but would flower and demonstrate a creative power that would lead all men to wonder and to emulation.

This dream, this vision, evaporated before our eyes by a process that left us all deeply disillusioned. It became enmeshed in partisan politics and involved in absurd disputes. It was pulled to pieces by legal fingers. There were the reservations and manifestos and the "Yes, buts—" It died, in the last analysis, not because of evil and scheming men, but because the whole society of which we were a part let it die. Our people fought, suffered, won; but we could put our victory to no intelligible purpose. We asked only to be let alone; we shrank from the burden of the future; we went about the sterile business of living and dying in blameless prosperity. So it had all been for nothing.

I said earlier and I repeat that there was little my generation could have done about all this. We were not yet old enough to vote when it took place; and we didn't know enough about the world or ourselves. But we were able later to write and to talk and inveigh. And the writers of my generation, Hemingway, Dos Passos, Stallings, Millis, to mention a few, did so. They debunked war, they inveighed against it as the greatest of all follies—stupid, blind, destructive of all values. So it is. But the crowning irony was and is, that essentially all this effort, this war against war, was conducted in a vacuum and to no end.

For there were forces at work in the world, forces different, it seems to me, in character and purpose than the world had yet seen which I can only describe as demonic. We had talked about war in the abstract. And we assumed all reasonable men were one in wishing to eliminate war, to eliminate the physical suffering and horrors it brings, its barbarous blindness, its release of the most primitive passions, its disregard of the individual and its imposition of an absolute unity. We were quite wrong.

War is neither a thing by or in itself, nor is it a purely rational issue. Rather at the present stage of human history it is, unhappily, the deepest and most pervading expression of our society. This need not always be so; the war to end war must go on. But war cannot be conquered by those who are afraid of it, or who are unable to act as members of their society when faced by it. . . .

First, and apart from all issues and dilemmas, we must fight and win this war completely and without reservation. This is not intended as a spreadeagle statement. But unless we do that, all I shall have to say hereafter is without meaning or validity. With all our faults and shortcomings, we are as a people and as a nation, concerned with freedom and equality. And however feeble or ineffective our Christian culture may be or have been, we have not denied, as our opponents are driven to do, the quality of individual love and individual obligation which must restrain the heads or engineers of any universal system—the one thing which alone can change a dictatorship into a brotherhood; which alone can differentiate a man from a slave. Rather we are challenged by this war to seek out fundamental laws to guide us and to ask: "What of the peace and the future?"

If we only knew! Well, we don't know; but we must act, for the dangers which beset us are so immediate that we are driven to experiment and innovation. In this fact lies, paradoxically, our greatest hope, though it imposes on us a terrible and dreadful burden. The task is one of regeneration as well as the economic reconstruction and reorientation of much of the world. For the tragic fact is that last time neither the nations of Europe nor the United States had undergone the internal changes necessary as a basis for a cooperative and peaceful world. You could not build a real federation of the world on the basis of power politics, or on imperialism in Europe plus isolationism in the United States.

This time it may be different. I say "may be" because the generations now fighting will have something to say about it. And it seems to me that the real problem is not whether the world wants peace, but whether it is willing to adopt measures necessary to that end. Some of these measures must and will be economic and political in character; some will be beyond economics and politics. It is of these latter I would speak.

It is precisely here that the University and its younger graduates come in. For the University must offer its graduates, and they must get, an education which gives more than a mastery of facts. It must get at their own souls. Students and teachers must appreciate that over against the specialized teaching of men for banking, for scholarship, for industry, for art, for medicine, for law and the like, there is a general teaching of men for intelligence in the conduct of their own lives. Sharper tools have conspicuously failed us. What the University must give and what its graduates must constantly strive toward is the wisdom that comes from a heightened perception of human values—the power wherever man goes of being able to see in any set of circumstances, the finest response which a human being can make to those circumstances.

Thus, in the last analysis, I suggest that the solution of world problems is to be reduced to individual terms. I believe this is scrupulously correct. For the ultimate facts are these: That we dwell in no alien and recalcitrant world; that man has stamped his image on the world and molded it so that he and his civilization are one; that man—not abstractions such as economic determinism, or behaviorism or the machine—but man is still the responsible agent in a dynamic world and determines its fate as well as his own.

Such a conception imposes upon all men a heavy burden; and severely practical consequences flow from its acceptance. It means, among other things, that we older men and women must revise our thinking and doing about many things; and that we can and must serve those who are younger by the quality and integrity of our own lives, for it is to us that younger men and women unconsciously look. They look to the pattern of our lives, to the choices we habitually make, to the values we habitually assign to things, to the laws and principles to which we give our loyalties and our assent, to the mastery, or lack of it, which we exhibit in the conduct of our lives.

And your burdens, younger alumni? Well they are heavy too. It is perhaps painfully apparent that your generation succeeds to a disheveled heritage, but the hard fact is that no shortcomings on the part of others can save you from the consequences of your own shortcomings. And you should remember that you inherit all of the good things that have been built up through the long years by the self denial and unremitting toil of your predecessors, not the least of which is our great University. Moreover you appear on the scene at a time when all but a relatively few men are determined to take hold of things and to try to fix them. I am not speaking of Utopia; man's lot is the road and not the goal. But this time we can't go back.

Some few but difficult things you must do for your own and ultimately the world's salvation, and so that you may be ready to cooperate with those free and benevolent minds wherever they may be, who dream with you of a brighter day. I think the most penetrating observation that has been made of your generation, and it comes from one of you, is that you entertain a deep seated uncertainty about all ideals and all absolutes. Now I appreciate that this is not wholly your fault, though you are not without fault; but the danger is that you cannot survive in a world where millions of men and women, including your contemporaries in other lands, whether mistakenly or not, at least have found principles to which they have given their impassioned assent and for which they have been willing to die and have died. And even if you were not faced with this danger, your position now and in the future would seem to me to be precarious for your inability to find your own way to the acceptance of any ideal leads to paralysis and futility. It is all very well to be suspicious of moral absolutes, but it is important many times, to recognize a moral issue when you see it.

If I may say so, your first job is to understand and accept your obligations as men and women of independent mind. As I have heard some of you state: you have assumed to do your own thinking, to find your own God, to accept or reject any and every belief, to take nothing on the say-so of your elders. Well and good. Then learn, at all costs, something about the ultimate nature of man—that there co-exists in every human heart conflicting and often mutually exclusive desires, that man must choose in order to act at all, that therefore each hour of a man's life is an hour of crisis and decision, and that the sum of his choices defines his character and determines his fate. Learn something about history, which is memory and the record of what man has achieved and done. Learn something about religion and philosophy and literature, which are the garnered interpretations of experience that teach man how to live. No man has much right to life, let alone education, if he is not willing to seek out the fundamental purpose, the ultimate ideal toward which he lives. It is right and necessary, as the great Holmes has said, that you should lay your course by a star you have never seen and may never see; that you should dig by the divining rod for springs you may never reach.

One final word. The University from which we have come is almost the last place in the world where men and women can freely pursue such a search for truth. That University is a living symbol of a way of thought that is desperately in danger. It is up to us to see very clearly the real stakes, to be wary of propaganda but not blind to fact, to fight against evil without malice and yet without weakness. The issue rests with us all. If we insist on living in the light, in pressing forward toward the truth and the integration of our lives, our University and our way of life will endure.

Some may reject the challenge of this word "if"; others will accept it. It is to the latter I have been speaking.

About ATHLETICS

CORNELL 34, FORDHAM 41

The basketball team lost to Fordham, a new opponent, 34-41, in its second game of the season in Barton Hall last Saturday.

The Junior Varsity team scored a 37-28 victory in a preliminary game with a team representing the second battalion of officers in the Naval Training School at the University.

In the Varsity game, Cornell started a changed line-up and demonstrated improved play over the first game, with the University of Buffalo. Richard K. Giles '45 remained at forward, but John F. Harper '43, a converted center, was his running mate. Roger D. Booze '45 was again at center, with Captain Samuel W. Hunter '43 holding one guard position. Milton D. Coe '43, a veteran, took over the other guard.

This combination opened up a 4-point lead on field goals by Harper and Giles, but Fordham tied the score and went ahead, 7-4. Hunter's free throw and goals by Harper and John E. Saylor '45, a reserve guard, put Cornell ahead by 2 points.

Harper was cut over the eye and retired, Bertil L. Peterson '44, a transfer from the University of Wisconsin, substituting for him. Fordham launched a drive that produced 5 points and kept Cornell scoreless for seven minutes, giving the visitors a 14-9 lead at the fifteen-minute mark.

Peterson's free throw and a goal by Captain Hunter brought Cornell to within 2 points of a tie, but Fordham kept ahead to the intermission as each team scored three field goals. Fordham's Karpowicz, one of the high scorers, converted a free throw to make the score 21-18.

Cornell rallied on goals by Giles and Booze and Hunter's free throw, to regain the lead at 23-22 in the first five minutes of the second half. Captain Babich broke the rally with a free throw, Karpowicz scored a two-pointer, and Mullens threw in two field goals as Fordham definitely took control of the game.

Cornell fought back doggedly, and Saylor's goal at eleven minutes put the home team only 2 points behind, at 30-28. Mullens then paced a final Fordham rally and scored three field goals as the visitors stretched their lead to the game's end.

Harper's 7 points (he returned to the game in the second half with head bandaged) led the Cornell scoring, Giles and Captain Hunter each picking up 6.

Top scorer for the Junior Varsity was Richard A. Ulrich '46 of Akron, Ohio, with 14 points.

ODDS AND ENDS

Honorable mentions in the annual all-America football selections of the Associated Press went to Captain Roy V. Johnson '43, end, and four backs, Co-captain-elect William S. Wheeler '44, Charles R. Robinson '44, Kenneth R. Davis, Jr. '45, and Walter A. Kretz '45.

Athletic directors of Eastern colleges, meeting in New York City last week, voted unanimously to continue their sports programs and approved a resolution favoring "an extensive program of combat sports." Robert J. Kane '34, acting Director of Physical Education and Athletics, was re-elected president of the Heptagonal Games Association. Stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association decided to let the annual regatta, abandoned in 1942 because of wartime conditions, go by default another year.

Ice on Beebe Lake last week made possible the beginning of hockey practice, and Coach Nick Bawlf has twenty-two men reporting for the Varsity squad, of whom nine played last year. He and some members of the squad plan to accept the invitation of the Lake Placid Club, to play informal games with representatives of other Eastern colleges at Lake Placid December 26-29.

The ski team, coached this year by Captain Philip B. Gibson '43, will also go to Lake Placid.

PLATOFF COSSACK CHORUS

Audience at the third of the University concert series virtually filled Bailey Hall December 11 and showed its enjoyment of the General Platoff Don Cossack Chorus, named for the Russian Cossack general and recruited from the region of the River Don sixteen years ago.

The group of twenty-seven Russian singers opened their program with six songs of the Church. Then followed a group of Russian and Gypsy folk-songs and dances, and another of lively popular songs including "Black Eyes" and the favorite "Volga Boatmen." Climax was the whirlwind "Mozatchok" which combines singing, dancing, and juggling. As an encore, they sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Not the least of the audience's enjoyment was occasioned by the conductor of the group, Nicholas Kostrukoff.

ALUMNI SPEED WAR PRODUCTION

Many Receive Army-Navy "E" Award

Among the many industrial firms headed by Cornellians which are breaking all production records to help the country's war effort, the latest to receive the Army-Navy "E" award is Buffalo Forge Co., of which Edgar F. Wendt '11 is president. Buffalo Forge ventilating and heating equipment is used on many ships of the Navy and Merchant Marine and in industrial war plants of all kinds. Last September, the "E" banner was presented to Buffalo Pumps, Inc., a subsidiary of Buffalo Forge. Forty-eight of the vital pumps and the entire hull ventilation with 187 fans of the new 45,000-ton battleship, USS New Jersey, were supplied by these firms.

The Army-Navy "E" award was authorized last summer by the Joint Army and Navy Production Board to be given to industrial plants for "especially meritorious production of war materials." It is a blue and white burgee, flown proudly by the plants which receive it, and all employes get silver "E" pins signifying their excellence in war production. An earlier award was the Navy "E" pennant, long used by the Navy Department to designate its ships which excelled in gunnery.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co., Rochester, of which Edward Bausch '75 is chairman of the board and where many Cornellians are employed, has perhaps the country's outstanding record. It was one of the first companies to fly the Navy "E" pennant, which it received July 25, 1941; and the first to receive the Navy burgee with service star for exceeding production requirements for six months, awarded May 18, 1942. Last September 6, Bausch & Lomb received the Army-Navy burgee with star, and the second service star was added October 6.

First industry in the Rochester area to receive the Army-Navy "E" was the Gleason Works, of which James E. Gleason '92 is president. Gleason bevel gear cutting machinery makes gears that are used in guns, ships, tanks, trucks, cars, airplanes, and many other kinds of fighting equipment.

Among many other firms in which Cornellians are active, awards have been made to Omaha Steel Works, Omaha, Nebr., of which John W. Towle '94 is president; to the executive branch in St. Louis, Mo., and plants at Monsanto, Tenn., and Anniston, Ala., of Monsanto Chemical Co. of which Edgar M. Queeny '19 is president; and to American Pulley Co., Philadelphia, Pa., where Creed W. Fulton '09 is assistant to the president.

The earlier Navy "E" was awarded to Northern Pump Co., Minneapolis, Minn., John B. Hawley, Jr. '21, president and general manager; Carrier Corp., Syracuse, Willis H. Carrier '01, chairman; E. I.

duPont deNemours & Co., Wilmington, Del., Walter S. Carpenter, Jr. '10, president; Ford Instrument Co., Long Island City, Hannibal C. Ford '03, president; Manitowac (Wis.) Shipbuilding Co. headed by Charles C. West '00 and in which his sons, John D. West '32 and Robert D. West '34, are executives; Camden Forge Co., Camden, N. J., where Ward D. Kerlin '01 and Samuel P. Howe '02 are officers; Electric Boat Co., Groton, Conn., O. Pomeroy Robinson, Jr. '16, general manager; several plants of Phelps-Dodge Copper Products Corp. of which Wylie Brown '98 is president; and several plants of Sperry Gyroscope Co. of which Edward G. Sperry '15, Robert B. Lea '15, and Elmer A. Sperry, Jr. '17 are officers.

Army-Navy "E" was also awarded in September to the W. F. and John Barnes Co., Rockford, Ill., manufacturers of machine tools and ammunition, where the president is William W. Barton, son of the late Colonel Frank A. Barton '91, who was Commandant of the ROTC at the University for many years.

CALIFORNIANS GATHER

Cornell Club of Northern California had seventeen alumni at luncheon December 2 at the University Club of San Francisco. President Bernard S. Sines '22 introduced Sherman K. Burke, assistant vice-president in charge of freight traffic for the Southern Pacific, who told what the railroads are doing for the American war effort.

WOMEN LOOK UP GIRLS

Twenty members of the Mid-Hudson Cornell Women's Club met for dinner November 30 at the home of Georgianna Conrow '99 in Poughkeepsie. Names of junior and senior high school students interested in Cornell were presented, to be guests at the Club's Christmas tea. Mrs. Nye Hungerford (Eunice Jourdan) '34 presided.

OLIN HALL BOOKLET

Commemorative booklet of the dedication of Olin Hall of Chemical Engineering, last October 3, has been published by the University. It contains the addresses made on that occasion by Dean S. C. Hollister of the College of Engineering; John M. Olin '13, son of the donor; H. Edward Babcock, chairman of the University Board of Trustees; Professor Fred H. Rhodes, PhD '14, Director of the School of Chemical Engineering; John L. Collyer '17, University Trustee and president of The B. F. Goodrich Co.; and President Edmund E. Day.

The booklet also contains pictures of the speakers and of the donor, Franklin W. Olin '85; a brief account of instruction in Chemical Engineering at Cornell; and pictures and description of Olin Hall. Alumni may obtain copies on request to Provost H. W. Peters '14, Morrill Hall.

OMAHA ALUMNUS RECEIVES ARMY-NAVY "E" PENNANT FOR WAR PRODUCTION

John W. Towle '94, president of Omaha Steel Works, accepts for his plant the Army and Navy award for high achievement in production of war equipment. The pennant to be flown by his plant is presented by Colonel Merle H. Davis, chief of the St. Louis Ordnance District, who was Ordnance officer of the ROTC at Cornell from 1934-38.

NOW IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

Nowadays, most houses do not initiate until the second term, along in March sometime. This has been the common practice for ten years and more. The main object in waiting was to find out who busted, who went on probation, who got through all right.

But this year, one discovers, a substantial number of the houses are quietly holding their ceremonies here in the middle of December, before the boys leave for a Christmas vacation from which many of them may not return. There has been little or no discussion of the matter. They are just doing it.

I don't think the idea of getting the initiation fees before the break-up has entered any head save that, perhaps, of the troubled graduated treasurer. Financial matters, mortgages, endorsed notes, don't seem as important as they once did around here; except to the aged brother left holding the fraternal bag to the sound of martial music fading away in the distance.

No, I think the urge to initiate now has been closely akin to the motive that has translated so many irrational engagements into superbly improvident marriages in which the groom turns directly from the altar to the port of embarkation. When you have to jump off into the dark, there is comfort in having one definite tangible evidence of association to hang onto; like a fraternity pin or a wedding ring. You aren't jumping into chaos quite all alone when you jump with either or both of those baubles on you!

One is permitted to conjecture that the introspections, the discussions in the twilight, the common resentments of the last three months have done the work of three years in knitting together these little groups of self-selected associates. They are ready for the permanent brand.

It is apparent to the intimate observer that the official words and deeds of our universities this last year have been inspired in part by a feverish desire to look well in print. To a less degree than you would have foreseen have they been content to stand fast, keep plodding along, and abide the event. They've all wanted to take the lead in patriotic experimentation, and about all the material they've had to be patriotic with is the boys. At times it's all been a little tough on the boys!

Older persons in positions of authority can do anything to students except fool them. These boys know they've been guinea-pigs these last three months—all with the noblest of intentions on the part of their elders—and the common experience has knitted them together in the bonds of mutual sympathy, trust, and understanding. I'm glad the boys are doing something about it: sealing the bonds with ceremonies, vows, pins, grips, songs, speeches, fruit-cup, and fillet mignon before their brief college life breaks up into small dust sometime next week. So much, at least of a normal human experience has been accomplished—cannot be taken away from them—and the new pin is tangible evidence of it.

Well, anyway, a Merry Christmas to them—and to you, too!

WOMEN DESCRIBE JOBS

Conference on fields of work for women brought to the Campus December 5 five alumnae in industry and the professions to spend the day telling undergraduate women about "War Jobs with a Future." The conference was sponsored by the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs, the Counselor of Students, and the Cornell Women's Club of Ithaca, with Ruth F. Irish '22 as general chairman.

More than 100 undergraduates heard the speakers and asked questions at a panel discussion in Willard Straight Memorial Room Saturday afternoon, and representative students report that they learned much of the requirements and opportunities which each speaker described from her own experience. Speakers were dinner guests at the various units of the women's dormitories, and Saturday evening was devoted to conferences with undergraduate women who wished specific information on the various vocations.

RIDEOUT AIDS CLUB

Professor Blanchard L. Rideout, PhD '36, chairman of the Arts College advisory board for underclassmen, visited Baltimore, December 3, to assist the Cornell Club of Maryland in its program of relations with secondary schools. He spoke to groups of students at McDonough and Gilman Schools in the morning, and that afternoon talked with boys interested in Cornell at Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, where Wilmer A. Dehuff '10 is headmaster.

Eighteen Cornellians dined with Professor Rideout at the Hotel Longfellow, and this was followed by a Club party at the University Club which twenty-six prospective Freshmen, twenty-five alumni, and several school men attended. Professor Rideout spoke about the University, introduced by President Edward H. Carman, Jr. '16 of the Cornell Club. Football and Campus motion pictures were shown and refreshments were served.

ALPHA ALPHA GAMMA, women's honor society in Architecture, has elected to membership Chara R. Slonim '44 of Brooklyn and three Sophomores: Marissa Colombo of New York City, Patricia M. Leary of Bedford, Mass., and Frances M. Shloss of Des Moines, Ia.

ALUMNAE DESCRIBE THEIR JOBS AT STUDENT CONFERENCE

Undergraduate women were told of "War Jobs with a Future" at an all-day conference on fields of work for women December 5. Pictured at the speaker's table for a panel discussion in Willard Straight Memorial Room are Mrs. Allan H. Mogensen (Adele Dean) '23, president, Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs; Isabel M. Klein '37, chemist in the electrochemical division, DuPont Co., Niagara Falls; Mrs. George T. Manning (Catherine Maloney) '27, general case supervisor, Rochester Department of Public Welfare; A. Veronica Lyons '25, head of medical and surgical nursing at New York Hospital and assisting professor at Cornell University-New York Hospital School of Nursing; Ruth F. Irish '22, chairman for the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs; Bertha H. Funnell '22, principal employment counselor in the Syracuse office, US Employment Service; M. Grace Agnew '42, claim adjuster in workmen's compensation for Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., Newark, N. J.; and Miriam Freund '43 of Albany, undergraduate chairman.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

At least one new subscriber is getting the ALUMNI NEWS as a Christmas gift from his Sophomore son. A letter we wrote in November to the Cornellian parents of children who are now in the University came back to the boy with this message written across it: "Dear — —, This is what I'd like for Christmas from you if you have not already thought of something.—Dad."

So a few days ago the boy came to our office and ordered the NEWS sent to his Cornellian father in San Francisco for next year as his Christmas gift. Thus another Cornell family will be brought closer together in the memories and experiences of their respective generations at the University.

Perhaps there is an idea in this incident that is worth adopting in another way. Some recent alumni children of present subscribers do not get the NEWS. And with the uncertainty ahead for all present students in the University, we are offering to all a deferred subscription plan that will make sure the NEWS will follow them if they should leave suddenly for military service or other reason.

Maybe your Cornell child or a friend should have the ALUMNI NEWS for Christmas!

With this issue, the ALUMNI NEWS suspends publication for the University's Christmas recess which begins this week. The next NEWS will appear January 14.

Our staff and the officers and staff of the Alumni Association wish you all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

HOLLISTER IN CLEVELAND

Dean S. C. Hollister, Engineering, brought latest news of the University in wartime to the Cornell Club of Cleveland, Ohio, at its monthly luncheon in the Statler Hotel, December 14. The Club will hold its annual "Father and Son Luncheon" during the Christmas recess.

"BRIEF MUSIC"

On the Dramatic Club's production of "Brief Music" by Emmet Lavery, December 12 in the Willard Straight Theater, our undergraduate reporter's principal comment was, "All they did was talk about men!"

The play centers about two college women room-mates in their last three years. "Spiff," the leader, was played by Mary E. Rolfs '43 of Arlington, Va., and her foil was "Drizzle," played by Charlotte S. Kornit '43 of Albany. The other characters were Elaine R. Schwartz '44 of West Hartford, Conn., Norah O. Johnstone-Wallace '44 of Ithaca, Madeline Ring '45 of New York City, Ann E. Shively '45 of Hamilton, and Ina Hunderinger '45 of Bronxville.

The Dramatic Club will present "Brief Music" again January 8 and 9.

LIBRARY ASSOCIATES AID

Professor Morris G. Bishop '14, Romance Languages, president of Cornell Library Associates, has reported that ninety-five alumni and Faculty are members of the group, including thirty-four who have been granted membership because of important gifts to the University Library during this year.

From membership dues, the Library Associates have spent $393 for books, including a complete set of publications of the Champlain Society which issues reports of early explorations, and a volume of Maps of the California Gold Region by Carl I. Wheat. Professor Bishop also lists among donations from members a rare volume on Africa by John Ogilby, published in London in 1670, and a file of the New York Times for 1865 containing news of Lincoln's assassination.

Cornell Library Associates was organized in October, 1941, following an ALUMNI NEWS article on the University Library by Louis C. Boochever '12. Like similar organizations at other universities, it was formed to assist the Library to acquire needed books and collections, through minimum annual dues of five dollars. Its members also report on desirable additions, both for purchase and as gifts or loans.

With Professor Bishop now in New York City with the Office of War Information, Professor Howard B. Adelman '20, Histology, has been nominated as president of Library Associates, and Nellis M. Crouse, PhD '24, and Walter J. Mueller, PhD '38, German, have been renominated as secretary and treasurer, respectively.

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

CHRISTMAS CONCERT was given in Bailey Hall December 15 by the new Cornell Chorus, Sage Chapel Choir, and University Orchestra, under direction of Professor John M. Kuypers, Music, who has trained the three groups. The Chorus and Choir comprise about 150 voices, and the Orchestra has approximately sixty-five members.

FESTIVAL of Santa Lucia was a colorful beginning of the Christmas season, staged by the Willard Straight Hall folk-dancing group in Memorial Room December 13. Elna K. M. Adlerbert '43 of Scotch Plains, N. J., portrayed the name saint in Swedish costume with a headdress of lighted candles, and many others wore native costumes of Scandinavian countries.

CHRISTMAS TREES were gaily decorated in the main lobby and lounges of Willard Straight Hall this week. All students who will remain in Ithaca were invited to an open house Christmas Eve and to dinner at the Hall Christmas night, sponsored by the board of managers and the International Association of Ithaca.

FOOTBALL SQUAD and coaches were guests of the Newman Club at Sunday night supper in Barnes Hall December 13. Speakers were Robert J. Kane '34, acting Director of Physical Education and Athletics, Assistant Coach Max Reed, and Trainer Frank Kavanagh.

ADD SIGNS of winter: "For Sale, Bicycle. Sure, it's got good tires, and excellent physical condition, but we're tired of pedalling and sick of steering. Seeking kind owner, good home, for two-wheeled masterpiece of transportation construction . . ."—Cornell Daily Sun; and "All trails maintained by the Department of Buildings and Grounds in Fall Creek and Cascadilla gorges are closed to pedestrian traffic because of hazards of snow and ice."

SALES of War Savings Stamp twenty-five-cent boutonnieres by the Cornell for Victory committee December 7 reached a total of 1,200.

SCHOLARSHIP GUEST of the Telluride Association is Armando d'Ans, city architect of Buenos Aires, Argentina. He flew to New York City, bearing greetings from the mayor of Buenos Aires to Mayor LaGuardia, and arrived in Ithaca December 1 for his stay at the Telluride house. He will study here in the College of Architecture and University Library, giving special attention to architecture, acoustics, municipal traffic control, and low cost housing; then will visit places of architectural interest and return home

COMMENCEMENT has been scheduled by the University for Sunday, January 24, for those students who have accelerated their programs to receive degrees at midyear. It is expected that between 300 and 400 degrees will be conferred. First term final examinations will occupy the week of January 21-28, with second term registration January 29 and classes beginning February 1.

by way of California and Mexico. Graduate of the University of Buenos Aires in 1935, d'Ans also studied at the University of Paris; he was architect of the Argentine pavilion at the Golden Gate Exposition.

ARMY, Navy, and Marine Corps recruiting parties came to the Campus last week to complete the enlistments of students who had applied before the President's order of December 5, suspending all voluntary enlistments after December 15.

VISITOR on the Campus for three days last week was Mrs. Way-Sung New, chairman of the child relief committee of China and director of rural social service for women and children. Under the auspices of CURW, she lectured in Barnes Hall and at the College of Home Economics and addressed the AAUW.

GERMAINE D. SEELYE '45 of Wolcott and her brother are among the four New York State winners of $100 scholarships provided by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. for the Junior Vegetable Growers Association. She and her brother worked and managed the family vegetable farm last spring when their father was injured by a runaway team. With Louise E. Mullen '43 of Stafford, scholarship winner last year and the first woman president of the Junior Vegetable Growers Association, Miss Seelye attended the annual convention of the National Vegetable Growers, December 4 and 5 in Pittsburgh, Pa.

MRS. HELEN TERPENNING BELL, assistant to Miss Jessica Holland in the Sun offices since 1929, has resigned.

COACH JOHN F. MOAKLEY was surprised as usual December 11 at his home on Willard Way, when track and cross country men crowded the house to wish him well on his seventy-ninth birthday. As always, he received remembrances from many former track men, and this year the undergraduates gave their coach an electric razor and a cardigan sweater. Mr. Moakley, who came to Cornell forty-three years ago, is at Schoellkopf every day, teaching his boys.

LIMITED by a ruling of the Interfraternity Council to only a Friday afternoon and Saturday of "informal ceremonies . . . which, in the careful view of the active members, directly contribute to the success of the formal procedure," most of the fraternities concluded their initiations Sunday, December 13. Consensus of Campus observers is that there was little outward "barbarity and horseplay" with pledges this year.

QUILL AND DAGGER is sponsoring a "Rumor Clinic" in the Sun, in which the society undertakes to publish authoritative answers to rumors heard about the Campus. Two which it scotched last week concerned the assignment of student officers of the ROTC and the future program of the College of Home Economics.

VICTORY WEEK END, January 29-31, is planned by the Cornell for Victory committee with approval of the Student Council. Celebrating the end of first-term finals will be a Bailey Hall "V's In Our Bonnet" show, followed by a Victory Ball. War Savings Stamps will be sold to the show's audience, and proceeds of the Victory Ball will be used to purchase a War Bond for the Class of '43.

FOOTBALL CLASS under tutelage of Coach Carl Snavely meets for two hours Saturdays in Bacon Cage, as part of the physical fitness course.

ERIC DUDLEY directed his First Presbyterian Church choir in a program of Christmas music, December 12, as he has since 1903.

FRESHMAN WOMEN have elected Evelyn H. Call of Batavia their Class president and Cecily Bishop of Rochester, vice-president.

PAINTINGS by Professor Olaf M. Brauner, Drawing and Painting, Emeritus, are hung in the art gallery of Willard Straight Hall this month. They include a number of landscapes and seascapes and his portrait of the late Professor Edward B. Titchener, Psychology.

MICHAEL, a jolly dark-haired baby of three and a half months, is a new arrival at the Home Economics College apartment in Martha Van Rensselaer Hall where women students take turns keeping house and caring for him.

COUNTY EXTENSION agents of New York State, including many Cornellians, came to the Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics December 14-18, for the annual fall training school to plan their 1943 programs with rural families.

Concerning THE FACULTY

PROFESSOR WALTER B. CARVER, Mathematics, becomes secretary-treasurer of the Mathematical Association of America, January 1. Offices of the Association will be moved to the University and will occupy a room in McGraw Hall.

PROFESSOR MORRIS G. BISHOP '14, Romance Languages and Literatures, is with the Office of War Information in New York City. He is in charge of selection of material, translation, and manner of presentation of short-wave broadcasts to Italy. In his absence Professor George I. Dale '18 is acting chairman of the Department.

"VIRGINIA CITY MINER," the work of Professor John M. Sitton, Fine Arts, is among the 158 watercolors shown at the "Artists for Victory" exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City during December. It is the picture of an old miner sitting in a shack, with the desert country beyond shown through loose boards of the walls. It is one of a Western group painted last summer by Professor Sitton in Nevada.

EDWARD C. RANEY, PhD '38, Zoology, was commissioned a lieutenant (jg) in the Naval Reserve and reported at Harvard December 1 for indoctrination and training in communications. He has been teaching in the Zoology Department since 1936. His studies two years ago of muskellonge in Chautauqua Lake and the resulting regulations have considerably improved the fishing there, and last summer he was able to increase the commercial catches of lake herring in Lake Ontario by suggesting smaller-mesh nets at depths of 350 to 500 feet. He has published thirty-six papers on ichthyology and fisheries biology.

PROFESSOR LOUIS M. HURD, Poultry Husbandry, has received a request for poultry information from a British soldier, Staff Sergeant Cameron Simpson, who has been a prisoner of war in Germany since 1940. The letter, written April 6, 1942, was marked for air mail via Lisbon, was stamped by the German censor, and left Washington November 5 after passing US censorship. The soldier writes, in part: "I have read with great interest your book entitled Practical Poultry Farming. . . I can see great changes in hatching eggs, day-old chicks, etc., transported between USA and G.B. when this war is over. I would esteem it a great favor if you would put me in touch with producers of hatching eggs. . . I know that on account of the war drastic reconstruction will be needed, thus my idea of new stock being imported. . . I wish to keep my children in close contact with modern developments, although a prisoner. Address material to my wife — — —, Northumberland, England. I will defray any necessary expenditure through my paymaster. I met your famous Rainbow Division in France in 1918."

GENEVA EXPERIMENT STATION has received word from Professor O. A. Reinking, Plant Pathology, of his departure by plane for the Canal Zone and later for Honduras. His address is the US Legation, Tegucigalpa, Republic of Honduras, C.A. Dr. Reinking is on a special mission for the State Department and the Board of Economic Warfare.

PROFESSOR LEONARD A. MAYNARD, PhD '15, Director of the School of Nutrition and of the Federal Nutrition Laboratory at the University, was elected president for 1943 of the American Society of Animal Production at the Society's annual meeting in Chicago, December 1 and 2. He was vice-president; is the first Cornellian to be elected president. The Society is now especially concerned with the production of animal products for the war emergency.

ROBERT D. SWEET, PhD '41, Vegetable Crops, Extension, has a daughter, Christine Lynn, born November 26.

WARREN C. HUFF '35, Extension Soil Conservationist, and Mrs. Huff, the former Helen H. Yossie '36, have a daughter, Mary Edith, born December 2.

WAR BOND PAYROLL SAVINGS
ROLL OF HONOR

Firms With One Hundred or More Employees Whose Workers Are Investing at Least 10 Percent of the Gross Payroll in War Savings Bonds Through the Payroll Savings Plan.

NEW 10% WAR BOND DRIVES SWELL TREASURY HONOR ROLL

The eyes of all America are upon the United States Treasury Roll of Honor appearing in the "Payroll Savings News." For copy write War Savings Staff, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

HOW TO
"TOP THAT 10% BY NEW YEAR'S"

Out of the 13 labor-management conferences sponsored by the National Committee for Payroll Savings and conducted by the Treasury Department throughout the Nation has come this formula for reaching the 10% of gross payroll War Bond objective:

- 1. Decide to get 10%.
It has been the Treasury experience wherever management and labor have gotten together and decided the job could be done, the job was done.
- 2. Get a committee of labor and management to work out details for solicitation.
  - a. They, in turn, will appoint captain-leaders or chairmen who will be responsible for actual solicitation of no more than 10 workers.
  - b. A card should be prepared for each and every worker with his name on it.
  - c. An estimate should be made of the possible amount each worker can set aside so that an "over-all" of 10% is achieved. Some may not be able to set aside 10%, others can save more.
- 3. Set aside a date to start the drive.
- 4. There should be little or no time between the announcement of the drive and the drive itself.
The drive should last not over 1 week.
- 5. The opening of the drive may be through a talk, a rally, or just a plain announcement in each department.
- 6. Schedule competition between departments; show progress charts daily.
- 7. Set as a goal the Treasury flag with a "T."

AS of today, more than 20,000 firms of all sizes have reached the "Honor Roll" goal of at least 10% of the gross payroll in War Bonds. This is a glorious testimony to the voluntary American way of facing emergencies.

But there is still more to be done. By January 1st, 1943, the Treasury hopes to raise participation from the present total of around 20,000,000 employees investing an average of 8% of earnings to over 30,000,000 investing an average of at least 10% of earnings in War Bonds.

You are urged to set your own sights accordingly and to do all in your power to start the new year on the Roll of Honor, to give War Bonds for bonuses, and to purchase up to the limit, both personally and as a company, of Series F and G Bonds. (Remember that the new limitation of purchases of F and G Bonds in any one calendar year has been increased from $50,000 to $100,000.)

TIME IS SHORT. Our country is counting on you to—

This bit of stage-fright was understandable enough, considering the impression that most of us youngsters have of the British aristocracy, of which the Halifax family has been an illustrious part . . . Instructions were to give our name and college as we shook hands with the Ambassador and Lady Halifax. . . . Proof of the pudding for me, if we grow personal, was that of the few people in the world with whom the Chatterer would like to sit atop a mountain and talk for hours about the problems of the day, one is Lord Halifax. For me that impression was perhaps the most amazing thing about the whole unbelievable evening."

for a give your friends Cornell!

Serene above the blue Lake, her towers overlooking the western hills, Cornell lives in treasured memories of every Cornellian... Somewhere, that old roommate of yours—those special friends of College days—think back with you to that golden time of youth... To these, no other remembrance of yours can mean as much as a year of the Alumni News.

What finer gift than to bring them, as you have enjoyed it, the far-flung Cornell of today? . . . To carry your greetings, we will mail to each person on your Alumni News gift list, a beautifully illustrated Cornell Christmas Card announcing the News as your gift for next year.

Your Cornell friends in service will especially treasure the Alumni News, and bless you for your thoughtfulness. It's like a weekly letter from home! . . . Special Christmas rate is only Three Dollars if you send more than one Gift Subscription—$7 for two, $10 for three, etc.

There is Still Time to Reach Your Friends Before Christmas If You Send Us Your List TODAY!
