Senior Class Sets New Record for Members At University Commencement

Largest Senior Class ever to graduate from the University received degrees at the eighty-second annual Commencement, in Barton Hall June 12. Acting President Cornelis W. deKiewiet conferred first degrees on 1410 members of the Class of '50 and advanced degrees on some 400 other students.

In the bright June sunshine of Commencement Day, the academic procession formed on the Quadrangle from capped and gowned students grouped by Colleges at the various buildings and headed by the Class Marshals, Lydia Schurman and Ralph C. Williams. At Goldwin Smith Hall they were joined by the Faculty division led by Professors Frederick B. Hutt, Animal Genetics, and John W. MacDonald '25, Law; and at the Administration Building by the Trustees and officers of the University, led by Trustee Robert E. Treman '09. In Barton Hall, the candidates for degrees moved to chairs on the drill floor and faced the wide center aisle where the Faculty and Trustees paced to the stage. Balcony and seats which surrounded the center space were completely filled by parents and friends of the graduates, for a crowd estimated at 8000 persons.

Day Made President Emeritus

After the singing of "America," an invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Henry G. Budd, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Ithaca. Opening the exercises, Acting President de Kiewiet conferred upon former President and Chancellor Edmund E. Day, who was on the platform, the title of President Emeritus, with these words:

Because as President you guided this University with marked success through twelve of the most difficult and momentous years in its history;

Because you have courageously advocated and effectively implemented significant projects to broaden the range and improve the quality of Cornell service to all the people;

Because you have with unflinching zeal upheld those traditions of freedom in the pursuit of truth, concern for the public welfare, and firm adherence to the democratic way of life which have made Cornell great;

Because we honor you for what you have achieved for this institution, for the State, and for the nation;

And because we covet for this University

your active interest and wise counsel in the years ahead,

The Trustees have authorized me to confer upon you the title of President Emeritus of Cornell University.

Seniors receiving commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers Reserve Corps, Army of the United States, ensigns, US Navy and Naval Reserve, and second lieutenants, US Air Force Reserve, were called to their feet by their respective commanding officers and congratulated by the President. Successively, then, according to degrees, groups of Seniors and graduate students were called upon by their respective Deans, rose to their feet as the President intoned, "By virtue of the authority vested in me by the Board of Trustees of Cornell University, I confer upon each of you the degree of . . ., with all the rights, honors, and privileges pertaining to that degree, and in token thereof we extend to you the appropriate diploma." Whereupon the student marshals of each group were summoned to the stage for congratulations by the President and Dean, and tassels were duly shifted to the left in the ancient academic manner. Only the Law School Seniors were omitted in the exercises, since Commencement date conflicted with their preparation for the State Bar examinations. Diplomas were ready after Commencement at the respective College offices.

Acting President Addresses Class

In his Commencement address, President de Kiewiet traced the historical and religious origins of "the legendary American capacity for work." He suggested that absence in Russia of the American concept of work had exposed that country to communism and said, "I recommend to you most earnestly that to continue the zest for spontaneous effort and enterprise that has built this nation is the best protection against a similar fate." No matter how calamitous the times, he said, "men may make their marks, and the best of them pluck progress from the hands of catastrophe itself. These things we may do if we remember always that through his power to work, man has the power to create."

The President deplored what he described as "an atmosphere of moral indifference and neutrality in our greatest colleges and universities. One of the by-products of modern education," he said, "is an easy-going, undiscriminating acceptance of all manner of people and policies. At its best, we can claim that we have tolerance; at its worst, we have apathy, inability to believe anything, to insist on anything But we cannot equally tolerate good and evil, mercy and cruelty. We can be indifferent, or neutral, or deny that these distinctions are meaningful. But to accept one of a pair of opposites is to reject the other."

He urged cultivation, through education, of "that prudent relationship between faith and indignation which makes our consciences and intellects instruments which can choose and wisely reject among the numberless alternatives of life. Our education must give us the power and the will to discriminate and elect. If our minds are not to become great dumping places for passions and excitements, fashions and creeds and rumors; if our lives are not to be disjointed by a conflict of aims and beliefs, or simply immobilized by apathy, then we must learn to discriminate and to act in terms of our choice. Through our education, we must cultivate a moral power that combats injustice, unfreedom, cruelty, strife, and inhumanity. . . ."

Citing American accomplishments in opening the frontier, creating great public works, and war production, he said: "A burst of creative activity in the field of human relations is a possibility, a new phase for the American capacity for physical work and moral effort. But it will not come until American politics and education strike a new note and find a new level. For one thing, we are going to have to live our history more consciously, with a greater awareness of what we have done so far with our share of human history and what we would like to do with our future share. We cannot take it for granted that events will always be a sort of beneficent stream, carrying us on to prosperity and progress. We need to inculcate in ourselves a sense that we want to be adequate to the great crisis of the world; a feeling that we have within ourselves the resources and qualities to sustain great challenges; a steadfastness about our principles which will not be shaken by attacks on them. As a society, we are committed to leadership in the modern world and cannot repudiate that leadership. We cannot, else the day will come when we shall look upon this beautiful landscape through our tears, wondering how we could have prepared this tragedy for ourselves. God bless you!"

The audience joined in singing the "Alma Mater" and stood for the benediction, scattering then, with the Seniors, for the end of another University year.

An academic procession of Seniors, Faculty, and University officials also preceded the Baccalaureate service in Barton Hall, Sunday morning, June 11. An audience of some 3000 persons heard a sermon urging the recovery of faith as "the greatest single need of our time," by the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, president of New Brunswick Theological Seminary. At the organ was Professor William W. Austin, Music.

Class Enjoys Senior Week

June 7, some 150 men and women of the Class of '50 attended the Senior banquet in Willard Straight Hall, to open Senior Week after a "greased pig race" on Alumni Field was called off for lack of Seniors. Principal banquet speaker was H. Allen Smith, author of Low Man on a Totem Pole, whose son, Allen W. Smith, was to receive the Bachelor of Chemical Engineering. Senior award of a gold watch and scroll from the Federation of Cornell Men's Clubs for the "most outstanding" member of the Class was presented by the Federation president, R. Harris Cobb '16, to John Marcham '50, recent Sun editor and son of Professor Frederick G. Marcham, PhD '26, History. Marcham becomes a member of the Federation executive committee for one year.

The Senior Ball was June 10 in Willard Straight Memorial Room, and Sunday evening, June 11, Seniors gathered at the Goldwin Smith portico for Class

Day exercises. Gordon Gardiner presided; Richard W. Pogue and Margaret E. Thompson presented a Class history; Glenn W. Ferguson gave the Class oration; and James D. Hazzard passed on the Senior Class Pipe to Paul J. Gerwin '51.

Medical College Graduates 78

At the fifty-third Commencement of the Medical College in New York, June 14, the Acting President conferred the MD on seventy-eight graduates. Dean Joseph C. Hinsey presided and the Commencement address was by President Alvin C. Eurich of the State University of New York on "Medicine: A Profession or a Craft." Dr. Eugene F. DuBois, Physiology, who retired this year, administered the Oath of Hippocrates to the new doctors.

Among the eleven women and sixty-seven men who received the MD, fifteen are graduates of the University at Ithaca. One of these, Dr. Carolyn H. Diehl '46, was awarded the John M. Polk Prize for attaining the highest scholastic average for the entire course. Dr. David Barr '47, son of Samuel M. Barr '17, won third place. The second Polk Prize went to Dr. Heinz F. Eichenwald, who also won the Gustav Seeligman Prize for efficiency in Obstetrics, the Alfred M. Michaelis Prize for efficiency in Medicine, and the Borden Research Prize. Besides Drs. Diehl and Barr, others who were Cornell undergraduates are Drs. George N. Cornell and Dorothy J. McManus of the Class of '45; J. Alan Berkenfield, Charles A. deProsse, Martin J. Evans, Marjorie F. Helgans, William C. Hollis, John E. Rider, and Alan S. Robinson of the Class of '46; and from the Class of '47, Leon I. Charash, Edward I. Goldsmith, Leopoldo E. Margarida, and John F. Stockfish. Graduates of thirty-nine other colleges and universities were included among the recipients of degrees.

Engineers Find Jobs

Dean S. C. Hollister reports that, contrary to widespread reports of an oversupply of engineers, two-thirds of the Engineering College Class of '50 had found jobs by Commencement time and most of the others are expected to be placed by the end of the summer. The record is ahead of that for last year, he said, with as many "recruiters" coming to the University for men as last year and with most of those placed going to large companies.

Of the 326 Engineering College graduates, Dean Hollister said, 218 were placed by Commencement with some sixty-five firms in a wide variety of industries. From Mechanical Engineering, 82 per cent (82 of 102) were placed; Chemical Engineering and Metallurgy had placed 66 per cent (42 of 64); Electrical Engineering, 60 per cent (66 of 111); and Civil Engineering, 53 per cent (26 of 49 graduates).

"Fear of finding an overcrowded profession has kept many high school graduates from entering engineering courses," Dean Hollister says. "The result is that by 1952, engineering college graduates will be in short supply and under normal business conditions, we will not be out of short supply before 1960. Boys who enter college now to take engineering will move out into a favorable market."

Just before Commencement, the College of Home Economics placement office had reports that about a third of the 132 women of the Class of '50 had taken jobs, with others not yet reported. Eighteen will be teachers in schools and seven in Extension, fifteen reported food service jobs in hospitals and colleges, five were placed with business firms, and one will do research. Eleven of the Class are married and nine others were to be married soon after Commencement.

Aid Safety Conference

Three Cornellians participated in a recent President's Conference on Industrial Safety in Washington, D.C.

Professor J. James Jehring, Industrial and Labor Relations, took part as a member of the committee on education. He prepared a section of the committee's report dealing with industrial safety education in non-engineering colleges and universities. Other participants were Arthur S. Adams, former university Provost and newly-elected president of the American Council on Education; and A. Churchill Blackman '29, chief of the division of industrial safety in California.

Reunions Bring More Than 2,000 Alumni For Gala Week End at University

Class Reunions, June 9 and 10, brought 2072 alumni who registered in Barton Hall. This was not a record number, 2438 having registered in 1947, but those in charge of Reunion arrangements are sure that many came who did not register, perhaps because there was no Friday luncheon in Barton Hall this year. Nevertheless, new attendance records were set by three Classes. '95, with thirty members registered, surpassed by five the record for Fifty-five-year Classes set by '94 last year. The Class of '10 had more men registered than any previous Forty-year Class, beating the '09 record of 105 men last year, but not quite equalling the '09 total of 139 men and women. The Class of '40 had more men and the largest total registration of any Ten-year Class, surpassing the '39 record of 208 last year.

Class headquarters in the men's and women's dormitories and the Class tents below the Library echoed with greetings and reminiscences beginning early Friday morning and continuing for two busy days and far into the nights. Men and women in colorful Reunion costumes enjoyed the guided "Campus Caravans" from Barton Hall in busses with "barkers" recruited from Ithaca Cornellians, and many stayed at Hoy Field Friday to see the Varsity baseball team finally take Colgate in thirteen innings. Class picnics and dinners occupied them Friday night, with a good number gathering to sing on the Goldwin Smith steps before going to the Glee Club show in Bailey Hall and the first Reunion performance of the Dramatic Club in the Willard Straight Theater.

Glee Club Show Pleases

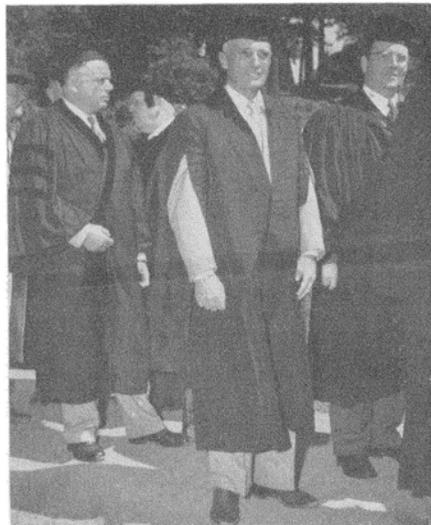

Bailey Hall was crowded for a Reunion Glee Club show titled "Gullible Travelers," announced as a "cruise in tune" by the master of ceremonies, George A. Goetz '50. Songs old and new, conducted by Richard R. Myers '50, son of J. Waldo Myers '13, and Thomas B. Tracy '31, director of the Glee Club, brought enthusiastic applause. Tenor soloists Howard A. Heinsius '50 and E. Chapin Davis '50, were popular as always, as was the double sextet, "Cayuga's Waiters," led by Davis. A new and promising tenor is John W. Callahan '52 and William L. Hodges '52 and Richard W. Coviello '53 were also well received in solo parts. The Club accompanist, David H. Dingle '50, and former manager, John P. Timmerman, Jr. '50, contributed greatly as a piano duet, and Stuart Raynolds '50 kept the audience gasping at his dexterity juggling balls, Indian clubs, and rings.

Players Attract Many

Dramatic Club offering for Reunion week end was Samuel Spewak's satire on Washington bureaucracy, "Two Blind Mice." This year the Club gave a performance on Sunday evening as well as on Friday and Saturday nights. The eighteen players, nine of whom were graduating Seniors, put on a very enjoyable production, under the direction of Professor Walter H. Stainton '19, Executive Director of the University Theatre. Patricia A. Johnson '50 and Zoe N. Baylies '50 were excellent as the elderly lady scientists who keep a bureau going that has been "abolished." Martin Macy '51 did well as Tommy Thurston, the man who solves their problems. A particularly fine performance was given by Roderick Robertson '50 as a representative of the State Department and James R. Teple '50 was applauded heartily for his characterization of the ensign-courier.

Women Gather

More than 200 attended the All-Cornell Women's Breakfast Saturday morning in Willard Straight Memorial Room. Mrs. Lauren E. Bly (Elinore Wood) '38, Trustee Wears Hallowed Garb—Trustee Albert K. Mitchell '17 (center), from New Mexico, almost lost a place in the Commencement procession when the University stock of academic robes ran short. But at the last moment, someone discovered in the bottom of the cabinet in the Trustees' dressing room a box containing the Master's gown of Oxford University which had belonged to the late Professor Goldwin Smith, who won the Oxford MA in 1848. So Mitchell donned it for Commencement. Just in the picture, at left, is Acting President Cornelis W. de Kiewiet in his colorful Doctor's gown and cap of the University of London; next are Trustees Louis Hollander and Frank S. president of the Cornell Women's Club of Ithaca, introduced Pauline J. Schmid '25, Assistant Alumni Secretary, who welcomed the guests and introduced Mrs. Clarence A. Martin, PhD '00, of Sarasota, Fla., who was the first Adviser of Women at the University. Other speakers were Ann R. Ellis '50, president of WSGA; Dean of Women Lucile Allen; Lydia Schurman '50, president of the Class of '50 women; Mrs. Edwin S. Knauss (Dorothy Pond) '18, president of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs; Dean E. Lee Vincent, Home Economics; and University Trustees Ruth F. Irish '22 and Mary H. Donlon '20. Seated also at the speakers' table were Mrs. Edmund E. Day and Mrs. Cornelis W. deKiewiet. Singing was led by Dorothy DeLaney '23. Mrs. Charles E. Dykes (Doris Smallridge) '37 was chairman of arrangements.

Annual meeting of the Alumni Association was opened by President Robert W. White '15 with some 400 Cornellians in the auditorium of Statler Hall. Charles E. Dykes '36, chairman of the canvassing committee, reported the election of Walker Cisler '22 and Dr. Preston A. Wade '22 as Alumni Trustees, and Trustee Francis H. Scheetz '16, chairman of a committee to revise the by-laws, explained the changes as published in the Alumni News May 15, and the new by-laws were adopted.

Whyte '13 Heads Alumni Fund

Turning to the annual meeting of the Alumni Fund Council, its president the last two years, Harold L. Bache '16, outlined plans for resumption of annual giving after two years of cooperating with the Greater Cornell Fund campaign; said that the Class Alumni Fund committees were now resuming solicitation of annual unrestricted gifts; and announced that the Forty-year Class of '10 was the first this year to reach its "Q Class" quota of $40,000, representing $1,000 to the Alumni Fund for each year out of the University.

The meeting elected Jessel S. Whyte '13 of Kenosha, Wis., president of the Alumni Fund Council for 1950-51, succeeding Bache. Vice-presidents are P. Paul Miller '18, Willard I. Emerson '19, Mrs. Roger M. Woolley (Virginia Van Vranken) '25, William M. Vanneman '31, and Jansen Noyes, Jr. '39. Elected to the executive committee for three years are Franklin H. Bivins '27, James C. Forbes '36, and William T. Dunn, Jr. '43; with the Class of '50 Alumni Fund representatives, Manley H. Thaler, a member for one year. A resolution was adopted thanking Bache for his leadership of the Fund Council the last two years.

Resuming the Alumni Association meeting, President White introduced Dr. Cornelis W. deKiewiet, Acting President of the University, who gave the customary "annual report to the alumni." President deKiewiet paid tribute to his predecessor, Edmund E. Day, as "a great educational leader" and announced that Day was to be elected President Emeritus of the University by the Board of Trustees.

Acting President Reports

President de Kiewiet spoke of the feeling of uncertainty engendered by a temporary administration, but assured his audience of the continued progress "that has been characteristic of Cornell University during its entire career." The University has come to a point in its expansion of physical plant, of enrolment, and of curriculum, he said, "where it is healthy to stop and evaluate where we have been and where we should go." He remarked that it is fortunate that the process of balancing the budget "can be done before the new administration starts," adding that for this year the estimated operating deficit was about $800,000, but some $300,000 of unexpected income had, been received above that budgeted from the Alumni Fund and Greater Cornell Fund, so the actual deficit would be around $500,000. Speaking of the difficulties of balancing the budget for next year, he said reductions have been necessary "that press against the needs and hopes of this institution" and cited "highly trained specialists who are living on salaries that are somewhat disconcerting." Some increases have been made, however, especially in the base rate for assistant professors and in more favorable group insurance.

Saying that the University "has the greatest need for support in improving its financial position," he noted "assurance of results" from the Greater Cornell Fund, which he announced was "approaching $11,000,000." Besides money, he said, the Greater Cornell Fund campaign has brought improved public relations between the University and its alumni, with business, and with foundations. After the campaign ends, he suggested, alumni can continue to contribute understanding, sympathy, and moral support, all important.

(June 15, Asa S. Knowles, Vice-president for University Development, announced that the Greater Cornell Fund had reached a total of $10,800,000.)

He spoke of Cornell as "one of the great people's colleges of the United States" and cited instances of the general regard in which the University is held. "It is not buildings, machines, or curriculum, but the caliber of men and women that we can attract and hold in this institution that give it that flavor." As "vignettes" of the Campus interests aside from the business of making a living, he cited a recent lecture by Robert Frost that packed Bailey Hall with students "sensitive to what the poet had to say," and the "outstanding beauty" of the student choir singing Bach's "Passion According to St. Matthew" in a Sage Chapel program arranged by the Department of Music. He spoke also of Statler Hall and its Faculty Club as "an agency which will integrate the diversity of the University and foster a family relationship within itself," and of new enterprises now being consummated to enlarge the service of the University, pointing out that "more than 20,000 people aside from our own have come to the Campus this year."

Saying that "we continue to hold strong in enrolment" and that "the caliber of students is high," the President expressed appreciation to the alumni for their "help in selecting and appraising applicants." In their quest for "understanding of the whole man," he said, "students have had some difficulty in uncertain access to the real spirit and thinking of the University," but he reported success of a student-administration group organized a year ago "for getting information and interpretation of administrative policies to the students, to help produce stability of mind and purpose and make them sounder citizens." He spoke of the recent innovation of men's dormitory counsellors and leaders as meeting the University's responsibility to help students by giving them advice in their daily problems and said that all Freshman men are being brought to live on the Campus as rapidly as possible. More men's dormitories are needed, he said, as "an indispensable instrument for producing a stable family relationship."

He spoke of relations with the new State University of New York as "cordial and cooperative" and said that more and more "they are drawing upon us for cooperation and aid." Principal needs of the University, he said, are new dormitories for men at the Medical College in New York and new Library facilities at Ithaca.

Jessel S. Whyte '13—Heads Alumni Fund Council

Luncheon at Barton Hall Saturday was gay and colorful, with music by kilted bagpipers and drummers brought by the the Class of '20 and a band garbed in the pink-and-white-striped uniforms of '35. It was the occasion for renewing acquaintance with many Faculty families, and later the Willard Straight Hall lounges were crowded for the alumni-Faculty get-together which has become a popular feature of Reunions. Saturday afternoon track meet on Schoellkopf Field attracted many alumni and the tents were busy places until they were vacated for the separate Class dinners.

Rally Closes Program

For the second year, the Saturday night Reunion Rally was in Barton Hall, with some 8,000 alumni and onlookers crowding the seats on the drill floor, balcony, and bleachers surrounding. Harry V. Wade '26, the master of ceremonies, had been in Ithaca a week arranging the staging, lighting, and program for one of the most successful Reunion Rallies ever held.

Back of the stage at the north side of the Hall hung a huge Seal of the University in color, which Wade had made, and the Rally opened with the house dark and a spotlight on the Seal as Wade read from Ezra Cornell's deed of gift for the University. With the band and organ playing "Cornell Victorious," a parade of signs was brought to the stage, one for each of the eight Colleges, the audience then singing the "Alma Mater." Members of the Glee Club were followed to the stage by a uniformed color guard bearing the national colors and those of the ROTC and NROTC and the assembly sang the national anthem. Cornell songs were led by Wendell K. Webber '25.

Seated near the stage, a group of emeritus professors were called to their feet for applause by the audience, and later Wade called by name several members of the Alumni Office staff to rise for recognition. "Cayuga's Waiters" and the Glee Club sang, and Stuart Rayno's '50 entertained with juggling. Cups of the Association of Class Secretaries were presented to George H. Young, secretary of '00, for the largest percentage of living members registered for Reunion; to John L. Munschauer, '40 Reunion chairman, for the largest number of men; and for M. Ellen Fleming, '48 Class secretary, for the largest number of women registered.

Alumni Honor Days

Frederic C. Wood '24, president of the Class Secretaries Association, called to the stage President Emeritus Edmund E. Day and Mrs. Day and presented to them "for all alumni" a gift of dining-room furniture for their new home in Ithaca. This had been subscribed by the Classes and alumni organizations.

Official registration in Barton Hall. Bold figures designate Classes with scheduled Reunions.

Expressing thanks for the gift, President Day recalled that he had first met the Cornell alumni at a Reunion Rally twelve years ago and the pleasant associations of the intervening years. He thanked the alumni for their support and friendship, saying, "You are fervent in your devotion to our Alma Mater; your objectives are sound; you are a great crowd to work with as I like to work." Saying that he and the alumni had always been "completely candid" with each other, he turned to what he called a "failing" of Cornellians: "You are too much impressed by the comments you get from alumni of other institutions in the Ivy League. We're different; sure, so are they! But in general, the differences are to our credit. Cornell has been in the service of all the people from the beginning. Isn't that something to be proud about? Cornellians do not sufficiently appreciate the greatness of Cornell University; what it has accomplished; its tradition of freedom and responsibility; its unfettered pursuit of truth. These spell out the Cornell record and tradition.

"The world has developed the ability to travel, but knows not where to go; we have great systems of communication, but know not what to say; there is tremendous power in our hands, but what shall we do with it? The great hope of the future lies in the kind of education that will supply purpose to the powers that we have been accorded. That is the greatness of Cornell, and my opportunity to aid in developing this was the greatest privilege that I could possibly have had. We've had a grand time together, you and I. You must never lose faith in this institution! It has marvelous power, a great record of achievement, a tradition clearly in accord with the best ideals of the American people. I have a tremendous interest in this place which will last as long as I do. God speed you!"

The program closed with the "Evening Song" sung first by the audience, then by the Glee Club, then played on the organ as colored pictures of the Campus taken by Professor Alfred M. S. Pridham, PhD '33, Floriculture, were flashed on the screen.

Get Cancer Grant

American Cancer Society has granted $5,967 to the University for a year's research at the Floyd Newman Laboratory of Nuclear Studies on the effects of radiation on living cells. Using various kinds of bacteria, which are single-celled organisms, Professor Philip Morrison and his assistants are studying the effects of various types of radioactive particles to find out which cells survive and how others are changed by radiation. The results, it is hoped, may be useful in determining the similar effects on the more complex cell structures which are known to be responsible for cancerous growths.

Alumni Elect Cisler, Wade TRUSTEE BOARD REORGANIZES

Alumni Trustees elected by degree-holders for the five-year term beginning July 1, 1950, are Walker L. Cisler '22 and Dr. Preston A. Wade '22. They succeed Willis H. Carrier '01 and George R. Pfann '24, whose terms expire. Pfann, however, was appointed a Trustee by Governor Thomas E. Dewey to fill the unexpired term, to June 30, 1951, of Trustee Emeritus Stanton Griffis '10, who resigned.

Charles E. Dykes '36, chairman of the canvassing committee, reported at the annual meeting of the Alumni Association, June 10, that 13,161 ballots had been cast in the voting for Alumni Trustees. The committee found 211 of these invalid, so counted 12,950 ballots. Cisler received 7332 votes and Wade, 6738. Other candidates were Alfred M. Saperston '19, Joseph C. Pursglove, Jr. '30, and Harold T. Edwards '10. Four candidates, including the two elected, were recommended by the Alumni Association committee on Alumni Trustee nominations. Both new Alumni Trustees have made distinguished professional and war records and have been active in alumni affairs.

Cisler (above) is executive vice-president of Detroit Edison Co., chief consultant on electric power to the ECA, and is chairman of a committee of the AIEE which maintains a continuing survey of electric power resources in the United States. He was a colonel in the Army, chief of the public utilities section, SHAEF and in the Office of Military Government for Germany, received numerous decorations for his aid in rehabilitating utilities in Europe and has returned several times since the war on government missions. He received the ME in 1922, was a Varsity sprinter, and is a member of Sphinx Head, Tau Beta Pi, Atmos, and Phi Kappa Phi; is secretary of the Class of '22, and has served as a director of the Alumni Association, Class representative for the Alumni Fund, president of the Cornell Society of Engineers, member of the Engineering College Council, president of the Cornell Club of Michigan, and area chairman for the Greater Cornell Fund campaign.

Dr. Wade (above), a diplomate of the American Board of Surgery and fellow of the American College of Surgeons and New York Academy of Medicine, practices surgery in New York City. He is associate professor of Surgery at Cornell Medical College, associate attending surgeon at The New York Hospital and member of the medical board and board of managers of its Vincent Astor Clinic, director of surgery at New York City Hospital, and professor of surgery at NYU medical college. A lieutenant colonel in the Army Medical Corps, he was chief of surgery in the Ninth General Hospital, organized at the Medical College and New York Hospital, which served on active duty for three years, principally in New Guinea. He received the AB in 1922 and in 1925 the MD at the Medical College in New York, where he was president of the Senior Class. He is a past president of the Medical College Alumni Association and of The New York Hospital Alumni Association; has been a governor of the Cornell Club of New York fifteen years; is a member of the administrative group of the Greater Cornell Committee and chairman of its Medical College division.

At its Commencement meeting, the Board re-elected Maxwell M. Upson '99 for a sixth five-year term, beginning July 1, John L. Collyer '17 for his third term, and H. Edward Babcock for his fifth term. Governor Dewey had reappointed Arthur H. Dean '19 for a second term of five years, beginning July 1. The Board re-elected for one-year terms from the field of labor Frank S. Columbus, Louis Hollander, and Thomas A. Murray, all of whom have been Trustees since the Board was enlarged in 1945.

The Board reappointed Professor Cornelis W. deKiewiet as Acting President of the University for the year ending June 30, 1951, and adopted a resolution thanking him for "his untiring service, great patience, wisdom, ability, and unflagging energy in devoting himself to the affairs of the University."

Neal D. Becker '05 was re-elected chairman of the Board for the duration of his term as Trustee, to June 30, 1952. For 1950-51, Trustee Dean was re-elected chairman of the Board executive committee; Joseph P. Ripley '12, chairman of the investment committee; John S. Parke '23, buildings and grounds; Larry E. Gubb '16, planning and development; and George R. Pfann '24 heads the law committee. New chairman of the Board membership committee is Alumni Trustee Edward E. Goodwillie '10, succeeding Robert E. Treman '09.

Club Federation Meets

Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs, at its annual meeting, June 10, re-elected as president for two years Mrs. Edwin S. Knauss (Dorothy Pond) '18. Mrs. William J. Wigsten (Gladys Barkley) '23 was elected second vice-president for the term 1950-52. Mrs. James H. Zimmer (Orpha Spicer) '27, treasurer of the Federation Scholarship Fund, reported contributions this year from Clubs and individuals of $2551.50, which brings the endowment from which Federation Scholarships are awarded to undergraduate women to $48,127.65.

A fortieth-anniversary History of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs, written by Mrs. Simon H. Gage (Clara Starrett) '18, was presented. Delegates from twenty-nine Clubs attended the meeting.

Architects Gather

Sixty-three alumni and members of the Faculty attended the Architecture Reunion breakfast, June 10. Architecture Alumni Association re-elected Paul W. Drake '21, president, and C. Frederick Wise '39, vice-president. John T. Udall '28 of Ithaca was elected secretary-treasurer.

At the breakfast, the College awarded its Robert J. Eidlitz Fellowship of $1000 to Robert L. Myers '47, who received the BArch last February. Myers also received the student medal of the American Institute of Architects, for maintaining the highest record of his Class throughout the course, and the Clifton Beckwith Brown Medal for achieving the best record in Design. He entered Architecture in 1944 after a year at University of North Carolina, was in the Army for two years, returning in 1946, and last term was in the graduate school of design at Harvard. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Tau Beta Pi, Gamma Phi Beta, and Phi Kappa Phi. He will use his Fellowship for a tour of Europe this summer, to study architectural monuments.

The Eidlitz Fellowship was endowed in memory of Robert J. Eidlitz '85 by a gift of $30,000 in 1938 from his widow, the former Sadie Boulton '85, for awards to exceptionally promising graduates of the College to enable them to supplement their professional training.

Honor Societies Meet

Forty-two members of Mortar Board attended the Sunday morning Reunion breakfast and were addressed by Dean of Women Lucile Allen. President of the alumnae chapter, succeeding Lois Osborn '16, is Mrs. Gordon L. Pritchard (Marilyn Winsor) '45. Mrs. Harold S. Brown (M. Alyene Fenner) '28 is secretary-treasurer.

Sphinx Head alumni breakfast brought fifty-five members. Officers were re-elected: Foster M. Coffin '12, president; Walter Scholl, Jr. '41, vice-president; Charles E. Dykes '36, secretary; and Hugh E. Weatherlow '06, treasurer. A committee was appointed to arrange for a celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the society, in Ithaca the day of the Yale football game, next October 21.

Sixty-nine members of Quill and Dagger gathered for Reunion breakfast. Trustee Emeritus Roger H. Williams '95 was elected alumni president, succeeding Emerson Hinchliff '14, and R. Selden Brewer '40 and Professor Charles V. P. Young '99 were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively. The society appropriated $500 for starting preparation of a pictorial history of the University.

Delaware Elects

About thirty-five members of the Cornell Club of Delaware attended the annual dinner meeting at the Howard Johnson Restaurant in Wilmington, May 15, to elect officers and hear a talk by General Alumni Secretary Emmet J. Murphy '22.

The new officers are Elman M. Stauebach '36, president; John M. Brentlinger, Jr. '39, first vice-president; Philip H. Permar '42, second vice-president; Charles T. Morrow '23, treasurer; and John E. Sly '38, secretary. The Club is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary this year and H. Burton Eaton, Jr., '38 has been appointed chairman of arrangements for an anniversary party in December.

Dairy Science Association, at its recent annual banquet, heard a talk by Professor Loren C. Petry, Botany, and installed James A. Paul '51 as president, William R. Ohara '51 as vice-president, Alan E. Kligerman '52 as secretary, and George M. Kloser '52 as treasurer.

Now, In My Time!

By Romeyn Perry

The Reunions produced some talk about functional architecture. One did not have to be an architect to be heard. From the standpoint of most participants in the discussion, functional architecture is what some of these newest buildings are: Olin Hall, the Newman Laboratory, Statler Hall, and the Administration Building. One gathered that the articulate majority favored the Collegiate Gothic style as introduced in the Baker Dormitories quite a while back and subsequently echoed with varying degrees of fidelity in the Drill Hall, Willard Straight, and the Law School.

The main conclusion we drew from the debate was that it's a good thing the Charter of the University, while giving the alumni some small say in the selection of Trustees, does not require that they shall be consulted in matters of art and architecture! Most of the ones we listened to seemed to think that this functional architecture business is new. It isn't, of course.

One of the most pleasing examples of functional architecture we possess has dwelt with us now for close to sixty years and every day fills the eye with increasing satisfaction. Only the hurried and distraught fail to pause in passing to enjoy its mellow colors, its pleasing proportions, the way it fits into its location and enhances the natural beauty which surrounds it. It must have required daring at the time to put the Hydraulic Laboratory where it is, right in the middle of our loveliest waterfall. But you can't teach hydraulics without a waterfall, any more than you can train hotelmen (without making yourself ridiculous) how to make Hollandaise sauce in a replica of Westminster Abbey! The Hydraulic Laboratory belongs in the mists of Tripphammer Falls, and I think the self-explanatory austerity of its straight lines brings out the curves and composition of the falls just as it takes a rectangular frame to complete a well-designed painting.

Another example of successful functional architecture, if you can judge from the preliminary sketches, is likely to be Anabel Taylor Hall, which has already won the enthusiastic approval of our most bitter opponents of functional architecture. In this you have the perfect illustration of what we've been talking about! Anabel Taylor reverts to the ecclesiastical connotations of the Collegiate Gothic, so widely departed from in some of these more recent buildings. That's proper and distinctly functional in a hall dedicated to religious ends. It would have been grotesque, we suggest, in a structure devoted to atom smashing or to an Administration Building which concentrates on Campus housekeeping and endowment drives; scarcely suitable for a Statler Hall wherein one visualizes youth being taught the mysteries of lobster Newburg and tomato surprises. But the Gothic, we repeat becomes completely logical and satisfactory in a building intended both as a war memorial and as a place to house the united efforts of those who minister to our religious life.

To what extent are our individual tastes in these matters the result of critical judgment based on some small knowledge of what the artist is striving for? To what extent are we timid slaves to fashion, thoughtlessly following the crowd? In one decade we like short skirts; in the next, regard the long ones as more graceful and becoming. To that extent are we sheep, for, as the architect knows and many women are aware though lacking the courage to assert their faith, the design should depend on the functional end to be served. Some women should always wear short skirts, regardless of what the prevailing fashion may dictate; while others should avoid the short ones like so many rattlesnakes. Not that they ever will!

Nothing can become so drab and flatly uninteresting as complete uniformity in college architecture. The eye needs the mistakes of one era to emphasize the successes of another, and sometimes with the birth of critical judgment, small doubts arise as to which are the mistakes, which the successes. To your correspondent's mind, the lovely echoes and replicas of foreign models which, in recent decades, have reared themselves at Princeton serve best to frame and exalt the unpretentious dignity, the Presbyterian integrity, the historical importance of Nassau Hall.

Not the least of the good gifts that one acquires from association with this University is the ability to change one's mind. Cocksurenness is a mark of arrested development. To those who voice their antipathy to functional architecture, we invite their further contemplation of the Hydraulic Laboratory and of Anabel Taylor Hall.

Second in Baseball League

The baseball team finished its season by winning three of its last four contests. In the only League game, Yale was defeated, 4-2, on Hoy Field, June 7. Edward P. Winnick '51 was the star as he held the visitors to three hits and pounded out a single, with the bases full, in the fifth inning, driving in two runs and breaking a 2-2 tie. His mates played errorless ball and supported him with ten hits. Hugh S. MacNeil '51 got three for four. Robert J. Haley '51 went hitless, losing a fine chance to take the League batting championship.

Army and Princeton tied for the championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate League with seven wins and two losses. Cornell followed with 6-2 and Yale was next with 6-3. The rained-out game with Brown cost Cornell its chance to get in on the first-place tie. Cornell's two League losses were to Army and Princeton.

The Quantico Marines brought a record of forty-five wins and six losses to Hoy Field, June 8, and left with a 45-7 standing as a result of an 8-2 defeat inflicted by Cornell. Eugene J. Hummer '50, a mound aspirant for the last three seasons, with plenty of possibilities but little control, went the distance. He had a two-hit shutout going into the ninth inning, but tired and gave up three hits, good for two runs, in the final stanza.

Cornell played host to Colgate before a Reunion crowd, June 9, and defeated them, 6-5, in a thirteen-inning struggle. Senior Albert C. Neimeth '50 started on the hill, but was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the fourth with Colgate holding a 4-1 lead. John R. Maloney '50 relieved and pitched no-hit ball for four innings. He was lifted for a pinch-hitter during an eighth-inning rally that put Cornell ahead, 5-4. Paul J. Gerwin '51 was called in to pitch the ninth inning, but could not hold the one-run lead. Two walks and a single produced the tying run. Then he hit a batter to load the sacks with two out.

With the bench clear of pitchers, Winnick and Hummer having been used as a pinch-hitter and runner, respectively, Coach Greene called MacNeil in from left field to pitch. The last time he had pitched was when he was a junior in high school. Going in with the bases full and no warm up, Sam retired the next batter to end the inning. He gave up one hit and walked four in the next four innings. In the bottom half of the thirteenth, the ancient squeeze play produced the winning marker with one away. Henry M. Charlap '52 laid down the bunt that brought Haley in from third. Haley and Robert B. Rider '50 each had four hits. Cornell committed but one error.

Colgate defeated Cornell, 7-5, at Hamilton the next day in a reunion game there. Coach Greene tried to go again with Neimeth, but again Al proved to be a cousin to the Colgate batters. He failed to get a man out in the first inning as four hits and two walks were good for 5 runs. Maloney relieved and pitched four hits the rest of the way. Cornell filled the bases in the ninth, but could not produce the runs necessary to knot the count. Cornell played this game without the services of its stellar third baseman, Haley, who had injured a shoulder in the game the previous day. Haley, a native of Uniontown, Pa., and football regular for the last two years, has been elected captain for 1951.

Cornell won thirteen games and lost six to compile one of its best records in recent years. Richard C. Corwith '50 led the hitters with a season's average of .350. Haley and Rider were second with .333. Also over the .300 mark were Winnick with .326 and William F. Scazzero '51 with .301. Haley led the team in League play with .379. Corwith had .344, Winnick and Scazzero .323. Winnick was the ace moundsman. He pitched 84.2 innings, won five games, and lost two, had an earned-run average of 2.66, gave up 50 hits, walked 30, and struck out 57.

Hard Luck at Marietta

Marietta, Ohio, learned the hard way—and fast—the trials and tribulations of staging a crew race, June 17. A five-inch rainfall and flash flood a few miles up the Muskingum River, which empties into the the Ohio at Marietta, the night before the Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta all but wrecked the carefully-laid plans of a group of energetic citizens of this Ohio city. Floating debris and a swift current made it necessary to cut the distance of the varsity and junior-varsity races from three miles to two. For the freshman race, the stake boats were out of alignment and Referee Clifford Goes finally called for a running start. The distance covered in this race was approximately one and three-quarters miles.

University of Washington crews were not affected by the elements and swept the river, winning all three of the races for the fourth time. Coach Al Ulbrickson received an additional thrill as his son rowed number six in his varsity boat. Cornell was third in the freshman race, fifth in the junior-varsity, and a disappointing ninth in the varsity. This is the poorest Cornell showing in the "big regatta" since 1926. There was a decided difference of opinion between officials on the observation train and those on the floats, and a study of the movies may give Wisconsin second in the varsity instead of fifth and Princeton second in the freshman race instead of sixth.

At Marietta, the squad elected James T. Wright '51 of Washington, D.C., commodore for next year. He did not row in the Marietta race. John L. Collyer '17, former Varsity oarsman and coach, president of B. F. Goodrich Co. of Akron, and chairman of the Greater Cornell Fund campaign, was honorary referee of the regatta. He gave individual medals for the winners of each race. John M. Francis, Jr. '27 of Columbus, Ohio, who also won the "C" in rowing, was an assistant judge.

Where this "world's series of rowing" will be next year may be decided shortly. Marietta wants another chance, Poughkeepsie has invited the Association back to the Hudson, and it is rumored that Seattle, Wash., may extend an invitation. The regatta at Marietta drew a gross gate of more than $40,000, which is unprecedented. This factor may be important in the decision of next year's site. Director of Athletics Robert J. Kane '34 is chairman of the IRA board of stewards.

Track Team Takes Princeton

Cornell and Princeton track and field men, teammates against Oxford and Cambridge in England July 1, were foes on Schoellkopf Field, June 10, before a Reunion crowd of about 2500. The meet, in which the English system of counting only first places was used, was won by Cornell, 9-4. Cornell had three double winners. Captain Robert G. Hunt '50 won the 100 and 220-yard dashes; Meredith C. Gourdine '52 took the running broad jump and the 220-yard low hurdles; Walter S. Ashbaugh '51 took first place in the 120-yard high hurdles and the high jump.

Gourdine established a new Schoellkopf record in the broad jump with a leap of 24 feet 1¾ inches. He had three jumps over 24 feet as he broke the record of 23 feet 10¾ inches which had stood since 1930. Ashbaugh also turned in a record-breaking performance in the high hurdles. His time of 0:14.2 was a new Schoellkopf and Cornell mark. This time, which was a half-second better than Ashbaugh has ever done before, betters the former mark of 0:14.7 set in 1939, which he equalled last year.

Other Cornell winners were Arthur W. Gardiner '52 in the shotput and Charles H. Moore Jr. '51 in the 440. Robert C. Mealey '51 ran a dead heat with Bolster of Princeton in the half-mile and Eugene A. Zeiner '52 tied for first in the pole vault with Princeton's Carlton Jacob. Princeton took firsts in the one and three-mile runs and the 440-yard relay. The three-mile is unusual in this country but is a standard event in England.

The squad of twelve Cornell men and nine from Princeton sailed for England, June 14, except Moore and Gourdine. Moore ran the 440 in the National Collegiate meet in Minneapolis, June 16-17, but failed to defend the crown he won last year, finishing fourth. Both were in the National AAU meet in Washington, June 23-24, then flew to England.

Moore and Mealey have been elected co-captains of the track team for next year. Moore is from West Chester, Pa.; Mealey, from Malverne.

Tennis Stars Win

Richard Savitt '50 and Leonard L. Steiner '50 climaxed a grand four years of tennis for Cornell in the open Eastern intercollegiate tennis championship matches in Syracuse the week of June 18. The two fraternity brothers in Pi Lambda Phi met in the finals of the singles, with Savitt successfully defending the title he won last year. Because of a strong wind, the best two out of three matches counted instead of three out of five as originally scheduled. The scores were 6-4, 7-5. Then the two combined to defeat Schwartz and Schreiber of the University of Miami for the doubles crown, 6-1, 6-2. Savitt and Steiner were defending the championship they won last year. Their victories gave Cornell the title for the third consecutive year.

Savitt flew from Syracuse to Austin, Tex., for the NCAA championships, where 90-degree heat was instrumental in his second-round elimination, as it was last year when he collapsed in the second set of a quarter-final match. Just before the Syracuse tournament, Savitt successfully defended his Brooklyn tennis championship by defeating Schwartz 3-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1.

Princeton won the Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis Association championship with a 7-0 record. Cornell, title holder for the last two years, was second with 5-1.

Sports Shorts

The North "All Star" team of college players won its fifth North-South lacrosse title in Baltimore, Md., June 9, by defeating the South, 12-8. Varsity Coach Ross H. Smith was assistant coach of the North team and James W. Epler '51 was a player.

Director of Athletics Robert J. Kane '34 has been appointed to the building committee of the National Football Shrine and Hall of Fame, planned for the Rutgers University campus at New Brunswick, N.J.

Gregory G. (Gus) Zitrides, Dartmouth graduate who was assistant football coach here from 1940-42 while he was a student in the Law School, has been appointed head football coach at Brown University at Providence, R.I. He has been line coach at Brown since 1946.

Faculty Appointments

New associate professors in Home Economics, beginning October 1, will be Edward C. Devereux, who will join the Department of Child Development and Family Relationships, and Karla Longree, PhD '38, who will be in the Department of Institution Management. Professor Devereux received the AB in 1934, the AM in 1938, and the PhD this year at Harvard. He also holds the AB of Connecticut State College. He was an instructor at the University of Toronto from 1940-42, a lieutenant, USNR, from 1942-45, and assistant professor at Princeton until last year he was a research associate at Columbia. Miss Longree returns from nine years as associate professor at Hampton Institute. A native of Germany, she came to Cornell in 1933 with the PhD from Berlin University and two years of research at Biologische Reischsanstalt, Berlin-Duhlem. She was a resident doctor in Home Economics until 1934, research teaching assistant from 1935-40, and then a research instructor until 1941.

Appointed acting associate professors in Child Development and Family Relationships are Mrs. Mollie Stevens Smart, wife of Professor Russell C. Smart, of the Department, and Mrs. Helen Peavy Washburn '25, who is the wife of Professor Kenneth L. Washburn '26, Fine Arts.

Eight assistant professors have been appointed, six in the College of Agriculture. Warren W. Burger '39, assistant professor of Marketing, received the BS in 1939, MS in 1947, and will receive the PhD in September. He taught vocational agriculture in New York State in high schools and was assistant county agricultural agent in Onondaga County for a year. After war service as a lieutenant (jg), USNR, he returned to the University and for a time was a labor utilization specialist in the Department of Agricultural Economics for the Emergency Farm Labor Program. Mrs. Burger is the former Florence Dixon '39. George A. Johannessen, PhD '50, becomes assistant professor of Vegetable Crops and Pomology. He received the BS at Rutgers and the MS at Purdue. He was in the Medical Department of the Army for four and a half years, and has been a graduate assistant in Vegetable Crops.

New assistant professors in Animal Husbandry will be Harry Ainslie and Robert H. Foote, MS '47. Ainslie comes September 1 from Kansas State College, where he received the BS in 1949 and the MS this year and has been a graduate assistant. A graduate of the University of Connecticut, Foote came to the Graduate School after three years in the Army. Now completing work for the PhD, he will assume his duties August 1. William R. Kunsela '39 will become assistant professor of Rural Education, October 1. After receiving the BS in 1939, he taught vocational agriculture, and returned to the Graduate School in 1945 from service as a first lieutenant in the Army Air Force. He received the MS in Ed in 1946 and is a candidate for the PhD. Marion Watt Meadows, PhD '50, has become assistant professor of Vegetable Crops. She received the BS in 1939 at Southwestern Louisiana Institute and the MS in 1947 at Louisiana State University.

Agnes M. Carlson, Grad, a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, has been appointed assistant professor in Institution Management in Home Economics, effective September 1. Malcolm C. Peckham, who received the BS in 1943 at the University of Maine and the DVM this June at Cornell, is appointed assistant professor of Poultry Diseases in the Veterinary College. New county agricultural agent-at-large in the Extension Service is Lester H. Vollmer '44, and Phyllis E. Reuning '47 is home demonstration agent-at-large.

Arthur Kantrowitz has been promoted to professor of Aeronautical Engineering and Jean Failing to professor of Home Economics and co-ordinator of resident instruction. Edward H. Litchfield, visiting professor of Administration in the School of Business and Public Administration during the spring term, has been named professor. Promoted to associate professors are William W. Austin and William A. Campbell, Music; Giuseppe Cocconi, Physics; Vivien Warters, Home Economics; Francis H. Fox '45, Veterinary Medicine; and Carolyn F. Sprague, PhD '47, Veterinary Physiology.

Ernest Schlaretzki, PhD '48, will return next year as visiting assistant professor of Philosophy, on leave from the University of Oklahoma.

Virginians Organize

Forty Cornellians of Classes from '09 to '48 met for dinner at the Albemarle Hotel in Charlottesville, Va., May 27, to organize a Cornell Club of Charlottesville. Plans were made to meet three times annually. Edward H. Carman, Jr. '16 spoke at the first meeting.

Professor James W. Papez, Zoology, has been granted a leave of absence during the second term of 1950-51 and will retire July 1, 1951, after thirty years at Cornell. This summer, he is doing neurological research at Ohio State Hospital, Columbus, and in June he participated in the conventions of the American Association of Neuropathologists, the American Electroencephalographic Society and the American Neurological Association.

Letters

Subject to the usual restrictions of space and good taste, we shall print letters from subscribers on any side of any subject of interest to Cornellians. Mueller '41 Heads Plant

New Superintendent of University Buildings and Grounds is Robert M. Mueller '41. He was appointed by the Board of Trustees to succeed Hugh E. Weatherlow '06, who retired June 30 after fourteen years in the position.

Mueller (above) entered Architecture in 1937 from Rome Free Academy with a State Tuition Scholarship and received the BArch in January, 1942. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi, was elected to Red Key, Gargoyle, and L'Ogive, and sang in the Glee Club for three years. A Naval officer during the war, he spent four years in naval architecture and ship repair and construction. As a special representative for the Navy Bureau of Ships, he oversaw the installation and operation of high-speed painting equipment in Naval and Navy-affiliated shipyards west of the Mississippi. In 1946, he helped found and became a partner in Manning-Mitchell Paint Co. in San Francisco, Cal. He was plant manager and secretary-treasurer of the firm until 1948 when he became assistant to George F. Rogalsky '07, University Vice-president-business. He has been secretary of the Trustee buildings and grounds committee during construction of Statler Hall, expansion of the University Heating Plant, and planning for the Men's Sports Building, Anabel Taylor Hall, and other projected buildings.

Since Weatherlow became Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, more than sixty new buildings have been erected by the University, with more than a million-and-a-quarter square feet of floor space. Among them have been Olin Hall, the Administration Building, service buildings and enlarged heating plant at East Ithaca, Floyd Newman Laboratory of Nuclear Studies, Savage Hall, Statler Hall, and Clara Dickson Hall. Responsibilities of the Superintendent include not only upkeep of most of the University property, but fire protection, Campus police, and authority over student cars and parking. Expenditure for repairs and maintenance has increased more than five times since 1936. The Department has 330 employees.

Weatherlow (above) entered the University in 1902 from Buffalo and received the CE in 1907. He came to the Department from thirty years in the construction business in New York City and Florida, starting with Marc Eidlitz & Son, of which the late Otto M. Eidlitz '81 was president, and last with Raymond Concrete Pile Co. headed by Trustee Maxwell M. Upson '99. For ten years, he has been treasurer of the Sphinx Head Alumni Association. He has been a member of the administrative committee of Cornell Plantations and in 1946 served on a University committee which recommended increased facilities for handling the post-war influx of students. The Board of Trustees at its June meeting adopted a resolution expressing its "thanks and appreciation to Mr. Weatherlow for his unswerving devotion to the interests of the University, his tactful cooperation with management and Faculty, and his efficient and effective service." The Weatherlows plan to live in Ithaca several years. Jules B. Weatherlow '33 is their son.

High spot of the Reunion for me was unquestionably the Alumni - Faculty

Round Table. Scheduled from 4 to 5:15, it actually lasted until 5:50, due to animated questions from the audience, and was the most authoritative, penetrating, spirited, sparkling discussion of the sort I ever heard. It held spellbound an audience of 98 persons (an exact count from a visiting fireman with a passion for figures).

Professor Herbert W. Briggs, Government, who, as chairman of the panel set the stage very nicely and then let the other members largely carry the ball, said next day it was the finest he had ever participated in. Perhaps the responsiveness of the audience had something to do with it. Especially Professor Knight Biggerstaff, Far Eastern Studies, who recently returned from three months behind the Iron Curtain in China, and Professor Edward H. Litchfield, Business and Public Administration, who came to us last January after four years in Germany as director of civil affairs under General Clay, were revelling in the freedom to speak the truth as practiced on the Cornell Campus and let themselves go. At any rate, it was a scintillating performance in which we got down-to-earth, non-deluded, yet positive information from experts.

Subject was Soviet-United States Antagonisms Around the World. I think the best way to give you a feel of the mental banquet is to follow my notes in a play-by-play description. Professor Briggs introduced the subject and the panel and pointed out the inflexibility of the new balance of power. Americans tend to feel balance-of-power politics distasteful. There used to be more units than now, eight world powers at the time of World War I. Now there are only two super-powers and we must learn how to deal with the fact. Power alliances have been notoriously uncertain and undependable in the past. China's recent shift has made very little difference, as China is a great power by courtesy only.

He then called on the fourth expert, Professor R. Lauriston Sharp, Sociology and Anthropology, recently returned from a year in Siam, to discuss Indo-China. He took a look at the "pat answers" that are current. There is a fear of seepage of communism from China and there are important strategic considerations. The French have been in control since 1860; under them the land has become richer, but the natives no more so, although there is not the grinding poverty of China and India. The natives have picked up a good many French liberal ideas. A nationalist movement has been in existence for fifty years, but was no real threat before World War II. There has been bitter fighting since 1945. The Viet Nam controls most of the countryside. Ho Chi Min is primarily a nationalist. There is an economic stalemate. The US hands-off policy won us no friends up to last summer, then we reinforced the French with Bao Dai. The anti-French have now turned North for support, in hope of improvement.

Briggs then quoted Secretary Acheson's statement that since 1945, 500 million people had won independence, then called on Biggerstaff.

Professor Biggerstaff traced the history of the Chinese communists since 1921, how they had been in and out of the governing coalition. Neither Chang nor the communists trusted each other. The nationalists were corrupt and unpopular and were entirely out by the end of 1949, with very little fighting. The "People's Democratic Dictatorship" (what a contradiction of terms!) has a program of distribution of land from the big owners, and a united government of farmers, small business, and labor. It is encouraging capitalism for the time being, with real Marxism eventually to come. Until now, the communists have given honesty in government and there is almost universal acquiescence; while not universally popular, there is no effective competition outside of Formosa and its little group of irreconcilables. The communists can paint in only black or white: the peace-loving communists and war-mongering America. The Chinese have never liked the Russians. Since they were not put into power by the Russians, there is a possibility that eventually they will find that they cannot accept the Russian line in toto, but they will stay in the Russian camp for some time, if the Russians don't push them too hard.

Professor Litchfield pointed out that Germany departs from the pattern of inflexibility just traced, that it is still touch-and-go there. If the West had lost Germany and the Ruhr, it could hardly have a viable economy; the loss of Germany could tip the scale politically, militarily, and economically. He traced Russia's actuation. The first phase was in 1945, the Yalta epoch, quadrupite control, everything happy, until they saw that Germany was not going to cooperate. They then shifted to an attempt to bring on economic chaos, with the hope of a coup. We helped, with the Morgenthau plan. Second phase, after we had given up the Morgenthau approach, was to change their tactics to consolidating their gains in East Germany. Thirty per cent of the industrial resources of East Germany are now owned by Moscow. They have purged officials and appointed trusty new ones with life tenure; they have permeated the schools, have established the People's Police, and have created monopolies in each big field. Our side reluctantly countered by an effort to rehabilitate West Germany, establishing Bizonia, and now the Bonn Republic, with its fifty million inhabitants. This gives two crystallized areas. Third phase is the communist effort to use East Germany as a means of penetrating the West, meanwhile consolidating their hold east of the Elbe line and increasing pressure on Berlin. The Soviets are unhappy about Berlin because it is a source of intelligence for us, a showcase for the West (the recent auto show was a veritable revelation), and a jumping-off place for propaganda. Acheson's policy is basically sound. A third force is building up in Western Europe. Germany would like to dominate it, but we must see to it that she doesn't, perhaps even by balancing her by England's and our giving up part of our own sovereignty.

Active questions and discussion followed. Biggerstaff said that the China famine had been severe, but that they had been remarkably successful in restoring communications. Also, the communists could shift some of the blame for conditions to bombing.

Litchfield was asked if the Germans could be trusted to form a buffer state. He pulled no punches on that; said that German (and Russian) culture traditionally accepts authoritarianism. The people who are running Germany are like those who had their chance in the Weimar Republic. The young people are held down. The Nazis were little different from the previous authoritarians. Adenauer is not a democrat. He agreed with an '05 man that our hope is to push the idea that the state is made for man, not man for the state; that democracy is more than the duty of the individual to his family, the minister to his congregation, the civil servant to the regime, the worker to his union. He closed on a note of hope, that we may have a real Western Europe, one that Germany cannot dominate nor destroy as does one bad apple in a barrel, and that there is a gambler's chance that Germany can be changed.

I still glow over the affair; don't even regret being dragged away in the middle of the thirteen-inning baseball game in which we eventually beat Colgate!

St. Louis Officers

Cornell Club of St. Louis, Mo., held its annual outing and election dinner at the Algonquin Country Club, June 2. Officers elected are Joseph E. Griesedieck '40, president; Stephen S. Adams, Jr., '41, vice-president; John E. Gaston '39, secretary; and Edwin R. Culver III '42, treasurer.

Colorado Reorganizes

First postwar meeting of the Cornell Club of Colorado was May 17 at the University Club in Denver. More than 125 alumni, wives, and husbands were present for dinner, motion pictures, and a speech by Asa S. Knowles, Vice-President for University development. A special guest was University Trustee and New Mexican rancher Albert K. Mitchell '17, who accompanied Knowles at speaking engagements in the Southwest.

Frank J. Haberl, Jr. '47 of Denver was elected president of the Club for next year. Marshall M. Koch '13 was elected vice-president; Tozier Brown '43, secretary; and Donald M. Robinson '19, treasurer. Helen Wachob '48 was chosen a special vice-president for women's functions of the Club. Adolph Coors III '37 was appointed chairman of the Greater Cornell Fund campaign for Colorado. Elected to the executive committee were Alfred S. Procter '87, Harry C. Davis '91, Caldwell Martin '06, Benjamin S. Galland '10, Robert W. Hendee '17, Dr. A. Donald Rankin '39, and John W. Borhman, Jr. '41.

Loberg '29 Heads Sibley

Professor Harry J. Loberg '29 head of the Department of Industrial and Engineering Administration since 1946, becomes July 1 Director of Sibley School of Mechanical Engineering. He has been Acting Director since Professor W. Julian King resigned last year to go to the University of California at Los Angeles.

Director Loberg came to the University in 1927 after three years at the US Naval Academy and received the ME in 1929. He was successively sales engineer with The Norton Co. in Worcester, Mass., and production manager of Tyler Fixture Co., Niles, Mich.; returned as instructor in 1934, and with a McMullen Graduate Scholarship received the MS in Eng in 1936. He directed for the University the Navy Diesel and steam engine training schools on the Campus from 1943-45 and was appointed professor in 1946. In 1948-49, as director of training for the National Machine Tool Builders' Association, he organized courses for the industry's sales engineers, here and elsewhere, and wrote a text on Machine Tool Selling, published by McGraw Hill Book Co. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta, Tau Beta Pi, and Phi Kappa Phi.

Fill Endowed Chairs

Board of Trustees at its June 12 meeting appointed four members of the Faculty to endowed professorships.

Professor Gustavus A. Robinson, now seventy and emeritus professor of Law since last summer, was appointed William Nelson Cromwell Professor of International Law. He takes the place of Professor Arthur E. Sutherland, Jr., who was to have assumed the chair at its establishment July 1, but who has now joined the Harvard law school faculty. The professorship is endowed with a bequest for the Law School of more than $250,000 from the estate of the late William N. Cromwell, who died July 19, 1948. Cromwell, a graduate of Columbia, was senior partner in the New York City law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, in which University Trustee Arthur H. Dean '19 is a partner. Professor Robinson, a member of the Faculty since 1929, is an authority on admiralty law. He served as admiralty consultant to the Lend Lease Administration during World War II and his book, Admiralty Law in the United States, has been placed on all US ships by the Maritime Commission. He continued to teach his course on admiralty law this year.

New Andrew Dickson White Professor of Architecture is Frederick M. Wells '26, chairman of the Department of Design in the College of Architecture. He succeeds Professor A. Duncan Seymour, Jr., who retires July 1. Professor Wells received the BArch in 1927 and returned in 1944 as acting associate professor of Architecture after twelve years with architectural firms in New York City and several years as senior architectural engineer of the US Navy Department. He was promoted to professor in 1948. The White Professorship Endowment was established in 1923 by a gift of $125,000 from Edward S. Harkness, Yale '97, to the Semi-Centennial Endowment Fund.

Professor Paul W. Gates was appointed to the Goldwin Smith Professorship of American History, established in 1911 through the will of Goldwin Smith and vacant since the retirement of Professor Julian P. Bretz in 1944. Professor Gates came to Cornell ten years ago and has been chairman of the Department of History since 1946. He is the author of several books and president of the Agricultural History Society. This year he has been on leave to work under a Guggenheim Fellowship on an agricultural history of the United States from 1815-1860.

Appointed Susan Linn Sage Professor of Psychology is Robert B. MacLeod, who came here in 1948 as professor of Psychology and head of the Department. The chair, established in 1890 by the Board of Trustees, was held by Professor Karl M. Dallenbach, PhD '13, before he went to the University of Texas in 1948. Professor MacLeod was formerly chairman of the department of psychology and education at Swarthmore College and department chairman and director of the psychology laboratory at McGill University.

Another appointment to an endowed professorship announced earlier is that of Professor Arthur E. Murphy, chairman of Philosophy, to a Susan Linn Sage Professorship of Philosophy. The chair is one of three established in honor of his wife by Henry Williams Sage, a principal benefactor of the University and chairman of the Board of Trustees from 1874 until his death in 1897. Dr. Murphy was an assistant professor at Cornell in 1928-29 and returned in 1945 as a professor. He is president of the eastern division of the American Philosophical Association, author of The Uses of Reason, a co-author of Philosophy in American Education, editor of the Prentice-Hall Philosophy Series and G. H. Mead's The Philosophy of the Present, and editor of the quarterly Philosophical Review published by the Sage School Philosophy at Cornell.

Candidates Register Early

The Office of Admissions has one request for application blanks for a prospective student sixteen years hence, under a plan recently instituted for notifying possible candidates at the proper time, says the new Associate Director, Robert W. Storandt '40. More than 500 have thus far asked for application blanks for 1951, which will go to them next October; ninety-four preliminary cards have been received for 1952; twenty-seven for 1953; and fifteen for blanks for the following years through 1966.

The Admissions Office points out that filing of these preliminary applications merely assures that the candidate will be mailed the necessary entrance forms at the proper time: about October of the senior year of secondary school. No priority is given for date of preliminary application in selecting eligible candidates. Admissions officers suggest that boys and girls who hope to enter Cornell study the catalogs of the University early in their secondary school courses, to be sure their studies will satisfy the requirements for entrance.

Washington Club Officers

Cornell Club of Washington, D. C., has elected Howard B. Noyes '27 president for 1950-51. Other officers are Edward D. Hill '23, first vice-president; Ralph L. Hill, Jr. '31, second vice-president; Adelbert P. Mills '36, corresponding secretary; Bernard W. Graham '43, recording secretary; and Robert B. Garabrant '22, treasurer. New directors are Louis C. Boochever '12, Samuel Rosey '15, Felix E. Spurney '23, and John G. Tausig '38, retiring president.

On the Campus and Down the Hill

3 South Avenue, home of Professor Walter F. Willcox, Economics, Emeritus, since 1902 and, before that, of Francis M. Burdick, professor of Law from 1887-91, has been bought by the University and will be demolished to make way for the projected Materials and Metallurgy Laboratory of the College of Engineering.

President Emeritus Edmund E. Day was presented on Commencement Day with a leather-bound copy of a book containing tributes to him at his retirement from the Trustees, Faculty and students, and published editorials. A foreword by Whitman Daniels, Assistant to the President, notes that the book "is the product of the thought, effort and generosity of Louis Hollander, Trustee of Cornell University, and the organizations with which he is associated." A copy of the book will be deposited in the University Library. Alumni may obtain copies from Daniels.

Lehigh Valley night train to New York City and Philadelphia, Pa., now leaves Ithaca fifteen minutes earlier. The new 11:49 p.m. departure, daylight saving time, went into effect June 25.

Winner of the 1950 Luana L. Messenger Memorial Prize of $220 is Robert W. Corrigan '50 for his essay "The Development of Theology in the Renaissance as Measured by Dante's Divine Comedy and Milton's Paradise Lost." Endowed by the late Hiram J. Messenger, Jr. '80, the prize is offered annually for the best research and thought in the field of human progress or the evolution of civilization.

Three students from the University are living with European families this summer under the auspices of the Experiment in International Living. Carolyn D. Miller '51 and Patricia A. Berkner '52 will go to France and Richard H. Hillsley '53 will live in Germany.

Law Quarterly staff for 1950-51 is headed by Felix G. Liebmann '51 as editor-in-chief. Managing editor is Kenneth L. Estabrook '49 and business manager is Theodore G. Brichze '49.

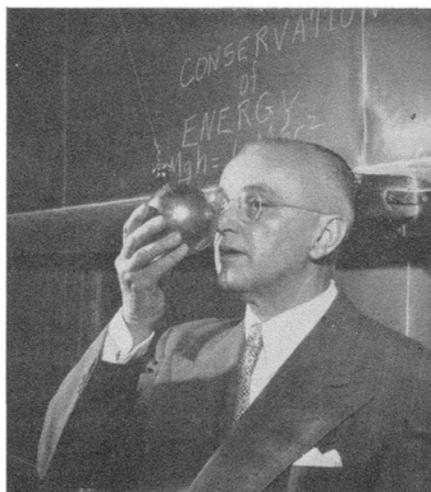

Iwelfth annual New York State Nutrition Institute brought some seventy-five persons engaged in nutrition education to the College of Home Economics, June 13-15. Among the speakers were David Lubbock, chief of the Food Consumption and Utilization Branch, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations; Mrs. Katherine E. Flack, director of nutrition services for the Food Service Training School of the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene; Director Leonard A. Maynard, PhD '15, of the school of Nutrition; Dr. Norman S. Moore '23, Clinical and Preventive Medicine; Professors Hazel Hauck and Catherine J. Personius, PhD '37, Food and Nutrition; Professor Clive M. McCay, Nutrition; and Professor Royden C. Braithwaite, Child Development and Family Relationships.

Continuous Reunioner Arrey Doerffling '01 returned this year with his usual supply of pennies to drop into the beer mugs of alumni celebrators.

Savage Club of Ithaca has elected R. Selden Brewer '40, Alumni Field Secretary, president for 1950-51. Professors George S. Butts '25 and Elmer S. Phillips '32, Extension Teaching and Information, were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively. Edward H. Sargent '39 is the new steward.

Scott Hyde, barber in Willard Straight Hall for the last twenty-three years, died in Ithaca, June 11, after a long illness.

"Histrionic Prof"—Under that heading, Life magazine for June 12 prints a letter from Charles H. Barnett '43 about Professor Guy E. Grantham, PhD '20, Physics, who is pictured above starting his demonstration of the law of conservation of energy with an iron pendulum suspended from the ceiling. Barnett writes: "He would stand at one side of the room and, holding the ball just in contact with his nose, let it go. The heavy ball swung across the room, paused, and swooped back. The professor stood immobile and unperturbed, secure in his superior knowledge of physics, while we freshmen sat goggle-eyed. The heavy mass came on and stopped only a fraction of an inch from the professorial nose. Even those who were flunking the course sighed in audible relief."

1925 Class pipe found in his orchard has been sent by Edward D. Munn of North East, Pa., to Alumni Field Secretary R. Selden Brewer '40. It is in good shape and the insignia C25 is in good condition. The owner may write Brewer at 18 East Avenue, Ithaca.

Forty-five Air Force Reserve research and development officers from the engineering division of the Air Materiel Command at Wright Field, Ohio, inspected the University's research projects in engineering and allied fields, June 24-25. They were taken on tours of Floyd Newman Laboratory of Nuclear Studies, the Graduate School of Aeronautical Engineering, the Diesel Engineering Laboratory, and the radio astronomy and ionosphere research stations. Vice-president for Research Theodore P. Wright described the University's research program, Professor Donald J. Belcher, Civil Engineering, gave a talk on the interpretation of ground characteristics from aerial photographs, and Professor Dennis G. Shepherd, Mechanical Engineering, discussed jet propulsion. Arrangements for the visit were in charge of Professor William J. Skinner, Mechanical Engineering, a first lieutenant in the Air Force Reserve.

Student Council, organizing for next year, elected Jack R. Vinson '51, president. Vice-presidents are Harry B. Coyle, Jr. '52 and Sally E. Williamson '51. William W. Bulger '51 is secretary and John C. Lankenau '51 is treasurer.

Reunion exhibit in the lobby of the University Library contained mementos of early and Reunion Classes through '25. Included in the glass-covered cases were pictures of athletic teams and Faculty, Masque and other programs, banquet menus, the hymn card used in 1880 before hymn books were purchased for Sage Chapel, and a leaflet "Advantages of Lady Students at Cornell University." Physical development of the University was briefly traced with pictures, the first a drawing of the "proposed university" and the last an aerial view of the Campus today. Mrs. Edith M. Fox '32, Curator of the Collection of Regional History, who arranged the display, says that many alumni expressed interest in the exhibit and promised to send her material of historical interest.

Senior Week issue of the Sun, June 9, included in its sixteen pages the names of all those receiving undergraduate or advanced degrees this June, and schedules of Commencement and Reunion events.

The Faculty

A study to decide what general education all students in State University of New York should receive is being conducted in regional meetings under the general chairmanship of President Emeritus Edmund E. Day, consultant on general education to the State University.

A Cornell nutrition experiment among 223 Groton families was described in an article by Trustee H. Edward Babcock in Country Gentleman for May. Babcock is an editorial consultant to the magazine.

Mrs. Edna May Rogers, widow of Professor Fred Rogers '13, Design, died May 22. Her husband was on the Faculty from 1914 until his death, October 2, 1949. She lived at 110 West Court Street, Ithaca.

Professor George C. Kent, Plant Pathology, was appointed Department head, effective July 1.

A leader of "Rural Citizens for Good Government," a Republican State committee agency, is Professor Martha Eddy, Home Economics, Emeritus.

Edward K. Graham, PhD '38, former University Secretary, takes office July 1, as chancellor of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He left Cornell in 1947 to become assistant dean of faculties at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., and became dean of faculties there last July. His mother was the late Susan Moses '03.

A bulletin, "Reorganization for National Security," by Professor Elias Huzar, Government, has been issued by the School of Business and Public Administration as the first in a series, "Publications in Business and Public Administration." The bulletin, an analysis of the armed forces unification program, was reprinted from the Journal of Politics.

Professor M. Gardner Clark, Industrial and Labor Relations, received the PhD of Harvard in June. His thesis discussed some economic problems of Soviet iron and steel industry.

John Reps, M Reg Pl '47, of Binghamton, who has been lecturer in City Planning in the College of Architecture this year, will study city and regional planning at the University of London during 1950-51 on a Fulbright Award. He is executive secretary of the Broome County Planning Commission.

The honorary DSc was conferred on Professor Peter Debye, Chemistry, June 11 at St. Lawrence University, Canton.

Captain Charles W. Gray, USN, (above) professor of Naval Science and commanding officer of the Naval ROTC, left June 13 for duty at the Navy Department in Washington. A graduate of the US Naval Academy, he commanded submarine units in Pacific and Alaskan operations during World War II and was commanding officer of the submarine base at New London, Conn., before coming to Cornell in 1947.

Clinton M. Ritchie, Jr., associate director of CURW, was ordained an elder at the Central New York Methodist Church conference in Canandaigua.

WHCU staff and guests honored Michael R. Hanna, June 3, the tenth anniversary of his appointment as general manager of the station, at a picnic supper at Mt. Pleasant Lodge. A recording of congratulations, assembled by Joseph Short, assistant manager in charge of production, was played. On it were messages from Acting President Cornelis W. de Kiewiet, Trustee H. Edward Babcock, Romeyn Berry '04, President Leonard Job of Ithaca College, and Superintendent of Ithaca Schools Claude L. Kulp, AM '30. Hanna was elected, June 9, secretary of the board of Empire State FM School of the Air.

Professor David Hyatt, public relations director for the School of Industrial and Labor Relations since July, 1948, left June 1 for Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co., Hartford, Conn., where he is in public relations work.

A study of the Navaho language will be made this summer by David L. Olmsted '45, teaching fellow in the Division of Modern Languages. After making an analysis of the language, in conjunction with Cornell anthropologists at Fruitland, N. Mex., Olmsted will prepare elementary lessons in Navaho for the use of Government and other workers. He has a fellowship from the American Council of Learned Societies.

The honorary DSc was conferred, May 29, on Professor Paul J. Flory, Chemistry, by Manchester College, North Manchester, Ind., his alma mater.

Loretta E. Klee, AM '43, Education, director of social studies in the Ithaca schools, is in Germany this summer as a US specialist in education on a State Department grant. She and other American educators will join European teachers in making a curriculum for German schools. She is chairman of the Tompkins County branch, American Association for the United Nations.

Honorary degrees were awarded to Professor Hans A. Bethe, Physics, and Leroy R. Grumman '16, chairman of Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute commencement, June 14. Speaker was Theodore P. Wright, University Vice-president for Research.

Professor Carlton C. Murdock, PhD '19, Physics, has been re-elected Dean of the University Faculty.

Henry B. Hansteen is professor of electrical engineering at City College of New York. He resigned as professor of Electrical Engineering here at the end of the fall term.

Mention in Time of Professor Arthur A. Allen '07, Ornithology, and the bristled-thighed curlew started a mad chain of events. A whimsical Time writer had added a footnote, distinguishing the curlew from the tufted dowager, all-night thrasher, ruffled spouse, or double-breasted seersucker. Then Time got letters from bird lovers (or haters) suggesting more names. Finally it exploited the idea, illustrating an advertising leaflet with "doodles" of such brave new birds as the great bald ego, the weekend bat, and the no left tern.

Professor Donald W. Baker '29, Veterinary Parasitology, leaves July 1 for a year's work in Peru, Haiti, Costa Rica, and Paraguay. He is a livestock specialist in parasite control for the Institute for Inter-American Affairs.

One of the six Harvard Mountaineers Club members planning to climb the unscaled peak of Mt. Carnicero in the Peruvian Andes is George I. Bell, teaching assistant in Physics.

Dr. Charles M. Carpenter '17, who taught in the Veterinary College from 1923-28, was one of thirteen alumni of the University of Rochester awarded special citations at its centennial convocation, June 10. After getting the DVM, MS, and PhD at Cornell, he earned the MD at Rochester in 1933 and was associate professor of bacteriology there from 1933-48. He is now professor of infectious diseases and chairman of the department in the school of medicine at University of California at Los Angeles.

TO REUNION CLASSES:

More Reunion group pictures and individual Class reports will appear in the next (September) issue of the News. Limited space prevents printing them all this time. Reports from Class secretaries or Reunion chairmen will be received for the September issue until August 14.

'90 Reunion—The big event of the Class of '90 was the fact that a grand total of eight out of the seventy-one who are supposed to be still alive returned for our Sixty-year Reunion. John F. Skinner of Glendale, Cal., came the greatest distance. Those who returned are now looking forward to being again with you young alumni at our Seventy-year Reunion. We who returned are a sturdy bunch and we all had a wonderful time. William Dalton of Schenectady, our Reunion chairman, wrote many letters to Classmates and made personal calls in his endeavor to have them return.

—A. C. Burnett, Class secretary

'95 Reunion—Our Class banner hung above the entrance of Prudence Risley Hall where we were handsomely housed and feted.

Twenty-eight men and two women of the Class of '95 celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of its Commencement: Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Andrews, Ithaca; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Atkinson, South Laguna, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Babcock, Upper Montclair, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Blake, Brooklyn; Harry J.

Clark, Syracuse; W. C. Dreier, Haddonfield, N.J.; C. C. Egbert, Niagara Falls; F. J. Emeny, Salem, Ohio; E. W. Firth, Jamaica; Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Greene, Milford, Conn.; R. H. Haskell, Brooklyn; R. H. Keys, Jackson Heights; Nathan D. Lapham, Geneva; J. A. McCarrroll, Mystic, Conn.; C. M. Marsh, Poughkeepsie; Mrs. Mary Martin Ashley and G. H. Ashley '89, Harrisburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Orton, Jackson Heights; Mrs. Eloise Osmond Tailby and Geo. W. Tailby '06 Ithaca; W. E. Schenck and Eleanor C. Hay, Madison, N.J.; A. S. R. Smith, Chesterton, Ind.; M. B. Palmer, Syracuse; Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Patterson and grandson, Dunkirk; Ellis L. Phillips, New York City; C. P. Stoops, Owego; Hugh C. Troy, Ithaca; Ernest A. Truran, East Wareham, Mass.; J. W. Vickery, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. George E. Waesche, Glen Ridge, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Wells, Canandaigua; Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Williams, New York City.

Greetings were sent by sixty others through the Class secretary, W. E. Schenck, who compiled an interesting album of their letters and recent photographs. The long-distance award went to the Class president, Billy Atkinson, who had motored 3300 miles from California. The short-distance award went fifty-fifty to Professors Emeriti Andrews and Troy, who have devoted their lives to the University and still live nearby.

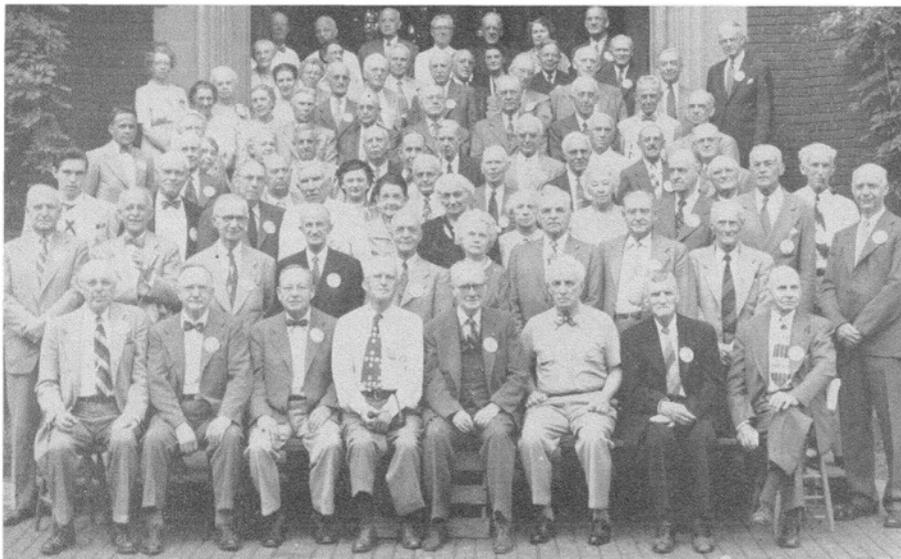

Harry J. Clark, Class Alumni Fund representative, in reporting gave statistics of the Class. Of the 350 Freshmen who entered the University in 1891, 55 of the 163 who graduated in 1895 are living; only 38 of the 187 non-graduates are living. Of the 65 who graduated in the College of Law in 1895, only 17 are living. Of the 94 others who became members of the Class, 27 are living. The total living is 137, the total dead, 372. Our oldest member is almost 85 and our youngest is almost 75. We have reached the stage where we must live well by the day and let the years roll on. Our Class photograph will show that we are doing so.

Our Class dinner, with an almost perfect attendance, climaxed another memorable occasion—our Fifty-five-year Reunion.

—William F. Atkinson

'00 Reunion—With fifty years of experience in life since they graduated, the members seemed more definitely than ever before really to come of age in the appreciation of old friends and the quality of education received at Cornell. Certainly, the responses to Reunion opportunities never came so freely and assistance never was so generously offered and voluntarily put to use as by the members of 1900 in the past year.

With more than half their entering Class still alive and such a combination of experience, education, and friendship it is no wonder that they took the Championship Cup for the percentage attending. Incidentally, evidence that two old friends were not forgotten was shown by the election to honorary membership in the Class of Jack Moakley and Dean Kimball, both of whom began their wonderful service for Cornell while the Class of 1900 were students.

Similar honor was also extended to President Emeritus Edmund E. Day, the last of those enthusiastically elected. Before he responded, Toastmaster Terry McGovern referred to the example Dr. Day has afforded of how a University President may best serve his nation and the world, namely, by first sensing the problems confronting mankind, and then, by conscientious and wise effort within his own institution, developing such outstandingly constructive means of meeting those problems.

Speaking more intimately but in the same inspired and inspiring vein as at the ensuing Alumni Rally, Dr. Day told of his decision, more than a score of years ago, to devote his life to education, as the field most fundamental and rewarding. He recounted, with a penetration and appreciation which few alumni could approach, the unique opportunities at Cornell that led him to undertake the Presidency, and expressed with fervor his faith in Cornell's continuing strength and high service.

With mingled gravity and optimism he noted where man's effort has brought society thus far and what lies ahead. Since 1900, unimaginable speed of travel has been attained; but are we sure of our direction? Intercommunication among peoples on the globe has attained split-second magic; but what messages of real import have we to convey? Progressive research has culminated in mastery of atomic energy; but do we understand how to employ this vast power for constructive and benign ends? There can be only one way, he said, to deal with such questions. Education must be deliberately shaped to keep man's motives and spirit fully abreast of his astounding scientific and technological advances. And he voiced deep confidence that discovery of a proper balance would come through the fully-marshalled forces of education, including the profound influences of home and church. Cornell University, he averred, is uniquely fitted, in its democratic origin and standards, pioneering spirit, and consecration to service, to contribute immeasurably toward attainment of the fuller, richer life all mankind yearns for.

And then our parting summary to each other: "See you again in five years."

'10 Women's Reunion—Reunion began for the 1910 women's acting secretary with an unscheduled committee meeting with two members of the 1910 men's Reunion team on the plane from Newark Airport. Returning to Balch after a trip to the Alumni Office to collect the Class banner and other property of 1910 which "Polly" Schmid has been kind enough to preserve for us since the passing of our very capable life secretary, Anna Fielden Grace, we were greeted by two more Classmates, Dr. Marion Collins and Elizabeth Van Denburgh. Life became immediately much simpler, for a Buick Dynaflo is much more efficient transportation on this extended Campus than the shanks mares we depended upon in 1910! Between dinner and dark, that Buick carried us on a very thorough non-conducted tour, including calls on old friends and viewing the sunset over Cayuga from a perfect vantage point well beyond the Heights, where new houses and shrubbery blot out the favorite view of forty years ago.

At midnight, we welcomed Madeleine Renold Hunter, all the way from Gorsey Brow, Moberley, Cheshire, England, and early Friday, Esther Toor Rosedale from California. A good number enjoyed the cocktail hour with the men of 1910 at Sage (the worm has turned). When alumni-Senior singing came around, eighteen of eighty-five living women of 1910 were feeling the good green grass of the Quadrangle under their feet. In addition to those mentioned were Linda Utter Allen, Sara Burns Harter, Edith Munsell Hartnagle, Lydia F. Humphreys, Beatrice Eschner Landman, M. Anne McNamara, A. Grace Mekeel, Dora Cohn Sanderson, Fanny G. Selden, Catharine Allen Sharp, Ruth I. Stone, Sara C. Walsh, and Helen R. Wansboro.

1910 was the first Senior Class to escape from the Warden of Sage and walk in freedom with an Advisor of Women, a step toward the more dignified life under a Dean of Women. And our first Advisor was Mrs. Gertrude Shorb Martin, PhD '00, who came all the way from her busy life as a lecturer on public affairs in Sarasota, Fla., to reunite with "her girls of Sage." We wish we could really show our appreciation for her interest and wisdom, at the all-Cornell Women's breakfast, at our informal gatherings, and at the family roundtable which concluded our banquet at the new Statler Hall, Saturday evening. Right now, the smartest thing is to put her name and address in our Class file, for we are sure she will reunite with the best of us for many years, and keep ahead of us as she did this June!

Class of '10 Women at Forty-year Reunion

Fenner

The Class meeting, scheduled after the Glee Club and Dramatic Club shows Friday evening, was called to order very early Saturday morning by the life president, Catharine Allen Sharp. Officers elected for five years were Catharine Sharp, president; Isabel Shepard Darville, secretary-treasurer; Helen Wansboro, assistant secretary; and Dora Sanderson, Class representative for the Alumni Fund. All Classmates residing in Ithaca at the time of the next Reunion constitute a Reunion committee to work with the Class officers.

Women of 1910 did not come back in great numbers, but they came with a spirit of co-operation that has drawn these members closer together. They missed the ones who have gone before and those unable to meet with us, and were most thankful for all the messages sent through the acting secretary. They missed the Campus open spaces; but what must be, must be. Forty years brings changes in our world and in ourselves, but it also brings tolerance and an inner appreciation of great and good things. We like to feel that we had a deeper sensitivity to the meaning of Dr. Day's retiring speech than the youngsters of 1950. We had worked our way through the years from the farthest corner of the auditorium not only to a vantage point for seeing excellently, but to one of a richer spiritual insight.

We cannot close without thanking Pauline J. Schmid '25, Assistant Alumni Secretary, and her staff for their share in making the Forty-year Reunion of the women of 1910 a most memorable one.

—Isabel Shepard Darville

'16 PhD—William Kirk resigned June 15 as assistant general manager of the DuPont organic chemical department. He will be advisor to the general manager until January 1, when he will retire after thirty-four years with the company. He lives at 1301 Gilpin Avenue, Wilmington, Del.

'16 ME—Walter Sturrock (above) has been elected president of the Illuminating Engineering Society. He is head of the engineering publications section of the General Electric lamp department at Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio, where he started to work the year he graduated. A lecturer at Case Institute of Technology and author of numerous technical papers, he was lighting counselor in Washington, D.C., during World War II. His work as an engineer officer in World War I gained him a citation from General Pershing. The Sturrocks, who have two children, live at 15002 Terrace Road, East Cleveland, Ohio. Other Cornellians of the former Ithaca family are James Sturrock, Jr. '13, Dr. Alexander P. Sturrock '17, Dr. John Sturrock '18, and Mrs. Theodore E. Thompson (Elizabeth Sturrock) '30.

ways, New York State Department of Public Works. Home: 124 Maple Street, Black River.

'20 Men—Following the spirit of our Class yell—"Give them Hell, give them plenty—Cornell Nineteen-twenty," 119 men registered for our first real Reunion. Every five years something has plagued the Class. But in 1948 a group met to dish out the jobs and has met every two months since to organize this Reunion.

As all history is recorded through the eyes of the writer, I will note my personal sensations.

Reaching Ithaca about midnight Wednesday, with Stew Solomon and his cameras, we found Kelly Sachs and Don Blanke in from Hartford with a calliope. Don asked us down to the Delta Phi house, where we met Major Gus Maury '15, in from Austin, Tex., in a jet—1600 miles in four hours—his first return in thirty years. Next morning I had breakfast at Willard Straight, then up to the "Ad" Building where Bailey and Blanchard of '10 announced they expected 150. We'll beat that number in 1960!

We moved into the dorms and found the uniforms, shipped by Doug Shustek. Eddie Cadiz, housing chairman, appeared. Then Jeff Kilbourne invited us to his place north of Ithaca for charcoal broiled steaks. Silent Mark King was there from North Carolina. Thanks to Tom Hurlburt, raised in these parts, we found the way. At the picnic were Gordon Mackenzie, Walt Archibald, Hal Fishbeck, Spike Livingston, and Oby Davison '21 (just poaching for next year), along with Don Meikle. Back at the dorms, we found Irv Fletcher and Al Stoltz '18 from Connecticut, Bennie Benisch with our dough, and Stan Smith, who handled our publicity. Then we located our tent and got the calliope installed.

Friday morning we met the early Lehigh and the New York crowd: Red Ashton, Bill Colvin, Don Leith, Dud Nostrand, Jack Meadow, Joe Diamant, Doug Shustek, Dick Edson, Paul Raymer, and maybe some more. Dr. Iler was there with his Packard station wagon; used to be an Austin.

Net Baer, then Walt A. and Walt D. Baer checked in. Recognizing Johnnie "Fish Hook" Pflueger wasn't hard, but Dave Geiger was 'til we heard the voice. Johnnie McClatchy, Jimmie Harper, Ben Fishman, Al Doegling, Ed Fritz we knew from other Reunions; Don Hoagland, Lou Green, Rog Rogers, Lee Tyler, Charlie Walworth, and Floyd White had to be introduced. There were Pat Collum, Dwight Ranno, Bill Rurde, and Walt Voisenet (with a Frosh son). Jesse Cooper and Phil Munisteri exchanged greetings. Ed Knauss breezed in; his son ran the '45 Reunion. Tommy Reese and George Stanton warmed up to Les Townsend, our resident member.

By noon the Bagpipers were off to meet the western contingent—DeLos "Mc" and Johnnie MacDonald from Iowa, Orv Daily, Ralph Huszach, Bill Covington, Sam Alt-house, Emil Kline, Lloyd Kelly, Les Merrick, Chet Weinkeimer, Johnnie Shuler, Al Perrine. Who showed up but Sam Wolkind from Niagara Falls, Kirk Reid, Stan Reich, and Bob Purdy? Blondy Oates, Ted Plass, and Mather Wright broadened the State representation.

At lunch Ed Davenport, Heavy Chamberlain, Irv Fletcher, and Johnnie MacDonald reminisced about rowing. Jack Atwood, our former baseball manager, told everyone how we'd beat Colgate that afternoon. Red Ashton found himself introducing Uncle Kay Mayer, our president, to the Class. At headquarters, we added Glen Curtis, Deyo Johnson, Bill Karg, Slim Mertz, "Two-grandchildren" Millstein, Dud Merrill, Sam Coombs, Frat Fratandouono, Jack Israel, Cort Donaldson, and Tom Chiavetta to our list. Saturday at dawn, Wallie Duncan announced he was going back to New York: big program Sunday on Station WPIX.

How grandchildren's pictures came out when the green-clad girls mingled with the red-shirted men! Who do you think has five? Ethel Faulhaber!

Did you get any lunch? You're lucky, brother—we had to get our picture taken. (Write Selly Brewer, Alumni Office, for a copy; nominal charge.)

At the track meet, Russ Schuh and Bob Hunt, both from Westchester, made Pat Wanzer and Max Schmitt proud (Pat is a governor and Max is president of our Westchester Club.) At the clambake, Jeff Kilbourne did his best to shoo away bar flies or clam hounds. Then the Rally—Ralph H. and Whit were ready to dance.

Kelly Sachs really did a job on the music, and in spite of what he says I think we should mention it. And you never saw a guy work harder than Stew Solomon taking pictures—telephoto, third dimension, and candid.

It was a perfect day to leave—and do you think I wanted to? You who couldn't make it, just remember we missed you and I know you missed us. Let's get to Ithaca more often and in those Cornell Clubs at home.—Ho Ballou

'20 Women—The Class of 1920 women had a Reunion that exceeded expectations, with fifty Classmates from Alabama, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Washington, and New England.

One highlight was the Alumni-Faculty Round Table on current events. The Class hopes this feature will be continued. It was a stimulating experience to hear experts from Cornell give their interesting interpretations. The women returned from a tour of the Campus enthusiastic about the trip and their guide, Donald Kerr '12. Good work, Don!

Top event was the Class dinner Saturday evening, the only time the Class was together as a group. Marcia McCartney Howell was mistress of ceremonies and speakers were Dean E. Lee Vincent, whom we adopted as an honorary member in 1947; Lois Curtis Osborn '16, who has always been close to '20; and our Trustee Mary Donlon '20.

It is a pleasure to report that Marcia McCartney Howell will continue to be Alumni News correspondent and Alice Callahan Jensen, Alumni Fund representative.

The Class is grateful to those in the University who planned so well for the comfort and entertainment of the alumnae. Many of the women said, "We won't miss the next one." And we're sure they won't.

'30 Women's Reunion—Starting with the arrival on Thursday night of early birds Rose Margolin Fishkin and Marion Murphy, the 1930 women, fifty-five strong, took over the third floor of Clara Dickson. From then 'til the exodus started Sunday morning, there was never a free moment. We did all the usual things—Glee Club, Dramatic Club, Women's Breakfast, Dr. de Kiewiet's address, Barton Hall lunch, ball game and track meet—plus talking until the wee hours of the morning about the "old days," admiring pictures of each other's children, and so on.

The highlight of our own activities was the Class dinner on Saturday night in Balch I,

What a Reunion! Gay costumes, lively bands, and even a calliope! There were good songs ringing clear down on the Library slope until the wee hours of the morning.

Over at Alumni Headquarters in Barton Hall, Rym Berry '04 got writer's cramp from autographing copies of his new book, Behind The Ivy. It was the hit of the Reunion, and if you have missed it, we can send you a copy postpaid for $3.50 and we can have it autographed too. If you don't have Rym's other books, Dirt Roads to Stoneposts and Stoneposts in the Sunset, we'll send them along too. They are $2.00 each.

Two of our popular items arrived too late for Reunion—a big Scrapbook and a Photo Album, both with Cornell Seal embossed in gold. We're sorry about the delay and we'll mail either of them or both of them on approval at $1.95 each. We sold out of a lot of other things too, but we will have new stock by time you read this ad, and we will be glad to fill your orders.

before the Rally, arranged by Miriam Riggs Wafler. The tables were beautifully decorated with "garden show" flowers supplied by Fanny Sly Kyle, Marion Wood Crosby, and Frances Cranmer Udall. Thanks to Edna Smith and Griswold Manufacturing Co., there was a lovely skillet ashtray at each place as a souvenir. Toastmistress Margaret McCabe did a grand job. Peg's sense of humor was at its best and her "twenty-year awards" were taken in the best of spirit.

Perhaps most important was our election of Class officers in accordance with suggestions of the Association of Class Secretaries. Lydia Lueder Darling, our new Class secretary, will be assisted by a Class council of Ruth Gorbaty Goldman, Buffalo; Peg McCabe, New York City; and Isabelle Rogers Richardson of Staten Island. We know Lydia will be a grand secretary—and that you will all give her your support. We also decided to get out an annual Class letter and to collect annual dues of one dollar to start a fund for 1955.

There was little time for sleep—we can all do that at home—but everyone had a grand time. We think we haven't changed as much as the Campus has—and that we don't look as old as the men do (our opinion, of course). We missed those of you who couldn't come this year and hope you'll make it in 1955; we'll all be there! Marion Whipple McClellan and Lydia Darling were a big help with our Class history. If any of you haven't received a copy, let us know.

40 Men Set New Ten-year Reunion Record

Photo Science

'39 MS—Arthur W. McArton is with the Canada Colonization Association at Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

'40 Men—What could be finer than a hot day in June, a cool beer, and the companionship of members of the Class of '40 at a clambake on the shores of Lake Cayuga? This ideal combination started a perfect week end for 161 men who came to Ithaca from as far away as the Philippines and South Africa for a Reunion that astounded everyone.

Here's what '40 did! We had the largest number of men back for ten-year Reunion, topping by fourteen a record set seventeen years ago by the Class of '23. We had the largest attendance of any Class at this year's Reunion—the first time any ten-year Class has had the highest attendance.

Highlight of the week end was the Class banquet at the Lehigh Valley House. Following ten minutes of applause (?), the group was finally quieted to hear the keynote speaker and Class secretary, Mr. R. Selden Brewer. In spite of a rather stingy allotment of space by the Alumni News for reporting so important an address, we have decided to quote Mr. Brewer in full, as his remarks captured so appropriately the spirit of our Tenth Reunion. Selly said, "There will be no speeches." His address was followed by an ovation that was bedlam. John Schilling was also asked to speak, but he could not be prevailed upon. Wright Bronson had lost his voice late Friday. The Savage Club Quartet and Tommy Tracy, director of the Glee Club, were our guests at dinner and entertained us afterward with several fine songs. It was a real treat and we thank these men for joining us.

Four Classmates deserve a special tribute for coming to Reunion from overseas; Jordy Severinghaus was here from Cape Town, South Africa. Merle Robie from the Philippines, Bill Flemming from Honolulu, and Bob Caldwell from Dublin, Ireland.

All in all, everyone agreed that a terrific time was had in Forty's Tenth tent on the 9th and 10th. A Class Newsletter in the near future will tell more about Reunion, with pictures taken by John Brock and Fred Faber, our official photographers. We wish to thank all those who helped make Reunion a success and especially Joe Griesedieck whose Falstaff Beer mugs lent a festive note. —J.M.

'45 Men—"The beer's all gone; the beer's all gone!" "Anybody seen my voice?" Here it is three days after Reunion and I still have virtually no voice. But—no sad songs for me! No foolin', the saddest part of Reunion was not having all of you who didn't or couldn't get back to the Hill whoopin' it up with us who did make it.

Let it be understood that '45 held what amounted to a joint Reunion with the women of the Class and it worked out mightily. Best indication that our Reunion wasn't sold short: both nights the mighty Class of '45 was the last to run out of beer and the last to fold. Who will forget Bill Rothfuss trying to get the parade underway with his whip and tin badge? And remember Pren Cushing at the track meet with his red derby, fat cigar in mouth, and both hands clutching full mugs of brew? And of course Saturday night down at the tent nobody, but nobody, will forget Lady Godiva and how Newt Hunsberger had to be tied to the tent pole with a leash because he was barking at her so determinedly. Then of course there was the impromptu mixed track meet at our Saturday night picnic, when Woody Bacon gave his all and gave out. And Dan Hrtko almost discovered track and beer don't mix, but lived to tell the tale. Out of the hinterlands of the South came Harry Furman who had an endless parade of laughs for the troops and who finally shed shirt and tie for red derby and splashy T-shirt.

There is a vivid recollection in my tired head of Mort Rauff showing himself as the Bob Feller of the Class in the softball game that was er, faithfully and er, accurately umpired by your correspondent. Tom Jackson who did yeoman service in making our Big Fifth possible was always in there harmonizing. Bet Fred McNair won't soon forget making like a fire engine going back to the tent after Cornell put the whammy on Princeton in track. Curt Morehouse, your erstwhile Alumni Fund representative, was on hand and reluctantly yielded his Reunion tax (under terrific pressure, that is!). We couldn't sing enough songs for Don Suskind. Speaking of songs, Dirty Lil was rendered exactly 1,417½ times, by actual count. Remember Gordy Pritchard's red suspenders? Thank him for a job well done on the beer and Bob O'Rourke and him for a picnic reminiscent of the good old days. I've hardly touched my random notes on the momentous events of the week end just passed, so be sure to see the next issue for the rest of what went on when '45 showed it was really alive. And how!—Bill Knauss

'45 Women—In spite of having to share our members with post war Classes, we were all thrilled with the response to our

Class of '45 "Fraternizes" at Five-year Reunion

Photo Science

Fifth Reunion. Thirty-three women (we wore aqua neck and waist scarf sets) were together for dinner in Statler Hall Friday evening. It was a delight just to see and eat in Statler Hall. There was a short program, with Eleanor Dickie as mistress of ceremonies. Maxine Katz Goodman, Class secretary; Ina Hundinger, Alumni Fund representative; and Kay Winsor, Reunion chairman, gave short reports, then Jane Knauss Stevens presented a slate of officers to act for the next five years. Elected were: Kay Winsor, president; Ina Hundinger, secretary; Maxine Katz Goodman, treasurer; Eleanor Dickie, Alumni Fund representative; and Reta Davidson, Alumni News correspondent. Though some of us scattered to sing on the steps of Goldwin Smith and to attend the Glee Club concert, we all wound up the first gala evening singing in the men's tent on Library Slope.

An added attraction, besides the track meet Saturday afternoon, were the clams served in the tent, though this reporter never quite caught up with the right tent at the right time. At six o'clock, 100 men and women in our Class joined forces for a super roast beef picnic on Kite Hill. By this time many of the women had donned white T-shirts and red derbies like the men's. Bob O'Rourke and Evelyn Knowlton Lambert, Newt Hunsberger and Maralyn Winsor Pritchard, Dick Dixon and Reta Davidson, Mary Lou Ratan and her partner (who won) ran three-legged races and kept us cheering until baseball attracted all attention. The girls team of course gave the men a real beating. With our stiff muscles needing relaxation, the picnic finished itself with some good harmony on all the songs, just a teaser for what went on in the line of singing in the men's tent after the rally.

It's hard to believe the week end could pass so quickly. It was so good to see everyone again. From all reports it was a bang-up Reunion and we're looking forward to the one in 1955. May it be bigger and better, if possible!—K.W.
