Facebook Limiting and Leaving Study: Web Survey

Q40. You are invited to take part in a study about people leaving Facebook or limiting their use of it. We are asking you to participate in our study because you volunteered and fit our description of a valid participant for this study. Please read this form carefully and ask any questions you may have before agreeing to take part in the study.

What this study is about: The purpose of this study is to help understand practices of those who choose not to use Facebook and how those choices impact other users.

What we ask you to do: If you agree to participate in our study, you will be asked a series of questions about your use and/or non-use of Facebook. These questions should take no more than 10-20 minutes to complete.

Risks and benefits: We see no risks associated with this study other than those encountered in day-to-day life. The only possible benefit is the potential for feeling a sense of pride in contributing to research.

Taking part is voluntary: This study is voluntary. You may stop at any time if you feel it’s necessary. When completing the survey, you may skip any questions you don’t feel comfortable completing. If you decide not to participate in this study, it will not affect your current or future relationship with Cornell University.

Your answers will be confidential: Any and all information you provide may be used in future studies or research. However, there will be no way to identify you personally through the data we collect, and any personal information will be kept separate from the data set in a locked file only the researchers will have access to. Excerpts of the answers you provide may be posted to a public Internet site, but they will be posted anonymously and any identifying details will be removed; if your story is such that it cannot be anonymized, it will not be included on the site.

If you have any questions: The primary researcher conducting this study is Eric P. S. Baumer. If you have questions, you may contact Eric at ericpsb@cornell.edu.
