

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Yoon Yi attended University of California, Riverside where she obtained a Bachelor in Comparative Literature focusing on French and Japanese Literature. She came to Cornell in the Spring of 2005 and began her Master program in the East Asian Studies Department, focusing her studies on Korean history and literature during colonialism.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I was very fortunate to meet many inspiring and encouraging people at Cornell and I would like to thank them for all their patience and kindness. I would like to acknowledge my family and friends who have always been supportive throughout my stay in Ithaca. Finally, my gratitude and appreciation goes to Professor Michael Shin, who has been the most patient and helpful, and who has always told me not to be embarrassed by what I cannot do, but to try to do better each time.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Biographical Sketch	iii
Acknowledgements	iv
Chapter I Introduction	1
Chapter 2 From Old to New: A Society in Transition	9
Chapter 3 Korean Modern Literature	19
Chapter 4 The Construct of Confucius Women and New Women	23
Chapter 5 Safeguarding the New Woman	28
Chapter 6 Women's Movement after the March First Incident of 1919	41
Chapter 7 Literature after the March First Movement	46
Chapter 8 Failures of the Gender Construct	48
Chapter 9 The Modern Girl	59
Chapter 10 Conclusion	63
Bibliography	67