Moving to E-Only …

Journal Reviews at the Cornell University Library

Bill Kara

12/10/2006
The Cornell University Library

- 20 Libraries
- $9.8 million spent on print & electronic serials
- Approx. 45,000 current journals (excludes other “serials” -- monographic series, bill-later items …
- Approx. 42,000 journals titles online (32,000 current titles -- not embargoed, not cancelled, not ceased)
E-Only Reviews: History & Project Goals

- Libraries are at different stages in their reviews
- Selectors and University Departments are at different levels of acceptance of e-only
- Goals for e-only conversion at the end of the three year project (2006-2008): 4,000 subscriptions to be converted Project Goals continued …

- Subscription Savings
  - Savings per subscription for converting to e-only
  - Cancellation of duplicate subscriptions and relying on online access
  - Cancellation of titles available in online collections, particularly those with clear archival rights

- Non-Subscription Savings
Non-Subscription Savings

- All the physical handling, processing and long-term maintenance and space requirements … check-in, shelving, binding, etc.
- Staff resources
  - Tech Services staff shrinking, but ‘hybrid’ library placing new demands on staff and skills
Tech Services/Collection Development Collaboration

- Decide on details of the reviews
  - Size of the review, which publishers
- Prepare Lists
  - What information needed?
- Verify archival rights
- Communication of Selectors with Departments: dept. meetings, library website: http://www.library.cornell.edu/colldev/e-only/
- Back and forth communication between TS and Coll Dev.: correct records, upgrade subscriptions…
Project Status

- Journal Subscriptions converted through the 2007 subscription year 2,600 (plus 600 at Cornell Medical College)
  - 2,400 Unique titles
  - 200 duplicate titles cancelled
  - Subscription costs savings considerable, but will still be devoured by price increases within a short time
Non-Subscription Savings

- Measures of progress
  - Issues no longer needing processing
  - Volumes no longer needing to be bound
  - Titles/Subscriptions no longer need to be maintained for print
  - Compare stats and time for check-in for selective weeks before and after conversion

- Harder to precisely measure
  - Staff time available to reallocate to other responsibilities
Next Steps

- Reviews for the 2008 subscription year
  - Begin earlier, involve more “conservative” departments earlier
  - Expand the reviews beyond a core list of publishers
  - Identify titles available in aggregators which might not be core to the collection and for which archival rights are not essential