CORNELL UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN

1937-38

To the President of the University:

SIR: I have the honor to submit the report of the Librarian of the University Library for the year ended June 30, 1938.

The Librarian's report of last year announced the completion of the addition to the library building and the successful moving of practically all the books in the building. The Librarian cannot refrain from commenting upon the effect of the increase in book space after more than a year's operation under the new conditions. The sense of relief in the shelving of books and in their handling for daily use continues unabated. The modern stack and shelf construction, the thoroughly efficient modern stack lighting, the ample, unified locked-press arrangement for the more valuable books, are in such glaring contrast with the system still obtaining in the older stacks of the present building that it is difficult to realize that the Library functioned as well as it did under the old conditions. The space devoted to administrative and technical staff work, however, is still practically the same as it was twenty years ago. With the increasing growth and use of the Library this condition has inflicted actual hardship and discomfort upon the staff and hampers in a continually increasing degree the proper functioning of all the technical and administrative divisions.

The installation of a new indirect lighting system in the main reading room to replace the old desk lights, which were the source of continued complaints for many years, has made a vast difference in the working conditions in the reading room. This is particularly noticeable in the increased use of the room during the evening hours.

STAFF

In July 1937 Mr. Dane L. Baldwin was added to the staff with the special duty of caring for the Goldwin Smith Hall and the Hart Libraries. In the same month Miss Frances L. Macoughtry entered the library service as a cataloguer.

With keen regret the Librarian records the death on June 27, 1938 in his 82nd year, of Professor George Lincoln Burr, Curator Emeritus of The President White Historical Library, a special division of the University Library. This division was established in 1887, when Dr. Andrew D. White, who had retired from the Presidency of the University in 1885, donated practically the whole of his private library, some 40,000 volumes, to the University, stipulating that the Trustees set aside a specific sum annually for additions in the fields in which this collection was particularly strong, mediaeval and modern European history and political science.

It is with this collection that Professor Burr's library activities were particularly concerned, and his connection with it began long before it became a part of the University Library. In fact, as Dr. White's amanuensis, assistant, and purchasing agent in Europe he was instrumental in selecting and gathering many of the books and manuscripts which are now the richest treasures of our University book collection.

No one was more ready to acknowledge this debt to Professor Burr than Andrew D. White himself. When the present Library building was dedicated on October 7, 1891, Dr. White made a formal presentation of the President White Library. In words which, now, on this sad occasion almost forty-seven years later, we recall with the full conviction that they might have been said of all that Professor Burr did after that time, as well as of what he did to build up the library which was then donated, President White said:

"It would be gross injustice not to mention here with honor and gratitude the name of one man whose agency in collecting books for the library has, during these ten years past, been far more important than my own: that man is my friend, Professor George Lincoln Burr. To his exhaustive and accurate knowledge, excellent judgment, broad view of the scope of such a library, deep sense of its true purpose, and devotion to the University, is due far more than to any efforts of my own the most valuable growth of this collection. He too, has ransacked the most important repositories of historical treasures throughout Europe, and has given to the collection a value which it probably never would have obtained without his unselfish labor."

Professor Burr was born at Oramen (Allegany County) in western New York on January 30, 1857, the son of William Josiah Burr, a physician. He prepared for college at the Cortland Academy in Homer, N. Y. and at the same time learned the printer's trade. In 1877 he entered Cornell and graduated in 1881. Before his graduation President White had already called upon him to help with the President's private library. Upon his graduation he was appointed an instructor in history and from this time onward until his retirement in 1922 he was more or less continually a member of the faculty, teaching some phase of ancient, mediaeval, or modern history. He was made Assistant Professor in 1889 and Professor in 1892. He became President White's personal secretary and assistant in 1881. In 1884 to 1886 and again in 1887 to 1888 he spent longer periods of study and research in Europe, during which time also he took an active share in searching for and purchasing books and manuscripts for President White's library. When the President's library was transferred to the University, Professor Burr was made the official Librarian of this special collection, and from that time up to the year of his death, even after his retirement from active duty on the faculty in 1922, he devoted a great part of his energy to the care and growth of the undertaking which he had helped to initiate.

In addition to the broadly human qualities of gentleness, unselfishness, and devotion which won for him the lasting love of his students and fellow teachers, George Burr was imbued with an intensely moving type of humanitarianism, which took the form of an open and pronounced opposition to anything that savored of injustice. His was a militant liberalism that waged a vigorous war upon any form of oppression, tyranny, superstition, intolerance, or prejudice, ever ready to rush without hesitation or reserve to the defense of the under-dog. And when this mood was upon him he cast off entirely the mild and gentle manner which characterized his ordinary dealings with his fellow men.

This attitude of mind is responsible for the development of certain fields in the President White Library in which it is still pre-eminent. Here his leanings coincided with certain lines of thought which had guided Andrew D. White in the building up of his historical library. Beginning with the problem treated by White in his book "A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom" in the growth of which George Burr had no small part, he developed during Andrew D. White's life and after his death the sections on the Reformation, the Counter-Reformation, the Inquisition, Torture, the French Revolution, and the Napoleonic period and particularly in his later years the field of witchcraft. His interest here was not in the mystery and black magic of witchcraft, but in the problem of witchcraft accusations and trials, the ignorance and superstition, the tyranny and intolerance, the injustice and cruelty, which made this whole movement a blot upon the history of civilization. This was the George Burr, whose sturdy courage, whose uprightness and fairness, whose meticulous scholarship and broad knowledge, were memorialized in the volume which his friends and former students dedicated to him on the eve of his seventy-fifth birthday in the book entitled "Persecution and Liberty; Essays in Honor of George Lincoln Burr" (New York, 1931).

A further contribution to the usefulness of the President White Library may be seen in the three volumes of a "Catalogue of the Historical Library of Andrew Dickson White" which were prepared and published under Professor Burr's direction.

- I. The Protestant Reformation and its Forerunners (1889)
- II. The French Revolution (1894)
- IV. Miscellanea (1897)

The volume planned as No. III was never published. And a catalogue planned for the witchcraft collection remained in the form of handwritten slips.

Year after year Professor Burr turned over to the Cornell University Library the income from the sale of Andrew D. White's book on the Warfare of Science with Religion. And the same generous spirit directed to the shelves of the Library many of the journals and proceedings of learned societies of which Burr was a member and many valuable books which came to him in his capacity as an editor or as a historian.

Others will tell of Professor Burr's work as a teacher and as a scholar, and of his life dedicated to Cornell University as a whole; but from what has been said here it will be clear that for the Cornell University Library George Lincoln Burr was not merely a faithful and devoted servant, but a father and a mighty support, a model and a guide for all who come after him.

EXHIBITIONS

During the year a small exhibition was made of a few of the treasures of the Wordsworth Collection, formed by Mrs. Cynthia Morgan St. John of Ithaca, and presented to the University in 1925 by a loyal alumnus, Mr. Victor Emanuel of the Class of 1919. A most interesting display was provided by a collection of actual photographs of the individual members of the Faculty in the early seventies, which came from a class album collected by Mr. Owen Harris of the Class of 1874 and presented to the Library by his son, Mr. Joseph Porter Harris of the Class of 1901.

ACCESSIONS

The total amount expended for books and bindings during the year 1937-38 was $40,610 as against $38,453 for the preceding year. Miss Ingersoll, Head of the Accessions Division reports that the total number of additions was 15,163 as against 10,668 last year. Of these 10,679 went to the general library and the remainder, 4,484, to special collections. Of the general acquisitions 6,749 were purchased and 3,930 were gifts.

GIFTS

The names entered on our donors' list number 595. To each of these donors the Librarian, in the name of the University and of all who make use of our collection, offers sincere and heartfelt thanks. A very significant part of our gift list is the record of the number of journals and magazines which come to us regularly as donations of their publishers or editors. Our gratitude to these individuals as well as to the government agencies, foundations, institutions, societies, and business undertakings whose serial publications reach us regularly, and whose contributions over a long number of years represent a material value that often runs to high figures, grows with the added years.

Mrs. Miriam S. Weyl donated $25 for books to be added to those purchased from the James S. Weyl book endowment. Other cash donations for general or for specific purposes were received from Mr. Victor Emanuel, Mr. Elmer M. Johnson, and from Mr. and Mrs. William F. E. Gurley. Mr. and Mrs. Gurley have likewise added to the long list of books, particularly of Shakespeariana and the theater, which have been received from them in the past. Dr. N. M. Crouse who gave books on the Spanish situation, Dr. Henry P. de Forest, Mr. Carter R. Kingsley, the Hon. William Sulzer, and Mr. Douglas C. McMurtrie have also remained steady donors. The number of members of the Faculty who have followed this practice is too great to name them individually in this paragraph, but the Librarian wishes to assure them that this particular form of "charity at home" is not the least gratifying evidence of their interest in the book collection which is peculiarly their own.

Only a few of the actual book donations can be listed here. They include a gift from the Hon. Charles G. Dawes: "Notes as Vice President, 1928-1929." Mr. George V. Fowler of Yonkers, N. Y. gave us 53 miscellaneous bound volumes and a set of account books of Benjamin Fowler (Yonkers 1807-1820). From Miss Clara W. Hastings we received an autograph letter of Ezra Cornell, dated 11 December 1863. Through Miss Mary J. Hull we received from the estate of the late Professor Charles H. Hull, among other items, a map of New York State (1795), a map of Ithaca (1836), a number of early Geneva, N. Y., and Canandaigua, N. Y. imprints, and many miscellaneous pamphlets and volumes. Through Professor P. W. Gates the Indiana Historical Commission and the Historical, Memorial, and Art Department of Iowa presented many of their historical publications. Mr. James McCall added to our file of Bath newspapers by giving us bound volumes of the Bath Plaindealer, Vol. 1 (1883-84) and Vols. 16-38 (1898-1921), and added a manuscript index for a part of this material. Miss Jean McDermott presented 323 volumes chiefly on naval architecture and engineering. Mr. A. J. T. Mendes gave 77 miscellaneous books and pamphlets. From Mr. Frederick J. Nettlefold came the handsome "Catalogue of the pictures and drawings in the Collection of F. J. Nettlefold."

OTTO KINKELDEY,
Librarian.
