About the Church and the Monastery

The Church and the Monastery have been crucial in the history of the region.

Records of the Church and the Monastery indicate a rich history of faith and community.

The Church and the Monastery have been a source of spiritual guidance for centuries.

The Church and the Monastery have played a significant role in the cultural and social development of the area.

The Church and the Monastery continue to be important institutions today, offering a space for worship and reflection.

Historical documents suggest that the Church and the Monastery have been central to the community's identity and way of life.

The Church and the Monastery have provided a sense of belonging and a place for the faithful to gather.

The Church and the Monastery have been a beacon of hope and comfort, especially during times of need.

The Church and the Monastery continue to be a testament to the human spirit and the enduring power of faith.

Through their architecture and their stories, the Church and the Monastery remain a symbol of the past and a promise of the future.

7 DIMANCHE. S. Prosper

Il nous sortait de la visite des Halles contournant la place de la Bourse. Nous avons découvert des monuments, des statues et des églises. Il nous a semblé que nous étions arrivés à la fin de notre tour.

Ensuite, nous avons pris un déjeuner dans un restaurant très réputé pour sa cuisine locale. Les saveurs étaient délicieuses et nous avons été émerveillés par la diversité des plats proposés.

Nous avons ensuite visité le musée de la ville où nous avons pu voir des œuvres d'art des époques les plus anciennes jusqu'aux dernières décennies. Les collections étaient impressionnantes et nous avons découvert de nombreuses informations sur l'histoire de la ville.

Enfin, nous avons terminé notre journée avec une promenade dans le centre historique. Les rues étroites et les maisons anciennes nous ont procuré un sentiment de tranquillité et de sérénité. Nous avons terminé la journée en soirée avec une dégustation de vins locaux, qui nous ont permis de terminer notre journée dans un grand confort et de nous souvenir de cette magnifique ville.

For several weeks past the one subject of interest has been the great political situation in China. Messrs.

We visited the East Side of Altenberg. We found the city of the Befreiungskreis. We visited the National Theater. It is clear that the German chiefs have been assassinated. It was a man of great power. It is not news, but has been revealed to us.

The tour of the German and Austrian government. The most important event of the day was the visit at the Altenberg Theatre. All the civilized world is present at the performance today.

Early evening we reached the home of my uncle, the American consul.

With much enthusiasm were greeted by my uncle, Mr. Jackson.

He was a rich man, had a large house and belonged to the old families of New York.

He was a great collector of books and loved literature.

He was very kind and intelligent,

but quite different from what I had expected.

March 5, 1901

Li Fei Hwan, accompanied by Dr. Kreher, as interpreter, wishing to consult me about the present condition of things in Manchuria, and especially in regard to the demand of Russia for virtual possession of the rest, I simply told him that my own government was greatly opposed to any concessions of territory save such as should be made in accordance with the principle of equality and non-interference. I did not feel very strongly about it, but could not see how the demands of Russia could be resisted. I was obliged to tell him that in my opinion, even if Russia insisted, China could not expect any effective help from the other powers in resisting these demands.

4 MERCREDI. S. Lazare 247-418

In manus domine custodiae meae. J. B. Oscar Strauss, electum medicum et thal. ornat. In an hour, take a spoonful of sugar and eat."
After this matter was fully discussed, he asked my opinion on the present situation. I told him that I thought that the great mistake of China had been in resorting to violence; that if they had wished to get rid of the missionaries, they had, in my opinion, a perfect right, under the simplest principles of international law, to turn out of the Empire any persons whom they thought dangerous to its peace, calling his attention to the fact that this right was constantly exercised by various nations, including Germany and the United States. That as regards the missionaries, the torturing and killing of them had aroused the strongest feelings of the various nations which could not have been aroused if China had simply pursued the course above referred to.

In discussing the missionary question, he said that the Chinese were very tolerant toward other religions, and that various learned missionaries and teachers had been greatly respected and were gladly afforded privileges; but that some of the missionaries were evidently mere declaimers, exhorters and the like, making statements which deeply injured the feelings of the Chinese, among others regarding the impossibility of salvation outside the Christian church, which, of course, touched the Chinese in their very deepest feelings, namely, their reverence for their ancestors. He especially dwelt on the missionaries who had little education and only declaimed against the religion of China. He said that these were looked down upon by all the better class in China, and, he thought with reason.

So, too, he said that the extritoriality of many of these missionaries had given rise to great trouble, also that great numbers of the converts really knew nothing and cared nothing of Christianity, but simply wished to secure gain or protection by their conversion.

As to the religions of China, he said that Confucianism, in its best sense, was perfectly compatible with the Chinese religion or the Buddhist religion; that it was a code of morality, which, with persons with a sentimental or religious turn of mind, needed something of a religious character, such as either of these religions would afford. He himself is a Confucian, but acknowledges that the Confucian religion, like all others, has greatly degenerated from the teachings of its founder; that various superstitions have been incorporated into it, so far as the great mass of the people are concerned.

Having expressed a desire that I speak to him regarding the practical measures which would be of use to China, I went quite fully into the subject, recommending, above all things, technical schools to enable the Chinese to reorganize the Empire in an industrial way, and to build it up as one of the great powers in the world. I pointed out to him what all the modern nations are doing in this respect, and how such schools have become valuable, and, indeed, indispensable to them. I referred to the great new technical schools which the German Empire is establishing at Dantzig, more especially with reference to shipbuilding, and which it is contemplating at Breslau, to manufactures in general. I said to him "Let the existing schools remain, but reform them as much as possible. He acknowledged that the present schools were giving too much attention merely to committing literature to memory. He said that the reformer who barely escaped execution for advising the King in reform matters had thrown especial hostility upon himself by advising the utter sweeping away of the old schools. I advised him to allow the old schools to remain, reforming them as much as possible, and establishing technical schools. I showed him how this had taken place in England, Germany, and the United States, and that these institutions lived in perfect harmony with each other; that fifty years ago every institution of any standing taught simply Greek, Latin, and a few other branches, very imperfectly, but that now the old system had been reformed and had been greatly improved thereby, also that technical schools had been established at the same time.

On this he reverted to the general condition of China, when I told him that they were at the parting of the ways, that if they persisted in stifling reforms the Empire would surely cease to exist in any proper sense of the word; that it would really go to pieces, and that the other Powers would continue and indeed, increase their efforts to seize portions of its territory. At the same time, I told him that the U.S. never would do this; that there is a very strong feeling against any further acquisition of territory than that required by the late Spanish war, and that even this had given so much trouble that it might be that a new party would come into power to get rid of what had already been taken. I told him that in any case China unreformed must soon cease to exist. On the other hand, I told him that I fully believed that if proper reforms were made especially by the bringing in of first-class experts of various sorts, establishing technical schools, making suggestions as to the reforms of the old schools, reorganizing the army and navy and various branches of the Civil Service, China would take a new lease of existence and become one of the greatest and strongest powers in the world. I called attention to the fact that every great advance in the western nations has been the consequence of some great revolution or apparent catastrophe in public affairs; Great Britain, having taken an especial Various other points were taken up but those that I have given are of most importance. I was surprised at the thoughtfulness of some of his remarks. At the close he thanked me again and again. He has been for some years a reformer, but not an extremist.

As to Army and navy, I suggested that both should be kept small and thoroughly well organized; that money should not be lavished on either more than was necessary; that the money which would be used in maintaining a large army should be applied to the technical education which would in a few years enable China to build her own ships, equip her own armies and more and more compete in various branches of manufacture in the various markets of the world.

In morrow to Pompeii. After luncheon at Hotel Bromley was taken about the ruins. As I had visited them so often the interest was to see the home of the Vettii, which was beginning to be uncover. End of the wall about 1875 found decorated with unlike all the original decoration. Furniture been preserved as seen. Beautifully delicate frescoes. The Under Director of the excavations, Signor J. F. has been through two very hard.

Hence to Castellammare Sorrento Hotel Victoria. Whole floor of recollections came over the whole of the hotel, especially at the latter half of Chambers staff here.

During morningCousins about Sorrento. At 2.30 P.M. left on the new road for Agerola. The road is not perhaps picturesque as that from Neapolitan Salerno but it is a much better. Markable piece of engineering the journey required us 3 hours Med. the Hubbard's Bells on the way. Write this from the old rooms - been here at Mount Clava - so many years ago in the United States. Marina at the top of the Cape is Dairia. It is the Thirst - the first having been made 45 years ago. July 7th Continued

Kilian's 8th Birthday.

We celebrated at noon by a cake with candles. I truly in ignorance that it was my poor dear Ted's Death Day.

July 8th at about 5 P.M. my dear Ted took his own life with a rifle in his own house. I am told the pain of the children at Harcourt who had so long known it was cruel. How dear he felt the loss of this splendid July 10th detail having come this morning.

State arranging matters, finding letters to a multitude of people.

At 5 P.M. received a Telegram from Streat. Mrs. Edith announced severe character of poor Ted's illness which leads me to fear that what I have so long dreaded is near. It is a heavy burden, but not so.

Telegram arrived announcing news that Ted's death about 5 P.M. The moment his last letter dated 5th July was brought in.

May God bless you. I was brought in.

Just about the moment of his death.

30 Tage.

254--106

One of the saddest days in my life. At about 7 A.M., came a message that President McKinley had died about 2 A.M. At 10 came a visit from the Hasseloff by Baron V. Richtsfeld, Hambur, Foreign Affairs, and the President's former Secretary of State. After the death of the President, the ambassadors of the seven nations, the leaders of the people, came to the residence to express their sorrow and their sympathy. I also saw the President's family, being consoled by the state. The Jagers, the American Consul, and the German Consul, were present. All were very kind and very helpful. I was pleased to see them both, and they seemed to approve my views. Very kind.

Girl still with me, my in-law and my daughter are still at home. What do you think of the situation? Modern education is the key.

Letters to friends.

In coming to Potdau, under tt.
Leonard, Rich D. Siegward presented the President's message to them, with the President's cordially.

The President's message of earnest assurance of good will and of the strong personal feeling of strong admiration for President. Mr. Roosevelt's words also denoted the expression of admiration for the President's work and of a historian and a leader.

Especially as one who had killed
a bearskin to bring him to bear mountain lions (Coyons) in the Rocky Mountains. He was very cordial in his vocabulary and Suffitious, spoke in high terms of American skill and enterprise in ship building. He also entrusted his dissatisfaction at the honors shown Alexander Mitchell
by Harvard of his own inventions, and a collection of Casts illustra-

Went to an adjourned meeting of the Hubbard, in room No. 14 in the old building of the P.H. to Frederickburg (4:36 to 5:25) to see my old friend Mr. J. S. Potter present the case of the U.S. at Stuttgart - Changing place at home. I was业态ly received by Mr. a brothe er a brother of former service in Confederate service? at Union Oaks.

Beautiful day, from with we Potter over the battlefield. When 1500 men lost their lives to the Confederacy of Gen. Brumante. I saw the Southern road when Gen. Lee. Advancing to the Confederate line. I noticed a man in the edge of the crowd. I knew I had been in the heart of the action. The man who saved the President's life at the coronation of Moscow at one time was dead. The President's Star of the Order of the Garter.
In afternoon after Commission Court to the Vineyard. Very much wind. Perhaps the poorest weather I have seen in the journey on the river or of the river's navigation. Or of the various navigation of the course of the river from it a beautiful day.

Dear Father,

I hope this letter finds you well. I am writing to update you on the current situation at home. As you may recall, Mr. Thompson arrived yesterday with some unexpected news.

It seems that a great fire has broken out in the town. The flames have engulfed many houses, and the sound of screams and cries can be heard from all corners of the town. The firemen have been working tirelessly to control the blaze, but it has spread rapidly.

I have also heard that a young girl, Lily, has gone missing. She was last seen playing near the river, and her father is searching for her with the help of the police. It is a trying time for the town, and we are all very concerned.

I am doing my best to stay calm and help others in any way I can. Please do not worry about me, as I am safe and well.

With love,

Mary

In the morning about University with Professor Edwards finished lunch at the Club with Mrs. Trumbull, Mr. R. King the President. Had a discussion on some lower students of the High School. A noble audience from all the youth. School was over for the day. Time to send Paul by train. Taken to the station, suddenly called by Speaker, asked to have it read. Got through it fairly well. Speaker forced a straight and honest eloquence. Blatantly right. Signed at 9:00. Others after dinner. Went to the Library. Paul Dowd at 7:00. Will write in Chicago. Left at 11:00.

Visited with our Ambassador Gen. Muges Porter. Took one with his wife of the Repeal of the 6% 9% Salt between her and Cornelia wife of the Late Ambassador. Talked with the late Ambassador along with the Patron of the Ministry. Were in the Palace of the President of Paris trying to influence him. Left Gen. Hall, Fielding, and Late Ministers. Visited Heshey & Co. for Andrew Carnegie.
Winding up very early, we proceeded to the Rue des Archives, Hôtel St. Pierre, and the Luxembourg. We also visited the Panthéon and the Madeleine, and the Louvre, Mr. De Bruce.
Letter to other others.

Dined with Mr. P., Mr. B. and Mr. J.

Went to Montparnasse then to the theatre at the Porte St. Martin. To see Sandous Meridio's spectacular drama. Corollier's (act 4) part was wonderfully well done. The whole piece an amazing production by the famous scenes at the close of the Reeg of Peron. The reenactment of Robespierre followed closely by the accents in the Recueils.
