

Eleventh
Annual Conference for Veterinarians

New York State Veterinary College at Cornell University

Program for Friday Afternoon

2:00 P. M. Demonstrations in main building.

Department of Pathology and Bacteriology, third floor.

Pathology of spavin, pericarditis and diagnosis of rabies.

Department of Physiology, second floor, north.

Apparatus and tests used to demonstrate physiological and pathological processes.

Library, second floor, south.

Display of selected reference books on veterinary science, showing where published.

Department of Anatomy, second floor, north wing.

Paranasal sinuses in horse and sheep.

Abnormally long coracoid process in horse.

Supernumerary premolars (wolf-teeth) in mandible (rare).

Canine teeth in mare.

Models of hand and foot of three-toed horse.

Mandible showing first and second sets of teeth.

Sagittal section of foot of horse.

Department of Obstetrics and Diseases of Breeding Cattle, first floor, north wing (Lower anatomy laboratory).

Demonstration of the pathology of the genital organs of cattle.

2:30 P. M. Medicine Building.

Department of Medicine, second floor, lecture room.

Physical diagnosis of cattle. Repeated at 4:00 P. M.

Department of Experimental Medicine, first floor.

Demonstration of injecting hogs with hog cholera serum. Repeated at 4:00 P. M.

2:30 P. M. Farriery Building, third floor.

Demonstration of horse shoes used in the treatment of lameness. Repeated at 4:00 P. M.

3:00 P. M. Small Animal Building, first floor.

Clinics and treatment of cases.

3:00 P. M. Large Animal Clinic.

Diagnosis of ring worm in calf.

Specimens of intussusception.

Treatment of cases.

3:00 P. M. Post Mortem Building.

Post mortem of animal upon which physical diagnosis was made.

