RESTRICTIONS OFF

The recently announced restrictions on the dispensing of milk and cream have now been removed and both milk and cream may be obtained daily, except Sundays. Increased production on the part of the herd is the reason.

ARMY AND NAVY E

Members of the Bacteriology and Dairy Divisions have received invitations from the Shefford Cheese Company of Green Bay, Wisconsin, to attend the awarding of the Army and Navy E to that company tomorrow, April 22. While no one will be able to attend in person, the ceremonies can be heard over a national broadcast by CBS at 3:00 p. m. central wartime. Mr. E. H. Freidel, director of research for the Shefford Company, has been a frequent visitor to this Station and has followed the cheese investigations closely, particularly recent work on the canning of cheese.

EXAGGERATED

So says Tim Butts regarding the item that appeared in the NEWS last week about the Oakies and Tim's ways with the ladies; but, he adds, there is no myth about the garden. It is plowed and fitted, he says, and if he had had a snow shovel he would have his peas planted by this time.

TRAPPIST TYPE CHEESE

Judging by the number of calls for the Station bulletin describing the making of Trappist type cheese and requests for aid in solving local problems encountered in its manufacture, interest in this commodity is growing; possibly in part because it is not yet rationed. Trappist cheese is easily made and quickly cured and is now being manufactured by several New York State producer-distributors. Reports have been received from a former Vermont "student" of the Dairy Division, who spent some time at the Station a while back in learning the technic, that he is now selling his Trappist cheese by parcel post in a package containing three 12-ounce prints for $2.00 postpaid.

WHO HAS THIS?

Asks Fred Hartzell regarding an anemometer he loaned someone. He cannot remember to whom he loaned the instrument, but he needs it now for use in his spraying operations and would greatly appreciate its return.

HORT SOCIETY PROCEEDINGS

The 1943 Volume of the Proceedings of the New York State Horticultural Society for the eighty-eighth annual meeting held last January has made its appearance and a few copies are available in the Editor's office. The book carries Mr. Parrott's portrait as a frontispiece in recognition of his election as the Society's first and only honorary life member.

HER HAT MADE A HIT

Geneva radio fans who listen to "Breakfast at Sardi's", a regular weekly feature from Hollywood, received a thrill the other day when Mrs. M. T. Munn was one of the guests at Sardi's to receive special attention from the announcer because of the "creation" she wore as a hat. It had been prepared especially for the occasion by Mrs. Munn's Red Cross surgical dressing unit when they learned that she planned to visit her daughter Helen in Alhambra near Hollywood.
